Tuesday at about 9 p.m., shortly after most of the group returned to the Skyline, a dispute betwen two local residents across the street ended when one fired four shots with a handgun. One bullet struck a man before the assailant fled in a car.

SAFA vice-president Steven R. Sullivan walked out the hotel front doors and the victim fell into his arms.

"There was blood on his forehead and a hole in his sweatshirt," Sullivan recalled. "I said to him, 'Did you get stabbed?' He said, 'No, I got shot.'" Sullivan said be brought the man into the hotel lobby, helping him to a couch before telling someone to call the police. The man was taken by ambulance to a nearby hospital. No other information was available.

The shooting did not mar the trip, students later said.

"There was a lot of enthusiasm," Alfano said. "Everyone wanted to go out and do things. I saw a lot of emotion."

Former professor still learning by teaching piano

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Aron Pressman, a retired UMass professor, tickles the ivories at his home in Amherst. He has been teaching piano there for 15 years.

By CARYN BOWERS
Collegian Staff

At 88, Aron Pressman can't remember not playing the piano.

"The learning never ends," he says. "The more you know, the more you want to find out."

Pressman started giving piano lessons in Amherst almost 15 years ago, after retiring from teaching Russian at the University of Massachusetts.

"The most important thing about teaching is that if I have a certain knowledge, I can pass it on, share it with people," he said in a recent interview in his Amherst home.

Pressman teaches students of all abilities, from age 14 to age 65, as long as they are "willing to work and willing to learn."

He feels it is not necessary to start playing the piano at a very young age, for one understands more when older.

"A child may love music, but when you begin to explain it, they get confused and lose interest," he said.

Pressman charges his students $10 an hour for lessons, a price that hasn't changed since he started. He explained that to him, money is evil.

"I don't teach to make money; I don't need it," he said.

When not teaching, Pressman said he likes to accompany other musicians on the piano, or to practice painting and woodworking. Many of his artworks are proudly displayed throughout his home, including a hand-crafted viola and a portrait of his mother.

Pressman studied music at a conservatory in Russia, though he admits he dreamed of being an engineer. His father was a conductor and violinist and his mother an opera singer, so he was surrounded by music from the day he was born.

"Music was in our family, and my parents decided I would be a pianist," he said. "That's what parents do with their children."

He left Russia in 1918, during World War I, and spent the next three years living all over the Far East. His last stop was Java, an island off the South Pacific, where he began working as a chorus master and prompter for The Russian Grand Opera Company. "I was never good enough to be a soloist," he said.

He travelled with the company to New York City, and remained there with his wife and two children when the company moved to Mexico. It was then he began giving piano lessons.

"That's how I lived," he said, "until Russian was in demand."

Pressman was head of the Russian department at New York University for 10 years before coming to Amherst.

FYI

Buses leaving Saturday to Sunday's National March for Women's Lives in Washington D.C. have 20 spaces left. Tickets are $20 for students, $30 for the general public, and are available the Women's Studies program, the Everywoman's Center, United Christian Foundation in the Student Union, and Food For Though Books in Amherst.

Developmental psychologist Robert Kegan will speak on "Development During the College Years," from 10 to 11 a.m. tomorrow in Marks Meadow auditorium.

Kegan, an associate of the Clinical Developmental Institute at Harvard University, is author of The Evolving Self, published in 1983, which synthesizes the theories of several developmental psychologists.

A food collection drive sponsored by MassPIRG is scheduled from 4 to 7 p.m. today and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday - but not tomorrow - at the Super Stop and Shop on Route 9 in Hadley.

Student volunteers from the group will be giving shoppers entering the store a list of products that are needed at the Western Mass. Food Bank. Shoppers can then pick up one or more items during the course of their shopping and leave them with MassPIRG on the way out.

Elderly man hits tow truck

A car driven by a 73-year-old West Brookfield man received over $1000 in damages after it struck a tow truck driven by a 25-year-old Amherst man, at 1:37 p.m. Tuesday on North Pleasant Street at Montague Road, Amherst police said.

The 73-year-old man, after stopping for a flashing light at a fork in the road, pulled out and hit the tow truck. The truck received less than $1000 in damages. The 73-year-old man was cited for failure to take care in starting, police said.

-ANNE TAUGER

★ senate

continued from page 1

Chanting, "Walk out, walk out," about 60 senators and students quickly gathered around the doors of the ballroom before drowning out further testimony with chants of "Drum, Drum."

The move was seen by observers as an attempt to end proceedings by lowering the number of senators present to a point where no vote could be legally taken.

As the protesters pressed against the doorway, Budgets Committee members Greg Rothman and Nate Moore attempted to shut the doors but were pulled away by other participants inside the room.

"See what happens when they don't get their way?," said Greek Area senator Bob Griffin, pointing to the students gathered outside the door.

"I don't want to be in your stupid senate. You suck," cried an unidentified senator standing in the doorway.

"Progressives who have walked out of here have cost us the whole trust fund," said Washington Tower senator Lynne Murphy.

As the situation inside and outside the room grew more heated, Ruddock shouted down senators still on the floor to declare that in his opinion, a quorum no longer existed. Minutes later, the meeting was adjourned.

The senators who had walked out responded with glee and began chanting, "The people united will never be defeated."

Angry senators immediately gathered around Ruddock's podium. They were joined by students who had protested the proposed budget.

Senators still on the floor began chanting, "No confidence," apparently questioning Ruddock's ability and integrity, as a protester on the stage, where the podium was, jeered back, "We won."

Senator Tony Rudi leaned across the lectern at Ruddock, saying, "You're biased, J.R." Rudi was upset because he felt Ruddock had closed the proceedings due to his favoring the protester's position.

"I maintain no biases, other than that I have no comment," said Ruddock as he rushed out of the room.

"All the students chanting for student rights have now done more to hurt student rights. For the sake of $16,000 [Drums funding], we have now lost control of $1.8 million [the SGA budget]."

"If everyone had stopped and listened to what we had to say, we wouldn't have all lost," said student Lisa Stephens. "We all lost."

UMASS SKI CLUB
Information Meeting
For - Florida, Bahamas, Killington & Steamboat
Wed. March 5th - 4 pm
Commonwealth Room
(Earthfoods Cafe Room SUB)
Thursday, March 6th - 7 pm
Hampden - Southside
IMPORTANT -
Spring Break Information for all trips

free catalog★
Europe
From BOSTON — round trip from
LONDON 349
PARIS 439
AMSTERDAM 418
BRUSSELS 398
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 when busy 256-1261 or drop by
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

Art
the Hungry U Restaurant
UMASS IS GOING TO PIZZAS
The Best Pizza in town FREE every night from 9-10 PM
Check the Daily Dinner Specials
Free Delivery on Regular Orders
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

Now An Additional Location
adjacent to the UMASS campus in the Amherst Creamery Building
Skills a professional secretarial service
WORD PROCESSING, TRANSCRIPTION, THESES AND DISSERTATIONS MANUSCRIPTS. a specialty
Monday - Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
150 Fearing Street, Amherst
Telephone: 549-2686

UPC presents
The Golden Palominos
TONIGHT
THURS MARCH 6
S.U.B. UMass
$10 umass
$12 public
Tickets Available at the door *surprise guests
ALARM
Good Seats still available with special guests
THE BONGOS
$10.00 UMass
$12.00 Public
SUN. MARCH 9 pm F.A.C.
Tickets on sale at the FAC Box Office and at all Datatix locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield.

Columnist tells of 'Media Empire'

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

The media in the United States frequently controls events in other countries of the world, but the US government often controls what the press prints, a columnist for The Nation magazine told University of Massachusetts students yesterday.

"Journalists [in the United States] have a considerable, if not a major amount of political manipulation," said Alexander Cockburn, in a Campus Center lecture titled, "Media Empire and the Cold War."

"The Nicaraguan elections [in November 1984], which were fairly honestly carried forward, received little major publicity in the United States," he said. "The first elections in Nicaraguan history were virtually wiped away," because the actions of the US Embassy in Managua bribing candiates into withdrawing from the elections were not published, he said.

On the other hand, Cockburn said, because of the thorough coverage of recent events in the Philippines, President Ferdinand Marcos was forced to resign.

"These are two occasions in which the media controlled a Third World country," he said.

> "Journalist in the United States have considerable, if not major amount of political manipulation."
> -columnist Alexander Cockburn

"The press [in the US] is undoubtedly much freer than that in the Soviet Union," he said.

Cockburn said the CIA has frequently manipulated opposition newspapers in other countries like Chile, Jamaica, and Nicaragua.

"The national press in Nicaragua is pretty close to hell wherever you go," he said, explaining that one family controls two pro-Sandinista dailies as well as "La Prensa", the opposition newspaper.

"La Prensa has consistently failed to report the deeds and actions of the CIA, [because] the CIA had actually given La Prensa a couple of million dollars," he said.

He also said American journalists frequently cover only one position, though it is assumed both sides receive equal coverage.

"Edward Syed [an Arab-American leader] is never called on to give a 50-or-20-minute speech about what the Palestinian hopes were, what Palestinian strategies might be, and what the Palestinian claims are," said Cockburn.

Instead, after a terrorist act, Syed is asked to speak on the point of view of the terrorists, he said.

Cockburn periodically appears on television talk shows. He said whenever programs need an American liberal journalist they ask him to speak, "and I'm not even an American." Cockburn was born in Ireland and worked in England. He came to the US in 1972.

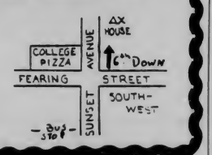
Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais
Columnist Alexander Cockburn.

EASTERN BIKING EXPEDITIONS
We specialize in extended, self-contained bicycling adventures. This summer's 30 day tours wind through some of the most scenic areas of New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. We combine comfortable biking distances with whitewater kayaking or canoeing instruction and superb whitewater rafting excitement. FREE BROCHURE. P.O. Box 1, South wales, New York 14139 (716) 652-7257

Professional Consultation & Style Haircut ONLY $10.00
with Shampoo + Blowdry $12.50
Featuring: Design Perming, Dimensional Highlighting, Deep Reconditioning
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive, Amherst, 549-5610
expires March 14, 1986

DENISE FORBES FOR STUDENT TRUSTEE MARCH 10, 11

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE



COLLEGE DRUG
4 Main Street, Amherst 253-2523
Mon-Fri 9-9, Sat 9-6, Sun 9-3

Your Fun-In-The-Sun Headquarters

Johnson's Specials for Baby!
Baby Shampoo 2.29
Baby Powder 1.99
Baby Bath 1.79
"DUAL PACK" Style SHAMPOO & CONDITIONER 15 OZ
• GENTLE CLEANING • MOISTURING
1.79 DUAL PK. $5.50 VALUE!
"BONUS BOTTLE" Jergens Aloe & Lanolin
1.69 12 OZ BTL $2.50 VALUE!
speed stick ANTI-PERSPIRANT FRESH OR UNSCENTED
MENNEN Speed Stick 50¢ OFF LABEL PACK!
2.53 FOR $2.75 EA VALUE!
Tampax Tampons
SLENDER 40-CT ORIG. REG 40-CT SUPER 40-CT
YOUR CHOICE $4.75 VALUE! 3.29 PK.
Zorries adult 99¢
Colgate Shave Cream 69¢
Colgate Toothbrushes (reg ones) 49¢
All Coke Products 6 packs $1.99 plus dep.

10% OFF Contact Lens Cleaning or Soaking Products in Stock expires 3/15/86
10% OFF all film in stock expires 3/15/86
10% OFF all colognes or perfumes in stock expires 3/15/86
Soap Dish or Toothbrush Holder 29¢ expires 3/15/86
Any Sunglasses in stock $1.00 off expires 3/15/86
Duracell AA 4's $1.99 expires 3/15/86
J & J Baby Oil 4 oz. $1.69 expires 3/15/86
Visine ¾ oz. $2.49 expires 3/15/86
Wash-ups 26's 89¢ expires 3/15/86
10% OFF any shampoo or conditioner in stock expires 3/15/86
10% OFF any Christian Dior purchase expires 3/15/86
Advil Tabs 50's $3.99 Expires 3/15/86
10% OFF any film developing all print developing will have a second free - 2 prints for the price of 1 expires 3/28/86
Trojan 12's except natural lambs $1.99 expires 3/28/86
Natural Lambs 3's $1.99 expires 3/28/86
ORTHO GYNOL 2.85 oz reg. $8.19 sale $6.59 Coupon $4.99 expires 3/15/86
TODAY 3's reg. $4.48 sale $3.99 Coupon $2.99 expires 3/15/86
KERI 6 oz. reg. $6.43 sale $3.99 Coupon $2.99 expires 3/15/86
PRE SUN 4 oz. reg. $7.27 sale 6.29 Coupon $3.99 expires 3/15/86
Some illustrations not exact - quantities may be limited - not responsible for typographical errors

DELTA CHI FRATERNITY
ANNOUNCES ITS ΔX
OPEN RUSH TONIGHT
7:00 to 9:00
- A 24 HOUR OPEN KITCHEN
- A UNIQUE SOCIAL LIFE
- THE BEST FRATERNITY HOUSE ON CAMPUS
- AN OUTSTANDING LITTLE SISTER PROGRAM
- GOOD ACADEMIC ATMOSPHERE

MONEY MOTIVATED?
If You Are Enthusiastic, Have A Strong Clear Speaking Voice and Have the Confidence to Prove What it Takes, Keep Reading This
We are a Major Industrial Tool Company Expanding a new office in Amherst, Mass. Telemarketing is the future successful road to sales in the 1980's, and we are growing rapidly. 3 shifts allow you to work around your schedule, and you can earn up to $10.00 per hour while training. There are still 25 positions available. Salary plus Commissions plus Bonuses. For an appointment, Call 7 AM-7 PM, Dave 413-256-4101

Letters

Dartmouth actions: vindictiveness

The word here is lynching. According to Webster's, lynching means to put to death by mob action without legal sanction. What happened at Dartmouth College fits this description. Students were expelled from the school for dismantling shanties erected by other students who were protesting apartheid. Or so they say. Ten of the 12 students were staff members of the Dartmouth Review, the conservative newspaper off-campus. The charges included harassment, abuse, coercion, and violence.

Recently an article by Dinsh D'Sousa that appeared in the Boston Globe stated that there is no excuse for a college vendetta against a group of conservative students. The evidence clearly shows that the students are victims of a witch hunt designed to terminate their careers and put Dartmouth's only independent voice of dissent, the Dartmouth Review, out of business.

More than two months prior to the incident, a dean of the college ordered the shanties down "by the end of the day," but never enforced his decision. The students felt that the shanties, having stood for three months, had achieved their symbolic purpose and with the winter carnival approaching, wanted them removed. They didn't want the unsightly shanties, which were on the Campus Green, to spoil the carnival's festivities.

So on the night of Jan. 21, the students began dismantling. When the police arrived, three of the four shanties had been taken down. The fourth, which had two Dartmouth students sleeping in it, was left unharmed. The police report said that the students were nonviolent and obliging.

This provided an opportunity for the left at Dartmouth to create a riotous atmosphere of contempt, expecting to gain a great deal of political ground. Unfortunately, the administration seemed willing to let this happen, and following the dismantling, 150 students and faculty staged a sitin at the main administration building. What else is new? The 10 Review students had become everyones scapegoat.

My definition at the beginning may be a little off, because there was a hearing, if you can call it that. Members of the committee who were to hear the case had obviously made up their minds prior to the hearing. A professor on the committee said "all Review students are evil," and a student on the committee told a friend that he couldn't wait to expel the Review staffers from the college. Another juror was a former editor of the campus daily and called for the expulsion of the dailies competitors.

There is a time when politics should be subordinated to fairness, writes D'Souza. Even liberals should be upset at the way Dartmouth is prosecuting substantive ideological claims against the Review under the guise of procedure. Liberalism will not triumph by kicking conservative students out of school. Luckily for us, something like this would never happen at UMass. I hope.

Daniel J. Coelho
Amherst

The Winner's Circle Has What It Takes To Win

Reebok Freestyle Women's High Top $49.99
Reebok Princess Women's $34.99
Reebok Freestyle Women's Low Cut $39.99

Reebok
Brandname athletic shoes at competitive prices.
Whether you're working out or hanging out, you'll appreciate all the winning qualities of our featured Reebok footwear. So if winning is your style, step into the Winner's Circle. You'll always come out ahead.

Bruno's
PIZZA SUBS
PIZZA SPECIAL
ONE FREE ITEM OF YOUR CHOICE ON ANY LARGE PIZZA
ALSO AVAILABLE
WORLD CLASS SUBS
FREE DELIVERY!
EXPIRES MARCH 15th, 1986
4:00pm to 2:00am
363 MAIN STREET, AMHERST
256-0222

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ED/OP
The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted
Founded in 1870

BOARD OF EDITORS
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Marxist mismanagement

Peter Dow

This issue of starvation in Africa has been conspicuously absent from American headlines in recent months, but the topic re-emerged last week when USA for Africa received a Grammy award. Indeed, the absence of any substantial news from Ethiopia leads one to wonder how the situation is progressing. Is the relief getting through to needed areas? Is the Ethiopian government cooperating? How can such a tragedy be prevented in the future?

While drought, civil war, and overpopulation are cited by most relief agencies as the major contributing causes of the famine, one cannot overlook the disastrous role played by the Marxist Ethiopian government.

First, the lack of action taken by Ethiopian leader Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam to alleviate the suffering is appalling. While hundreds of thousands have already died, and millions more face starvation, Mengistu would rather sit back and watch the West attempt to save his people. Many independent journalists who have returned from Ethiopia portray Mengistu and his marxist government as being bent on military strength. Indeed, when Mengistu overthrew Emperor Haile Selassie in 1974, Ethiopia had 45,000 troops in its army. Now, the marxist government of the world's second poorest country maintains an army of 350,000 - a feat possible only through massive Soviet military aid, amounting to $4 billion and 48 percent of the Ethiopian GNP (ironically, the U.S.S.R. has only provided $3 million in food aid). In addition, Mengistu has taken Ethiopia further into the Soviet sphere by receiving 22,000 Cuban troops to bolster his army, plus a 3,000 - man police force trained East German advisors.

Perhaps the best illustration of Mengistu's lack of humanitarianism was his state-sponsored celebration held in 1984, commemorating the 10th anniversary of the "glorious revolution." While millions of Ethiopians cried for food, Mengistu spend $200 million on a lavish caviar and champagne celebration which was well attended by communist bloc guests and Third World revolutionaries.

Secondly, the disastrous effects of Marxist-socialist economic policy have dramatically magnified a natural tragedy. While 80 percent of the Ethiopian people are private farmers, producing 60 percent of Ethiopian GNP, they receive virtually no assistance from Mengistu. The goal of Mengistu's marxists agricultural policy is to force this huge number of private farmers onto collective farms. Currently, only 5 percent of Ethiopian farmers reside on collectives, yet these grossly mismanaged and inefficient government institutions receive the majority of state assistance. Indeed, the private farmers have resisted collectivization, and Mengistu, in retaliation, has made it difficult to obtain seed, fertilizer, and credit. Thus, marxist agricultural policy has greatly worsened the Ethiopian famine.

However, beyond these first two man-made causes of famine lurks a deeper reason: the state policy of starvation is being used by a communist government to gain control of its population. Indeed, it is no coincidence that when communist states cannot control their people, a tragedy of major proportions (such as a famine) arises in their country. We saw this in Stalin's man-made Ukranian famine of 1932-1933, in the mass murders of millions in Kmer Rouge Cambodia in the 1970s, and now in Afganistan, as Russian troops bomb crops, restrict relief efforts, and depopulate the Afgan countryside. In Ethiopia, for instance, western relief agencies are forbidden to assist the large population in the Eritrea and Tigre provinces which support the anti-Mengistu rebels.

While the most important consideration in Ethiopia must be the immediate assistance to the starving, we must not forget the man-made causes of the famine which have greatly worsened the situation. Such horrendous starvation policies must be exposed if we are to prevent such tragedies in the future, and also if we are to gain knowledge of the totalitarian mentality.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Respect freedom of distribution

I am writing to express my concern about a situation that has arisen recently in the Student Union Building. Most UMass students are probably familiar with the brown Collegian distribution boxes located by the MiniStore by the main entrance to the building. In December of last year, another box appeared there; a small lavendar box for the distribution of critical times and The Valley Women's Voice. These boxes were made and paid for by members of these two papers because, without boxes to keep them in an orderly fashion off the floor, the janitors would simply throw our newspapers away.

Unfortunately, however, someone recently took it upon him or herself to smash the distribution box located in the Student Union, breaking the top shelf in half and damaging the bottom slightly. Such damage could hardly have been accidental.

These boxes are vital to the distribution (and therefore to the survival of) both critical times and The Valley Women's Voice. Thus any attempt to destroy these boxes is an attempt to destroy the newspapers distributed through them. In addition, the recent trend of throwing out entire stacks of critical times as soon as they're placed on the stand inhibits the free circulation of the paper and the ideas within. It is detrimental to the functioning of critical times and would be equally so to the Voice. Most importantly, it places in danger the first amendmant rights guaranteed to every citizen, no matter his or her political persuasions.

Had we the money necessary to build an infinite number of distribution boxes or to print an endless number of newspapers, such attacks would be far less threatening and damaging. Unfortunately, though, no one has recently handed either of our groups $4,000 to cover the many expenses involved in producing a newspaper. If this is truly a free country, then freedom of the press should belong to everyone, not only to those rich or fortunate enough to be able to buy it. We at the Voice and critical times work hard to produce and fund our newspapers. Please respect our efforts and our views.

Monika Giacoppe, staff
Valley Women's Voice

Pop source of intellectual angst

Some of us at the Very High Speed Integrated Devices Lab are concerned with the recent trend towards treating pop-culture as a source of intellectual angst (see "Sell-out business" by Ron Berutti). But if he insists on publishing personal prating pertaining to pop programming we have no choice but to put professional probity aside.

We find it bad enough that in the face of recent socio-political events of substantial import, Berutti had the audacity (on the eve of Elvis Costellois threatened appearance at Pearl Street) to suggest that a duet with Daryl Hall is tantamount to having dinner with the Reagans; he did it on the editorial page.

However, if we might stoop to your level for just a moment, may we point out that the Dire Straits recording Berutti praised was an unmitigated Sting collaboration aimed directly at the Top Ten. We all hope the Russians love their children too, but come on!

If people don't like MTV, don't watch it, try Saturday morning television.

Brian Burrell
Neil Gitkind
VHSID lab

Letters

Winter review not true to show

It is obvious that whoever reviewed Johnny Winter for the Collegian did not spend $10 of their own money to see Winter perform only one set. The set was played at a frantic pace leaving many avid blues fans unaware of familiar lyrics. Slow blues songs were simply played too fast and too long, leaving no time for more popular material. In addition, Winter's overextended leads preempted his unique vocals. All in all, Winter's talents are not to be belied, but his lack of enthusiasm can not be changed by the Collegian's glamorous review.

Josh Golub
Dan Broglino
Rich Rothrock
Belchertown

What the office requires

Roth/Burgess

Hi everyone! This is Stacy. That's right, the infamous Roth part of that double name you've seen thrown around campus (a little bit of everywhere) all year. I decided to write our column alone this week, so that I could relay to you my feelings on an extremely important matter.

On Monday and Tuesday, March 10 and 11, you will be asked to make a decision which could very well decide the fate of student government, and your deserved representation on this campus, for many years to come. Since the struggle for student rights and the future of student empowerment at UMass are extremely important to me (and to you I might add), I wanted to say a few things about what I think will be necessary for whomever is in office next year.

First of all, especially within a year of great turmoil, experience at working with the SGA, administrators, faculty, staff, student groups and trustees will be imperative. Excellent leadership and representation are only one part of the job; if your new trustee and president have to spend too long getting their feet on the ground, and figuring out who they should be dealing with, much valuable time will be lost. Presumably, valuable issues, rights, programs and organization will suffer immensely. Frankly, the SGA cannot afford any time towards mismanagement. Along with this experience, also be sure that the candidates understand what the positions are - and what they can and cannot do within them. This may sound like basic stuff, but you'd be surprised at the misconceptions which run rampant.

To be more specific, the president and trustee run an office which is based on issues. They are not the chief financial offices of the SGA, nor are they the central offices of the senate, although they do have to understand and be involved with many issues related to these areas. For example, because the SATF control issue is so important, our office has been extremely involved. There are essential agencies such as the Legal Services Office and the Off-Campus Housing Office which are funded by the trust fund. The future of these and many others, as well as many student organizations are at stake. We need leadership with creative and responsible solutions; we need leadership with an excellent historical perspective on the issues. The worst thing for any government is leadership which allows history to repeat itself; look for new ideas and definite goals.

Speaking of new ideas, there are two other issues to be worried about. First are the alcohol policies on campus. Thus far, we have been able to reach the round table of negotiaion and keep the issue hot. Make sure that your candidates will continue the fight for the rights of legal and non-legal drinking age students. Read all the issues sheets you see. Listen for new ideas on how to provide alcohol areas in the Residence Halls and around campus. Also listen for new ideas on non-alcohoiic events. Now that we have alcohol back on campus, which of the candidates knows how to make the Bluewall into a place for both legal and non-legal students to have a great time? We need ideas! We need experience! We need the candidates who can put two and two together.

Second, we will be in need of leadership who have a good grip on the proposed financial aid cuts. Who can tell you about the effects of Gramm-Rudman; the effects of state cuts; the effects of profound tuition hikes and fee increases? Most of all, who can propose viable networking solutions to help all of us afford to be able to attend school again next year?

I ask you to loook for the candidates who will do something about the growing tide of deceptiveness which surrounds many campus issues and groups. Choose those who will give you the facts truthfully along with all the different sides of the story. You deserve more than lies and deceit.

Believe me, it's worth your time to vote. This is a year of paramount importance in the student government, so vote with a conscience and vote for the candidates you feel you can trust to represent you, and stand up for your rights.

Stacy Roth and Dani Burgess are the SGA co-presidents.

Attention Accounting Majors

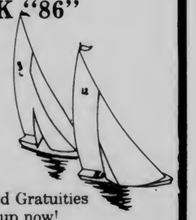
Hartford National Corporation, one of New England's largest and most rapidly expanding financial institutions is seeking outstanding Accounting Graduates for positions on our Corporate, Internal Audit Staff. These positions offer broad exposure to banking and future career opportunities throughout the whole corporation.

Please send your resume to:

Maura A. Kearney
Sr. Employment Representative
Hartford
National Corporation
777 Main Street
Hartford, CT 06115

Hartford National Corporation

Hartford National Corporation is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer M/F/H/V



JBs HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
11 am - 2 am 7 days
50 Main St. Amherst, MA
253-7018

Valuable Coupon
Free Medium Shake
with $3.00 purchase & this valuable coupon
Limit one per customer. Expires 3/9/86

Valuable Coupon
Sunday Special
Buy a Deluxe Burger get the second burger FREE (with valuable coupon)
Good only Sunday 3/9/86. Limit one per customer.

END OF Ski Season
SUNGLASS SALE
handmade French design 1st quality suggested retail $20 - $30
NOW $5.99
limited quantity
SPRING BREAK SPECTACULAR
shades by: Foster Grant, Bonneva, Solar Ray etc.
assorted styles: Vuarnet, Risky business, terminator, and many more!
suggested retail $8 - $16 NOW $3.99
FRI. MARCH 7
on CAMPUS CONCOURSE 8:30 - 4 pm
ONE DAY ONLY

American Travel Services presents
SPRING BREAK "86"

Ft Lauderdale
Hotel from $139.00
Air: New York $209. Rd Trip
Boston $228. Rd Trip
Holiday Inn Oceanside $209.

Nassau/Paradise Island
Hotel & Air from $329.
Pilot House Hotel $379.

All prices include Taxes and Gratuities
Don't be left out, sign up now!
Limited space available
For more information: call Danny 546-7899

ONE-DAY SHOPPING EXCURSION
APRIL 12th & 19th
Sit back, relax and enjoy a comfortable bus ride to Fall River, because once you get there it is going to be a SHOPPING FRENZY!
You will have a full day of shopping before returning home.
$24.90
Price includes: roundtrip transportation, all touring, all taxes and tips.

ONE DAY TOUR OF BOSTON
Let University Travel & Tour take you on a day of Bay Colony history. You will spend the day in Boston with our local guide.
Stops include BOSTON COMMON, FANEUIL HALL and other historical landmarks.
A terrific day full of history and adventure.
$24.90
Price includes: roundtrip transportation, all touring, all taxes and tips.

Are You Looking for Intelligent Life?

Come travel with us to New York City
Sat. March 29th $59.95 or April 26th $69.95

Looking for Intelligent Life in the Universe starring Lily Tomlin

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL and TOURS INC.
225 Main St.
Northampton, Mass.
584-9913

$69.95
Price includes:
roundtrip transportation
Tickets
dinner

LIVEWIRE
BY TOM MIDDLETON

The upcoming week has a good selection of music. The area is almost really hopping but there's a big hole Saturday night

Tonight the Golden Palominos are playing in the Student Union Ballroom at 8:00. The band is a collection of artists from other bands such as R.E.M. and the db's. Because they have alot of creative input from all the members, the band has a sound that's hard to define. I won't even try to classify them. There are still tickets available and it will cost you $12 at the show.

At Hampshire College's Tavern tonight will be the Potatoe Heads, The Lonely Moans, Beatrice and the Mona-Lesions. The four-band show starts at 9 p.m. and is free. My friends tell me the Tavern is sort of a cafeteria made into a bar for bands and functions. The only group I'm familiar with here is the Potatoe Heads. Musical labels aside, they are a three-piece band with one vocalist who also plays guitar with the reverb cranked. What this means is that they have a hollow, country-type sound. At least that's what I heard the one time I saw them.

Tomorrow night B.B. King will perform at Springfield Symphony Hall. This guy, in case you haven't heard, is the best in blues. He has a full, deep voice and his guitar playing will make you weep. King has had more than a little influence on every decent guitar player ever to come out of the 60s. He will really make you feel what the blues is all about. So if you can scrape up $12.50 and transportation don't miss this show.

The Romantics will be at Pearl Street in Northampton Friday night. If you listen to top-forty radio or watch MTV you've caught this act. They do that tune..."that's what I like about you, yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah, that's what I like about you." Their other big hit is "Talking in Your Sleep." Basically, the band does pop rock and gives it a beat to make it danceable. If you go, make sure you checkout their rock-n-roll haircuts. Sorry, I don't have a price tag on this one.

You can also go back to the Tavern at Hampshire College and see Circle tomorrow. This band plays everywhere in the valley and they have a following. The show starts at 9:00 p.m. Warning: If you go you may be caught up in some heavy dancing.

No bands scheduled to play Saturday night.

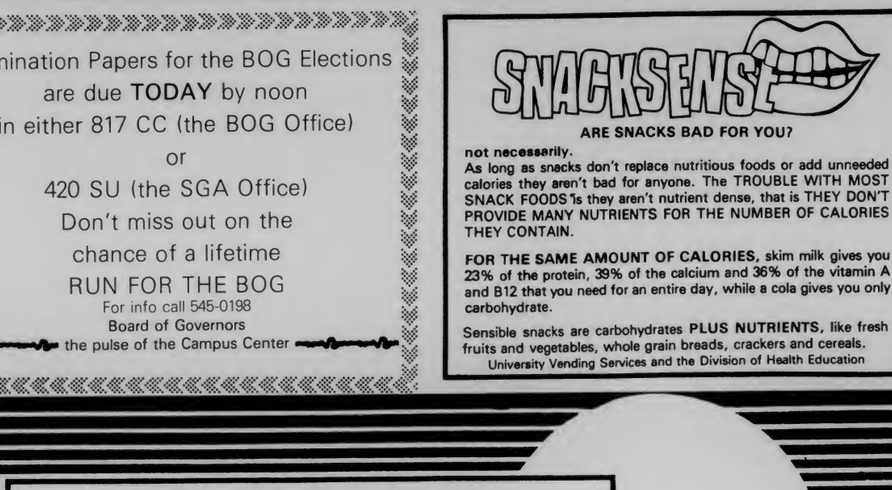
Sunday night The Alarm will play the Fine Arts Center, backed up by The Bongos. The Alarm is from Britain, North Wales to be exact, and they have a modern rock sound with anthem-type lyrics. To me they sound a bit like U2 and in fact, they've toured with them alot. I haven't heard the Bongos much, so I won't say anything.

Go see Jonathan Richmond and the Modern Lovers at the Iron Horse Tuesday night. Richmond has been around for a while and the whole group has a fine reputation for punk without headbanging.

Tix are $9.50 in advance for NRBQ, The Fools and Blotto at the Springfield Civic Center Exhibition Hall, March 15th. This sounds like it could be mainstream fun.

ARTS

Above: Rod Mcdonald of Fast Folk will appear at the Iron Horse Sunday, March 9.
Below: NRBQ will play at the Springfield Civic Center March 10.



"Looks like Benny's going to play RAGE tonight."

SHAMROCK DANCE
Featuring
NRBQ
With
THE FOOLS & BLOTTO
"World Dance Party"
Springfield Civic Center Exhibition Hall
Saturday, March 15th-8:00pm
$9.50 advance, $11.00 day of the show
TICKETS ON SALE ON CAMPUS AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES: (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
Produced in association with WAQY
ALL AGES WELCOME. CASH BAR — 21 AND OVER

Nomination Papers for the BOG Elections are due TODAY by noon in either 817 CC (the BOG Office)
or
420 SU (the SGA Office)
Don't miss out on the chance of a lifetime
RUN FOR THE BOG
For info call 545-0198
Board of Governors
the pulse of the Campus Center

ARE SNACKS BAD FOR YOU?

not necessarily.
As long as snacks don't replace nutritious foods or add unneeded calories they aren't bad for anyone. The TROUBLE WITH MOST SNACK FOODS is they aren't nutrient dense, that is THEY DON'T PROVIDE MANY NUTRIENTS FOR THE NUMBER OF CALORIES THEY CONTAIN.

FOR THE SAME AMOUNT OF CALORIES, skim milk gives you 23% of the protein, 39% of the calcium and 36% of the vitamin A and B12 that you need for an entire day, while a cola gives you only carbohydrate.

Sensible snacks are carbohydrates PLUS NUTRIENTS, like fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grain breads, crackers and cereals.
University Vending Services and the Division of Health Education

adirondack music
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET • AMHERST

Scratched and Dented Demo Clearance Special

All 1 or 2 of a kind with Full Factory Warranty

Nikko NR 700 40 w/ch Digital Receiver - List $399.95 -$149.95
Akai LD 450 dual motor Cassette Deck - $99.95
Pioneer 45 w/ch SA 750 Amp - $79.95
Pioneer CT72 auto reverse Dolby B & C Cassette Deck - $99.95
Pioneer PL530 Turntable - $79.99
JVC RW 100 20 w/ch Receiver - $59.99
JVC KDDV 300 auto reverse cassette deck - $99.99
Nikko TRM 750 40 w/ch Amp - $69.99
Parasound DR 40 40 w/ch Stereo Receiver $300 value - $149.95
Phaselinear T-5200 stereo digital Tuner $495 value - $199.95
Akai GXC77D reel to reel Tape Deck $575 value - $299.95
Denon DRM II Cassette Deck $300 value - $199.95

Denon PMA 737 60 w/ch Amp $300 value - $189.95
Scott 312 D 3 way Speakers $759.95 value - $199.95 pr
Scott 199 B 3 way pro system $959.99 value - $299.99 pr
Sharp 25 JO1 25" Color TV $279.99
JVC HRD1511 4 head wireless remote VCR $379.99
Sharp 103 mini system $319.95 value $99.95
Car Stereo Sanyo 6050 50 watt RMS Amp - $69.95
Car Stereo Parasound 800 AB 160 watt RMS Amp $99.99
Scott 459 55 w/ch integrated amp $299.95 value - $99.99
Scott 639 DC $279.95 value Cassette Deck $99.99
Scott 659 DC $349.95 value auto reverse Cassette Deck $129.99
Akai AGB1 Turntable $19.95
Jensen AXS 1400 $695 value 100 watt Receiver $149.95

Canon Portable 8mm Video System
Tuner/Timer Portable 8mm VCR
VC 200 Video Camera $2500 value $999.95
2 only new in box

$1 VIDEO RENTALS

NO MEMBERSHIP FEES!

ANY TITLE IN STOCK FOR $1 PER NIGHT - $2.50 FOR THREE DAYS!
Come in and fill out our easy NO FEE APPLICATION and receive your official NO FEE MEMBERSHIP CARD

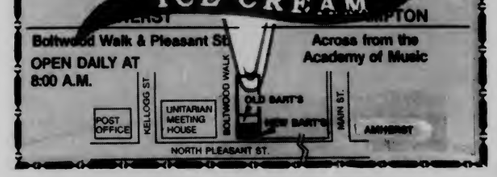
MONDAY-SUNDAY 10 A.M.-6 P.M.

All sales cash • MC/Visa add 3% • All quantities limited • Subject to prior sale • Not responsible for typographical errors.



LOOK FOR BART'S UPFRONT ON BOLTWOOD WALK & PLEASANT STREET

HELP US CELEBRATE...

Bart's ICE CREAM

AMHERST GRAND REOPENING
MARCH 8 & 9
BRING A FRIEND
Buy One Ice Cream ... One FREE!
...ON A ...CE CR... IT...
...GOOD WITH 2 PEOPLE ONLY
ICE CREAM
...PTON

Boltwood Walk & Pleasant St.
OPEN DAILY AT 8:00 A.M.
Across from the Academy of Music

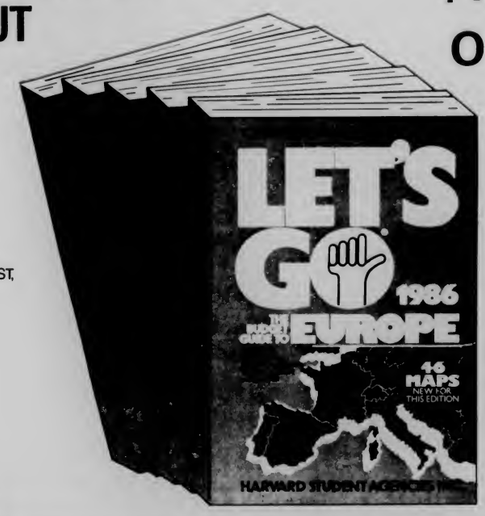
Students interested in

PUBLIC HEALTH CAREERS

are invited to attend an alumni/ae career night

on

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1986 at 8 pm in Campus Center 162



A panel of UMass public health alumni will discuss and answer questions about their careers and yours.

Sponsored by the Alumni Association, the University Placement Service, and the Division of Public Health

Today's travelers are going to say:
DON'T GO WITHOUT "LET'S GO"—

$1.00 OFF

■ Now available:
- EUROPE,
- USA,
- BRITAIN & IRELAND,
- MEXICO,
- SPAIN, PORTUGAL & MOROCCO,
- FRANCE,
- ITALY,
- GREECE,
- ISRAEL & EGYPT,
- CALIFORNIA AND PACIFIC NORTHWEST,

Now bigger and better than ever
LET'S GO TRAVEL GUIDES

Open M-F 9-5
sat 10-3

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

House doesn't cut it: an all-around horror show

House ★½
Produced by Sean Cunningham
Directed by Steve Miner

By JOE SHARTRAND
Collegian Staff

MOVIE REVIEW

House ineptly uses comedy in the attempt to distract the audience from an improbable plot and boring ghouls.

The film begins with an old lady, who hangs herself in that cute, little house, which happens to be haunted. Her nephew, Roger Cobb (William Katt), decides to move in after her suicide because he thinks it will help him to write about his Vietnem war experiences. He goes through the usual routine of walking down dark hallways, screeching at ghostly apparitions and running from flying axes.

Eventually, he realizes that the house is haunted when monsters begin leaping out of his closets and pointy garden implements almost impale him. But does he run screaming from the house never to return? Of course not. He has to stay because his son is locked in the bathroom mirror. None of this makes any sense, but the film makers forgot about the plot and just threw together a series of endless shocks and dull jokes.

Besides having an improbable plot, the humor is frightfully boring. The special effects consist of people in rubber monster suits, which the filmakers attempt to compenstate for by using campy humor.

This film doesn't take itself seriously. Unfortunately, this makes the whole haunted house theme idiotic. It would have been all right to use comedy relief, but to make all the apparitions, monster, characters and, even the house, seem silly is a mistake, for it sacrafices the scares that are the make of any good horror film.

Many of the silly characters are played by sitcom stars. Cobb's next door neighbor is played by George Wendt, who plays Norm, on Cheers. None of the lines that he whimpers are particularly funny and his character fails to elicit any sympathy when he is afraid. He just wanders ghost-like through the house, muttering his lines and making the appropriately shocked faces.

Richard Moll (Bull on Night Court) plays Cobb's Vietnam war buddy who was captured by the enemy. Moll seems to have been picked for this role, only because of his trememdous height, definitely not for his acting ability. The main character is the worst of all.

Roger Cobb, as acted by William Katt, is a total vacuum. He has no motivation and nothing his character does has any purpose, or even meaning. All Katt does is mug for the endless closeups that he is priveleged to receive in this film.

These television actors, rotten script-writers and dull director make this horror film into a third rate situaiton comedy. This film has so many different plot threads that it would be impossible to list them all. It could have focused on Cobb's Vietnam war experiences, his lost kid, the aunt's death, or just the haunting of the house, instead it uses all ninety of them and comes out with nothing. Horror films can be intelligent, scary and funny if made with thought, but House is not a horror film, but a horror.

Beer with us!
Choose from our bounty of more than 80 varieties of imported beer!
We won the Valley Advocate's "Best Beer Selection" award - 1987!
Our selection now is EVEN BETTER.
We now feature our own brand of low priced LIQUORS as well as our super selection of WINES at very affordable prices.
Plus BULMER'S CIDER
BILLY'S
BEVERAGES
Beer—Wine—Liquor
SUNDERLAND • 665-2727
We welcome your empties!

You're Ready For a Break with Men's & Women's Op - Sundek Levi Paradise Found and More shirts, shorts & lots more
Saturday Clothes
197 N. Pleasant
Amherst
253-9729
Open 7 Days - Thurs. 'till 8

TRADER FRED'S
LABELS FOR LESS
LADIES SHOES $9.99
9West Ralph Lauren Bass Nicole
Reg. up to $48.00
Get them while they last
All Sizes Available

LADIES	REG.	OUR PRICE	MENS	REG.	OUR PRICE	SHOES	REG.	OUR PRICE
Forenza Paisley	44.00	22.95	100% Cotton Oversized Shirts	28.00	12.99	Adidas ¾ high	38.00	14.99
Forenza 5-Pocket	32.00	15.99	Oxford Dress Shirts	18.00	9.99	Spaulding Aerobic Style for men	42.00	29.99
India Cotton Skirt and Top Outfit	32.00	16.99	Famous Name Brand Dress Slacks	38.00	14.99	Nike Hi Top	48.00	29.99
						Pony Hi Top	48.00	29.99
Saucony Gym Shorts	18.00	6.99	Lee Jeans ONLY $14.99 all the time			Spotbilt	48.00	24.95

TRADER FRED'S
SHOP AND COMPARE
Lower Level next to Fire Station below Steve's
VISA/MC 253-7155

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

LOSE UP TO TEN POUNDS IN JUST TWO WEEKS.

Pam Weisman's
Diet Center
644 Main St.,
Amherst
253-9580

Mon-Fri 7am to 11 am
4 pm to 5 pm
Sat 8 am to 10:30 am
DIET CENTER

SKI
Berkshire East
Ski Area
25 Trails
4 Chairs
Snow-Making
1190 Vertical
MARCH SCHEDULE
Thurs-Sun days only
$8 lift
$12 lift & rental only with college I.D.
20" to 60" Base
PO Box O
Mohawk Trail
Charlemont, MA
01339

Applications now being received for Transfer Into The RESPIRATORY THERAPY PROGRAM
For Further Information, Call 617-437-3667
Northeastern University
College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Professions
Boston, Massachusetts 02115

DOONESBURY GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

Clumsy ghosts

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES
BY R.MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Ritzy
5 Bluster
10 Interpret
14 Shell money
15 Corrective. Comb. form
16 Cogito — sum
17 On the hot — !
18 Word with four- or point
19 Golfer Fenstenwald
20 Showy VIPs
22 City near Troy, N.Y.
24 Pans's Monceau
25 — be in England
26 BLT ingredient
29 Issue involving risks
34 Three on — 36 Greek letters
37 — Steuben
38 Tastes
39 Musical group 41 Unaligned Abbr
42 Mnau for Scott Hamelton
43 Place in the hold
44 Mark of intense heat
46 Some — 1998 film
49 Casey — Bat
50 Gulf off Somalia
51 Polar explorer
53 Cat On a — Roof
56 Place for tender plants
60 Tigers opponents
61 Molass-in color
63 Passion
64 Branches: Lat
65 Card game for three players
66 Actress Sain Juan
67 Hot place
68 Italian poet 1544-95
69 Greenwing

DOWN
1 — Cumes to Shove
2 Tharp ballet
3 Household staple
4 Blind part
5 Nightclubs
6 Profound sleep
7 Miserable one
8 DA's associates
9 Hons.hu weight
10 Collations
11 Up-to-the minute
11 Slangy suffix
12 Cold condition
13 Hot items
21 This woman Lat. acc
23 Soluan speakers
25 Will — Wisp
26 Sherlock portrayer
27 Friends, to the Romans
28 R-U-R playwrc ri
30 One
31 Ward off
32 One of the senses
33 Hot — trail
35 Cape of Good Hope native
40 TV actress Mindy
41 So-so
43 Alrican Muslim of high rank
45 Ready money
47 Dines at home
48 Metaphor and metonymy
52 Alamogordo's county
53 Man of the hour
54 Popular name in Oslo
55 A hot — in the old town
56 Centers
57 River of Zaire
58 Long narrative
59 Relative of etc
62 GP's org

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

Q	U	O	D	S		G	E	M	S		M	L	U	M
L	E	A	P	S		E	A	R	T		H	A	I	N	E
D	E	R	R	I	N	G	E	R		B	O	S	K	S
		K	A	N	T			R	A	U	T	I	A
	A	C	R	I	D		A	M	E	N	S		R	N	S
L	O	O	N	Y		B	A	B	Y	H	O	O	D
A	M	O	D		R	O	D	E	O		H
R	O	M	A	N	I	A		A	A	R	O	N	T	I	C
		P	E	C	C	A	R	Y			T	M	U
F	R	E	M	A	N		M	A	D	A	G	A	S	C	A	R
F	E	E		O	I	D	S		A	D	A	M	S
I	L	L		I	R	A			C	O	I
S	L	A	T	E		B	L	A	C	K	B	I	R	D
T	O	T	E	S		R	I	G	A		E	V	E	R
S	W	E	E	T		A	T	O	M		S	E	X	Y

3/6.96

"I knew it, I just knew it. I should of read the Collegian, this would of never happened. They report on everything, those crazy kids."
—Former Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos

WEATHER

Today: Chance of snow flurries this morning with lows in the mid to low 30's. Tonight will see snow accumulate up to two inches with lows in the 20's. And you thought it was Spring.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor ..... Peter Abraham
Copy Editor ..... Liz Hettinger
Layout Technician ..... Conor Plunkett
Photo Technician ..... Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor ..... Conor Plunkett
Production: Rob Catalano, Karlin Isle, Mia Rowan, Nancy Klingener, Sod at the keys

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
CONCERT · HALL
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

TOSHIKO AKIYOSHI
JAZZ ORCHESTRA
With Lew Tabackin, tenor saxophone & flute
Saturday, March 8, 8pm
Concert Hall
Tickets: $13.11

BILL CRATTY
DANCE THEATRE
Monday, March 10, 8pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $12.10

Five College Students Half-Price. Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office and Springfield Civic Center
Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Harvard this summer.

June 23-August 15, 1986

Harvard University Summer School, America's oldest summer session, offers open enrollment in nearly 250 day and evening courses, in more than 40 academic fields and pre-professional programs. The diverse curriculum includes courses appropriate for fulfilling undergraduate and graduate degree requirements, as well as programs designed for personal and professional development. The international student body has access to Harvard's outstanding libraries, museums, athletic facilities, and cultural activities, with the additional benefits of the Cambridge and nearby Boston communities. Housing for students is available in Harvard's historic residences.

Offerings include pre-medical and pre-law courses, undergraduate and graduate instruction in foreign languages, business, computer science, visual and environmental studies, anthropology, fine arts, education, psychology, the sciences and more. We feature a college-level program for secondary school juniors and seniors, plus special programs in Health Professions (for minority students), Dance, Drama, Film Studies, Writing, and English as a Second Language.

Further information is available by returning the coupon below or by calling: (617) 495-2494 (24-hour catalogue request line), or (617) 495-2921.

Harvard University Summer School

Please send a Harvard Summer School catalogue and application for:
☐ Arts and Sciences ☐ Secondary School Program ☐ Drama
☐ English as a Second Language ☐ Writing ☐ Dance
☐ Health Professions Program

Name
Street
City State Zip

Harvard Summer School
20 Garden Street, Dept. 390
Cambridge, MA 02138 U.S.A.

ARE YOU
PREGNANT
& IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
-Some Day Results-
Services that are
Free, Confidential, Caring
& Helpful
549-1906
Amherst
Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl. $34.95
6 Cyl. $39.95
8 Cyl. $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil, and safety check.
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wallaby's Store
549-4704

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat-in or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM

Pu-Pu Platter $12.00

Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM

2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571

150 King St,
Northampton
586-8220

FOR RENT
2 bedroom apt, heat & hot water
short term lease
discounted rent to $450 due to mid-season opening, on bus rte
South Amherst 256-8534

FRESH... from nautica

J·RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
22 MASONIC ST • NORTHAMPTON • 586-6336
Mon.-Sat. 10-6, Thurs. til 9, Sun. 12-5

UNCLE CHET SAYS:
NO NEED TO GO INCOGNITO WHEN YOU BUY OFF-PRICE CLOTHES— CUZ—

IT'S UP TO 75% OFF
ON THE WAY-HIP, SWANKY DUDS AT THE
LODESTONE
WINTER CLEARANCE!
PLUS~ SMART LOOKING SPRING STUFF JUST IN!
Lodestone
13 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

Minutewomen notebook

Injury plague continues to haunt UMass

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

With two of her players already out for the season, head coach Barbara Stevens' woes continue as the University of Massachussetts women's basketball team battles Penn State this afternoon at 3 p.m. at the University of West Virginia.

Joining sophomore center Sue Burtoft (broken finger) and sophomore forward Tara Lewis (knee) on the injured list are forwards Kelly Collins (knee), Karen Damminger (shoulder), Beth Wilbor (virus) along with guard Mary Marquedant (sprained ankle). Though Stevens doesn't expect any of the injuries to keep her players (outside of Lewis and Burtoft) out of the lineup, she did say that she was concerned with the level of health her battered players will have.

The expected UMass Atlantic-10 Conference Tournament starting lineup will be: freshman guard Christel Zullo (5.1 ppg., 5.1 apg.); senior guard Barbara Hebel (13.0 ppg.); senior forward Juanita Matthews (10.7 ppg., 5.2 rpg.); senior forward Jerrie Bernier (6.3 ppg, 4.3 rpg.) and senior center Karen Damminger (9.9 ppg., 6.1 rpg.).

Should Penn State eliminate UMass tonight, the loss will mark the end of the collegiate careers of five seniors who will need to be replaced for next year's season after their valuable contributions this year. The departing seniors include Hebel, Bernier, Damminger, Matthews and forward Rebecca Kucks.

POSITION AVAILABLE
Office of the Dean of Students
Student Manager
Information Data Bank (IDB)
and Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

QUALIFICATIONS — Demonstrated (through previous experience and/or recommendations) communication skills; organizational and supervisory skills; ability to organize data; ability to proof-read and edit; some typing and/or word processing experience. Promotional and marketing experience desirable.

ELIGIBILITY — Undergraduate or graduate student (preferably Work-Study eligible) with at least three semesters remaining at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1986.

PAY SCALE — Hourly rate, beginning at minimum of $5.00, 20-25 hours.

STARTING DATE — Selected individual must be available part-time in late April or early May (10-20 hours), full time mid-July and August (37½ hours). Full-time option may be available June to mid-July.

DEADLINE — Completed applications, available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, must be received by April 11, 1986.

The Information Data Bank (IDB) is a telephone or walk-in referral center which maintains information on University administrative and academic policies and procedures; bus, library, and athletic schedules; listings of current campus events such as seminars, movies, and lectures; and a variety of other reference materials.

The Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS) is a library of more than 300 tape cassettes with information about academic rules, regulations, and programs; registration policies; counseling services; financial aid information; current events; health and safety programs; housing and food services; athletics; student organizations and activities, etc.

The Student Manager is responsible for day-to-day operations of IDB/TIPS including recruiting, training, scheduling and supervising student staff of 10-15; maintaining and updating the IDB/TIPS library and information resources; preparing scripts and tapes; arranging and monitoring production schedules for the Student Telephone Directory, Registration Update, and Dean's List; with the assistance of a student Graphics Coordinator, arranging for placement of ads in the "Collegian" promoting IDB/TIPS; soliciting and processing new material for IDB/TIPS; and related assignments.

IDB 545-1555
A Service of the Dean of Students Office
TIPS 545-1540

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs, 8:45 - 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

25 Plus Club is organizing a coed intramural volleyball team so athletic ability needed deadline for entry 3/10 call Donna or Shari at 256-0407 for info

ADVERTISING INTERNS

Local Ad Agency needs Tuesday and Thursday interns call 586-2135 need organization, enthusiasm, car

AILEEN EXPOSITO

Get psyched for tonight — haven great birthday — party!!! Love Susan and Patty!!

AUTO FOR SALE

78 Mustang Hatchback low mile, new tires 2400 or BO 323-7412 after 3:30

Dodge Aspen 77 custom classic AM/FM stereo runs proofed new tires, brakes, battery snow tires $1500 256-6809 leave msg

Honda Accord, must sell this week $1500 or BO call 253-5693

72 Ford Mustang w/o engine body in excellent shape no rust new exhaust, suspension & brakes BO call 549-6833

80 Citation (Chevy) excellent condn, 4 door H/B, air conditioner, FM/AM, new all season tires, muffler, brakes, $1600 or BO, available Mar. 20, 549-0083

1981 Ford Escort GLX wagon good condition, runs well $2200 546-5701

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

CHRISTOPHER

Here is the personal you've been waiting for, I'm glad that we've seen more of each other this semester. We'll have to do racquetball and Hunan when exams are over. Hugs and Quiches Julie

DAYTONA SPRING BREAK '86

Rooms still available at Penrod's Plaza Hotel in Daytona Beach for $20.00 per person, per night, quad occupancy. The action is at Penrod's Plaza Hotel this Spring Break! Call 1-800-55-Reach for reservations

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock cool party sounds at an affordable price Call 546-6061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste call Chris 256-6845

 THE BIG CHILL ********
 THE BIG CHILL ********
 this Friday, March 7   in Engineering East And  * at 6, 8, 10, 12 PM $2.00 ****

Rack-A-Disc Entertainment Disc-jockeys, light shows, large screen video shows, call 549-7144 24 hrs

FOR RENT

1 room at Townehouse apts for female for fall 549-6628

Amherst rooms available immediately also summer subs/fall option rooms Roy 256-0226, eves 549-6746

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2254 or 665-7106

FOR SALE

Dynastar Sklis with bindings and boots in great condition $175.00 call Peter 256-1203

Guitar Electra electric six-string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6489

35 watt Technics Receiver, two 75 watt Altec speakers 150.00 253-9612 beautiful sheepskin coat purchased in New Zealand for man or woman men's size 38 new $100.00 253-9612

Amp Peavy Artist 120 watts $250 6-5234 great condition, great distortion

3 round trip tickets to Florida for sale price negotiable call 549-4462

Soft Contact Lenses Most daily wear lenses, $18.00 to $25.00. Most extended wear lenses, $35.00 to $45.00. Lowest prices on C/L solutions, anywhere. Flex care $1.96, heat units, $12.95. Amherst Optical Shoppe, Inc., 196 No. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5412 or (413) 256-6493

Fender Amp., good cond., going cheap, call 584-3173

One round trip flight ticket to Los Angeles $250.00 call 6-7656

Tennis Racket Dunlop Black Max graphite good condition $65 or BO call Dave at 546-6504

FOUND

A man's large gray and black jacket was found in the vicinity of the Amherst Post Office on Saturday night. To claim jacket call Jim at 546-5847

HELP WANTED

New Students Program - final call for summer RA counselors by 27 July 27 needed are bright, enthusiastic, articulate Soph and Jnrs. Salary, $1120 plus room and board on campus. Applications in 101 Berkshire House

Summer Jobs in Alaska Good money. Many opportunities! Employer listings, 1986 Summer Employment Guide $5.95. Alaseo, Box 30752, Seattle, WA 98103

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Activist Summer Jobs for environmental activists. Fight the New Right and corporate injustice. Make money, make friends, and make a difference. We'll train you now for a full time position this summer. Call Clean Water Action Project 549-7450

Camp Loyaltown, AHRC, 189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545-A residential, recreational camp for mentally retarded in Hunter, NY, is accepting applications for summer employment. Write or call (516) 626-1000

Cleaning person Sat. Sun. Mon. days 8$ per-hour call 253-9202

INSTRUCTION

Private Guitar Lessons Experienced and patient teacher. Rock/Pop/Folk/Blues. Reading/ Improv. Theory Comp. $12/hr Doug 549-4296

Stage Combat Workshop - ideal for the actor & non-actor alike. Basic hand-to-hand & beginning sword-play. Call for information 549-2808

LOST

Gold braid bracelet Very important. Sentimental value. Reward! Call Neil 549-7753 or 549-7527

Bracelet silver-tone, 1" wide with engraved flower design $ reward $ very important to me! 6-7106

Reward $5 gold rope bracelet lost Fri night sentimental value if found call 546-8061

Jackets and key at Theta Chi 2/1 reward, no questions 546-8669

Rose rimmed eye glasses in beige case on 2/26 or 2/27 please call Carrie 549-4597

MODELS WANTED

Both male & female models needed for Spring Fashion Show if interested please attend meeting at Rm 165, CC Munch 6 at 7:00. If you can't make meeting contact Karl 546-5084

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0960

SENIOR PORTRAITS have been extended, March 3 through March 7. To schedule an appointment, call 545-2674 or stop by 178CC

Denise Forbes for Student Trustee -Finally...someone who advocates change instead of pocketing it!

Are you tired of impersonal dorm life? Alpha Chi Omega offers an exciting alternative, complete with a beautiful, contemporary home, great meals, life-long friendships, and a super social life. 3/4 Italian Feast 5:00, 3/5 AXO Bar-B-Q, 5:00, and Dessert with Alpha Chi and Bill Cosby, 3/6 at 7:30. For more info call Tracy 545-2132 or 549-6885

REWARD - For return of red and black down ski jacket lost at fraternity party 3/1. Price negotiable. No questions asked 549-0097

Matkins - have you run away from any waitresses lately?

Here's your chance to feel good - body and soul. Boyscout Camp, clean up. We need your help! Free ride! Free lunch! For ride or info call Michael 545-2968 or 546-6908 (leave message)

Katie Happy 21st Birthday Are you a H-bag? Will Lauderdale be the same? Love your little sisters Amy & Steph!

David Stevens Thanks for everything. Good luck with a certain bell-shaped object. I love you! Megan

HAPPY B-DAY HKGS I hope your day is lots of fun. Love ya' Me

Happy 21st Birthday Brian!! You don't have THAT much catching-up to do! Love ya' Ellie

Beth Richlin - Happy 19th Birthday!! I love ya - your big sis, Eve

Rachel your all grown up now! Congrats on the new car it's so cute! Lots of luck and love Cara Vic

To Mercedes B.: That wonderful little blond in BC's! For all the fun times, this is for you! John S.

To Michelle C.: The woman who'll kill for Mars bar! Ponte a comer! No sea tan panelera

Joan - Happy 22! The horrificators continues. Bar-ocs, JB's, PPNT. Wed.: the no tacos tonight! Love Joanne

Suntan at Utopia Spas. Limited number of memberships available. Sign up now. It will change your whole outlook

Thank yopu Ally you are definitely not one of the Patzes. Love, Fred

Jessica, I received your letter, now what? Rob

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

R.A. INFORMATION SESSIONS

Tonight and every night this week there will be R.A. Information Sessions around Campus. Tonight's will be in Pierpont Lounge in Southwest at 7:30; Sylvan Cultural Society in Cashin at 8:00; Webster Main Lounge in Orchard Hill at 10:00. Watch for the one nearest you! You must attend an information session in order to apply.

REWARD $200

Looking to take over lease of a 4 bedroom house, Brandywine Apt. or Townehouse call 546-9805 or 546-9802

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to New Jersey or NYC Fri day March 7 expenses shared Kathy 546-8137

Desperate for a ride to and from Chicago over Spring Break!! Call Jeff 549-2808

ROOMMATE WANTED

One male nonsmoking for 2 bedroom townhouse apt for fall semester Jay 546-9809

Room avail immed in Brit Manor $170 per month heat & hot water inc call anytime 256-0783 Tom

Male housemates wanted to share house in Hyannis, Cape Cod for summer. Call 546-1290

Female to share room in Brandywine immediate opening $145 mo call Susan 549-0486

One room in 3 bedroom Northampton Apt 5 min walk to town, 190 plus call 584-7111

SERVICES

Typing, Tape Transcription, Fast, accurate. Call anytime 665-7652

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1230

Tired of the D.C.? There is an alternative. Trade in your D.C. 19 meal plan for Butterfield Meal Plan. For more info contact Paul, Bill or Elizabeth in the Butterfield Kitchen Office

Light Moving with Toyota Truck call 549-2649

TRAVEL

Spring Break - Florida bus and hotel trip for sale $290 includes everything 665-4187

Round trip ticket to Jacksonville Fla available 14 March to 24 March. Eastern Airlines. Bargain at $250.00 Please call Laura 549-5098

SPRING BREAK S. Florida riders need ed $ negotiable for info call 546-4037

WANTED

Dynamic Entrepreneurs needed to help introduce new marketing program 586-8091

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 5 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

Wanted 2 Dead tix for April 4 at Hitfel call mark 6-8710

Looking to buy/rent scuba gear. Mask, fins & snorkel. Jeff 253-2825

WANTED TO RENT

Brandywine/Townhouse lease for 86-87 Please call anytime except during "Quincy" Randy 546-7626 or John 546-5586

$100 reward to take over lease for 2 bedroom Brandywine apt in May call Mark 6-8710 or Dave 6-5078

Yo Seniors! We are looking to take over a Brandywine 1986 lease. $200 cash for your invaluable aid 546-9810 546-1451

WE NEED L.A.

Two round trip tickets to L.A. needed call Pete or Bob 6-8082

SPORTS

Minutewomen open title chase

UM faces Penn State in A-10 quarterfinal

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Somewhere, somehow the string of injuries and bad luck that has plagued the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team since mid-season has to stop.

With tonight's Atlantic 10 conference quarterfinal game against the 16th ranked Nittany Lions of Penn State University at the University of West Virginia determining the outcome of the Minutewomen's season, the string will undoubtedly end.

"We're going into the game with a real positive outlook believing that we truly can win this game," head coach Barbara Stevens said.

For Stevens, her five graduating seniors, and the rest of the team, the long, frustrating season that began with so much promise has become a struggle against adversity. So much so that the team was unable to suit up even ten players for a practice late last week.

Still, Stevens is justifiably optimistic.

Tonight's game, regardless of the Minutewomen's 4-12 conference record and 11-16 mark overall, is a chance for UMass to begin again, putting behind the tough times that have marked this season. With a victory, the Minutewomen can advance to the semi-finals, sending a PSU team that has beaten them twice this season (66-69 at home and 62-86 at PSU) home the earliest in recent memory.

Despite the two losses, Stevens is confident that with a combination of circumstance, a little luck and her team's strongest performance to date, the Minutewomen can knock off Penn State.

"Playing a nationally ranked team really doesn't bother me because we've played them twice before and I would say that we played three good halves out of four," Stevens said. "If we can only maintain a motivational factor we'll do well."

Pointing to her team's narrow 69-66 loss to the Lions earlier this year in the Cage, Stevens said that UMass feels that tonight's neutral court will be an advantage to the Minutewomen saying that because Penn State won't have the security of their home court, they will be more susceptible to an upset.

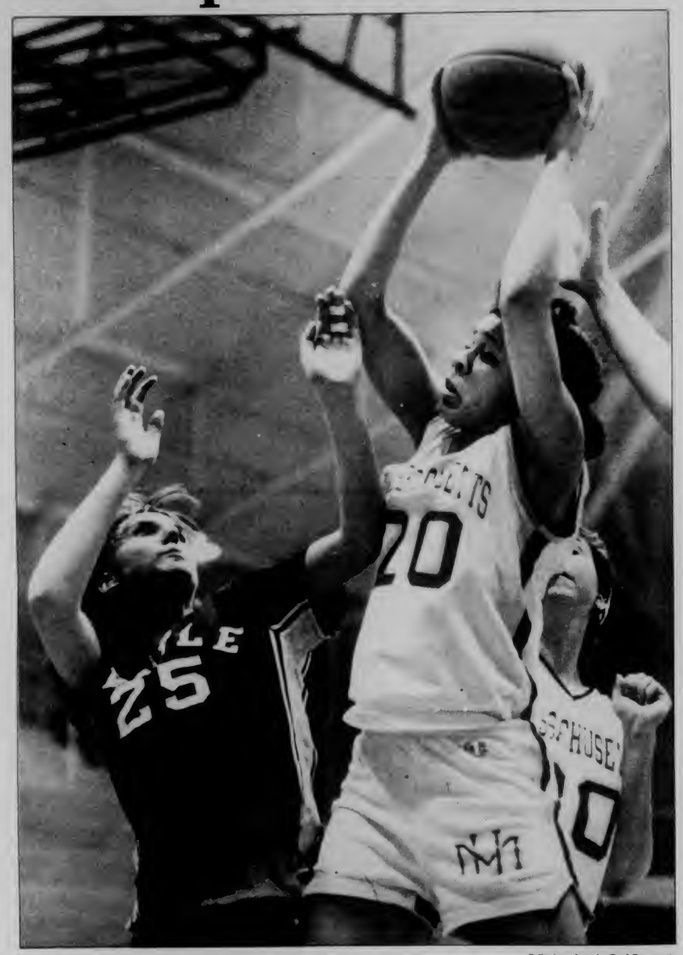
"We're playing them at West Virginia, and that's a good thing because Penn State is unbeatable at home. If you play them anywhere else away from Penn State then its a good thing, then you've got a chance to beat them," Stevens said.

Still, defeating the powerful Nittany Lions will take more than just getting them away from their home floor. Penn State, regarded along with Rutgers as one of the top team's in the Northeast, finished with a 12-4 conference record to go along with a 20-7 overall mark.

The team is led by All-American sophomore guard Suzie McConnell averaging 13.1 points-per-game while dishing out a league-leading 10.2 assists-per-game along with center Vicki Link, averaging 16.5 ppg. and 9.6 rebounds-per-game. The two carry the bulk of the offensive load for the Nittany Lions, hitting opponents both from the inside and outside. The two provide a formidable tandem to defend against, but according to Stevens, McConnell is the one to stop.

"When you talk about Penn State, you talk about McConnell as being the catalyst for the whole team. If you shut her down, you've got a good chance of beating them."

Stevens said that in the two teams' initial meeting this year at the Cage, the Minutewomen were able to effectively shut down McConnell which shut down the PS running game before UMass fizzled in the final minute. She said that the game was a good indication of what the Minutewomen could do as long as UMass kept McConnell from getting the two teams into a run-and-gun affair.



"If we can slow her down and get them into a half-court game then we've got a good chance to win. We did that against them in the Cage but allowed the tempo to get out of hand when we played them at Penn State."

As a coach, Stevens said she knows that a game can easily get out of hand when players get away from the game plan so it will be important for her to hold a tight reign on her team.

"If we're going to come out with a win, we're going to have to play as disciplined a game as we've ever played. I'm not worried though because we're capable of that," she said.

For UMass, the Minutewomen are coming off a 67-57 victory over George Washington last Thursday and a coin flip victory against the Colonials again over the weekend to get into the quarterfinals. If UMass expects to play PSU tough, the Minutewomen will have to produce inside where the team has been decimated by injuries. Stevens is confident in her healthy players however, saying that her team can rise above the injuries and do whatever it has to in order to win.

"The team has responded to the injuries and has found its character," said the coach.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Senior forward Juanita Mathews (right) and the University of Massachusetts women's basketball team are in West Virginia tonight to face Penn State in the quarterfinals of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

UMass basketball notebook

Gerlufsen to return; Fennell gone?

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusets men's basketball coach Ron Gerlufsen will be back with the Minutemen for another season, despite rumors to the contrary.

"I haven't signed anything yet, but there's an agreement. I'll be back for next season," said Gerlufsen. "I know there was some talk, but it wasn't true."

Gerlufsen took over for Tom McLaughlin after the 1982-83 season and has been 34-51 since. The 29-year-old coach's team was picked last by many pre-season publications, but UMass finished seventh despite starting three freshmen and a sophomore.

Gerlufsen, a former assistant under McLaughlin, said he is pointing toward a winning season for the Minutemen next year. If he accomplishes that, it would be the first one for UMass since 1977-78.

Details on the one-year contract was not released, but it is widely-known that UMass is one of the lower-paying positions in Division 1 of the NCAA.

□

Freshman forward Joe Fennell, who missed the last seven games of the season due to a disciplinary suspension imposed by Gerlufsen, may be transfering to the University of Hartford according to sources close to the team.

Fennell, a 6-6 foward from Brooklyn, played in 19 games and averaged 6.5 points and 4.1 rebounds. He started in six games with a high of 14 points against Hartford. He had ten points and 11 rebounds against Michigan State.

Gerlufsen, who said he knew of no transfer plans, said on Tuesday that Fennell will "closely monitored" for the remainder of this semester and his efforts both in the classroom and as a member of the university population would determine his status.

Matt Ryan, a sophomore swingman, and Ben Jones, a junior foward, have already transfered from UMass this season. They are headed to C.W. Post and Tennessee State respectively.

VOTE TODAY—Info, page 5

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 29

MONDAY, MARCH 10, 1986

INSIDE

• NASA finds the remains of shuttle crew. Page 2.
• Theater group potrays women without the stereotypes. Page 4.
• The master of the blues does it like no one else. Page 11.

A view to a meal

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

Students indulge in their daily dinner ritual last weekend in Worcester Dining Commons, while twilight settles in over campus.

Censure of Darling urged

Convicted of anti-PIRG antics

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

A student judiciary last week found a member of the Undergraduate Student Senate guilty of violating election bylaws in December.

Brian Darling, a senator from the Southwest Area Government and a member of Students for Participatory Democracy, was found guilty by a senate tribunal for violating Student Government Association bylaws. Darling termed the decision "a joke."

In the bylaws under the section dealing with "any SGA member who is actively seeking elected office within the SGA," Darling was found in violation of interfering with the orderly conduct of an election.

According to Student Attorney General Scot McCracken, on Dec. 10, Darling was seen in the Hampden Dining Commons removing table tents which had been placed there before an upcoming referendum by the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group.

Darling's group, Students for Participatory Democracy, opposed the funding process for MassPIRG in the referendum.

McCracken said that when Darling was approached by a security guard, Darling claimed he was a member of MassPIRG. He then refused to show identification, McCracken said.

"I ordered an injunction against the December election because who was to know what else he had taken down," McCracken said. The referendum was postponed until Feb 12 and 13.

Before the February election, Darling was cited for tampering with MassPIRG campaign posters. The tribunal did not make a finding in connection with those charges when the charges were dropped on "a technicality," McCracken said. "I am re-submitting my request for judicial action," he said yesterday.

Darling said he did not break any election rules because the SGA election bylaws do not apply to referendum questions. "The whole student judiciary is a joke. They have no power...They make up the rules as they go along," he said.

The board decided to motion the senate to vote on whether to censure Darling. "We asked the tribunal to find sufficient guilt to present to the senate for them to decide. We felt it wasn't fair to Brian for the three judges to decide rather than his peers," McCracken said.

If the senate votes to censure Darling, he could lose his right to vote on the senate floor.

Darling said he filed a pretrial motion to have the charges dismissed because the subpoena filed by McCracken was incomplete and contained vague references to the charges.

"It (the subpoena) doesn't say what I did wrong. All it says it that I was there. There is no date, and my name and address isn't filled out," Darling said.

Rights march draws 100,000

Reproductive freedom defended

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON—Singing, chanting and waving banners in support of reproductive rights, about 100,000 people yesterday walked for two miles through the nation's capital on a "March for Women's Lives."

"The silent majority will be silent no more. Our message is simple, you cannot play with women's lives. Women must have the advantages of 20th- and 21st-century science," Eleanor Smeal, the president of the National Organization for Women, said at a rally on the Capitol building lawn at the end of the march.

Under blue skies and warm temperatures, women and men from as far away as Florida, Maine and Ohio, from more than 300 political organizations and more than 200 colleges, marched for legal abortion and birth control.

They carried signs showing why they supported abortion rights: "My mom had an illegal abortion. I don't miss the baby, I miss my mom;" "I am more than a baby machine;" "A woman's body is not the property of the state;" "The right to life is a lie, they don't care about women's lives."

Marchers from the Amherst area displayed a banner reading: "UMass women support reproductive rights." They chanted, "The women united will never be defeated," and, "What do we want? Free choice. When do we want it? Now." They sang songs such as, "I Am a Woman" and "We Are on the Move."

Jane Jones, a University of Massachusetts anthropology major, said she was "amazed" at the turnout. "It is another indication that (President) Reagan is not acting in the interest of the majority of women," she said.

Julie Meyers, a UMass women's studies graduate, said there was not enough emphasis on fighting sterilization abuse forces upon poor and Third World women. "I feel that abortion rights and an end to sterilization abuse must go hand in hand," she said.

Many religious leaders and activists addressed the two-hour rally, as well as singers Kristen Lems and Holly Near.

continued on page 2

Reis wins appeal but continues suit

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

After a six-month wait, a University of Massachusetts student received notification Thursday from the provost's office that because she has dyslexia, a language learning disorder, she will be allowed to substitute history, literature or linguistics courses for the foreign language requirement.

But the student, Carole Reis, said she plans to continue to press a class action lawsuit—filed at US District Court in Springfield against the University—to ensure that the language requirement does not discriminate against students with learning disorders and also to make the process for applying for a language waiver fair and efficient.

"I'm really ecstatic that it (the waiver) happened, but it doesn't change what they did. What they did was wrong. I really didn't think I was going to graduate on time," Reis said in an interview Friday.

Reis had appealed a decision by the Learning

continued on page 5

Remains of shuttle crew discovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Searchers have found remains of Challenger's astronauts in the debris of the shuttle's crew compartment 100 feet down on the floor of the Atlantic Ocean, NASA announced yesterday.

"Family members of Challenger's crew have been informed," a statement said. "In deference to family wishes, NASA will not make further comments until recovery operations and identifications are complete."

Mark Weinberg, a spokesman for the presidential commission investigating the shuttle explosion, said he could not comment on the significance of the find to the commission's probe.

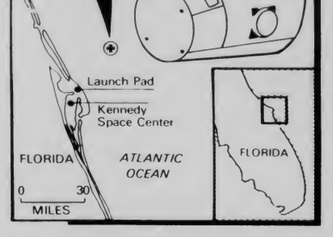
"I would not want to characterize its importance. That's to be determined. Clearly all pieces of evidence are important," he said.

A search ship using sonar about 25 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral made a possible identification of the compartment late Friday, and divers Saturday positively identified compartment debris and crew remains, the NASA statement said.

Recovering the compartment wreckage and remains could take several days, depending on the weather and sea conditions, NASA said.

Seven crew members died when Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff Jan.28.

Among those killed was Christa McAuliffe, a New Hampshire schoolteacher who was flying as NASA's first citizen in space.



The others were commander Richard Scobee, pilot Michael Smith, Ellison Onizuka, Judith Resnik, Ronald McNair and Gregory Jarvis.

NASA said that when the remains are recovered they will be taken to a hospital at Patrick Air Force Base, about 25 miles south of Cape Canaveral.

"Assistance in positive identification of crew will be provided by Armed Forces Institute of Pathology personnel," the statement said.

"Local security measures are being taken to assure that recovery operations can take place in a safe and orderly manner," it said.

NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said he could provide no additional information on the condition of the crew or the remains.

Collegian photo by Maria Bull

Some of the 100,000 participants in the March for Women's Lives gather in the sunshine on the lawn of the Capitol yesterday.

★ March for Women's Lives

continued from page 1

Gwendolyn Calvert Baker, president of the Young Woman's Christian Association of the US, told the crowd policymakers are divided into two groups, "those who care about you before you are born and after you die, and those who care about you while you are alive."

Former New York Rep. Bella Abzug received enthusiastic applause when she said power should no longer be used to deprive women of their freedom anywhere in the world—especially in the United States, where "a woman...is unable to give her child the nutrition she needs because we have a voracious and vicious Pentagon which insists on bloating its stomach while women and children and families are starving and homeless."

Many marchers carried clothes hangers, symbolizing the days of illegal self-induced and back-alley abortions, with "Never again" signs attached, and hung them on the gates of the White House as a message to Reagan.

Today, marchers who stayed in Washington plan to lobby for passage of the Civil Rights Restoration Act, which would unequivocally deny federal funding to any organization with discriminatory practices. Women's groups are fighting a proposed antiabortion amendment to the law which they say is holding the bill up in committee.

The march was sponsored by NOW, which will hold a similar march in Los Angeles next weekend for its West Coast chapters.

Stabbing victim remembered

MARLBORO (AP)—An 18-year-old high school student who died over the weekend after she was stabbed at least 23 times had signed a release form to donate her organs so that others could live, her father said.

"She was a giver," said James F. Pelto of Marlboro, father of Cathleen M. Pelto. "This is how she is, this is how she would have been."

Pelto was a senior studying drafting at Assabet Valley Regional Vocational High School and planned to attend Worcester Industrial Technical Institute in the fall, her father said.

"She really dedicated herself to her field," he said, adding she hoped to be a mechanical engineer.

Enrolled in the cooperative program at Assabet, Pelto worked at the Northboro plant at Raytheon Corp., where "she was doing well," David Tobin, Assabet's superintendent-director, told the Middlesex News of Framingham.

"She was a very good student," Tobin said, and was "very highly respected by our faculty."

Pelto died early Saturday at University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester. She was taken to the hospital Thursday night shortly after she struggled with a man in her car outside a Hudson elementary school.

A school janitor told police he saw a brief struggle between the young woman and the man, then she fell out of the car to the sidewalk and the man fled. Police said there was no blood in the car, leading them to speculate the stabbing took place elsewhere.

They said they believed that Pelto had stopped at a Marlboro convenience store after visiting her boyfriend, and there is speculation that her assailant entered her car while she was in the store. Police said Sunday they had no arrests.

Angry widow files lawsuit against tobacco companies

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—The widow of a Postal Service mail handler who smoked two packs of cigarettes a day for 44 years said she filed a $27 million damage suit against three tobacco companies because he died of lung cancer.

"I'm angry," Joanna Kotler, the mother of four children, said about the death of her husband, George, on his 55th birthday Jan 11. "I look around at people and I ask myself, 'Why is he dead?'"

Attorney Eric Nissen told the Sunday Boston Herald he filed the suit late Friday in U.S. District Court in Boston against the American Tobacco Co., Phillip Morris and Liggett and Myers, the three companies whose brands of cigarettes Kotler had smoked. There was no immediate comment from the companies.

Nissen said Mrs. Kotler contended smoking was a substantial factor in her husband's lung cancer. He said the suit seeks damages for negligence, breach of warranty, misrepresentation and reckless conduct.

The R.J. Reynolds company prevailed last December in a California court in the one cigarette liability suit that has gone to trial nationwide.

A majority of the Superior Court jury said that it was not convinced that the man had died of smoking-related causes or that he had been addicted to smoking.

After that verdict, a company spokesman said "...our position is that smoking is a question of individual responsibility and clearly not addictive."

Kotler started smoking in 1942 at age 11, Nissen said.

"At the time he started smoking, there were already many studies done which showed smoking had dangers," he said. "The companies failed to warn about the risks and of the possibility of addiction. We expect to produce evidence showing that this was negligent."

It was not until 1966 that tobacco companies were required to place warning labels on cigarettes.

Ma., NH low jobless rates leave governors at odds

BOSTON (AP)—Massachusetts and New Hampshire enjoyed the lowest jobless rates in the nation last year, but their leaders can't seem to agree on what has produced the shared good fortune.

"The fact is that this state is providing jobs not just for its own people, but for 8 percent of the New Hampshire workforce," said Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, a Democrat.

"If these jobs were filled by Massachusetts people, we would have an unemployment rate of 2 percent and theirs would be 5 percent."

Gov. John Sununu of New Hampshire, a Republican, doesn't see it that way at all. He says Massachusetts' success comes from copying New Hampshire's attitude toward business.

"I think they've started talking about the same kind of things we do, that it's important to have a climate that makes business feel comfortable," he told the Boston Sunday Globe. "Once you stop chasing your companies out, then their internal growth will work well."

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last week that the two neighboring states shared the lowest unemployment rates in the nation in 1985, 3.9 percent.

While the line between New Hampshire and Massachusetts is nothing more than a few dashes on a map, it separates two very distinct states of mind.

New Hampshire wears its motto "Live Free or Die." The slogan represents the historical mistrust of government among residents of the Granite State.

In New Hampshire, there is no sales tax, no income tax, no bottle deposit law and no mandatory seat belt law. The seat belt provision was rejected by a 3-1 margin last week.

Massachusetts has a 5 percent sales tax, an income tax, a 3-year-old bottle law and a mandatory seat belt law that went into effect Jan. 1.

Speaker warns of college strife

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

If one enters college at the wrong stage, the college environment can cast a person's life into disorder, according to a Harvard University developmental psychologist who lectured Friday on developmental problems of college students.

Speaking to about 100 people in the Marks Meadow Elementary School, Robert Kegan, author of The Emerging Self, said people grow through stages that determine how they perceive things and respond to them.

From the age of two to five, "A child is not looking at their perceptions, but through their perceptions. The child is living in a fundamentally different reality than adults," he said.

At age five to seven, "the child says, 'Instead of being made of my perceptions, I have my perceptions.' " Kegan said. He said children at this stage are not ready for college life because, "they're not able to coordinate one point of view with another."

Adolescents are generally capable of this, and "the college environment is built on the assumption that you've reached (the adolescent) stage and that you're ready to move beyond it," he said.

Kegan told stories of two college students:

● Betsy was 19 when, diagnosed as pregnant, she sought and received consolation and guidance form her boyfriend and her father. But in a Boston abortion clinic, Betsy learned the diagnosis was wrong.

Kegan read from Betsy's account: "At 19, I was in love with a man who could not yet take care of me (her boyfriend) and in love with another who could (her father)....I wanted to be anything but what I was. All I could do was wait."

● Eric, a first-year student, complained of depression and apathy. During a week at home, his parents told him that it would be all right with them if Eric's grades were low. They also said Eric could drop out and come home. Eric was "deflated."

"Because Eric had tied his expectations for college with those of his parents, Eric felt lowered when his parents lowered their expectations," Kegan said.

Kegan said Eric's parents had made him face his own decisions, and that eventually Eric became less attached to his parents.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Harvard psychologist Robert Kegan

Their life is baseball, near and far

By PEDRO M. PEREIRA
Collegian Correspondent

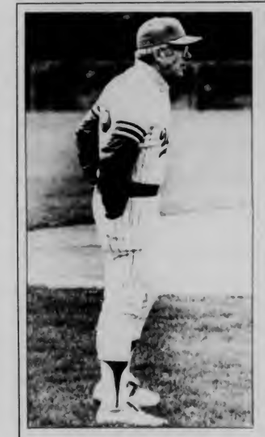
The baseball coaches of the University of Massachusetts and Amherst College are coaching their way from local baseball diamonds to fields far away.

UMass baseball coach Richard Bergquist has been working with the United States national college team since 1975. He is currently on the team's international committee which selects coaches and decides where teams play.

The coach down the road, Bill Thurston, in charge of baseball at Amherst College, has been selected by the US State Department to be pitching coach of the US Olympic team.

Thurston, a former Detroit Tiger, has coached around the globe. Last year he guided the Australian national team; he previously worked with teams in Canada and Holland.

In 1984 Bergquist helped organize the exhibition baseball games at the Los Angeles Olympics. Bergquist said the tournament in Dodger Stadium, which averaged 48,000 spectators a game, "was a huge success. It was very rewarding for me because I've spent a lifetime in baseball."



Bergquist said he hopes that by 1992 baseball will be an official Olympic sport. There is still a possibility, he added, that it will be played officially in Seoul in 1988; the International Olympic Organizing Committee will vote this summer.

"We're helping the rest of the world catch up to us in baseball," Bergquist said. He said he believes the possibility of making the sport officially Olympic has caused countries like the Soviet Union and China to become interested in it.

Thurston said an exhibition game on Soviet ground between the US team and the Cuban national team, the current world champion, is being negotiated. When this game is played in July, the Russians will have to set up a baseball field because currently there are none in the USSR.

Thurston, who grew up in Maine, began playing baseball in the sixth grade. He was a pitcher for the University of Michigan baseball team, played with the Detroit Tigers for three years and then coached high school for two years. He has been coaching Amherst, a Division III team, for 21 years.

Bergquist graduated from UMass in 1957. After being away for two years while he earned a degree in public school teaching, he returned to UMass, where he has coached for 27 years.

Collegian photos by Paul Desmarais

UMass' Dick Berquist (above) and Amherst's Bill Thurston: baseball's been very, very good to them.

FYI:

The Spring 1986 Final Examination Schedule will be available beginning Wednesday. Copies will be delivered to students in the residence halls, and will be distributed to off-campus students only 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday in the first floor lobby of Whitmore.

A psychology colloquium titled "Why Don't We Think About the Unthinkable? Denial, Cognitive Thinking, and Nuclear Threats," will be held at 3:45 p.m. today, in room 304 of Tobin Hall, with Daniel Goleman of the New York Times.

Nutrition key is moderation

Second in a series of occasional health-related articles.

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

When students have busy, stressful schedules, good diet is one of the casualties—which in turn leads to more stress and exhaustion.

Dieticians at the University of Massachusetts Health Services emphasize the importance of eating well, exercising and avoiding "crash diets" or other extreme weight-loss measures.

"Moderation" is the key to good nutrition, according to Arlene Thomson, a registered dietician at Health Services. "In general, students on this campus have too high of an intake of alcohol, sugar and fat," she said.

Most Americans eat about 30 times more salt than they need and about 118 pounds of sugar per year, which is a cup of sugar per day per person, Thomson said. They also eat two to three times the necessary amount of protein.

Robin Levine, also a Health Services dietician, said students should eat at least 1,200 calories per day, but that the average woman at UMass consumes about 1,600 calories per day and the average man about 2,500.

Levine, who counsels students on nutrition, said about 800 persons per year come for advice.

Most seek counseling for weight control problems, general nutritional information, eating disorders and problems associated with diabetes, she said.

Levine said most people have been taught the four "basic food groups"of milk, meat, fruits and vegetables and grain, but that this system is no longer enough. The problem with these food groups is that they do not account for the fat, sugar or sodium content of food, she said.

"The most important thing is to get your basic calories from good food," Levine said, adding that this means getting the most nutrients possible out of the calories consumed. For example, whole milk only adds fat, which takes up the space for nutrients and essentially adds empty calories, she said.

Thomson said fats, not carbohydrates, should be eliminated. Refined sugars—honey, syrup, molasses—and salts should be foregone in favor of foods containing fiber and starches.

She cautioned against "ridiculous" fad diets because they cannot be followed for a long period of time.

During crash dieting, Thomson said, the body loses fat, but also begins to lose muscle as it is broken down to replace lost energy. A lack of carbohydrates creates physiological cravings in the body and old eating habits return. At this point the person usually gains back all the weight he or she might have lost.

Thomson advocates regular aerobic exercise about three times a week to lower weight, decrease cholesterol, increase bone density and relieve tension.

Test ban rally draws 50

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Despite freezing temperatures Friday, about 50 people attended a rally at the Student Union Building steps calling for an end to nuclear weapons testing.

A Hampshire College physics professor and three members of the University Peacemakers spoke at the rally which was being held to gain awareness and support for a Comprehensive Test Ban.

"The Comprehensive Test Ban treaty is an end to the explosive testing of nuclear weapons," said Alex Guest, a member of the Peacemakers. "It will not stop the building of the bombs, it will stop the exploding."

Delivery systems, conventional weapons and lasers will still be allowed to be tested according to the treaty, he said.

The Soviet Union discontinued testing of nuclear weapons Aug. 6, and asked the United States to sign the treaty by Jan. 31. When the US did not, the Soviet Union moved the date to March 31. Allan Krass, a physics professor and a member of the Union of Concerned Scientists, said the rally was aimed at persuading the Reagan administration to agree.

Krass said seismographs, which measure earthquake waves but can also detect nuclear explosions, could be used to verify a test ban.

"It is not possible for the Soviets to cheat without being undetected; they offered to have up to 20 seismograph monitors put on Soviet territory," Krass said.

In 1963 the US, USSR and Great Britain signed a treaty which discontinued underwater and atmospheric testing of nuclear weapons, permitting only underground explosions.

"The United States has at least 200 more missiles than the Soviet Union," Krass said.

Rallies supporting a test ban were held Friday on at at least 30 college campuses, including Yale, Dartmouth, Harvard, the University of Texas and the University of North Carolina, said Jon Spaulding of the Radical Student Union.

Photo by Nick Sokoloff

Hampshire College Professor Allan Krass Friday addresses an anti-nuclear weapons testing rally.

SPORT Style

Inset
T-Shirt
$8.95

Open
M-F 9-5

Located in the
Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Theater strives against negative female images

By DANA GROSSBLATT
Collegian Correspondent

Popular media images of "bitches, virgins and baby dolls" mark the necessity for a local women's theater group, according to the founder and spokeswoman of the group.

"Theater, Too" aims to portray women without the stereotypes that society is accustomed to, Sarah Dreher says. The group is the offshoot of Amherst Women's Community Theatre, which has existed in the area for about nine years.

"A serious rift developed between those board members who wanted to expand our audience ... and those who were concerned over the political compromises," Dreher said.

"It was too painful for me to see a group I fought for ten years to be feminist, deteriorate into just another theater group," she said.

Dreher and fellow director Lis Brook formed the new group about a year ago, and the old group fell apart.

Funding for the group comes from ticket sales, bake sales and dances. "We're in bad shape (for funding)," Dreher said, but the group received an Amherst Arts Council grant for its recent production of "8 X 10 Glossy." The grant was unusual, she said, since "there isn't much grant money around for feminist artists.

"I don't know how much consciousness we've raised," Dreher said. "It's a hard thing to measure." The group's main goal, she said, is "providing aid and comfort to our audience.

"What we in Theater, Too are trying to do is give a voice to the feminist-lesbian community by performing material that speaks our lives."

The earlier edition of the theater group had a regular following of about 500 people, mostly women, Dreher said. She said Theater, Too has about the same number of patrons.

"I see a lot of the same faces," she said.

Rehearsals for the groups next production, "Ruby Christmas," are held in members' living rooms because it is "hard to get free or cheap space" locally, Dreher said. The play will be performed April 2 to 5 at East Street Studio in Hadley.

A private psychologist, author and award winning playwright, Dreher does most of the writing for the group herself. This does not exclude other people from submitting scripts for consideration. The only requirements are that the characters be solely women and it be a feminist play.

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events related to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's Issues Editor, care of the Collegian by the Friday before the event.

Tuesday—Violence against women, focusing on date rape will be the topic of the Women's Media Project, 6 to 7 p.m. on WMUA, 91.1 FM. In studio guests will include Christine King and Cathy Alexander.

—The Graduate WAGES Program of the Everywoman's Center will sponsor a self-defense workshop for women 7 to 9 p.m. at Wilder Hall. Further information is available from the center at 545-0883.

—"Ready Or Not, Here We Come," a workshop for parents and teachers on kindergarte readiness will be held at 7 p.m. at the Jones Library, 43 Amity Street, Amherst. the workshop will be run by Marilyn Hoy-Youngblood of the Preschool Enrichment Team, Holyoke.

Thursday—Nursat Aygen of the Third World Women's Project in Washington D.C., will speak on "Women's Struggles in Turkey" at 8 p.m. in Seelye Hall at Smith College. Aygen, of the Institute for Policy Studies, has researched the production and sale of torture equipment in the Third World. The lecture is sponsored by the Smith College Project on Women and Social Change and the Advisory Committee on the Study of Women.

MAXIMIZE
Your Midterm Performance with a Subscription from the Student Note & Printing Service

We offer lecture notes for the following courses:

BIO 100B	COMSTU 290D	FSN 130
BOT 100	ECON 103A	GEOL 101
BOT 101	ECON 103B	HIST 150	AND
COINS 250	ECON 104A	HRTA 100	MORE!
COINS 320	ECON 104C	MATH 120
COINS 677	ECON 104D	PHYSICS 162
COMSTU 121	ECON 303	STATS 140

Student Note & Printing Service

403 Student Union
Mon-Thur 9-5
Dri 9-4
545-2271

We're also your one-stop center for Xerox copies and offset printing!

Voting Info

Sylvan, Northeast Residents: Worcester Commons, 10:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; 3:45 to 6 p.m.

Orchard Hill, Central Residents: Franklin Commons, 11 a.m. to 1:45 p.m.; 4 to 6:15 p.m.

Southwest residents: Hampshire Commons, 11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m.; 4:15 to 6:30 p.m.
Berkshire Commons, 11:30 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.; 4:30 to 6:45 p.m.

Off-campus students (except Greeks): Outside Hatch, noon to 5:30 p.m.

Fraternities and sororities: Newman Center, 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

ANYONE MAY VOTE AT:
Hampden Kosher D.C., 5 to 7 p.m.
New Africa House, 12:30 to 5:45 p.m.

Flags fly at color guard meet

By YOAV SHORR
Collegian Correspondent

Colors flew amidst spinning rifles flags, and streamers at the "Color in the Cage" tournament in Curry Hicks Cage yesterday, featuring the Spitfire Color Guard of the University of Massachusetts.

Color guards from Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Connecticut and New York competed before the National Judges Association and an enthusiastic audience. Included were college and high school groups, judged on how they interpreted and expressed music through drill, march, and dance.

"Are the judges ready?" asked the announcer. "Is the color guard ready? You may take the floor for competition." Guards moved from attention into many different formations—from circles to straight lines, from curves to clusters. Some made weaving patterns, and equipment flew from person to person. Routines ranged from slow and graceful to very fast-paced.

Two guards emerged victorious: in Class A, Spunk River Jazz from Spencer came out on top; while Phoenix from Waterbury, Conn., was the winner of the open class.

The Spitfire Color Guard concluded the program with a quick-paced routine called "Swing into Spring." Beginning with the song "You are My Sunshine," the drill's different sections, using different color flags, represented the spring sun, April showers, young love, and the Easter holiday. The routine concluded with Barbra Streisand's recording, "Don't Rain on My Parade."

The 18-member Spitfire Color Guard, part of the Minuteman Marching Band, has been training since October, and rehearses up to 10 hours a week. Its schedule includes 11 competitions throughout New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The group is "always trying to improve," working on the same routine throughout the season, according to member David Hautanen.

★ Reis lawsuit continued from page1

Disabilities Hearing Board, which ruled Jan. 23 that she must complete the language requirement, with the help of tutoring, by taking Spanish 230 and 240 in the fall and by auditing Spanish 120 while she was on an internship in Philadelphia this semester.

In her appeal to the board, Reis said her learning disability is well documented through communications skills testing and past educational records, and also that the length of time it took the board to render a decision was unreasonable. Reis planned her internship without knowing what the board's decision would be.

In the letter Reis received Thursday, associate provost Norman Aitken said she could pick two courses from a list of 11 to fulfill the requirement. The list includes Latin American history, linguistics and Spanish literature courses.

But the letter from Aitken said her appeal was granted because of the long time she waited, not because of her disability.

"I believe that the University could have provided you with a specialized plan for meeting the foreign language requirement," Aitken wrote.

Yesterday, Aitken said that he is not an expert in learning disabilities and was only evaluating the University's handling of Reis' case.

"The policy of the University is to try and work with LD (learning disabled) students to try and set up a learning environment. My response in this situation was that the University as an entity did not respond in a timely fashion," he said.

Reis applied in September to the Language Disabilities Hearing Board for a waiver of the language requirement after completing Spanish 110 and 120. She said that even with special tutoring she was unable to retain any knowledge she learned in the courses. Reis received a grade of CD in both classes, and she said that was "only because I practically lived in the professor's office."

She submitted a letter to the board outlining her situation on Oct. 28, and on Dec. 6 suggested alternative courses to replace Spanish 230 and 240, the final courses in the requirement. The board denied her request on Jan. 23.

for fun styles, come see our new collection!
SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst OPEN SUNDAYS

SPRING BREAK
in
FT. LAUDERDALE
15th - 22nd
$135 only 15 seconds from strip
• Sea View Hotel
• Hartford departures available
• Pool
• Air Conditioning
• Kitchenette
• 8 days of sun and fun
• Guaranteed
Limited space left so ACT NOW!
Call Tom 549-3910

DOVE
Secretarial Services
Fast, Accurate Typing of
• Resumes
• Term Papers
• Dissertations
79 South Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass 01002
256-1335
253-7480

Need to finish a paper before Spring Break?
Let us help you.
THE WRITING CENTER
There is a new WRITING CENTER in Sylvan
04 Cashin M, W 7:00 - 9:00 pm
Wed 2:30 - 4:30 pm

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

EDWIN JEANS
sold at the finest stores
Lodestone
13 No. Pleasant
Amherst
256-0591

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興 旺 樓
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571
150 King St.
Northampton
586-8220

DELANO'S
FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
FREE TACO BAR
MON & TUES NIGHT
9 — till it lasts
MARCH BEER OF THE MONTH
Heineken
57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

1985 WINNER OF FIVE GOLD CIRCLE AWARDS

★ NEWSWRITING
★ OVERALL DESIGN [TABLOID]
★ PAGE ONE DESIGN [NEWS]
★ OPINION PAGE DESIGN
★ FEATURE PAGE DESIGN

ADVERTISE IN AN AWARD-WINNING NEWSPAPER

CONTACT ADVERTISING DEPT.
(413) 545 – 3500
COLLEGIAN
113 CAMPUS CENTER
AMHERST, MA 01003

Share the health
GIVE BLOOD
1985 ARC

American Red Cross
Blood Services –
Northeast Region

Letters

Reactionary politics in the senate

At last Wednesday night's senate meeting, there was a great display of unity between people of different color and ethnic backgrounds. These students came together to fight for a common goal against the defunding of groups on campus which they feel promote diversity.

As a student on this campus, I have mixed feelings about what took place at this present Wednesday's senate meeting. I understand the concern on a budget that completely eliminates the funding of certain student organizations on campus. However, I am disturbed with the way this student concern was manifested.

Over 100 people turned out to protest the budget, but where were all these students when senate elections took place in the fall? Senate elections happen yearly, and appointments to certain senate committees, such as the Budget Committee, are open to all senators. Where will all these students be next year when the 1987-88 SGA budget comes up for approval?

We, as students on this campus who are concerned about the continuance of certain groups on campus and the future of our student government body, can no longer take a passive stance on these issues.

We fought for the Student Activity Trust Fund after it was taken over by the administration. We fought for the budget, after groups had been denied funding.

The power to have input on the process of decision-making on this campus is available to students year round, not just in reaction to a crisis. Student Government elections take place once a year and senate meetings are held weekly, and are open to all students. Furthermore, the senate is not only the decision-making body on campus. Each residential area has an elected body, as well as the commuter area. If nothing else, students have the power to elect these people to positions of power, and have a responsibility to find out who the best candidates are.

Reactionary politics are not the answer. It is far more productive to be active all the time, than to be reactive in the face of a crisis.

Richele Sargent
Southwest

Embarrassed and not represented

Students here at the University of Massachusetts are generally accustomed to standing in line, waiting their turn, and quieting down at the gentle request of the professor of any 300-student class. If, in the last case, that professor were required to "control" that class of 300 instead of being able to rely on their cooperation, a university of this size would be impossible to maintain. We are an adult student body that obviously understands and accepts that fact because the university DOES function.

Senators in the SGA, being not only student body members but also representatives of the student body, should understand this as well. Senate meetings should be run by the mutual conviction of the senators and the speaker to following rules of conduct and procedures that are both written and implied. The fact that the student body is being represented by these people means that there are 25,000 possible viewpoints to mention. It also means that any disrespect between senators is disrespect for students, and any lack of cooperation between senators is a misrepresentation of the ability of the student body to function as a whole. I, therefore, feel totally misrepresented and embarrassed that those who claim to represent me would end a senate meeting with chanting and insults and have the gaul to suggest that it is because the speaker, one man, is not capable of "controlling" an adult, mature senate. I beg you all, in the name of your university, to control yourselves!

Carole M. Chuslo
Northampton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

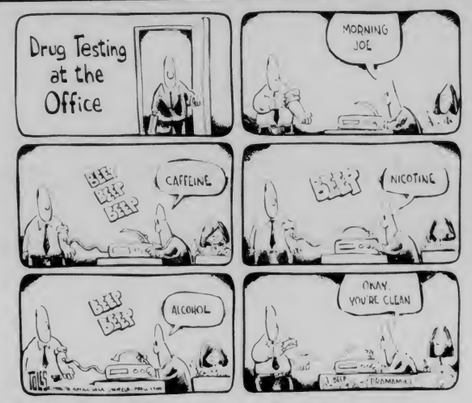
Eliminating the cancer

Mark Caldeira

Reagan's cancer is growing—and I don't mean the polyps in his colon. The war he is waging against the popularly elected government of Nicaragua is escalating at a pathological rate. It has already claimed more than 12,000 innocent lives; lives that are trying desperately to combat the economic and social ruin of the U.S.-Somoza dictatorship; lives that have attempted to establish dialogue for peaceful existence with the arms-wielding U.S.; lives that have democratically chosen a government which is truly and actively working for the people of Nicaragua. Yet Reagan, having no acknowledgement or respect for sovereign nations and people, continues to regard every inch of the globe as a potential womb for the fidgety phallus of Big Business. Consequently, the price is blood.

The U.S. corporate-government virus has infected the peoples of Central and South America for over 150 years. It has installed, using violence and murder, right-wing dictators such as Pinochet in Chile and the Somoza's in Nicaragua. It has, with the blood-stained hands of the CIA, overthrown the democratically-elected governments of Guatemala in 1954, Dominican Republic in 1965, Chile in 1973, and Grenada in 1983. Today, Reagan continues this campaign of "freedom and democracy" in his horrendous, immoral war against the people of Nicaragua—imposing trade embargos, mining Nicaraguan harbors, prohibiting travel to Nicaragua for U.S. citizens, providing military "intelligence," arms, technology, supervisors, mercenaries, etc. as the backbone of the murderous counter-revolution. Not only has the Reagan administration lied to the American people about the situation and conditions of its unjust intervention, but he has used particular political maneuvers to craft a fictitious political scene for Nicaragua. Let us examine this slimy tactic more closely.



When the Sandinistas came to power in 1979, they repeatedly asked the United States for recognition, aid, and peace. The United States, under the Reagan administration, outwardly refused. It desired none of these; in fact, it desires only its ever-developing intervention and control in the Americas, which the insidious Monroe Doctrine patrioticaliy defends. Nicaragua, Cuba, Grenada—all three are threats to the U.S. only in that they function as examples of successful resistence to U.S. imperialism. There is no Sandinista totalitarianism. There is no real "communist threat." There is no Soviet-Cuban conspiracy. Yet all three facades are central to Reagan's international agenda, as well as to his securing of power at home.

If the Reagan administration was truly concerned with a Soviet threat in Central America, it would never be waging a war, via contras, against Nicaragua. Such a war would inevitably force the militarily-inferior Sandinistas into the desperate position of fighting a superpower and needing assistance. When one "superpower" is fighting against you, the only alternative you have for survival is to seek the assistance of another superpower—in this case the Soviet Union. This is precisely what is happening to Nicaragua under the U.S.-contra war. The Reagan administration is pushing a needy Nicaragua towards the aiding hands of the Soviet Union. Reagan, of course, is well aware of this. In fact, this is his strategy.

By continuing the contra war—which frequents Sandinista contact with the Soviet Union—Reagan successfully creates the illusion of a Soviet-Sandinista alliance (read: conspiracy). Reagan is able to capitalize at home and abroad with this deviously crafted political arrangement. Now, instead of the Reagan administration receiving the domestic and international condemnation it deserves, the appearance once again is that the Soviet Union is "on the prowl." Scapegoat Diplomacy Reaganized.

Reagan is presently in the process of wooing Congress into accepting his proposed $100 million in military and non-direct military aid to the contras to accelerate his bloody war against the Nicaraguan people. He must be stopped. We must, as the people of America, eliminate this cancer before it eliminates us all.

Mark Caldeira is a Collegian columnist.

Will of the student body

Dennis Fischman

By manipulating language and paying selective attention to the facts, a writer can invent support for any political position, no matter how ludicrous or self-serving. Daniel J. Coelho's letter of March 6 on the suspension of 12 students at Dartmouth is a fine example of twisted rhetoric. It is instructive to observe his technique.

Dartmouth suspended these students, Coelho says, "for dismantling shanties erected by other students who were protesting apartheid." Notice the neutral verb "dismantling." It suggests a careful, almost thoughtful procedure, an impression he tries to encourage by the information that another shanty in which students were sleeping was "unharmed." Apparently, we should commend the "dismantlers" for not bringing the roof down on the sleepers' heads. What if Coelho had mentioned that these considerate wreckers were armed with sledgehammers, as in fact they were? Certainly, that would have begun to give us a different feeling for their action—a feeling that might have grown if we were told that the "dismantling" took place under cover of night, merely hours after 300 other Dartmouth students marched to protest the college's investments in South Africa. Coelho does not tell us that.

"The students felt that the shanties, having stood for three months, had achieved their symbolic purpose..." Evidently, by "the students," he means the 12 demolition experts. See how deftly, though, he manages to insinuate (without actually saying) that this small group somehow represented the will of the student body. One would think that 300 would provide a better cross-section than 12; but again, that comparision, he does not choose to make.

Ironically, one group on campus did agree that the shantytown had made its point: the very people who built it, the Dartmouth Community for Divestment. DCD had already decided to take down three of the huts and move the fourth away from the center of the green, at least for January, while continuing to press the trustees to act. The "unsightly shanties" would not have remained to "spoil" the Winter Carnival "festivities" in any case. Coelho does not see fit to let us in on that little secret, either; nor does he tell us—although we may imagine—how the 12 self-appointed beautifiers of the green reacted when they realized they had forfeited their student standing for no real gain.

Speaking of the actors in this miniature drama, Coelho remarks that 10 of the 12 were staff members of the so-called Dartmouth Review, which he characterizes as "Dartmouth's only independent voice of dissent." He neglects to mention that this dissent has included virulent attacks in print directed at women, Blacks, Jews, and guys who dare to attend that elite campus. The college administration has tried to remove "Dartmouth" from the publication's title, fearing to be held liable for the Review's libelous pages. The paper itself is wholly funded by off-campus, right-wing sponsors. Surely, unless he intended to deceive, Coelho would have thought this information, too, worthy of Collegian readers' attention.

The most stunning misuse of language occurs in the article's first sentence: "The word here is lynching." I am appalled at the callousness this sentence displays. In South Africa, they know about lynchings. How many hundreds have the police killed since last year? How many raped and tortured? It is impossible even to count those who have died from hunger, malnutrition, or inadequate medical care. In contrast, eight Dartmouth reactionaries have to delay their education for six months, while four others have to wait until 1987 to reapply. Lynching?

That Coelho can even mention academic suspension and apartheid in the same breath shows he understands nothing of what the struggle for divestment is about, neither at Dartmouth nor at UMass. He has become a victim of his own rhetoric, but I do not feel sorry for him.

Dennis Fischman is a UMass student.

The powers of jurors

David Valade

Sometime in the future it's likely that each of us will be called to serve on a jury. The jury as an institution has played an important role in the development of our nation. It serves as the bridge between our judicial system and the members of our society. In recent years, the power of jurors has been eroded. Unless we begin to take a more active role in this process, the jury may someday be eliminated.

The origin of the jury may be traced back to feudal England. When the king's judges held court in different areas, members of the local population would be called to assist in the decision-making process. The jury would help the judge to make a decision that would be consistent with local customs. It also served to help legitimize the power of the king by showing good faith in the judgment of the people.

Through time, the jury developed and was brought to the New World by the English who settled here. It was about this time in history that the jury became an instrument for protection from political oppression. Perhaps the greatest example of this is the trial of John Peter Zenger. He was charged with seditious libel for publishing newspaper articles critical of the King's governor. The evidence overwhelmingly pointed to his guilt, but the jury chose to nullify the law and find him innocent.

Cases such as Zenger's grew in numbers in the colonies. As opposition to the King grew, the King's repression increased. Because jurors refused to convict people, the King suspended the right of trial by jury. This became one of the grievances listed in the Declaration of Independence.

At the time of Zenger's trial, jurors understood that they could question the validity of the law under consideration. In this capacity a jury is the only means that an average citizen can check oppressive tendencies in the law. Because jurors have this power, they can prevent laws from being applied in a capricious manner.

The concept of jurors nullifying the law has come under attack since colonial days. In most states, judges will not allow jurors to be told of this right. It is a right that is fundamental to protecting our rights. Without this type of review of the validity of laws, our legal system will be ripe for use to repress political dissent.

If you ever are called on for jury duty, the judge will likely tell you that you must convict the person on trial if certain facts are present. This is not true. You have a right to determine the validity of the law as well as the facts. The verdict you reach cannot be questioned. The judge cannot overturn a jury's finding when it is innocent. If you believe that the law is wrong, stand up and argue this. Our nation has a long tradition of this and it is perhaps the greatest thing you can do to help us remain free.

David Valade is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Showing genuine concern, regard

A plea to the University community:

Granted that the sidewalks are in disrepair, granted their illogical layout, granted their misuse by wheeled vehicles, and granted that high speed cyclists often make them dangerous, nevertheless please use them as much as possible, and in this way save our poor campus from looking like a sea of mud.

Granted that trash containers are few and consist of unsightly oil-drums, nevertheless please do not discard your trash on the ground, and in this way save our poor campus from looking like the town dump.

The best way to show genuine concern for the environment and regard for one another consists of making the world we live in pleasant and attractive.

Edward Harrison
Physics and Astronomy Department

Man sought after church shooting; 3 wounded

LA PUENTE, Calif. (AP)—A man with a gun stood up during church services yesterday and opened fire on the congregation, wounding three people, two critically, authorities said.

A 25-year-old man was being sought, said Deputy Sam Jones, spokesman for the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

The shooting occurred about 11:50 a.m. at the Church of Christ, about 20 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

Jones said the man apparently was involved in a domestic dispute with the three victims, although his relationship with the victims was unknown.

"He was seated inside the church during services and at some point stood up and opened fire on the victims," Jones said. The man was seated one or two rows in front of his victims.

Jones identified the victims as Eugene Brown, 40; his wife, Carol Brown, 37; and Olina Potts, 45. All three were taken to Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina.

Brown, who had been shot in the head, was listed in very critical condition, according to nursing supervisor Linda Brim. Mrs. Brown was listed as critical but stable condition, and Potts was in satisfactory condition, Ms. Brim said.

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

It's better to know what they're like before you move in.

Living with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience.

And living with a long distance company isn't any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you're used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won't be any surprises when you move in. You'll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you're used to.

With calls that sound as close as next door. And discounts off our Day Rate on your state-to-state calls. With savings of over 50% during weekends until 5pm Sundays, or nights from 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Friday. And 40% discounts evenings between 5pm and 11pm, Sunday through Friday.

With AT&T, you'll continue to get services like immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling. And long distance operators to help you anytime there's a problem on the line.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, choose AT&T. Because whether you're into Mozart or metal, quality is the one thing everyone can agree on. Call 1 800 222-0300 for more information or to choose AT&T.

Reach out and touch someone.®

AT&T
The right choice.

©AT&T 1986

BLACK AFFAIRS

Churchmen rap apartheid banks

Top US Church leaders are asking 10 American banks not to renew or reschedule the $13.6 billion in loans to South Africa, arguing economic pressure could bring "about an end to the apartheid system."

"We agree with church leaders in South Africa that the rescheduling of South Africa's debt should be made contingent upon the resignation of the present regime and it's replacement by a government which represents all of South Africa's people," the church leaders said in telegrams to the heads of the ten banks.

The telegrams was sent under the auspices of the recently formed Churches' Emergency Committee on Southern Africa, an effort by Protestant and Orthodox church heads to move the South Africa issue to the top of the religious community's agenda.

The denominational leaders have made the money issue one of their first priorities because an international conference of lenders, set for Feb. 20 in London, will consider a "rollover" of South Africa's debt.

"In response to the urgent pleas from our brothers andd sisters in South Africa and after prayerful consideration, we have concluded that economic pressure on South Africa is the most important non-violent method of bringing and end to the apartheid system," the religious groups said in the telegrams.

In addition to the telegrams, the church leaders also said they have sent delegations to see the chairmen of the banks involved—Citicorp, Chase Manhattan, Irving Republic, Bankers Trust, Manufacturers Hanover, J.P. Morgan, Bank America, North Carolina and Chemical.

The Churchs' Emergency Committee on Southern Africa is convinced that the evil system of Apartheid must end and believes that these negotiations provide a unique opportunity for US bank representatives to present the strongest possible opposition to apartheid," the church leaders said.

The church leaders said that while $13.6 billion had been lent to private South African banks, those banks in turn had given money to the South African segregationist government, providing capital for "this economically beleaguered government to oppress the population." American banks are aware of this fact," the leaders said."However the current crisis in the South African economy has resulted in a moratorium on the repayment of loans by the South African banking community and a request that those loans be rescheduled or "rolled over."

—C. Ron Allen

Kareem on to other things

With his burnt-down house rebuilt, a hotel or two reopened and his NBA career set for another year, Kareem Abdul Jabbar has been taking care of other business. His jazz label with Universal-MCC Records doesn't have any artists yet, but things are beginning to move.

"Right now, we're just trying to take care of the regular nuts and bolts—offices, typewriter, tape machines, that type of thing. It's going to be a while. Hopefully we'll sign two acts before this year is out."

His father is a jazz musician, said Jabbar, so he has "lived with the music my whole life, I love it."

The jazz label was "a natural extension for me, because I was involved in concert promotion for some time. I've always have an eye for getting into the business some way. This finally popped up and it was the right thing."

Annoucements

The precious Alpha Angels will be having a Tea, on Tuesday March 11, 1986 in the New Africa House Library at 7 p.m. Interviews will be held after the Tea. Definitely interested bring transcript.

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.

After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.

That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.

So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT. BE ONE.

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide
358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

Share the health GIVE BLOOD American Red Cross

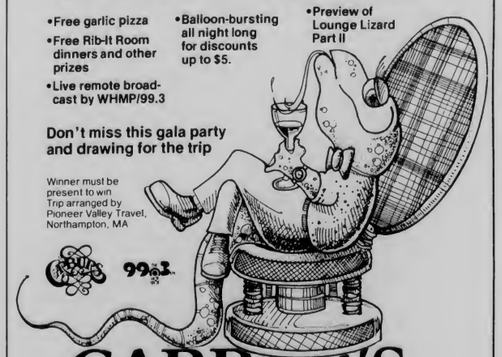
Sport Style

Two-color Reversible T-Shirt
$10.95

Coaches Shorts
$16.95

UNIVERSITY STORE

CALLING ALL LOUNGE LIZARDS:



To Carbur's "Cancun Giveaway Drawing & Going Away Party"
Wednesday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Someone's going to Cancun, Mexico for Spring Break... If you're a lounge lizard, you'll be at Carbur's Wednesday night to find out who — and have a great time besides!

- Free garlic pizza
- Free Rib-It Room dinners and other prizes
- Live remote broadcast by WHMP/99.3
- Balloon-bursting all night long for discounts up to $5.
- Preview of Lounge Lizard Part II

Don't miss this gala party and drawing for the trip

Winner must be present to win Trip arranged by Pioneer Valley Travel, Northampton, MA

CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
At the Elmwood Route 9 Hadley 586-1978

ARTS

The Golden Palominos rock S.U.B. without the aid of the superstars

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

The Golden Palominos have come and proved themselves to be good entertainment whatever their line up. Billed as a superstar amalgamation, last Thursday's show was performed without most of those same superstars, including John Lydon, Michael Stipe, and Richard Thompson. It didn't matter.

Over the strong back beat of drummer and organizer Anton Fier, the Paliminos were an exceptionally good bar band the first half of the show and, after bassist Jack Bruce joined them on stage for the second half of the show, a rock band equal to playing anywhere.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton
Guitarist Peter Blegued takes his turn at the mike as a member of The Golden Palominos.

In the first half of the show the Paliminos played mostly unreleased material, sung by singer Syd Straw, who has a really great voice, and Peter Blegved, best known for his work with the Art Bears: Chris Cutler, Fred Frith, and Dagmar Krause. Straw opened with "(Kind of) True" and then after one more song Blegved took the lead on vocals. He sang a few songs about torrid break-ups (the man who tore his face off) and a song called "Naked Shakespeare," as well as a great cover of the Moby Grape's "Omaha."

After about seven songs, Jack Bruce (Cream) came on and played bass behind Straw, replacing Chris Stamey who moved over to guitar (making three guitarists), as the band played the Palominos most played song on WMUA, "Boy (Go)," now sung by Straw instead of Stipe; and not at all to the songs detriment. What a great rhythm section. Between Bruce, who actually played the lead, on bass, and Blegved, Stamey, and lead guitarist Jody Harris, plus the Deep Purple organ of Bernie Worrel (Parliament/Funkidelic, Talking Heads) pumping in the back round, talking about driving sound. Fier has this system of drumming which is very simple and yet very powerful; he plays the beat straight on and strong.

Bruce led the band through "Clustering Train" and about 10 other songs. The band played for about two hours altogether. The highlight of the show was another train song (you have to respect a group that plays lots of train songs), "Silver Bullet" which Bruce sang and played harmonica on. Bruce who when he moans holds head up high and looks up into his head, would sing a verse, then toot on the harmonica, he was really something to watch. Backed by Syd Straw they were a pretty unbeatable team.

For the last song the Palominos played "Deserted Cities of the Heart," the old Cream song. The song summarized in a nut shell what was right and wrong with the band. When Bruce was singing they were great but as soon as he was finished there would be a slight pause, because Anton Fier's heroes are Bonzo and Jim Gordon, not Ginger Baker, so while his drumming is really tight he doesn't play with enough noise to fill the vacuum. The other problem was that Jody Harris' lead guitar was so distorted in the Student Union Ballroom that it just got lost and you just couldn't here it most of the time.

But the Golden Palominos could really play as demonstrated by their second encore, Led Zepplin's "Misty Mountain Hop" sung by Syd Straw almost better than Mr. Plant himself. The band went out with a bang. Straw reading the lyrics out of a small book, drums and rhythm banging away. They rocked out...and it was good.

The warm-up band, The Epidemics, were terrible. Supposedly also a superstar group, guitarist Steve Vai didn't show, bassist Percy Jones got lost in the mix, and both violinist Shankar and the drummer played their violin and drums like they wanted to sound like synthesizers. Why bother? They sounded like a bad Asia, a waste of the audience's time.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton
Syd Shaws lead the Golden Palominos for half of the band's Thursday night performance in the Student Union Ballroom.

where are you headed for
Spring Break?
Don't be headed for Skin Cancer
- for more information about cancer prevention, stop by our table in the Campus Center.
- Tuesday March 11th.

This message is brought to you by the Peer Health Promotion Program [Public Health 216.] It's a course!

AMHERST CINEMA
Monday - Tuesday
Man in the White Suit 7:30
Lavender Hill Mob 9;00
Double Feature $3.00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
TONIGHT
BILL CRATTY DANCE THEATRE
Monday, March 10, 8pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets $12.50

UPC presents
Wednesday April 16th Fine Arts Center
Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public
at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

B.B. King and Lucille insured audience's fun

By WILLIAM SPAIN
Collegian Staff

From time to time, the Valley music vacuum is temporarily filled in by a visit from a master of the blues. Friday night was one such refreshing occasion as B.B. King and his guitar Lucille blew into Springfield for a two-hour set at Symphony Hall.

Friendly and unflappable, B.B. King has the distinction of being about the most popularly successful blues artist alive today. This is probably due, at least in part, to his unique ability to make the transition from bar to concert hall without sacrificing any of the feeling that the blues is all about. An accomplished showman as well as a fantastic picker, he loses nothing when playing to audiences of several thousand.

Most blues call for a small place where you can get up and jump around a little bit. Although B.B. King delivers some of the same shoulder-shakin', foot-stompin', face wipin' music I am so partial to, the instrumentals have a refinement that makes it fine to just sit and listen. He brings everything together like no one else can.

Doubly pleasing is the fact that he has a wonderful stage presence but is by no means an attention hog. B.B. may be the big man in front but he seems to enjoy giving all the band members a chance to show off their considerable individual talents. Nephew Walter King must have made him a proud uncle indeed with his contribution of a hot tenor saxophone solo early in the set. Everyone got an opportunity to take the limelight as B.B. just hung back and smiled.

A most prolific musician, B.B. King has fifty albums under his belt. Go hear this man from the Mississippi Delta rhythm and blues gold mine if you ever get a chance. By playing with his audience as much as he plays to them, he insures that everyone has as much fun as he does.

Opening the show were the Shaboo All-Stars. The promoters would have been hard-pressed to find a worse band for the job. Their Wonder Bread versions of classic blues tunes and characterless original material soon had me wishing I had come late. Joining them to pose for pictures and provide sadly unintentional comic relief was James Montgomery.

Oh, well. They were easy to forget once the main man took over the evening.

Windham Hill Records recording artist Michael Hedges will be performing two shows at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Wednesday at the Iron Horse.

B.B. King

Foolish actors and cliches make Runaway a comedy

By JOE SHARTRAND
Collegian Staff

Runaway Train
Starring Jon Voight, Rebecca De Morney and Eric Roberts

Runaway Train cannot be taken seriously as an action-adventure film. The performers ham it up whenever possible, making the characters into caricatures. The dialogue is composed of cliches and excruciatingly witless remarks that it's impossible to take anything seriously.

In an Alaskan Maximum Security Prison, Manny (Jon Voight) is being released into the general prison population. He was welded into his cell, because of numerous prison escapes. After he is released, and after a few gory fight scenes, Manny and Buck (Eric Roberts) easily escape into the Alaskan wilderness. They accidentally hop a runaway train and end up on a one-way trip to disaster. This material could have been exciting, especially with the beautiful Alaskan scenery, but, unfortunately, there is no action. Instead, the film highlights the foolish antics of Jon Voight, Rebecca De Mornay, and Eric Roberts, who should immeditaely return to acting school.

Jon Voight is the worse ham of the bunch. He carries on like the prison idiot with a phony Brooklyn accent; he's constantly hopping from place to place, bulging his eyes, and screaming platitudes to friends. Here are a few of those wise words: "You do what you hafta do. I do what I hafta do," "Dreaming! (spits liberally) Dreaming! That's bullshit! You're gonna get a job dishwashing. That's gold." When the warden

continued on page 12

SPORT Style
GEAR
Heavy Weight Sweatshirt
$17.95
Inset "V" Inset on Sleeve
UMASS
Located in the Campus Center
M-F 9-5
Sat 10-3
UNIVERSITY STORE

MAKE YOUR MOTHER PROUD!
VOTE TODAY!
SGA President & Trustee, Senate, BOG, Residential Committee & Commuter Area Spokesperson
Monday & Tuesday
March 10th & 11th
in the Hatch, all D.C.'s the Newman Center and the New Africa House
VOTE TODAY!

★ Train

continued from page 11

calls him an animal, he says, "No! Worse!—I'm a human." These lines hardly induce the response that the filmmaker had intended. The audience is not supposed to laugh whenever the main character opens his mouth, but with Voight, this is exactly what happens.

The warden is the funniest character by far. He's also supposed to be the villain. Here are some of his infamous lines: "God don't kill him (Manny), let me do it." (said while glancing heavenward). "First comes God, then comes the warden, then the guards, then the dogs, then you (the prisoners). You pieces of human waste." Besides snarling these idiotic words, he also does some unusual things. For example, he washes a computer operator's hair in a urine-filled toilet bowl. This was done because the computer operator had been rude.

The rest of the characters and scenes are just as dumb as Manny and the warden. The director wanted to make an up-lifting, exciting, intelligent adventure flick, but instead, he made an unintentional comedy. Runaway Train is only enjoyable if you like your comedy really silly.

AP photo

Yoko Ono will play the Orpheum Theatre in Boston on April 4th as part of a 10-week world tour.

arts jump with the Collegian

UMass Springbreak Party 86!

SPRING BREAK PARTY

March 15-22

FT. LAUDERDALE

Includes: 7 Nights Lodging, 8 Beach Days

Dates: Check in any Saturday, Check out the following Saturday

- Swimming pools
- Patio bars
- Restaurants
- Special LUV Happy Hour Prices
- Bonfire School Party
- LUV activities day at Pearce's
- LUV Pool Party
- Ft. Lauderdale Party Guide
- LUV Club membership
- Our professional staff
- Lodging gratuities

quad occupancy

Lauderdale Beach Hotel

$189.00 per "The Strip"

Don't trust your fun in the sun to those that play in the snow!

Ft. Lauderdale is below the front line in Sunny Southern Florida!

Party motor coach with TV, VCR and stereo
Bus Only $125.00

Contact: Mark Reardon 549-6173, John Fraser 549-6403, Ken Barnet 549-1749, Grad Rosenbaum 549-6850, Frank Shields 549-6850

YOUR LOCAL LUV REPRESENTATIVE

LUV Tours

Hotel in Daytona $119; Bus Only $105
Killington VT hotel & Lifts $163

Quality Computer Paper for Resumes, Letters & Papers! at

A·J·Hastings, Inc.

Newsdealer and Stationer

"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst"
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays, 5 a.m. to 1 p.m.

THE BLACK SHEEP

Deli & Bakery

79 MAIN STREET • AMHERST, MA 01002 • 253-3442

Hours: Mon.-Sat. 9-6, Sun. 9-1

Across from Plumbleys

Soup • Bialys • Smoked Turkey • Rye • Kosher • Chocolates • Fresh Baked • Breads • Gruyere • Cheddar Jalapeno Soup • Lox • Potato • Bialys • Chili • Mousse • Cake • Corned Beef • Carrot Shop • Greek Rice • Salad • Croissants • NY Deli Rye • Kosher

Lunch with a difference!
N.Y. Style Sandwiches
Homemade Soups, Salads
Breads and Desserts

SPORT Style

¾ Sleeve Mesh "Beach Cover-up" $13.95 assorted

Located in The Campus Center

M-F 9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

founded 1870

Circulation 19,000

Serving the Five College Area

Executive Board

Editor in Chief
Dode B. Levenson

Managing Editor Ian Polumbaum
Editorial Editor Larry Bouchie
Production Managers Peter Soderberg, Conor Plunkett
Business Managers Sherry Sharfman, Elizabeth Young

Business Board

Asst. Business Manager Steve Rubin
Advertising Manager Paul Lesser
Finance Manager Vanessa Roth
Asst. Advertising Mgr. Melissa Forman
Asst. Finance Mgr. Kim Jackson
Circulation Manager Craig Naugle
Subscription Manager Karen Holland

Associate News Editors Jeanette DeForge, Patrick Johnson, Nancy Klingener Associate Editorial Editor Rob Skelton Associate Sports Editor John Nolan Associate Women's Issues Editor Ilana Levenson

Assistant to the Editors Anita L. Roye

Systems Manager Mathew Atkins Assistant Systems Manager Adam Lavine

Business Coordinator James Rstuben Senior Bookkeeper Maureen Magrowski Classified Manager Cathy Chilson Graphics Advisor Faye Whitney Lussier Assistant Subscription Manager Alan Wilcox Advertising Layout Noelle Merlino Marketing Ron Maggio, Randi Schey, Patrice Lawsky Office Assistant Sue Cirella Maintenance Dan Roth Advertising Representatives Nancy Warhafting, Jon Cohen, Michelle Montaigne, Maureen Crowly, Robin Engel, Stacy Wederlight, Jeff Hammond, Stephanie Zucker, Robyn Leifer, John Kennedy, Shawn Stepinate, Cory Wolan, Debbie Stein, Dan Spellberg Day Graphics Beth Bazinet, Amy Custance, Sue Lattanzi, Betty Ann Murphy, Jim Podesky, Kathy Wheeler, Sarah Cook, Andrew Myerson, Larissa Potapchuk, Jim Rice, Petra Phillip Librarian Tom Middleton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS permit No.58), a registered student organization at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, is published Monday through Friday excluding holidays, exams and vacation periods. Content is determined solely by the Collegian Board of Editors, without prior approval from University administrators, faculty, staff or student government. Operations are funded solely by advertising and subscription revenue. Subscriptions and advertising rates are available at 113 Campus Center, UMass-Amherst 01003, (413)545-3500.

DOONESBURY BY GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE BY GARY LARSON

Canine social blunders

FREAKER PATROL BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

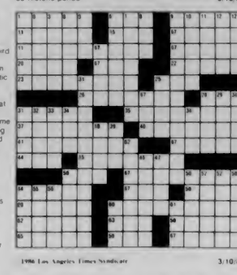
HOUSEMATES BY R.MILLER

GORDY BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Russian range
6 Bud's sibling
9 Devoutness
14 Ancient Ethiopian capital
15 Explosive abbr
16 Free
17 Get hot under the collar
19 Alpaca's relative
20 Part of a Szechuan meal
21 Lemon follower
22 Beam, of a sort
23 Theoretical
25 Church fixture
26 Garb for Mary Lou Retton
28 Mauna —
31 Bowler's score
35 Slump
37 Event on 34th Street?
40 Tiny bit
41 And so forth
43 Della of song
44 The moon — a ghostly galleon
Noyes
45 Understand
48 — the season
49 Thick-billed bird
54 Rice dish
57 Charged atom
58 Be enthusiastic
59 Excuse
60 Produced
62 Hurl with great speed
63 Exodus' name
64 Pastry topping
65 Old-fashioned
66 Medal: Abbr
67 Difficult to penetrate

DOWN
1 Shadow
2 Archeologist's find
3 Palm tree genus
4 Mooed
5 Red: White or blue
6 Kind of couch
7 Entomologist's concern
8 Sault — Marie
9 Used influence
10 Relative of a sort
11 Timetable abbrs
12 Father —
13 1776 or 1812
18 Renown
24 Thrilled
25 School event
27 Pacino and others
28 Theater section
29 Is indebted
30 Shakespeare's wife
31 Small merganser
32 Bread choice
33 Moves in a curved course
34 "Norma —": Sally Field film
36 ETO head
38 Wine sediment
39 Historic period
42 Charles Boyer classic 1938
46 Sarcastic
47 Kind of defense in sports
48 Under the — (covertly)
50 Prop up
51 Dine at home
52 Plant of the rose family
53 Light anchor
54 Buddy, out West
55 Hip bones
58 Boost
60 Gallivant
61 Get — of

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

3/10/86

1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/10/87

Menu

LUNCH

Deli Ham on Water Roll
Turkey Divan

BASICS LUNCH

Swiss and Sprout Sandwich
Turkey Divan

DINNER

Roast Pork/Gravy,
Spiced Apples
Braised Beef and Onions
Silver Palate Salad Plate

BASICS DINNER

Chili Relleno Casserole
Baked Cod with Lemon Wedge

Collegian staff & Correspondents

WORKSHOP:
The Art of Interviewing

Journalism Professor FRANK FAULKNER

Tomorrow 7:30 p.m. CC 902

WEATHER

Today: Cloudy with a chance of rain or drizzle, high in the 30s.

Tonight: Cloudy with periods of rain. Temperatures rising through the 40s.

Tomorrow: Cloudy with a chance of showers, high 45 to 50.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor.....John Yonce
Copy Editor.....Lisa DiMeo
Layout.....Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician.....Brian Guarnotta
Production Supervisor.....Peter Soderberg
Production.....Nancy Klingener, Laura Bell, Jen Coles, Petra Philipp, Jim Podesky

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

DENISE FORBES
FOR STUDENT TRUSTEE
MARCH 10, 11

FOR RENT
2 bedroom apt, heat & hot water
short term lease
discounted rent to $450 due to mid-season opening, on bus rte
South Amherst 256-8534

Professional Consultation & Style Haircut ONLY $10.00
with Shampoo & Blowdry $12.50
Featuring:
Design Perming
Dimensional Highlighting
Deep Reconditioning
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive,
Amherst, 549-5610
expires March 14, 1986

WANT FREE ROOM & BOARD AND $$ TOO?
BUTTERFIELD KITCHEN
is now accepting applications for the position of
ASSISTANT MANAGER
for the 1986-87 academic year.
Valuable experience.
Applications available in Butterfield Kitchen Office
Application Deadline: 5 PM March 24.

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!
Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper
Wickles FinePrint
1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148
Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON
NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM
Engaged?
then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau
Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories
20% off
your entire
WEDDING ORDER
Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories
Hundreds to Choose From!
AMHERST STORE ONLY
WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
One coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons.

CLASSICAL JAZZ REGGAE BLUES
#1 IN THE VALLEY!
DYNAMITE RECORDS
New - Used - Buy - Sell 584-1580
Maxell XLII90 - 2.00/case
TDK SA90 - 2.00 ea
Warehouse Clearance Sale in progress
THORNES MARKETPLACE
150 MAIN ST NORTHAMPTON
ROCK FOLK JAZZ SOUL CLASSICAL

SAVE UP TO $50 EVERY RING ON SALE
Now's a great time to buy an ArtCarved college ring and save up to $50
Let your ArtCarved representative show you our incredible selection of Siladium® and 10 or 14 karat gold college ring styles
Every ArtCarved ring is backed by a full Lifetime Warranty
ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS
UNIVERSITY STORE
March 10 -12 10 - 4
DATE TIME PLACE
Deposit Required
© 1985 ArtCarved Class Rings
ASK ABOUT OUR EASY PAYMENT PLANS $

Share the health
GIVE BLOOD
American Red Cross
Blood Services –
Northeast Region

HOUSING EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS

Frosh, sophomores and Stockbridge students who wish to live off-campus for the Fall Semester 1986 should apply for an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation. Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, Room 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than Friday, March 28, 1986. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore.

Important Notes: Please Read Carefully

 Signing a lease is not valid grounds for receiving an exemption from the on-campus housing requirement. DO NOT SIGN A LEASE UNLESS YOU HAVE RECEIVED AN EXEMPTION. Any student who signs a lease without prior approval from the Housing Assignment Office is responsible for all on-campus fees and will be required to reside on-campus.

Students who are granted an exemption from the on-campus housing regulation will lose their housing assignment for the Fall 1986 Semester on the last day of this semester, unless prior arrangements are made with the Housing Assignment Office. Thank you.

Get A Midas Travel Mug That Makes Free Trips To Burger King® Restaurants For Coffee.
Just pick up your free non-spill travel mug at Midas with any free brake inspection. Bring your mug to Burger King® Restaurants for free coffee in the mornings and it'll be bottomless until March 31st. So hurry, because these mugs are sure to run out before the coffee does.*
*Free coffee available only during breakfast hours 6:30 AM to 10:30 AM. Offer good with Midas mug only at participating New England Burger King® Restaurants. While mug supplies last. Valid through March 31, 1986. Valuable discount coupons on Midas services are also available at Burger King® Restaurants.
BURGER KING
MIDAS TRUST THE MIDAS TOUCH.
397 Russell Street, Rt 9
Hadley 413-586-9991
Northampton
temporarily closed

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Hagler fights Mugabi tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Marvelous Marvin Hagler, who calls himself a man on a mission, will defend the world middleweight championship tonight against unbeaten John "The Beast" Mugabi.

Hagler is a solid favorite to move a step closer to completing his mission: breaking Carlos Monzon's record of 14 successful middleweight title defenses.

It will be Hagler's 12th defense of the undisputed title he won when he stopped Alan Minter in three rounds on Sept. 27, 1980 in London.

A victory for Hagler could also set up a rematch with Thomas Hearns, who will fight on the card against undefeated James Shuler.

Hagler scored a spectacular third-round knockout of Hearns here last April 15.

Should both Hagler and Hearns win, they will fight again in September, promoter Bob Arum said. The rematch was scheduled for June, but Arum said, "Hagler doesn't want to fight again as early as June."

"I'm going to knock him out," said Mugabi, a 26-year old Ugandan who has won all 26 of his pro-fights by knockout.

But in Hagler, Mugabi will face a man who shook off several crushing rights by the powerful Hearns. Mugabi, on the other hands, has fought mostly junior middleweights with little of the power Hagler has.

"I realize Mugabi has a dream," said Hagler. "But nobody is going to take anything any from me bec..use I've worked so hard to get where I am."

7th Annual Getaway Sale!
STARTS WEDNESDAY
March 5 thru 14
TANK TOPS. . .
100% cotton knit tops in 12 terrific colors. . . reg. 6.95
Now 4.95
SWIM-WEAR. . .
20% OFF
SUN-GLASSES. . .
Fashion styles & colors reg. 5.95
Now 2.95
SPRING HATS, CAPS, VISORS, STRAW HATS. . .
25% OFF
TRADITIONAL MEXICAN SUNDRESSES. . .
100% cotton white and colors with multi color hand embroidery reg. *28.95
Now 18.95 *Nationally Advertised to 60.00
Club usa BAGS. . .
Totes, Daypacks, Sport Duffle
20% OFF
. . .AND CALIFORNIA BEACH TOWELS, BEACH BALLS, CARRY ALLS, BEACH MATS. . .
Downtown Amherst
Daily 10-6, Fri-9 Sun. 12-5
FAGS

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon Thurs, 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

UPC General Meeting Tuesday, 3/11 at 6:30 in 101 CC. Find out about nominations & upcoming event. New members always welcome!!

"A Mediation Seminar for Social Activists" 3/10 7:30 pm , CC803, by Bada Dahyaneshananda, yogic monk & relief worker in the Carribean

J.H. Matthews - painting, poetry, and surrealism's "Underlying Ambition" Tues. March 11 8:00 pm CC 168C all welcome! Sponsored by Comparative Literature

AUDIO

Brand new stereo components at real low prices. 546-9158, leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

78 Mustang Hatchback low mile, new tires $400 or BO 323-7412 after 3:30

Honda Accord, must sell this week $1500 or BO call 253-5693

72 Ford Mustang w/o engine body in excellent shape no rust new exhaust, suspension & brakes BO call 549-6633

1981 Ford Escort GLX wagon good condition, runs well $2200 546-5701

1978 Gremlin new muffler & tires 56,000 original mileage $600. 532-4425

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext 5031-A

BED & BREAKFAST

Parents Visiting? AMITY HOUSE is a cozy, convenient alternative for non-smokers in the heart of town. B & B for 2, $45.00 UMass Discount $5.00 call 549-6446

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7436

CAPE COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6165

CHERYL GREHOSKI

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to a very special person! Hope you have a great day you deserve it! Love, Christine

DAYTONA SPRING BREAK '86

Rooms still available at Penrod's Plaza Hotel in Daytona Beach for $29.00 per person, per night, quad occupancy. The action is at Penrod's Plaza Hotel this Spring Break! Call 1-800-53-Beach for reservations

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste call Chris 256-6843

Rack-A-Disc Entertainment Disc-jockeys, light shows, large screen video shows, call 549-7144 24 hrs

FOOD DEMONSTRATORS

Are you energetic and friendly with a knowledge of natural foods? Would you like to give out food samples and provide information and answer questions? Would you like to work on Fridays and Saturdays in the Pioneer Valley area for $5.00/hour plus 18 cents/mile for the use of your car? If so, apply TOMSUN, 305 Wells St Greenfield, MA

FOR RENT

Amherst rooms available immediately also summer sublet/fall option rooms Roy 256-0226, eves 549-6746

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2234 or 665-7106

Male or female to rent room in duplex house. $165/mo Plus on bus route. Call immed. Ken 549-4932

Across the street! Sublet small bedroom in large house. Female only, no pets, no smokers. $180/month through 8/31. $180 plus utilities. 549-6922

FOR SALE

Guitar Electric electric six-string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6489

1981 Chevrolet Chevette good condition snowtires automatic airconditon radio 2,500 best offer call 584-5279

Rossignol 190's exc cond Salomon bindings and poles must sell Bo call 549-0462 ask for Noelle

JVC boom-box: autoreverse, eq. short-wave, very good sound. $150 or BO 549-9251 (keep trying)

Ski Bindings brand new Geze 930 $75 or best offer 549-7875

Smith-Corona Electric Typewriter call 256-0625 (Kathy) after five

Canon Camera Set: A-1 50/1.4, 28/2.8, 70-210/4, 250A, new motor drive MA/BP, new silk 1:212, many extras, all in excellent condition $750 or BO 665-8261

FOUND

Women's Watch in Franklin Munchy's call Chris at 546-7698 to identify

Watch in front of Chemoweth Lab call to identify 549-2877 Jake

HELP WANTED

Summer Jobs in Alaska Good money Many opportunities! Employer listings, 1986 Summer Employment Guide. $5.95 Alaseo, Box 30752, Seattle, WA 98103

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Activist Summer Jobs for environmental activists. Fight the New Right and corporate injustice. Make money, make friends, and make a difference We'll train you now for a full time position this summer. Call Clean Water Action Project 549-7450

Butterfield Kitchen is now accepting applications for the position of Asst. Manager for the 86-87 academic year. Position offers free room and board. Valuable experience. Applications available in the Butterfield Kitchen Office. Application deadline 5:00 PM March 24

TELEMARKETERS WANTED $5.10/hr flexible hours call Mr Kitchen 586-7450

Person to help with sales at table in Campus Center must be available 8:30 am to 10:30 am experience preferred call Josh 549-3754

HEY ELLY ERUBE!

Have a great Birthday! Luv, Athy Elley

INSTRUCTION

Private Guitar Lessons Experienced and patient teacher Rock/Pop/Folk/Blues Reading Improv Theory Comp. $12/hr Doug 549-4796

Stage Combat Workshop - ideal for the actor & non-actor alike. Basic hand-to-hand & beginning sword-play. Call for information 549-2968

LOST

Bracelet silver-tone, 1" wide with engraved flower design $ reward $ very important to me! 6-7106

Reward lost during last 2 or 3 weeks York highschool ring and car key on Yukon Jack keyring 256-1232

Pair of glasses, gray case lost on 3-4 please call Leanne 546-5484

ORCHARD HILL

VOTE Joe Casali "The Voice of the Hill." R.H.G. elections March 10 & 11

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 26th May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0965

George Parkhurst I heard you got my number so why don't you call Melanie

Susan, Your eyes are gorgeous! Give me a smile and I'm yours Romeo

We grind on request get your fresh ground and whole bean coffee at the People's Market lots of great flavors at low prices

Rick McKelvey Let's get together Lisa 549-3817

To the Paul in my Psych class last semester who called me two weekends ago. Sorry I wasn't home. Please call again. Erin

Help! I'm all alone down here! Save me from having to talk back to the Editwriter Flexible hours call Mr Kitchen 586-7450

Laurie Happy Birthday baby! Hope this is your happiest ever! Just think. . .next week at this time . . .Florida! I love you. Scott

Martha Capers – Happy 21st Birthday! Love Laura

To all my pals involved with the Chinese ordea. Well nite I love you and you too Tomata love the Lady of the Streets

Jeff I still love your eyes

Please help I'm sooo restless
Vote John McGuiness for BOG
March 10 and 11
and make it my election day

Karen, To the best friend ever Happy Birthday love Susan

Denise Forbes for Student Trustee Vote Today!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

R.A. INFORMATION SESSIONS

Tonight and every night through Wednesday there will be R.A. Information Sessions around campus Tonight's will be in the Patterson classroom in Southwest at 7:30; and Baker classroom in Central at 8:00. Watch for the one nearest you! You must attend an information session in order to apply

REWARD

Lost - gold earring sentimental value! Please call Dawn 549-7454/ 3-4366

REWARD $200

George Parkhurst I heard you got my number so why don't you call Melanie

RIDE WANTED

Desperate for a ride to and from Chicago over Spring Break!!! Call Jeff 549-2808

RIDERS WANTED

Room for two in car to Lauderdale call Rob, Dave 256-6059

ROOMMATE WANTED

One male nonsmoking for 2 bedroom townhouse apt for fall semester Jay 546-9809

Male housemates wanted to share house in Hyannis, Cape Cod for summer. Call 546-1206

Female to share room in Brandywine immediate opening $145 mo call Susan 549-0486

One room in 3 bedroom Northampton Apt 5 min walk to town, 150 plus call 584-7111

To take over lease. House in Amherst, on bus route $125, female, nonsmoking. Chris or Meg 253-9692

1 room in 5 bedroom house 1/5 from campus on burnouts available immediately call after five 256-6228

Need roommates for summer on cape Cod call now 546-4717

SACRIFICE!

Sacrifice! 2-bedroom Sunderland. First, last, security free! References required 665-4864

SERVICES

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Call anytime, 665-7652

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Tired of the D.C.? There is an alternative

Trade in your 114 19 meal plan for Butterfield Meal Plan. For more info contact Paul, Bill or Elizabeth in the Butterfield Kitchen Office

Light Moving with Toyota Truck call 549-2049

SUMMER HELP WANTED

Plan an excellent summer in the Berkshires now. Camp Becket is looking for an assistant Waterfront Director. You must be 21 years old and have your WSI. It will be a rewarding experience with extraordinary people. Call Peter at 256-1203 before Spring Break

TO SUBLET

Sublet 2 bedroom apt in Sunderland. On bus route Only 15 minutes to UMass $375 starting April 1. 665-8415

TRAVEL

Last chance for Spring Break with Luv Tours. Motel 11/8 Daytona has $105, hotel in Fort Lauderdale $108 bus 125$ call Mark 549-6173, Ken 549-1749, Grad 549-0650, John 549-6403

VOTE * VOTE * VOTE * VOTE

Vote today for your Trustee and President, BOG, Senate seats, Residential Committee and Commuter Area Spokesperson in all D.C.'s, the Hatch
Newman Center, and New Africa House. Let's hear your voice!

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Diantha collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

Wanted 2 Head tix for April 4 at Hitfl call mark 6-8710

WANTED TO RENT

$100 reward to take over lease for 2 bedroom Brandywine apt in May call Mark 6-8710 or Dave 6-5079

Yo Seniors! We are looking to take over a Brandywine 1986 lease. $200 cash for your invaluable aid. 546-9810 546-1451

We'll pay $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. call 546-9865

WE NEED L.A.

Two round trip tickets to L.A. needed call Pete or Bob 6-8082

SPORTS

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

University of Massachusetts senior Sue Allen flies through the air at the Boyden Gymnastics Center on Saturday. The Minutemen defeated the University of New Hampshire in their final meet of the season.

Seniors lead gymnasts past Wildcats

Women win by 0.6

BY MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

What better way to end a season, or for that matter a career.

Outgoing seniors Sue Allen and Tricia Harrity finished first and second respectively, in the all-around to pace the University of Massachussetts women's gymnastics team to a tight 169.65-169.05 victory over the University of New Hampshire on Saturday at the Boyden Gymnastics Center.

The Minutewomen, who finished the season at 6-7, will participate in the ECAC championships next Sunday at UNH.

For UMass, it is their fifth meet of the season that has been decided by less than one point. Of the five, the Minutewomen have won two.

"I'm very pleased," said UMass coach Chuck Shiebler. "This was our most significant meet of the season. All the girls put in a good effort and Sue, Tricia and Chris (Cloutier) all did exceptionally well in their final meet."

Allen, who was high scorer for both teams in the vault with an 8.85, was also pleased with the outcome of the meet and the way she finished her college gymnastics career.

"I'm so psyched," said Allen. "The team did well, I had my best meet ever and we beat UNH for the first time in my career. It feels great."

The key to the victory for the Minutewomen, the first over UNH in five years, was the team's overall performance on the balance beam, where they outscored UNH 40.8 to 39.1 and erased a 1.05 lead that the Wildcats had built through the first two events. Harrity led all scorers on the beam with an 8.85 and finished the meet with a 32.45. Allen was close behind with an 8.75 and ended the day with a 35.35.

"We had our best meet," said Harrity. "All the seniors did well. I'm very happy with what we did today."

Cloutier, the other senior, scored an 8.65 in the floor exercise, her only event.

"I think Sue had her best meet since I've been here," said Schiebler. "Tricia has comeback from her twisted ankle and Chris has fought off her injuries. I think they all did very well."

Allen and Harrity also made their presence felt in the floor exercise, where they posted a 9.0 and 8.65, respectively. Lisa Tokarek contributed an 8.9 in that event.

For the Wilcats, Patty Converse was high scorer with a 34.1 overall and placed first on the uneven bars with an 8.95. She also received the highest individual score of the day, a 9.05 in the floor exercise.

Michelle Sawyer finished second for UNH with a 33.95. "We had a terrible meet," said UNH coach Gail Goodspeed. "We did well in the vaulting and bars but lacked intensity in the beam and floor exercise. This was our worst meet of the season."

The Wildcats performed without the services of Tammy Hagar, their top all-around performer, who they chose to pull out and save for the ECAC's.

For Shiebler, who was an assistant coach at UNH before coming to UMass, the victory was a mixed blessing.

"We were the underdogs by far," said Shiebler. "And I'm pleased and proud to beat them. But I also have mixed emotions. I know many of the girls on UNH and I was rooting for them, too. But I'm definitely more happy that we won."

Anne DiTunno finished third for the Minutewomen and tied for fifth overall with UNH's Peggy Donovan.

"We'll definitely miss the seniors," said Sheibler. "But we're a young team. I'm already looking forward to next year and I think we'll do even better."

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Here, Allen executes her routine on the balance beam. The tri-captain won the all-around competition with a 35-32 score. The Minutemen will next be in action on Saturday in the ECAC Championships.

Minutemen take 7th in EIGL's

The University of Massachusetts men's gymnastics team took seventh out of eight teams at the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League championships at Southern Connecticut this weekend.

The Minutemen trailed Temple (the champion with 269 points), Navy, Southern Connecticut, Army, Springfield and East Stroudsberg. Umass beat only Syracuse.

Sophomore Jay Ronayne was eighth in the floor exercise for Umass with an 8.8.

"He was fantastic," said UMass coach Roy Johnson.

Sophomore Roberto Weil was 15th in the all around with a 51.25, his second best score of the season.

"We did excellent on the floor, the rings, the horizontal bars and the vaulting," said Johnson. "We had real problems on the horse and the parallel bars."

"I'm satisfied," continued the coach. "We worked real hard.

"No one is gone next season. We're starting now for next year," said Johnson.

"I'm optimistic, I hope to get some good recruits."

Coming this week: Spring previews

Coming up this week in the sports pages of the Collegian will be previews of the University of Massachusetts spring sports teams.

The men's baseball, men's lacrosse, women's lacrosse and women's softball teams will be looked at in-depth by the beat reporters assigned to the sports.

As far as schedules go, the women's softball team is the first UM team to play this spring, opening up on Friday in the South Florida tournament.

The baseball team starts on Saturday against Yale with a doubleheader down in Florida. Men's lacrosse starts a week from today at Air Force. Women's lax opens up last among the major sports, facing Boston University at home on March 28.

NUMMO NEWS

Connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution. A weekly Black news service publication

Volume 15 Issue 2 Monday, March 10, 1986

Concerned students gather after the meeting to plan continued budget strategies.

Senate Meeting Enters Heated Budgets Discussion

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

Wednesday's student senate meeting was the forum for one of the most heated discussions concerning Registered Student Organization (RSO) funding, in years. Along with the budget proposal, three budget amendments were also heavily debated. The meeting adjourned after quarum was called.

Rochelle Seargent, a first year student said "What happened tonight showed an excellent display of organization and if this is what it takes for the progressive senate to realize that something is wrong within the senate, then the display is justified."

Chairman of the budget committee, Jordon Rosner said, "What John Ruddock did tonight (calling quarum, then adjourning) ...as speaker of the house has set back every stride for student's rights since the University's inception."

The question of whether or not Drum magazine is a class was debated for more than an hour. If Drum magazine is a class, then it violates SGA by-laws. There was doubt amidst the assembly as to Drum's status because the representatives of Drum were confusing in their defense.

Members of the budget committee looked for a course description book in their defense. Mark Johnson, a committee member, went to the microphone and read "Afro-Am 217, Contemporary Black Image Making, schedule number 024419, meets Tuesday and Thursday 19:00-21:30. Design, layout, and production of a magazine."

Assistant director of CCEBMS, Rick Townes, addressed the audience explaining that the course is structured to teach.

John Ruddock felt that he did the right thing, saying, "There weren't enough bodies present to vote on the agenda, therefore official business cannot take place."

Rosner pointed out that when the professor of the class, Nelson Stevens, submitted his budget request, one of the main objectives was to print articles from the "class." Speaker of the Senate, John Ruddock was asked to step down, because of the assembly's uncontrollable actions. Ruddock responded "No."

When asked, many students agreed that Drum magazine was excellent, but still felt that it should not nave been funded, because the organization can get funding from academic organizations on campus. Senator M. Lynn Murphy was asked if the magazine was funded for eight years without the previous committees noticing that the organization violated SGA by-laws? "Yes," Murphy responded, "But it should not have gone on, we must follow the by-laws straight by the book; we noticed the error and corrected it immediately." The committee also took into consideration that the last publication was in 1984. "This is not to mention that it is now 1986 and the monies for Drum have been tied up for years."

Spectrum magazine then spoke in defense of its need for funding. The organization was represented by its managing editor, Monique Vazquez. Some of the SGA senators walked out of the meeting, and some joined with members of the assembly chanting "United, we'll never be defeated." They then went on saying "Drum, Drum."

A senator shouted, "See how they get when they don't get their way." Another shouted, "After Drum, what do you want?" The response was "After Drum, we want JUSTICE."

The advisor to Drum magazine, Nelson Stevens said that he had no doubt Drum would be funded because, "Unless they decide to uphold mediocrity and put down excellence, Drum will be produced."

DuBois Goes to Ghana for Dedication

David G. DuBois, visiting lecturer in Journalism and Afro-American Studies, will travel to the West African nation of Ghana during the spring break to participate in planning dedication ceremonies to be held in August for a national monument and shrine in honor of his father, Dr. W.E.B. DuBois, who died in Ghana in 1963, and is buried there.

Dr.DuBois was born in Great Barrington, MA, and the UMass Department of Afro-American Studies is named in his honor. He was a founder of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a scholar, civil rights activist, and on the African continent widely known as the "Father of Pan Africanism". His vast collection of important papers were acquired by UMass in 1973, and are currently housed in the Tower library.

Last June, Ghana Head of State Flt. Lt. J.J.Rawlings officially opened the W.E.B. DuBois Memorial Center, housed at the home in which Dr. DuBois and his wife, Shirley Graham DuBois lived during their stay in Ghana. At that time Rawlings announced that the Ministry of Culture and Tourism had been instructed by the government "to take the necessary formal steps for the house to be declared a national monument."

The government of Ghana has also proposed moving the remains of Dr. and Mrs. DuBois from their present location to the grounds of their former residence, and the raising of the shrine to be formally dedicated on August 29, 1986, the 23rd anniversary of Dr. DuBois' death.

Prof. DuBois is going to Ghana to personally submit his approval of the proposed relocation of the remains of his parents and to consult with the Ministry of Culture and Tourism on plans for the DuBois Memorial Center and the dedication activities.

Shirley Graham DuBois, who was a visiting professor of Afro-American literature at UMass from 1974 to 1976, was an author, playright, composer and civil rights activist. She remained in Ghana after the death of her husband, as director of Ghana Television, until the coup d'etat that overthrew the government of Dr. Kwame Nkrumah in 1966.

She then joined her son, David DuBois in Cairo, Egypt where he lives. She died in the People's Republic of China in 1977, and her remains were taken to Ghana by Prof. DuBois to fulfill her last wish to be laid to rest beside her husband.

In his remarks at the official opening of the W.E.B. DuBois Memorial Center in June, Rawlings told the assembled dignitaries: "What is important to remember is that Dr. DuBois' influence on his contemporaries and the men and women of his time changed the course of history for the Black man, not only in his own birthplace in the United States, but also on the mother continent of Africa."

He added that the center "will become the rallying point where Black people from all over the world, and all those who have dedicated themselves to the cause of justice and the triumph of the human spirit will come to seek inspiration and guidance."

In addition to the proposed shrine, to which Ghanaians and visitors to Ghana from throughout the world will be invited to make pilgrimage, the center will provide research facilities for scholars, artists, scientist, youth and students of Ghana, Africa, Black America and the Carribean, in Pan African literature and Pan African culture.

David DuBois, visiting professor of Journalism and Afro-American Studies, will depart for Ghana to plan dedication ceremonies over Spring break.

The Contest is Success

by Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

Carla Tucker's impersonation of Jennifer Holiday's "And I Am Telling You," and Daryl Harrigan's rendition of Prince's "Let's Go Crazy" were the winners of Saturday night's lip-sinc contest.

Carla Tucker, winner by popular tie-breaking demand, of the $150.00 first prize, excited the audience with her soulful reenactment of Holiday. And those who attended the show won't forget that "She's not going nowhere."

Daryl Harrigan, the $75.00 second-prize winner amazed and excited everyone with his volatile performance of "Let's Go Crazy." The event was sponsored by the Iota Phi Theta Fraternity Incorporated. Partial proceeds will go to the Martin Luther King Center.

The proceeds from the post-contest party at Southwest's Hampden Southside will be donated to the John Wright Scholarship Fund.

The John Wright Scholarship Fund was founded in the Spring of '84 to commemorate the life of former UMass student, John Wright who drowned in Puffers Pond in the summer of '83, and also to aid incoming freshmen with their financial expenses. Wright was a former Nummo Photo Editor and track star.

Richard Harrigan, president of the Beta Beta chapter of Iota Phi Theta, said that the scholarship came out of the closeness between Wright and the fraternity brothers. "We appreciate John's accomplishments here at UMass. To me he set a tone in academics, he was a symbol of achievement and of success," said Harrigan.

The scholarship is for minority high school students with good academic background, who participate in extra-curricular activities and has performed a service

Continued on page 4

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

by Tracey Kemble
Nummo Staff

Students should present themselves as a new product and market themselves to the best of their ability, adviced Dr. Arthur Pell, a nationally known author, lecturer and consultant in human resource management. They should remember that they are not the only individuals who are looking for jobs, he said on Tuesday night in the Student Union Ballroom.

Pell said that there are certain techniques students should utilize when they are preparing themselves for an interview. "Students should try to learn as much as they can about their career, so they will know exactly what the job demands on a daily basis," Pell said. The experience that students will receive from their interviews will be valuable in the future.

"You will be one step ahead of the other students if you begin to make connections," said Pell. These contacts are called a network or networking, and they are made when you speak to people who are involved in your field. This is important because these individuals will remember you when you are pursuing a job.

"Students should keep a record of the people that have given them advice about job opportunities, that are available in their special field of interest," as a resource, he said. They will be able to ask these people if they know of anyone who is looking for a person with his/her background when the time comes to look for a job.

Pell stressed that "students should remember a key point: the only thing that is going to make their resumes different from the others is what they put down as their accomplishments." A resume should be used as a tool. "It should be a brief outline that includes what you have to offer. The accomplishments that you list will make you stand apart from the rest," he said.

Appearance is another factor that is important. Students should make sure they are dressed in the appropriate business attire when they go to their interviews.

Students should start to prepare themselves as soon as possible. The techniques they use will be an asset and therefore they will be one step ahead of the others in today's competitive job market.

Before you go into the room to be interviewed, remember to say to yourself, "I want this job."

Editorial

Vote Intelligently

There used to be a popular slogan, 'It doesn't matter who you vote for, as long as you vote.' Let's be accurate. If you separate the purpose of voting from it's function, then you nullify the process and waste your energy. If even one-third of the student body votes for just anybody, then there is a good chance just anybody will get elected. This does not necessarily represent the majority consensus and certainly does not represent the majority good.

Burgess and Murphy represent the majority good becaused they are consistently fighting for improvements and satisfaction for students. Some of the other candidates have clever and eloquent propaganda, yet actions speak louder than words.

If someone had video-taped the daily fourth floor process of the Student Union, the choice would be clear. The only two candidates you would see constantly walking up and down those hallways consulting with people, gathering information, writing proposals and making phone calls - basically, taking care of the work we elect them to do, would be Dani Burgess and Lynne Murphy.

They are also the most accessible for questioning or grievances from students about student government or policies. They will talk or listen to anyone, and you don't have to make four or five appointments.

They don't treat the student body as the enemy, agents of criticism, from whom things must be hid; unlike some of the candidates, who now claim to be the friend of Everystudent. How can they be our friend, particularly the Third World community's friend, when they distrust our questions and don't inspire trust.

Encumbent student trustee, Dani Burgess and presidential hoepful, Lynne Murphy.

This is not the case with Burgess and Murphy, who have consistently brought the issues to the general student body. It seems to me that many of the other candidates borrowed from Murphy and Burgess - their accomplishments and ideas, to complete their own candidacy image. Not only are Burgess and Murphy original, they're effective.

Don't just vote, vote intelligently, vote Murphy and Burgess. They've passed the test.

Black Women's Career Panel: Methods for Getting Ahead

by Tracey Bryant
Nummo Staff

The Greater Sprinfield XINU chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha (AKA) and the Everywoman's Center sponsored a panel discussion for Black women about career development. Designed to be instructional, inspirational and motivating, all four lecturers stressed the importance of choosing a career one really wants, and not limiting one's options.

Dr. Barbara Coulibaly was the first to speak. She has a B.A. and M.A. in Psychology, an M.A. in Education and a Ph.D in Psychological Education. Her first job was in early childhood education for the Nation Urban Leaugue and is now self-employed as a consultant, has a small private practice as a therapist and is trying her hand at real estate.

Coulibaly found that "a good strong degree in psychology will prepare you for a lot of things," and that teaching allows a lot of flexibility and time for mothering. "It is important to have as many options as you can," said Coulibaly. She advised going to workshops, meeting people and getting extra edcuation.

Coulibaly also believes, "You must do what you want to do," even though her friends in the corporate structure don't agree. She said that magazines counsel people to be aware of the job market -"what's out there," but citing the 70's when the market was filling up with teachers, but not all good." She tells her students, that if they really wnat to do something, to go ahead, "you'll be good at it." She also said that it's important to know what your strengths and weaknesses are, to be honest. "A good self-assessment is important to that overall process," she said.

Referring to her present experience, she said that she hasn't been as successful arranging her own career as she has preparing herself to be put into jobs. She said that self-employment does not provide good health insurance, but that she really likes the freedom, and the experience of being totally in control of her own career. She now has the freedom to take state and federal contracts to educationally test young children, does workshops on racism and sexism, among other topics, and works with various educational and psychological programs.

Dr. Ruth Bass Green, who now holds a B.A. in Music and an M.A. in Education decided very early in life that she wanted to work in early education. "I used to get off on teaching, but didn't know what kind of teacher I wanted to be," said Green, of her childhood role playing. Her mother was a music teacher and taught her early on. But her high school counselor told her that "teachers were a dime a dozen and that music teachers were everywhere," said Green. She believes if she hadn't followed his advice she'd be a musicologist today.

Green said that she has had a lot of role models and mentors, and believes this is beneficial for everyone. Her aunt advised her to go to a college, where she met her children's father "and fell madly in love - ending my college career," said Green. While raising a family and working part-time at clerical jobs, she fell asleep typing. She then realized that type of work was not for her and decided to resume her education.

This "interrupted my marriage," said Green, and a divorce soon followed. She got a job as a teacher in Headstart - a preschool program for economically disadvantaged children. She developed music programs to help the children develop theri language skills. Her creativity and enthusiasm was noticed by her supervisor, who asked her to teach other teachers what she was doing. She found working with adults, "the immediate feedback," very exciting and realized she needed more education, said Green.

When Green finished her doctorate in 1981, she found "It was one of the most anti-climatic experiences I've ever had." Green said that she thought when she got her doctorate the whole world would change. Offers did not begin pouring in, and she now believes it is because the Amherst area is flooded with doctorate degrees. She also said she felt a sense of mourning and restlessness after completing the degree. "I had devoted so much time to the doctorate program; when it was over I was lost," she said.

Of her career road, Green said, "It seems like I'd be on one path and then something would happen and lead me to another. I always had someone to recommend a job; I've never had to go out and really look for myself." She advised students to do what they want to do - "Don't let anyone change that. When you do what you enjoy, the job is a joy, not a chore." Green believes in the impact of positive self-esteem. She advised individuals to regroup with themselves often and said that a diary is helpful -highlighting the progress, growth and perpetual problems.

Green suggested that everyone have a mentor to help guide them in their career, because "no one has all the answers," she said. "We have to get as much help as we can." She commented that women tended to be less supportive of, and more competive with each other. She said, "Guys have the experience in sports; it's not the personalities (that matter). It all has to do with beating (winning) the game."

Norma Baker, who holds a B.A.in Educational Administration and Counseling, and is Executive Director of Northern Education Service Inc., began her lecture with an exercise designed to sensitize the audience to the impact of options on one's lifestyle and freedom.

Baker said that when she graduated from high school she wanted to be a lawyer, but didn't feel she had the choice. She said that their high school

Continued on page 3

SHANGO DE IMA

by Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

Shango De Ima opened Friday night at Bowker Auditorium with Louis Alfred III playing Shango, a young man lead astray by his own ignorance and conceit.

Shango starts out as a nice young "mama's boy" meaning no one any harm and causing no trouble other than that of what he is worth.

The flow of the play is enduced by congos and singing by villagers who observe Shango in his trials growing up, not knowing his father and emerging from boyhood into a young man.

One day Shango decides to ask his mother Obatala, who is the perfect model of a strong-willed woman full of pride and dignity, his father's name. Shango does not know that Obatala, his mother was raped by his father, Agayu Sola Guard of the River of the Dead.

As Shango grows older he begins to wonder about his family and his heritage, so he asked his mother "Who is my father?" Shango's mother refuses to tell him saying that his father is not worthy of her presence. Against her better judgement, Obatala finally tells Shango his father's name, and he leaves on a voyage to find him.

Agayu Sola, is a man who cries out in the middle of the night for Obatala, the woman he met during the passage of the river, the woman he hopes to see once again.

When Shango confronts his father with the news, even against Agayu Sola's denial, Shango persists in claiming his father. Agayu Sola promises Shango that if he ever repeats "the lie" again that he will eat him. As Agayu Sola begins to prepare Shango as his feast, two young girls from the village, Obba and Oshun, pray to the god Olofi to spare Shango's life.

Shango's life is spared but his soul and his goodwill is charred. After Shango's near-chance with death, his entire life changes. Shango begins to treat his mother and all women without respect and as toys for his body's lustful desires.

Shango is warned by many that his actions will lead him to an early grave. And that his lies and deceit-

Continued on page 4

BEYOND 1984

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

The art exhibition, "Beyond 1984: Contemporary Perspectives on America Art" opened Saturday, March 8, at the Augusta Savage Gallery, in the New Africa House, displaying the work of eleven Afro-American artists.

Artists featured were Houston Conwill, Adger W. Cowans, G. Caliman Coxe, Jeff R. Donaldson, Maren Hassinger, Freida Higa, Varnette P. Honeywood, William Richards Hutson, Nelson Stevens, Pheoris West and Kenneth Victor Young.

In Young's "Ancient Images" done in acrylic, there are a number of ancient Egyptian images, a dove, which may have represented the one sent from Noah's Ark, and a mountain, possibly Mt. Sinai where the Burning Bush spoke to Moses. The entire color spectrum was in this piece. In his paintings, he "invites the viewer to explore the other variegated experiences that the exhibition displays,"said Femi Richards, UMass Afro-American Studies Professor and textile artist.

Pheoris West, Prof. of Painting at Ohio State University was interested in art as a child, and has been "hooked ever since." He has the ability to enfuse his paintings with symmetry. His formalized use of color is no doubt a by-product of his intensive education.

"Home is where the Heart is," a collage of a family scene depicts the realities of Black urban life. Teacher and painter, Varnette P. Honeywood, is nationally known for her colorful Black lifestyle collages and paintings. Honeywood feels that she is "aware of the unity of experience and identifies value and spirit in the African diaspora."

In her work, she expresses this from the perspectiver of an urban Black woman of southern parentage. She considers herself a historian, in a sense, because she visually records Black people's cultural experiences.

"Though these artists are widely separated geographically, the artists manifest unity of purpose as they portray our contemporary world in resplendent and exhilirating images." said Richards. The exhibit will be at the gallery until March 28th. All are invited to stop by and view the extraordinary display of talent.

"Vibrations" by Pheoris West, being exhibited at the Augusta Savage Art Gallery.

Continued from page 2
BLACK WOMEN'S PANEL

counselors never really offered it as an option. She said that she felt expected to work, marry and have children; all of which she did. But, says Baker, " Something was missing. I always felt I could do anything I wanted to. And I can." She quoted a saying, "If you think you can, or can't; you're right."

Baker called birth control her greatest discovery (after having four children closely together), and said "If you're into planning your career, discover it." She also said, "Black women's experiences are so similar, we need to capitalize on this!" Also, "If you don't give and demand respect for yourself, you won't get it," said Baker.

Using her personal history to exemplify many points, Baker advised listeners to always do their homework, don't tell your supervisor what you think of him or her, unless it's all favorable, and always cover your tracks. She said, "You probably learn more from the negative experiences, than from the positive ones." She emphasized the idea of not burning one's bridges, by telling the audience that thesame woman who fired her, now works with her on programs. She said that her grandmother always said, "Those you meet going up, you'll meet going down." Baker added,"Don't respect titles." Respect someone for the way he or she treats people; with or without their titles, they carry the same strengths and weaknesses they always had.

She told the audience to "always be confident...believe you can do anything." She believes that Black women should network with each other and if one gets in a position to hire, it is her responsibility to hire a Black person." Baker, who hires 90 per cent Black, said that "No one got where they are by themselves. It is a responsibility of the community."

Baker said that we've always been made to feel ashamed of doing for each other. We've been called separatist. "Every group has always taken care of their own, taught their own," she said. Quoting her grandmother she said, "Charity begins at home," and added, "what's left over you give to others."

Susan Allen has a B.S. degree in Psychology, an M.A. in Counseling and is UMass/Amherst Residential Director for Education East. Allen, a "B" student in high school, said that her counselor also gave her no help. In fact he told her she could not get into UMass; even though she found out that he had told many of her white friends whose scholastic records were either comparable or below her own, that they could get in quite easily.

She went to UMass anyway, became a CCEBMS student and took courses for psychological counseling. Allen said it was all the other things she did that prepared her for her present job, not her course work. She was a Residential Assistant (R.A.) and a student CCEBMS counselor. She was also heavily involved in the movement/process of forming many of the cultural centers, now present on the UMass campus. She said that this taught her to be a leader and "that things can change, nothing is engraved in stone."

Allen said that she was still determined to be a counselor, so she went to Virginia State for graduate studies in psychology. Said Allen, "They believed women went to college to get husbands, and if you didn't get one, you would go on to graduate school to get one." Allen returned to the UMass area, enrolled in a non-degree program and supported herself by becoming a Head of Residence (HR) at UMass.

Here she gained more teaching skills, more administration skills and could use her background in counseling. She decided to suspend her graduate studies and worked in the Nexus foster care counseling program. From there, she learned of the Cambridge Program, where you get graduate credits for your job and academics; completing your graduate degree in a year.

After receiving her M.A. in Counseling, the University looked at the Residence Hall job situation and decided to make it more career oriented. Allen said that her present supervisor advised her a lot on making career decisions, "as a woman in a career." "But she was white," said Allen, "so she couldn't understand totally." Allen's supervisor told her she needed a mentor and that the mentor would find her.

But Allen realized that "there weren't a lot of Black female administrators around to find me." She did find that conferences "opened up a group of women around the country" for her as mentors. Through these conferences Allen says she meets a lot of Black people, Black women and can do a lot of networking -in order to advance in her field.

Allen, who never thought she'd be thirty-one and single, said, "You can be alone and self-sufficient; but everyone needs a support system." She advised, "Be true to yourself, go with what you want, but (also) realize you can make it on your own. Said Allen, "The system will not always lead you where you want to go," emphasizing the need for each of us to direct and constantly evaluate our career and career goals.

Three of the women got married early, interrupted their education, had children, got divorced, and resumed their education. All four have had a goal, a desire and determination. All four have worked very hard. They've all had a multitude of jobs and found that one job seemed to lead to another opportunity in a domino fashion. They attribute their success to liking the fields they are in, a belief in what they're doing, keeping their options open and networking. They agreed on the need for mentors and most importantly, all persisted in the face of opposition.

to his/her school or community. Right now they are concentrating on the Boston and Springfield areas. At this time they can only offer one scholarship, but in the future the fraternity hopes to be able to offer more than one student the scholarship.

Harrigan and his fraternal brothers are working on a plan to incorporate the scholarship into the high school system so that students can apply for the scholarship while in high school. "As it stands we are working with Rudy Jones, Assistant Director of Admissions, and Rick Townes of CCEBMS, to develop a screening process for the scholarship applications,"Harrigan said.

"As a part of our plan we are also including a series of speeches at various high schools by Carol Wright, John's mother. I think this will make people more aware of the scholarship," said Harrigan.

"In the future we plan to work with other organizations to raise money for the scholarship. Once we have a strong base and a stronger campus interest, we will include those students who are in college and are outstanding athletes as eligible for the scholarship."

LIP-SINC SUCCESS
Continued from page 3

to his/her school or community. Right now they are concentrating on the Boston and Springfield areas. At this time they can only offer one scholarship, but in the future the fraternity hopes to be able to offer more than one student the scholarship.

Harrigan and his fraternal brothers are working on a plan to incorporate the scholarship into the high school system so that students can apply for the scholarship while in high school. "As it stands we are working with Rudy Jones, Assistant Director of Admissions, and Rick Townes of CCEBMS, to develop a screening process for the scholarship applications," Harrigan said.

"As a part of our plan we are also including a series of speeches at various high schools by Carol Wright, John's mother. I think this will make people more aware of the scholarship," said Harrigan.

"In the future we plan to work with other organizations to raise money for the scholarship. Once we have a strong base and a stronger campus interest, we will include those students who are in college and are outstanding athletes as eligible for the scholarship."

SHANGO DE IMA
Continued from page 3

fulness will be the weapon used for his own downfall. But Shango does not listen: he continues to play the role ofbrave warrior and ruler of all women.

Ogun Arere, the great warrior and the final blow in Shango's downfall, forces Shango to look at himself and his life. Shango is finally brought before a congregation of Olofi, god of Light, Obatala, his mother, his wife whom he has betrayed many times and the women whom he has betrayed his wife with.

At this meeting a decision is made on whether Shango's life should be spared, again. All agree that his life has brought grief to many and his death would bring relief to all.

Announcements

WE ARE THE AUGUSTA SAVAGE ART GALLERY.
We are in the New Africa House on the first floor.
From March 8-28 we will be presenting an exhibition of Afro-American artists from around the country. These men and women are of national and international stature, and the exhibit is entitled, "Beyond 1984: Contemporary Perspectives on American Art."

March 10
TOSHI REAGAN in concert at the Iron Horse at 7 p.m. Tickets are $6.50 in advance and $7.50 at the door. 20 Center St., Northampton. For more info., call 584-0610.

Wednesday, March 26
"Forging Missiles into Spaceships"
Smith College, McConnell Auditorium, 8:00 p.m.

MEMBERS OF THE THIRD WORLD

Are you concerned
about government?
Are you concerned
about your school?
Would you like to have more input?
Would you like to help direct the future of this University?

Help the senate reflect a greater understanding of multi-racial concerns.
Join the Caucus
Third World Caucus:
Your mouthpiece!
BE HEARD.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Marion Tinsley — Editor In Chief
Donette Wilson — Managing Editor
Tracey Bryant — News Editor
David Moore — Business Manager

• • • Contributors • • •

Giselle Andrade — Correspondent
Tracey Kemble — Correspondent
Yvonne Mendez — Layout
David G. DuBois — Faculty Advisor

Address all letters to the Editor to: Nummo News, New Africa House Room 103

Announcements

March 20

KUUMBA CREATIVITY CELEBRATION

"A night of music, dance, art and theatre" in celebration of Black Culture.
8:15 p.m.
Buckley Hall,
Amherst College
For more info:
call 542-4264,
or 542-2385.

The Commuter Area Government presents the Progressive Film Series:

Tuesday, March 11
"Living at Risk" - about a middle class Nicaraguan family who chooses to stay in Nicaragua and support the revolution.
CC 163 Complex.

Thursday, March 13
"The Song of the Shirt" - by the London History Project. It examines the struggle of women in the garment industry during 19th century England.
CC 174-76.

Thursday, April 3
"Woza Albert" - a filmed stage production by two Black South Africans explaining life under Apartheid. An exceptional film. Also being shown is the video "Under the Gun," a PBS special examining the current S. African situation.
CC 168.

Thursday, April 10
"Jazz on a Summer Day" and the film "the St. Louis Blues." Co-sponsored by the Black musicians conference. "Jazz" is the definitive jazz film featuring Thelonious Monk, Louis Armstrong, Chuck Berry, Dinah Washington, et al. at Newport in 1958.
Cape Cod Lounge, SUB.

Thursday, April 17
"September Wheat" - by Peter Krieg. An award-winning film about food and hunger in the rich industrialized countries and in the poor countries of the world.
CC 163.

TIMES FOR ALL COMMUTER AREA FILMS WILL BE 7:30 P.M.

Alpha Angels are having a Tea in the New Africa House Library, Tuesday, 7 p.m., March 11. Transcripts are required and interviews will be held after the Tea. BE PROMPT! For more information call Pat, 734-5565 or Cordelia, 787-4514.

SURVIVAL SKILLS FOR STUDENTS OF COLOR
a 1 credit colloq.
7-9 p.m. Tuesday,
MLK Center, rm. 112
Dickinson Hall
Come, bring a friend!
Sponsored by CCEBMS/
BCP/BILINGUAL.

INTRAN

An appeal is being made to the Five-College community.
For those interested in the organization of the project, contact Michelle
Revels at 549-4600 Ext. 235
Hampshire College Box 918.
For those interested in the artistic aspects of the project, contact
Michelle Remy at 549-4600
Ext.342, Hampshire College
Box 392.

Community members who believe in and want to be a part of the struggle, contact us, we'll show you how.
545-0061, or
545-0062.

Wat's going on?

ut, What's REALLY GOING ON?

NUMMO NEWS
wants writers.

Join NUMMO, and help
PUT THE WORD OUT.

NUMMO NEWS
is looking for a few good photographers.

VOTE TODAY - Info, page 4

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 30

TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1986

INSIDE

•Shuttle crew remains examined. Page 2.
•Dry campus had little effect on revenue. Page 3.
•Spring lacrosse preview. Page 12.

SGA vote brings new sign fiasco

New twist on 'Murphy's Law'

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Will the real Lynne Murphy please stand up?

In what is becoming a campaign ritual in University of Massachusetts elections, two parties in the Student Government Association presidential elections yesterday charged each other with trying to confuse the voters.

Campaign supporters of M. Lynne Murphy, candidate for SGA president, said they plan to file charges with the SGA attorney general against Lynne M. Murphy, a senator from Washington Tower and supporter of presidential candidate Bill Bennett.

Celeste Friend, a supporter of M. Lynne Murphy, said,"We're really angry. We feel it is a sleazy move... It's deja vu with the MassPIRG campaign," referring to the referendum held last month in which people from the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, and Students for Participatory Democracy accused each other of trying to deceive voters.

"We're really angry. We feel it is a sleazy move...It's deja vu with the MassPIRG campaign."
— Celeste Friend, M. Lynne Murphy supporter

Lynne M. Murphy, who is not running for office, apparently took exception to M. Lynne Murphy running for office without including her first initial.

"I'm the only Lynne Murphy on campus," Lynne M. Murphy said.

In the past, M. Lynne Murphy has insisted on using her first initial.

Lynne M. Murphy said she had posters printed that said, "Lynne Murphy endorses Bill Bennett for SGA president." In smaller print, it said, "I, Lynne Murphy of Washington Residential Hall, hearby endorse Bill Bennett." The posters bore the signature of Lynne M. Murphy.

Lynne M. Murphy said M. Lynne changed her name to confuse Lynne M.'s constituency and also said that more than 100 people have expressed their support for her.

"I had to explain that I'm not running for anything," Lynne M. Murphy said.

M. Lynne Murphy was unavailable for comment.

Friend said M. Lynne decided to campaign as Lynne Murphy so she would not be confused with Evelyn Murphy, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

"Some people think the signs are confusing, they're making it sound as if Lynne [M. Lynne Murphy] is backing Bill [Bennett]," Friend said.

"Bill must know he is hurting at the polls to try this, and that makes me feel good," Friend said.

Bennett said he had no knowledge that Washington Tower resident Lynne M. Murphy made the posters until after they appeared around campus.

"I've been taking the posters [Lynne M. Murphy's] down all afternoon, " Bennett said. "It[the posters] may hurt my campaigning. I don't need anything negative right now. I don't want anything like with MassPIRG. I can beat M. Lynne Murphy. I don't have to resort something like this."

Photo by Nick Sukoluff

DREAMS OF A NEW SEASON–Freshman legal studies major Todd Babbitt contemplates nature inside FN Durfee Conservatory yesterday.

University students face charges

Six University of Massachusetts students face criminal charges after nine people were injured in September after a porch collapsed during a party at their rented home in Amherst.

One male student is charged with creating a common nuisance, pending deliberation in Hampshire District Court, after show cause hearing last month, the Daily Hampshire Gazette reported yesterday.

Eleven students who were at the party testified at the show cause hearing. Two of them said they had given the student money for beer on Sept. 21 at the house at 180 Market Hill Road.

The other five students are charged with creating a common nuisance. According to court documents, this means they "kept or sold alcoholic beverages, causing the building to be deemed a common nuisance."

Two of the students facing charges refused to comment until they could contact their lawyers. A third consulted his lawyer and was advised not to talk until the case was decided.

Amherst Police said about 30 people were on the 12-foot high porch when it collapsed. Nine of them sustained injuries, mostly to the neck and back, and were taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton. Six were treated and released and the remaining three spent the night at University Health Services.

Michael Butcher, 20, a UMass student from Worcester, broke a vertebra in his back as a result of the collapse.

At the time of the incident, the porch was described as "obviously rotted" by the residents of the house.

The students are no longer living in the house and the owner, Jean Mudge of Chicago, is renting an apartment within the house. She has hired a manager to ensure that no undergraduate students rent the apartment.

— JOHN VINCENT

Officials consider search at commencement

By ANDREW WOLFF
Collegian Staff

Officials exploring changes in the annual commencement ceremony in Warren C. McGuirk Alumni Stadium are considering ways to eliminate traditional unruliness, and may ask a student group to search graduates for alcohol before they enter the stadium, two members of the Commencement Task Force said yesterday.

However, no new plans have been established since last November, when it was disclosed the administration was considering better enforcement of stadium policy banning alcohol, a shorter ceremony without the graduate school and a listing of undergraduates' names in the commencement program booklet.

The changes, approved Dec. 9 after lengthy review, come in the wake of last year's ceremony, when a faulty sound system, poorly designed stage and heavy drinking created what some called a circus-like atmosphere.

"In order to get enough people behind it [the changes], it almost took a disaster," said Trey Williams, special assistant to the vice chancellor for student affairs and a task force member.

According to memoranda distributed by task force member Mary Spellicy, some of the plans for the May 25 ceremony include:

● Give graduates, who sit on the football field, a better view of the ceremony by constructing a tiered stage and improving the public address system.

● Improve the atmosphere of the ceremony by eliminating temptations for graduates to wander. Plans include seating faculty members along the sidelines to separate the audience from the graduates. In the past, audience members have been seen passing alcohol to people on the field.

● Better enforce the stadium alcohol policy by requesting students enter the field at the start of the ceremony with their gowns draped over their arms, not worn, so they cannot conceal alcohol.

Williams said officials are also considering asking members of the Union Program Council, which runs rock concerts on campus, to conduct searches of students before they pass through stadium portals.

Reached by telephone late yesterday, Lance Foley, UPC talent coordinator, said he had not been told anything about the plan, but would be willing to ask council members if they are interested in participating.

"We haven't had anyone come to us in an official capacity yet," Foley said. "The majority of people in our committee are in the dorms. They have to be out."

Williams said that if UPC will not conduct the searches, then officials can only enforce the no-alcohol policy through marshals, public safety officers and letters sent to the parents of graduates and distributed outside the stadium on graduation day.

DEMONSTRATOR ARRESTED–Austin, Minn. police carry a demonstrator away from the gates to the corporate headquarters of Hormel Co. yesterday. The company was blocked by nearly 200 striking meatpackers and their supporters.

Navy examines shuttle remains

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Pathologists yesterday examined crew remains recovered from Challenger's shattered cabin, sources reported, while the ocean search continued for more body parts and debris such as data tapes that might provide clues to the disaster.

Some remains and cabin wreckage were brought ashore secretly Saturday night by the Navy salvage ship USS Preserver, which entered port without running lights, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

In announcing Sunday that the cabin debris and remains had been located, NASA did not say whether anything had been recovered. The agency said it would respect family wishes and not comment again until the operation was completed.

NASA spokesman said nothing yesterday. The Navy, which is conducting the search, said the 213-foot Preserver was at the scene where the cabin debris was found but declined to say whether divers were on the ocean floor.

Recovering cabin wreckage and body remains depends on weather and sea conditions, NASA said, and could take days. The search area had wind up to 20 mph and 4-to-6 foot waves yesterday.

Private boats and planes were barred from an area two miles around the search site, which is about 18 miles northeast of the launch pad. Sections of the cabin were found at a depth of 100 feet.

Five men and two women died in the fiery explosion 73 seconds after Challenger left its launch pad here Jan. 28.

Data tapes that were in the cabin could shed light on the cause of the explosion, but it was not known how well the tapes survived.

The sources did not know if remains of all seven had been located. They said recovered body parts had been taken to a hospital at Patrick Air Force Base, 25 miles south of here, where they were examined yesterday by forensic experts from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

The condition of the bodies was not known by the sources, but they said "we're talking about remains, not bodies."

The examinations were not only for identification, but also could help determine whether the astronauts were burned to death, poisoned by fumes, died from sudden loss of cabin pressure, were killed by flying debris or by impact with the water, or drowned.

Navy man arrested

POINT MUGU NAVAL AIR BASE, Calif. (AP) - A Navy petty officer has been arrested for investigation of selling classified government documents, the FBI said yesterday.

Third Class Petty Officer Robert Dean Haguewood was arrested March 4 by the Naval Investigative Service after an investigation in which he allegedly was observed selling part of a confidential document, FBI spokesman Fred Reagan said.

Gary Comerford, NIS spokesman, refused to say whether the document was sold to undercover agents or if they witnessed the sale.

"The incident appears to be isolated. It appears there has been no contact with any foreign national," Comerford said.

"The suspect made known he wanted to sell some information," Comerford said.

Kidnappers show photo

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Shiite Moslem kidnappers issued photographs yesterday purporting to show the body of French hostage Michel Seurat, with a statement saying the photos proved their claim to have killed him last week.

Islamic Jihad, a pro-Iranian fundamentalist group, denied in the statement that it had abducted a four-man French television crew Saturday. The photos and statement were delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut.

It said the three black-and-white pictures were intended to counter "skepticism about the seriousness of our earlier claim" that Seurat was slain last Wednesday.

One showed the hostage's chest and face, as he lay bare-chested with his eyes half-closed. The second showed a body in a coffin, wrapped in a blanket, and the third a closed coffin with a crucifix on the lid.

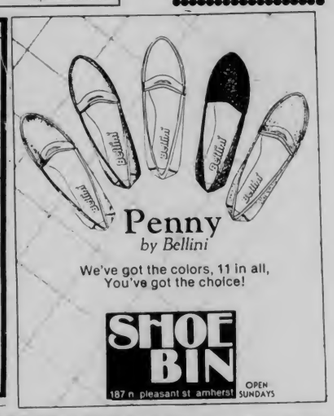
There was no evidence of wounds or blood in the one photo that showed the man clearly, and no way to confirm he had been killed. Friends of Seurat confirmed that the man in the photo was the 37-year-old Frenchman.

The typewritten statement was in Arabic and signed, "the Islamic Jihad Islamic Holy War organization."

In Paris, the French Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying it was "seeking to verify the authenticity of this abominable claim."

Professional Consultation & Style Haircut (INT.) $10.00 with Shampoo or Blowdry $12.50

Featuring: Design Perming, Dimensional Highlighting, Deep Reconditioning



Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive,
Amherst, 549-5610
expires March 14, 1986

DENISE FORBES FOR STUDENT TRUSTEE MARCH 10, 11

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95

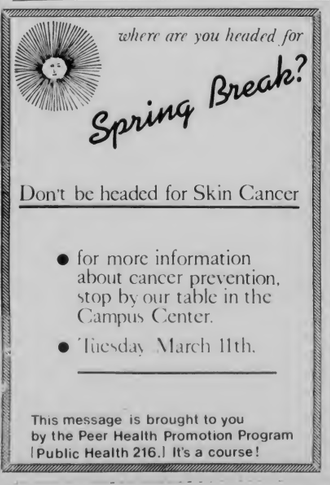
Lube, Oil & Filter $17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobka's Store
549-4704

We've got the colors, 11 in all,
You've got the choice!
SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
OPEN SUNDAYS

LADIES' Op
Summer Pants & Shorts
on SALE
starting at $9.95
Saturday Clothes
open 7 days Downtown Amherst 253-9729

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.



After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.

That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.

So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT. BE ONE.

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide
358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

where are you headed for
Spring Break?
Don't be headed for Skin Cancer
- for more information about cancer prevention, stop by our table in the Campus Center.
- Tuesday March 11th.

This message is brought to you by the Peer Health Promotion Program [Public Health 216.] It's a course!

Period of dry campus had little effect on sales

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

Although there is a significant decrease in liquor sales at the Hatch and an increase for the Top of the Campus lounge following the University's "dry" period, overall sales have not changed dramatically, according to a Campus Center official.

The dry spell last semester had less of an effect on students' drinking than did the raised drinking age, said Richard Ellis, director of cash operations for Food Services. The legal drinking age in Massachusetts was raised from 20 to 21 last June 30.

The dry campus last semester was a result of the University losing its liquor liability insurance August 1, 1985, and the University's difficulty replacing that insurance.

The University was granted alcohol coverage in January by the Joint Underwriters Association, an insurance commission created by the state. The insurance policy became effective Feb. 1, 1986.

Campus Center statistics show that liquor sales totaled $20,456 for the first two weeks of February 1985 and $21,349 for the same period this year.

From Feb. 1 to 14, 1985, the Hatch sold $8,192 worth of alcohol and the TOC sold $12,264. For the same period in 1986, the Hatch sold $3,712 worth of alcohol and the TOC sold $17,557.

"We lost a good number of clientele due to the rise of the drinking age," Ellis said in explaining the decrease of liquor sales in the Hatch.

Since alcohol sales resumed last month, the price of beer at the Hatch has remained the same but all other liquor prices have risen approximately 10 percent in the Hatch and the TOC, said Bernard Wilkes, assistant director of the Campus Center and president of TOC Inc., which holds the University's liquor license, purchases alcohol and approves prices.

Wilkes said that the price of beer has not risen at the Hatch because the number of beer drinkers there has increased. All other liquor prices have increased because the distributors increased the price of liquor sold to TOC, Inc., he said.

Managers of bars in Amherst center also support the idea that the change in drinking had more of an effect on students' drinking habits than did the dry period on the UMass campus.

Mike Fuscia, manager of Time Out, said he sees shorter waiting lines outside the bar because of the rise in the drinking age, but liquor sales are "on target as last semester."

But he said there has been no real decrease in sales at Time Out since the alcohol sales resumed at the Campus Center.

Chick Delano, manager of Delano's, said there has been a slight decrease in liquor sales at his bar as compared to this time last year.

"I think the drinking age has affected this more than the re-selling of liquor at the Campus Center," Delano said.

Jeanne Hopkins Stover

Arthur Clifford

University liasons promoted

Two University of Massachusetts media liaisons were recently promoted.

Arthur S. Clifford, formerly director of the Office of Public Information, is now special assistant to Deirdre I. Ling, vice chancellor for University relations and development.

Jeanne Hopkins Stover, formerly OPI's associate director, has become manager of the office.

Clifford said, "My new post involves a lot more traveling to media outlets. I work one-on-one with editors of newspapers and magazines, and I help develop feature stories."

Stover's office is responsible for publicizing events at the University to local and national news organizations, and often for providing information or names of campus sources to reporters when there is breaking news at UMass.

"I try to encourage academic departments and administration to announce events so that we can publicize to outside media. After all, we are the liaison between the University and the public through the press," Stover said.

Stover earned a bachelor's degree in speech communications from Northern Illinois University in 1976. She is also producer and host of "Commonwealth Journal," which is broadcast on 40 radio stations in Massachusetts.

Clifford received a bachelor's degree in journalism in 1968 from Boston University and a master's degree in political communication in 1976 from UMass. He has taught journalism courses at the University for the past 10 years.

— LUCINDA COUTO

MassPIRG collects food

About $600 worth of food was collected at last week's food drive at the Super Stop and Shop in Hadley, said a MassPIRG volunteer.

"All totalled we collected 10 [shopping] carts of food," said Rayna Sargent of the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, which sponsored the drive.

Representatives of MassPIRG stood at each entrance of the store with the manager's permission, and handed to each person going into the store a list of items. Each shopper was asked to donate at least one item to the food drive.

"We asked people to donate high protein food like canned meats, peanut butter, pasta, and tomato sauce," said Jane Finn, the coordinator of the MassPIRG Hunger Project.

The food was donated to the Western Massachusetts Food Bank in Hadley, part of a national organization which feeds about 30,000 people a year. The bank distributes food to people and non-profit organizations, Finn said.

"Some people donated well over a bag of groceries," Finn said. "The people who did give were extremely diverse, everyone from college students to the elderly."

"When you put on a food drive you create an awareness that a problem exists in your own backyard," Finn said.

MassPIRG also sponsored a "stamp out hunger" day Feb. 26 at UMass, which raised $250 in donations and 270 signatures for postcards to members of Congress in April.

— JEANETTE DeFORGE

Employee hit by car suffers injuries

A 27-year-old employee of the Texaco Service Station on Northampton Road sustained injuries to his right knee and leg when he was hit by a customer's car at 1:45 p.m. Friday, Amherst police said.

He was checking a car's oil, police said, when the driver of another car did not realize his car was in reverse and backed into the employee.

The employee was treated at Cooley-Dickinson Hospital in Northampton, police said.

In other police reports:

- A man was pushed through a door window at 12:45 a.m. Saturday when he was causing a disturbance at a dance at the Malcom X Center in Hamdem Dining Commons. He was not hurt, University of Massachusetts police said.
- A man suffered a bruised lip when he was punched while trying to stop three men vandalizing cars at 2:10 p.m. Sunday in a parking lot outside his Brandywine Apartment, Amherst police said.
- While investigating a complaint of a barking dog, an Amherst police officer was bitten on the hand at 3:10 a.m. Monday on East Pleasant Street. No citations were issued to the owner, police said.
- The valve on a pressurized tank was found open and leaking carbon dioxide at 4:45 p.m. Sunday in Morrill Science Center. Enviromental Health and Safety Agency responded to the emergency, UMass police said.
- A 1984 Trans-Am valued at $17,000 and a $15,000 1977 Datsun were reported stolen Sunday from lot 32, police said.

— JEFFRY BARTASH and FRANK GEARY

Local marchers walk across America

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

Despite insurance hassles, the Great Peace March across America is off and walking from California to Washington, D.C., with at least eight people from the Amherst area included in the 1,200 marchers.

The march, which started last week, is scheduled to reach the nation's capitol by Nov. 10.

"Despite media propaganda, the march is on its way," said Phyllis Rodin, a University of Massachusetts graduate student who last weekend returned for one night to a fund raising conference in New York last weekend. "There is a cohesive community that is forming, that has every intention of getting to Washington."

The insurance company for the march, concerned about damage the marchers might inflict on campsites, raised its premium to a level organizers could not afford, so marchers had to agree to be responsible for themselves or leave the march, Rodin said.

"It [leaving] wasn't even a question," she said. "They didn't even want to discuss it, those who wanted to stay."

Of the original 1,500, only 300 elected to leave, Rodin said.

Without insurance, many possible sites were off limits to the group, but others became available when citizens saw the marchers' predicament, Rodin said.

"The United States of America came to our rescue, and we literally wept for all the beautiful things that happened to us after that," she said.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley gave personal permission for the marchers to walk through the city, but the march "really started" in Claremont, a small town outside that city, Rodin said.

Turned away from the schools, the marchers were welcomed into the churches of the town, and a rally was held. Some citizens even took marchers into their homes.

"They welcomed us," Rodin said. "We were their people."

For Rodin, the community formed by the march is also a data base for her doctoral dissertation in future studies, and she is "not the only one" for whom the trip is a learning experience, she said. High school students are marching, keeping journals, and talking about their experiences at stops along the way.

Said Rodin: "They're going out and talking wherever they are sought to explain about the march."

Photo by Richard Bonanno

DON'T FALL IN–Graduate botany major Lars Carlson operates a sailboat under cloudy skies in the Campus Pond.

Survey gives UMass students high rank

By TOM GAGNON
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts students are less likely than students at the other four area colleges to take classes at another campus, and most likely to work for pay, according to a Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office survey.

Scheduling conflicts and lack of information were the most frequently cited obstacles to using the five-college exchange program, followed by course closings and transportation problems, according to the Five College Cycles 1985 survey.

However, these reasons may not apply if students do not want to take courses elsewhere, said Joyce Clark, associate director of SAREO and co-author of the survey, which was completed last December and released last week.

The survey compared results from Smith, Mount Holyoke, Amherst and Hampshire colleges with UMass' students' responses, released last month in a separate UMass Cycles Survey.

According to the five-college survey, UMass students spend an average of eight and one-half hours a week working for pay, nearly twice as much as last-ranked Amherst College.

The survey reported that UMass students also averaged the most time in class and labs each week, 15.2 hours, but the least time spent doing course work outside of class, 17.3 hours.

UMass students expressed the greatest satisfaction with their social life, with over 80 percent of respondents saying they were "satisfied" or "very satisfied," although this was down slightly from last year, according to the survey.

Overall satisfaction with college was rated high on all five campuses, with over 80 percent of students reporting to be "satisfied" or "very satisfied."

"Statistically, that's insignificant," said Clark, who cautioned against interpreting the results of the survey. "It's hard to know what it means. You have to look within each school rather than across them. It may mean that there is a good match between student and school, or there may be differences we're not picking up on."

Voting Info

Sylvan, Northeast Residents: Worcester Commons, 10:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; 3:45 to 6 p.m.
Orchard Hill, Central Residents: Franklin Commons, 11 a.m. to 1:45 p.m.; 4 to 6:15 p.m.
Southwest residents: Hampshire Commons, 11:15 a.m. to 2 p.m.; 4:15 to 6:30 p.m.
Berkshire Commons, 11:30 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.; 4:30 to 6:45 p.m.
Off-campus students (except Greeks): Outside Hatch, noon to 5:30 p.m.
Fraternities and sororities: Newman Center, 10 a.m. to 2:30
ANYONE MAY VOTE AT: Hampden Kosher D.C., 5 to 7 p.m. New Africa House, 12:30 to 5:45 p.m.

SPRING BREAK 86
ocean pacific
Leggoons
ORIGINAL Jams
Western Village Ski & Sports
32 Main St. Northampton MA 01060
(413) 584-3620 Mon-Sat 9-5; Thurs til 8:30

THE BEAT CHANGES
with CLIFF MYERS
at
The Springbreak Warmup Party
Tomorrow Night - Wednesday, March 12th only at
Be Prepared To Party!
CHANGES dance club
Showtime 9:30 pm
Don't miss it!

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR Society
Scholastic Achievement & Excellence
Information Tables
will be at the Campus Center Concourse
March 12, 13, 14 9:00 am - 3:00 pm

UMASS SPRINGBREAK'86
T-SHIRTS ($7.00)
Available on the Concourse
Tuesday 3/11
and
Wednesday 3/12
sponsored by Wheeler House
The Choice is Yours

WHERE HILLS TURN TO MOUNTAINS
Why conquer hills when you can challenge a mountain. Just over the border is Mount Snow with 12 lifts (1 gondola, 5 triple chairs, 6 double chairs), 57 trails, 1700 feet of vertical and 80% snowmaking.
16 inches of new snow since Friday. All 57 trails are open on all three mountain faces. Record base depths up to 8 feet deep will keep us skiing well into May. Our incredible $59 of Fun package starts March 16th. Enjoy ANY two days of skiing and a nights lodging in between for $59. 802-464-8501. We've got the snow, let yourself go.
THE SHORTEST DRIVE TO BIG MOUNTAIN SKIING LOCATED IN EASY TO REACH SOUTHERN VERMONT ON VT 100
LOGING (802)464-8501
SKI REPORT (802)464-2151
Mount Snow VERMONT

$ LOCAL DAY CAMP $
People's Institute of Northampton
SMALL FRY DAY CAMP
* an 8-week camp looking for the following staff:
* Camp Director
* Aquatic Instructor (with W.S.I.)
* Unit Leaders
* Camp Counselors
* C.I.T. (volunteers)
United Way of Hampshire County
Camp located at 38 Gothic Street, Northampton
Just off Main Street across from the Court House.
More Info: 584-8313

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ED/OP
The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted
Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouche, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager
BOARD OF EDITORS
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouche, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Colfidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Difficulty of confrontation

Rebecca Thatcher

Expressing anger constructively is something I think about often. After all, anger bottled up and held in can be paralyzing, while anger vented without thought alienates people needlessly.

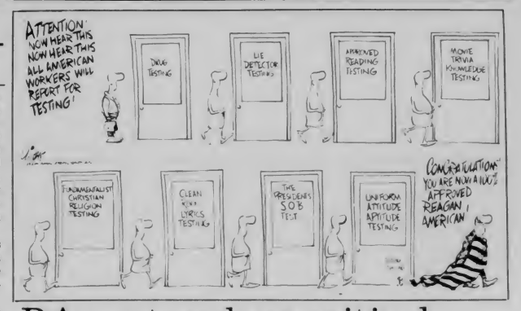
The other day I had a particularly surreal experience with this matter. I was driving the campus shuttle and listening to a tape of an interview I had done with Margaret Randall. She is an American feminist who has lived in Mexico, Cuba and Nicaragua and written extensively on revolutionary women, among other things. A few men got on the bus and started to make my stomach turn with a discussion of how they had intimidated a woman in a bar. They said they wanted her to move so they decided to discuss in complete detail, with sound effects, "unnatural sexual acts."

I had to turn off Margaret Randall because she couldn't drown out the frightening language of these men and because it seemed impossible to listen to two such totally different voices at once.

At that point I thought maybe I would just contain my anger and maybe vent it later on (of course not intentionally, but I do think that's unfortunately how things work sometimes.)

But then they said something about grossing her out so much that "we got her to shack up with the man who was trying to pick her up" and then they laughed. At that point, proper role of the bus driver or not I realized I had to say something, and as it turned out, I was really glad that I did.

As they were leaving the bus I just said, "I don't want to be hostile to you guys but I really want you to think about your attitudes toward women." I am not sure what their response was, they stepped off the bus and I think they muttered something that had to do with embarrassment and assent.



What was really gratifying about the whole incident was what the woman who was sitting in the first seat of the bus said afterwards. I told her I was in kind of a dilemma over whether or not to say anything. She said, "I never would have been able to say anything and I'm glad you did."

It reminded me of the other day when, as a journalist, I witnessed the guerilla theatre in the Cape Cod Lounge and the women who spoke to me about their reactions to the anti-rape action.

While the men I spoke to were willing to "go on the record" the women were adamant about not being identified. I think this, as well as the experience on the bus, says something about how difficult it can be to state publicly that as a woman, you oppose violence against women. This should not be such a difficult thing to do, but it is, and there is an important societal reason for why it is so difficult.

Society in general accepts the degradation of women and violence against women. It is not seen as a major problem. Battered women shelters and rape crisis centers are notoriously underfunded and undersupported. The more I look around the more I realize how much this is the case--and indeed--how brave the women who did the guerilla theatre are.

Rebecca Thatcher is a Collegian columnist.

RA system hypocritical

Rusty Denton

There has been some debate recently about who is or who isn't anti-Christian on this campus. I doubt that any group has a monopoly on antichrists, but I do think the UMass residential system has a long-standing bias against Judeo-Christian values which encourages antichrists of every stripe. Let me relate some examples.

Last spring a Christian I will call Amy was a Resident Assistant in a woman's dorm. She attended several RA meetings where positions on everything from being gay to pornography were laid out as policy. Amy notes that in theory, the housing administration respects and supports many different perspectives, but that in practice it is hypocritical. Judeo-Christian values are lampooned and criticized unless someone has the courage to stand up for them, at which point residential workers feel compelled to acknowledge their worth to show what a broad-minded staff they are. In addition, Amy feels that RAs with Judeo-Christian morals are asked to participate in situations which violate their consciences. In particular, role-playing was a problem for her, but worse was being asked to watch sexually-explicit film footage to be "educated" about pornography. That's where Amy drew the line.

Another RA, call him Bob, experienced similar conflicts with his faith. He, too, uses the word "hypocrisy" to describe the supposed tolerance of the residential system, saying that in fact, only a narrow range of liberal values is commended. As Bob tells it, when majority viewpoints conflict with the values of the system, then the majority is described as oppressors, unenlightened, backward. After three years in it, his description of an RA's job is "babysitting" the floor, giving lip service to the administrative policy, and seeing only rarely the socially-sensitive situations for which RAs receive so much "progressive" training.

The liberal emphasis affects not only training, but hiring practices as well, despite the University's promise not to discriminate on the basis of faith, creed, or politics. In the first year that Bob was an RA, the University was interviewing for a full-time residential position. An African Christian I will call Charles applied, with extensive related experience and graduate work. The interviewing committee told him he was the most qualified person they could find, but that he would never get hired because of his convictions about gay people. They were unhappy because when asked if he would honor the rights of a gay student to the exclusion of the rights of others, Charles had said no.

A devout Middle Eastern Muslim student I'll call David has been hired for a similar position. He had little related experience or course work, and his convictions about lesbians and gays are essentially identical to Charles'. Apparently, Islamic convictions are more acceptable than Christian convictions.

If anybody besides gays, feminists, and the militant left were so overprotected by, and over-represented in, the residential administration, there would have been a tremendous hue and cry by these parties long ago. As it is, we are expected to believe that an open, democratic process has placed these people there. I don't believe that; internal politics might have, but democracy didn't.

While I am in sympathy with the goals of the residential system to protect the rights of individuals and to safeguard the pluralism on this campus, I don't believe it is their right to indoctrinate students, nor to discriminate. It's about time they admit that's what they've been doing.

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist.

Right of belief must be respected

After reading Jeffrey Clark's article "In defense of the righteous ones" (Collegian, Feb. 27), I found myself compelled to write. To begin with, I am not anti-Christian. I believe that most Christians are well-intentioned and helpful people. I also believe that Christians have as much of a right to their beliefs as everyone else. It seems, however, hard to understand this unalienable right if one believes, like Clark, that "...if people think Christianity is not correct, they are just plain wrong." I am not saying that Clark is wrong; I am only saying that I have as much right to my beliefs as Clark has to his and this right must be respected.

I would like to clear the air about the classification of "anti-Christian leftists." I believe I am included in this classification, and I want to define my position. My disagreement is not with the Christian religion per se, but with the new trend of the religious right to legislate its morals and beliefs on us all. This new trend should be a concern not only to myself and my fellow leftists, but also to true Christians. I think we should all question this bastardization of true Christian tenets. If the religious right continues unchallenged, the Christian faith could be headed toward some new dark ages, and could become seriously tainted for years to come.

To Clark and others, I say stay in church and help humanity with the commitment and faith you have. Convert us by example. This is fine work and can be respected by almost everyone. You must not, however, force your beliefs upon us all. We may come around, or we may not; it is not your duty to make us. Do not force us to live within your code. Remember the voice of God is not the voice of government.

Jonathan E. Wagman
Hadley

Classified ad offensive, appalling

TO OUR LEADER

It's a wise person who rules women, its a fool whos ruled by them. From the Brothers of 404

I am extraordinarily appalled and offended by the inclusion of this disgusting "personal" advertisement in the Friday, Feb. 28 Collegian. Where is your widely touted sense of social responsibility? What hypocrites you are! On the same day you editorialize in support of Smith protestors (oh how bad apartheid is), you promote sexist imperialist domination on your own back page.

This is offensive to the point of being almost frightening. No human is made to be "ruled" and it is neither a light nor funny matter that you give voice to this sentiment in print. Would you publish a classified ad that had the words "black South Africans" or "Jews" where the word "women" appears in this ad? I think not, yet you published this. The implication is that you work under the sexist assumption that women are not important enough to even worry about.

I think your editorial judgement and standards are to be severely called in question. Do you really want to promote male dominance and imperialism? If not, you should pull this ad immediately. If so, you should be more honest in the rest of your editorial policy so your readers will know where you stand.

Mary Creamer
Amherst

The Collegian has a tight screening process under which national, local and classified advertisements are altered or rejected daily. Unfortunately, some offensive ads do slip by our staff, and the Business Board apologizes to those who may have been offended by this particular advertisement.

Letters

Writer intolerant of other faiths

In response to Jeffrey Clark's insidiously self-righteous letter concerning Christianity, I find his assertions to be both pointless and ignorant. To begin with, Clark proclaims a disgust at the "slanderous comments" printed in the Collegian against Christians, but fails to mention a single one. Clearly, Clarks's arguments would bear a lot more weight if he would simply enumerate precisely what offended him, rather than carry on like a whining child about how a "typical white male who believes in God and the authority of the Bible cannot get a letter printed" in the Collegian. Also, Clark's misbegotten notion that "political" left" people are anti-Christian is a gross distortion. Certainly such leftwing Christians as Geraldine Ferraro, Ted Kennedy, and Martin Luther King force Clark to reconsider his warped affirmations. Furthermore, Clark's attitude that Christianity is the only "true faith," and that those who do not accept it are "just plain wrong," is just plain narrow-minded. Would not a "true" Christian be more accepting of other faiths?

Obviously, Clark's commitment to Christianity caused him to speak out in its defense and that's fine. However, in the future, I would urge that people better manifest their points and stay clear of flagrant generalizations and smug moralism.

Susan E. Brown
Amherst

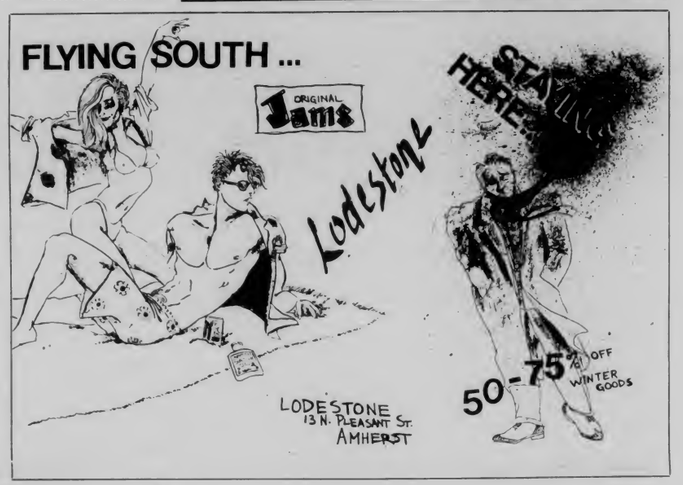
SUGAR, by any other name tastes as sweet and has little nutritional value. Dextrose, sucrose, corn syrup, fructose, lactose, maltose, galactose, honey, and molasses all mean sugar. Read the label on all the processed food you buy and if sugar (by any name) is in the top three, Beware.

Div. of Health Education
University Vending Service

SNACKSENSE

Pizza in a Mexican Restaurant?
Definately!
try one of our Mexican Pizzas
today. . .

TACO VILLA



NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8217 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788-0919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

for fun styles, come see our new collection!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst OPEN SUNDAYS

FLYING SOUTH ...

LODESTONE
13 N. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST

FAST DELIVERY 4:30 p.m.–1:00 a.m.

Subs served with Onions • Lettuce • Tomatoes • Pickles • Green Peppers and Black Olives • Spices (Extra Cheese or Mushrooms 20¢ Extra)

PRICES Clip and Save

Half	Whole	Sub Roll or Syrian Bread	Half	Whole
2.99	4.29	Special	2.09	2.99	Tuna
2.59	3.69	Super	1.99	2.79	Chili Dog
2.29	3.19	Italian	2.29	3.19	Meatball
2.29	3.19	Combo	2.59	3.59	Meatball & Chili
1.99	2.39	Bologna	1.49	1.79	Vegetarian
2.19	3.09	Genoa	1.79	2.39	Cheese
2.59	3.79	Roast Beef	2.29	3.19	Pepperoni
2.39	3.39	Turkey	2.29	3.19	Pastromi
2.29	4.69	Ham	2.19	3.49	Steak
2.29	3.39	Ham & Genoa	2.39	3.69	Steak & Cheese
3.09	4.89	Crab	2.39	3.69	Steak & Mushroom
2.29	3.19	Chicken Salad	2.19	3.49	Steak & Onion
Extra Cheese 20¢			2.24	3.59	Steak & Peppers
Extra Mushrooms 20¢			Soda in cans 65¢

coupon
This Week's Special
Whole Ham Sub $2.99
Save 50¢ Reg. $3.29
Expires 3-16-86

Open 11:00 am - 2:00 am Seven Days A Week
33 East Pleasant Street, Amherst
Prices are subject to 5% Massachusetts Meal Tax
Now you can have your favorite subs delivered just call

549-5160

MASS AID

Students Against Hunger

* Benefit Concert featuring top acts
* This is your chance to get involved and gain valuable experience
* Stop by our office Room 322 Student Union
* Mass Aid's goal is to help the hungry at home, in Massachusetts
* Next General Meeting Wed. March 12th 4:30 pm in CC 168C

"Food for everyone. . . is that too much to ask."

MASS AID

For more information please call: Students Against Hunger
P.O. Box 117 Amherst, MA 01004
413-545-2309

BLACK AFFAIRS

Deltas recognize black heroines

By C. RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

National president of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc., Hortense G. Cannady,recently honored South African "Unsung Black Heroines" by awarding monetary gifts and gold figurines to Winnie Mandela, Dorothy Boesak and Leah Tutu at a ceremony held in Washington, D.C.

Cannady presented two checks for $1,000 each to Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu to take back to Mrs. Mandela and Mrs. Boesak. Additionally she personally handed Mrs. Leah Tutu, the bishop's wife, a check for $1,000 check and gifts, to further their work on behalf of South African women and children. Tutu accompanied her husband on his recent two-week US tour.

Cannady also gave an extra $1,000 to Bishop Tutu for his scholarship fund. In addition to the checks, and a handsome, hand-lettered proclamation citing their services to mankind, each woman received a two-inch 14K gold figurine, a replica of the James King statue of Fortitude, commissioned and erected by the sorority on the campus of Howard University where the sorority was founded 73 years ago. The statue represents the strength of "blackwomen against insurmountable odds,"Cannady said.

In making the Presentation, Cannady added, "We wanted to recognize the great individual contributions of our South African sisters in the struggle for feeedom."

In response to this effort, Cheryl Stanley, a member of Delta Sigma Theta and Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEBMS) advisor said,"That is what our Sorority,Delta Sigma Theta is all about... to provide public service to communities or organizations that need assistance."

Members of the UMass chapter could not be reached for comment at press time.

Graduation rate for blacks improved, report shows

Three-fourths of young blacks-nearly 3 million--were high school graduates in 1984 according to a report from the Commerce Department's Census Bureau. The rate of high school's completions has improved for blacks age 18 to 24, from 56 percent and 1.3 million graduates in 1967 when such statistics were first tabulated.

The number of young blacks enrolled in college also grew in the period, from 300,000 to 800,000. Twenty seven percent of the graduates were enrolled in college in 1984, four percentage points higher than in 1967. One of the highest college attendance rates for black high school graduates was in 1976, when one-third were enrolled.

For whites the proportion who were high school graduates rose from 78 percent in 1967 to 83 prercent in 1984, and the proportion of graduates enrolled in college remained near one-third.

The proportion,of the Spanish origin populatiopn age 18 to 24 who were high school graduates rose from one-half in 1972 when the data first were tabulated to 60 percent in 1984. The proportion enrolled in college did not vary from 30 percent.

Here are other facts on college enrollment from the report.

*From 1970 to 1984, the number fo black college students age 14 to 34 more than doubled to 1.1 million, while the number of white college students rose by 37 percent to 9.3 million. Most of the increase for both groups occured in the first half of the period.

Before 1976 the number of black men and women enrolled in college did not differ significantly. Since 1976 however, more black women have been enrolled than black men except in 1984 when there was no significant difference.

— C. RON ALLEN

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Keyboardist Bernie Worrel performs with the Golden Palominos in the Student Union Ballroom last week.

The precious Alpha Angels will be having a Tea Tonight, in the New Africa House Library at 7:p.m. Interviews will be held after the Tea. Definately interested bring transcripts.

Need to finish a paper before Spring Break? Let us help you.

THE WRITING CENTER
There is a new WRITING CENTER in Sylvan
04 Cashin M, W 7:00 - 9:00 pm
Wed 2:30 - 4;30 pm

WANT FREE ROOM & BOARD AND $$ TOO?
BUTTERFIELD KITCHEN
is now accepting applications for the position of
ASSISTANT MANAGER
for the 1986-87 academic year.
Valuable experience.
Applications available in Butterfield Kitchen Office
Application Deadline: 5 PM March 24.

Now An Additional Location
adjacent to the UMASS campus
in the Amherst Creamery Building

Skills a professional secretarial service

WORD PROCESSING, TRANSCRIPTION, THESES AND DISSERTATIONS MANUSCRIPTS...a specialty

Monday - Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
150 Fearing Street, Amherst
Telephone: 549-2686

Grants Available

Funds provided by the Chancellor through University Committee on Alcohol Use
Funding for unique non-alcohol events or events which promote responsible use of alcohol on campus.
Project criteria and applications available in Southwest: Residence Directors or Residential Education JQA; In East: 130 Brett, Baker Basement/Johnson Hall (area offices); Student Activities, Student Activities Bldg; Greek Affairs Office, Berkshire House; Student Affairs, 319 Whitmore; University Health Services, Rm. 250. Applications processed as received. Final deadline April 11, 1986.

SPRING BREAK
in
FT. LAUDERDALE
15th - 22nd

$135 only 15 seconds from strip
• Sea View Hotek
• Hartford departures available
• Pool
• Air Conditioning
• Kitchenette
• 8 days of sun and fun
• Guaranteed
Limited space left so ACT NOW!
Call Tom 549-3910

free catalog★

Europe

From BOSTON	round trip from
LONDON	349
PARIS	439
AMSTERDAM	418
BRUSSELS	398

Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 or 256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St. 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

ARTS

Manchuria and jazz bands? Akiyoshi combines the two

By GLENN SIEGEL
Collegian Correspondent

In 1953 pianist Hampton Hawes was stationed in Yokohama, Japan, when he was told about a woman who played the piano like Bud Powell. Highly skeptical, Hawes was taken to a night spot called, of all things, the Harlem Club, where "this little chick in a kimono sat down at the piano and started to rip off things I didn't believe, swinging like she'd grown up in Kansas City."

Toshiko Akiyoshi, that little chick in the kimono, was in concert Saturday at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall leading her jazz orchestra. Because there are few women directing big bands, and fewer still who hail from Manchuria, it's obvious that Akiyoshi has broken a lot of new ground to get where she is. Her unflagging energy and her chess-like application of big band mechanics make it clear she is no show biz gimmic, but an authentic jazz voice.

Her 16 piece orchestra performed 10 compositions, all but one of them written and arranged by the leader. The exception, penned by Akiyoshi's husband and the band's principle soloist, Lew Tabakin, was called "A Bit Byased." It swung hard, which is as it should be, since the pun in the title refers to tenor saxophone great Don Byas. A bit of the grittiness of the late Oklahoman was missing, but how many others have approached his tone?

The first half of the program featured two cute ideas that got off the ground but didn't fly. "Quadrille Anyone?", based on the French dance form, made obvious references to turn-of-the-century New Orleans music and ended with a real quadrille. "Salt Ginkgo Nuts," another derivative composition, takes its name and flavor from Gillespie's "Salt Peanuts." Those that knew Diz's classic could smile at the direct borrowing, but like most imitations it fell short of the original.

It stands to reason that someone as accomplished at arranging as Akiyoshi would bring the same flair for dynamics to the pace of the evening. The show's second half built to a crescendo, first with a samba that featured drummer Jeff Hirshfield, then with "Kyoto," which featured an inspired unaccompanied flute solo by Tabakin. Despite some technical difficulties with a tape of kabuki-like voice and taiko (stick drum) that opened and closed the piece, Tabakin's flute interlude was so commanding that it stood as the evening's high point.

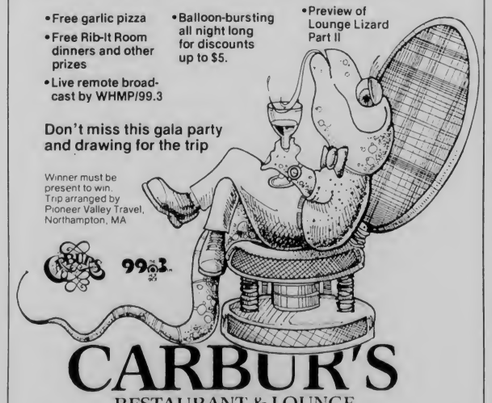
Tabakin went at it again on "Chasin' After Love," this time on tenor. Once more the band dropped out while he stood on the stage edge and blew hot burt measured passages. Tabakin's fluency on both flute and tenor allowed him to get beyond notes. He was chasing ideas.

Special mention should be made of the work of saxophonist Frank Wess, a veteran of the Basie bands of the 50s, whose blusey attack on "A Bit Byased" and "Your Beauty is a Song of Love" gave life to Akiyoshi's ideas.

Toshiko Akiyoshi is one of the most physically articulate bandleaders today. When she pulled on an imaginary chain, the band punched out crisp salvos; when she whirled her arm, the band sped away. However, all this took time away from her considerable piano talents. Perhaps we should find a night the band has off and invite here up again.

ARE YOU PREGNANT & IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
• Some Day Results
Services that are Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

SKI
Berkshire East
25 Trails
4 Chairs
Snow-Making
1190 Vertical
MARCH SCHEDULE
Thurs-Sun days only
$8 lift
$12 lift & rental only with college I.D.
20" to 60" Base
March 16
Blue Brothers Band
1-3 PM in Crazy Horse Lounge
PO Box O
Mohawk Trail
Charlemont, MA
01339



NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN
founded 1870
Circulation 19,000
Serving the Five College Area

Executive Board
Editor in Chief
Dode B Levenson
Managing Editor: Ian Polumbaum
Editorial Editor: Larry Bouchie
Production Managers: Peter Soderberg, Conor Plunkett
Business Managers: Sherry Sharfman, Elizabeth Young

Business Board
Asst. Business Manager
Steve Rubin
Advertising Manager: Paul Lesser
Finance Manager: Vanessa Roth
Asst. Advertising Mgr.: Melissa Forman
Asst. Finance Mgr.: Kim Jackson
Circulation Manager: Craig Naugle
Subscription Manager: Karen Holland

Associate News Editors Jeanette DeForge, Patrick Johnson, Nancy Klingener Associate Editorial Editor Rob Skelton Associate Sports Editor John Nolan Associate Women's Issues Editor Ilona Levenson
Assistant to the Editors Anita L. Rove
Systems Manager Mathew Atkins Assistant Systems Manager Adam Lavine
Business Coordinator James Ristuben Senior Bookkeeper Maureen Majerowski Classified Manager Cathy Chilson Graphics Advisor Faye Whitney Lussier Assistant Subscription Manager Alan Wilcox Advertising Layout Noelle Merlino Marketing Ron Maggio, Randi Schey, Patrice Lawsky Office Assistant Sue Cirella Maintenance Dan Roth Advertising Representatives Nancy Wainhatting, Jon Cole, Michelle Monteagne, Maureen Crowley, Robin Engel, Stacy Wedlenght, Jeff Hammond, Stephanie Zuckes, Robyn Leifer, John Kennedy, Shawn Stepanek, Cozy Wolan, Debbie Stein, Jean Spellberg
Day Graphics Beth Bazinet, Amy Custance, Sue Lattanzi, Betty Ann Murphy, Jim Podesky, Kathy Wheeler, Sarah Cook, Andrew Myerson, Larissa Potapchuk, Jim Rice, Petra Phillip
Librarian Tom Middleton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS permit No.536) a registered student organization at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, is published Monday through Friday excluding holidays, exams and vacation periods. Content is determined solely by the Collegian Board of Editors, without prior approval from University administrators, faculty, staff or student government. Operations are funded solely by advertising and subscription revenue. Subscriptions and advertising rates are available at 113 Campus Center, UMass-Amherst 01003, (413)545-3500.

CALLING ALL LOUNGE LIZARDS:
To Carbur's "Cancun Giveaway Drawing & Going Away Party"
Wednesday, March 12 at 7:30 p.m.
Someone's going to Cancun, Mexico for Spring Break... Whether you're a lounge lizard finalist or not, be at Carbur's Wednesday night to find out who - and have a great time besides!
• Free garlic pizza
• Free Rib-It Room dinners and other prizes
• Live remote broadcast by WHMP/99.3
• Balloon-bursting all night long for discounts up to $5.
• Preview of Lounge Lizard Part II
Don't miss this gala party and drawing for the trip
Winner must be present to win. Trip arranged by Pioneer Valley Travel, Northampton, MA

CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
At the Elmwood Route 9 Hadley 586-1978

SPORT Style
Emboridered Hat assorted colors
$7.95
Long Sleeve Athletic Weight Jersey
$9.95
"Property of" Shorts
$7.95

UNIVERSITY STORE

DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

Early comedians

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

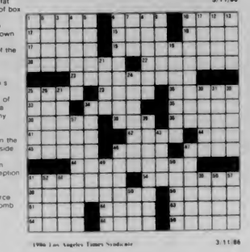
HOUSEMATES
BY R.MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Taxis shape
6 Landon at a
10 Scorch
14 Eliot's "cruelest month"
15 Parisian husband
16 Nimbus
17 Dolphins town
18 Like some sandwiches
20 Observatory mountain
22 Injures
23 Aging
25 Black tie affair
26 Holy Roman emperor
27 Hector
29 Labor org.
33 Computer input
34 Bower of vines
35 Run out
36 Arbitor of a sort, for short
40 Rhone tributary
41 Trims the fat
42 One kind of box
44 Resinous substance
45 Gl from Down Under
46 Possum of the comics
47 Brass
48 Trace
51 Tecumseh's tribe
54 Made use of 58 King cobra
60 Sanctimony
61 Amass
62 Transmit
63 Related on the mother's side
64 Cravings
65 Mannitrom
66 Take exception

DOWN
1 Light source
2 Vision: Comb form
3 Spoken
4 Light yellow
5 Goo
6 Cherub
7 Track circuit
8 Painting on plaster
9 Inasmuch as 10 Smashes
11 Apiece
12 Direction at sea
13 Emblems of authority
19 Aft section on a carrier
21 Wild ox
24 Salon offering
25 Hayworth role
26 Actor Delon
27 Trivs
30 White poplar
31 Marsh birds
32 Standing tall
34 Come down
37 Lucas epic
39 Tennessee Williams role
43 Stentorian
46 Sought booty
47 Frat
49 Intrinsically
50 Made do
51 Holmes's The One
Hoss —
52 Contain
53 Last word
55 Type of spirit
56 Two words from Brutus
57 Beautician, at times
59 In addition

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

U	R	A	L	S		S	L	I	S		P	I	E	T	Y
M	E	R	G	E		I	N	T	I		L	L	A	M	A
B	L	E	W	A	F	U	S	S			L	A	M	A
R	I	C	E		A	D	I	E			L	A	S	T	E
A	C	A	D	E	M	I	C		P	E	W
S	E	I		E	G	O	T	A	R	D		L	O	A
S	P	A	R	E		R	I	B		L	O	W	D	O	W	N
M	I	R	A	C	U	L	O	U	S		I	D	E	E	N
E	T	C	E	T	E	R	A		R	E	E	S	T
W	A	S		R	E	A	L	I	Z	E
			S	I	S		G	R	O	S	S	B	E	A	K
P	I	L	A	F		I	O	N		R	A	V	E
A	L	I	B	I		G	E	N	U	R	A	T	E	D
R	I	F	L	E		R	I	N	G
D	A	T	E	D		O	S	C		D	E	N	S	E

3/11/86

Menu:
LUNCH
French Dip Sandwich
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce
BASICS LUNCH
Humus Vegetable Pocket Sandwich
Eggs Foo Yung/Duc Sauce
DINNER
Chicken Parmesan
Meatballs/Mushroom Sauce
BASICS DINNER
Cheese Mushroom Fondue Bake
Chicken Parmesan

Collegian staff & Correspondents
WORKSHOP:
The Art of Interviewing
Journalism Professor
FRANK FAULKNER
Today at 7:30 p.m. CC 902

WEATHER

Today: Rain or a few showers, temperatures in the 40s or 50s. Tonight: Warmer weather. Tomorrow: Cooler temperatures.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY
Night Editor.....Andrew Wolff
Copy Editor.....Sheryl Jean
Layout Technician.....Tom Middleton
Photo Technician.....Brian Guarnotta
Production Supervisor.....Mark Parker
Production: Matthew Laurence, Nancy Klingener, William Wenzel, Adam Lavine

Collegian photo by Bob Aldrich

Sophomore goalie Paul McCarty is back for the UMass lacrosse team.

★ lacrosse

continued from page 12

Rotatori, freshman David Avidon, sophomore transfer (from Lowell) Chris Miller, sophomore Pat Craig and seniors Mike Tomasello and Dave Mehlhorn will also figure into Garber's plans.

One senior who didn't figure into anyone's plans for 1986 at this time last year is Perry Seale. A midfielder, Seale was elected as one of the captains last year, but was red-shirted with a severe leg injury.

A good scorer, tough defender and aggressive player, Seale will probably see time as a short stick defensive midfielder. New NCAA rules allow only five long-stick defenders on the field at any time, meaning one middie on defense will use a short stick.

Garber used this formation last season and often that player started the fast-break. Seale seems tailor-made for that slot. Cunningham, Tomasello and Stephens will also see action at that position. As always, a Garber-coached team will run-and-gun on offense whenever possible. In the six-on-six half-field game, Carmean and Canella will feed from the sides while looking to create some offense at the crease. On defense, Aldrich, Byrne and Knapp can play anyone with a steady stream of good reserves ready on the bench. The middies have the biggest challenge. If Fisk can be continue to be a steady scoring threat with some younger players developing, they too could be tough. In the pipes, LoCasio has been everything he was expected to be.

The schedule, as usual, is awesome. Four pre-season Top 10 teams (Syracuse, Brown, Rutgers and Cornell) plus powerful Army, Delaware, and Yale join New England rivals New Hampshire (who will be the first home game, April 5th at 1 p.m.), Dartmouth, Boston College, and Harvard along with first-time opponent St. John's.

"It's a tough schedule, one of the toughest," said Garber. "If we do well, we'll get noticed come tourney time.

LET YOUR VOICE BE HEARD!
VOTE TODAY!
SGA President & Trustee, Senate, BOG, Residential Committee & Commuter Area Spokesperson
Monday & Tuesday March 10th & 11th in the Hatch, all D.C.'s, the Newman Center and the New Africa House VOTE TODAY!

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

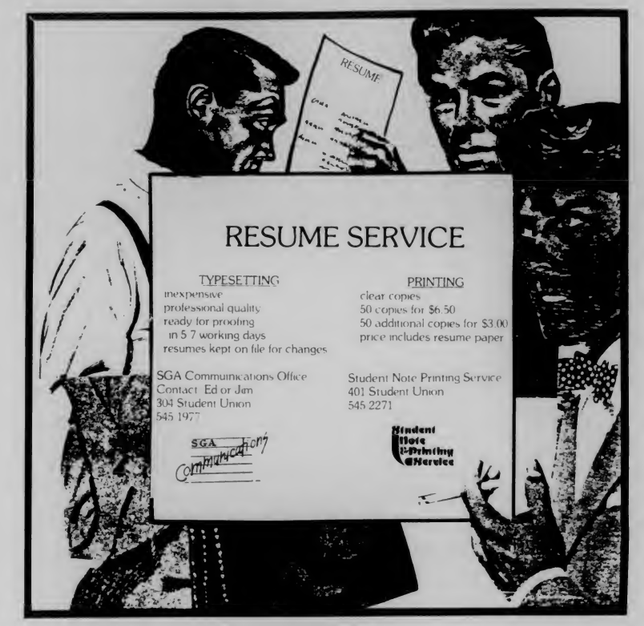
Get In Shape for Spring Break with bathing suit leotards from Dance France
P.S. Lots of sale items too!
Carriage Shops, 233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6915 Mon-Sat 10-6

Sport Style

Open Mesh "Beach Shirt"
$16.95
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
UNIVERSITY STORE



UMASS SKI CLUB GOES DOWN TO FT. LAUDERDALE

Last Chance Hurry!!
SPRING BREAK 86
Budget & Deluxe Hotels on the Strip and/or Flights from Boston and NY
Don't Be Left Out In The Cold
Contact Ski Club at 545-3437
Immediately!!

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6289
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

FOR RENT
2 bedroom apt, heat & hot water
short term lease
discounted rent to $450 due to mid-season opening, on bus rte
South Amherst 256-8534

RESUME SERVICE
TYPESETTING
inexpensive professional quality
ready for proofing
in 5-7 working days
resumes kept on file for changes
PRINTING
clear copies
50 copies for $6.50
50 additional copies for $3.00
price includes resume paper
SGA Communications Office
Contact: Ed or Jan
304 Student Union
545-1977
Student Note Printing Service
401 Student Union
545-2271
SGA Communications
Student Note Printing & Service

UM track teams struggle at Easterns

The University of Massachusetts men's and women's indoor track teams had disappointing days at the Eastern championships held over the weekend.

The men, at Princeton, failed to score a point at the IC4A championships while the women, competing at Yale in the ECAC title meet, had a fifth place in a relay and finished with two points.

"We didn't have a good day, I don't think the kids were mentally prepared," said men's coach Ken O'Brien. "If we had done the times we're capable of, we would've placed in the relays we entered, but we didn't."

"It was a mixture of bad luck, bad running and just a bad day," said women's coach Kalekeni Banda. "But we're pretty young and we'll have better days ahead."

For the women, the mile relay team of Chris Bates, Wendy Marshall, Barbara Cullinan and Kayla Morrison was fifth in a school record 3:50.59. The UMass long jumpers and hurdlers did poorly, not making it into the finals as expected.

George Mason won the meet, followed by Penn State, Villanova and Temple.

For the men, Peter Leary was seventh in the 3,000 with an 8:19.5, but missed the finals by a tenth of a second. The mile relay team of Larry Cuddy, Neil Osbourne, Rick LaBarge and Rawle Crichlow was 13th in a slow (for them) 3:21.22. The two mile relay, capable of a 7:43, turned a 7:50.4 and didn't make the finals. The distance medley team was 9th overall, missing the finals by three tenths of a second with a 10:04.37. Villanova won the meet, followed by Penn State.

JVS SUMMER INTERNSHIP PROGRAM
Placement opportunities available in:
- business & finance
- communications
- government
- human services
- sciences
- & many other fields

For more information contact:
Beatrice Weinerman
Jewish Vocational Service
31 New Chardon Street
Boston, MA 02114
(617) 723-2846
JVS

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon Thurs; 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

J.H. Matthews - painting, poetry, and surrealism. "Tenderly the Ambition" Tues. March 11 8:00 pm CC 160 all welcome. Sponsored by Comparative Literature

Cheerleading Tryouts! All UMass men and women invited to attend. Begin 3/31 watch for Collegian advertisement

AUDIO

Brand new stereo components at real low prices. 546-9158, leave message

AUTO FOR SALE

78 Mustang Hatchback low mile, new tires. 2400 or BO 323-7412 after 3:30

Honda Accord, must sell this week $1500 or BO call 253-9693

72 Ford Mustang w/o engine body in ex cellent shape no rust new exhaust, suspension & brakes BO call 549-6624

1981 Ford Escort GLX wagon good condition, runs well $2200 546-5761

1978 Gremlin new muffler & tires 56,000 original mileage $600. 532-4425

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7436

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DAYTONA SPRING BREAK '86

Rooms still available at Perrod's Plaza Hotel in Daytona Beach for $20.00 per person, per night, quad occupancy. The motion is at Perrod's Plaza Hotel this Spring Break! Call 1-800-53-Beach for reservations

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances - sewing machines - clocks - blenders - vacuum cleaners. House call and shop repair. Amherst Repair 253-2820

ENTERTAINMENT

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disk-jockeys to your home and Hrs. 256-0815

Rack-A-Disc Entertainment Disc-jockeys, light shows, large screen video shows, call 549-7444 24 hr.

FOOD DEMONSTRATORS

Are you energetic and friendly with a knowledge of natural foods? Work part-time, flexible hours. Must have own car. Will train. Call 584-0660 or 1-800-topnotch

FOR RENT

Amherst rooms available immediately also summer sublet-fall option rooms Roy 256-0226, eves 549-6746

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $450 please call Kenny, 545-2204 or 665-7146

Across the street! Sublet small bedroom in large house. Female only, no pets, no smokers. $300/month through 8/31. $180 plus utilities. 549-6922

1 bedroom apartment for rent with option to take over lease. $299 per month in elusive 421 Southwood Apts 253-7832

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric six-string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6409

1961 Chevrolet Chevette good condition snowtires automatic aircondition radio 2,500 best offer call 584-5278

Rossignol 150's exc cond Salomon bindings and poles must sell Bo call 549-0462 ask for Noelle

Ski Bindings brand new Geze 950 $75 or best offer 549-7875

Smith-Corona Electric Typewriter call 256-0825 ask for Jeffrey after five

Canon Camera Set: A-1, 50/1.4, 28/2.8, 70-210/4, 100/2.8, new motor drive MA/B/, new silk 1-212, many extras, all in excellent condition. $750 or BO 665-8761

FOUND

Watch in front of Chenoweth Lab call to identify 549-2877 Jake

" GAMELIN "

It isn't worry. I hear Quantities
Inscription in the summertime
Semper Ubi Revert R.G.

HELP WANTED

Summer Jobs in Alaska (free) income. Many opportunities! Employers' listings, 1986 Summer Employment Guide $7.95 Alaska, Box 30752, Seattle, WA 98103

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mil dollar firm. Full-time, part-time and student shifts. Part training wages from $4 to $25, also bonuses + sales report. Must have car. Call 584-0660 or 1-800-topnotch

Butterfield Kitchen is now accepting applications for the position of Asst Manager for the 86-87 academic year. Position offers: free room and board. Valuable experience. Applications available in the Butterfield Kitchen Office Application deadline 5:00 PM March 24

TELEMARKETERS WANTED $5-10/hr plus bonus. Must be available 8:30 am to 10:30 am experience preferred call Josh 549-3754

HEY ELLY ERUBE!

Have a great Birthday! Luv, Ally, Elley

INSTRUCTION

Stage Combat Workshop - ideal for the actor & non-actor alike. Basic hand-to-hand & beginning sword play. Call for information 549-2806

Jewelry Making
- class forming- to start after break
- Jacquelin Vagts 549-6539

LOST

Reward lost during last 2 or 3 weeks York highschool ring and ear key on Yukon Jack keyring 256-1292

Pair of glasses, gray case lost on 3/4 please call Leanne 546-5481

Gold link bracelet lost 3-6 very sentimen tal $ reward please call Barry 549-6138

Maroon Wallet very important. Has sentimental value. Please call Suzanne at 546-3361 no questions asked REWARD!

Lost beige gray canvas purse on Thurs 3/6 it contains all ID's if you've found it please call Jane 549-1496

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAV is looking for bands to perform during the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 27th - May 4th). Applications available in the SW Office in Hampden. Application deadline April 11, 5PM!

George Parkhurst I heard you got my number so why don't you call Melanie

We grind to a speed
- per your fresh ground and whole
- beans. Try us at the People's Market
- Natural Food Center
- of course

Denise Forbes for Student Trustee. Vote Today!

Yo Queen only 60 days. See I am paying attention, but are you?

Sue Kropp Happy Birthday love you always Me

JJ Happy Birthday! Love Karen, Sue, and Sharon. Hope that's the end of the list. I warned you about this personal. I couldn't resist! Happy Birthday to you too John

Sue - Congrats on 2nd degree, you're half way there! Get psyched for Maine! Love Maureen

Attention: Lifeguards need First-Aid (21-hr) certification! Could mean better job, more $$ & plus people needed for course on campus call 6-6749 late eve. leave name, phone, local address

The light at the end of the tunnel may harbor a hit but THE ASSOCIATION will live on forever! Right????

DENISE FORBES
FOR STUDENT TRUSTEE
PLEASE VOTE TODAY!

I'm voting for Denise Forbes for Student Trustee. You know who

Doo! Happy #25. Hope your day is a special one. Thanks for everything. Lots of love, you 'CUP' Doo

To my everlasting love Maureen Crowley. Perhaps some day we will be together. I know you think Joe is the one for you but you are wrong. The radiance and glow of your everlasting tan gives me goosebumps when will we ever tangle together? You know where to find me. XO Joe

John Kennedy, Spring is almost here! It's time to get into shape and start attending our 9:45 Tennis Jam! You don't want the women to loose interest. John what would I do without you and our good humor? Love Maureen Lost Kelly Patrus Mullen – I want to see you!

Happy Birthday James and John! I love you guys, even though you do drive me nuts sometimes... But chin, what little brothers are for, isn't it?! Have a wonderful 19th, love your favorite Chemie-dent sister

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

R.A. INFORMATION SESSIONS

Tonight and every night through Wednesday there will be R.A. Information Sessions around campus. Tonight's will be on the 12th of J.A. or Southwest at 7:30. You must attend and information session in order to apply!

REWARD $200

Looking to take over lease of a 4 bedroom house, Brandywine Apt or Townhouse call 546-9865 or 546-9602

RIDE WANTED

Desperate for a ride to and from Chicago over Spring Break!!! Call Jeff 549-2808

Ride needed to Wellesley Friday 3/15 and back 3/23 will share expenses call Elizabeth 6-6052

ROOMMATE WANTED

One male nonsmoking for 2 bedroom townhouse apt for fall semester Jay 546-9089

Male housemates wanted to share house in Hyannis, Cape Cod for summer Call 546-1200

One room in 3 bedroom Northampton Apt - 5 min walk to town, 150 plus call 584-7411

To take over lease. House in Amherst, on bus route. $125, female, nonsmoking Chris or Meg 253-9892

1 room in 5 bedroom house fly from campus unfurnish available immediately call after five 256-6228

Need roommates for summer on cape Cod call now 546-4717

Female to share room in Brandywine immediate opening $145 mo call Susan 549-0186

SACRIFICE!

Sacrifice! 2-bedroom Sunderland. First and security free! Reference! Prefer one. 1881

SERVICES

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Call anytime 665-7642

COINS 121-123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grocer consultant Alex 256-1289

Light Moving with Toyota Truck call 549-2649

Professional word processing (typing) in his/her office 665-3661

Typing, Tape Transcription Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime 665-7642

SHAWN & STACY

Hippo Birdie to Ewe Two
Hippo Birdie to Ewe Two
Hippo Birdie to Ewe Two Ewe Two

SUMMER HELP WANTED

Plan an excellent summer in the Berkshires now. Camp Becket is looking for an assistant Waterfront Director. You must be 21 years old and have your WSI. It will be a rewarding experience with extraordinary people. Call Peter at 256-1203 before Spring Break

TRAVEL

Last chance for Spring Break with Luv Tours. Motel 1108 Daytona has $106, hotel in Fort Lauderdale 1808 has 125$ call Mark 549-6173, Ken 549-1749, Grad 549-6850, John 549-6493

VOTE • VOTE • VOTE • VOTE

Vote today for your Trustee and President, BOG, Senate seats, Residential Committee and Commuter Area Spokesperson in all D.C.'s, the Hatch Newman Center, and New Africa House. Let's hear your voice!!

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect (203) 563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 11th floor Tobin Hall.

Wanted 2 Dead tix for April 4 at Hartford mark 6-8710

WANTED TO RENT

$100 reward to take over lease for 2 bedroom Brandywine apt in May call Mark 546-5116 or Dave 6-5078

We'll pay $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus call 546-9865

WE NEED L.A.

Two round trip tickets to L.A. needed call Pete or Bob 6-8692

SPORTS

Sports Information photo

Senior midfielder Greg Fisk and the University of Massachusetts men's Lacrosse team open up on Sunday at Air Force.

Men's lacrosse preview

Gorillas are on a mission

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Students at Duke or North Carolina have their basketball team. Oklahoma has the football squad. At the University of Massachusetts, there's lacrosse.

The men's lacrosse team at UMass is the only nationally powerful Division 1 men's sport at the school, and with that comes a responsibility that coach Dick Garber's Gorillas haven't lived up to over the past few seasons.

"I feel we've let people down, we've eaten a lot of crow," said senior co-captain Tom Aldrich. "People come out to Boyden to see a nationally-elite team and we haven't produced."

"To say we're hungry is an understatement," said senior co-captain Steve Moreland. "We have a lot to prove."

In past season's Garber's teams have attained Top 10 standing. Traditionally, UMass students pack Boyden Hill for lacrosse games, counting on the Gorillas to provide them with a nationally-ranked, powerhouse team and the fun that comes with that kind of success.

The banners, t-shirts, painters hats and bumper stickers that accompany nationally-ranked teams were all there last year, the fans even threw oranges at Syracuse when the top-ranked Orangemen visted Boyden, but the lacrosse wasn't up there as UMass struggled to a 6-8 record, their second losing season in three years. UM hasn't been in the NCAA tournament since 1981. The desire to return to that level is as high as ever. The team, the coaching staff and players feel, is back to where it belongs. For excitement-starved UMass sports fans, that is a good sign.

Five starters and 12 regulars return from last season's team. Add three good junior-college transfers and the best freshman talent to ever attend UMass (thanks to first-time scholarship support) and the prospects are high.

"I'd say we've taken care of the problems we had last season, we've filled the spots we needed to fill," said Garber, who is entering his 32nd season at UMass as a member of the lacrosse Hall-of-Fame and one of three active coaches to have over 200 victories.

The problems last season were on defense. UMass allowed 162 goals, an average of 11.6 a game. Those figures represents the most goals allowed in UMass history. The Gorillas' crease defense was solid as was the goaltending, but opponents took advantage of a weak defensive midfield to send their middies in almost unmolested to the cage.

Offensively, the Gorillas scored close to 13 goals-a-game, but suffered from a lack of firepower in clutch situations. UMass lost by one goal three times, two goals twice and three goals once. With the additions made, both problems seem cured.

Junior attckman Tom Carmean is back, and carries with him All-America credentials (he was third team last season) as he scored 28 goals and handed out 34 assists, despite missing three games with a shoulder separation.

"Tommy is in a class by himself," said Garber. "He can shoot, he can feed from the side and he handles pressure well."

Joining Carmean on the attack will be Nassau junior college transfer Greg Canella, the juco attackman-of-the-year. A strong shooter and passer, Canella combines with Carmean to give the Gorillas a solid 1-2 punch that opponents will have trouble defending.

The third attckman will probably be sophomore Kelley Carr. A 5-6, 145-pounder, Carr isn't going to knock anyone over getting to the goal, but he's creative. Junior Ed Boardman, freshman Chris Tyler and junior Doug Musco will also see action.

On defense, Aldrich and fellow senior Gerry Byrne return to give UM good cornermen. Aldrich was all-New England last season and is All-America material this year. Byrne is an outstanding stickhandler and uses his 6-4 frame to full advantage. All New England pick Mark Stratton was felled by grades and transfered out, but 6-3, 210 pound juco-transfer Chris Knapp will roam the middle in his absence. A tough slider to the ball, Knapp takes the hitting responsibility away from Aldrich and Byrne and lets them handle the finesse aspects. Juco product John Jordan, sophomore Scott Craig, and freshmen Adam Rodell, Jeff Salanger, Matt Woods and Tom Bonnett will all see time on the crease or as defensive midfielders.

"We'll have d-middie depth and depth on the crease defense, which we needed last season," said Aldrich. "Plus they're excellent players."

The goaltending position is in the hands of high school All-American Sal LoCasio, a Long Island product that was the subject of an intense recruiting war. Sophomores Paul McCarty and Quint Moores are good backups.

The midfield is the only real question. With a lack of practice time due to the weather, no true lines have developed. Senior Greg Fisk, an all-New England player as a sophomore, is back and looking good. He will join junior Neal Cunningham, sophomore Glenn Stephens, Moreland, freshman Brett Jenks and senior Rich Abbott as the players that will make up the first two lines. Brad Carr and freshmen Greg Collins and Chris Zusi will contribute to a third line.

Face-off king Seamus McGovern is also back. The senior madman won over 80 percent of his face-offs last season and may be called on to contribute more than the one goal and two assists he had last season.

Junior Scott Santeralla, sophomore Al

continued on page 10

Why Gorillas?

The varsity teams at the University of Massachusetts are nicknamed the Minutemen, with the exception of the lacrosse teams which have been tabbed the Gorillas (for the men) and the Gazelles (for the women).

Why? To make a long story short, a girlfriend of one of the players in the late 1960's drew a gorilla in a lacrosse uniform and the team combined head coach Dick Garber's name and the drawing to form "Garber's Gorillas." The women then eventually adopted Gazelles as their nickname.

Lacrosse notebook

Air Force a challenge

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

On Sunday, the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team will face the United States Air Force Academy in its opening game of the 1986 season.

The game will mark the second time the Gorillas will have played outside this season, and coach Dick Garber is leery at that thought.

"I really don't like the fact that we haven't been outside, with the exception of one scrimmage two weeks ago," said the coach. "Air Force has already played their opener, by the time we get there, they will have played four games."

Air Force easily handled Drew University last week, administering a 12-1 beating on the New Jersey school.

"We were supposed to scrimmage this past weekend on Springfield's turf, but the snow killed that," said Garber. "It'll be tough to face Air Force, but we should be ready. Between the altitude (in Colorado Springs) and our lack of quality practice time, we'll have to watch out for them."

Gorilla Grumblings: Garber is searching for a full-time assistant coach, a position that was scheduled to be filled last semester. While the search is on, he has an all-time high of three grad assistants along with volunteer coach Kevin Campbell. Guy Van Arsdale, a grad assistant, has applied for the full-time assistants job.

Sports Information photo

Lacrosse coach Dick Garber is entering his 32nd year at the University of Massachusetts.

Lacrosse '86

Coach: Dick Garber (32nd year 249-123-4).

Assistants: Eric Kemp (third year), Kevin Campbell (fourth year), Guy Van Arsdale (first year) and Jeff Thomsen (first year).

Last Season: 6-8, 17th nationally.

Captains: Tom Aldrich (senior, defenseman) and Steve Moreland (senior, midfielder) will serve as co-captains.

Top Returning Players: Aldrich (2 goals, 0 assists 2 points - defense); Tom Carmean (28-35-63 - attack); Greg Fisk (18-7-25 - midfield); Doug Musco (12-2-14 - attack); Kelley Carr (10-3-13 - attack) and Seamus McGovern (1-2-3, 80 of face-offs - midfield).

Top Newcomers: Greg Canella (junior college transfer - attack); Chris Knapp (junior college transfer - defense); John Jordan (junior college tranfer - defense); Sal LaCasio (freshman - goalie); Adam Rodell (freshman - defense); and Brett Jenks (freshman - midfield).

Key Losses: Mike Fiorini (22-15-37 - attack); Tom Lukacovic (23-12-35 - attack) and Gerry Moreau (9.9 goals against average - goalie).

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 32

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1986

INSIDE

•A student survival guide for Spring Break. Page 3.
•Editorial columnist Tim Harris on "the new right" at UMass. Page 5.
•The women's softball team is ready, see the preview. Page 12.

Senate finally passes budget for '87

Drum is not funded; Ruddock dodges critics

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate passed the fiscal year 1987 Student Government Association budget last night, after two weeks of controversy.

At the start of the meeting, senators watched a 25-minute video of speaker John Ruddock, giving more attention to the television than they ever gave to him in person. Before the meeting, Ruddock selected senator John Crowley form Field House to fill the role as speaker.

With the budget, the senate reached a compromise on funding for five registered student organizations, but did not fund Drum magazine.

Budgets Committee Chairman Jordan Rosner said $1,000 was taken from a stablization account within the SGA and budgeted for the African Students Association. Money for operating expenses was given to the Radical Student Union, the Republican Club, the Peacemakers, and CASA, he said. Drum could not be funded under the SGA budget because negotiations for outside funding collapsed, Rosner said.

The committee did not recommend giving funding to Drum because they said the magazine is linked with a class, Afro-American Studies 317.

"There is nothing in the compromise monthly newspaper] have to look for outside funding? This is ridiculous," Alfred said.

In the Ruddock situation, the speaker, who faced five motions asking for him to step down from his position, chose not to attend the meeting and instead made arrangements for his suprise presentation. about Drum; it is no compromise," said Stephen Alfred, a senator from the Third World Caucus.

The budget was passed on a role call vote, 34-19. Last Wednesday, some senators walked out of the meeting in protest of the cuts to Third World organizations.

"Why should an RSO look for funding outside of the SATF [Student Activities Trust Fund]? Does the Republican Club or the Minuteman [a conservative student

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Student Government Association senators watch as speaker John Ruddock opens the meeting with a videotaped message.

With his term as speaker ending last night, Ruddock spoke of the future and said if members of the senate are "to reach your full potential as senators, you have to talk to each other."

Late in the meeting, Paul Wingle, of Central, was elected senate speaker by a 38-20 vote, and will officially take his position April 1.

Wingle said he is "euphorious" by his victory, but added that his foe, senator Joel Rabinowitz from Southwest, was a good opponent.

"The euphoria is tempered with a bit of regret that it had to be Joel," Wingle said. "He's put years in the senate, done advocate work for the Jewish community, and it is a shame we both peaked at this time."

Wingle said he will "Foster an atmosphere where mutual respect and good cogent debate can thrive. To reach out to those new senators."

One of the biggest problems facing the senate is what the administration perceives of it, Wingle said.

"The University does not respect the students' say in their own quality of life," Wingle said. "Much of that is rooted in the administration's disdain of general infighting within the senate." He added that he will try to create a good environment so senators will feel part of a real process.

Rabinowitz said, "I think both of us were pretty qualified. I'm very happy that if it wasn't me it was Paul."

Wingle had been Ruddock's assistant and served as senate parliamentarian.

Olver proposal will aid state schools

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

State Sen. John Olver, D-Amherst, yesterday outlined his reasons for co-sponsoring a bill that, if passed, would secure an additional $25 million in state aid for Massachusetts college students.

Senate Bill 279 seeks to alleviate the effect of a possible $120 million cut in federal student aid generated by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction law and President Reagan's aid proposals.

In a telephone interview, Olver said that even if Congress reduces the federal cuts, they will still be disastrous for the state.

"If the federal government only cuts $50 million, Massachusetts aid will be reduced to $350 million. If we raise $20 to $25 million on the state level we won't be able to pick it all up. We will only be able to replace aid lost, never mind add anything, " he said.

Reagan has proposed to combine certain student aid categories, which Olver said would reduce total outlays for aid.

"They have proposed to combine Supplemental Economic Opportunity Grants and State Student Incentive Grants. The combined program has half the money the two programs did before.

"They are cutting very deeply, and saying it is just reorganization is bullshit," he said.

Arthur Jackson, director of financial aid at UMass, said of Bill 279, "It has a very strong chance of passing. Financial aid is a top priority of the state Legislature."

Jackson said 16,000 students at UMass receive financial aid. If the situation does not change, he said, about 5,000 would lose awards and thousands more would get reduced assistance. He said that under the first round of cuts mandated by the deficit law, UMass stands to lose $1.6 million in student aid funds for next year.

Olver said the Massachusetts Higher Education Assistance Corporation estimated the total state loss in student financial aid would be $120 million. That would be about 30 percent in fiscal year 1987 if no changes are made in the deficit law and in Reagan's proposals.

Close results may void SGA elections

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

In the Student Government Association presidential election held earlier this week, Bill Bennett finished ahead of opponent Lynne Murphy by a margin of eight votes.

Bennett recieved 1,045 votes to Murphy's 1,037, in the final count. A recount yesterday afternoon preserved the eight-vote margin, Karen Morvay of the SGA Governmental Affairs Committee said.

The Undergraduate Student Senate was expected to approve a runoff election between the two candidates but did not reach the motion before the deadline for today's Collegian.

Morvay said the runoff would be held the week after spring break, if the Senate approves the motion.

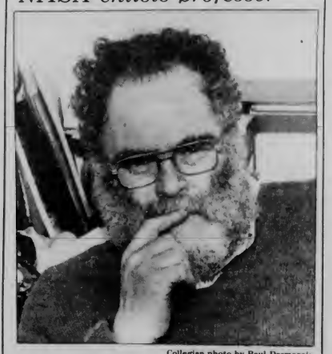
Murphy said a runoff is essential to settle the presidential race. "It is too close to know what the students really want," she said.

In the election for SGA trustee, Dani Burgess, the incumbant SGA co-president, topped John Galt Sparks by more than 360 votes.

Sparks said yesterday that it may be necessary to have two runoff elections because Burgess did not receive one-third of the vote to be considered a mandate from the students.

Of the 2,725 votes cast for trustee, Burgess received 919 votes, or 32.43 percent - 25 votes less than necessary for a clear mandate.

Burgess said yesterday that a runoff election for trustee would be "absurd."



"A [368] vote margin is a clear enough victory for me. If I had lost by that much, there would be no question about it in my mind," he said.

SGA election bylaws do not state that there has to be a run-off to settle close elections. The governmental Affairs Committe has the authority to request to the senate that a runoff be held, Morvay said.

The last runoff election for SGA president was held in April 1982, between the ticket of Steve Robinson and Harvey Ashman, and Jim Murphy, who finished second. Murphy won the second election.

"The Governmental Affairs Committee has pulled off another successful election, I am satisfied with the whole campaign and election. By and large the whole campaign was above-board," Morvay said.

NASA enlists professor

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

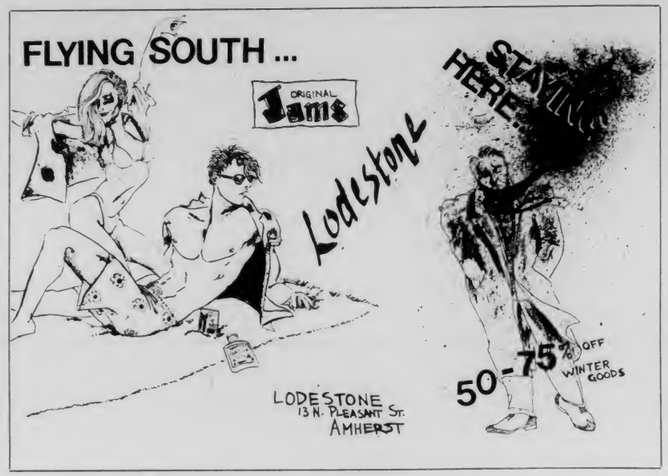
Journalism professor Howard Ziff has been chosen by NASA to head a committee to select finalists for the first journalist in space. See story page 3.

COMING AFTER SPRING BREAK:

A CLOSER LOOK

•Sexual harassment. How does the University deal with grievances? Does the system work the way it is supposed to? By Ilana Levenson.

•Faculty merit pay. Each year University departments distribute more than $1.5 million in bonuses to faculty members. How are the allocations made? Are they fair? By Chris Poon.



James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6999
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

HAPPY BIRTHDAY YVONNE!
Love, Larry

LOSE UP TO TEN POUNDS IN JUST TWO WEEKS.

Pam Weisman's
Diet Center
664 Main St., Amherst
253-9580
Mon-Fri 7am to 11 am
4 pm to 5 pm
Sat 8 am to 10:30 am
DIET CENTER

Pride and respect.
They come with the territory.

It's one of the first things you'll notice as a Navy Officer. The recognition that you've got what it takes to Lead the Adventure.

That adventure can lead you around the world and back again. And along the way you're picking up experience that builds confidence it takes years to get elsewhere.

There's no boot camp. College graduates start with management and leadership training at Officer Candidate School. Once commissioned, you'll have even more educational opportunities that can further professional growth.

You'll uncover your potential and get the responsibility and decision-making authority success needs. The challenge, satisfaction and rewards add up to personal and profcssional growth no other job can match.

When you Lead the Adventure you start out with pride and respect. It puts you a step ahead. Contact your Navy Officer Recruiter or call 1-800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

free catalog★
Europe
From BOS ROM round trip from LONDON 349
PARIS 439
AMSTERDAM 418
BRUSSELS 398
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 when busy 256-1261 or drop by
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

the Hungry U Restaurant

One Delivery Only
FREE POTATO SKINS*
with any entree order or large one item (or more) pizza with this coupon until 3-16-86 *one free potato skins per order
Free Delivery
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

R & P
Beer
Wine
Stop Here For Beer and Wine
2 miles south of Amherst on Rt 116
Riverglade, Brittany Manor, Hampshire
This is your closest package store
R & P Package Store 253-9742

UM professor will lead panel for NASA

By LISA DIMEO
Collegian Staff

The director of the University of Massachusetts journalistic studies program has been chosen to lead a local review panel involved in the national selection process for NASA's "journalist in space" project.

NASA has selected journalism professor Howard M. Ziff, along with several of his colleagues, to screen applicants who wish to be participants in a space shuttle mission. The University's panel is one of 20 nationwide and the only one in Massachusetts.

Ziff said that aside from requiring US citizenship, NASA has left the criteria for selection entirely up to the panelists.

"I think we need somebody who's straightforward and objective," Ziff said. "We don't want a cheerleader for NASA."

But while he seeks someone who is unbiased, Ziff noted that the person selected as a crew member must "know something about space going in; they must have some knowledge of the field."

The UMass panel includes professors Frank Faulkner and Dario Politella and lecturer Arthur Clifford, all from the journalism program; with Dan Okrent, editor of New England Monthly magazine; Bernard Caughey, editor of the Quincy Patriot Ledger; and Emily Rooney, assistant news editor at WCVB-TV in Boston.

Of the 1,700 who have applied nationwide, the panelists will screen 85 applicants. However, they will not participate in the final selection of the journalist in space. After reviewing the 12-page applications, which will include essays and questionnaires, six semifinalists will be chosen.

"We're going to pick the handful of applicants that goes on to the second screening," Ziff said.

As head of the committee, Ziff found that one of his first tasks was to see if there were any "conflicts of interest" between the panelists and those they would be judging, he said. If there were a conflict, that applicant would have to be judged by another panel.

Ziff declined to name any of the journalists who applied, saying only, "There is a higher proportion of celebrity journalists in the Northeast."

The other regional panels are located at Syracuse and Rutgers universities and the University of Connecticut.

The panel meets Friday to review the applicants.

Group starts for Lesbians

A lesbian issues group will start meeting next semester, as an opportunity for lesbians at the University of Massachusetts to gather weekly.

"What we hope is that the group will provide a safe and supportive atmosphere to look at a number of issues that lesbians typically face in our society," said Felice Yeskel, co-director of the Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns. She will facilitate the group, along with Mary Aubrey of the Everywoman's Center.

The group, co-sponsored by the program and the center, will discuss isolation, relating to friends and family, dealing with internalized oppression, and forming and maintaining relationships, Yeskel said.

The group was formed because support groups run by Mental Health Services are "inadequate for their [lesbians'] needs," she said.

"Lesbian and gay students don't feel comfortable going to those groups," she said. "It seemed that there was a real need and no other service was meeting that need."

The group will meet for six weeks, starting March 25, from 12:30 to 2 p.m. in the Campus Center. Those interested should contact either the Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns or Everywoman's Center for more information or to pre-register.

—NANCY KLINGENER

FYI

Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, an Irish nationalist and former member of the British Parliment, is scheduled to speak at 8 p.m. today in the Student Union Ballroom. McAliskey, a feminist author, will speak on Northern Ireland and her personal experiences fighting against the British occupation of the territory. The speech is sponsored by the Radical Student Union.

Collegian photo by Paul Franz

HANGING OUT—Rebekah Finstein walks through a "floatinghouse deadman," a sculpture at the Fine Arts Center. The exhibit is there through Sunday.

Dealing with illness

Committee can help

By JENNIFER ACE
Collegian Correspondent

Students who face a serious or terminal illness within their family can turn to various resources on campus for counseling and related services.

The Committee for Coping with Terminal Disease, which formed in January, has been meeting in an effort to explore coping with terminal illness. The committee also assembles campus resources to assist students.

During a forum in the Campus Center yesterday afternoon, Judy Davis of the Office of Human Relations said the committee hopes to define what a person could find helpful in coping with terminal illness.

"We hope to put the topic on the campus agenda and to gather and distribute information about the resources available to both students and faculty members," Davis said.

The faculty members from various departments, and staff from mental health and counseling agencies attending the forum, said they noticed more students reaching for assistance.

"I saw an identifiable problem when I noticed that many students petitioning to be reinstated to the University were claiming that they had left school due to death in the family," said Elizabeth Petroff, a professor in the comparative literature department.

David Kraft, director of University Health Services, said, "Psychosomatic problems stemming from the family death" can be treated at Health Services. However, he added, "we see [counsel] only six percent of the student body a year."

Some of the counseling services available are through Health Services' mental health division, the Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall, and the Psychological Services Center in Tobin Hall.

Beware of skin cancer while baking over break

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

With spring break only a few days away and many people leaving cold New England for hotter climates, health authorities stress that overexposure to the sun is the most common cause of skin cancer.

According to the American Cancer Society, nearly all of the 400,000 cases of skin cancer reported annually are sun-related. The rate of skin cancer is higher in southern and southwestern states than elsewhere in the country, the Society said.

Skin cancer results from an accumulation of sun exposure to ultraviolet rays over many years, said Dr. Bruce Goldstein, a dermatologist in Florence.

"There isn't a lot known about skin cancer," said Albey Reiner, associate professor of microbiology at UMass, who teaches the popular course "Microbiology of Cancer." There are three main types of skin cancer; basal and squamous carcinoma and malignant melanoma, he said.

Most sun-related skin cancers fall into the first two categories, which are not life-threatening if they are detected early and removed. Most skin cancer deaths are attributed to malignant melanoma.

Especially vulnerable to skin cancer are those who work outside and those with fair skin, blond or red hair. Persons with freckles are also susceptible to overexposure to the sun because they lack sufficient quantities of melanin, a pigment that helps filter the sun's rays.

To prevent skin cancer it is advised to avoid repeated strong exposure to the sun, especially between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. when the sun's rays are strongest, and to wear protective clothing.

Goldstein advises wearing a sunblock, such as zinc oxide, which totally blocks out the sun's rays, or at least a sunscreen which absorbs the sun's ultraviolet rays and permits gradual tanning. The most effective ingredient to look for in a sunscreen is PABA, para-aiminobenzoic acid, a chemical that filters out ultraviolet rays.

Persons taking tetracycline medication should be careful when in the sun because it makes the skin more sensitive, Pellis said.

Spring skiers should also be aware of over-exposure to the sun since snow reflects 85 percent of the sun's rays, said Kathy Crosson, director of health education at University Health Services.

"It's important to be aware of personal risk and know what you can do to protect yourself against skin cancer," she said.

Ft. Lauderdale implements a code of ethics

By MINDY A. ANTONIO
Collegian Staff

The city of Fort Lauderdale is greeting spring break celebrants this year with what city officials promise is the most organized spring break ever.

The Spring Break Task Force, formed eight months ago in response to residents' complaints about the chaotic annual influx of college students, is implementing a code of ethics which all visitors are expected to follow, said Ina Lee, head of public relations for the task force.

The document, which will be posted in bars, hotels and restaurants in Fort Lauderdale, outlines "manners of behavior" and emphasizes two major changes in alcohol laws: Florida's drinking age was raised to 21 last year, and no open containers of alcohol will be allowed in beach areas.

"Obviously, our aim is to improve behavior, but the code's not a grocery list of do's and don'ts," Lee said. "We want students to have fun, but to realize Fort Lauderdale's not only a place for them to vacation for six weeks each year, it's our home."

The "College Games," a program of coed sporting events open to all students, will be held daily on the beach. Anheuser-Busch, the games' sponsor, will award cash prizes and give $1,000 scholarships to the schools that garner the most awards, Lee said.

To combat traffic problems, a pedestrian walkway has been constructed along route A1A, the "strip" that separates hotels and businesses from the beach. The task force urges visitors not to use cars to get around the city.

Fort Lauderdale sees more than 400,000 students vacation there during the six-week spring break period each year. The city spends an estimated $750,000 annually on handling the crowds, mostly for sanitation, added police presence and organizing events.

FOR RENT
2 bedroom apt. heat & hot water
short term lease
discounted rent to $450 due to mid-season opening, on bus rte
South Amherst 256-8534

Professional Consultation & Style Haircut $10.00
with Shampoo + Blowdry $12.50
Featuring:
Design Perming
Dimensional Highlighting
Deep Reconditioning
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive,
Amherst, 549-5610
expires March 14, 1986

For the 1986 Stanford Summer Session Bulletin and application, mail this coupon to Stanford Summer Session, Building 10, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305.

STANFORD SUMMER

NAME
ADDRESS
CITY
STATE
ZIP

JUNE 23 THROUGH AUGUST 16

Test yourself.

Which early pregnancy test is as easy to read as red, no—white, yes?

Which is a simple one-step test?

Which has a dramatic color change to make the results unmistakable?

Which is 98% accurate, as accurate as many hospital and lab tests?

Which is portable for convenience and privacy?

e.p.t. plus
You're right.
You get a Plus!

THE RADICAL STUDENT UNION PRESENTS

Bernadette Devlin McAliskey

ON HOPE and DESPAIR
IN NORTHERN IRELAND
TONIGHT!

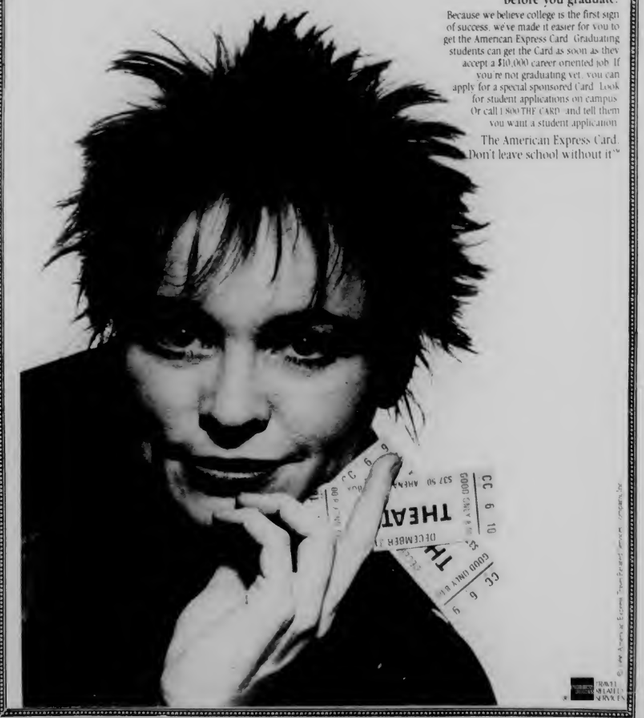
FREE!

Thursday, March 13th
8:00 PM
Student Union Ballroom, UMass

Bernadette Devlin McAliskey is a feminist activist from Northern Ireland who has been active in the republican reunification movement for two decades.

Funding provided in part by: Commuter Area Government, Graduate Student Senate, Student Government Association, Campus Fund for Social Awareness Programming

How to buy a performance.



You can use the American Express® Card to buy concert tickets for your favorite groups or airplane tickets for your vacations. It's the perfect way to pay for all the little things, and the big ticket items, that you'll want during college.

How to get the Card before you graduate.

Because we believe college is the first sign of success, we've made it easier for you to get the American Express Card. Graduating students can get the Card as soon as they accept a $10,000 career oriented job. If you're not graduating yet, you can apply for a special sponsored Card. Look for student applications on campus. Or call 1 800 THE CARD and tell them you want a student application.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.™

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Jan Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Shaffman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Jan Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Cottidis, News Editor
John Vonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segal, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Support the blood drives

While many of us prepare for Spring Break, blood donors and people from the American Red Cross will be giving up some of their time today for an equally worthy type of preparation.

The local Red Cross staff has had good success at the University, and has expressed appreciation for this support. However, they also note that their collection process requires continual participation.

Recognizing this, the Collegian has chosen to sponsor a blood drive from 10:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. today in room 176 of the Campus Center. We hope many students will join us by supporting the Red Cross, and by participating in today's blood drive.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

The over-amplified right

Timothy Harris

Conservative politocos have never had it so good. They can get trashed during campus referendums, as did Students for Participatory Democracy; be caught red-handed engaging in slimy politics, as did Brian Darling; alienate potential supporters with a trashy paper I won't mention; appear rather silly in general; and still, through it all, claim to represent the "average student." Amazing.

The media pack-instinct of finding conservatism on campus and billing it as the latest in student fashion has been part of their success. The recent Boston Globe Magazine article, "The New Rebels," featured a photo of Loren "Amherst hates America" Spivak in a brown tint that was the perfect compliment to his fanatical gaze. This article's proposition that college conservatism is a form of rebellion against a status quo of "rioters and flag-busters" is the sort of "black is white" rhetoric that thinking people have come to expect from the organized right.

While the antics of the UMass Republican Club, the SGA Budgets Committee, Students for Participatory Democracy and people like that may be amusing at some level, the student right is highly organized and well funded. They also have enough expert advice to make them something of a threat to those who prefer ignoring nuts to acknowledging them.

For instance, what the College National Republican Committee, the USA Foundation and the Ray Shamie Foundation have in common is that they have each used conservative students as a means to attack PIRGs, lobbying groups that work on consumer and environmental issues. The CNRC awards "certificates of recognition" to College Republican Confederations who succeed in de-PIRGing their campuses. As you may remember, SPD claimed their attack on PIRG was an apolitical one; purely a question of funding. This lack of honesty is the hallmark of the college right.

The Republican truth industry is one of the more disconcerting developments to strike the campuses. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been poured into the campuses to create the illusion of racism, sexism, militarism and blind patriotism being the new wave of collegiate consciousness.

The Institute for Educational Affairs spends $200,000 annually to fund over 70 college papers and the United Business Industrial Council also spends over $300,000 to support a range of papers. The idea behind these papers is that they will provide tangible "evidence" that yes, students really are a bunch of reactionaries. Their ideas are presented as the voice of the student of today, a.k.a. the future of America.

The upshot of all this is that a small minority of dedicated ideologues have the institutional and monetary backing to claim they represent a majority. By the shrewd manipulation of parlimentary procedure this minority has reduced a once strong student senate to an ineffectual joke. In gaining control of the Budgets Committee, they have attempted to depoliticize the campus by eliminating funding for all progressive groups. Their token gesture of defunding the Republican Club as well is one they could easily afford. The least of the Club's problems are funding sources.

The few conservatives who claim to speak for so many say they represent "the silent majority," an assertion they can't back up and that I refuse to believe. While they themselves may not be so threatening, the organized right which they do represent is more of a force to be reckoned with. Campus conservatives, through little effort of their own, can afford to be smug.

Timothy Harris is a contributing columnist.

Legitimacy of the contras

Peter Dow

The past few weeks of intense lobbying for $100 million in aid to the contras have proved to be very frustrating times for the Reagan administration. Indeed, it is ironic that the recent jubiliation in Congress over the deposition of dictators should evaporate so quickly when the issue of Nicaragua and the the Sandinista regime arose. Apparently, Congressional support for the overthrow of non-democratic governments is a one-sided policy: one which can only be applied to U.S. allied, authoritarian countries, but not to Marxist-Leninist totalitarian regimes.

While there is little doubt on Capitol Hill as to the totalitarian nature of the Sandinista regime, the $100 million aid package is still being met with strong opposition. This is due to the misguided and generalized belief that the contras are "unworthy" of our assistance. The Sandinistas have done their best to spread this myth, hiring a Washington, D.C. firm and recruiting American leftists to bombard legislators with generalizations and outright falsehoods concerning the Nicaraguan opposition fighters.

First, the Sandinistas and their American cronies make unfounded claims about the ranks of the contras, claiming that they are just Somocistas. As any brief investigation would reveal, this statement is clearly false. The FDN, which is supposedly led by ex-National Guardsmen, has a Directorate made up of six persons, five of whom are civilians and have never held any position in Somoza's National Guard. The remaining member, Enrique Bermudez, did serve in the National Guard, but spent the closing years of the Somoza regime in Washington, D.C.. Likewise, the lower ranks of the contra are not Somocistas either, and for American leftists to make such a claim is an insult to the Nicaraguan people who fought for freedom against Somoza, only to see one dictator be replaced by a Sandinista Directorate of nine dictators. Even left-wing columnist Edward Sheehan, who has spent a significant amount of time traveling with the contras, stated in the Boston Globe that the rebels "are an army of simple peasants of no ideology save their ardent Catholicism...I consider the contra an authentic national liberation force." Many other respected journalists (such as Robert Leiken and Shirley Christian also confirm the legitimacy of the contras.)

Secondly, the Sandinistas claim that only they deserve credit for deposing Somoza. Again, like obedient children, American leftists swallow such propaganda whole, without ever questioning its validity. Indeed, while the Sandinistas were running around in the hills of Nicaragua in the 1970s, the moderate opposition (now the contras) was leading the attack and mobilizing the opposition against Somoza, particularly through the press and the trade unions. When Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, the editor of the opposition paper La Prensa, was murdered on Jan. 10, 1978, the Superior Council of Private Initiative (COSIP) organized the first in a series of massive strikes, which provided a devastating blow to Somoza and also initiated widespread mobilization against the dictator. Three key opposition leaders and organizers of the COSIP strikes, which shut down more than 80 percent of the stores and factories in major towns, were Alfonso Robelo, Adolofo Calero, and Jorge Salazar. Salazar was assassinated Nov. 17, 1980 by Sandinista security agents under orders from the General Direcorate of State Security (DGSE); he was allegedly organizing an armed opposition to the Sandinistas. Robelo and Calero managed to escape similar fates, and by 1983 both had gone into exile; Robelo assumed a leadership role in ARDE in the south and Calero joined the FDN in the north.

In short, the hypocrisy of the American left is evident: while they claim to be in "solidarity" with the Nicaraguan people, they act in direct opposition to the wishes of the Nicaraguan people, and in solidarity with the Marxist-Leninst Sandinista state. The deliberate misinformation concerning the contras is just one product of the well oiled Sandinista propaganda machine which is trying to deceive the American public.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Democratic process endangered

Lynne McCabe is right about people "bringing up charges on things that aren't serious" (Collegian, March 12) and wasting the time of the SGA and UMass students. If she truly believes Brian Darling was "wrongly convicted" by a student tribunal for trashing MassPIRG table tents, then she should explain her convictions to the student populace -- not just play political checkers in the SGA. If Darling is innocent, he probably deserves compensation and certainly our sympathy. However, if he is guilty, he deserves not only censure but also to be arrested for attempted destruction of private property and obstruction of freedom of speech. Such tactics harken back to the dark days of Nixon's dirty wars against the democratic process. If Darling is guilty, how ironic and hideous would the title of his group seem—Students for Participatory Democracy. People who circumvent the democratic process don't belong at the University—they belong in jail.

Frank Flanagan
Northampton

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified ad counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail received, individual replies cannot be made.

Now An Additional Location
adjacent to the UMASS campus
in the Amherst Creamery Building

Skills a professional secretarial service

WORD PROCESSING, TRANSCRIPTION,
THESES AND DISSERTATIONS
MANUSCRIPTS. .a specialty

Monday - Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
150 Fearing Street, Amherst
Telephone: 549-2686

AMHERST CINEMA
Thursday
Friday and Saturday
Hair 7:00
Fame 9:05
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

SPRING BREAK '86 FEVER

catch it!
Modern Sportswear for Sun, Swim and Street
House of Walsh
32 Main Street • Amherst • 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM Mon. - Sat. • 253-3361

Summer at Brandeis University
Session I—June 9 to July 11
Session II—July 14 to August 15

- Liberal Arts
- Premedical Science
- Computer Science
- Theatre Arts
- Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
- Foreign Languages
- Costume Field Research in England
- Archaeological Field Research in Israel

Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty.
Information, catalog and application
BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY
SUMMER SCHOOL
Waltham, MA 02254
617-647-2796

UPC presents

Wednesday
April 16th
Fine Arts
Center
Tickets on sale
March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public
at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
Stevie Ray Vaughan
And
Double Trouble

"You mean, all I have to do to be a brother is play RAGE with some guy called Keg?"

The Office for Cooperative Education and the Center for Economic Development present
JOBS IN WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
A Panel Moderated by
SAM SESKIN, Center for Economic Development, University of Masschusetts

Panelists:
ANDREA BOOKBINDER, Engineer, General Electric Plastics, Pittsfield — Career Topic: RESEARCH, ENGINEERING, MARKETING, ORGANIZATIONAL DEVELOPMENT
GAIL CARROLL, Director of Personnel, Milltech Corporation, South Deerfield — RESEARCH and DEVELOPMENT, ENGINEERING
MARK CONNORS, Vice President of Personnel, Monarch Capital, Springfield — FINANCIAL SERVICES, INSURANCE, BUSINESS CONSULTING

NOTICE DATE CHANGED TO WEDNESDAY APRIL 3 1986

Where is the industry now as compared to four years ago and where is it heading? Where will the demand for new people be? What are the educational and personal prerequistes necessary to enter abd succeed in the field? How are organizations structured?

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1986 4-6 p.m.
University Career Center, University of Massachusetts
(formerly Fraternity-Sorority Park)
call 545-2224 for information all classes and majors welcome

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571
150 King St,
Northampton
586-8220

The Bill Cratty Dancers performed Monday night.

Cratty Dancers: pure and simple

By MICHAEL GERVASI
Collegian Correspondent

There are some who are sick to death of slick special effects and techno-flash magic shows. These people were given a special treat Monday night when the Bill Cratty Dance Theatre performed their art in Bowker Auditorium. No high tech or screwing around, just simple beauty of movement.

The ensemble is a modern dance company founded by Bill Cratty, a performer and Artistic Director of the troupe. He started as a soloist with The Jose Limon Dance Company for eight years, where he debuted as choreographer in New York with 'The Kitchen Table', a critical success. He has recieved two NEA Choreographer's Fellowships and has been named an Affiliate Artist. The other dancers are Suzie Siegal, Mary Gambardella, Richard Cravens,and Holly Irwin; all have impressive credentials.

Monday night, they started off with a piece called "The Beethoven Quintet" (1986). This was light and purely modern in style. Each dancer was clothed in a simple outfit without shoes against a black background. Still, the group was able to communicate deep emotions just through movement. The piece had no basic theme or storyline, yet the company seemed to work as a unit with a single direction and goal. Technically, the lifts were effortless and their precision was flawless, and in addition they each exuded intensity that was carefully controlled. All was done with the effect of floating in the air.

The next piece was in sharp contrast to this free form. It was called "Prince of the Air" (1984) and was done to the music of Stravinsky. This was a very regimented piece that seemed like a military drill. The players' movements felt heavy and ponderous, often done in unison. It drew the audience in and again an atmosphere and mood was created totally from motion and sound.

The third piece was called "Promenades" (1982); this probably left the audience with the greatest impression. The first part, called "Anger" was done with Suzie Siegal and Mary Gambardella walking over each other, racing always to get ahead or on top. It was relentlessly tense and left me with a dry mouth. The highlight of the piece, however, was the third part, done to the music of Haydn. Richard Cravens seduced Holly Irwin; you could feel the reluctance of the lovers as they became always closer. It was a very sensual performance that made the audience shift around in their seats.

They wrapped up the show with "Salome" (1986), a modern reworking of the biblical story that surrounds John the Baptist and his head. This was the only piece with any real scenery; Herod Antipas in a double-breasted suit and wing-tip shoes.

Overall, the group's grace and attention to detail was a real treat for the purist, and exciting for everybody. They started with nothing and created beauty and sensuality out of just the movements of their bodies.

SHAMROCK DANCE
Featuring
NRBQ
With
THE FOOLS & BLOTTO
"World Dance Party"
Springfield Civic Center Exhibition Hall
Saturday, March 15th-8:00pm
$9.50 advance, $11.00 day of the show
TICKETS ON SALE ON CAMPUS
AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES: (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
Produced in association with WAQY
ALL AGES WELCOME. CASH BAR — 21 AND OVER

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd No Amherst, MA
Across from Wahlaba's Store
549-4704

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

University of Massachusetts
Department of Theater
presents
A NEW MUSICAL

Lesser Pleasures
A Secret Opera
Book by VIRGINIA SCOTT Music and Lyrics by JOSH ROSENBLUM
RAND THEATER, University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
MARCH 6 - 8 and 12 - 15, 1986 at 8pm, Saturday Matinee MARCH 8 at 2pm
Tickets FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE, 545-2511

SPORT Style

Emboridered Hat assorted colors
$7.95
Long Sleeve Athletic Weight Jersey
$9.95
"Property of" Shorts
$7.95
UNIVERSITY STORE

UMass-Amherst
"Beach Club"
Crewneck
2 color
$15.95

Located in
The Campus
Center

Open
M-F
9-5

UNIVERSITY STORE

EE's/PHYSICISTS

Riverside Research Institute, a leader in scientific and engineering research, is dedicated to excellence in experimental and theoretical R&D, systems analysis, and acquisition program support for Dept. of Defense and other sponsors. A diverse range of new projects has created many opportunities for professional advancement in the following areas:

- STRATEGIC DEFENSE
- ELECTRO-OPTICS
- RADAR

Riverside Research Institute is committed to providing excellent opportunities for entry level degreed engineers and physicists. We invite all qualified energetic and motivated candidates to interview with us when we visit your campus on:

April 2, 1986

Openings exist at the following locations:

Washington, D.C. - New York City, NY - Rome, NY - Bedford, MA - Huntsville, AL

Resumes for all locations and positions can be forwarded to:

Ms. Myrna J. Granite
Riverside Research Institute
330 West 42nd Street
New York, NY 10036

U.S. CITIZENSHIP REQUIRED
Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H/V

FREE

RUNNING SHORTS

with any purchase over $10.00

FORENZA
Floral French Terry Shorts
Reg. $42.00 Our Price $16.99

100% Cotton Tank Tops
Reg. $9.99 Our Price $4.99

Ladies
100% Cotton Walking Shorts
Reg. $18.00 Our Price $7.99

Dunlop Swim Shorts for men
Reg. $16.00 Special $4.99

Sweat Shirt and Pants
reg. $12.00 Special $4.99

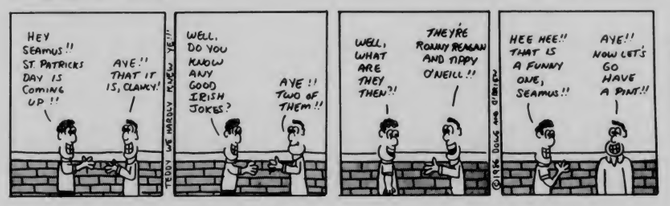
G.V.
WOMEN'S SHOES
$9.99
9West

TRADER FRED'S
THE BASEMENT STORE OF AMHERST
VISA MC
253-7155
Mon-Sat 9:30-6
Sun 12:00-5

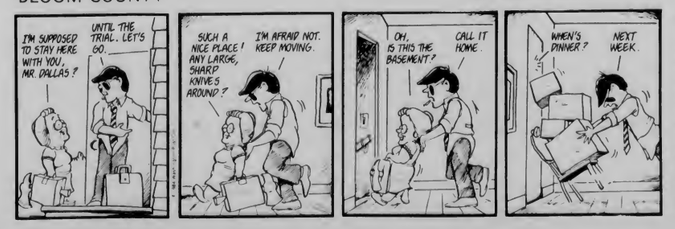
DOONESBURY GARRY TRUDEAU



THE FAR SIDE BY GARY LARSON

"Hors d'oeuvre?"

FREAKER PATROL BY DOWE & O'BRIEN



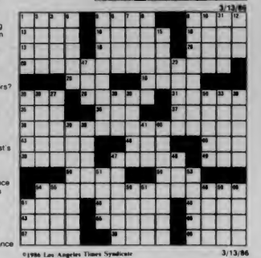
HOUSEMATES BY R.MILLER

GORDY BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Mishmash
5 Magpie and Bando
9 Lumbering sound
13 Bountiful's State
14 Normandy Beach
16 Edmund of the silver screen
17 Vitner's valley
18 Badger's cousin
19 Actress Nazimova
20 Ridiculous!
23 Three, in Turin
24 Ankles
25 Motoring headache
28 Capital of County Clare
31 Ready for use
35 — mode
36 "— Days that Shook the World"
37 Down at heel
38 Pass in a pool?
43 Musical group
44 Negative, in Lille
45 Shoe width
46 Seed coating
47 W. Australian capital
49 German spa
50 Organic compound
52 Creek
54 Frequent fliers?
61 M*A*S*H's Klinger
62 Of the birds
63 Delight
64 Lotion ingredient
65 Archaeologist's find
66 Tamarisk
67 Wrast
68 Coty of France
69 Hoover Dam lake

DOWN
1 Portrayer of Zola
2 State, in France
3 Enervates
4 Feather, part
5 Bay of Naples town
6 He loves, Latin style
7 Part of a blind
8 Bedding
9 Goodman's lorta
10 To have and to —
11 Nocturnal hooters
12 Cause of a princess's insomnia
15 — Longa, Latium
21 Ironstone
22 One of the Masseys
25 Fall of lace
26 "A Town Like —"
27 Emporiums
29 Ship clock
30 Foolish
32 Titter
33 Revoke a legacy
34 Burning leaves
39 Hindered
40 Fair fastura
41 In honor of
42 Cast a spell
47 Wading bird
48 Part of HRH
51 Eskers
53 State of NE India
54 Hay unit
55 Pressing need
56 Office necessity
57 Sprain symptom
58 Der. —
59 Festive
60 Oged
61 — and away

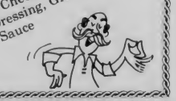
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	L	A	S		C	A	S	E	D		P	A	C	T
V	O	L	T		A	L	I	V	E		A	L	I	T
E	V	E	R	S	T	R	I	P		M	O	R	E
R	E	G	A	N	T		S	T	O	P	P	E	R	S
			P	I	L	L		A	R	I	A
C	H	O	P	P	E	R	S		T	E	S	T	E	D
H	O	N	E	S	T		A	A	R	E	R		R	A	U
A	G	E	D		S	O	L	I	D		S	U	R	E
S	I	N		S	T	O	P	S		S	W	E	E	T
M	E	D	I	N	A		P	E	P	P	A	R	D	S
			H	A	Y	A		N	E	A	P
C	L	I	P	P	E	R	S		E	M	P	I	R	E
R	I	D	E		O	S	T	E	R		I	C	O	N
A	M	E	N		U	N	I	T	E		N	E	M	O
B	E	A	D		P	A	R	E	D		G	R	A	S

3/13/86

©1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/13/86

Menu



Lunch
Cavatelli Supreme
Hot Corned Beef on Rye

Basics Lunch
Seafood Crabmeat Roll
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich/Cranberry Sauce

Dinner
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Ham and Cheese Florentine

Dinner at basics
Broccoli and Cheese Strudel
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce

* Weather *

Today: A combination of snow and sleet will amount to little accumulation. The temperature will hover in the mid-30's. Tonight: More of the same with light rain. In Florida however, sunny and warm with highs in the 80's.

Getting a Job in Journalism

WORKSHOP WITH TWO FORMER Collegian NEWS EDITORS

Ken Bazinet, Jon DiPalazzo

Monday, March 24, 9 p.m.
Place to be announced

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor	Peter Abraham
Copy Editor	Liz Hettinger
Layout Technician	Conor Plunkett
Photo Technician	Michelle Segall
Production Supervisor	Conor Plunkett

Production: Rob Catalano, Beatrix Hoffman, Tom M[illegible]eton, Leslie Nakajima

It's midnight and we're HOME
Thank God for Dode

ALL 4 STORES OPEN THURS., FRI. TILL 9 PM

The Sound Co.

AMHERST OPEN SUNDAYS 12 - 5 PM

WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD *

*OR WE WILL REFUND THE DIFFERENCE PLUS 10% IN CASH!

STEREO EQUIPMENT

SAVE '67

Technics SA120-35 WATT AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER
35 Watts Rms Power Per Channel from 40-20,000 HZ Flywheel Tuning, Automatic Loudness Compensation, Four Speaker Capability, Video Inputs
$89

SAVE '140

SCOTT 45 WATT, DIGITAL AM/FM RECEIVER WITH 5 BAND EQUALIZER
45 Watts Per Channel, Digital Tuning With 14FM Presets & Scan Tuning 5 Band Graphic Equalizer for Maximum Sound Performance 2 Tape Inputs
$159

SAVE '135

harman/kardon HK 380 30 WATTS PROFESSIONAL RECEIVER
Fantastic Value The Professionals Choice 30 Watt AM/FM Receiver High Current Capability & Discrete Components Makes Unit Sound Like 55 Watts
$199

SAVE '60 ea.

$49.ea

AVID 6 INCH 2 WAY PORTED STEREO LOUD SPEAKER
Super Value 6½ Inch Woofer, 3 Inch Tweeter In A Ported Enclosure, Frequency Response 20-20,000 HZ, Maximum Power Capability

SAVE '100

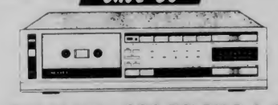
FISHER 813 Compact Digital AUDIO DISC PLAYER
Newest model, triple laser technology, programmable for random access delay, skip key, auto music scan, lapse timer repeat.
$199

SAVE '100

$149 ea.

JBL

THE JBL L56. 10 INCH 2 WAY DIGITAL STEREO SPEAKERS
Whether You want To Build A Digital Ready System OrSimply Improve Your Present System The JBL L56 Is A Great 10 Inch 2 Way Speaker High Effeciency, High Power Capacity Great Sounding Loudspeaker



CASSETTE RECORDERS

SAVE '80

TEAC. 326 DOUBLE B CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER
Dolby B Noise Reduction, DC Servo Motor, Soft Touch Controls, 3 Positions Tape Selection, Mike Inputs, Separate Record Level Controls Freq. Response 30 to 16,000 HZ Metal tape Capability
$69

SAVE '80

SCOTT 639 DOLBY B & C METAL CASSETTE TAPE DECK
Dolby B & C Noise Reduction, Metal Capability, Soft Touch Controls, Mike Inputs, Headphone Jaks, LGE Function Indicators, Digital Counter. Freq. Response 25-16,000 HZ
$99

SAVE '80

FISHER CR37 DOUBLE CASSETTE DECK WITH DOLBY
Double Cassette Deck With High Speed Dubbing, Dolby Noise Reduction, Auto Tape Select, Mike Inputs, Mike Mixing, Soft Touch Controls. Freq. Response 20-17,000 HZ
$99

DISC PLAYERS & TURNTABLES & EQUALIZERS

SCOTT PS59C BELT DRIVER TURNTABLE MAGNETIC CARTRIDGES
Super Value, Straight Tone Arm Belt Driver for Accuracy, Matching Shock Absorbing Base & Dust Cover Factory Installed Magnetic Cartridges.
$69

SAVE '80

Panasonic. PORTABLE OR HOME COMPACT DISC PLAYER
Works on Optional Battery Pack (Like A Walkman) or Plugs Directly Into your Stereo System, Works As Well As Full Size Disc Players. The Best of both Worlds.
$199

SAVE '50

Technics 8026 14 BAND STEREO GRAPHIC EQUALIZER
Improve The Sound of Your Stereo System (Match Speaker to Electronics & ViceVersa) 7 Elements Per Channel (16 total) Record Out Capability With Equalizer Great Value
$99

SAVE '40

Panasonic. COMPACT AM/FM DOUBLE CASSETTE RECORDER
High speed dubbing, 3" speaker system, soft touch controls, works on battery or AC, Full auto stop.
$99

25% OFF ON ALL CAR STEREO EQUIPMENT

MAXELL UDXLII-C90 TAPES $1.59 Limit 10

SAVE '152

Random Access Tuning

FISHER WIRELESS REMOTE CABLE READY VIDEO RECORDER
Wireless remote control, 105 channel cable ready, 14 day 3 event programmable timer, records up to 8 hours, front loading.
$348

★ UMass notebook

continued from page 12

Gerlufsen said yesterday that he believes Hampton will be back. The Worcester native received some financial aid from the program this season, and Gerlufsen is trying to keep that help going for next year.

The coach also said that regardless of what happens with those two players, UMass will "probably" bring in only three freshman recruits next season.

Also: Joe Fennell, UM's troubled freshman foward that was suspended for disciplinary reasons at the end of this season, told Gerlufsen he wasn't transfering. Several Connecticut newspapers have reported otherwise, with rumors having Fennell at Hartford. In an article in the Amherst Bulletin earlier this season, Fennell was called "a cancer on the team," by an unidentified teammate.

Apologies: Pat Cain, a sophomore attackman, was accidently left out of Tuesday's men's lacrosse preview. The 6-2 sophomore is fighting for a starting spot and will be a key to the UMass offense. Sorry Pat.

The Wednesday Night crew making the Collegian safe for humanity!

Sidestage presents

"Sister Mary Ignatius -- 'Dentity Crisis"

8 P.M.
HAMPDEN THEATRE

$2. Admission
for reservations and more info call 545-2803

The New Yorker

a "biting, irreverent and uproariously funny satire that aims its barbs at organized religion and strikes home with hilarious results."

Directed by Ed Golden

March 13, 14, 15, and 27, 28, 29

Smith College Rec. Council presents

THE BANGLES & THE HOODOO GURUS
Thursday, April 3, 1986, 9 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College
Tickets: March 25-April 2
Smith Students $7 & $8
limit: 4 tickets per ID
Non Smith Students $8 & $9
at the door $10
Seelye Basement Smith College 12-3 pm weekdays
Main St Records, Northampton
For the Record, Faces, Amherst
FAC Box Office, UMass
All Datatix Outlets
including Springfield Stop & Shop
Springfield Civic Center
No cans, bottles, recording devices, or cameras. Halls wheelchair accessible.

Photo Co-op Buy your film for Photo Co-op

spring break at the Photo Co-op in the Student Union, across from Post Office

Low low prices

Hours:
Tuesday 10-3
Wednesday 12:30-3:30
Thursday 10-3

Kodak A.S.A. 100 color film 24 exp. $2.60 36 exp. $3.36

Kodak A.S.A. 200 color film 24 exp. $2.90 36 exp. $3.68

and lots more!

SUGAR

- Most Americans consume about 33 teaspoons of sugar a day.
- 70% of the sugar you consume is in processed foods.
- Sugar is the leading ingredient added to foods.
- High sugar consumption has been related to obesity and dental cavities.
- Sugar has little nutritional value.

SENSIBLE SUGGESTIONS SNACKSENSE

You don't have to give up all your favorite sweets but try to eat sweets in moderation.

- Cut down on portions.
- Put the sugar bowl away.
- Use spices like cinnamon or nutmeg instead of sugar.
- Substitute nature's candy - FRUIT - for some desserts and snacks.

Division of Health Education and University Health Services

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

The 25 Plus Club is celebrating the beginning of Spring Break. Meet at the TOC Friday March 14 6-8 PM join us.

WSYL Radio - staff meeting tonight CC 168, 7:00. If you completed a DJ application you must attend, but all are welcome

AUTO FOR SALE

4-sale 1973 Pontiac Venture runs great new exhaust and brakes $800 call 253-5923

78 Rabbit fuel injection 90k new tires brakes shocks over $3200 invested $800 Blaupunkt stereo a steal $1995 Jon 256-6843

70 Ply Val 6cyl auto trans stereo 35000 71 Chevy Van runs great good cond $500.00 584-3398

73 Duster, original owner, 68000 mi. good mechanical condition $395 or BO 253-5462

73 Buick engine's good, new muffler, battery, coolant. 76000 mi $750 nego. 549-3607

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7436

CAPE, COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH COMING SOON

Discover Sorority Life, friends and fun March 25, 26, 27. 6-6:45 pm Any questions? Call Pam at 549-6406 or 253-9916. Have a great Spring Break!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste call Chris 256-6845

Rack-A-Disc Entertainment Disc jockeys, light shows, large screen video shows, call 549-7144 24 hrs

The Cheap Jock Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9661

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2:30 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2133 for an escort ANYTIME

EVELYN

Evelyn, Let's forget the past and start over. I love you so much. Steven

EXPERIENCE THE ULTIMATE

You've been to frat parties. . . .Now something even better . . . RAT FRATTIES . . . Be there . . . or may you grow a long pink tail. TONIGHT. LHA

FOR RENT

Amherst rooms available immediately also summer sublet/fall option rooms Roy 256-6226, even 549-6746

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2254 or 665-7106

Across the street! Sublet small bedroom in large house. Female only, no pets, no smokers. $180/month through 8/31 $180 plus utilities 549-6922

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric-six string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6491

Rossignol 150's exc cond Salomon bindings and poles must sell BO call 549-0462 ask for Neelie

Canon Camera Set: A-1, 50/f1.4, 28/2.8, 70-210/f4. 199A; new motor drive MABP, new silk 1232; many extras, all in excellent condition. $750 or BO 665-8061

For sale 1981 Toyota Starlet good cond $2000 256-6956

Dead Tix - 2 eq. all 3 Va shows during Spring Break 542-8092

Dormitory Refrigerator coppertone ex cellent condition $75.00, 1974 Toyota Corolla $500.00 584-3308

FOUND

Mens Gold Rim Glasses near Dickinson on Sunday call 6-7445

"FREE MONEY"

Need money for Spring Break? Go get your baseball cards and I'll give you money call Mike 546-6105

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-million dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Butterfield Kitchen is now accepting applications for the position of Asst. Manager for the 86-87 academic year. Position offers free room and board. Valuable experience. Applications available in the Butterfield Kitchen Office. Application deadline 5:00 PM March 24

INSTRUCTION

- Jewelry Making
- class forming to start after break
- Jacquelin Vaira 549-6539

LOST

$50.00 Reward for light blue suitcase 18"x30" and contents of women's clothing Call 546-6773

Reward: lost light pink jacket at H&O Saturday night. Great sentimental value. Call 546-5493 evenings

Metal Guitar Pin lost high sentimental value $15 reward Tom 6-1056

Lost: gold amethyst ring with a diamond chip on either side if found please call Stephanie 256-6506

Lost blue denim Code Bleu jacket keys in pocket lost last Thurs. at Lambda Chi reward pls call 546-1380

$25 Reward Lost keys 3 U Mass, Buick car plus others on key chain with yellow plastic tab call 253-9946

Blue key ring lost in town 3/7 3 keys return to CC Info Desk

One small brown address book please call 549-0146 reward offered

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 26th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0960

Attention Lifeguards need First Aid (21 hr) certification". Could mean better job, more $$ 6 plus people needed for course on campus call 6-6749 late eve, leave name, phone, local address

BEACH CLUB Spring Breakwear by Lyon Design Campus Center Concourse thru Friday

- Platts Australian Surf Wear
- C.C.C. Today!!!

Miscellanea: mouse attack!, creeping consumption, and we'll never tell

Mike There never seems to be enough time to do the things we want to do once we find them. . . No Promises! Mmmm. Sad I love you! Those Eyes

Goldie. Yippee-Citi, here we come. To a great friend, Happy Birthday Steve

Karen - you bone, but you take a good picture

Hey John B! Happy 20th Birthday! You are a super Psych 241 partner! Love Stephanie (and Richard!)

Robin is ugly!!!

Happy Birthday Lisa, Love Mike and Chris

Happy 19th, Kristie! You're an awesome friend! Luv, Lisa

Best Wishes for a great Spring Break From the Sisters and Pledges of Kappa Kappa Gamma

Mary Jane, I know how much you like crab and I bought you more! I'm so sorry there is a 3 opal and diamond pendant for $60 and another opal and diamond pendant for $25 and much more at Golden Opportunity, 13 N. Pleasant St., Amherst at Lodestone what do you think? Love Bruno

My Joe. Happy Birthday"! I still love you a lot. I'll be back soon. Besitos from your latin girl, Isabel Jolene S. You still haven't lost your magic. Love you forever. Steve M.

T.C. Happy 21st a bit early. Have fun. XO CT

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Desperate for a ride to and from Chicago over Spring Break!" Call Jeff 549-2808

ROOMMATE WANTED

One male nonsmoking for 2-bedroom townhouse apt for fall semester Jay 546-9869

To take over lease. House in Amherst, unique style $125., female, nonsmoking Chris or Meg 253-9692

1 room in 5 bedroom house 1½ from campus on bus route available immediately call after five 256-6228

Female to share room in Brandywine immediate opening $145 mo call Susan 549-0486

SACRIFICE!

Sacrifice! 2-bedroom Sunderland. First, last, security, free! References required 665-4804

SERVICES

COINS 121 123 Tutoring $4.00 per hour former grader consultant Alex 256-1289

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime 665-7652

Private Tutor learn/correct ... more conversation tel. 549-6509

Looking for housekeeper? Available evenings and afternoons rates $5/h hr call June 253-9496

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall. 584-9092

SUMMER HELP WANTED

Plan an excellent summer in the Berkshires now. Camp Becket is looking for an assistant Waterfront Director. You must be 21 years old and have your WSI. It will be a rewarding experience with extraordinary people. Call Peter at 256-1203 before Spring Break

SUMMER JOBS

Some immediate part time openings available. Hometown or local positions. All majors welcome. Call for information. Polaris Enterprises Corp. ask for Vivian

TO SUBLET

Large 1 bdr apt on bus line, quiet, w/pool and AC. To take over June 1st for summer, option for fall $395/mo 665-8471

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-3677 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

I will pay someone $10 to take good care of my 2 gerbils over Spring Break. Very easy money. Please call Lucy at 546-7419

WANTED TO RENT

We'll pay $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus, call 546-9865

Reward! Couple needs a 1 bedroom apt starting June 1. Anywhere in Amherst area. Call 253-2958

WE NEED L.A.

Two round trip tickets to L.A. needed call Pete or Rob 6-8082

Hey Ace, go get 'em in Florida. Make me proud. Wanna play?

SPORTS

Softball's youth has matured

Everyone back for tough schedule

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

Last season, the University of Massachusetts softball team ended a disappointing 25-23-1 campaign by beating nationally ranked Adelphi University. Although the victory came at the end of the season, it was still a big lift for a very young squad and sparked visions of better times for the Minutewomen.

Those visions have become reality for coach Elaine Sortino and the 1986 Minutewomen. In her seventh season as UM mentor, Sortino is in a unique position that any coach would welcome. She returns her entire team from last season with a few new faces as UMass prepares to face its toughest schedule ever.

"We had our youngest team ever last season. We started anywhere from five to seven freshman at a time," Sortino said. "About 85 percent of our losses last season were one-run losses on mistakes. We easily could have had a losing season. We finished on an upbeat note beating Adelphi.I'm very pleased about having everybody back."

The Minutewomen open the season on March 14, at the Pepsi Cola Invitational Tournament at the University of South Florida. UMass will then play in a tournament in Orlando, Florida against DePaul University, St. John's University and St. Peter's University before doing battle at the Florida State Lady Seminole Tournament on March 21-23.

"This is the toughest schedule in our history," Sortino said. "We have to use these tournaments not only to start playing, but to pick up a few nationally ranked teams that we won't see during the regular season."

Aside from the youth of last year's team, injuries also played a part in the demise of the Minutewomen. Sophomore shortstop Paige Kopcza, an All-New England honorable mention last season, suffered an elbow injury midway through the season last year, creating a huge gap in the UMass defense. After recovering from that injury, she then suffered an ankle injury covering a steal attempt in the Atlantic-10 tournament.

This season, injuries are still hampering the Minutewomen. Sophomore firstbaseman Martha Jamieson, an All-New England and Division I All-American, underwent arthoscopic knee surgery three weeks ago and will not see playing time in Florida due to slower-than-expected rehabilitation. Senior catcher Beth Talbott and sophomore catcher Ilene Freeman are both bothered by nagging knee injuries, with Freeman also suffering from a recurring bicep problem in her throwing arm.

Junior thirdbaseman Debbie Cole, also an All-New England selection last season, still has not recovered from ligament damage done to her left elbow as a result of an injury she suffered during the volleyball season last fall. She will see her doctor on Monday and could out for an additional 1-2 weeks, thus placing her on the 'doubtful' list for the Florida swing.

For the most part, everybody else is healthy for UMass. The following is a position-by-position look at the 1986 Minutewoman softball team:

Pitchers:UMass returns three members of last season's pitching staff. Senior lefthander Lynn Stockley, an All-New England selection last season, is the ace of the UMass staff, as she compiled a 15-9 record with 10 shutouts and 118 strikeouts. Her 0.53 earned run average placed her as one of the top twenty pitchers in the nation. Sophomore righthander Lisa Rever also had a good season, notching an 8-8 mark with five shutouts and a 0.80 ERA. Also back for UMass is senior righthander Cathy Reed, who compiled a 2-6 record and a 2.49 ERA. Reed also led the team in runs batted in with 14 while batting .268 last season. Rounding out the staff is freshman righthander Chris Warner, who Sortino is very high on, and who is expected to make an immediate contribution to the squad. As a combined staff, the Minutewomen tossed 15 shutouts and sported a 0.92 ERA last season.

"This is a very seasoned staff with good depth,"Sortino said. "This is as fine and capable pitching staff we've had."

Catcher: Talbott and Freeman will split the duties this season behind the plate with freshman Patty King seeing limited action. Talbott batted .306 last season with one homerun and 10 RBI's. Freeman finished the season at a .253 clip with two homers and 11 RBI's. "I'm a little concerned at the catcher postion because of the injuries," Sortino said. "But with the depth we have, we should be all right."

Firstbase: Jamieson is the usual starter for Sortino, but Reed and Talbott will see action at firstbase because of Jamieson's knee injury. Jamieson hit .262 last season with 11 RBI's.

Secondbase: Junior co-captain Carol Frattaroli, who Sortino labeled a "fine player with a good bat", will anchor the Minutewomen at second base. An All-Atlantic 10 and All-New England pick, Frattaroli finished last season with a .273 average and was second in RBI's with 13. Backing Frattaroli is sophomore Tina Morello, who is capable of filling in at any time.

Thirdbase: With Cole out, Sortino will go with sophomore Chris Ciepiela at thirdbase. Ciepiela batted .253 last season with one homer and 10 RBI's. Right behind her is freshman Allison Forman. Cole batted .216 last season with eight RBI's.

Shortstop: A healthy Kopcza will start at shortstop for the Minutewomen. "She is a great hitter with excellent glove stability," Sortino said. Kopcza led UMass in hitting with a .378 average and eight RBI's. Coupled with Frattaroli, UMass has possibly the best middle infield in New England and one of the best in the East.

Outfield Senior co-captain Sally Maher has the only outfield postion locked up so far, starting in centerfield. Maher was second in batting last season with a .306 average. She also knocked in 10 RBI's with one homer and three triples last season. Sophomore Leigh Petroski, junior Emily Bietsch, and freshman Barbara Meehan round out the outfield with the leftfield and rightfield positions still undecided. Ciepiela will also see time in the outfield. "All five are extremely quick-footed. We'll have good wheels if they can all stay healthy," Sortino said. "Offensively, we can run and we have great ability to move the runnners around," Sortino said. "Defensively, we've been able to cover our tracks. We have some very capable players and we can mentally adapt to any situation. We have the depth to cover ourselves."

Barring any serious injuries, the 1986 season holds a bright outlook for the Minutewomen. UMass is currently ranked fifth in the Northeast behind Adelphi, the University of Connecticut, Temple University and Penn State University. With everybody back, Sortino likes what she sees.

"I see a much more poised group of people. That fact leads to a much more confident feeling," Sortino said. "Our strongest asset is cohesiveness. They are just enjoyable to coach."

The objectives for the Minutewomen are fairly simple, the main objective being to make the Atlantic 10 tournament in May. But May is a long way off and being a member of one of the toughest conferences in the country is enough to make any team concentrate on the present.

"We're always thinking post-season play in the back of our minds," Sortino said. "But we need to get rolling before we can start thinking about that. We have enough to think about on improving on last season's record."

UMass opens at home on April 1 with a doubleheader against the Friars of Providence College. UMass will play 16 games (eight doubleheaders) at home this season.

Sports Information photo

Sophomore pitcher Lisa Rever is one of the aces on the University of Massachusetts softball team.

Sports Information photo

Second baseman Carol Frattaroli is back for UMass this season.

Softball '86

Coach: Elaine Sortino (7th year, 139-53-3)

Last Season: 25-23-1, 5-5 in the Atlantic 10 Conference, fourth place.

Captains: Centerfielder Sally Maher and Second baseman Carol Frattaroli will serve as co-captains.

Top Returning Players: Maher (.303-1 home run-10 runs batted in - CF); Frattaroli (.273-0-13 - 2B); Paige Kopcza (.387-0-08 - SS); Martha Jamieson (.262-0-11 - 1B); Debbie Cole (.214-0-8 - 3B); Lynn Stockley (15-9, 0.53 earned run average, 10 shutouts - LHP); Cathy Reed (.268-0-14 and 2-6, 2.49 - RHP/INF); Lisa Rever (8-8, 0.80, five shutouts - RHP); Chris Ciepiela (.253-1-10 - utility).

Top Newcomers: Barbara Meehan (freshman - OF) and Chris Warner (freshman - pitcher).

Key Losses: None, all the starters are returning this season.

Opening Game: Friday at the Pepsi Cola Invitational at the University of South Florida.

Home Opener: April 1 against Providence College (doubleheader).

UMass notebook

Sheehan will not return

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Guard Jack Sheehan will not be back for the 1986-87 basketball season, the senior told the Collegian this week.

Sheehan, a 6-3 point guard, is eligible to play another season but has elected to graduate and leave the university instead. he saw limited playing time this season, appearing in eight games and scoring two points.

But Sheehan's biggest contribution was in his presence. On a team made up of mostly freshman and sophomores, Sheehan was a steadying influence. While other players complained about playing time, Sheehan realized his role and worked for the overall betterment of the team.

One of the true class-acts on the Minutemen, Jack will be missed.

In other basketball news, 6-3 junior guard Bill Hampton will probably be back with the team next season.

Hampton, a walk-on last season, played in only two games this season, but like Sheehan, he was a solid team member.

UMass coach Ron Gerlufsen said yesterday that he believes Hampton will be back. The Worcester native received some financial aid from the program this season, and

continued on page 11

HAPPY SPRING BREAK!

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 33

FRIDAY, MARCH 14, 1986

INSIDE

- Swedish police make arrest in connection with Palme slaying. Page 2.
- The unique culture of deaf students. Page 3.
- Improving your between meal nutrition. Page 10.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

SPLISH, SPLASH — Ken Howard, sophomore business major, splashes through one of the thousand campus puddles.

Olney plan central to unions' drive

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

Recent actions by University administrators and a choice of two unions may make the difference in the upcoming vote by professional staff on whether to unionize.

In the past, professionals have twice rejected unionization, in the most recent election, 1982, by 50 votes. However, implementation of a controversial wage scale, the Olney plan, by the University has angered many professionals and may give unions an advantage.

Dale Melcher, a representative for the Massachusetts Teachers Association, one of the unions vying to represent the professionals, said this is the first time two unions have competed. MTA conducted elections on its own in 1978 and 1982.

"In the past, professionals have not reconciled themselves to the idea of unionization," Melcher said. "Despite the fact the faculty has been unionized for 10 years, the professionals felt it was not the thing to do.

"Professionals thought they were better off making their own deals with ad ministration," she said. "It was hard for them to see the value of a union."

The election, set for May 1, pits MTA against the Office and Professional Employees International Union, the initiator of the union drive.

Both Melcher and an OPEIU representative, Jerry Ashlock, agree that the Olney plan was a major incentive in the drive toward unionization.

The plan, implemented in July at the administration's request, reclassified professional staff positions, set new wage caps and angered many professionals who said it diminished employees' supervisory status and provided an unsatisfactory grievance procedure.

"The imposition of the Olney plan has made people realize we need to take care of ourselves," Melcher said.

In a platform issued yesterday by MTA, the union pledged to "insure that the development and application of any professional classification system (e.g. Olney) be subject to the principles of professional autonomy."

Gerry Scoppettuolo, an OPEIU representative, said in a statement issued last week that the plan "threatens all aspects of professionals' work life -- job security, equal pay for equal work and upward mobility within the organization."

The professionals are currently represented by the non-union Professional Association at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. PAUMA speaker Gerald A. Quarles said the association's position on the election was neutral.

"It is up to the individual professional to decide the best way to go," he said.

Harvey Friedman, director of the UMass Labor Relations and Research Center, said a union would provide professionals with a legally binding contract and would spell out their rights.

"A union would provide protection for wages and working conditions," Friedman said. "Professionals are the only group on campus not protected."

University officials have refused comment on the impending election. However, one professional said she believes the administration wants to remain neutral regarding the election.

Hadley to vote on porn movie ban

By JASON SHAW
Collegian Correspondent

and DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

HADLEY — Residents will vote next Thursday at a selectboard meeting on whether to bar the town's three video stores from selling or renting X-rated movies.

The vote was prompted by a petition submitted by Hadley resident Helen Zatyka to the three-member board. Zatyka is also a University of Massachusetts student.

"I did some research and discovered video houses are the largest distributors of pornography," Zatyka said. "A lot of people don't know how insidious this stuff is.

"My main opposition has from been people who think adults should be able to watch what they want,"she said. "Unfortunately, children have access to videos."

Selectman John Mieczkowski said he opposes banning X-rated videotapes. "Where's the freedom of speech?" he asked. "If parents allow their kids to see these kinds of movies, it's their business."

He added that Hadley hardly has the resources to enforce a ban. "We have all we can do with the state laws," he said. "But if the people vote it in, so be it."

Harry Barstow, chairman of the selectboard, said he could not predict the vote's outcome. Selectman John Allen could not be reached for comment.

"We'd like to continue to rent the videos,"said Sandy Shulman, assistant manager of One Stop Video. "But it's not a major thing to us. We're not going to lose a lot of money if there's a ban."

Danny DiRocco, manager of Video Studio 16, said a ban would constitute censorship. The third video store is The Video House.

'Irish have been denied freedom'

300 attend S.U.B. lecture

By SARAH BUSH
Collegian Staff

For 800 years the Irish have been fighting for their freedom and in the name of democracy this right has been systematically denied to them, an Irish feminist and political activist said last night.

Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, speaking to about 300 people in the Student Union Ballroom, said "People have no natural understanding of why violence in Northern Ireland exists."

Ireland, Devlin said, was the first British colony and has been the subject of military occupation, slave trading in the Carribbean and genocide. She said Ireland's genocide is commonly misinterpreted as "The Potato Famine" when Irish farmers in the 19th century were forced to surrender all their crops to the English, during the speech, sponsored by the Radical Student Union.

At one time, the Irish peoples' language and music was outlawed and they could not own property. After a five year war, Devlin said Ireland was granted its independence in 1922, except for the northern faction, known as Ulster, that was the home of British loyalists.

In order to maintain this minority, Irish nationalists were forced to move to the north and work for the British loyalists, said McAliskey.

McAliskey said 1968 was a turning point when the Irish Civil Rights Movement began as nationalist Irish Catholics demanded the right to vote, the right to assemble and the right to live wherever they wanted.

As they organized, assembled, and spoke for their civil rights, the British government took them away, claiming such acts as "subversive", said Devlin McAliskey.

Presently, she said, Irish Catholics in Northern Ireland have an youth unemployment rate of 75 percent and 50 pecent of its prisoners are under age 25, as well as other inequalities.

"We actually started out demanding quality... that is all. Instead of getting it, we lost every democratic right we had," she said.

"We want to live in our own country and govern it ourselves," she added.

She said today the Reagan administration is trying to buy Ireland's alliance with $50 million per year in aid.

"We have figured out that Ronald Reagan is sending us money to 'save democracy.' And it scares the hell out of us."

Collegian photo by Maria Bull

Irish activist Bernadette Devlin McAliskey

It's not an egg

AP photo

It's the closest picture ever taken of Halley's comet, as the European spacecraft Giotto, passed 930 miles from the comet's nucleus early this morning.

Swedish police arrest man

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Police have arrested a man on suspicion of complicity in the murder of Prime Minister Olof Palme, a Stockholm police official said yesterday.

After Sweden's news agency reported a man was being held, Stockholm police spokesman Leif Hallberg said, "I can confirm that after following up various tips, we had reason to arrest a man on suspicion of complicity in the murder.

"He was brought in last night at 8:25 p.m. and booked for interrogation," Hallberg said.

"The arrest was made for further investigation of the man's possible part in the murder," he said.

Hallberg refused to give any further details about the case.

A man wielding a .35-caliber Magnum revolver killed Palme on Feb. 28 as the prime minister walked along a Stockholm sidewalk with his wife, Lisbet.

The Swedish news agency, TT, quoted Henning Sjostrom, a leading Swedish defense lawyer, as saying the new suspect was Swedish and of "unblemished record."

The agency quoted Sjostrom as saying the man was arrested because he had been near the scene of the murder. "I am convinced there are no grounds for indictment," the lawyer was quoted as saying.

Under Swedish law, a person can be held without being formally charged during an investigation.

Search continues for $5-$10b Marcos stole

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - A government commission has discovered that ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos hid $800 million in a Swiss bank account, a major step toward locating up to $10 billion he allegedly spirited out of the Philippines, an official said yesterday.

President Corazon Aquino, meanwhile, ordered Philippine banks to freeze all assets held by Marcos, his wife, Imelda, and 31 of his associates.

Ramon Diaz of the new Commission on Good Government announced discovery of the Swiss bank account yesterday but refused to provide details or say how the commission learned of its existence.

Commission head Jovito Salonga has estimated that Marcos and his associates illegally diverted $5 billion to $10 billion in national assets to overseas accounts and investments.

Raul Daza, also a commission official, told a news conference that the Aquino government is "optimistic and hopeful" it will regain any wealth Marcos invested illegally in the United States "in line with pronouncements previously made by the United States that they will cooperate with the Philippine government."

Salonga began a 10-day visit to the United States on Wednesday. He plans to collect evidence of Marcos' holdings, consult US legal experts on ways to regain the funds and meet with State Department officials, Daza said.

Marcos allegedly bought property in New York City and Long Island.

Hyatt seeks GOP nomination

BOSTON (AP) - After campaigning for months, attorney Gregory Hyatt said yesterday he would make it official that he intends to seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The 32 year-old who helped lead the signature drive to get a seat belt repeal question on the November ballot announced Feb 10 that he was serious about running and opposing Gov. Michael Dukakis, who gives all indications he will seek re-election.

Dukakis, whose office says he plans to formally announce his intentions this month, faces no opposition in the Democratic Party in his bid for another four-year term.

Hyatt, a former director in 1979-80 of Citizens for Limited Taxation that put property tax-limiting Proposition 2 1/2 on the ballot, has conceded any Republican faces an uphill battle against Dukakis.

Hyatt ran an unsuccessful campaign for Congress against Democrat Chester Atkins in 1984 and then worked on the seat belt campaign.

Packwood's bill proposes 8.4% cut in income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Packwood yesterday introduced - with President Reagan's support - a bill that would produce the most sweeping changes in the federal tax system in more than 30 years, reducing individual income taxes by an average 8.4 percent.

The legislation would raise consumer taxes on alcohol, tobacco and gasoline and shift to corporations a tax burden of between $110 billion and $185 billion over the next five years. How the excise tax increases would affect the total tax picture of individuals and businesses is a matter of speculation.

Packwood, unveiling the new plan at a news conference, said it would make the tax system more fair, ensure that rich individuals and profitable companies pay a share of tax, and increase incentives for investment in job-creating activities. As for simplification, the Oregon Republican could promise only that "it is not any more complicated than the present tax code.

"The President is on board. He supports the bill. I am delighted," Packwood said.

The committee will start work on the legislation next week; Packwood said he hopes the bill will be completed by May 1 and ready for Reagan to sign by Aug. 15.

Most changes would take effect next Jan. 1.

The bill includes the provisions that Reagan has said are essential to any "tax reform." It would cut tax rates significantly for individuals and corporations, raise the standard deduction, boost the personal exemption to $2,000 for almost all taxpayers, restrict deductions for some state and local taxes and interest, and increase investment and saving incentives. It also would retain the tax-free status of most employee fringe benefits.

The bill - like the one proposed by Reagan and the version passed by the House last December - would free more than 6 million low-income people from the income tax altogether.

According to staff estimates, Packwood's bill would cut income taxes for those in the $10,000 to $20,000 income class by 23 percent under the House bill and 16.3 percent under Reagan's plan.

FOUR SEASONS
RT 9 HADLEY 584-8174

CASE SPECIALS

BUSCH $8.99
BUD & BUD LIGHT $10.99
COORS & COORS LIGHT $10.99
UTICA CLUB $6.99

SIX-PACK SPECIALS

GUINESS $3.99
HARP $3.99
BECKS ..... light or dark $3.99
ST. PAULI ..... light or dark $3.99
ROLLING ROCK ..... long necks $2.85

LIQUOR SPECIALS

VODKA & GIN ..... 1.75 ..... $8.99
RUM ..... 1.75 ..... $10.99
B.B. SHOTZ SCHNAPPS
..flavored schnapps all flavors..750 ml..$4.99

Four Seasons is also carrying a large selection of Irish Whiskey and Irish Cream Liquers at sale prices

Four Seasons is located on Rt 9 just past McDonalds and Burger King

Why clown around with anyone else?

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

FOR RENT
2 bedroom apt, heat & hot water
short term lease
discounted rent to $450 due to mid-season opening, on bus rte
South Amherst 256-8534

Professional Consultation & Style Haircut ONLY $10.00
with Shampoo + Blowdry $12.50
Featuring: Design Perming, Dimensional Highlighting, Deep Reconditioning
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive,
Amherst, 549-5610
expires March 14, 1986

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

photo by Richard Bonanno

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR SPRING BREAK? — Deirde Fearon, a junior psychology major, right, chats with Amy Gordon in Bartlett Hall under the watchful eye of a cardboard bird.

Eighteen BOG seats filled

Many empty seats in the Campus Center Board of Governors were filled this week as 18 persons were voted in during the Student Government elections.

Sixteen people ran for nine empty at-large seats. The winners were Amy Gordon, Michelle Wrynn, Daniel Collins (incumbent), Lorna Freeman, Fred Habib (incumbent), Carol Harlow (incumbent), Mary Anne Siok, Megan Brady and Robert Merlino.

Three persons were elected to the board to represent the Commuter Area Goverment. Sean Murray, David Caputo (incumbent), and Mary Murray ran unopposed with the exception of one write-in candidate.

The Southwest Residential Area filled two seats on the board, as Kim Colliton and Lee Garfinkel/Steve Kantor were elected. Elected from the other residential areas were: Paul Coradeschi from Central, Mel Sahagian from Sylvan, Monica Wang (incumbent) from Northeast, and Joseph Casali from Orchard Hill. Each ran against one other student.

"I really didn't expect to win because I'm a freshman. I'm really glad I won. I want to make a difference in the Campus Center," said Gordon, a business major.

Although this is the official count of the ballots, it must be voted on by the Undergraduate Student Senate in order to be recognized, said Karen Morvay, chairwoman of the SGA governmental affairs committee.

— JEANETTE DeFORGE

Alumnus arrested for protesting innocent

A 1985 graduate of the University of Massachusetts was found innocent yesterday in Hampshire District Court in Northampton on charges of disturbing the peace.

The charge stems from an April 10, 1985 incident in which three students were arrested for protesting the presence of Citicorp Corporation at a conference on the 10th floor of the Campus Center. Two of the students, Pia Giammasi and Beatrix Hoffman, had their charges dismissed in July.

Todd Little received the not guilty verdict from Judge Alvertus Morse, but Little refused to comment on the case. However, the two students who had their charges dismissed attended the trial and said Little's arrest was unnecessary.

"I felt that it was very insulting that the school invited Citicorp to campus after having declared the commitment to divestment and anti-apartheid," Giammasi said.

The students said they were protesting the conference because of Citicorp's loans to the South African government, which they say contributes to apartheid, the system of racial segregation where the white minority rules the black majority.

Giammasi said Little's arresting officers had difficulty identifying him in the courtroom yesterday and that Morse was surprised of the arrest in the first place.

Little's arrest occurred as the members of the conference were eating dinner, and the protesting students shouted "Divest Now" out of the elevator door. Police arrested Little when he held in the button preventing the elevator from closing.

Hoffman and Giammasi were arrested while attempting to raise an anti-apartheid banner during a conference speech.

The University police did not comment on the case.

Senate approves programs

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

The Faculty Senate yesterday unanimously approved a bachelor's of science degree in landscape architecture and seven new foreign study programs.

An undergraduate program in landscape architecture was dropped in favor of the graduate program in 1969, when the American Society of Landscape Architects would only accredit one degree program per university.

In 1979, the ASLA changed accreditation rules to allow two programs. The program will be the second in New England, the only existing one being at the Rhode Island School of Design, according to the academic matters council.

Seven foreign academic institutions will begin programs with the University of Massachusetts, contingent upon qualified students applying. The newly approved programs are:

- A mutual exchange of graduate students with France's L'Institute National Polytechnique de Toulouse, for study in the field of chemical engineering.
- A mutual exchange of graduate students in chemical engineering and food engineering with the Universite de Technologie de Compiegne.
- A one-year exchange for both undergraduates and graduates to study at the University of Iceland, limited to two to four students annually.
- A reciprocal exchange and cooperation in research activities with Tianjin University from the People's Republic of China, involving teaching and research materials, possible joint research between faculty and graduate study in China.
- A joint degree program in psychology with Belgium's Universite Catholique de Louvain in Belgium. Belgian students will have the opportunity to complete requirements for a UMass master's degree.
- A summer program in Hispanic linguistics and Catalan language, in Barcelona, Spain, starting July 1986.
- A summer workshop in studio art and art history in La Napoule, France, between June 29 and Aug. 3, 1986.

Winfred E. A. Bernhard, chairman of the foreign and international studies council, said the programs will start next fall if there are interested qualified students.

Deafness is a culture, student says

By PEDRO M. PEREIRA
Collegian Correspondent

Deafness is not a handicap, but rather a culture, says Jon Dresser, one of eight deaf students who attend the University of Massachusetts.

Alex Grist, another deaf student, said he occasionally feels uncomfortable about being deaf, but he has grown accustomed to it.

The Office of Handicapped Student Affairs, in the Whitmore Administration Building, provides students like Dresser and Grist with sign-language interpreters for lectures. The interpreters are certified by the National Registry of Interpreters after studying American Sign Language for two to three years.

Geary Gravel and Hannah Yaffe coordinate the Deaf Services at UMass. They both graduated from UMass and have been interpreting here for eight years.

Deaf Services employs four full-time interpreters and several who work part-time.

Gravel said sign language is "an art, it's a skill, and I think it's gratifying for me when I know that I communicated to someone else.

"You really are like a bridge between two cultures. If a teacher is flat and boring, then you have to be flat and boring," Gravel said.

Yaffe said sign language resembles translating one language into another. She said she is gratified "knowing that I'm opening the hearing world up to the deaf."

John Dunne, who teaches three sign language courses at UMass, said hearing students do not often mingle with deaf students because "hearing students are afraid they don't know what to say."

"I'm gratified knowing that I'm opening the hearing world up to the deaf."
— Hannah Yaffe, coordinator of Deaf Services

Yaffe said this isolation causes many deaf students to be lonely. Many deaf students are taught to read lips, so "you can communicate with most deaf people just by talking to them."

Dresser said he finds it hard to make friends because he is deaf. Five of his friends are also deaf, but most of his friends are not, he said.

"Sometimes I feel funny," he said about having an interpreter in class, but he added he tries not to notice when students stare.

Grist said, "The interpreters do a good job. Without the interpreters, I would not understand the professors." Having grown acustomed to the interpreters, he does not feel embarrassed during class. "I pay attention to the interpreter only."

Gravel said that before the establishment of the deaf services, deaf students went to lectures and attempted to understand the professors, or had someone else take notes for them.

Dunne teaches an introductory course with 40 students, an intermediate level with 30, and an advanced course for 15. "There are so many students at the beginning of the semester that want to take the [introductory] course," he said.

"We hope that our service provides deaf students with the same University experience as that of their hearing peers," Gravel said.

Homeless fixture?

Collegian photo by Maria Bull

A wandering bathtub yesterday found its way to the front lawn of a house on South Pleasant Street in Amherst, where it was seen languishing sans hookups, with only rain water to catch. No one was available at the house to give clues as to whether the tub had been evicted from within or had simply shown up there.

LOSE UP TO TEN POUNDS IN JUST TWO WEEKS.

Pam Weisman's
Diet Center

664 Main St.,
Amherst

253-9580

Mon-Fri 7am to 11 am
4 pm to 5 pm
Sat 8 am to 10:30 am

DIET CENTER

Hey Murph,

Happy 20th Birthday

All my love, hugs and kisses
"Kink"

RENT-A-WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

ORIGINAL
Jams
Lodestone
13 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst 256-0591

Special Student / Youth Fares to
SCANDINAVIA
On Scheduled Airlines!

The inexpensive way to get to Scandinavia and other destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

Winter Rates to Scandinavia
New York to Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
New York to Helsinki
from $270 one way
Chicago to Copenhagen
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
Chicago to Oslo, Stockholm, Helsinki
from $280 one way, $480 roundtrip
and tours designed especially for students to the

SOVIET UNION

For Information Call:
WHOLE WORLD TRAVEL
Youth and student travel experts for over a decade
17 E. 45th St., New York, NY 10017
(212) 986-9470

Summer Fares Now Available!

voted the best new restaurant in the valley
INDIA HOUSE RESTAURANT
Exceptional food & reasonable prices...

BUFFET BRUNCH
on Sunday
$6.95 all you can eat
11:30 - 3 PM

Gift Certificates Available

45 State St. Northampton — serving beer & wine dinner-5:00-10:30 lunch-11:30-3:00 take-out available 586-6344

Letters

The issues clarified

I am writing to clarify some points made in 1) the Feb. 25 Collegian article on my work on the Imposter Syndrome, and 2) a past editorial by Rusty Denton which grossly distorted my research.

In the case of the former, there was a serious misquote whereby I was said to have stated that "women are fakes who feel as though they have slipped through the system undetected and it's only a matter of time before they are found out." Two critical words appear out of order in this quote. It should begin, "women feel like fakes who have mananged to slip through the system..." The women who attend my presentations and seminars are all bright, capable women who, as victims of past socialization and current stereotyping, are not always able to recognize and appreciate their own knowledge and skills. There is a world of difference between "feeling" like an imposter and "being" one.

The article goes on to say that "women tend to capitalize on their failures and forget their accoplishments." This should read, "women tend to focus on their failures..." Perhaps the reporter was confused by my recommendation that women should learn to capitalize on mistakes and failed risks by learning to view them as opportunities for learning and development.

Lastly, I would like to respond to a fall semester Collegian editorial written by Rusty Denton in which Denton inaccurately represented my doctoral research on internal barriers undermining women in achievement realms to support his biblical interpretation of women's supposed inferiority. Had Denton taken the time to read my research he would have discovered that 1) men too experience feelings of insecurity about their skills and abilities, and 2) women's self doubts can be directly traced to a variety of societal values, lodged in sexism, which undermine women's sense of self as competent, valued members of the workforce. (Denton's editorial itself is a case in point.) Thus, my advice to Denton is that he first read the research that he uses to advance his biases lest he find himself facing a lawsuit by someone less willing to turn the other cheek.

Dr. Valerie Young
Amherst

Thanks for buses

I want to express my appreciation to Nancy Arnold, the Women's Studies department, and the United Christian Fellowship for sponsoring and organizing three buses which took 150 women and men to the National March for Women's lives in Washington D.C. The march was an excellent example of American democracy -- the right of assembly -- and over 100,000 people did. The theme of the march was Women's Reproductive Rights -- the freedom of choice. As an American woman, I am proud to have been a participant in the march in which Nancy Arnold, the Women's Studies department, and the United Christian Fellowship gave me and 150 others the opportunity. Thank you.

Margaret Novotny
Sunderland

Lay it on the line.

Ask any Navy pilot. It doesn't come any more thrilling than this. Landing an F-14 on the rolling deck of a carrier at sea is a challenge that tests the skills of the best.

Navy flight training. Navigation. Aerodynamics. It's the best you can get. But along with the airborne thrills, Navy pilots and flight officers get down-to-earth skills.

There is no boot camp. College graduates get leadership and management training at Aviation Officer Candidate School. It's challenge and responsibility. The satisfaction of knowing you're with a topflight team.

You can't beat the rewards either. An excellent starting salary. Unexcelled benefits. And opportunities to move up fast.

Lead the Adventure as a Navy pilot or flight officer. And let your pride fly high. Contact your Navy Officer Recruiter or call 1-800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Seiger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Obsessed to be the best

Herb Ramy

In general, students do care about their grades. Sure, there are those who come here just to see how long they can remain without doing any work at all, but most of us do care, to a degree.

There is a certain group of students though, who seem to care a little too much. These are the people that play the cume game. The cume game people laugh at those who do worse than they do, and hate those who do better.

I think you know the kind of person I'm talking about. cume gamers are the people who wouldn't allow you to borrow their notes for the class you missed, because there is always the outside chance you might do better than they did.

To learn who cume gamers are, just listen for the people who ask what your cume is or what your grade was on the last exam. This may seem like an innocent enough question, but the cume gamers will already know what your grades are. They might have seen them when you left your report card on your desk, or they might have noticed the test score when the professor is handing them back. The point of the matter is, they know that they did better than you did. The question is merely an excuse to point this fact out to you.

The cume gamers schedule is something quite interesting to behold. He or she takes the classes required to graduate, but the rest of their schedule is devoted to any gut to be found. While most people involved in groups such as the Boltwood Project are there in order to help their fellow human beings, the cume gamer knows that these are also good places to pick up that easy two to three credit A.

As in most social disorders, this one's roots can usually be traced back to the home. The first thing one would notice upon entering the home of a cume gamer is that the refrigerator is covered with dozens of old report cards being held up by fruit magnets. This barbaric suburban practice has led many children to link good grades with being allowed to eat. So it seems that a subconscious fear of starvation is what makes our cume gamers so desirous of the all important A. As the cume gamers progressed through life, they became the first or second grader that insisted on wearing the gold star on their forehead whenever they won the spelling bee. As one can see, the displaying of achievements has already begun. From here it is only a small step to writing that 50 page extra credit paper for Professor Smith in order to get that one extra point added to your exam.

So you see, although we may dislike cume gamers for all they do, we must remember that gaming is both a disease and a curse. Now if you'll excuse me, I heard K-Mart has a blue light special on fruit magnets.

Herb Ramy is a Collegian columnist.

Letters from the editor

Larry Bouchie

A few quick phone calls to New Hampshire yielded some interesting information about Dartmouth College's divestment/apartheid shanties and the Dartmouth Review.

Primarily, embattled College President David McLaughlin reportedly decided to review the student suspensions handed out to shanty "dismantlers" because Review members and supporters threatened to initiate a massive civil suit against the college. Also, McLaughlin is coming under fire from just about everyone at the college -- no one is satisfied with the way he has been handling the situation there.

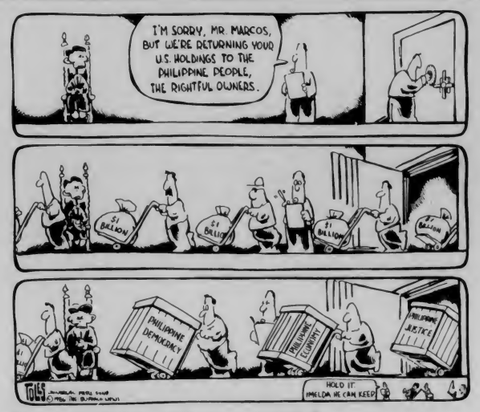
Meanwhile, some people in Hanover are claiming that local merchants have instituted an informal advertising boycott against the Review because of staff involvement in dismantling the shanties. Review staff, however, say that some advertisers are still giving the paper money but are requesting that their ads not be printed right now.

* * *

Locally, OHNO NOHO experienced some advertising problems this month. Apparently, an issue was all set for the printer, but the paper was about $1,000 in the red. It took several weeks, but the staff rounded up some more money from advertisers and is set to publish 12,000 issues on March 27. This issue will focus on "Local Heroes."

The staff hopes to publish regularly through the semester and should also be able to print one issue this summer, as they did last year.

* * *



Auxiliary Services Director Ashoke Ganguli confirmed that the University was recently approached by the Marriot Corp. about the possibility of taking charge of food services on campus. The University is approached two or three times each year by outside companies that want a crack at the DCs and the Campus Center.

However, Ganguli said two factors generally exclude turning over food services to a private firm: the University has an excellent nationwide reputation for its operation, and too much money goes to administration of the service when it is provided by an ouside corporation. Ganguli's reply to Marriot and others appears to be along the lines of "Thanks, but no thanks."

* * *

The push is on to fill the Chancellor of Higher Education position, recently vacated by John Duff. Rep. James Collins and Sen. John Olver, both of whom have strong ties to UMass-Amherst, are among those with their eye on the job. With the higher education budget now in the hands of the Legislature, both may try to make their case by restoring some funding that Gov. Dukakis hacked from the University budget.

Larry Bouchie is a Collegian columnist.

Something's terribly wrong

Dan Sobel

Italian art work worth $10 million, Imelda's 3,000 pairs of shoes, $1.2 million in freshly printed bills stuffed in Pampers boxes, millions in jewelry, pornographic videotapes, films of lavish parties complete with a 250-pound man dressed in baby clothes popping out of a birthday cake, singing "We are the World" at parties while many in the Philippines go hungry, an estimated $5-10 billion in personal wealth for former Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos -over his 20-year rule Marcos must have watched his pennies carefully to accumulate all that on a yearly salary of about $5,000.

Not a bad lot of beans being an American-backed dictator for 20 years. You can accomplish a great deal in two decades. But unchecked power is a breeding ground for greed, corruption and oppression. Marcos' estimated worth, according to latest reports, was between $5 billion and $10 billion, while last year's Philippine national budget was about $3 billion. The yearly income for the average Filipino was $136.

It's equatable to a child left alone in the kitchen with an oversized cookie jar, crammed with Oreos. The child will grab one or two when no one's looking and then, with crumbs on the chin, the youngster realizes nobody's going to stop him, so the child hungrily lunges a chubby hand back into the jar for more. Satiation is only temporary.

OK, hey, but give Imelda a break. After she had every style, shade and size of shoe known to humanity she had to start getting doubles to take on vacations, right? With 3,000 pairs of shoes she could wear a different pair every day for eight years. Rep. Steven Solarz (D-N.Y.), who heads a subcommittee investigating the Marcos' wealth, said Imelda Marcos makes Marie Antoinette look like a bag lady. There are many in the Philippines who have never owned their own shoes or tasted a piece of birthday cake.

The Marcoses have run up a $26,000 bill since staying at the Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii. There must be a sale or something.

Indeed, here in the United States we do have corruption, but it can only flourish for so long before our checks and balances system -- executive, legislative and judicial branches of government, (let's not forget the press) -- stems the injustice, well, some of the time.

Ronald Reagan made a wise move when he decided to stop supporting Marcos after the fraudulent election of Feb. 7. But now he and White House communications director Pat Buchanan are exhibiting sheer stupidity in saying that anyone in Congress opposed to Reagan's $100 million aid package for the contras ($70 million of that military aid) is a "dupe for the Communists."

Well, I mean the contras will overthrow the Sandinistas and make Nicaragua a democratic state. And some great egalitarian leader will lead the people to freedom, and the United States will support the leader wholeheartedly, and we'll have strong influence and help keep the new leader in power, and we'll put military bases there, and ... "Imelda, Imelda, where's that extra case of caviar?"

Dan Sobel is a member of the Collegian staff.

Artist's record speaks for itself

In a recent review of Tim Harney's art exhibition on this campus, the reviewer concluded with the following statement: "Few MFA's go on to become artists; Tim Harney is one of them." Certainly we are very proud of Harney's (MFA '85) accomplishments; however we greatly resent the implication that M.F.A. students are not artists and that our alumni rarely attain success as artists.

The record clearly shows that, as a whole, the Art Department M.F.A. alumni maintain a superb record of success in the art world. It is a recognized fact that many of our alumni are active artists who show their work regularly in both national and international art centers. They have recieved major awards from the National Endowment of the Arts and the Massachuesetts Artists Foundation. In a survey conducted last year, we found that our alumni held college or university level teaching positions in 72 schools in this country and Canada; many of these institutions are recognized as the most prestigious in the field. To gain and retain such positions requires a continuing high level of professional activities and achievement as artists.

We find the reviewer's ill-informed statement to be not only false but insulting and detrimental to the Art Department and its alumni. It also does a disservice to Harney at the outset of his career. Our record is one in which we take great pride; therefore we urgently feel it imperative to correct the false impression which was published in the Collegian.

George Wardlaw, chairman Department of Art

Letters

Alcohol itself not the problem

This letter is being written in response to Kevin John Higgins' letter on March 7 concerning the reinstatement of alcohol on this campus.

What Higgins has misunderstood is the fact that alcohol itself is not the problem. The problem is that too many people overindulge in the effects of alcohol. Until we can change the general viewpoint that overindulgence in alcohol is acceptable, then this problem will not be solved.

Higgins believes that alcohol should be removed from this campus, and those who wish to drink should go to the bars off campus. Of course, some people don't realize that these people will most likely drive their cars to these bars, have a few drinks, then drive back intoxicated. People who drive drunk have a tendency to kill people. I speak from experience -- my 19-year-old sister was killed by a drunk driver on Dec. 7, 1985.

Robert Barcome
Northeast

Shopper shuttle to run on trial basis

By BRIAN BLOCK
Collegian Correspondent

Tomorrow the "Shopper Shuttle" buses roll, after almost a year of inaction, according to Dave Martin, spokesperson for the commuter area government.

The service is being co-funded equally by the CAG and the town of Amherst and will operate on a semester-long trial basis, before being officially reinstated, Martin said. At that time, the UMass transit will go to the Pioneer Valley Transit Authority to look for assistance in full-time operation of the shuttle.

By then, Louis Foods will have moved from downtown Amherst to the corner of University Drive and Amity Street and Martin said he feels the demand for the service will increase greatly because the Shopper Shuttle will be the only route serving the major supermarkets.

The service was discontinued at the end of the spring 1985 semester due to a lack of ridership, which Martin said "was partly due to a lack of awareness of the service."

The buses will make six hourly loops every Saturday, starting at 11 p.m. and the last one starting its route at 4 p.m.

The buses will start at Puffton Village, then continue to Amherst center, Price Chopper, Stop and Shop, and then Brittany Manor. Also included will be all the regular stops the Belchertown Road buses make, Martin said.

"I expect a slow start and then by the return of the students after spring break, a substantial use of the service," Martin said. "By the time Louis moves from the center of town, we will be the only bus serving the major supermarkets, at which time I expect to see a large increase in ridership due to demand."

Miller

HIGH LIFE.

PRESENTS AT SPRING BREAK '86

MR. MISTER

STARSHIP

LIVE

at Daytona Beach

MARCH 25, 1 P.M.

Miller High Life brings two of the hottest groups on tour today to Spring Break 1986. See them live, or if you can't get to a sun-bathed beach, catch the action on MTV

MTV MUSIC TELEVISION

In Concert on MTV

March 26, 10 P.M.

MTV and Miller High Life will re-broadcast the Mr. Mister/Starship Spring Break concert on Wednesday, March 26 at 10 pm E.S.T. Check your local listings for radio simulcast stations.

Wherever you are, be part of the hottest Spring Break ever with concerts brought to you by Miller High Life, the beer that's made the American way.

For more Miller High Life Spring Break Concert information, call

1-900-410-4MTV

Miller Brewing Company, Milwaukee, WI

BLACK AFFAIRS

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

The man who never accepts personal credits, David Anderson Hooker.

CCEBMS assistant successful but unseen

By C. RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Behind every dark cloud there is a silver lining and so it is for the Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEBMS).

Three years ago, David Anderson Hooker came to the University of Massachusetts to continue his graduate work/studies in Public Health. After doing some reconsideration he decided to do a dual masters in Public Health and Public Administration with a concentration on policy analysis.

Hooker, a native of Cincinatti, attended high school at home before entering Moorehouse College in 1976 to pursue his undergraduate education. He graduated with a dual degree in Biology and Psychology in 1981. At Moorehouse, Hooker did research analysis/ work in both departments.

Upon graduation from Moorehouse, Hooker worked as assistant director of the Domestic Violence Shelter, a halfway house for abused women and children. He also served as a counsellor for men who were perpetrators of domestic violence.

From Georgia, he travelled to St. Louis to earn his masters in Minority Mental Health Clinical Psychology with a cross cultural counselling background. Massachusetts bound, Hooker came to UMass in 1983. In four years Hooker will have completed three masters degree. He plans to work for a while before making the venture for his Doctorate. "Definitely, I won't do my doctorate work here..I have a few other schools in mind" he said. "I'd like to see some other parts of the country while I am studying,"the soft-spoken libra continued.

Presently, Hooker is Assistant Residence Director for James Dormitory. He recently changed functions. For three semesters he was a counsellor for student and staff developments which meant that he was responsible for organizing workshops, programing activities both educational and social activities for student and staff. This job is in no way connected to his studies but as the soft-spoken advisor puts it "that's what I want to do in life." His actions are clear evidence that he enjoys working with people. One of his greatest services is providing people with information and motivating people to learn and to grow.

Hooker's main objective is to develop some kind of program to provide human resource development particularly to young blacks.

Hooker is the Graduate Assistant to the Director of CCEBMS. His job responsiblities includes research and development. He is responsible for preparing the draft proposals for application and help develop the programs for summer program activities as far as tutoral are concerned. He also does the evaluation of all the programs conducted by CCEBMS.

For some strange reason it was rumored that Hooker was responsible for the proposal of the CCEBMS budget package but Hooker clearly stated "I am in no way officially connected with the CCEBMS budget."

In his sparetime, Hooker is a member of several University communities such as the Union Programing Council(UPC), The Students Advocating Financial Aid, President of the UMass contingent of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Inc.which takes up a considerable amount of his time, and " an anti-social butterfly" he added.

For a Delicious & Delightful Meal!!!

TACO VILLA

...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-9673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8211 Beer & Wine Served

SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788-7919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

IDB 545-1555

TIPS 545-1540

SPRING BREAK

Semester Break begins on Friday, March 14th after your last class. Residence Halls will be closed from Friday, March 14 at 6:00 pm until 12:00 noon on Sunday, March 23rd.

Have a nice Break and we'll see you in a couple of weeks.

For further information on Residence Hall closing and opening, call:

TAPED INFORMATION PHONE SERVICE
545-1540
And ask for tape number 7000

We also have information on a wide range of topics concerning campus life. For a full listing of information tapes, call or come by our office at Whitmore 227.

A Service of The Dean of Students Office

ARTS

Nicaragua exhibit a vital history lesson

By ROB SKELTON
Collegian Staff

The Nicaragua Media Project, on display through March 28 at the Student Union Gallery, is a profound presentation. For me, it symbolizes the essence of my journalistic calling--it is an honest attempt to portray the truth using facts and sources which are not dependent on or violated by political biases.

The way the deranged President Reagan rants, it's as if he has no historic grasp of Nicaragua, which, of course, is true. The Nicaragua Media Project provides us with factual ammunition necessary to confront the inordinately fearful conservative element whose sedimented knowledge distorts human reality and in the process precludes the fact that thinking people worldwide understand the circumstances surrounding the Nicaraguan Revolution.

There is much to learn from the Nicaragua Media Project, and this is no indoctrination course.

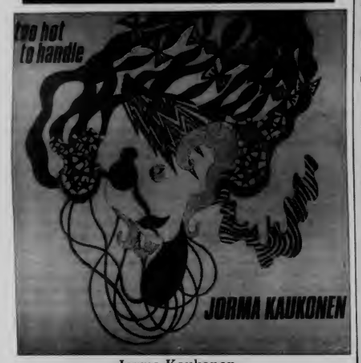
Re-reading mounted magazine accounts of Somoza's final days, one can't help but compare this fallen tyrant to Marcos in the Philippines. Distaste for these dictators and embarassment about their prolonged U.S. sustenance knows no political boundaries, barring common sense. Remarkably, there are those who believe these situations can be somehow "won", or "salvaged."

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

The Nicaragua Media Project is now on display in the Student Union Gallery through March 28.

Much of the Nicaragua Media Project details contra activities, from the CIA, which brought them into being, to their well-documented terrorism tactics. Ironically included are periodical covers, featuring Reagan reactionism against Libya, Iran, and other estranged foreign entities.

Another featured example of Reagan Administration double-standardization is the "Femme fatale" tale of Nora Astorga, heroine of the Nicaraguan revolution, and Ambassador-designate to Washington. Her role in a key Sandinista victory dismayed Reagan and company, who for years have profited doing much worse; Astorga was rejected for the role.



Valuable historical insight from photos by Rafael de Nogales show the effects of American imperialistic interference, circa. 1928, from an essay titled "The Looting of Nicaragua." Incidentally, Nicaragua along with the Philippines comprised America's two true colonial client-states; history haunts us still, evidently.

Part of the project is devoted to work of ethnic Nicaraguans, and it includes efforts, the first by a Nicaraguan government, to promote the arts and cultural mores so vital to the well-being of a people unused to such liberties.

Admittedly, a many-sided propaganda war has engulfed the Nicaraguan situation; but, I also have to admit that the more I learn about these geo-political historical conflicts, the more the rhetoric of the right seems flawed, even desperate.

There is much to learn from the Nicaragua Media Project, and this is no indoctrination course. Instead think of it as the one vital history lesson--that most of us missed.

Record Review

Jorma Kaukonen

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

TOO HOT TO HANDLE (Relix)
Jorma Kaukonen

It's a shame that Jorma doesn't have the money to produce a real studio album. Some of the songs on "Too Hot to Handle would be much better off with electric arrangements which Jorma had the time to fuss over instead of solo recordings done in the studio. Jorma's songs have over time changed from being more acid oriented to junk and unfortunately his playing reflects this change from a drug which pushes creativity to one which offers contentment and little in the way of desire to work one's mind to do more interesting tricks to find out what lies around each corner.

I'm not saying that Jorma is shooting junk all the time. In fact, it is none of my business. At any rate there are five relatively new songs of the album (including the great and long awaited recordings of "Radical Sleep" and "Ice Age") and three covers. Each of the covers are played in a different manner than when Jorma originally recorded them, and it would be unfair to say they were simple remakes. Essentially this is a good album, it's just one hopes that at some point Jorma has the opportunity and the money to make at least one great album before he retires.

LYRES (Ace of Hearts)

This is a three song EP put out in advance of the Lyres

continued on page 9

Michael Hedges shows a mastery of the guitar

By MICHAEL GERVASI
Collegian Correspondent

To many, Michael Hedges is the greatest musician to ever pick up a pick -- maybe so. It was certainly an arguable opinion after his early show last Wednesday night at the Iron Horse. He swept through two blistering sets of music that was best described as superlative.

For those that are familiar with his recordings on the Windham Hill label, it may occur to you that much of his music would be difficult to reproduce live. It is very intricate; the combination of power and subtlety makes it technically as well as creatively demanding. However, as the show progressed, it became evident that this was not a problem. He played almost flawlessly and with deep emotion through a program that spanned his whole career.

An example of this was his performance of Aerial Boudaries, an involved piece weaving together different threads into a consistent texture. Here, he exhibited an effective use of bass and delicate harmonics. It was also a clinic for the guitar players who were present -- they were able to steal a glimpse at his innovative sound techniques. I always wondered how he did some of that stuff.

As well as his earlier work, he also ran through some cuts off his new record, Watching My Life Go By, an album of mostly original vocals tunes. One of these was his opening song, Bob Dylan's "All Along The Watch Tower." He did it in his own trademark style and as well as anyone ever has, radiating a searing energy.

Another highlight was "Follow Through," a song from his new album. It is a classic song of strength and encouragement for those who try to do what they think is right. "Let imagination lead, reality will follow through." This was sung over his characteristically delicate guitar playing.

By the end of the show he had really worked the audience up; their enthusiasm and stamping of feet called for two encores, the second of which, Ragamuffin was the pinnacle of the show. Here, he exhibited a total mastery of the instrument with an intensity and power that was dazzling. The people in the audience left on their way either to practice or to just burn their guitars and give up.

UMass student wins Ivy League contest

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Charles Mack III, shows off the trophy he won at an Ivy League dance competition last Friday night.

By KELLY SIEGER
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student out-danced his Ivy League rivals last Friday night in Cambridge at a competition never before including UMass.

Charles Mack III, a Chinese and Russian language and literature major, won the show with a piece called "Chinese Forms." The performance was a combination of traditional and modern Chinese dance and also included acrobatics and martial arts movements.

Mack, a transfer student from Northern Illinois University in Chicago, began his dancing career in fourth grade as a supplement to gymnastics. A knee injury prevented him from continuing his dancing through high school. It wasn't until college that he resumed classes, ignoring a doctor's warning that he would never dance again as a result of his numerous injuries.

He became interested in Chinese and Russian dance forms early in his college career, having competed and choreographed many shows at his previous university. He first came in contact with the Asian American Students Assocation through his roommate, who is Chinese.

Through a newsletter released by the Asian Association, Mack found out about the competetion. The president of the association, observing Mack in his dance class, could only say "I want to see more!"

Having established himself as the UMass Asian

continued on page 9

amc THEATRES
$1.95 TWILITE SHOW UNITED TO MATING
MT FARMS 4 584-9155
Brazil
pretty in pink
MOLLY RINGWALD
HANNAH AND HER SISTERS
HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
DOWN AND OUT IN BEVERLY HILLS
GUNG HO
The Color Purple
He is immortal.
HIGHLANDER
CROSSROADS
FRI & SAT at 12:15 - SEATS $ 3.50
ROCKY HORROR
MONTY PYTHON AND THE HOLY GRAIL
CLOCKWORK ORANGE
PINK FLOYD THE WALL
TEXAS CHAIN SAW MASSACRE

Loudon Wainwright III

★ Competition

continued from page 8

Students representative, Mack had only a week to work on his routine. 'I had only a short amount of time but I was already in shape because of my ballet class. I already could do the moves, I only had to develop the actual piece."

Mack chose for his routine classical Chinese folkmusic. He also employed a chinese dance form called wushu which involves martial arts.

The amount of UMass support at the Hyatt Regency surprised Mack, who had suspected himself to become lost in the home of M.I.T. and Harvard. Many of Mack's friends showed up and several strangers also. He described the event as "absolutely elegant," especially the food, which was UMass' contribution to the event.

The competition is held annually and sponsored by various Asian associations at M.I.T., Harvard, Tufts and Wellesley. Mack represented the Asian American Students Association. This was the first year UMass was invited to attend.

Mack and the Asian American Students Assocation have hopefully insured an inviation to last year's competition.

★ Record review

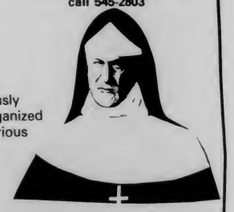
continued from page 8

forthcoming LP. If the EP is any indication, we have a lot to look forward to. The Lyre'a post psychedelic sound is refined on this EP, although "Someone Who'll Treat You Right" is a perfect return to the Lyres psychedelic root complete with pulsating organ and all. They sound like last year's top local band the "Mongrel Puppy" and without the Puppy around anymore it's good to know that there are still the Lyres.

I'M ALRIGHT (Rounder)
Loudon Wainwright III



This is a strange piece of album. Alternately serious and dead-pan humorous, I'm Alright, careens the listener through the musings of an urban cowboy (not John Travolta but a "one man guy") who is fast approaching middle age or at least the familiar problems of that age. The arrangements, produced by Richard Thompson, are simple and to the point. In fact, the album shows Loudon's moodier and depressed side. You don't feel that great after listening to it, perhaps because it hits home, which is the sign of a truly great album; which this one is.

Artful

AMHERST CINEMA
Friday and Saturday
Hair 7:00
Fame 9:05
Sunday - Tuesday
Breakfast Club 7;15
The Sure Thing 9:00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Sidestage presents
"Sister Mary Ignatius -- 'Dentity Crisis"
8 P.M.
HAMPDEN THEATRE
$2. Admission
for reservations and more info call 545-2803
The New Yorker
a "biting, irreverent and uproariously funny satire that aims its barbs at organized religion and strikes home with hilarious results."
Directed by Ed Golden
March 13, 14, 15, and 27, 28, 29

SPORT Style
Two-color Reversible T-Shirt
$10.95
Coaches Shorts
$16.95
UNIVERSITY STORE

University of Massachusetts Department of Theatre presents
A NEW MUSICAL
Lesser Pleasures
A Secret Opera
Book by VIRGINIA SCOTT Music and Lyrics by JOSH ROSENBLUM
RAND THEATER University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center
MARCH 6-8 and 12-15, 1986 at 8pm, Saturday Matinee MARCH 8 at 2pm
Tickets, FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE, 545-2511

Collegian photo by Maria Bull

HOW MUCH IS THAT LITTLE KITE IN THE WINDOW? — Amherst College sophomore Laura Holm, looks forward to sunnier days.

Health Services providing information on junk food

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

A University Health Services program is taking a multi-media approach to provide students with a wider range of nutritional information and more alternative choices to "junk" foods.

Snack Sense, seeks to educate students about nutrition and their between-meals eating habits through mixed media.

"The goal is to improve the quality of nutrient intake," said nutritional coordinator of the program, Barbara Hotchkiss.

She said data shows that a large portion of students use the products in vending machines for a good part of their nutrient intake.

In a survey done at the Graduate Research Center's vending machines, students were found to buy products with high sugar, fat and sodium, such as candy bars and potato chips, according to Hotchkiss.

"On this campus 85 percent of the students snack between meals once a day and 25 percent snack three or more times a day," she said. Sixty-four percent of those snacks and 50 percent of beverages are high in fat, sugar, sodium and caffeine.

"The objective is not only to have students stop buying junk food, but to realize why," said Hotchkiss. Foods that are high in non-nutrient calories are associated with increased risks of many chronic diseases, she said.

"It's a way to increase people's awareness without making them feel guilty," said Arlene Thomson, a dietician at the health center.

The program was first developed when one of the dentists at the center noticed all the junk food available and the lack of alternative choices. The program was initiated by Health Education and Dental Services of UHS and the division of Auxiliary Services on campus in the fall of 1984.

Snack Sense usually has a publicity table set up on the Campus Center concourse Wednesdays from 12 to 3 p.m., but since March is "Nutrition Month" the table is also set up on Thursdays at the same time.

A Summer Adventure in Learning

Four Weeks in Cuernavaca, Mexico

June 15–July 12

Learn Spanish at the intermediate level* from native speakers and earn six undergraduate credits while living in beautiful Cuernavaca, one hour from Mexico City. Small groups (four to six students). Program supervised by UMass/Boston faculty.

Live and dine with Mexican families in a totally Spanish-speaking environment. Weekend field trips included.

Application deadline: May 16, 1986
Course fees, room, and board: $785

For details, call or write:
Division of Continuing Education
University of Massachusetts at Boston
Harbor Campus
Boston, MA 02125-3393
617 929-7900

UMass/Boston

* Other levels and non-credit option by permission.
 Air fare not included. Group rate air fare information available on request.

This advertisement appears at no expense to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts

FUNNYBONES soon to be
KATINAS

Friday	Saturday
The Radiators	The Radiators
Sunday	Monday
The Manish Boys	The Soc Hops
Tuesday	Wednesday
The Malarions	Arabus
Thursday	March 21 & 22 Friday & Saturday
Trapped	Carol Hawn and the Skylark
March 28
Stompers

advance tickets on sale now

RTE. 9 HADLEY 586-4463

ATILLA'S
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, Ma 01035
WE DELIVER 586-7070
or 586-7071

Sunday - Thursday 4:00 pm - 2:00 am
Friday, Saturday 4:00 pm - 3:00 am

$1.00 OFF any size pizza
$1.00 OFF any size pizza
$1.00 OFF any size pizza
$1.00 OFF any size pizza

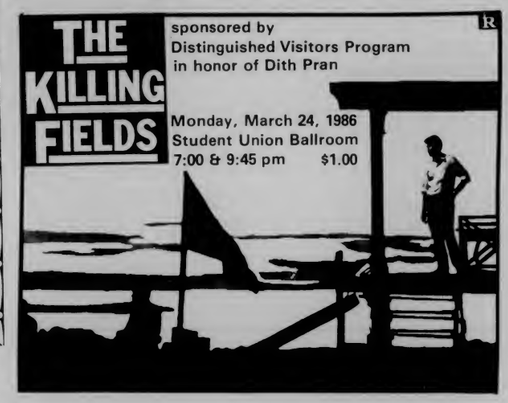
PIZZA small (12")
large (16")

also: Gyro, Stromboli, Subs, Salads

Call for Delivery Now and Get $1.00 Off Any Size Pizza with one of these coupons

Smith College Rec. Council presents
THE BANGLES
&
THE HOODOO GURUS
Thursday, April 3, 1986,
9 PM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College

Tickets: March 25-April 2
Smith Students $7 & $8
limit: 4 tickets per ID
Non Smith Students $8 & $9
at the door $10
Seelye Basement Smith College
12-3 pm weekdays



Main St Records, Northampton
For the Record, Faces, Amherst
FAC Box Office, UMass
All Datatix Outlets
including Springfield Stop & Shop
Springfield Civic Center

No cans, bottles, recording devices, or cameras.
Halls wheelchair accessible

THE KILLING FIELDS

sponsored by
Distinguished Visitors Program
in honor of Dith Pran

Monday, March 24, 1986
Student Union Ballroom
7:00 & 9:45 pm $1.00

Family Dinner from $5.95
Live Lobster Dinner $7.95

Luncheon Specials from $2.25 - $4.50
Mon-Sat 11:30 am - 3:00 pm (except Holidays)

Sunday Brunch served from 11:30 am 3:00 pm
$6.95 per person $4.00 per child under ten

Banquet Room Available for larger parties

Cocktail Lounge

For take out orders and reservations please call 586-1202
Sun-Thurs 11 am - 10 pm; Fri & Sat 11 am - 11 pm

48 Russell Street
Hadley, Mass. 01035

SPRING(BREAK'86)FEVER

MADE IN USA catchit!

catchit!™

Modern Sportswear for Sun, Swim and Street

House of Walsh

32 Main Street • Amherst • 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM Mon. - Sat. • 253-3381

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon Thurs, 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

4-sale 1973 Pontiac Venture runs great new exhaust and brakes $800 call 253-5523

73 Duster, original owner, 68000 mi. good mechanical condition $395 or BO 253 9462

73 Buick engine v good, new muffler, battery, coolant 76000 mi $750 nego 549-3607

 BOB O'BRIEN *****

* Je ne peux pas attendre a sour, quand * *Je le verai! Colonel Sacrene XO *

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 255-7436

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH COMING SOON

Discover Sorority Life, friends and fun March 25, 26, 27, 6-6:45 pm Any questions? Call Pam at 549-6466 or 253-9916. Have a great Spring Break!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

Rock-A-Disc Entertainment Disc jockeys, light shows, large screen video shows, call 549-7144 24 hrs

The Cheap Jock, Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

Mobile Music Inc disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:30 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus Play it safe call 5-2133 for an escort ANYTIME.

FOR RENT

Amherst rooms available immediately also summer sublet/fall option rooms Roy 256-0226, eves 549-6746

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2234 or 665-7106

Across the street! Sublet small bedroom in large house Female only, no pets, no smokers $180/month through 8/31 $180 plus utilities 549-6922

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric six-string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6489

Canon Camera Set: A-1, 50F1.4, 28F2.8, 70-210F4, 199A, new motor drive MA/RF, new silk U212, many extras, all in excellent condition. $750 or BO 665-8261

For sale 1981 Toyota Starlet good cond $2000 256-6959

Dead Tix 2 ea. all 3 Va shows during Spring Break 542-8092

"FREE MONEY"

Need money for Spring Break? Go get your baseball cards and I'll give you money call Mike 546-6105

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi $ill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm Matt 584-3596

Butterfield Kitchen is now accepting applications for the position of Asst. Manager for the 86-87 academic year. Position offers free room and board. Valuable experience. Applications available in the Butterfield Kitchen Office. Application deadline 5:00 PM March 24

HEY RAINA BEBE

Happy 20th!! STRIPE the town red! We love ya! The Three Blondes. Muffinhead and Lucia

LOST

Metal Guitar Pin lost high sentimental value $15 reward Tom 6-1056

Lost: gold amethyst ring with a diamond chip on either side if found please call Stephanie 256-0996

Lost blue denim Code Bleu jacket keys in pocket lost last Thurs at Lamda Chi reward pls call 546-1180

$25 Reward Lost keys - 3 UMass, Buick car plus others on key chain with yellow plastic tab call 253-9946

Blue key ring lost in town 3/7 3 keys return to CC Info Desk

One small brown address book please call 549-0146 reward offered

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0965

BEACH CLUB Spring Breakwear by Lyon Design - Campus Center Concourse thru Friday

Karen - you loose, but you take a good picture

Robin is ugly!!!

Best Wishes for a great Spring Break From the Sisters and Pledges of Kappa Kappa Gamma

T.C. Happy 21st a bit early. Have fun. XO C.T.

Betty Ann, Betty Anne, Bet E. An, BAM -CONGRATULATIONS! We were going to make a big banner across the business office door, but you showed up too early. Such efficiency!

Happy Birthday Ann. You're an awesome kitchen queen. Get psyched for NYC! I feel sorry for the male population there. You're loving friend and roomy Jake

Hon, Don't worry about this weekend. You'll win their hearts like you won mine. Eisenhower Park awesome time! Love always, the 4:30 a.m. visitor

Happy Birthday Kevin! Love, Kathy Letter Lynn Michelle and valerie happy 19th Birthday Alicia love, Michael, Cathy, and Erin

Bella - I wish the eyes could see what is inside the heart. Have a nice break - Secreat Admirer who is not secreat anymore

Chris Guard Happy 22 Birthday all my love Patti

Hey Chris, festive or not we'll always love you - AHAA!

Melita - Happy 19th! Ride it! Luv 9th JQ \

Where are the brothers? Why can t you wait for me?

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Desperate for a ride to and from Chicago over Spring Break!!! Call Jeff 549-2808

ROOMMATE WANTED

To take over lease. House in Amherst, on bus route $125. female, nonsmoking Chris or Meg 253-9692

1 room in 5 bedroom house 1½ from campus on busroute available immediately call after five 256-6228

Female to share room in Brandywine immediate opening $145 mo call Susan 549-0486

SACRIFICE!

Sacrifice! 2-bedroom Sunderland. First, last, security free! References required 665-4562

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime 665-7512

Private Tutor learn German grammar & conversation tel 549-6095

Looking for housekeeper? Available evenings and afternoons rates $5-6/hr call June 253-5406

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mail, 584-9362

SOFTBALL COACH

Softball Batting/Fielding Coach (or player/coach) needed for local adult co-ed team April-August. Modest compensation for coaching. Leave message on tape at 545-1960 after 5:00 pm

SUMMER JOBS

Some immediate part time openings available Hometown or local positions. All majors welcome Call for information Polaris Enterprises Corp. ask for Vivian 617 328 7440

TO SUBLET

Large 1 bdr apt on bus line, quiet, w pool and AC. To take over June 1st for summer, option for fall $395/mo 665-8477

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent - will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

WANTED TO RENT

We'll pay $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus call 546-9865

WE NEED L.A.

Two round trip tickets to L.A. needed call Pete or Bob 6-8082

SPORTS

Gazelles return strong team

Griswold, Forbes lead UMass

Sports Information photo

Bunny Forbes is one of the returning starters for the UMass women's lacrosse team.

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Similar to last fall's women's soccer team, the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team is fielding a young squad capable of accomplishing anything.

However,unlike last season's nationally sixth-ranked team, experience could be a missing link to this year's club.

Gone is two-time All-America Pam Moryl, a prolific scorer who registered 170 goals and 45 assists in her four year career at UMass. Gone is Liz Schueler, an attack wing who added 17 goals and three assists to a potent UMass offense. Gone are four starting defensmen and goalkeeper Debbie DeJesus, who was responsible for holding opponents to 5.0 goals a game.

With 12 freshmen and five sophomores on the roster, UMass head coach Pam Hixon knows that inexperience will be something that the Gazelles must deal with before they are able to attain the efficiency and quality play that last season's 9-3 club acheived.

"Our defense needs more experience while the team as a whole needs the chance to play together and develop," Hixon said.

Hixon also said, however, that with her team's trip to Florida during Spring Break, her team will have the chance to come into its own and emerge with an identity seperate from last year's club.

Hixon said she expects her team to gain valueable experience and unity while playing against clubs made up of seasoned veterans and members of the U.S. National Team.

"With practices in the morning and scrimmages in the afternoon, it will be a good playing experience for my players," she said. "It will also be the first opportunity for the team to play outside on a full field so we're expecting good, positive progress."

For the team to return to the successful plateau acheived last season, it will be important, Hixon said, to get strong performances from her defense to complement an offensive attack which she said may be the most potent she has coached in years.

"When you take a look at the team, we may have an inexperienced defense but at the same time we have a very explosive offense with a tremendous capacity to score," Hixon said. "Our defense is very young. If we can work on getting it to keep the goals down then we're going to be a winner because I think that this year we'll score even more goals than last year (10.8 goals-per-game)."

Hixon's offensive corps is headed up by senior first home Bunny Forbes (21 goals, 15 assists), sophomore second home Ginny Armstrong (20, 1) and junior third home Lisa Griswold (49, 16 as a sophomore at Northwestern University).

The addition of Griswold is something that Hixon said is going to be a big plus to the team because of the opportunities she creates. An All-America second home her sophomore year, Griswold's 49 goals was good enough for seventh place in the nation and represents a scoring proficiency that could offset the loss of Moryl.

"Griswold will score her share of goals, but she's a passer as well as a scorer," Hixon said. "She's naturally deceptive and posesses a lot of mobility so I expect that she will create lots of opportunities for her teammates as well."

The three, along with junior attack wing Becky Bekampis (16, 3) and freshman attack wing Cathy Fuhrman, who Hixon regards as an outstanding prospect for this and future years, should provide the bulk of the offensive firepower that Hixon expects.

"Our starting offensive five will give us a strong front line that will very definately be explosive. We're different this year than from when we had Pam (Moryl). She was a one-man show who was dominant. This year we don't have anyone who can be described as being dominating in that sense. We simply have a lot of very, very strong front liners. Everyone will have definite impact."

The rest of the offensive scoring will be taken care of by sophomore third home Stephanie Hering, freshman first home Adrienne Recla, freshman attack wing Patty Frank, freshman attack wing Kathy DeAngelis and freshman Noelle Fay, who will see action both as an attack wing and as a center.

Hixon said that the midfield which lacked speed last year is much quicker this year. This quickness Hixon hopes will be used to her offense' advantage by catching the opposition in man-down situations, leading to Gazelle fast-breaks and scores.

Fighting with opponents for the draw at center will be senior Mary Scott (9, 1) who Hixon describes as a very complete player.

"She combines very well with everyone, but with her defensive abilities, I'm hoping that she will provide the defense with the support it needs," she said.

Two defenders that Scott will combine with are speedsters Julie Stuart and Sheila Phillips. Stuart, a freshman and Phillips, a sophomore have tremendous quickness and are expected to provide a quick transition from defense to the Gazelles' fast-break. Freshman Anne Vivaldi should also provide support to the UMass defensive wing.

Hixon said that perhaps the biggest area that needs to be filled is the point which defends mostly against the opposition's top scorer. Hixon expects the job to be filled by either junior Chris Kocot or freshman Lynn Hartman. Freshman Maria Schupler should also challenge for playing time.

The defense should be bolstered with the return of junior cover point Posy Seifert who redshirted last year due to torn ligaments in her knee. Seifert appears to have a lock on the job while junior Emily Humiston and sophomore Amy Robertson will share the duties of playing third man. Freshman Beth Jones is also expected to contribute at third man.

The goalkeeping duties will be handled chiefly by sophomore Pam Stone and freshmen Ann Scileppi and Kris Bibeau. Goalkeeping will be of extreme importance to Hixon because she said that if the three could improve upon DeJesus' efforts last year then the team will be tough for anyone to beat.

If there is any one goal that Hixon said that the team must improve upon is that her players must raise their shooting percentage of balls shot on-net. She said that the tendency of her players is to send the ball wide when the pressure is on.

"For us to score goals in pressure situations, we're going to have to keep from firing the ball outside of the goal area," she said. "The key is keeping the ball in play in front of the goalkeeper."

Hixon didn't cite any goals for her team but to play aggressive and play well.

"We'll just play every team and beat them as they come along."

Lacrosse '86

Coach: Pam Hixon (8th year).
Assistants: Patti Bossio (first year) and Sue Stimmel (second year)
Captains: Captains have not been elected for this season.
Top Returning Players: Bunny Forbes (21 goals, 15 assists - offense); Virginia Armstrong (20-1 - offense); Becky Bekampis (16-3 - offense); Emily Humiston (2-0 - defense); Chris Kocot (defense); Mary Scott (9-1 - center); Posy Seifert (point); Amy Robertson (defense).
Top Newcomers: Lisa Griswold (transfer from Northwestern where she was an All-American - offense) and Pam Stone (transfer from Vermont - goalie).
Key Losses: Pam Moryl (41 goals, 7 assists - offense); Liz Schueler (17-3 - offense); Andrea Muccini (3-1 - defense); Laura Manning (1-0 - defense) and Beth Guinivan (0-1 - defense).
Opening Game: March 28, against Boston University, home.

Weekend preview

Woman gymnasts at ECAC championships

By STUART GOTTLIEB
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team, coming off a stunning upset over the University of New Hampshire here last weekend, will travel to Durham this weekend to compete in the East Coast Athletic Conference Championships.

The Minutewomen, who are seeded fifth in the competition, are looking for the same killer instinct going into the championships as they had when they defeated the Wildcats who are seeded first in the entire league.

"Realistically we can't expect a very high team placement," said UMass head coach Chuck Scheibler.

"We will just go in there and do all the things we know we can do. With some luck we will catch the rest of the pack off guard like we did against UNH. If we do that, then you never know what could happen."

The gymnasts really have a more realistic shot at some good individual finishes. Senior Sue Allen, coming off her best all-around performance of the season against UNH with a 35.32, is seeded fourth in the league in the all-around and is looking for a good day.

"If I hit the events the way I did last time than I will be extremely satisfied," said Allen. "A 35 would probably give me a strong second, and even possibly a first."

Fellow senior Tricia Harrity is also seeded in the top six going into the all-around championships.

On the floor exercise the Minutewomen are looking for a good effort by Chris Cloutier.

Cloutier, also a senior, is currently seeded fifth in the conference on the floor.

The men's gymnastics team, whose season came to an end last weekend with a seventh place finish in the League Championships at Army, are extremely proud of sophomore Jay Ronayne.

Ronayne showed that his hard work and dedication on the high bar all season paid off as he took third place in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Championships individual competition. Ronayne scored a combined 9.0 to give the Minutemen something to be proud of coming off a mediocre performance at West Point.

In fencing news, last Saturday the UMass men's fencing team took third in the all-around competition at tehe New England championships.

The men were led by John Amoroso, who took third place overall in the competition.

Greg Dunnun, Durant Scholtz, Jim Carter, Matt Vartanian and Dave Cole all had good seasons for UMass.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 34

MONDAY, MARCH 24, 1986

INSIDE

• Dave Valade on Contra aid and self-determination. Page 5.
• Former Collegian Arts Editor picks the Oscars. Page 6.
• Gorillas take their season opener. Page 12.

Fire demolishes room in Stockbridge

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Stockbridge Hall room 15 in the aftermath of yesterday's fire.

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

A fire yesterday morning caused about $15,000 to $20,000 damage to a room in the basement of Stockbridge Hall at the University of Massachusetts, according to an official investigating the blaze.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation, said Rick Mears, a fire inspector at the UMass Environmental Health and Safety department.

No injuries were reported because no classes or events were taking place in the building at the time, Mears said.

"The whole room is gutted," he said, but "smoke damage and water damage was confined to that room ... The (Amherst) fire department did a good job of containing it."

The blaze was reported at 8:39 a.m. and it ruined room 15, a 10-by-15-foot space used for storing equipment used in laboratory classes. Firefighters extinguished the flames in about 30 minutes, Mears said. The door to the room was also charred.

The room contained laboratory apparatus, soil samples and "a lot of combustible things like paper," Mears said.

The Amherst Fire Department responded to the blaze with four engines, one ladder truck and one squad rescue vehicle.

The fire was discovered by Margaret Randall, a University employee who went into the building with the intention of doing some work in her office.

"I walked in the front door and smelled smoke in the lobby, I went further into the hallway, where the smoke was obvious and then called the fire department," said Randall, the director of the Nutritional Education and Staff Development program.

Only room 15 will be closed, an employee at the Physical Plant said.

Stockbridge Hall is a three-story building located next to the Campus Center circle. It houses the Stockbridge School of Agriculture and the College of Food and Natural Resources.

Ex-student's beer debuted in dorm

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Jon Bove recently started selling his own brand of beer, "Portland Lager," 16 years after making his first batch in his room while a University of Massachusetts student.

"In 1970, I moved into Dickinson (House) with a Chicopee (resident) named Joe Walzack. And in between endless bouts of shooting pool and eating kielbasa sandwiches in Chicopee, he taught me how to make beer," Bove said.

Bove said that during the semester he learned to be a brewer, he attended one class out of a full schedule, and his grade point average went from a 3.2 to a 1.8.

Bove said he and Walzack were making between 15 and 25 gallons of beer a week and giving it away, to the benefit of the Dickinson party scene.

"...in between endless bouts of shooting pool and eating kielbasa sandwiches in Chicopee, he taught me how to make beer."

—UMass grad Jon Bove

"It was kind of funny because a lot of the guys were just back from Vietnam and when we first started, the bottles would be blowing up and everyone would think it was artillery," he said.

Bove said that after his graduation from UMass in 1975 with a degree in Japanese, he "floated around for few years.

"I think I was kind of a bad student and couldn't have gotten much of a job using the Japanese anyhow," he said.

In 1983, Bove attended a series of seminars on microbreweries at the University of California in Davis because he was "looking for something new to do," he said.

"You hear that the '80s is supposed to be the decade of the entrepreneur and all this sort of bull, and you get imbued with that kind of thinking, and you start to think, 'Hell, I can go out and raise money,' " he said.

"We wanted to build a brewery that would make 19th-century beers and ales. The whole idea was to bring back traditional brews, the kind people drank before Prohibition," Bove said.

One peculiarity about Bove's Maine Coast Brewing is

continued on page 4

Students, administrators meet to put the 'trust' back in 'trust fund'

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Students leaders in the Student Government Association and staff connected with the Student Activities Trust fund will meet in a workshop this morning in the Campus Center to discuss their roles in the day-to-day involvement of the fund.

Michael Jones, program director of the student activities office, said the purpose of the workshop is "to restore trust within the trust fund."

The workshop will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in Campus Center 804-808.

"It was clear there was a lot of distrust between the students and the staff. It was serious enough to try to reach compromises," Jones said.

"Students perceive the staff as a threat, as competition for the SGA. We see ourselves as advocates of student development," he said.

Jones said distrust was a matter of concern before last Nov. 19, when the director of the Student Activities Office, Randy Donant, assumed control over parts of the fund. The move was met with protests and calls for Donant's resignation by the SGA.

In October, a questionnaire was prepared by the University Counseling Center for professional staff members of the SATF, Jones said. "They were trying to determine how they felt about the issue. This is a follow-up to that; we're trying to retain the momentum," he said.

Among student leaders invited to the workshop are the Undergraduate Student Senate speaker Paul Wingle and Treasurer Catherine Strickland, he said.

The purpose of the workshop "is not to browbeat or to patronize the students," Jones said. "It will give them the chance to get to know each other as individuals, to get to know their roles in the SATF."

Vote recount: Bennett wins by 60

The Student Government Association presidential election results are official after a recount extended the margin of victory of Bill Bennett, said the chairwoman of the SGA Governmental Affairs Committee.

Bennett originally edged out opponent Lynne Murphy by eight votes in the election held on March 10 and 11. In the recount, held March 14, Bennett's margin of victory became 60 votes according to Karen Morvay.

"It's Bennett and Burgess, baby," Morvay said.

Morvay said she will recommend at the Undergraduate Student Senate meeting this Wednesday that the senate approve the elections of Bennett as president and Dani Burgess as SGA student trustee. Burgess won the trustee race by more than 300 votes.

Bennett said his victory was not affected by an election scandal in which Lynne M. Murphy of Washington Tower, a Bennett supporter, hung posters saying she supported Bennett. Controversy ensued as supporters of candidate Lynne Murphy said it was a deliberate attempt to confuse voters.

"It had no affect at all," Bennett said. "One side blew it all out of proportion."

Bennett said yesterday that he sees no problems working with Burgess. "I've talked with Dani. There is no hatred between us. Although we're from different [political] sides, we should be able to work together," he said.

On the night of the election, Burgess said,"I can work with anybody, as long as they don't hate me."

On the issue of student rights, Burgess said, "Bill and I are in relative agreement. I don't see why that should change."

—PATRICK JOHNSON

FINAL RESULTS
1986 SGA Presidential Elections

Bill Bennett	1,048
Lynne Murphy	988
Jay Talerman	579
Ted Capodilupo	248

Jewish group protests Jackson's advocate

BOSTON (AP)—Chanting "Jews against Jackson, Jews against King," a dozen members of a radical Jewish group marched yesterday before a church where the Rev. Jesse Jackson endorsed a local liberal running for Congress.

Police estimated that about 200 bystanders watched the Jewish Defense League protest a news conference called by Jackson to show his support for former state Rep. Melvin E. King, a candidate in the crowded race for the seat of retiring House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

Jackson, an unsuccessful contender for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, came under attack by the Jewish Defense League at the time for his association with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, but the target yesterday was King.

AP photo

The Rev. Jesse Jackson (left) meets yesterday with state Rep. Melvin H. King at a press conference in Boston.

"Mel King said he would welcome Arafat to Boston, which we consider reason enough to consider him a danger to Jews and to Israel," said Jewish Defense League leader Kenneth Sidman.

"He also said he prefers Cuban leader Fidel Castro over President Reagan, which we consider to mean he's dangerous to America," Sidman said.

King, a Democrat who narrowly lost the 1983 mayoral election in Boston, was hurt in his campaign by such controversial comments as saying he said he preferred Castro to Reagan because the Cuban leader has done more for the poor.

King said yesterday he would welcome Arafat "if it would be a part of the process that could lead to peace, which means the Palestinians would have to recognize the right of Israel to exist and the Palestinian right to self-determination would naturally have to be recognized."

Security was tight at the news conference in the Arlington Street church. Members of the Unitarian Universalist Church checked identification, allowing in only reporters, camera crews and King campaign workers.

Film shows 'healthy' Sakharov

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP)—The Bild newspaper said yesterday that Soviet sources have provided the daily with a 15-minute color film of an "obviously healthy" Andrei Sakharov.

It said the videotape film, made by hidden cameras, shows the Soviet Union's most prominent dissident visiting a doctor's office and an auto mechanic's shop, discussing disarmament with a KGB agent, and talking by telephone with his wife, who is in America, Bild said.

The KGB secret service made the film between December and early February, Bild said. "Bild has the corresponding soundtrack cassette," the paper said, adding that it was obtained from "Moscow Kremlin circles."

Bild, a mass-circulation tabloid, has previously received numerous Soviet leaks regarding Sakharov, a physicist who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1975 for his human rights activities.

Sakharov was banished by Soviet authorities to internal exile in the city of Gorky in January 1980 after publicly criticizing the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Bild's report was to appear in today's editions, but the newspaper released it yesterday to news agencies in West Germany.

"The KGB continues its eavesdropping on Sakharov's every step," Bild said. "Both his telephone discussions with his wife Yelena Bonner, who is currently in the United States, were not only listened to, but were filmed with hidden video cameras."

Bonner has been in the United States since December for medical treatment. In exchange for receiving her visa, she promised Soviet authorities she would not discuss political issues.

Workers remember factory deaths

NEW YORK (AP)—As the nation prepares to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty, symbol of a new life for immigrants entering a new land, a grimmer anniversary of America's heritage will be marked tomorrow.

With candles instead of fireworks, union workers will remember the deaths of 146 immigrants, mostly young women recently arrive from Russia, Italy, Hungary and Germany, who perished 75 years ago on March 25, 1911, in a fire that swept the Triangle Shirtwaist Co.

They labored in cramped, dingy quarters on the top of three floors of a 10-story loft building that still stands, just east of Washington Square in Greenwich Village.

The fire broke out late on a Saturday afternoon, at the end of a six-day workweek, as 500 workers were preparing to go home.

No alarm sounded. The only exterior fire escape collapsed. The only interior escape was a circular staircase just 33 inches wide. People piled up against doors that open inward and were routinely locked to prevent workers from pilfering so much as a spool of thread. Fire ladders reached only to the seventh floor. The spray from the hoses fell short.

CORRECTION

The March 14 edition incorrectly named one of three students arrested last April in the Campus Center. Pia Giammasi was not arrested. The third student arrested was Marc Kenen.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wantoba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Head Resident Positions

Amherst College is seeking candidates for part time (10 months) Head Resident positions starting August 15, 1986. Responsibilities include training and supervision of Resident Counselors, advising a council for residence governance and helping to develop social and cultural programs, and working with Dean's Office, faculty and physical plant departments to ensure proper functioning of residence halls. Qualifications include: completion of Bachelor's degree by September, 1986; ability to relate well to students; organizational and counseling skills. Previous experience in residential life preferred. Compensation: $3,500, room and board. Submit resume, cover letter and two letters of recommendation to: Karen Tilbor, Associate Dean of Students, Amherst College, Box 68, Amherst, MA 01002 before March 31, 1986. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. M/F/H.

DELANO'S

FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
FREE TACO BAR
MON & TUES NIGHT
9 — till it lasts
MARCH BEER OF THE MONTH
Heineken
57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

Career Tip #1.
Develop a strategy.

Make a list of companies you want to work for. Arrange them according to which ones will most benefit your career long-term. Go for the experience, training and credentials. The big money will come later.

Burger King should be high on that list. As an assistant manager, you'll be responsible for a million dollar business—excellent training for leadership in any field.

ON CAMPUS INTERVIEWS:
Thursday, March 27

Unable to attend? Send your resume to: Human Resources, Burger King Corporation, 1800 W. Park Drive, Westborough Office Park, Westborough, MA 01581. Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H

BURGER KING. Pillsbury

Get all you need to succeed.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

ON THE BALL—First year CAS major Jon Fortescu practices his game on Boyden Courts in last weekends mild weather.

Aid program director lobbies to prevent cuts

By KATHLEEN MOYNIHAN
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts director of Upward Bound, a program to aid students from poor families, spent last week in Washington, D.C., lobbying against funding cuts for a national umbrella group which aids such students.

Special Programs for Students from Disadvantaged Backgrounds, better known as TRIO, provides educational opportunities to students whose families lack money and education. The program, which draws together nearly 1300 campus operations such as Upward Bound, may be cut under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction law.

"It is important that Congress fully understands the devastating impact that funding cuts will have on students that might otherwise not have a chance to become successful in life," said Edward P. Korza, UMass Upward Bound director.

The criteria for involvement with Upward Bound are a family income below 150 percent of the poverty level and neither parent having been graduated from a four-year college, Korza said.

Students and staff involved with Upward Bound traveled to the University of New Hampshire last month to attend a rally sponsored by TRIO. The event was held at UNH because it is in the home state of Republican Sen. Warren Rudman, co-sponsor of the deficit law.

Korza noted that "one extreme of the Gramm-Rudman Act is that it would eliminate the program after three years."

Zaida Santiago, a first-year pre-education major who did not attend the rally, said, "It (Upward Bound) is a good program. My study skills improved. They helped me a lot with my academics—I used to be a below average student. They helped me become an above-average student."

Santiago said that without the program's help, "I wouldn't have been able to go to college." Upward Bound helped her with college applications and provided tutors.

If the program were eliminated, she said, "I think students would suffer a great deal."

Last month, Reps. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., William D. Ford, D-Mich., and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives proclaiming Feb. 28 as National TRIO Day, to bring attention to the importance of the program.

Cross-country walker to speak

Robert Sweetgall, subject of a University of Massachusetts study on the health benefits of walking, will speak at 7 p.m. today at the Fort River School in Amherst.

Sweetgall, who walked across the United States in 1985, was observed throughout the trek by the departments of exercise and food science at the Amherst campus, and by the department of health, fitness and human performance at the UMass Medical Center in Worcester.

In his talk, he will present a slide program on his "Walk Across America."

Sweetgall walked 11,700 miles, through all 50 states, starting in Sept. 1984 in Newark, Delaware. Sweetgall first walked west, went down the West Coast, across the southern United States, then to the Midwest, back down to Louisiana and Florida, up to New England, and ended in Sept. 1985 in Manhattan. He was flown to Alaska and Hawaii from the West Coast.

Sweetgall promotes the health benefits of walking as the safest aerobic exercise with proven benefits. The results of the study done on Sweetgall will be released later this year.

To register or for more information call 253-9731. The program is free of charge.

—NANCY KLINGENER

UMass professor studies L.A. economic crisis

By TARA HAZEN
Collegian Correspondent

If the economic crisis in Latin American continues on its present course, the resulting chaos may cause fragmentation of the region, according to a University of Massachusetts professor who is a member of a presidential task force studying the issue.

Howard Wiarda, a professor of political science, was appointed by the Reagan administration to the Task Force on Project Economic Justice. The findings of the group, which is scheduled to conclude its research this summer, may become the basis for US economic policy in Latin America, Wiarda said.

"The report will offer suggestions as to how the United States can assist Latin America," he said. "It may suggest cooperatives be made, meaning arrangements in which workers manage and have shares in their own companies," he said.

Because of Latin American nations' ineffective economic policies, the economy of the region is stagnant, Wiarda said. He described the Latin American economy in five parts:

- The region's economy is shrinking. The standard of living there today is where it was in the 1960s. By the year 2000, Wiarda said, it may be back to the level of the 1970s.
- There are no new investments being made in Latin America from outside the region. Companies have been losing money in the region and would "rather invest in Asian countries because they're better run and less corrupt," he said.
- Money is leaving the region faster than it is coming in—a phenomenon called capital flight. Even Latin American investors are not investing in their own countries, he said.
- US companies are leaving the region. Companies are losing money because of bureaucratic and political problems, seeking countries that have "less red tape," he said.
- US foreign aid has been reduced. "When Latin American needs aid the most, there won't be any support for it," he said. Wiarda said that 80 percent of the American public does not support foreign aid and would not mind if it were cut out of the budget.

Americans don't recognize the growing interdependence between the United States and Latin America, he said. "There is more trade between Latin America and the United States than there is between Japan and the United States."

The United States needs the region's raw materials and finished industrial products, he said. And Latin American needs US money, markets and technology, he added.

Wiarda was asked to help with the project on the basis of writing he has done on the region, he said. He has also served as the lead consultant for a commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The commission was appointed by President Reagan and issued a report on Central America largely supportive of Reagan's policies toward the region.

WOMEN'S FORUM

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events related to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's Issues Editor, care of the Collegian by the Friday before the event.

Tuesday—The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns and the Everywoman's Center is starting a six-week "Issues For Lesbians" support group. The group will meet 12:30 to 2 p.m. in the Campus Center. Further information and registration is available by calling 545-4824 or 545-0883.

—Carol P. Christ will present a lecture and slide show "In Search of Her: Visions of the Goddess," at 8 p.m. in Wright Hall Auditorium at Smith College. Christ, a women's studies professor at San Jose State University, is a feminist author and editor. The presentation, the second in a "Bridges to Pluralism" lecture series, is free and open to the public.

—Rena Repetti will speak on "Social Climate and Mental Health Among Female Workers" at 5 p.m. in Seelye Hall 15 at Smith College. Repetti is an assistant professor of psychology at the University of Southern California. The lecture, sponsored by the Smith and Amherst College psychology departments, is free and open to the public.

—Nellice Gillespie will speak on the "New Coalition in European Feminism" at 8 p.m. in the west lecture hall at Hampshire College. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Wednesday— Anthropologist and film maker Steve Mencken will speak on "Bangladesh: A People's Health at 3:30 p.m. in the east lecture hall of Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College. The lecture is part of the "Women, Population and Agriculture" lecture series at the college.

—Sonia Alvarez will speak on "Feminism Under Military Authoritarian Rule? Women's Movements in Brazil, 1975-1985" at 7:30 p.m. in McConnell Auditorium at Smith College. Alvarez, of the Board of Studies in Politics at the University of California Santa Cruz, will speak as the final lecturer in the "Women Making Connections" at the college.

UMass 4-H shares grant

By PEDRO M. PEREIRA
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts 4-H program, a non-profit youth education program, will share $70,200 granted to New England's six land-grant colleges and universities.

The New England grant is only a portion of a nationwide $2.75 million grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, a committee whose members serve as trustees for the 4-H Council.

The grant is part of the "Volunteers for the Future," a nationwide five-year program initiated last year, to make 4-Hs efforts more effective, said Otis Curtis, director of the Massachusetts 4-H chapter.

The foundation, founded in 1930, has granted more than $843 million to programs in education, health and agriculture. It is a medium for "helping local communities develop their own capacity to help themselves," Curtis said.

"The grant will be used to improve our middle management system," Curtis said. He added that the grant will permit the 4-H leaders to determine which middle managers in New England have proved more successful than others and which conditions allowed such success.

Middle management consists of 4-H volunteers, who help young people to acquire knowledge in conservation, youth employment and family living, among other skills. The volunteers "have a great deal of autonomy in organizing their own schedules or projects," including agricultural fairs and workshops, Curtis said.

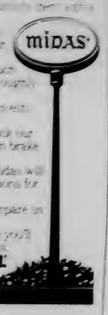
"We reach out to 90,000 young people in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in every county," said Curtis, who has been with 4-H since 1973. He added that there are 5,000 4-H volunteers in the state.

Members' ages range from nine to 19.

The 4-H program is conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, a collaborative effort of the US Department of Agriculture, state land-grant colleges and universities and county governments. "Every county has a staff of 4-H agents that recruit and coordinate the network of volunteers," Curtis said. These volunteers organize clubs which meet weekly or monthly.

★ brewer continued from page 1

that is a rare occasion in Maine but recalled Eau Claire, Wis.



"We lived for seven years in East Providence. I was jumping overnight cargo. There was plenty of work, no money," he said.

He said he expects to have two jobs in Portland by the start of next year.

Bowe said Weizacker lives in Florida but they see each other every summer. Weizacker has not tried Portland Lager yet, but "he should like it," Bowe said.

"When we were hanging around Stowe Gallagher's bars, we used to talk about having a little brewery somewhere. This really was the beautiful, logical conversation, and then it's a historical thing, cool it actually coming true," he said.

OTHER ADS TELL YOU HOW CHEAP THEIR BRAKE JOBS ARE. BUT NO ONE CAN TELL YOU THEY'RE BETTER THAN MIDAS.

At Midas, instead of trying to sell you something unnecessary, we'll show you where we stand with a written promise for less.

I mean that literally. In a time of rapidly rising inflation, putting it in writing is unique.

Because no one can tell how much your brakes will cost until the mechanic inspects your brakes.

And we'll give you a free written estimate before the work is done.

After fitting your brakes, we back our work with a nationwide warranty on brake linings and parts.

If they should ever wear out, Midas will replace them free at over 1,400 locations for as long as you own your car.

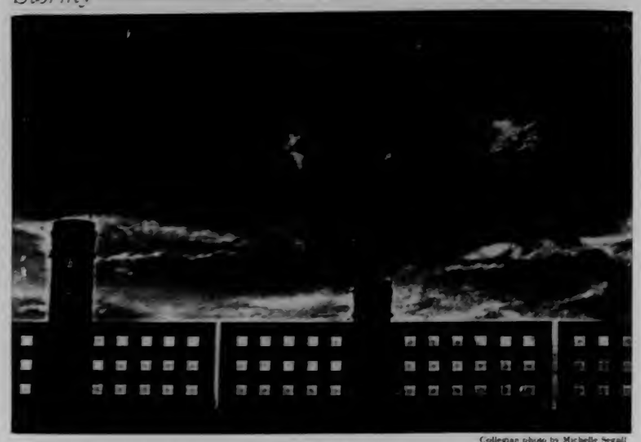
If you need a new brake job, compare us with all the other ads in this paper.

But the harder you look, the more you'll find that no one compares with Midas.

TRUST THE MIDAS TOUCH.

$59.95 BRAKE JOB PER AXLE (ON MOST CARS)

397 Russell Street, Route 9
Hadley, MA
(413) 586-9991



(King St. Store temporarily closed)

Hours:
Mon-Fri 8 am to 5:30 pm
Sat 8 am to 4 pm

Share the health GIVE BLOOD

American Red Cross
Blood Services –
Northeast Region

Stormy

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

It may have been warm in southern states, but Massachusetts had its share of storms as these clouds over the Campus Center Garage illustrate.

Pride and respect. They come with the territory.

It's one of the first things you'll notice as a Navy Officer. The recognition that you've got what it takes to Lead the Adventure.

That adventure can lead you around the world and back again. And along the way you're picking up experience that builds confidence it takes years to get elsewhere.

There's no boot camp. College graduates start with management and leadership training at Officer Candidate School. Once commissioned, you'll have even more educational opportunities that can further professional growth.

You'll uncover your potential and get the responsibility and decision-making authority success needs. The challenge, satisfaction and rewards add up to personal and professional growth no other job can match.

When you Lead the Adventure you start out with pride and respect. It puts you a step ahead. Contact your Navy Officer Recruiter or call 1-800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor — Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager — Conor Plunkett, Production Manager — Elizabeth Young, Business Manager — Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor — Joel P. Collidis, News Editor — John Yonce, Women's Editor — Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor — Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor — Michelle Segall, Photo Editor — Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor — Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

After the election...

Dani Burgess

It is now after the elections...I am "victorious." I have won the opportunity to serve another year as a member of the University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees. My dreams of being able to continue on in my work with the strengths, clarity and wisdom I have gained over the past year have come true. The work of so many people, who believe the concerns, values and efforts I represent, has paid off.

My work over the next year will be characterized by a commitment to integrity, honesty, fairness and the possibilities of understanding and cooperation which exist between all people. I will continue to hold the highest visions possible of student representation at our University and all the people who enrich UMass with diversity and dreams. This election is an opportunity for continued growth, learning and commitment to the work and ways of being I have demonstrated this past year. In these and many other ways, I am victorious.

It is now after the election...I feel defeated. The campaign trail has been a rough one. It has raised some serious questions for me about whether or not the political process can allow for, much less embrace, honesty, fairness and sensitivity. I am concerned that we have a political process which needs the participation of people with visions, dreams, compassion and concern for others—yet competitive muscle-flexing, image-making and power struggles seem to either rob or deny us our humaneness. The passions which lead to political involvement are in jeopardy in an environment where cutting throats becomes more a focus than cutting budgets, where fighting each other becomes more important than fighting oppression, where individual agendas become more important than individual responsibilities.

The future looks hopeful—I am excited that the senate has benefitted from the campaign and that the transition which the senate is experiencing will nurture greater respect, accountability and legitimacy for the SGA.

The campaign staff, M. Lynne Murphy, and myself put a tremendous effort into the campaign. My thanks go out to all who participated in this election and to all who shared their concern for the Student Government Association at the University of Massachusetts.

Dani Burgess is the student member of the UMass Board of Trustees.

Christians and RAs

Well, it would indeed appear that our University's own prophet, Rusty Denton, has found the new beasts in the hundreds of "antichrists of every stripe" (aka Resident Assistants) we have on this campus. I am indebted to Denton for warning me that our residential system is such a breeding ground for idolatrous creatures—I had seriously been entertaining thoughts of joining their ranks; little did I know that the position would pose such deep moral conflicts with my Irish Catholicism.

Another fact that previously eluded my grasp is that the goals of residential education, foremost of which are to address issues of human oppression and increase awareness of diverse lifestyles, are so inconsistent with Judeo-Christian values. As recently as a year ago, I was actually a member of a residential staff which included several devout Christians and an openly gay Residence Director—there were even a few occassions in which we prayed together as a staff! Things sure were different before the Four Horsemen captured the residence halls...

Mark McGrath
Orchard Hill

Letters

Eating, not genes

As March is National Nutrition Month, this letter is written in response to an article appearing on Wednesday, March 5th, which focused on women and body image. The article in general was quite good except for comments made in the closing paragraph. According to the one source, weight is determined exclusively by genetics. Heredity does play a role in weight determination but is not the exclusive factor. Individuals reading that article who may have weight problems may be inclined to believe their situation is hopeless. Nothing could be further from the truth, and the Collegian should recognize that nutritional information should only be obtained from an individual qualified in that area—a registered dietitian. Ms. Levine, the other source cited, is a registered dietitian, and she should have been the expert consulted for this article.

It is unfortunate that society places emphasis on particular appearances, however, an individual can change if they have the desire. If an individual has a specific weight rpoblem, seek assistance from a registered dietitian for proper nutritional advice. It should be noted that none of the so-called fad diets have ever been proven medically sound, and indeed many are hazardous to one's health. The only way to lose weight is to reduce food intake and maintain a sensible exercise program.

Robert H. Bosselman, Ph.D., R.D.
Assistant Professor

Different strokes

In response to Rusty Denton's column regarding the role of Resident Assistant:

One of the primary functions of an RA is to assist their peers in developing the skills necessary to coexist harmoniously with their fellow human beings. In addition, the house staff shares with other educators the goal of presenting a variety of perspectives on issues which arise in daily life. How and what an individual chooses after considering the options is clearly a matter of personal choice. An RA must be able to appreciate the diversity of lifestyles and values represented by the students in hall communities without being judgemental—no matter how personally offended by someone's point of view we may be. Further, an RA must be able to model this behavior in order to assist students in learning how to deal with people different from themselves. Only this way can we meet the twin goals of serving the needs of all students, and educating effectively about the wonderful diversity of the people on your floor, in your town, your country and the world as a whole.

Michele A. Cocuzzo, area coordinator
Northeast/Sylvan

Dow skirts the issues

Once again, Peter Dow has skirted the main issue, as well as the truth, in the most recent defense of the contras. He somehow seems to believe that most leftists are against the contras because of a sophisticated campaign to fool the American people. Further, such criticisms of the contras are based on claims that they are simply Somocistas, and the only the Sandinistas deserve credit for toppling Somoza.

But these are not the factors that we recruited leftist sympathizers have been stressing. Dow does not consider it important to mention or rebut such simple claims as that the contras have committed countless atrocities and murdered thousands of those same poor peasants Dow claims the contras are composed of. Further, no mention is made of the claim that instead of rallying support to their side, the contras have instead strengthened the Sandinista government, for the people of Nicaragua view the contras as murderous thugs, and yes, as Somocistas. Perhaps they too haved been fooled, but more likely, it is easy to hate the contras when one finds the tortured bodies of your family or neighbors dumped in a ditch.

Despite the serious flaws in the Sandinista government, nothing can justify support for the contras, if only because they strengthen the more repressive aspects of the Sandinista government.

John Hayes
Amherst

Allow for growing pains

David Valade

Last Thursday I spent a good part of the afternoon watching C-Span. Their programming was the House of Representatives debate and vote on the $100 million dollars in aid to the contras. With aid being defeated by only a narrow margin of 12 votes, this issue is far from over. The President will not quit on this issue. We will be mired in another Vietnam before Reagan gives up on this, the most foolhardy of his endeavors to date.

Last Monday evening, Patrick Buchanan said on Nightline that the left in this country has no policy concerning Central America other than the opposition to aid to the contras. Following is the policy that should be adopted by our nation, not only in relation to Central America, but around the world.

The right of the people of every nation to self-determination shall be guaranteed. No nation shall interfere in the internal dealings of another nation, except in matters of human rights violations. The integrity of no nation shall be threatened "in the vital interests" of another nation. No nation shall extend military or economic assistance to the domestic conflicts of another nation. Internal conflict resolution is a basic tenet of self-determination and shall not be violated.

The United States should work to free the world from human rights violations. Economic and diplomatic pressures should be used as agents of this change. At no time should military aggression be considered, except in cases of genocide. If aggression by foreign powers is considered, it should only be with consent of the United Nations Security Council and the other states in the region in question. Currently, South Africa, South Korea, Chile, and the Soviet Union are among the nations to be included as human rights abusers.

The United States should work toward global disarmament. Weapons sales to all nations should be terminated. Proliferation of weaponry in nations without histories of democracy has proven to the greatest threat to democracy. This has proven to be particularly true in Central America. Nicaragua under Samoza and the Philippines under Marcos are vivid examples of this trend. Costa Rica, with the longest standing democratic government in Central America, provides a vivid demonstration of how democracy can survive when freed from the possibilities of a military coup.

The integrity of every nation must be recognized. The freedom from outside interference is a right that we enjoy and have fought for. It is not right that we should be denied to any nation. We, in the United States, have experienced countless rebellions in our history, particularly in the early years of democracy. Dispute and turmoil play an integral role in the development of every nation. These conditions result from the interplay of differing social forces as a nation develops the focus of its future. Every nation should be allowed to undergo these growing pains.

The common factor in all of the elements of this policy is respect. In particular, the respect for the right of people to determine their own fate. It is this, above all, that must be protected.

David Valade is a Collegian columnist.

The Oscars: straight from the horse's mouth

Trailers by Andy Gordon

Editor's note: Andy Gordon is a former Collegian Arts and Film Editor. He currently resides in Hollywood, where he is writer on the shows KIDS INCORPORATED, Dennis the Menace and the New Love American Style, as well as the upcoming movie of the week Combat High.

HOLLYWOOD—Well, Oscar fever has again struck in sunny California. The final ballots went out this week and preparations are well underway for the March 24th broadcast. Former Collegian photo editor Drew Ogier will serve as production coordinator for the prestigious event, and he assures me it will be a good, tight show.

Perhaps the biggest commotion this year's Oscars have stirred up is the conspicuous omission of Steven Spielberg in the Best Director category. This thinly veiled display of resentment by a predominantly older Academy toward the younger, hugely successful filmmaker is going to in turn create more politics than usual at the celebration. But I'll get to that later. A friend at Amblin told me that big Steve was "bull taco" when the nominations came out, and left the country before lunch. Nevertheless, the man will be in attendance when the winner is announced.

Several weeks ago your own Don Lipper made his Oscar predictions. Now here are mine.

Best Picture: Good flicks make this a hard category to predict. The Color Purple would have been my pick, but examine the fact that the winner of this category and the Best Director winner have, with only three exceptions, always corresponded. Academy members will be embarrassed to vote for Color Purple having not acknowledged Spielberg. Witness has a shot but I think the race for the Oscar sweep is between Prizzi's Honor and Out of Africa. For certain reasons, I'll guess the former.

Best Actor: Forget Jon Voight; he cries when he accepts awards. Forget James Garner; the guy's still playing Rockford. Forget Harrison Ford, although this would be a convenient time to honor a man who was in seven of the ten biggest blockbusters of all time (I'm including his cameo in E.T.). It's a race between William Hurt, playing an unpleasant role in an unpleasant movie, and Jack Nicholson. Even though he's won before, I'll go Nicholson.

Best Actress: Here's where those politics will upset the proper course of things. Whoopi Goldberg deserves the award, but she's been very outspoken of late about the Spielberg omission. I think people won't vote for her just because they'd rather not get lectured off at on award night. Meryl Streep is equally deserving, but she's taken for granted by the Academy, who by now just expect great performances from her. This category is going to be a bummer, because Geraldine Page is going to win it. A) Because she's been nominated eight times and never won, and B) because she's old and will die soon. I hate Geraldine Page.

Best Supporting Actor: Not as tough a lineup as in previous years. Klaus Maria Brandauer might as well make room on his mantlepiece now. His only competition is Don Ameche, who could get it A) as a token award for Cocoon, a much respected industry picture, and B) because he is old and will die soon.

Best Supporting Actress: One thing's for sure, Margaret Avery will not get this award. She'll be lucky to get another job after shamelessly taking out full page ads in the trades asking God to make people vote for her. Reaction in the community was one of embarrassed disdain. Meg Tilly might have had a shot, but her gigglingly ridiculous acceptance speech at the Golden Globes won her no supporters I'm sure. Oprah Winfrey has a shot, but after her derogatory remarks about the Patriots on national TV, I hope her car crashes on the way to the event, brutally severing her head from that quite large frame. Anjelica Huston will get the award.

Best Director: Again, this award will most likely correspond to Best Picture. It should be a run between Sydney Pollack and John Huston. Both are well-liked, articulate previous nominees, but Huston is old and will die soon, so he should get it.

Best Song: Or rather, most profitable song. This puts the race between the moronic "Say You, Say Me," the torturously slow-paced "Separate Lives" and Huey Lewis' upbeat "The Power of Love." Get a speech ready, Huey. One question, though. What happened to "Don't You Forget About Me," "Dance into The Fire" and "To Live and Die in L.A."?

Best Original Screenplay: Back to the Future without a doubt, as a means of acknowledging the megahit.

Best Score: Quincy Jones for The Color Purple, again a token award as a consolation for not winning the bigger awards.

TRAILERS BEST BETS: They certainly won't win any awards, but two new films

continued on page 7

STOP

STOP bad habits before they start!

You may not have to STOP drinking to improve your health. The Student Opportunity Program will be offering an educational program aimed at helping students change bad habits and find healthy ways to use alcohol. The program will start after Spring break. Contact John Novo at UHS, 545-2671 Ext. 186 for more information. An interview is required before registration.

let us do your wash-dry-fold and hand pressing

SPEEDWASH

10 5 PM MON SAT
SELF SERVICE
7 DAYS 7AM 10 PM
549-1665

Quality Laundry
11 Pray St
Amherst, MA

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!

Styles by Deborah

Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

MONDAY

6-9 am	Psycho Broadway
9 am	NEWS
9-12	Stormy Monday Blues
12	NEWS
12-3	Instant Vibrations Reggae
3-6	BMCP Casual Suite
5	NEWS
6-7	Focus
7-10	Concepto Latino
9 pm	NEWS
10-2	Ramblin' Anne
2-6 am	Bedspins

WMUA 91.1

GOING GREAT
GOING GREEK
GO
DELTA
ZETA

CHECK US OUT
Delta Zeta Sorority - 11 Phillips St

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available

Wednesday April 16th
Fine Arts Center

Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public

at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.

Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

The Color Purple soundtrack sure to win an Oscar

By KEVIN M. SWEENEY
Collegian Correspondent

The Color Purple (Original Motion Picture Soundtrack) Produced by Quincy Jones QWEST RECORDS

Well, tonight is Academy Awards night, and after all of the hype over the past few weeks, I am sure that you're pretty tired of hearing about them. However, like any critic worth his salt I need to get my two cents in. Please allow me the pleasure of predicting that in the Oscar world of music Quincy Jones is going to sweep up the awards with his breath-taking soundtrack to The Color Purple. He is nominated for best song with "Miss Celie's Blues" and for best soundtrack, and most pundits seem to believe that he is a shoe-in for both.

After listening to the two record, purple vinyl packaging of this refreshing soundtrack, I can understand why. The eighties are a decade of top 40 soundtracks and music videos and a record like The Color Purple is a rare change of pace. It complements an exciting movie, and it stands strongly on its own as an album, but it is not geared for the teen hype audience, which the other nominees are aimed at. It is a unique combination of orchestral arrangements, jazz, blues, gospel, and traditional African music.

The Color Purple soundtrack has been nominated for an Oscar for best score.

It is almost trite to refer to Quincy Jones as a genius, but when the shoe fits...Here is a man who is responsible for the creation of hundreds of great movie and TV soundtracks, the performance of outstanding jazz, and the production of such notables as Michael Jackson and USA for Africa. With The Color Purple, Jones has produced the crowning achievement on this impressive list of credentials.

The Color Purple is a masterpiece of execution. Jones has assembled some of the most talented musicians in the world to perform a unique mixture of traditional, contemporary, and original music. For example on "Miss Celie's Blues," Tata Vega's vital jazz vocals are complemented by the versatile mandolin playing of Ry Cooder. Also, Jones sought and received the assistance of noted gospel singer and songwriter Andrae Crouch on such tracks as "Maybe God Is Trying to Tell You Somethin," and "Heaven Belongs to You." Finally, Jones has had the good taste to include some original artists. Who could ask for more than "My Heart (Will Always Lead Me Back To You)" recorded in 1930 by Louis Armstrong and His Hot Five or "Body and Soul" recorded in 1939 by Coleman Hawkins and His Orchestra?

I can honestly say that this ranks up there with the classic soundtracks of all time. Those who have seen the movie, I am sure, will agree that the music is a vital part of this warm and moving film. It successfully sets the mood of the picture and it is extraordinarily well conceived. Though its $15.00 price tag is a bit steep, I would recommend this album highly to anyone who loves the movie or who loves great music.

★ Oscars

continued from page 6

are worth a look. F/X and Pretty in Pink are flawed but interesting. The former is a cleverly implausible suspenser about a special effects man deviously recruited by the CIA to stage a fake assassination. There are holes in the plot large enough to drive a bus through, but it does have inventive moments and a terrific performance by Brian Dennehy.

Pretty in Pink, on the other hand, succeeds despite the performances. It stars prima donna Molly Ringwald, Andrew McCarthy, who I truly believe is an outpatient at some nut farm, and John Cryer, the most annoying gweeb in film today. Cryer just edges out Glenn Scarpelli as a young actor I'd most like to see burned alive. Oddly enough, the film, a fairly blatant rip of both Sixteen Candles and Valley Girl, is quite enjoyable. Go figure.

Programs at home
- ☐ Over 200 graduate and undergraduate courses
- ☐ Approaches to Teaching Writing
- ☐ English as a Foreign Language
- ☐ Government Internships
- ☐ High School Programs
- ☐ Intercultural Training
- ☐ Interpretation and Translation Institute
- ☐ Language Courses
- ☐ Theology Conference
- ☐ Literary Criticism Conference
- ☐ Parish Workshop
- ☐ Sacred Scripture Institute
- ☐ Alumni College

Programs abroad
- ☐ Antwerp, Belgium—Int'l. Trade
- ☐ China—Chinese
- ☐ Dijon, France—French
- ☐ Fiesole, Italy—Italian
- ☐ Leningrad, U.S.S.R.—Russian
- ☐ Oxford, England—Business Administration
- ☐ Quito, Ecuador—Spanish
- ☐ Trier, West Germany—German

Send more information
Name _____
Address _____
_____ Zip _____

Sessions
Pre—May 19-June 13
First—June 9-July 11
4-Week Cross Session—June 9-August 1
6-Week Cross Session—June 23-August 1
Second—July 14-August 15

Call (202) 625-8106 or mail to SSCE—Georgetown University
306 Intercultural Center
Washington, D.C. 20057

Georgetown University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action institution in employment and admission

THE BLACK SHEEP
Deli & Bakery
79 MAIN STREET • AMHERST, MA 01002 • 253-3442

Hours
Mon.-Sat. 9-6
Sun. 9-1

Across from Plumbleys

Soup • Bialys •
Smoked Turkey •
Rye • Kosher
Chocolates • Fresh Baked
Breads • Gruyere • Cheddar Jalapeno Soup •
Potato
Lox •
Bialys •
Chili •
Mousse
Cake • Corned Beef • Carrot Soup • Greek Rice
Salad • Croissants • NY Deli Rye • Kosher

Lunch with a difference!
N.Y. Style Sandwiches
Homemade Soups, Salads
Breads and Desserts

Allen Ginsberg speaks on Nicaragua, poetry, and drugs

By JOE SHARTRAND
Collegian Staff

Allen Ginsberg has been enthusiastically shocking and puzzling the American public since the fifties. Reading poetry in the nude, graphically describing his homosexual experiences in poems and advocating the use of psychedelic drugs has made him a controversial figure in poetics.

Ginsberg is a short man with a red shirt and a striped brown tie. Half of his head is bald, but the other half has thick, grey and white, curly hair. He always wears thick white rimmed glasses and he speaks from the corner of his mouth with his right eye slightly closed.

At the Iron Horse Thursday night, he read from his poetry and sang the blues. He energetically hollered and gestured with his hands, as he spoke and sang to the audience. He was hardly shocking, but he was full of enthusiasm.

In person, Ginsberg was not quite as animated, as when he was at the Iron Horse. When he talked about Nicaragua, LSD, or the mass media, he sounded more like a respectable teacher lecturing his students, than the "angelheaded hipster" who wrote Howl. His opinions, though, are still as controversial as they were in the fifties and sixties.

Ginsberg came to Northampton to read poetry and "because there's a Joan Baez concert." He also has many friends here and has been invited to the Iron Horse a number of times before. One of his Northampton friends, Patrick Warner, went to Nicaragua with him, where they taped conversations with Commadente Borge, the vice-president, and "the poet-minister of culture" Erneste Cardinal. Here are some of the things he said about Nicaragua and about his personal life.

Did you speak with Ortega? Yes, not at great length. I had before many times. Four or five times.

What was he like? He seemed to be cheerful enough. Serious—eye-glasses—scholarly.

What did you talk about? I had heard a lot of talk from the East Europeans that since the Sandinistas were Marxist, it was a dangerous situation that they might impose a one party state. So I talked with Ortega, Borge and others about that worry among the East Europeans. The East European intellectuals, who of all people were worried about that, because they had experience in it. And my question was how much do they know of the repression in the Marxist countries and how did they themselves plan to avoid the abuse of power. One answer that Borge gave was that they had armed the populace. 300,000 guns spread among the populace, who could then overthrow the Sandinista government if it got out of line. Which is not a very satisfactory answer.

Also I asked them about censorship and the newspaper, La Prensa, edited by the poet, Jose Cuandra. My conclusion was that there was censorship, much of it unnecessary. But it's a small town, Managua, and it is relatively open for lots of controversy and discussion, perhaps even more polarized controversy than the United States. Certainly less monolithic than the US in that there is a lot of internal opposition, through La Prensa, with denunciations of Russia, Cuba and everybody else. Everybody hears a lot of dissent and Reagan's view is very well represented.

What about the opposition to the Sandinistas? Not opposition in the sense of desire for the contras to win or for the US to come in. Even the opposition people didn't want to see it escalate into a full scale civil revolution. Most people, who are against the government, view the situation as the US forcing a militarization on the Sandinistas.

I asked Ortega and others what about their ties with the red countries and they pointed out that they would rather do business with the US, but the US was boycotting them economically, so they had to go to Russia. They were forced to have trade relations with European countries, but not only with Russia, but also with France, Italy and Spain. When Ortega famously went to Moscow last year, he also went to Rome, Spain and Paris. Their view is that we are forcing them into alliance economically and militarily with the "evil empire," so to speak.

The Sandinista elections seem to be more honest than what I've heard of the Salvador elections. 'Cause in the Salvador elections the opposition was not allowed to run. So my conclusion is that there is a tendency toward a one-party state but the tendency would be much less if we didn't pressure them.

What else are you involved in? I have a new book of poems called White Shroud, coming out in September or October. Also a volume of annotated Howl for the fall with every line annotated with the original anecdotes, or associations; that's three hundred pages which includes all of the original manuscripts and drafts with a commentary by me on the successive revisions.

In the Collected Poems, I didn't write any footnotes because I was expecting to do this bigger job. Harper, my publishers, brought out Collected Poems last year, which will be followed by six other books.

I'm also involved in music-making. I have a record out called First Blues about three years old, probably out of print by now. On March 4th I was in Dallas, Texas, recording with a Dallas blues band and we were really honking. I also recorded some material with Bob Dylan, called Do the Meditation, who is on bass.

Do you still do psychedelic drugs? Yes, occassionally. Mushrooms. I tried Ecstasy last summer. I thought it was quite good, but I thought the name was all wrong. Whoever named it was a jerk, because it isn't Ecstasy, it's empathy. The name Ecstasy is a total exaggeration and would actually turn people off, because it has more of an organic sense of empathy. It sounds like some hippy-dippy jerk named it for commercial reasons. I think psychedelics are a useful and educational tool. At least trained physicians should be able to experiment in psychedelics in relation to cancer, obesity, or dying situations. It being forbidden is really quite outrageous. It's another one of the invasions of individual liberty that is unnoticed by the press.

What's being famous like? It's like the weather. I enjoy it. It's a useful thing if you have something to teach.

DOVE
Secretarial Services

Fast, Accurate Typing of

- Resumes
- Term Papers
- Dissertations

79 South Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass 01002
256-1335
253-7480

YOUR BSN IS WORTH MORE IN ARMY NURSING.

First, there are the respect and dignity accorded an Army officer. Then there's the opportunity to travel, changing hospitals without losing seniority, as so often happens in civilian hospitals.

And there's the opportunity to add new and different nursing disciplines. To study, continue your education, attending professional conferences, working in a variety of nursing specialties.

If you're working on your BSN or if you already have a BSN and are registered to practice in the United States or Puerto Rico, talk to our Army Nurse Corps Recruiter.

CALL COLLECT: 301-677-5355/4076

ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.

After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.

That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.

So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT—BE ONE.

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide
358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!

Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper

Wickles FinePrint

1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148

Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON

NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM

Engaged?

then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau.

Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories

20% off your entire WEDDING ORDER

Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories

Hundreds to Choose From!

AMHERST STORE ONLY WITH THIS COUPON

EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
C · coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons.

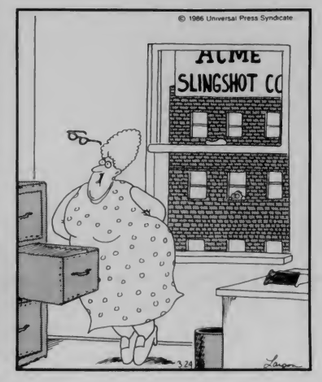
How to buy shades.

With the American Express® Card you can buy everything from new spectacles to some pretty spectacular clothing. The latest in audio equipment and the latest albums. The Card is the perfect way to pay for just about anything you'll want during college.

How to get the Card before you graduate.

Because we believe that college is the first sign of success, we've made it easier for you to get the American Express Card. Graduating students can get the Card as soon as they accept a $10,000 career-oriented job. If you're not graduating this semester, you can apply for a special sponsored Card. Look for student applications on campus. Or call 1-800-THE-CARD, and tell them you want a student application.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.℠



TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES

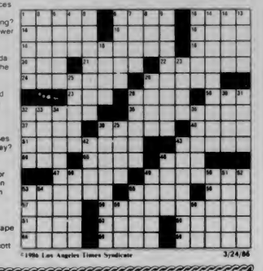
© 1986 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

DOONESBURY GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE BY GARY LARSON

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Philippine island
6 Skirt's eye-catcher
10 Birthstone for October
14 Remain
15 Seep
16 Plenty, author Jillian
17 Ian Fleming villain
19 Pond growth
20 "You — Love Kern
21 "Bus Stop" playwright
22 Brigham Young follower
24 Maroons
26 Mideast peninsula
27 Zodiac sign
28 Jot
29 Fast resort?
32 Place to exchange vows
35 Echoes
37 "Uz" lion
38 Sinai sites
40 Bits and pieces
41 Graphite
43 Shady meeting?
44 Scenery chewer
45 At any time
46 Gear
47 Janet or Linda
49 Member of the pack?
53 Edits
55 Gimme bund
56 Comedienne Merkel
57 Sum and substance
58 Gym exercises
61 Slug's journey?
62 An Adams
63 Iroquoians
64 Leaf collector
65 Part of a clan
66 Musical form

DOWN
1 Narratives
2 Cancel, at Cape Canaveral
3 Maree or Scott
4 Append
5 Honer or toner
6 Anthems
7 Theater section
8 Verb suffix
9 House hazards
10 Tara family
11 Chromancy
12 Jason's craft
13 David, the director
18 —-European
23 Rare bird
25 Tocsin
26 Location
28 Key, for Kern
30 Kittens and cats
31 Sec'y., e.g.
32 Kubla Khan river
33 Chorus syllables
34 Message board item
36 Main artery
38 Bestows profusely
39 Ripener
42 Super Bowl winner
43 More nervous
45 Rock group
48 Forgetfulness
49 West Pointer
50 Ruckus
51 Signed off
52 Poet Torquato — 1544-95
53 Mideast title
54 Home
55 Cut up
59 Lemon additive
60 Arm of the Orinoco

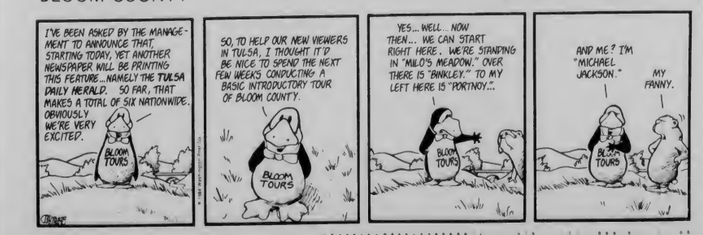
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	E	S	S		S	A	L	S		C	M	O	P
U	T	A	H		O	M	A	H	A		L	O	W	E
N	A	P	A		R	A	T	E	L		A	L	L	A
I	T	S	E	O	R	T	H	E	R	I	D	S
				T	R	I		T	A	L	I
J	A	M		E	N	N	I	S		O	N	T	A	P
A	L	A		T	E	N		M	E	E	D	Y
B	I	R	D	S	O	F	A	F	E	A	T	H	E	R
O	C	T	E	T		N	D	N		E	E	E
T	E	S	T	A		P	E	R	T	H		E	M	S
		E	N	O	L			R	I	A
B	I	R	D	S	O	F	A		S	A	G	E
F	A	R	R		A	V	I	A	N		S	L	A	Y
A	L	D	E		R	E	L	I	C		A	T	T	E
R	E	N	D			R	E	N	E		M	E	A	D

3/24/86

© 1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/24/86

FREAKER PATROL BY DOWE & O'BRIEN



HOUSEMATES BY R.MILLER

GORDY BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY BY BERKE BREATHED

Menu

LUNCH
Duchess Meat Pie/Gravy
Tuna Melts

BASICS LUNCH
Fresh Zucchini Pie
Tuna Melts

DINNER
Chicken Cacciatore
Baked Ham/Raisin Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Mixed Bean Casserole
Chicken Cacciatore

Weather

Today: Mostly sunny and windy, high in the 40s.
Tonight: Clear and cold, low in the 20s.
Tomorrow: Mostly sunny, high 45 to 50.

Collegian Staff, correspondents:
WANT A JOB AFTER UMASS?
Come hear two former Collegianites,
Ken Bazinet and Jon DiPalazzo, tell how they fared.
Counts toward staff status!
TONIGHT 9 p.m.
Campus Center 808

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor.....John Yonce
Copy Editor.....Lisa DiMeo
Layout.....Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician.....Brian Guarnotta
Production Supervisor.....Peter Soderberg
Production.....Mat Atkins, Laura Bell, Jen Coles, Tom Middleton, Kirk Pisani, Peter Soderberg

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Sunset Cafe
ORIGINAL
Jams
Lodestone
13 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst 256-0591

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-8899
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

LEARN TO FLY
U-MASS STUDENT CLUB
ACADEMIC CREDIT AVAILABLE-LOW COST 665-2577

Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

It's better to know what they're like before you move in.

Living with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience.

And living with a long distance company isn't any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you're used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won't be any surprises when you move in. You'll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you're used to.

With calls that sound as close as next door. And discounts off our Day Rate on your state-to-state calls.

With savings of over 50% during weekends until 5pm Sundays, or nights from 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Friday. And 40% discounts evenings between 5pm and 11pm, Sunday through Friday.

With AT&T, you'll continue to get services like immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling. And long distance operators to help you anytime there's a problem on the line.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, choose AT&T. Because whether you're into Mozart or metal, quality is the one thing everyone can agree on. Call 1 800 222-0300 for more information or to choose AT&T.

Reach out and touch someone.

AT&T
The right choice.

Sports Information photo
Senior Sally Mahar and the University of Massachusetts softball team had a strong trip to Florida.

★ softball — continued from page 12

hitters. Stockley mastered Miami before senior Cathy Reed won an 8-1 blowout against St. John's.

Stockley, threw eight games, had pitched in three games allowing five hits, no runs while striking out 12 and walking four. Her earned run average was a perfect 0.00. Rever, in three games, allowed 18 hits, but only one rub. Her ERA was 0.33. Reed, in two games, had an ERA of 0.58 and had allowed six hits in 12 innings.

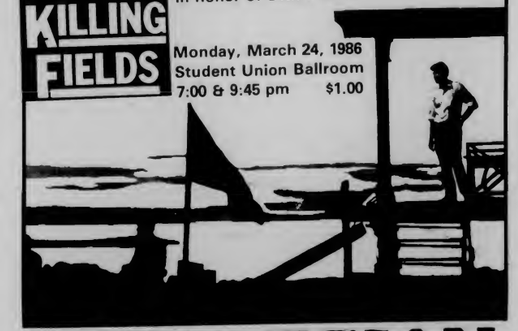
Rever was even leading the UMass hitters with a .667 batting average (two-for-three).

The leading regular was outfielder Chris Ciepiela who was hitting .529 (9-of-17). Senior Sally Maher lead the team with 10 runs batted in and a home run.

UMass has five other players hitting over .333 with Barbara Meehan at .500, Maher at .391, first baseman Carol Frattaroli at .375, shortstop Paige Kopcza at .364 and reserve Pat King at .333.

UMass was fielding at .967 clip and had a team batting average of .340. UMass was outhitting opponets .340 to .171 and was slugging .473. UM pitching had allowed only two extra-base hits in eight games.

The Minutewomen will open their Northern schedule on Thursday with a doubleheader at Boston College. The home schedule starts on April 1 with a doubleheader against Providence.



Minutewomen Mutterings: UMass had scored 11 runs in the first inning, compared to none to opponents.

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Now An Additional Location
adjacent to the UMASS campus
in the Amherst Creamery Building
Skills a professional secretarial service
WORD PROCESSING, TRANSCRIPTION, THESES AND DISSERTATIONS MANUSCRIPTS. a specialty
Monday - Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
150 Fearing Street, Amherst
Telephone: 549-2686

Welcome Back: Papers Due?
We have typing paper, ribbons, computer paper and other supplies
A·J·Hastings, Inc.
—Newsdealer and Stationer—
Conveniently located in the center of Amherst
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN Weekdays 5 a.m. to 7 p.m., Sundays, 5 a.m. to 1 p.m.

THE KILLING FIELDS
R
sponsored by Distinguished Visitors Program
in honor of Dith Pran
Monday, March 24, 1986
Student Union Ballroom
7:00 & 9:45 pm $1.00

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571
150 King St,
Northampton
586-8220

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

Today's final deadline for "Art/Science" submissions. Rm 103B Campus Center Spectrum Magazine

Student Health Advisory Board meeting March 25 1986 5:30 pm UHS rm 302 open to all be there

The Annual ROTC post Springbreak Blood Drive. Time: 10:30-4:30, Tuesday March 25, Campus Center. You need an oil change

"Careers in Industrial Organizational Psychology" a free colloq given by Dr J. Myron Johnson and sponsored by CUSP and Psi Chi, will be held Tues. March 25 at 7 pm in Tobin 304. Refreshments will be served.

UPC General Meeting! Welcome Back!! Find out about nominations & upcoming shows!! Tuesday, 3/25, 6:30 in the Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods)

The Undergraduate Journal will meet Tuesday, March 25 at 7:30 in Machmer W23C. Anyone interested must attend.

AUTO FOR SALE

4-sale 1973 Pontiac Venture runs great new exhaust and brakes $600 call 253-5523

76 Plymouth Volare 4 dr, body very good condition, many miles but very reliable AM/FM $1200 or BO 256-6281

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7438

CAPE COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH COMING SOON

Discover Sorority Life, friends and fun March 25, 26, 27. 6-6:45 pm Any questions? Call Pam at 549-6468 or 253-9916. Have a great Spring Break!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

Mobile Music Inc disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:30 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2133 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2234 or 665-7106

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric six string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6489

FOUND

Found brown and white knit shoulder bag no ID call 253-9687 found near Hasbrouck

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Butterfield Kitchen is now accepting applications for the position of Asst. Manager for the 86-87 academic year. Position offers free room and board. Valuable experience. Applications available in the Butterfield Kitchen Office. Application deadline 5:00 PM March 24

LOST

Lost blue denim Code Bleu jacket keys in pocket lost last Thurs at Lamda Chi reward pls call 546-1180

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0960

Karen - you loose, but you take a good picture

Robin is ugly!!!

Is this national white shirt day?

Kath-Man, Ita warm and mellow in Maui! Lets go and blow this place away! With loads of love and stoneds, L & S

To Becky M. on the 5th floor of Brown. You don't know me but I think you've seen me (Thursday, March 13 in the D.C.?) - I've wanted to approach you but the timing hasn't been right. I don't want to seem forward, but I'd really like to meet you. Da:e C. 4th floor MacNamara

MB - I love you more everyday! Love, BPT

Christine - Happy 19th to the best roome! Only 2 more years! Lynne

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall. 584-9362

SOFTBALL COACH

Softball Batting/Fielding Coach (or player/coach) needed for local adult co-ed team April-August. Modest compensation for coaching. Leave message on tape at 545-1960 after 5:00 pm

STEPHANIE

Happy 20th B'day! Aint love Gund. Love, Kev

TO SUBLET

Large 1 bdr apt on bus line, quiet, w/pool and AC. To take over June 1st for summer, option for fall $395/mo 665-8477

WANTED

Subjects needed – Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203 563 9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease of house or apartment, 2-3+ bedrooms, pref. close to campus. Call 546-1088 or 546-9189

SPORTS

Gorillas shoot down Air Force

Carmean's six goals lead UMass

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Dick Garber is not one to give unearned compliments, so when the University of Massachusetts lacrosse coach says his team looked good over their spring trip, you can believe it.

Garber's Gorillas pounded the United States Air Force Academy, 13-7 last Sunday in their season opener as All-American attackman Tom Carmean scored six goals.

"To be honest, it could've been 20-7, but we played different kids and missed a few shots," said Garber. "But considering it was the first time we were really playing outside and they had already had four games, it was a great effort."

Ed Boardman, Kelley Carr and Greg Fisk each scored a pair of goals for UMass while senior co-captain Tom Aldrich, moving from defense in an extra-man situation, added another.

Freshman goalie Sal LoCasio was outstanding in the pipes, making 33 saves. The defense, led by Aldrich, Gerry Byrne and Scott Craig, also impressed.

Junior college transfer Greg Canella, who started alongside Carmean, made the transition back to Division 1 (he started at Maryland) easily, notching six assists.

"I'd say at this point that this is as strong a team as we had since 1981 (when UMass was 13-2 and fourth in the nation)," said Garber. "I mean that, right now we look super."

"Our defense, with Sal in the goal and the crease defensemen looking good, is tremendous," said the coach. "Sal's like a rock in there."

The Falcons scored most of their goals on six-on-six half-field situations, but the Gorillas made them pay with their usual run-and-gun tactics, scoring frequently on the break.

"Our break was sharp," said Garber. "Seamus (McGovern, UM's face-off man) was great (14-of-24) and Sal threw good outlets, when we can do those two things, we'll be tough to stop."

Air Force led 1-0 in the first period, but UMass ran off five straight and led 6-3 at the half. Six third-period goals wrapped it up. The coach also saluted the play of defenseman Mike Tomasello, Adam Rodell, a freshman defenseman, and Chris Knapp, a junior-college transfer on defense.

"It's early to start saying how good we are, but we're a hell of a lot better than we were last year," said Garber. "This should be a good season."

And for UMass sports fans, that's the best news this spring.

Gorilla Grumblings: Garber started Fisk, freshman Brett Jenks and co-captain Steve Moreland on the first midfield. The second line was Neil Cunningham, Glenn Stephens and freshman Chris Zusi. The third line was senior Rich Abbott, freshman Greg Collins of Longmeadow and Dave Avidon, another freshman. In all close to 10 newcomers saw a lot of minutes.

. .UMass also played the University of Colorado in a scrimmage and mopped them up to a 21-6 tune. . .the Army-UMass game at Boyden on April 26 will be televised on NESN, a cable sports network, as part of a 12-game lax package. It will be taped an replayed the next day. . .UMass faces Delaware on the road on Saturday. The Blue Hens have already lost to New Hampshire. . .Former UMass players Steve Harrington '64, Bill Brown '68 and Paul Rich '72 were at the Air Force game with their families along with about a half-dozen students that made the trek West on break. . .Garber and assistants Guy Van Arsdale, Eric Kemp and Jeff Thomsen were all out scouting Saturday.

Baseball starts slowly in Florida

Compiled from staff and wire reports.

SANFORD, Fla. - The University of Massachusetts baseball team, beset with fielding problems and at times a sputtering offense, started its season with a 1-7 record during its trip to Florida last week.

The Minutemen, depending on the weather, may have played two more games in Florida either late Saturday or Sunday. A report on that action will be in tomorrow's Collegian.

The young Minutemen lost a bulk of their offensive production from last season, and it showed as UMass scored only 33 runs in its first eight games.

UMass also had its problems in the field as they comitted 17 errors in the first six games, allowing ten unearned runs.

The worst thing about UMass' plight however may be that they lost to primarily Northern teams. In the past, the Minutemen were expected to lose to the Southern teams they played because of the advantage those teams had in being outside earlier in the season. But this season, UM lost to Yale twice, Brown and Ithaca.

The scores of the season thus far: UMass lost to to Rollins, 2-1; to Yale, 7-2; to Ithaca, 9-5; to Eastern Kentucky, 6-3 and to Indiana, 5-4 before finally getting a victory, beating Eastern Kentucky, 8-7. They then lost to Brown, 4-1.

Statistically, UMass was hitting a weak .244 and had a team earned average of 5.77 after six games (the only statistics available at press time). Junior outfielder Jay Zerner was hitting .429 with four runs batted in while catcher John McKeown was at .300. Senior first baseman Jeff Cimini has two home runs, but has made six errors.

On the mound, junior lefty Steve Allard was 0-3, but allowed only three earned runs and eight hits in 11 innings. Senior Jeff Jensen and freshman Dave Telegheder also pitched well. Senior Jon Martin picked up the only UMass victory so far, beating Eastern Kentucky with a strong relief stint.

UMass was 3-6 last season during its trip before rebounding with good play back up North. The Minutemen play at Temple in a three-game series this weekend and need two wins to start their Atlantic 10 race on a good note.

Minuteman Mutterings: UMass had a team fielding percentage of .925. . .Among those not hitting were starting shortstop Steve Allen at .071 (1-for-14 through six games) and starting second baseman Darrin O'Connor at .200 (four-of-20). UMass was 13-of-14 in stolen base attempts. .

Sports Information photo

Senior pitcher Lynne Stockley didn't allow a run in her first three games this season in Florida last week.

UM softball opens season on a roll

Compiled from staff and wire reports

ORLANDO, Fla. - Take a pitching staff that was allowing 0.8 runs-per-game and combine it with a potent offense that was hitting .340 and you have the University of Massachusetts softball team's spring trip to Florida and its 9-1 record.

The Minutewomen may have played as many as three more games in Florida, but information was not available. A report on any other games will be in Tuesday's Collegian.

Statistics were available for the first eight games played by UMass. The scores were as follows (all wins): Virginia, 5-0; Maine, 7-3; Miami (Ohio), 12-0; Eastern Michigan, 2-0; St. John's, 8-1; DePaul, 2-1; St. John's, 3-0 and Wisconsin-Green Bay, 5-1.

UMass then beat Bowling Green, 3-0 before losing their first game of the season, a 2-1 heartbreaker to Western Illinois.

In the first game of the season, UMass shutout the Cavaliers of Virginia, 5-0 as senior Lynn Stockley threw a complete game three-hitter. In the second game, the Minutewomen unleashed a 16 hit attack to beat Maine, 7-3.

Other highlights included a pair of one-

continued on page 11

UMass notebook

Gerlufsen seeks new assistant

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts basketball coach Ron Gerlufsen said that a search is in progress to find a new assistant coach for the Minutemen.

The coach reported Friday that veteran assistant coach Mark Shea will not be with the program next season and that a replacement is being sought.

Shea, a five-year veteran of the UMass staff, started with Gerlufsen in 1981 as an assistant to Tom McLaughlin. A native of Albany, New York, Shea graduated from Bentley College where he was all-New England in 1976 before taking an assistant's job at the school.

Under both McLaughlin and Gerlufsen, Shea duties included both scouting and recruiting. Although Gerlufsen would not comment about the move other than to say that it was part of the team's post-season evaluating process, Shea's recent recruiting had accomplished little in the way of bringing good players to UMass.

Gerlufsen said the position was being advertised and that the current recruiting process would not be affected.

□

In other basketball news, Gerlufsen spent much of last week completing that paperwork to try and get sophomore guard Lorenzo Sutton a try-out with any one of a number of United States summer all-star teams.

"I think Lorenzo is a solid player that could contribute to an amateur all-star team," said the coach. "It would reflect well on the school if he could make a team."

Sutton averaged just over 17 points this season and was a second-team all-Atlantic 10 selection.

□

Atlantic 10 news: Of the league three teams that made the NCAA tournament, St. Joseph's and Temple advanced to the second round before losing to Cleveland State and Kansas respectively. West Virginia, in its opening round loss to Old Dominion, saw out-of-control senior guard Holman Harley try a Spud Webb-like off the floor-off the backboard one-handed dunk. He rimmed it. The play came during a critical moment in the game. Harley said after, "If I have a breakaway, I can't just shoot a lay-up." Good thinking Holman.

Two A1- coaches, St. Bonaventure's Jim O'Brien and Duquesne's Jim Satalin, are being considered for the vacant Boston College position. O'Brien, a 1971 BC graduate, is an early favorite. The Rutgers women's team was eliminated Saturday in the Eastern finals of the women's tourney.

US-Libya confrontation flares up

American planes counter-attack Libyan ships

WASHINGTON (AP) - American warplanes attacked two Libyan ships and a shoreline missile site yesterday after Libyan forces fired six missiles at US planes that had crossed Col. Moammar Khadafy's "line of death" in the disputed Gulf of Sidra, the White House said.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said one of the Libyan vessels was a patrol boat that he said was "dead in the water, burning" and apparently sinking. "There are no apparent survivors," he said, adding that the vessel normally carries a crew of 27.

Speakes disputed Libyan claims that three American jets had been downed by the Libyan air force. "We have no reports of any US casualties," he said.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said a second Libyan ship also was hit by US fire and that "first reports were that it was severely damaged."

He said damage to the Libyan missile site on the shore was still being assessed.

In a blunt warning to Libya that the United States does not consider the episode closed, Speakes said, "We now consider all approaching Libyan forces to have hostile intent."

He said the US force held its fire until a sixth Libyan missile had been fired at American targets.

While he denounced Khadafy's government as "an outlaw regime and up to no good," the presidential spokesman said the United States did not attempt to provoke the Libyans.

"We were there on a peaceful exercise...to transit in international water," he said. "We will continue to operate in those waters," he insisted.

In response to a question, Speakes said, "I can't characterize it as war" between the United States and Libya.

The Soviet Union supplied the SA-5 and SA-2 missiles that Speakes said Libya fired before a US jet aimed a Harpoon anti-ship missile at the Libyan patrol boat. He said the Soviets had been notified when US ships went into the Gulf of Sidra, but declined to say whether there were Soviets operating the missile sites.

"That's for the Libyans to answer," Speakes added

It was not clear whether President Reagan gave the order to open fire. The president was informed within a half hour after the first US missile was fired.

continued on page 2

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

RSO UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 35

TUESDAY, MARCH 25, 1986

INSIDE

•Congressional reaction to the Libyan crisis. Page 2.
•Hadley rejects proposed X-rated video ban. Page 3.
•Scholarly travels available through University program. Page 12.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

LETTER PERFECT—Frank L. Boyden Gymnasium regains its full name.

Faulty oven is cited in Stockbridge Hall fire

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

A malfunctioning oven has been cited as the cause of an electrical fire which destroyed a storage room in the basement of Stockbridge Hall Sunday morning.

"A thermostat in a lab oven malfunctioned and the lab oven itself exceeded 1200 degrees and because there was a paper box drying peat moss [inside], it ignited," said Rick Mears, a fire inspector at the UMass Environmental Health and Safety department.

"The fire and heat went through the hole of the thermostat and ignited the pine shelving above the oven," he said.

Plastic on the shelves also caught fire and fell onto the floor, igniting more plastic and nearby drawers.

The fire was discovered at 8:39 a.m. by a University employee. The blaze was contained to room 15 of the building and was extinguished in 30 minutes by the Amherst Fire Department.

Environmental Health and Safety officials estimated the damage from the fire at $15,000 to $20,000.

Equipment used for soil analysis and samples was stored in the room. The oven was the only equipment destroyed, officials said.

The room needs some cleaning and painting before and the shelving has to be replaced before it can be used, they said.

Dith Pran will speak about his experiences

Dith Pran, Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer, is scheduled to speak to a capacity crowd tonight in the Student Union Ballroom as part of the UMass Distinguished Visitors Program.

Although tickets for the event have been sold out, his lecture will be simulcast by Union Video Center to monitors located in the Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods Cafe) and the Cape Cod Lounge.

The story of his friendship with New York Times correspondent Sydney Schanberg in strife-ridden Cambodia formed the basis for the Academy Award-winning movie The Killing Fields. It is a tale of survival in a country gone mad during one of the most violent civil wars of the century.

Pran chose to remain in his country, even after his family had managed to escape to the US with the help of his colleague Schanberg, in order to continue his coverage of the conflict. Taken prisoner along with Schanberg and two other foreign reporters, Pran saved the group from execution by victorious Khmer Rouge forces by convincing them that they were all neutral Frenchmen.

After losing his temporary refuge at the French Embassy in Phnom Penh, Pran was separated from his friends and taken to an internment camp, where he spent several years while the new rulers unleashed a reign of terror that would leave an estimated two million Cambodians dead, countless others became refugees.

Meanwhile, Schanberg had been desperately trying to get word of Pran's fate. The Khmer Rouge had effectively sealed off the country to all foreigners, but news that Pran was still alive finally reached Schanberg in April 1979. The photographer had escaped from the camp and crossed the border into Thailand, where he began a lengthy recuperation from his ordeal.

—WILLIAM SPAIN

University seeks to face gender harassment

First in a series.
By ILANA LEVENSON
Collegian Staff

A CLOSER LOOK
SEXUAL HARASSMENT

The University of Massachusetts administration is concerned about sexual harassment on campus and takes harassment incidences seriously, according to administrators who enforce the current sexual harassment policy.

The University policy defines sexual harassment as "unwelcomed sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature."

Grant Ingle of the Office of Human Relations said this includes anything from "catcalls" and offensive language to incidents between faculty members and students.

"A lot of things could call into that definition. Sexual harassment is seen as a major barrier to women integrating into areas that are traditionally male," Ingle said.

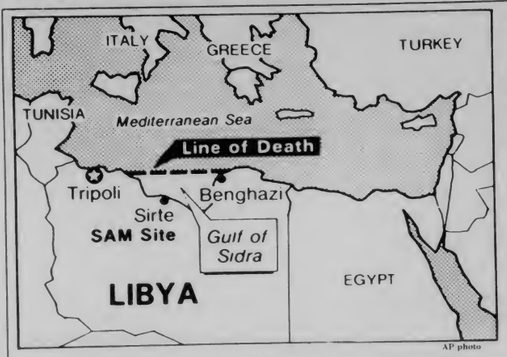
The working policy is serving a very important purpose, according to Ron Sinacore, chairman of the Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel, which hears sexual harassment grievances, and acting director of the Affirmative Action Office.

"I think the policy works pretty well. It's important that we put this University's employees and students on notice that this institution will not tolerate sexual harassment. We take it very seriously," Sinacore said.

The policy, required by state and federal anti-discrimination laws, was implemented in 1982 by a committee of students, staff and faculty. The UMass administration intended to review it after one year.

However, administrators did not review it at that time because no formal complaints had been filed, and they did not know whether or not the policy was effective, according to Sinacore.

Review began a year ago, and since then about 12 revision drafts have been written, according to Ingle.



The current procedure encourages victims first to try to resolve the problem informally with the department heads.

If no informal resolution is reached, individuals may begin formal grievance procedures by filing a written complaint. Then a hearing is scheduled, where the complainant states his or her case to four of the 13 members of the Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel.

Trained faculty, students, staff and one

continued on page 5

Complete coverage of the Oscars
PAGE 9

AP photo

Map of the Gulf of Sidra area. American warplanes knocked out a Libyan missile site and disabled two guided missile patrol boats yesterday after Libya fired at least six missiles at US jets operating below the "line of death."

★ Libya

continued from page1

Three US carrier task forces entered the Gulf of Sidra last weekend to assert the US position that the waters are open to ships of all nations beyond a 12-mile territorial limit.

Earlier yesterday sources who spoke on condition of anonymity had declined to pinpoint the location from which the surface-to-air missiles were fired. However, the Soviets are known to have been assisting the Libyans with the installation of SA-5 batteries outside the town of Sirte, at the southern end of the gulf, and near Benghazi on the gulf's eastern rim.

The Gulf of Sidra is a large, U-shaped body of water that cuts into the central Libyan coastline from the Mediterranean Sea. Khadafy has claimed the gulf as Libyan territory, warning he has drawn "a line of death" above the gulf's entrance below which US planes and ships are subject to attack.

The United States refuses to recognize the Libyan claim. According to the sources, the missiles were detected early yesterday morning Eastern Standard Time during the second day of maneuvers off the Libyan coast. The first flights of US Navy jets over the gulf occurred late Sunday night without incident, the sources added.

But as more jets were launched southward, "we started seeing more military activity and then we detected the missiles," one source said.

The Navy ships include the carriers Saratoga, Coral Sea and America and 27 other smaller combat vessels. The carriers have more than 250 planes available for flight operations.

The federal government long ago put measures into place to protect the people and institutions of Washington from attack during events such as the ones in the Gulf of Sidra. As a result, there was no visible stirring among security forces. "We are not doing anything about security that we haven't been doing all along," said Robert Snow, a spokesman for the Secret Service, which is charged with protecting high-level US officials as well as diplomatic missions in this country.

Libyan crisis

Congress reacts

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee expressed concern yesterday that a military confrontation between the United States and Libya could erupt into a "significant conflict resulting in the loss of American lives."

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., also suggested that the administration may be in violation of the War Powers Act of 1973.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, expressed concern that the confrontation might spark Libyan attempts to carry out terrorist actions in the United States.

"My chief concern now...is not whether we can hold our own there in the gulf, because certainly we've got much more power there than Khadafy does," he said.

"But my concern is what action might be taken on the terrorist front, given Khadafy's threat to carry terrorism to our shores. I want to find out all possible information we have about what possible steps he might take regarding terrorism."

However, Leahy said the "FBI is probably in the best shape it's ever been in to counter terrorism here."

Fascell said, "To my knowledge, for example, the administration has not consulted with Congress on the policy which produced this situation as required under section three of the resolution."

He added that, to the extent that US armed forces have now become involved in hostilities, he would expect the administration to provide a report under the act's provisions.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said he was not surprised by the incident, and suggested that "now that we've made our point, perhaps this is the time to pull back."

"I think this action is certainly a cause for concern," said Sasser in a telephone interview.

"It was not unexpected that the Libyans would take some action if we sought to enforce our rights to traverse those waters. There have been warnings on both sides."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "The United States has acted responsibly in retaliating against acts of aggression perpetrated by Col. Khadafy."

Thurmond, president pro tempore of the Senate, was one of the congressional leaders called to the White House for a briefing on the situation.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said the incident "shows how popular some Third World leaders think it is to 'take on' the US and how quickly and easily the US can get involved in direct military action."

Cranston said the incident also "strengthens my resolve to do all I can to block the proposed arms sale to Mr. Khadafy's friends, the Saudis."

His reference was to the Reagan administration's proposals to sell anti-aircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia. Cranston is a leading Senate opponent of the proposed deal.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said after the briefing, "The administration's handling of this matter is on the right course. Its actions in protecting America's armed forces in international waters are justified."

Not everyone in Congress agreed, however. "I don't understand what we're trying to prove by risking the lives of American servicemen," said Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore. "Countless unmet challenges face the United States today: cancer, hunger and threat of nuclear war. Instead of confronting those challenges, we are engaging in child-like games of 'dare and double-dare' with a sick and dangerous clown."

House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois, said after the briefing, "As far as I'm concerned, Libya in an act of provocation that warranted our response."

POSITION AVAILABLE

Office of the Dean of Students

Student Manager

Information Data Bank (IDB)

and Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

QUALIFICATIONS	Demonstrated (through previous experience and/or recommendations) communication skills; organizational and supervisory skills; ability to organize data; ability to proof-read and edit; some typing and/or word processing experience. Promotional and marketing experience desirable.
ELIGIBILITY	Undergraduate or graduate student (preferably Work-Study eligible) with at least three semesters remaining at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1986.
PAY SCALE	Hourly rate, beginning at minimum of $5.00, 20-25 hours.
STARTING DATE	Selected individual must be available part-time in late April or early May (10-20 hours), full-time mid-July and August (37½ hours). Full-time option may be available June to mid-July.
DEADLINE	Completed applications, available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, must be received by April 11, 1986.

The Information Data Bank (IDB) is a telephone or walk-in referral center which maintains information on University administrative and academic policies and procedures; bus, library, and athletic schedules; listings of current campus events such as seminars, movies, and lectures; and a variety of other reference materials.

The Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS) is a library of more than 300 tape cassettes with information about academic rules, regulations, and programs; registration policies; counseling services; financial aid information; current events; health and safety programs; housing and food services; athletics; student organizations and activities, etc.

The Student Manager is responsible for day-to-day operations of IDB/TIPS including recruiting, training, scheduling and supervising student staff of 10-15; maintaining and updating the IDB/TIPS library and information resources; preparing scripts and tapes; arranging and monitoring production schedules for the Student Telephone Directory, Registration Update, and Dean's List; with the assistance of a student Graphics Coordinator, arranging for placement of ads in the "Collegian" promoting IDB/TIPS; soliciting and processing new material for IDB/TIPS; and related assignments.

IDB 545-1555

A Service of the Dean of Students Office

TIPS 545-1540

Protesting Reagan's foreign policy

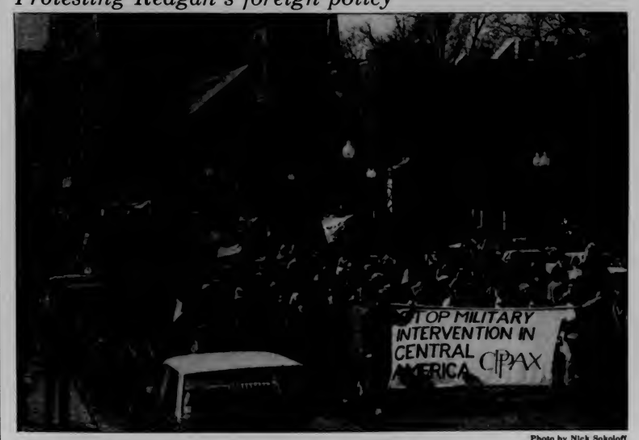

Photo by Nick Sokoloff

Some of about 2,500 people who marched in Boston Sunday to protest Reagan administration support for anti-Nicaragua guerrillas.

Hadley rejects video ban

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

HADLEY -- By a show of hands, residents at a town meeting Thursday overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to bar the sale of X-rated videotapes in the town's three video movie stores.

The proposal was initiated by Hadley resident Helen Zatyrka, who is also a University of Massachusetts student. Zatyrka was in the hallway outside the Hopkins Academy cafeteria talking to a television news crew when the vote was taken.

One hand rose in favor of the article. Most of the 300 present voted no.

"I can't believe the town stuffed it under the rug so easily,"Zatyrka said."It boggles the mind.

Town Counsel Charles Ksieniewicz said the article seeks "to restrict the right to free speech. The courts look at that very carefully."

Ksieniewicz added that the article was faulty because it did not provide a punishment for offenses, and that it was too broad, defining all pornographic films as obscene, while legal standards do not define all pornographic material as obscene.

"I do not question the intent of this article, but its legality," he said.

Stanley Bemben, a Hadley resident, said a community can zone the areas in which explicit material is disseminated, but that the attorney general would overturn a ban. Bemben said the article's wording would not in fact ban videos, but films, and would bar Hadley theatres from showing X-rated films.

The article was worded: "[Will the town] vote to protect its citizens against the insidious effects of pornography by barring the display, sale or rental of X-rated films which often include explicit sex, child molestation and violence against women."

Zatyrka said that if she were to petition the town again, she would word the petition with care. "I knew the cause was lost when the town counsel wouldn't support the article," she said after the meeting.

"I agree with the what the town counsel said as far as the law goes. I also agree that it's difficult to legislate this kind of behavior," she said.

"Our town is financially strapped,"she said."People pay attention to the financial aspect, not the moral aspect."

Danny DiRocco, manager of Video Studio 16, who previously had criticized the proposal, said, "I'm glad it didn't turn out to be an emotional battle. The worst kind of decisions come from an emotional battle."

Walker toured US on foot twice

Walking is the best cardiovascular exercise

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Walking is the best form of exercise, says a man who has walked around the United States twice.

"Walking is the easiest form of exercise, just about everyone can do it with out pain and injuries. Jogging can produce injuries and strains on the muscles, it is not the exercise many of us want to do," said Robert Sweetgall in a lecture on cardiovascular health last night at Fort River Elementary School.

Sweetgall, a 38-year-old bachelor, first toured the US on foot in 1981. In September 1984 he began his second walk, traveling through the 48 states in the continental US.

The University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester and the exercise science department here spent $50,000 researching the effect walking would have on a person averaging 30 miles a day.

"There were no injures, a 10-pound weight loss and a 10 percent improvement in cardiovascular capacity, there was also some reduction in body fat," he said.

Sweetgall was flown back to UMass-Worcester every seven weeks in order for doctors to examine the changes in his body chemistry during his trip. They calculated that he ate about 4,500 calories of food during a day, he said.

"My blood chemistry stayed pretty stable and there was no change in the heart geometry (the thickness of the heart wall)," Sweetgall said.

Sweetgall walked about three miles an hour and walked about 10 hours a day. During the walk he visited 100,000 schools and gave talks promoting walking and health. He carried only a waist sack containing a change of socks, a foot care kit a camera and travelers' checks.

"I never had to spend a night outside," he said. During his year-long walk he stayed in family homes, hotels, a few jail cells and a parked car or two.

"It was the best educational year of my life," he said.

For beginners interested in developing a walking program, Sweetgall suggests a program which combines high intensity and slowdown periods.

"Don't exceed your limits, if you get a little muscle soreness, then back off for a few days," he said.

Doctors deride nuclear weapons

BOSTON (AP)–

Four physicians from the United States, China and the Soviet Union have agreed that, [illegible] their political ideology, they're all against nuclear weapons testing.

"In order to derail the process, we must stop testing," Dr. John Pastore, secretary of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, said yesterday. "We have common interests. We are human."

Noting the differences between the United States and the Soviet Union, Pastore added:

"The enemy is really the nuclear weapons, not an individual country."

"We have many things in common," said Dr. Vladimir Ovchar[illegible], director of the Institute of Public Health and Social Medicine, Moscow. "We should know each other, trust each other.

"The wounds of the last world war, which the US may not see now, are still burning," said Dr. Dimitri Venediktov, director of the USSR Health Information Institute. "We know what hunger and devestation of cities mean.

"We don't know each other enough. We are losing out if we could do it better together."

"We medical workers are devoted to the cause of saving lives and...human care" said Dr. Wu Wei Ran, professor of surgery at Beijing Hospital. "This obligation makes us all the more determined in opposition to war, especially nuclear war."

Pastore, a Boston cardiologist and associate professor at Tufts School of Medicine, was the keynote speaker at the 65th annual meeting of the New England Hospital Assembly.

Opposites in SGA offices

Can they work together?

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

The winners of the Student Government Association president and trustee elections have said they will be able to work together on student issues despite political differences, though others say these differences will reduce the SGA's effectiveness.

Dani Burgess, current student trustee, won his bid for reelection in the vote held March 10 and 11 by a margin of more than 300 votes. Bill Bennett finished first in the presidential election by at first eight votes, but a recount held March 13 extended the margin to 60 votes.

Laura Gottschalk, an undergraduate student senator from the Central Residential Area, said Bennett and Burgess should be able to work together on some nonpartisan issues in the SGA, but she added, "I think the power that the two offices yield will be lessened due to the obvious differences in political views."

Burgess ran on a progressive ticket with M. Lynne Murphy, who finished second to Bennett in the presidential election. Bennett campaigned alone on what he called a moderate ticket.

This is the first year that separate elections were held for the two positions. In past elections, two candidates would run for the positions of co-presidents; Burgess won last year on a ticket with current campus president Stacy Roth.

"When the offices were split, we should've anticipated this could happen," said Paul Wingle, who was elected March 12 as the new Undergraduate Student Senate speaker.

Murphy, who is still challenging the election results, said she saw a gulf between the two winners on student issues. She praised her running mate's stance on student rights, and added, "I haven't seen that kind of committment in Bill Bennett."

Murphy has filed a petition with the SGA asking for another recount of the election, though an election officer has said the petition is invalid under SGA bylaws. (See story below.)

When Bennett learned of the petition, he said, "I hoped we could work together ... The students elected me to work with all students, and that includes [M.] Lynne Murphy."

Burgess said he and Bennett should be able to agree on student issues. "If we're confronted on the abortion issue, there might be a problem, but I don't see why we would be [confronted]."

Murphy supporters call for third count

By CRAIG SANDLER
Collegian Staff

While most of the losers of the recent elections for campus president and student trustee seemed to take defeat quietly, the runner-up for president ripped into the victor and is fighting for a second recount of the vote.

Supporters of Lynne Murphy, who lost to Bill Bennett by a 2 percent margin, filed a petition yesterday to have the Student Government Association count the votes a third time. Initial results had Bennett winning by eight votes; a recount showed Bennett winning by 60.

Thirty-four votes counted the first time could not be accounted for the second time, according to Murphy and Karen Morvay, the student senate official in charge of the elections.

That discrepancy, said Murphy, is one reason why she's unhappy.

"There were a lot of problems with the elections," said Murphy, who decried a misleading poster supporting Bennett that appeared during the election.

The poster read, "Lynne Murphy [a Bennnett supporter, no relation to candidate M. Lynne Murphy, who did not use her first initial on the ballot] endorses Bill Bennett.'

Murphy did not say Bennett had condoned the poster, but said, "I think people are responsible for the actions of their campaign workers.

"I ran the most honest campaign I possibly could ... and it's important to see that other campaigns were too and that the process was honest and democratic," she said. "If I had confidence in Bill Bennett's ability to do the job, I wouldn't have run."

Morvay said she doubted the petition supporting Murphy was valid under SGA bylaws, which state in part: "The results of a recount shall be considered final."

Presidential candidate Ted Capodilupo said that although he was unhappy with the way the election was run, he would "get out there more, talk to more people," and stay active in student politics.

Defeated trustee hopeful Daniel J. Valianti issued a "friendly challenge" to incumbent winner Dani Burgess.

"I challenge him to do something to unify the students," particularly on the Bennett/Murphy animosity, he said.

ENTER THE MISS HAWAIIAN TROPIC INTERNATIONAL PAGEANT

Sportswear and Bathing Suit Competition

CONTEST HELD AT

CHANGES dance club

256-8284

Thursday March 27 at 8 pm

Contestants have until 5 PM March 27 to register MISS HAWAIIAN TOPIC UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETS will receive in addition to other prizes an all expense paid trip to the beautiful PLAZA HOTEL IN DAYTONA BEACH to compete in the MISS HAWAIIAN TROPIC USA competition August 13-18, 1986. Miss Hawaiian Tropic International will receive: A NEW PORSCHE 944 SPORTS CAR, A DREAM VACATION FOR TWO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, AND AN INTERNATIONAL MODELING ASSIGNMENT WITH HAWAIIAN TROPIC. Finalists receive: A LUXURIOUS FUR COAT, A DIAMOND PENDANT, and an all expense paid trip to HAWAII. For further information contact: Craig B. Keenan, Young Adult/Promotions Manager.

549-4066, 253-9071
or Grad Rosenbaum 253-9071 or Mike Kane at Changes 256-8284

A LUXURIOUS FUR COAT

And win these Grand Prizes

A NEW SPORTS CAR

The Porsche 944 above will be awarded to Miss Hawaiian Tropic International 1986. Each year the title winner will receive a luxurious sports car as one of our fabulous Grand Prizes.

A MONARK SKI BOAT

Sportboat 5.1 Stern Drive complete with trailer

A NATIONAL MODELING ASSIGNMENT

A DREAM VACATION FOR TWO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD

as seen in ... People weekly

In August 1986, 100 lovely young ladies will gather at the beautiful Plaza Hotel in Daytona Beach for a week of fun, entertainment, and excitment of competing in the second Miss Hawaiian Tropic International USA Finals.

Hawaiian Tropic invites you to enter the second annual Miss Hawaiian Tropic USA Finals to be held in Daytona Beach, Florida, August 12-18, 1986. Hawaiian Tropic, the #2 selling suntan cosmetic in the world, is sponsoring this global search for the beautiful young lady who will represent Hawaiian Tropic with her health and beauty.

HAWAIIAN Tropic

BEAUTIFUL TANS BEGIN WITH HAWAIIAN TROPIC. . .

To enhance their tans each contestant will receive a generous supply of Hawaiian Tropic tanning products.

Selected contestants board Hawaiian Tropic's turbo jet for modeling assignment for Hawaiian Tropic and Off Shore Air in the Cayman and Virgin Islands.

Co-Sponsored By:

Miller MADE THE AMERICAN WAY

Collision victim hospitalized

A man was taken to the intensive care unit of Cooley Dickenson Hospital in Northampton after his car collided with another car 7:25 p.m. Thursday on West Street, Amherst Police said.

A 58-year-old man Amherst man was cited for improper passing, when he hit the other man. He was also taken to the Cooley Dickinson Hospital where he was treated and released, police said.

In other police reports:

- About ten mailboxes and newspaper tubes were discovered destroyed at 8:49 a.m. Sunday on Pine Street, police said.
- A 10-speed bicycle valued at $100 was reported stolen at 10:51 a.m. Saturday from The Brittany Manor Apartments, police said.
- A Turner Falls man was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated at 2:32 a.m. on Sunderland Road, police said.

—FRANK GEARY

FYI

Simon P. Worden, special assistant to the director of the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization will speak at 7 p.m. tonight in Thompson 104. He will speak on US Soviet relations and the S.D.I.

Worden, the advisor to the Delegation to the Negotiations on Nuclear and Space Arms with the Soviet Union, is an adjunct associate professor of astronomy at the University of Arizona. Worden has authored more than 100 scientific papers in astrophysics, space sciences and optics.

Registration for the 7th annual "Run For Ritter" Road race will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through April 11 in the Campus Center, and 4 to 6 p.m. at the Newman Center. There is a $5 entry fee, with free t-shirts given to the first 500 registrants.

Head Resident Positions

Amherst College is seeking candidates for part time (10 months) Head Resident positions starting August 15, 1986. Responsibilities include training and supervision of Resident Counselors, advising a council for residence governance and helping to develop social and cultural programs, and working with Dean's Office, faculty and physical plant departments to ensure proper functioning of residence halls. Qualifications include: completion of Bachelor's degree by September, 1986; ability to relate well to students; organizational and counseling skills. Previous experience in residential life preferred. Compensation: $3,500, room and board. Submit resume, cover letter and two letters of recommendation to: Karen Tilbor, Associate Dean of Students, Amherst College, Box 68, Amherst, MA 01002 before March 31, 1986. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. M/F/H.

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Make a fresh start this Spring with something special from Le Boudoir.

Lacy cotton nightgowns, teddies, bustiers, garter belts & stockings and much more.
Come in and browse!

Carriage Shops,
233 N. Pleasant St.,
Amherst 549-6915 Mon-Sat 10-6

Complete Hairstyling for Men & Women

Haircut $8.00

Haircut with Blowdry $12.00

Shear Delight

228 Triangle St.
Amherst

Call: 549-1502

If you feel you've been harassed...

If you think you have been a victim of sexual harassment, there are actions you can take against the harasser, and confidentiality is guaranteed.

The Ombuds Office, 823 Campus Center, takes complaints and offers the victim two options:

- The complainant can choose to try and resolve the problem informally with the department head, or
- The complainant may choose to file a formal complaint and be granted a hearing by the University's Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel.

If possible, the complainant should keep a written record of dates and times of incidents.

There are also other resources on campus to assist sexual harassment victims: The Affirmative Action Office, Employee Assistance Program, Everywoman's Center, Legal Services Office, The Mediation Project, Office of Human Relations, or the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy.

—ILANA LEVENSON

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amhe
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

★harassment

continued from page 1

administrator make up the panel, which determines whether or not the University policy has been violated, and if so, what the penalty should be.

The complainant may appeal to the respondent's vice chancellor, whose decision is final within the University.

Victims may also file complaints in a court or by other means outside the University.

This past year six cases went through formal hearings, although the Ombuds Office reported 19 complaints. The other 13 were dealt with informally.

According to the policy, the University ombudsperson, currently Howard Gadlin, ensures confidentiality.

In a Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office telephone survey of 237 graduate and undergraduate women conducted in 1983, 25 percent of the women surveyed said they had been sexually harassed at UMass. Before the existence of the policy, sexual harassment cases would get passed around and "fall through the administrative cracks," according to Susan Tracy, a lecturer in the women's studies department.

"It [sexual harassment] is a violation of the law. Many people would prefer to see it as trivial," Tracy said.

Next: A woman who claimed sexual harassment says the University policy did nothing for her.

SNACKSENSE

SOME FACTS ABOUT FAT

Functional Fat
Fat in your diet carries fat soluable vitamins such as A, E, D & K. It also provides essential fatty acids. Body fat protect body organs and provides insulation.

BUT, a diet high in fat is associated with an increased risk of heart attack, stroke and breast cancer. Fats are also high in calories.

How to cut down
- drink skim or low fat milk and use it in cooking too.
- substitute low fat yogurt for sour cream or use a mixture of the two.
- eat fewer fried foods and try more fruits and vegetables instead.

University Vending Services & University Health Services
Division of Health Education/University of Massachusetts/Amherst

Students against tuition hike

By JIM PATRIQUIN
Collegian Staff

The Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy is sponsoring the first of four tuition teach-ins for all University students at 4 p.m. today in Campus Center room 904.

The teach-ins have been called in response to an anticipated tuition hike and are part of a campaign against any increase. The teach-in will address the origins of the tuition policy and the role of the Board of Regents of Higher Education and corporations in determining tuition.

"At a time when there's going to be less financial aid available, students may be stuck with a increase in tuition," Jerry Scoppettuolo, SCERA staff advocate, said.

SCERA and the Undergraduate Student Senate Public Policy and Academic Affairs committees are organizing the campaign of teach-ins, a petition drive and lobbying.

The campaign continues a student effort to minimize tuition increases, which have been enacted every year at UMass since 1981.

"We feel we must anticipate that the regents will plan to increase tuition again," Scoppettuolo said. "Our main argument against that increase is the $300 million surplus in the state budget."

The teach-ins aim to examine whose interests the tuition policy serves and the effects of a financial increase on students, he said.

"We fear a lot of the impact of an increase would fall on lower-income students, since Reagan's budget proposes to cut $2 billion from student financial aid in this coming year," Scoppettuolo said.

Today's teach-in will include a presentation of SCERA information through slides and commentary by Scoppettuolo.

FRESHMEN □ SOPHOMORES □ JUNIORS
SENIORS □ GRADUATE STUDENTS

NOW...Work PART TIME and step into Phase I of our dynamic new Training Program

CUSTOMER SERVICE REPRESENTATIVES
BUILD YOUR FUTURE WITH PEOPLExpress

It would take the nation's most innovative airline to "reinvent" career training like this! We're seeking highly competent individuals with a real capacity for compassion, caring and concern for people. Join PEOPLExpress NOW as a Customer Service Representative, and you will be on the most direct route to eligibility for POST-DEGREE TRAINING and a long-term career in the airline industry.

If you've got:
- Matriculated status in a full-time college program
- 2.5 cumulative GPA
- Professional appearance
- Customer contact experience
- Good communications skills
- Ability to provide own transportation

We'll offer you:
- $4.50 an hour for working 15-25 hours a week at BRADLEY INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT
- Schedules to fit your classes
- Travel privileges on PEOPLExpress
- Free parking

GET MEANINGFUL TRAINING—as you handle challenging responsibilities like customer check-ins/boarding, baggage procedures, and other operational support activities. PEOPLExpress offers you so much more than just a part-time job—here's a chance to really LEARN and EARN!

For further information contact the Hartford Recruiting Offices:
203-627-3492

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART
Equal Opportunity Employer

cordially invites
Seniors
to Memorial Library Auditorium on Monday, March 3
at 7:00 P.M.

Meet our executives and enjoy refreshments.
Tell us about your career goals and hear about the exciting Executive Development Program at Lord & Taylor, America's leading fashion specialty store.
Even if you have not previously thought of retailing as a career, you may want to know about the many interesting opportunities at Lord & Taylor.
If you have proven abilities and a record of achievement, and look forward to the challenge of managing a profitable business in just three years' time, Lord & Taylor looks forward to meeting you.

Letters
Gratitude vs. hostility

It has been a long year for the Undergraduate Student Senate. We have fought administrative attempts to take control of the Student Activities Trust Fund and have also had to deal with general divisiveness among senators, but we have come through it all with many accomplishments We have put out the CATE guide, worked with state government to save the UMass budget from state and federal budget cuts, formulated our first Academic Grievance Policy, endorsed Freedom Friday, and passed a new constitution to name just a few accomplishments.

As we end this term, we would like to give a special thanks to our officers, John Ruddock III, Staci Roth, Dani Burgess, and Diane Rossi who have worked extremely hard, usually receiving little gratitude and often much hostility from the senate floor.

This is especially true of Ruddock, our speaker who was elected by the senate body to chair our meetings, and has worked hard all year long, but was never shown the respect he deserved. Even after all the talk of unity during last year's election, a handful of senators insisted on disrupting meetings and antagonizing Ruddock. Their egotistical interruptions, their refusal to listen to the speakers repeated calls for order, and their personal insults to the speaker were outrageous. Likewise, Ruddock deserved more consistent support from us, the Progressive Coalition of the senate, who last year pledged to stand by him.

Despite these obstacles though, Ruddock did an excellent job as speaker. We would like to extend our appreciation to him and all the officers for their hard work and committment to students and the SGA ciation, and wish them well in their futures!

As for us, as Ruddock has said for a year, we, the senate need to make some priorities. We need to restructure ourselves, set some long range goals, and work together to regain the strength our student body once held on this campus. We ask that students interested in getting involved in decisions concerning the funding of Recognized Student Organizations and other programs from you $88 Student Activities Fee come up to the Senate Office in the Student Union and talk to people to get more information.

M. Lynne Murphy, Orchard Hill; Paul D. Wingle, Central; Lisa D. Bernhard, Alex Guest, David C. Martin, Ellen P. Breslin, Caroline Murray, Dani Burgess, Amherst; Celeste M. Friend, Sunderland

DEBT MANAGEMENT WEEK
MARCH 24- -28, 1986
Sponsored by Financial Aid Services
Financial Aid Counselors will be available to discuss your rights, responsibilities and obligations on:
Tuesday 3/25 from 9 am - 12 noon -
Room 905 Campus Center
Wednesday 3/26 from 9 am - 12 noon & 1 - 4 pm -
Room 904 Campus Center
Thursday 3/27 from 9 am - 12 noon -
Room 811 Campus Center
This will be your opportunity to ask questions and obtain information about
YOUR STUDENT LOAN OBLIGATIONS

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.

After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.

That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.

So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT—BE ONE.

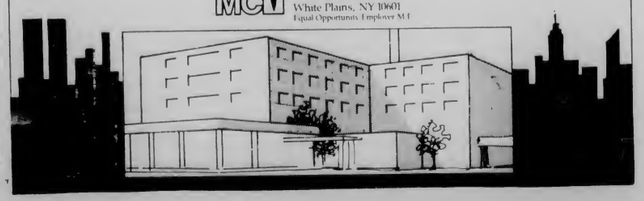
Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE get started early and complete studies at 1 of 120 locations nationwide
358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

REGISTERED NURSES

Continue your professional development in an atmosphere of encouragement at:
White Plains Hospital Medical Center

Open House
Tuesday, April 1, 1986
1:30pm-7:00pm
No Appointment Necessary.
Just Stop By Anytime

Complimentary buffet served throughout the day and evening/On the spot interviews with nursing management/Unit Tours/Speak with Staff RN's



White Plains Hospital Medical Center is one of Westchester's most prestigious hospital medical centers located in a beautiful suburban location just 35 minutes from NYC and just a short distance from major ski resorts and the Long Island Sound. We offer the following benefits:

Professional Pluses:
- Primary Nursing
- Staff Development Programs Ongoing
- Individualized Orientation
- Decentralized Nursing Department
- Internal Opportunities
- Preceptor Program

Personal Benefits:
- Tuition Assistance
- Non-Contributory Pension/ Life Insurance
- 20 Vacation Days + 13 Holidays + 12 Sick Days
- Permanent Shifts

Enjoy the personal environment of a prestigious medical center and the hospital of choice in Westchester. Excellent benefits and competitive salaries. For more information contact: Jan Thomson, RN, Professional Recruiter

(914) 681-3100
WPHMC
White Plains Hospital Medical Center
Davis Ave at East Post Road
White Plains, NY 10601
Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor — Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Sonerberg, Production Manager — Conor Plunkett, Production Manager — Elizabeth Young, Business Manager — Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor — Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor — John Yonce, Women's Editor — Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor — Kelly Singer, Arts Editor — Michelle Segall, Photo Editor — Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor — Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

The power of Easter

Rusty Denton

This coming Sunday is Easter, celebrating the resurrection of Jesus the Messiah from the dead. It's a powerful holiday. While most of us connect Jesus with love, healing and wisdom, it is seldom remembered that His resurrection established His credentials as God's sovereign king upon the earth, with power even over death.

It is unpopular in America and in most other places to talk about the living God. God isn't supposed to disturb our daily life. He isn't supposed to impose His will on those who haven't voted for Him. God is the recourse of the dying, not of the living, or so we wish.

That's the problem with having human standards; people start applying them to the Almighty. I know many people who think that because they live in a democratic and morally lax society, heaven will be the same, opening its gates to all who knock, and winking at sin. They seem to think of God as a political candidate who needs all the votes He can get, any way He can get them.

But heaven is not a democracy. The Bible calls it a kingdom, and describes God as mighty, with great multitudes in constant worship. It calls Him holy, which means separate from sin. Scripturally, no person with any sort of sin will enter heaven, because that would be abominable to God. Nobody on this planet has righteousness sufficient to meet that requirement.

That is where the drama of the Resurrection comes in. The priestly code states that the price of sin is blood. In the Old Testament, innocent substitutes were killed to atone for the sins of the people. Those substitutes were animals--innocent because they didn't live under a law of right and wrong. But their deaths anticipated a better sacrifice: that of a sinless man. Jesus died so that the sins of believers would be forgiven. Scripture says that His one-time suffering heals us from sickness and from our sinful human nature.

That alone would be a great cause for celebration. But the Christian life does not end with love and forgiveness, nor with warming a pew. Two days later Jesus rose from the dead, causing confusion everywhere and demonstrating the reality of life after death. After the resurrection, Jesus commanded His followers to be living testimonies that there is a God in heaven, and that He has sent a Messiah so that all who believe might be saved from their sins and come into a relationship with God as their Father.

To further equip his people, 50 days later God gave to them what is known as the Holy Spirit in a dramatic way. The Holy Spirit might be described as the presence of God in each believer. He is responsible for comforting, for giving courage, for communication with God, and for the miraculous displays of God's healing power, which many Christians no longer see, because they don't ask.

When I was a boy, there were many times I felt as thought history had given me the short end of the stick, because biblical people got to see the power of God, and I only got to read about it. But I have been walking with Christ almost 20 years, and after years of asking, I have seen awesome miracles not only in the lives of others, but in my own. I have become a "living testimony" to God's sovereign power. I can state unequivocally that those who argue that God has no place in the public arena are wrong, because they have not understood His omnipotent power. They don't understand that He can't be voted into or out of public life, or that He is patient, but not inactive. And they don't realize that when Scripture says, "Jesus is Lord," it means that He is the Lord of those who love Him...and Lord of those who don't.

This is strong stuff. This is the power of Easter.

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist.

Soviet 'good intentions'

Stuart Gottlieb

If nothing else, Mikhail Gorbachev's proposal to rid the world of nuclear weapons by the year 2000 has opened the eyes of many people who at one time or another saw this illusion as a reality. It has truly separated the realists from the idealists, and most of all, it has brought forth the reality that nuclear weapons are here to stay.

Nuclear arms are unusable; we know that, and Russia knows that. But although unusable, nuclear weapons are essential for contemporary survival. For over 40 years nuclear arms have prevented the United States and the Soviet Union from attacking each other and their allies. They have allowed the superpowers to watch over their world interests, both politically and economically. But most importantly, nuclear arms have forced an essential tone of moderation upon the world, bringing about the use of conventional weapons as mere stabilizers and regulators of American and Soviet intentions.

What if Moammar Khadafy was king? If he was the only man on earth with a nuclear bomb, he could feasibly hold the whole world hostage.

Could the KGB and the CIA successfully stand guard over every vial of plutonium? In a world of Khadafys, Khomeinis, Arafats, and yes, even Marcos', is it rational to allow these individuals the trust needed to keep a peacefull tone for planet Earth, hence ridding the neccessity of a nuclear threat? In this day and age, is it truly possible to regress so far as to pretend the past half century of technology never existed?

A world without nuclear weapons would lead to an extensive build-up of conventional forces. How does an abundance of conventional weapons differ from a moderate build up of nuclear arms? And what about our allies abroad who have been under our nuclear wing for over 30 years? Would Western Europe feel safer if left to confront Soviet conventional forces? Would we, for that matter?

These questions are only a few posed by the recent proposal of nuclear abolition. While neither the United States nor Russia would ever consider abandoning the one edge that they have on the rest of the world, something which has kept peace in the past, and will continue to do so in the future, the Soviet proposal makes it very clear that both sides are willing to admit that the current ominous build-up is not only ludicrous, but also very unnecessary.

But don't be fooled by Soviet "good intentions." While it appears that the Kremlin is out for the good of the world, the Soviets have reaped the benefits of this proposal. Gorbachev has put the ball in President Reagan's court, and by doing that he has appeared to the rest of the world as being the peace-seeker, which he is not. Also, in every proposed dissolvance of nuclear build-up the issue of the Strategic Defense Initiative has been brought up, and argued by the Soviets that in order for talks to begin, SDI research must be stymied. For the nuclear realists, and the recent convertees, it has become extremely clear that not only will nuclear weapons continue to exist, but also that the SDI proposal is doing exactly what it was intended to do; become the most important bargaining chip in history. The ball is in our court.

Stuart Gottlieb is a Collegian staff member.

Letters

Military funds much research

Universities looking for research funds are finding the Pentagon offers "the only game in town." According to a recent report by the Council on Economic Priorities, funds ear-marked for SDI "innovative" research, awarded primarily to universities, will quadruple in FY 1986 to $100 million. Pentagon funding for defense projects at universities has increased 89 percent in the last five years. Today, incredibly, this constitutes 16 percent of all federally funded university research--the same shared received by universities during the height of the Vietnam War.

MIT and its off-campus Lincoln Laboratories, for example, in FY 1985 received a whopping 59 percent of all its research funds from the Department of Defense, at least one-fifth of which went to SDI. Across the nation, some 43 other schools have also received Star Wars contracts. Such a rapid increase shows that universities have become the next targeted constituency, after military industries, for the SDI research porkbarrel.

What has happened to basic research? It is expected to grow only 1 percent this year, while military research and development is expected to increase 21 percent. Though classified research has been restricted on most major campuses since the 60s, much of the final stage SDI research will fall into this classified category.

What this means is that universities, traditionally a major source of unbiased scientific research, are becoming more and more dependent on the Department of Defense. The Pentagon is supplying more than one-half of all federal funds for mathematics and computer sciences, effectively putting it in charge of those disciplines which are key in the development of high technology. Given the Pentagon's spotty record on quality and cost control, this will ultimately hurt U.S. technological growth and competiveness.

More than 2,600 faculty members have already signed a petition calling the Star Wars project "deeply misguided and dangerous," including Hans Bethe of Cornell and Philip Morrison of MIT. Opposition to the "invasion of academia" by the Pentagon is growing nationwide. Students, faculty and the public everywhere should join in making their views heard on this important issue.

Rosy Nimroody, project director Council on Economic Priorities

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail recieved, individual replies cannot be made.

Professor's inappropriate action

I am a student who receives job cards from the Student Employee Service. Coming upon one of these cards for a housecleaning job, I called the given number thinking I may finally have a part-time job. Instinctively, I asked for the woman hiring, by her first and last name.

To my surprise, I didn't even get a chance to tell her who I was or what I had been calling for. The woman on the other end of my phone lit into me for not calling her by her professional name. She told me she had been a professor at UMass for quite some time now, had many years on me, and that I should have respect for my elders. She even accused my mother of not teaching me proper manners.

I was never introduced to this woman. All I read on the card was her first and last name. I could never have known she was a professor and I let her know this. But what I said made no difference. On went the speech.

She spoke to me harshly, using stern words like I had committed a crime. I had only called her by her full name. The lecture continued for about five minutes and then came the job description. Just before we hung up, she told me there had been two other people who had called her before me, and she probably wouldn't be needing me.

"Good," I thought. "I won't be needing your job either."

After we hung up, I was furious and kept thinking of all the things I should have said to her: "Who do you think you are? Do you think that you are better than me because you have more of an education?" "What's the matter? Did you have a bad day at work?" At the time, I didn't even think to say anything like this because I was caught off-guard and I had too much respect for myself. She had guessed my age and was four years off. I am a 22-year-old adult, and have always grown up respecting my elders. This "professor" did not have respect for me and this makes me wonder if she has respect for her students.

I feel that all people are created equal, especially the innocent ones. These professors are here for the students; we pay them to feed us vital information for our future. Have respect for each other. Still, I feel that this is one professor who owes me an apology.

Susan Moore
Amherst

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available

Wednesday April 16th Fine Arts Center

Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public

at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.

Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

Arts Announcement

Arts Convocation to be held at the University of Massachusetts

A special Convocation will be held at UMass at 11 a.m. on April 2 in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

University musicians and dancers will be performing. Also included in the program is the awarding of six honorary degrees, four of which will go to UMass alumni.

"This Convocation marks the true coming of age of the Amherst Campus in the field of the arts," according to University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph Duffey.

The event is free of charge but tickets must be picked up ahead of time at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Writing a paper?
Need some help?
THE WRITING CENTER

Pierpont, Southwest
Monday and Thursday 7 - 9
B-24 Baker in Central
Tuesday 7-9, Wednesday 1-3, 7-9
Thursday 7-9
04 Cashin in Sylvan
Monday 7-9
Wednesday 2'30-4:30, 7-9

Great Daily Specials!
All Day! Every Day!

TACO VILLA

...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8211 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 786-7919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

SEE ME.
FEEL ME.
TOUCH ME.
HEAR ME.

Working with those who are communicatively impaired is a challenging, yet rewarding profession. Boston-Bouvé College at Northeastern University recognizes the importance of research and further study in this field. Our ASHA accredited Master of Science program in Speech-Language Pathology and our program in Audiology (the only one in Boston) make it possible for you to pursue an advanced degree full-time, or part-time if you are employed in the field.

For information on these programs or a free brochure, complete and mail the coupon below. Or call (617) 437-2708.

Please send me information on your Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology Programs
Boston-Bouvé College of Human Development Professions 106 DK
Northeastern University 360 Huntington Ave. Boston, MA 02115
Name_____ Phone_____
Address_____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____

Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university

THE BUNNY GALLERY.
EASTER GIFT HEADQUARTERS

CARD GALLERY COUPON
This Coupon is good for
50% Off
ANY 1 PAIR OF EARRINGS IN OUR STORE
Value $_____
FOUR DAYS ONLY
GIVE YOURSELF A SUPER SPECIAL EASTER TREAT!
No closeouts or leftovers — it's our entire inventory of the latest, most exciting fashion earrings — anywhere.
One coupon per customer
Valid only when accompanied by this coupon through Wed., March 26th, 1986. UM
CARD GALLERY COUPON

A tisket, a tasket, create an Easter basket!
Enjoy the beautiful tradition of giving someone you love an Easter basket. Card Gallery has a huge selection of baskets, the grass, eggs, sweets and the perfect gift that makes it personally yours for that special someone. It's easy and it's fun. Of course, if you're in a hurry, we've got gorgeous baskets made up by Russell Stover and others, now!

I've got a "plush" on you...sweetie pie...
Come on in and be pleasantly surprised by the vast collection of quality plush animals Card Gallery offers in every store. We've got plush rabbits with affectionate or funny faces. Cuddly ducks or any other seasonal, brand by leading makers such as Gund, Applause and many other top brands. Prices from $2.98 to $100

10,000 GIFTS ON DISPLAY...EVERDAY!
CARD gallery
13 EXCITING STORES TO SERVE YOU!
IN CONNECTICUT: UNIED N SQUARE WEST HARTFORD Corbin Corners EAST HARTFORD Silver Plaza MANCHESTER PARKADE MERIDEN SQUARE SOUTHINGTON PLAZA Friendly BRISTOL Shoppers Plaza TORRINGTON PARKADE FAIRFIELD Post Road Plaza
IN MASSACHUSETTS: SPRINGFIELD Hampden Square WESTFIELD Next to Shop Rite Near the STOP and SHOP

Our huge selection lets you express exactly the sentiment you want
There's always more than 50,000 cards for all occasions at every Card Gallery, including thousands just for Easter. Choose leading brand names such as Hallmark and Recycled. You might even select today's big favorite, the musical card.

STORES OPEN EASTER SUNDAY 9-1 (Except Enfield and Meriden)

Out of Africa sweeps

The Color Purple is forgotten by Academy

By KELLY SIEGER
Collegian Staff

The 58th Annual Academy Awards held last night in Los Angeles held no surprises as Out of Africa dominated the awards with seven Oscars, including Best Director and Best Picture.

The Color Purple was mysteriously overlooked, having been nominated for 10 Oscars and winning none, as director Steven Spielberg looked on.

Also unsurprising was the Academy's decision to honor the older actors Don Ameche as Best Supporting Actor for his role in Cocoon, and Geraldine Page as Best Actress for her role in The Trip To Bountiful.

Co-hosts Jane Fonda and Alan Alda began the show by welcoming countries from around the world to the Awards. Fonda provided the political angle when she welcomed the viewers from the Philippines. Robin Williams, who was the third co-host, acted as interpreter for the filipino people in an impersonation of a filipino shoe-salesman.

AP Laserphoto
Don Ameche

Here are the results:

Best Supporting Actress: Angelica Huston beat out her co-nominees for her role in Prizzi's Honor, which was directed by Huston's father John Huston. Huston and her competetion were all fairly newcomers to the Oscars and it is definite that we will be seeing all of them in the same position in the future.

Best Special Effects: Molly Ringwald presented this award to the special effect crew of Cocoon, who beat out The Young Sherlock Holmes, and Return to Oz.

Best Costuming: The magnificant foreign film Ran stole this award from it's bigger American competetion, The Color Purple, The Journey of Natty Gann, and Out of Africa.

Achievement in Make-up: Mask, the true story of a teenage boy plagued with a disfiguring disease deserved this recognition from the Academy.

Best Sound: Irene Cara presented Out of Africa with its first Oscar win. Back to the Future, A Chorus Line, Ladyhawke, and Silverado lost out.

Best Supporting Actor: The acting veteran Don Ameche received a standing ovation upon winning his first Oscar for his role in Cocoon.

Art Direction: Out of Africa claimed its second golden statue, beating out what would be two of main competetion for all the major categories: The Color Purple and Witness. Also disappointed were Terry Gilliam's Brazil, and Ran.

Best Actress: The women nominated for this award have been nominated a combined 24 times, and have won four. Geraldine Page beat this illustrious competition for her role in Cocoon. Page received a standing ovation as she accepted her first Oscar ever. Page has been nominated eight times for an Oscar.

AP Laserphoto
Jane Fonda welcomes filipino viewers

Best Cinematography: Out of Africa again stole the scene, and the statue, edging out The Color Purple, Murphy's Romance, Witness and Ran.

Best Original Song: Lionel Ritchie's Say You, Say Me" from White Nights, top-fortied its way to an Oscar, beating out fellow chart member "Separate Lives," also from White Nights; Huey Lewis' "Power of Love" from Back to the Future; "Surprise Surprise" from The Chorus Line, The Movie; and the refreshing "Miss Celie's Blues" from The Color Purple."

Best Original Score: The original tune from Sunrise to the Run, Gene Kelly, Debbie Reynolds, and Donald O'Conner presented this award to the night's winner, Out of Africa. Also nominated were Agnes of God, The Color Purple, Silverado, and Witness.

Best Screenwriting: Two in a row for Out of Africa, as The Color Purple, Kiss of the Spider Woman, Prizzi's Honor, and The Trip to Bountiful just watched.

AP Laserphoto
William Hurt and Geraldine Page display their Best Actor and Best Actress awards. Hurt won fro his rol in Kiss of the Spider Woman, and Page won for The Trip to Bountiful.

Best Original Script: Back to the Future won it's major award here, as the Academy voted against Brazil, The Official Story, The Purple Rose of Cairo, and Witness.

Best Director: The choice between Hector Babenco, of The Kiss of the Spider Woman, Peter Weir of Witness, John Huston of Prizzi's Honor, and Sydney Pollack of Out of Africa seemed easy for the Academy as Pollack picked his film's fifth award.

Best Picture: The choice for this category may have seemed unclear at the beginning of the program, but by this time it was clear that Out of Africa would run off with this one. Usually Best Director and Best Picture has corresponded and this was no exception.

Paul Newman, Alex Norris, and Charles Buddy Rogers all received special Oscars.

Paul Newman received his "in recognition of his screen performances, his personal integrity and his dedication to his craft.

Composer Alex Norris received his Oscar in recognition of his work in film music. He has composed scores for such movies as Streetcar Named Desire, and most recently Prizzi's Honor.

Charles Buddy Rogers received his honor for his humanitarian efforts. Presentator Bob Hope made his record 25th Oscar appearance.

Academy misses local filmakers

Edelstein and Burns miss out

By KELLY SIEGER
Collegian Staff

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences took no notice of the Pioneer Valley entries last night as a UMass student and a Northampton director -- both nominated for Oscars -- were disappointed when the envelopes were finally opened.

Alan Edelstein, a American History major, and Hampshire College graduate Peter Friedman had received a nomination for Best Short Subject Documentary for their film Wizard of the Strings.

Wizard portrays the career of vaudevillian Roy Smeck, who was a well-known string instrumentalist during the 20s and the 30s. In 1985 Wizard gained Edelstein and Friedman a Student Academy Award.

Wizard did not however win the coveted Oscar, as a film named Witness to War ran away with the prize. Also nominated were The Courage to Care, Keats and his Nightingale, and Overtures.

The Statue of Liberty, a documentary directed by Northampton resident Ken Burns, was nominated for the Best Documentary. Chosen as winner for this category was Broken Rainbow. Los Madres, Soldiers in Hiding, and Unfinished Bus were also nominated.

Burns is no stranger to awards. He has won several in the past for his work, including a Guggenheim fellowship. He is also right at home with the Oscars; he was nominated for the prestigious award in 1982 for his documentary on the Brooklyn Bridge. He is a member of the Northampton-based filmaking company Florentine.

His latest endeavor is Huey Long, based on the career of the controversial Louisiana governor. The film will be shown on PBS this fall and will begin a run at the Pleasant St. Theater in Northampton on April 2.

Oscars Quiz

1) Four actors have won Oscars for screenwriting. Name them, the year and the films.
2) Who was the first performer to win consecutive Oscars?
3) Who was the first black performer to win an Oscar? Name the film and the date.
4) Of the 57 films named Best Picture only one was a western. Which one?
5) What was the first film in color to win the Best Picture Oscar?
6) What was the last black and white film to win a Best Picture Oscar?
7) Meryl Streep won a Best Actress award in 1982 for "Sophie's Choice." What other actress won an Oscar for playing another famous Sophie?
8) This Oscar-winning actor appeared in the best film of 1977 and 1978. Name him and the films.
9) Only two actors in Academy history have won Oscars for playing the same character. Name them, the character they played and the title of the films.
10) Has anyone ever directed himself to an Oscar victory?
11) Name the only presenter to award himself an Oscar.
12) Has any film produced all four acting winners?
13) Which film has won the most Oscars?

Answers

1) Orson Welles, for Citizen Kane (1941); John Huston, for Treasure of Sierra Madre (1948); Mel Brooks, for The Producers (1968); and Woody Allen, for Annie Hall (1977).
2) Luise Rainer, named Best Actress of 1936 for The Great Zeigfeld and 1937 for The Good Earth.
3) Hattie McDaniel, for her supporting performance in Gone With the Wind in 1939
4) Cimarron, in 1930/31.
5) Gone With the Wind in 1939. It received 13 nominations and won 8.
6) The Apartment in 1960. It received 10 nominations and won 5.
7) The late Anne Baxter won Best Supporting Actress for her role as Sophie in The Razor's Edge in 1946.
8) Christopher Walken. He appeared in Annie Hall in 1977 and won a Best Supporting Actor award for his role in The Deer Hunte 1978.
9) Marlon Brando as Vito Corleone in The Godfathe and Robert De Niro as the young Vito Corleone in The Godfather, Part II.
10) Laurence Olivier, who was named best actor in 1948 for Hamlet, which he also directed.
11) Irving Berlin, when he open he envelope in 1942 and read the winner of best song, his own White Christmas.
12) Ben Hur holds the record for winning the most Oscar total of 11.

free catalog★
Europe
From BOSTON round trip from
LONDON 349
PARIS 439
AMSTERDAM 418
BRUSSELS 398
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 or drop by 256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

ARE YOU PREGNANT & IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
Same Day Results
Services that are Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

Welcome Back to DELANO'S
A NIGHT OF FREE
Kamikaze T-Shirts and Frisbees
Free hors d'oeuvres 9:00 til Midnight
Please join us
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26
Positive ID Required 57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

GOING GREAT
GOING GREEK
GO
DELTA
ZETA
CHECK US OUT!
Delta Zeta Sorority - 11 Phillips St
THIS MARCH 25 6pm ΔΖ Spring Party and MARCH 26 6pm Formal Pledge Ceremony
THIS MARCH 27 6pm Actives Roll of Thirteen
AND
THIS APRIL 1 6pm ΔΖ Sports and Social Night
WED APRIL 2 9pm Monday Night
THIS APRIL 3 6pm Chapter Meeting for more information, call Amy - 253-9030 or Kelly - 253-3

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wallace's Store
549-4708

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

WHERE HILLS TURN TO MOUNTAINS
Why conquer hills when you can challenge a mountain. Just over the border is Mount Snow with 12 lifts (1 gondola, 5 triple chairs, 6 double chairs), 57 trails, 1700 feet of vertical and 80% snowmaking.
THE SHORTEST DRIVE TO BIG MOUNTAIN SKIING LOCATED IN EASY TO REACH SOUTHERN VERMONT ON VT. 100
Reasons to spend Easter weekend at Mount Snow: 50 trails are still open, sunrise Easter service at the summit, the Gladiator of the Year bump contest is fun to watch, 2 day/1 night package for $59., chicken bar-b-ques, record 8 ft. base depth, egg hunt for a season pass, the shortest drive to big mountain skiing. Are those enough reasons?
LODGING (802)464 8501
SKI REPORT (802)464 2151
Mount Snow VERMONT

University Placement Service Spring Recruiting Schedule

This list contains RESUME DUE DATES THROUGH THE END OF THE SEMESTER. Resumes for open schedules may be turned in at the Whitmore sign-up desk from 9:00-3:00 Mondays & Tuesdays and at the University Career Center any day for pre-screened schedules. The Whitmore desk will also accept resumes for pre-screened schedules.
THIS WILL BE THE LAST ADVERTISEMENT IN THE COLLEGIAN FOR SPRING 1986 RECRUITING. ADDITIONAL COMPANY VISIT DATES WILL BE ANNOUNCED IN A FLYER AVAILABLE ON APRIL 1 AT THE WHITMORE SIGN UP DESK AND AT THE UNIVERSITY CAREER CENTER.
To use this schedule:
1. Select the companies with which you will request an interview.
2. If pre-screened(P) submit 2 resumes by the due date; resumes may go to the University Career Ctr. or Whitmore Sign-up desk(Mon-Tues 9:00-3:00)
3. If open(O) submit 1 resume on one of the due dates; these resumes MUST GO TO THE WHITMORE SIGN-UP DESK. IF YOU HAND IN MORE THAN ONE RESUME FOR COMPANIES COMING ON THE SAME DAY, YOU MUST CODE THE BACK WITH PRIORITY A,B,C, WITH A AS YOUR MOST IMPORTANT SELECTION
4. Each resume should be stamped with the information needed; stamps are available at the Whitmore sign-up desk and the University Career Center.
5. If a company has several job descriptions, you may have to indicate you preference. Always check the notebooks before handing in resumes.
6. Two weeks before the interview date the final schedule will be posted at the University Career Center, Whitmore sign-up desk and the Campus Ctr. Assistance desk. IT IS YOUR RESPONSIBILITY TO VERIFY YOUR APPOINTMENT TIME. If no list has been posted by 1 week before the interview date, you shoul check daily, since we add completed schedules for pre-screened companies as lists of selections are received from those companies.

Additional information on positions, locations, schedules etc. at the University Career Center and at the Whitmore Sign-up desk.
PLEASE CHECK THE MESSAGE BOARD AND THE SCHEDULES BOARDS AT THE UNIVERSITY CAREER CENTER FOR CURRENT INTERVIEW REQUIREMENTS!! IF YOU MISS AN INTERVIEW BECAUSE YOU DID NOT CHECK THESE SCHEDULES YOU MAY LOSE FUTURE INTERVIEWING PRIVILEGES. ALSO REMEMBER TO PICK UP COMPANY LITERATURE AT THE CAREER CTR.

ATTENTION SENIORS: WHEN YOU HAVE ACCEPTED A FULL TIME POSITION, PLEASE LET US KNOW....HELP US TO HELP YOU!

MAJOR	DEGREE	ORGANIZATION	POSITION(S)	VISA	VISIT DATE	RESUME DUE DATE

Natural Sciences and Math

Apr 4 Mar 24, 25, Apr 1 'O'

Resumes will be accepted until schedule is full.

Chem.	BS	Sterling Winthrop	Organic Chemists	P	Apr 4	Mar 24,25, Apr 1 'O'
CO/BS	BS	Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith	#1. Business Application Programmer Trainee #2. Systems Programmer Trainee	P	Apr 17	Apr 2 'P'
CO/BS	BS	Mass Mutual Life Insurance Co.	Programmer Trainee	P	Apr 17	Apr 2 'P'

Management

Bus	BBA/MBA	Windward Pgt. Co.		P	Apr 3	Mar 24,26
Bus,Pgt	BBA	Clear Water Environments	APPS WILL BE ACCEPTED UNTIL SCHEDULE IS FULL	S	Apr 8	Mar 31 Apr 1 'O'
Bus, Mgt Pote	BBA	A Pgrit Equity	Entry Level Pgt in Apparel Div. must be willing to relocate	F	Apr 9	Mar 24 'P'
Bus, Mgt Mktg,Fin Accto	BBA	Arco Financial Services	Sales, Sales Mgt. Amherst,Sprfld Area	C	Apr 9	Mar 31,April '0'
MIS	BBA	Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith	#1. Business Application Programmer Trainee #2. Systems Programmer Trainee	P	Apr 17	Apr 2 'P'
Bus	BBA	J. C. Penney Catalog Div.	Mgt. Trainee in distribution	P	Apr 24	Apr 4 'P'

Education

Early Child Edu	BA	New England Nannies	Nannie Training	P	Mar 24	Mar 3,4 'O'
Educ K-12	BS/MS	Windsor Public Schools; a variety of teaching assignments exist-please see requirements at the Placement Service		P	Apr 3	Mar 10,11 'O'
Educ	BS/MS	Broward Cty. Schools ;teaching in Fort Lauderdale, Florida		P	Apr 17,18	Mar 31,April 'O'
Ed,Spec Ed	Ba	Simsbury Public Schools		P	Apr 30	Apr 14,15 'O'
Educ.	BS/MS	Hartford Public Schools		C	Apr 17	Mar 31,April '0'
Educ.	BS	J. C. Penney Catalog Div.		P	Apr 24	Apr 4 'O'
Educ	BS	Community Resource Work RESCHEDULED FROM MARCH 7-OPENINGS STILL AVAILABLE-CONTACT RECRUITING OFFICE AT CAREER CTR		P	Mar 26
Educ.	BS	Eckerd Family Youth Alternatives, Inc.		P	Apr 15	Mar 31,April 'O'

Engineering

EE BS Sprague Electric: Product Design Engineering P. Apr. 15. Apr. 1 'P'

Miscellaneous Majors

Food Sci.	BS	Natisco Brands, Inc.		P	Apr 7	Mar 31,April '0'
HRTA	BS	Windward Pgt. Co.		P	Apr 3	Mar 31,April '0'
Econ	BS	Arco Financial Services		P	Apr 9	Mar 31,April '0'
Lib. Arts	BS	K Part Apparel		P	Apr 9	Mar 28 'P'
Polisci, Comclu, Envir. Sci.	BS	Clean Water Action Project		P	Apr 8	Mar 31,April '0'
Psych, Soc, Pt. Rec., Saf. Res.		Eckerd Family Youth Alternatives, Inc.		P	Apr 15	Mar 31,April '0'

Any Major may interview with these companies

Any major with an interest in Programming	BS	Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith		P	Apr 17	Mar 31,April '0'
Any major with Concentration	BS	Mass Mutual Life Insurance Co.	in CO/BS	P	Apr 17	Mar 31,April '0'
Any major	BS	Mass PIRG	Campaign Staff Writers	P	Apr 15	Mar 31,April '0'
Any major	BS	Horace Mann Ins.	Ins. Rep.-Sales & Serv.	P	Apr 9	Mar 31,April '0'
Any major	BS	U.S. Marines		C	Apr 2,3	Mar 31,April '0'
Any major	BS	U.S. Navy Officer Program		C	Apr 2,3	Apr 7,8 '0'

INFORMATION SESSIONS

If the Information Session is held the night before the interview date, attendance is required by students on the interview schedule. When held a few weeks before the interview date, these Information Sessions are usually for all interested students. Unless otherwise noted all Information Sessions are at the University Career Center.

ORGANIZATION	VISIT DATE	INFORMATION SESSION DATE	INFORMATION SESSION TIME
Lord & Taylor	March 27	March 26	7:00pm
Parlex	March 27	March 26	7:00pm
Merrill School of Journalism/Northwestern Univ. CONTACT PLACEMENT OFFICE TO SIGN UP	April 1	April 1
Pace University Graduate School of Pubilsring	April 1	April 1	2:00pm
Graduate Curriculum in Community Planning and Area Development/University of Rhode Island	April 10	April 10	1:00pm

The following companies have cancelled their visits to the University Placement Service.

COMPANY	VISIT DATE
John Harland Co.	March 25, 26
IMC	March 25
Rexham Corporation	April 3
Rite Rite Corporation	April 8
Cornell Univ. Cooperative Extension	April 9
IC Testing Inc.	April 10

BLACK AFFAIRS

Collegian photo by Rob Shelton

Freshman Microbiology major Michel J. Manuel of Providence R.I. returns from spring break to continue the task ahead.

Coretta Scott King blasts Reagan budget

By C.RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Coretta Scott King, wife of the slain civil rights leader, says President Reagan's budget proposals will cause further damage to blacks and other minorities already hit hard by unemployment.

Speaking at a conference commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Employment act of 1946, making "full employment" of all citizens a government goal.

King said that Reagan's budget proposal also gives defense too high a priority at the expense of domestic programs. "Minorities are bearing a disproportionate share of joblessness. The civil rights agenda can never be complete unless economic opportunities are affordable to all persons"she said.

"The right to ride in the front of a bus or to sit at a lunch counter is an illusory right unless one has the money to pay for the bus ride or to pay for the lunch" continued King. She said that the loss of a job " is a soul-piercing event"contributing to many other social problems.

"A society that tolerates official black teenage unemployment role of 40 percent clearly has far to go toward fulfilling the dream of equality" King said.

"In His state of the Union address, President Reagan defined government role as that of creating a ladder of opportunity. Unfortunately his prposed budget would eliminate major rungs on the ladder" she said.

King said that the budget eliminated many social programs while directing too much money to national defense. She called it "a gross misallocation of priorities.". She also said that while 40 years may have seem a long time to keep faith in a law which has been largely unenforced, it should be remembered that it took black Americans more than 95 years to secure the enforcement of the 15th Amendment which gave them the right to vote. "Like the right to vote, the right to a decent job is a vital part of the American dream.It must not be compromised." she added.

Test scores released: minorities show uplift

WASHINGTON (AP) - Education Secretary William J. Bennett gave the states a report card recently on test scores, dropout rates and other measures that he cited as proof America's schools are on the rebound.

He said rising college entrance test scores, and slightly lower school dropout rates, show that "the excellence movement has clearly helped our poor and minority populations."

In releasing the Education Department's third annual chart of state education rankings, Bennett was following a tradition that his predecessor, T.H. Bell, started to the dismay of some state school superintendents.

Most of the data on the chart, including scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and American College Testing Program exam, has been released previously. Bennett acknowledged it is "a consternation-causing" exercise.

"When you have this kind of chart, some people are going to come off looking better than others. It's inevitable," he told a news conference.

But he added, "This is big news...It is essential not to keep these findings a secret, to tell the American people how we are doing."

The chart indicated the District of Columbia, Louisiana and Alabama have the worst dropout rates, while Minnesota, Nebraska and North Dakota have the best graduation rates.

The chart showed improvements in college admission scores in 35 states since 1982.

"The news is good - our school's are improving again, our children are learning more," Bennett said.

He said states with higher test scores also tended to have lower dropout rates. "Is excellence a threat to the poor and minorities? The answer is no," he said.

Bennett said Iowa, New Hampshire and Wisconsin had the best SAT or ACT scores. But he also commended the District of Columbia, South Carolina, Utah, Alabama and Kentucky for registering "the greatest test score improvement since 1982."

He lauded New Hampshire, Vermont, Nebraska and Iowa as states with average expenditures but above-average test scores And he described Illinois, South Dakota California, Delaware, Maine and Virginia as states with large concentrations of poor students and above-average scores.

Criticism of the chart rolled in, as it has in the past two years.

Howard Carroll, a spokesman for the National Education Association, said "Everybody wants to know the score, but this is an incomplete scorecard. Tests are not a true evaluator of achievement." The percentage of seniors taking the SAT or ACT varies widely from state to state, he said.

John Weiss, executive director of Fair Test, a Boston-based group that is critical of standardized tests, said the chart "violates professional guidelines for proper test use and warps school curricula."

Janis Cromer, spokeswoman for the District of Columbia public schools, said, "Everytime I get this report I just go berserk because it says one out of every two kids don't graduate and that's not true." The chart shows a 1984 graduation rate in the nation's capital of only 55 percent. Cromer said many of the students who appear as dropouts actually moved elsewhere, but Bennett aides said they had adjusted the rates to account for such migrations.

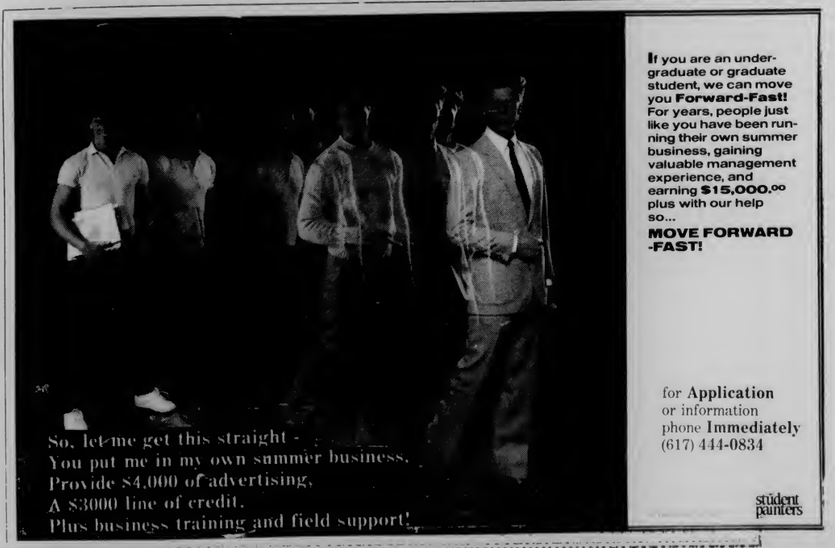
The graduation rate is calculated by dividing the number of graduating seniors by the number of freshmen four years earlier. It does not include those who obtain high school equivalency diplomas.

The national high school graduation rate was 70.9 percent in 1984, up from 69.7 in 1982. The best rates were in Minnesota, 89.3 percent, and Nebraska and North Dakota, both 86.3 percent.

New hampshire, Oregon and Vermont led in SAT scores in the 22 states where more students take that test; Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota set the pace in the 28 states where the ACT is dominant.

At the back of the SAT pack were South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia, while Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and West Virginia pulled up at the rear on ACT scores.

ANNOUNCEMENTS



The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity is sponsoring a Poetry Reading Talent Showcase to be held on Sunday April 20, 1986. Anyone interested in participating should contact Steven Alfred at 253-7766 or David Hooker at 546-45551 or 545-0031.

Angoia rejects S.A. plan

LUANDA-The Marxist government of Angola has rejected a South African plan to start implementing the United Nation's plan for the independence of Namibia, a territory in Southwest Africa that South Africa illegally administers in defiance of several UN resolutions.

The Angolan rejection came after South African President P.W. Botha said that his government will begin following the UN's call for complete South African withdrawal from Namibia if the Angolans would agree to timetable for the withdrawal of an estimated 25,000 Cuban troops from Angola.

The Government of Angola responding through the official news agency Angop, rejected the call for the withdrawal of Cuban troops and insisted that the matter was one that would be worked out between Cuba and Angola.

If you are an undergraduate or graduate student, we can move you Forward-Fast! For years, people just like you have been running their own summer business, gaining valuable management experience, and earning $15,000.00 plus with our help so...
MOVE FORWARD -FAST!
for Application or information phone Immediately (617) 444-0834
student painters

NSE offers academic alternatives

By YOAV SHORR
Collegian Correspondent

For those wishing to try something different in their education, the National Student Exchange offers the opportunity to spend time in another part of the country.

According to Irma McClaurin Allen, director of NES at the University of Massachusetts and assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, the program provides " an opportunity to experience different academic settings and geographical locations within the US."

There are 78 public four-year colleges and universities participating in the consortium. Some of the more popular schools include the University of Hawaii at Manoa, Oregon State University, and California State University at Chico.

Students can participate in an academic program that has a different approach than what is currently available, Allen said.

"For many it's an opportunity to travel," she said. "For others, it becomes a kind of building ground for future plans."

In order to be eligible, applicants must be full-time students with a grade-point average of at least 2.5, and have completed one semester at their home campus before the exchange. Sophomores and juniors get priority, although seniors are encouraged, she said.

The National Student Exchange is located in the office of the College of Arts and Sciences in Machmer Hall. The program is open to any one at the University, although most applications come from outside CAS, such as the school of management.

Each year, between 150 and 250 students take part in the program each fall and spend either the semester or the full school year at the host school, Allen said.

Eighty percent of students involved in the program are in-state residents, "who use it as an opportunity to get away from their home state," she said.

Depending on the institution, students can pay either the in-state tuition of the host school, or the tuition of their own school, she said.

Jack Hulburd, a senior mechanical engineering major who spent last semester at California State University at Chico, said the program was fantastic. "It gave me the opportunity to get a different perspective than at UMass," he said.

"Academically, it was a little more laid back. It gets a little intense here," he said.

"It was the best thing I ever did in my life...It gave me a change." Hulburd said. "I was so impressed. I think I'll go to graduate school there."

World Famous
Frank Santos
Tonight - Tuesday March 25 and Every Tuesday
Ⓡ Rated
Hypnotist Comedian
at CHANGES
dance club

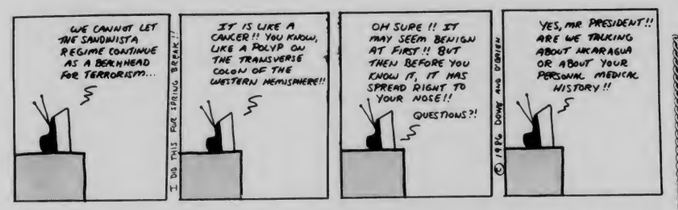
B.T.S. Specials! ON A WIDE VARIETY OF HEALTH and BEAUTY NEEDS

CUTEX POLISH REMOVER 4 oz. 69¢ save 56¢
ultra brite 4.3 oz. 77¢
CEPACOL 12 oz. $1.66 save $1.23
Maybelline EXPERT EYES LINER PENCIL $1.59 save $1.16
Clairol HERBAL ESSENCE SHAMPOO 7 oz. 77¢ save 68¢
LISTERINE LOZENGES 24 count $1.39
PREMESYN PLUS 20 capsules $1.88
Clairol CONDITION 2 hot oil treatments $2.19 save 96¢

STATIONERY SUPPLIES for BACK TO SCHOOL
BIC CLIC SUPER VALUE PACK 2 count 99¢
BIC VALUE PACK 2 Bic Stic Pens plus 1 Erasable Ink Pen 2/99¢
SHARPWRITER PENCILS 3 plus 1 free 59¢
ERASERMATE PEN $1.11
PENTEL STUDY SET contains 1 Roller Ball Pen, 1 Automatic Pencil and 1 High-Lighting Marker $1.33
MEAD LOOSE LEAF BINDER with clipmate, canvas cover $1.88
Archer Kent
DISCOUNT HEALTH & BEAUTY AIDS
191 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-3534
sale prices in effect thru 3/30/86

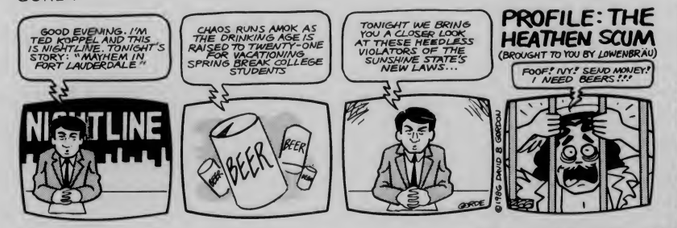
LIVEWIRE
THURSDAYS IN THE COLLEGIAN
BY TOM MIDDLETON

NO MUSS. NO FUSS.
HAPPY SMILE
KAMIKAZE
COCKTAIL
60 PROOF
JUST CHILL AND SERVE
SPECIALTY SPIRITS LTD. PRINCETON, N.J.
HAPPY SMILE KAMIKAZE T-SHIRT
100% cotton with label design on front side
• 1 shirt $6.95 postage paid
• 2 shirts + Happy Smile frisbee $15.00 PPD
Circle Size XL L M S
SEND CHECK OR MONEY ORDER TO
(Allow 2 weeks for delivery)
HAPPY SMILE T SHIRT OFFER
P.O.BOX 2218
Princeton NJ 08540-0071
Please Print
Name
Address
City State Zip



DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE — BY GARY LARSON



FREAKER PATROL — BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES — BY R. MILLER

GORDY — BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY — BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe.

ACROSS
1 Roosevelt's successor
5 Forum wear
9 Small fry's recitation
13 A Guthrie
14 Church dignitaries
15 Season
16 Snead
17 PGA events
18 Genealogist's product
19 Fish that behaves shockingly?
22 Wicked
23 Stage success
24 Trammen of old
26 Shakespeare's Timon, e.g.
31 Expedited
32 Day, in Madrid
33 Alpine call
35 Plied the needle
38 Percussionist's instrument
40 Church sections
42 Vehicle for a star?
43 Choristers' goals
45 Ancient Persians
47 Tamper with 48 Blackthorn
50 Sidewinders
52 Radiator fluid
55 — Skylark Shelley
56 Pose a relative
57 Manna mirrors?
63 Mexi garlands
65 Price of fame
66 Cryptography
67 Pumice source
68 Mod's skirts
69 Seaweed
70 Chalcedony used for cameos
71 Certain test
72 Ankaras

DOWN
1 Chaucer creation
2 Seed covering
3 Dog's tout for spring break?
4 Fencer's cry
5 African antelope
6 Oil org.
7 Kelly et al.
8 Balance sheet items
9 Toward the rear
10 Sharply worded telegram?
11 Net
12 Coasters
14 Chef's measure
20 — Alice Albee
21 Shears
25 Stabilizer, at sea
26 Totals
27 Beginner
28 Gate receipts at Yale?
29 Eliot's Bede
30 Absolutely not!
34 Mother of Castor
36 Moslem prince
37 Follows closely
39 Defoe's Flanders
41 Puts down roots
44 Cleaner
46 Where Stoics gathered
49 Elgar's "— Variations"
51 East Indian sailor
52 Casals's forte
53 City in SW New York
54 Tending toward an end
58 Delhi title
59 Network
60 One and only
61 Advantage
62 Ocean waves
64 Read instrument, for short

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	A	M	A	I	L		E	L	E	E		F	A	I	T	E
E	N	I	G	M	A		N	A	I	D		O	N	U	S
E	A	S	T	E	R		I	S	L	A	N	D		N	E	T
F	R	E	D	E	R	I	C	K		D	E		P	E
E	R	I	N		O	A	R		S	T	E	E	R
			L	O	R	D		M	E	T	T	L	E
A	M	O	I		T	I	C	H	I	S		A	O	W
D	I	E	T	E	R		D	A	E		S	H	A	F	E
A	T	T	E		L	I	N	E	N		C	U	R	I	N	G
M	E	R	I	N		F	O	R	M	A
		A	G	N	A		E	G	O		A	G	A	S
R	I	C	H	A	R	D		D	O	D	G	E	R	S
B	U	N	K		E	L	A	S		E	N	A	T	E
E	S	C	H		E	N	T	O		N	A	S	E	R
D	E	A	D		S	T	R	E	E	N		T	E	E	L	E

Menu

LUNCH

Roast Beef Grinder

Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

BASICS LUNCH

Garden Sandwich

Fettuccine with Sprouts

DINNER

Roast Pork/Gravy, Applesauce

American Chop Suey

BASICS DINNER

Tofu Nut Loaf/ Light Mushroom Sauce

Greek Style Skillet

Weather

Today: Partly sunny, highs in the mid 50s. Tonight: Cloudy and windy, lows in the mid 30s. Tomorrow: Mild, high of 65

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor.....Lesley Clark
Copy Editor.....Sheryl Jean
Layout Technician.....Thomas W. Middleton
Photo Technician.....Rob Skeleton
Production Supervisor.....Mark Parker
Production: Matthew Laurence, Nancy Klingener, Bill Wenzel, Adam Lavine

This Wednesday is especially for you!!!

University of Massachusetts
Amherst

This Wednesday, March 26 from 4-6 pm dine in the casual elegance of Plumbley's for just

$5.95

- Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
- Sliced London Broil
- Tempura Fried Filet of Sole

All entrees complete with salad, potatoe, hot bread & butter.

Just show your UMass I.D. and enjoy

Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

STUDENT TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

The spring edition of the Student Telephone Directory will be distributed by campus mail to any on-campus student who was not enrolled in the Fall Semester 1986. Any other student who would like to have a copy should please go to 227 Whitmore (Dean of Students Office). The only changes from the Fall edition are in the names and addresses section. Distribution will begin on Tuesday, March 25.

TIPS

IDB
545-1555

TIPS
545-1540

A service of The Dean of Students Office

WHEN IT COMES TO PRICE WE PLAY HARDBALL

Saucony · PONY · NIKE · CONVERSE · Reebok

Winner's Circle is a tough competitor. We like to win. If you do too, this sale is for you. Winner's Circle has what it takes for us both to win: the best footwear at the best prices. At Winner's Circle you always come out ahead.

BUY ONE PAIR OF FOOTWEAR* AT $25 OR MORE, TAKE $10 OFF SECOND PAIR.

*sale items excluded

WINNERS CIRCLE
You always come out ahead
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley

REMINDER

Summer College Work Study Applications are available in the STUDENT EMPLOYMENT OFFICE
239A WHITMORE

Deadline:
Friday March 28
You must have a 1986 - 87 FAF on file

★ track

continued from page 16

curate test because they demonstrate a team's depth. We have depth in the middle and long distance races but we'll be short of sprinters and throwers in the spring."

And both teams should look forward to a decent spring season in spite of some major obstacles.

"There are three major limitations," said O'Brien. "The bigger schools have indoor facilities, large coaching staffs and scholarships. We don't have any of those and that definitely limits us. It's a question of money. The indoor and outdoor seasons make track a two-pronged sport and we just finished our better half.

"But I think we'll be competitive outdoors," continued O'Brien. "We're light in terms of numbers, though, so we won't be storming anyone."

"I think we'll maintain second place (to Southern Connecticut) in the conference."

Banda predicts that his team will do well also despite a shortage of members.

"We will be looking for the improvement that the girls will show with experience," said Banda.

"We're looking for positive results and I think we should have a good-caliber season. I feel we'll be one of the top teams in New England in the spring."

UM gymnasts honored

The University of Massachusetts women's gymnastics team closed out their 1986 season with a fifth place finish at the Atlantic 10 Championships last weekend at the University of Rhode Island.

A fifth place finish for the Minutewomen was expected, as they were seeded fifth going in. What wasn't expected was the fantastic job done by several members of the team which earned them spots on the 1986 Atlantic 10 all-conference team.

Honers were achieved by tri-captains Tricia Harrity on balance beam, Chris Cloutier on floor exercise, and Sue Allen on the uneven bars and all-around. Other all-conference team members will be Sue Carney on the bars, and freshman Laurie Kaufmnan on vaulting.

Sue Kaufman also ended her UMass career being named Atlantic 10 1986 Outstanding senior along with Penn State's Pam Loree.

—STUART GOTTLIEB

STOP STOP bad habits before they start!

You may not have to STOP drinking to improve your health. The Student Opportunity Program will be offering an educational program aimed at helping students change bad habits and find healthy ways to use alcohol. The program will start after Spring break. Contact John Novo at UHS, 545-2671 Ext. 186 for more information. An interview is required before registration.

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!

Styles by Deborah

Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

TUESDAY
6-9 am
Monday through Friday, 11-4
9 am NEWS
9-12
Tuesday's Just as Bad, Blues with Lisa
12 NEWS
12-3 Radioactivity with Hue
3-6 Scotty Dread with Reggae
5 pm NEWS
6 Women's Media Project
7-10 Hell's Quarry, American Rock
9 pm NEWS
10-2 Non-toxic Radio
2-6 Bedspins
WMUA 91.1

WHY KEG BEER TASTES BETTER THAN COOKED BEER.

Ask most beer drinkers, and they'll likely agree: nothing tastes better than beer from a keg.

Ever since the days of Frederic Miller's original Plank Road Brewery, keg beer has always been fresher. That's because it isn't cooked to preserve it like most bottled and canned beers.

Well, now there's a beer that delivers that same fresh draft taste in a bottle. A beer specially cold-filtered instead of cooked, so it tastes like it was drawn straight from the keg.

Plank Road Original Draught.
Keg beer in a bottle.

PLANK ROAD
Original Draught ™

©1985 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon. Thurs. 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

"Careers in Industrial Organizational Psychology" a free colloq given by Dr. J. Myron Johnson and sponsored by CUSP and Psi-Chi, will be held Tues. March 25 at 7 pm in Tobin 304. Refreshments will be served.

Distinguished Visitors Program presents Dith Pran. Tonite 8:00 pm Student Union Ballroom. Simulcast in Commonwealth Room and Cape Cod Lounge.

Cheerleading Tryouts! All university men and women invited to attend. Begin 3/31. Watch for Collegian advertisement

AUTO FOR SALE

4-sale 1973 Pontiac Venture runs great new exhaust and brakes $800 call 253-5523

76 Plymouth Volare 4 dr. body very good condition, many miles but very reliable AM/FM $1200 or BO 256-6281

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext 5831-A

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentels 253-7436

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock, Kool party toonz at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2133 for an escort ANYTIME

FOUND

Found brown and white knit shoulder bag no ID call 253-9687 found near Hasbrouck

A men's gold watch, near Brittany Manor, on Sunday, March 2. Call and identify 665-8460

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Part-time merchandisers 25 hours a week We seek mature-minded persons to service our book department keeping it attractive and up-to-date Opening at STOP & SHOP HADLEY, MASS knowledge of and interest in books a definite plus. Dependable car essential. Must be available to work a flexible weekday schedule that will involve morning to afternoon shifts. Please call 1-800-552-9904 Barnes & Noble Booksstores, Inc. equal opportunity employer M/F

HEY STEFAN FOX

Alias Bobby & Tam - Have a happy and smooth 20th birthday! Lots of love, C & J for Julie

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Invites all University Women to Rush
Tues 3/25 5:15-6:15 Dinner
or 6:15-7:15 Wine & Cheese
Wed 3/26 5:15-6:15 Dinner
Thurs 3/27 6-7 Nachos
come and see what sorority life can do for you!!
For more info call: 256-6874

LOST

Lost blue denim Code Bleu jacket keys in pocket lost last Thurs at Lamda Chi reward pls call 546-1180

MONEY AND EXPERIENCE?

Five opportunities available for students of all majors Must work well with people Earn $375/week this summer call 254-4233

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyremds during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5:0960

Faran - you loose, but you take a good picture

Quick Kids - terrorists are approaching! Save Mom!

Mary Jane, I know how much you like opals and thought you might like to know there is a 3 opal and diamond pendant for $80 and another opal and diamond pendant for $25 and much more at Golden Opportunity, 13 Pleasant St., Amherst at Lodestone. What do you think? Love Bruno

PREPARE NOW FOR EMPLOYMENT

Resumes, typing, word processing 665-3601

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, thases, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced Nancy 584-7924

FOR RENT

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2244 or 665-3186

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric six string excellent condition $90 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6480

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tapa Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

SOFTBALL COACH

Softball Batting/Fielding Coach (or player/coach) needed for local adult co-ed team April-August. Modest compensation for coaching. Leave message on tape at 545-1960 after 5:00 pm

TO SUBLET

Large 1 bdr apt on bus line, quiet, w/pool and AC. To take over June 1st for summer; option for fall $395/mo 665-8477

TO SUBLET

Large 1 bdr apt on bus line, quiet, w/pool and AC. To take over June 1st for summer; option for fall $395/mo 665-8477

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent - will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease of house or apartment, 2-3+ bedrooms, pref. close to campus. Call 546-1088 or 546-9189

SPORTS

Baseball's ready despite record

Minutemen facing critical A-10 series

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Statistically anyway, it was a nightmare.

The University of Massachusetts baseball team, during its nine games in Florida over the break, hit .246, committed 27 errors, allowed close to seven runs-per-game, scored only four runs-per-game itself, struck out just over seven times a game and went 1-8.

However, the important thing to remember is that the trip just doesn't matter.

As awful as the Minutemen were, they can erase the bad taste left in their mouths this weekend at Temple with a three-game series against the traditionally-tough Owls.

Barring an almost-impossible-to-obtain at-large bid to the NCAA tourney, UMass' only way to qualify for post-season play is through the Atlantic 10. The conference winner automatically gets a bid, so UM's must start its league schedule this weekend with at least two wins in the three-game series.

"It's a critical series without a doubt. It almost is a must to do well," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist. "We need two wins. I'm optimistic about this team, we'll be tough."

Losing to Iowa 11-6 in its last game on the trip, UMass allowed only six hits, but was victimized by four errors. The Minutemen were never able to put a complete game together, when they hit, the pitching was shelled. When the pitching was there, the bats were silent. Through it all, the defense was a leather sieve.

"We'll obviously concentrate on defense in our practices this week," said Bergquist. "We didn't have any really bad games, we just bad innings. It was terrible."

Bergquist was quick to place the blame on UMass' lack of indoor baseball facilities. Since the Cage was renovated and its dirt floor covered, the Minutemen didn't have a place inside where they could field a ground ball and make good throw top first, never mind fly balls or pop-ups.

"Most of the schools we played have field houses where they can get some action. We have nothing. Conditions were better 50 years ago when the Cage was in its original state," said the coach.

Conditions aside, unless UMass begins to execute the basic little-league fundamentals, the season will be a long one. More then one oppenent scored in Florida because of mental mistakes: throwing the ball away, throwing to ther wrong base, etc.

"I know our kids can field, we just haven't," said Bergquist. "I don't have any excuses, Steve Allen has played shortstop his whole life, Darrin O'Connor has been a good second baseman, they both made some mistakes. But I'm still excited about this team. We're far from giving up."

Offensively, UMass was a feeble .246 at the plate and had only 18 extra-base hits in 289 at-bats. With the exception of left fielder Jay Zerner (.400), third baseman Steve Kern (.367) and catcher Sean Flint (.304), no Minuteman hit over .294.

Zerner played well, hitting in six straight games while driving in five runs. Kern, a freshman from Fall River, played both first and third as well as designated hitter and drove in five runs. Flint, according to Bergquist, was as good a catcher as he saw in Florida.

Sports Information Photo

Junior outfielder Jay Zerner is leading UMass with a .400 batting average through nine games.

On the mound, junior Steve Ahern led the team in earned run average at 1.64. The southpaw allowed only nine hits over 11 innings and but six runs, two earned.

He still must work on his control however, as he led the team in walks with 10.

Staff ace Bob Kostro, a senior co-captain, was involved in no decisions and posted a 3.65 ERA. He struck out nine and walked five in 12 innings of work.

Freshman Chris Slattery hurled seven innings, allowing nine hits. Senior Jon Martin picked up the only win, in relief. He had an ERA of 4.35 over 10 innings. As a staff, UMass had a decent (compared to other springtrips) ERA of 5.80 and a solid strikeout-to-walk ratio of 49-to-48.

The Minutemen have been staggered by a series of injuries, most being of the bumps and bruises type, but two being potentially troublesome.

Starting second baseman Rob Holiday suffered a pulled hamstring in his first game in the Sunshine State, and the expected starter saw little action after. The sure-handed junior will probably not be ready for this weekend's action and his fielding ability will be missed.

Freshman righthander Dave Telgheder, potentially the second starter on the staff, pitched to only batter before tearing abdominal muscles.

"That injury has me worried," said Bergquist. "Dave showed much potential and we need him the rest of the way."

So, outside of the MTV-sponsored bikini contest at Daytona Beach, the spring trip was a forgettable one for the Minutemen. With a good series this weekend against Temple however, the season will suddenly seem brand new.

Six lacrosse games are set for NESN

The University of Massachusetts lacrosse team and Magilla are now the two Gorillas on television.

Wide World of Sports it isn't, but UMass is scheduled to have six of their games this season on NESN, a New England cable TV sports network.

Starting with the first home game of the season, April 5th against New Hampshire, the Gorillas will be a major part of a 12-game lacrosse package done by the Eastern Mass-based cable network headed by ex-Red Sox official John Claiborne.

Also, the game at Brown on April 9, the home game against Yale on April 19, at home against Harvard on April 23 and the big matchup against Army on April 26 will be televised.

Finally, the Gorillas' trip to the Carrier Dome on May 9 to face rival Syracuse will round out the schedule.

"This means a little more work for us, but it's worth it. It's good exposure for the team and the school," said Howard M. Davis, director of sports information at UMass.

The Gorillas are 1-0 this season, beating Air Force, 13-7. They face Delaware on the road this Saturday at 2 p.m.

In other lax news, sophomore midfielder Brad Carr will be out for the season with a pair of broken feet suffered just before the trip to Colorado over spring break. He scored one goal in limited action last season.

—PETER ABRAHAM

UM track teams making the best of it

O'Brien , Banda looking forward to spring

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Staff

Just because the men's and women's track teams are not first at the University of Massachusetts in terms of spectator and financial support, it has not stopped either team from bringing recognition and credibility to the track program at UMass.

Both teams had successful indoorl seasons and participated in the Eastern championships three weeks ago, although neither placed. The women's team, coached by Kalekeni Banda, competed in the ECAC's at Yale while the Ken O'Brien coached men's team travelled to the IC4A's at Princeton.

"Overall, we had a successful season," said Banda, "Which was kind of a surprise because we have such a young team. The freshmen worked really hard."

Indeed, it was the younger members of the women's team that carried most of the load.

Pam Hughes, a freshman, set a school record with a 19-1 3/4 leap in the long jump, eclipsing Mickey Callahan's old mark by over a foot. Her teammates, twins Joyce and Kim Baten, also impressed Banda.

"The Batens were a surprise," said Banda. "But they performed very well and I'm sure they'll improve even more as they gain experience."

Julie Muccini also shattered a school record with a triple jump of 35-10 while Barbara Cullinan took top honors in New England in the 600 yard race.

Hughes also ran the 55-meter dash in 7.17, which was the fastest in New England this year. Kayla Morrison and Joyce Baten also placed in the top seven in that event.

Wendy Marshall, who Banda feels is the most improved freshman, placed third in New England in the 200 with a 26.07. Sophomore Kari Fleischmann placed fifth in New England in the same event.

"Kari is one of our most improved athletes," said Banda. "She is looking better in both the dash and the long jump."

In the 400, Morrison and Chris Bates placed fourth and fifth in New England, respectively.

"The lack of experience shows at times," Banda said. "One meet they'll run brilliant and the next day they'll show that they are still young. But they'll get better as they mature."

As for the mens' team, they finished second in the conference with a 3-2 record, which didn't surprise O'Brien all that much.

"I was very pleased with our performance," said O'Brien. "But we kind of anticipated it. We finished second in the conference last year and got most of the guys back."

In contrast to the women's team, the veterans got the job done for the men's squad.

Senior captain John Panaccione finished third in New England in the 5,000, but O'Brien says his contribution goes far beyond that.

"John puts points on the board," said O'Brien, "And that will definitely be missed. But what we'll miss the most is his role as a stabilizer. He's really good at showing the younger guys the ropes."

Peter Leary is another senior who will be missed for more than his running.

Leary left track after his freshman year to play rugby but broke his neck while playing in his sophomore year and spent six months in a cast. He has since made a comeback in track, though, and has qualified for the Easterns.

"Peter is an inspiration", said O'Brien. "He sets a good example for the whole team."

Mark Themea specializes in the 800 and O'Brien calls him the teams "most valuable performer".

Bill Stewart and Steve Tolley, both sophomores, finished second and third in the conference as well as New England, respectively.

Miler Paul Stanislawzyk ran a 4:06, the eighth-fastest time in the east.

"We also took second in the two-mile relay and the distance relay as well as a third in the mile relay in the New Englands indoors this year," said O'Brien. "I think the relays are an ac-

continued on page 15

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST-113 CAMPUS CENTER-545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 36

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 26, 1986

INSIDE

•Emergency arms for Honduras. Page 2.
•Student assaulted at Haigis Mall. Page 3.
•William Spain on drug-testing. Page 5.

Greek area is probing hazing report

By JEFFRY BARTASH
and CRAIG SANDLER
Collegian Staff

The Office of Greek Affairs is investigating an incident involving four members of a University of Massachusetts fraternity to determine if the incident violated a new state law on hazing.

UMass police said that at 3:35 p.m. Monday they discovered three members of Phi Sigma Kappa who had tied up another member with ropes at Haigis Mall. They were warned by police that hazing is illegal and the matter was turned over to Greek Affairs.

Robert White, director of the office, said he had met with the president of the fraternity and that the hazing issue was still unclear.

"We do know it has nothing to do with the formal activity of the chapter," White said. "They have a meeting tonight and they'll report back to me tomorrow morning."

White said the fraternity would do its own investigation into who was involved and what happened. The Office of Greek Affairs will then turn its findings over to the UMass police.

The law, which took effect in February, mandates a $1,000 fine, 100 days in jail or both for anyone convicted of "a conduct or method of initiation ... which willfully or recklessly endangers the physical or mental health of any student or other person."

"We have a fine line here. What someone could have interpreted as horseplay could in fact today be interpreted as hazing under the definition of the new law," White said.

Bob Griffin, a Greek Area official and member of Lambda Chi Alpha, said, "It would be pretty goddamn stupid to haze in the middle of Haigis Mall, in the middle of the afternoon."

A country still at war

Dith Pran describes the devastation of Cambodia

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Although the Cambodian situation has improved the country is still at war because the people do not want to be ruled by Communist Vietnam or the Khmer Rouge, they want to be independent, said a Cambodian Pulitzer Prize winning photographer.

"I still don't understand why the holocaust still happens again and again, seventy years ago it happened to Armenian people and 25 years later it happened to the Jewish people. The world thought it would not happen again but it did happen to the Cambodian people," said Dith Pran, a photographer for the New York Times, who spent four years in a work camp controlled by the Khmer Rouge, from 1972 until his escape in 1975.

During this time the Khmer Rouge, a fanatical Communist faction in Cambodia, killed two to three million people or half of the population of the country, he said.

"I still really don't understand why they killed all the people," he said.

Before the Vietnam war, Cambodia was peaceful and neutral. They were not prepared for any type of war and the North Vietnamese army congregated on the Cambodia-Vietnam border, eventually pushing their way into Cambodia. The Khmer Rouge, the only armed, organized group, stepped forward to take over.

The Khmer Rouge existed before the Vietnam war but "they could not recruit the troops because the Cambodian people did not believe in their ideals, they did not believe in killing," Pran said.

Pran said the award-winning movie, The Killing Fields, which was based on his experiences in Cambodia during the Communist takeover of the Khmer Rouge, is very realistic.

"The movie only shows one part of the Cambodian suffering, in reality, it is 10 times worse," he said.

When the Khmer Rouge took over, people were moved from the cities to work camps in the countryside. The Communist soldiers lived in the cities to maintain control.

The people worked from 12 to 16 hours a day, seven days a week and were given very little food. The families were separated and people lived in little huts. The children were not given any education and everybody who ate had to work, including the elderly, handicapped and children, Pran said.

The teachers, intellectuals and the upperclass were all killed, he said.

"The only way I kept alive was to keep my mouth shut and play stupid," he said.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Dith Pran: "I still really don't understand why they (the Khmer Rouge) killed all the people."

Coexistence with Soviets discussed

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

The possibilities for peaceful coexistence with the Soviet Union were explored in a panel discussion last night between two experts with markedly different opinions.

Lt. Col. Simon Worden, special assistant to Gen. Abrahamson, the director of the Strategic Defense Iniative and Marvin Kalkstein, a nuclear chemist and Five-College associate, debated the role of the Strategic Defense Iniative, a controversial space-based missile defense system, in achieving political stability.

Worden, who was invited by the University of Massachusetts Republican Club, said the purpose of SDI is "to establish an new deterrence through arms control.

"The best defense is one that stops the other guy from attacking," he said. "The defense system doesn't have to be perfect, it just has to be good enough to deter the other guy."

Kalkstein, who spoke at the request of the University Peacemakers, said SDI is not the answer to political stability.

"If you want to reduce vulnerability you've got to get away from the use of nuclear weapons," he said. "Forty years of relying on technology has gotten us into this unstable environment. If you want to reduce the risk you'll get it quicker by sitting down and talking meaningfully to the Soviets."

Worden argued that the current strategic relationship with the Soviet Union is not leading toward stability.

"As long as both sides maintain a philosophy based on deterrence, what we must seek is not better relations, but more stable ones," he said.

"SDI's objective is to sit with the Soviets and use technology to reduce offensive weapons," Worden said.

Kalkstein said SDI is a "technological fix which does not offer much promise.

"There is no way you can anticipate all the contingencies," he said. "You can only anticipate the ones you think of."

"What's right and what's wrong often depends on your political views," Worden said. "But if you were president of the United States and had just learned the Soviets had launched an attack, what would you want to do?"

About 15 people attended the discussion in Thompson Hall.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Lt. Col. Simon Worden (left) and nuclear chemist Marvin Kalkstein discuss the role of the US Strategic Defense Initiative.

UMass treatment of grievance is challenged

Second in a series.

By ILANA LEVENSON
Collegian Staff

The efficacy of the University of Massachusetts' handling of sexual harassment complaints has been questioned by a former UMass employee, who says officials did not take her grievances seriously and took too long to respond to them.

University administrators who investigated the ex-employee's case, however, defend their actions and deny the validity of her harassment accusations. In interviews, the head of the Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel, which hears complaints if they are not settled informally, dismissed some of the woman's claims as "false" and "garbage."

A CLOSER LOOK
SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Jane (not her real name) is a former UMass janitor, now unemployed and seeking workman's compensation, who says she suffered a series of harassment incidents between 1980 and 1985.

Ron Sinacore, chairman of the hearing panel and acting head of the Affirmative Action Office, investigated the incidents and concluded Jane's problems were "interpersonal" and that no sexual harassment or discrimination took place. He said she had been transferred 12 times since 1982 and always seemed to get along poorly with co-workers.

continued on page 3

F Y I

The star of the nation's most popular television program, Bill Cosby, will return to his alma mater next week to receive an honorary fine arts doctorate. Cosby and five others will receive honorary degrees in a special convocation at 11 a.m. next Wednesday in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, to celebrate the "accomplishments and contributions of American artists."

The event is free and open to the public but tickets are required for admission. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center box office.

A massive volunteer project to restore the Tower Library will be unveiled tomorrow. The project, which has been under wraps for several months, will be revealed at an 11 a.m. reception and press conference in Memorial Hall with Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

Navy continues attack on Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States yesterday continued to attack Libyan naval and land-based missile forces in retaliation for Libya's firing on US warplanes over the disputed Gulf of Sidra, administration officials said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said missile-firing jets from the US 6th Fleet had struck at least four Libyan patrol boats over the last two days, sinking two, disabling another and damaging a fourth that returned to port. About 150 crewmen were believed aboard the Libyan vessels.

The spokesman said there were no reported US casualties or damage.

Speakes also said the United States struck again at a Soviet-built Libyan missile site at Sirte that had been reported knocked out in the initial retaliatory strike on Monday.

The first strike came after six anti-aircraft missiles were fired at - but missed - US warplanes crossing Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's "line of death" at the mouth of the Gulf of Sidra.

Early yesterday the Pentagon reported that the renewed US attacks on at least two patrol boats and the missile site came after Libya fired six more missiles at carrier-based warplanes operating over the gulf.

But Speakes later said the United States could confirm only six missiles had been fired in all and suggested the new reports may have duplicated those announced earlier.

Asked if he was saying that the only confirmed firing following Monday's announcement of conflict had come from US forces, Speakes said, "That's correct."

He added that although the site's radar was knocked out by radar-chasing missiles on Monday, the Libyans probably had multiple radars used to aim their missiles from the site because the fleet detected renewed radar signals during the night before ordering a renewed attack.

"An hour ago, it was down and not operating," the spokesman said about 10:30 a.m. EST. "It had been up and down through the night ... so we do know it was damaged; we do not know whether it's inoperative or can be made operational. We do not have any casualty reports."

Speakes refused to say when the US "freedom-of-navigation exercise" to test Khadafy's claim that the gulf is Libyan territory would end, although he pointed out the notice issued to mariners and aircraft advising them of the operation would expire on Sunday.

Defence Department sources, meantime, said the United States might conclude the maneuvers off the Libyan coast before the end of the week.

US gives Honduras $20M in arms; Nicaragua denies incursion

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, responding to what Honduras called a large-scale Nicaraguan incursion into its territory, provided Honduras with $20 million worth of military equipment yesterday, the White House announced.

"The use of the presidential authority responds to an unforeseen emergency which exists in Honduras," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters.

Speakes said key members of Congress were notified in advance of the president's action, as required by law. The emergency action is not subject to congressional approval or disapproval, he said.

First word of the president's action came from Mark Helmke, a spokesman for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who said Reagan transferred the $20 million from a Pentagon contingency fund in order to turn over US equipment already inside Honduras to the Honduran military.

He said the president is allowed to request and transfer the money after notifying Congress, which he did a 8:30 a.m.

"The money could already be delivered as we speak," Helmke said, adding that no further action by Congress is required.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said the Nicaraguans had "invaded" Honduras.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called the Nicaraguan incursion "an aggression by a nation into another nation."

"I've never met him, but I think it was a tremendous blunder on the part of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega," O'Neill said. "He's a bumbling, incompetent Marxist-Leninite, Communist."

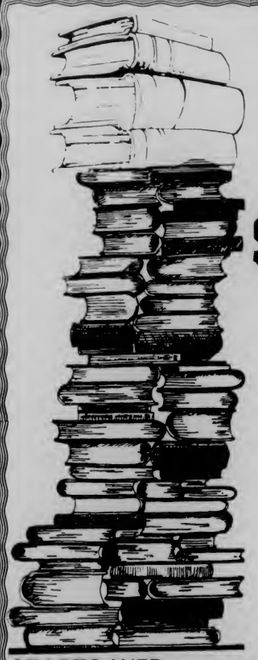
And a spokesman for the embassy of Honduras in Washington read a statement saying: "The government of Honduras confirms the presence of Sandinista troops in the department of Olacho. The National Security Council is meeting now to study the situation.

"At the same time we are sending a diplomatic request to Nicaragua demanding the immediate withdrawal of the Sandinista troops in order to avoid a confrontation that could endanger the peace of the two countries."

TIME OUT

The Ref says the chow at Time Out is simply wonderful!!

You need no I.D. to eat.



I thought he said it was quite tasty?

THE WARRIORS

Come out to Play at UMASS

Wednesday, March 26
Campus Center Auditorium

5 pm, 7 pm, 9 pm: $1.00
11 pm: $1.50

BOOK SALE

25% SAVINGS OFF of Regular Price

hundreds to choose from

Hardcover and Paperbacks

3 DAYS ONLY

Located on Sale Tables on the Concourse

STARTS WED March 26, 9:30-4;30 Wed-Fri

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Professors to debate SDI research at UMass

Two University of Massachusetts faculty members today will debate whether UMass should take part in research for President Reagan's space-based weapons initiative.

The forum, titled, "Should SDI Research Be Performed at the University of Massachusetts?" takes place at 4 p.m. today in Campus Center room 174.

SDI stands for strategic defense initiative, the space-based antimissile system first proposed by President Reagan in 1983. Jerome King, professor of political science, will argue against SDI research here, and Michael Kreisler, professor of physics, will argue for it, according to Grant Ingle of the Office of Human Relations, the forum's sponsor.

Peter J. Gollon, a New York physicist, stated in the January Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists that SDI work is expanding rapidly, that classified SDI research will result in the barring of foreign students from more and more research and will displace "open, and usually higher quality basic research.

"Even projects that do not start out as classified may become classified if their results progress beyond a certain threshold or if previous perceptions of the need for classification change," he wrote, adding: "We should be as concerned about the rights to continued employment ... of those who refuse for reasons of conscience to be transferred from non-military to military work, as we are about the rights of scientists in totalitarian societies."

A 1972 Board of Trustees directive bars from UMass any classified work, work that cannot be published for any reason, or work that requires outside approval for publication.

According to an article in the March Bulletin, Defense Department funding of work on campuses increased 104 percent between 1980 and 1985, and the Pentagon now accounts for about 15 percent of all federal funds to universities.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarias

SUNNY STUDIES - Katie, a 4-year-old from Grass Roots day care studies the alphabet in the afternoon sunshine while waiting for the bus at Haigus Mall, yesterday afternoon.

Student wounded in assault

An 18-year-old female student was assaulted and suffered a "puncture wound" Monday night "around the vicinity of the Fine Arts Center," University of Massachusetts police said.

The woman went to the University Health Services with a puncture wound on the side of her abdomen at 8:40 p.m. She was taken to the Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton where she was operated on later on that night, police said.

"She feels that someone struck her from behind but she is not able to give a discription (of her assailant)," said Gerald O'Neil the director of Public Safety at UMass.

The police do not know what type of weapon was used in the assault, O'Neil said.

In other police reports:

•A 13-year-old girl was reported missing at 10 p.m. Monday from University Apartments. The girl is white, about five feet four inches tall, has brown hair and was last seen wearing a purple shirt and pink pants. She failed to return home from school Monday afternoon and was last seen with a female friend, police said.

-JEFFRY BARTASH

Coalition wants to save Lord Jeff

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

Local community leaders met yesterday to form a coalition to discuss the fate of the Lord Jeffery Inn and the 70 workers who lost jobs when the inn closed Jan. 1.

The Coalition to Save the Lord Jeff held a press conference in front of the inn to announce the goals of the group. "We are concerned about the future of the inn and the employees who held jobs there," said Alan Root, co-chair of the Amherst Gray Panthers, a senior citizens group, and a member of the coalition.

In a statement read by Root, the group called on Amherst College, which owns 75 percent of the inn, to maintain the building as an inn, complete its study of what to do with the building , and assure the former employees that any new operator selected by the college will rehire them.

"It is quite likely that the Town Meeting will take action to encourage Amherst College to reopen it as an inn," Root said. He noted that the inn is fully taxable now, but if it were converted to dormitories or faculty housing, the town would lose some tax revenue which other taxpayers would have make up.

Bill BuSteed, a former employee and union representative, said that if the inn reopens he would like to see Local 217 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders Union continue to represent the workers there, but he said he would take his job back even if it was non-union.

"We don't intend to roll over and die, though," BuSteed said, adding that if rehired, the employees would try to insure union representation.

Root said he was unsure of the current status of the inn because "the trustees [of Amherst College] have been very closed-mouthed."

"That's one of the things the coalition will be exploring: to engage in a dialogue and make contact with the college," said Connie Holt, a representative from Local 217.

The inn closed Jan. 1 after months of negotiations bet ween the union and management failed to yield a new contract. Employees began picketing the inn last Oct. 24, when the previous contract expired.

Other members of the coalition present at th 10 a.m. press conference included Rev. Joseph Quigley of the Newman Center at the University of Massachusetts, Gerry Scoppettuolo of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy, Dani Burgess, co-president of the UMass Student Government Association, and Rev. Arnold Kenseth of South Congregational Church.

Duffey will address SGA meeting tonight

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey will address tonight's Undergraduate Student Senate meeting on the topic, "The Future of Liberal Arts at UMass."

The senate is also expected to vote whether to approve the election results of the 1986 Student Government Association elections, and to consider two controversial motions -- one opposing aid to anti-Sandinista guerrillas and one supporting right-wing victors of the Illinois Democratic primary.

Duffey is slated to speak at 7:30 p.m. in room 101 of the Campus Center on the growing emphasis at UMass of technical curricula over liberal arts. He will answer five questions submitted last week by the senate. The meeting is open to the public.

The senate is expected to vote on the results of the 1986 SGA elections for residential committees and the Campus Center Board of Governors, as well as for the student trustee and campus president.

★ Former employee, University at odds on harassment

continued from page 1

JoAnne DeLong, a Hadley attorney who did not represent Jane for her harassment grievances but is now assisting her in seeking compensation, said she thought UMass' policy was not effective in this case.

"They may take certain things very seriously, but in this setting they are ineffective. A lot of it stems from the fact that she [Jane] is a blue-collar worker in a male-dominated environment," DeLong said.

In an interview, Jane spoke of a "network" of men trying to "terrorize" her.

•When she complained about having to work the night shift alone in a building in May 1982, her supervisor said to her, "None of my employees have ever been raped," and laughed, she said.

•Jane said a male janitor would sing an offensive verse to her daily after work, as she walked to clock out.

"I would try to be the last one out so he wouldn't do it to me. Every person knew what he was doing was upsetting me ... He liked to put a woman down," she said.

Sinacore said of the incident: "That's false. That's garbage. That's a lie. I spoke to seven people and it was said once. It was a one-time occurrence.

"This is not and never has been an issue of sexual harassment. I don't believe there was any sexual discrimination in this case.

"You have to look at the intent, the impact of the statements [made by Jane's co-workers]," Sinacore said, saying they were not violations of either University policy or anti-discrimination laws.

However, Grant Ingle of the UMass Office of Human Relations said "sexual harassment" should be construed to include anything that presents "a barrier to women integrating into areas that are traditionally male," including catcalls or offensive language.

Ingle said he interprets broadly the University's official definition of sexual harassment as "unwelcomed sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature."

•Jane claimed that when she spoke to Phyllis White of the Ombuds Office about the incidents, White said, "You should expect to be harassed if you are going to be a blue-collar worker. Maybe you should go back to being a secretary." Jane worked as a secretary at UMass from 1978 to 1980.

No 'typical' harassment

Types of sexual harassment occurring within the University cannot be stereotyped, according to Grant Ingle of the Office of Human Relations.

"The classic image of the lecherous professor and the innocent undergraduate female is not a typical case," Ingle said.

He said he believes sexual harassment is more prevalent among graduate students because they are much more dependent on interaction with faculty members, and there is an "implied trust" between graduate students and professors.

"As you progress through the institution, it [sexual harassment] gets worse, not better," Ingle said. However, he said there has not been any documentation at UMass to determine the amount of sexual harassment on the graduate student level.

Ingle said sexual harassment does not only refer to male professors and female students, it can also occur between men and men and women and women at all levels of an institution.

-LANA LEVENSON

White, reached by telephone this week, declined to comment.

•In February 1985, Shara Denson of the Affirmative Action Office took Jane's case. Soon after, Denson became ill and was out of work for five weeks, but Jane said she was not informed of this and that Sinacore did not receive her case until much later.

The investigation of a case usually takes a "solid two months if not closer to three," Sinacore said. Jane did not receive a response for nine months, until last December.

A cover letter from Sinacore to the complaintant, apologizing "for the lateness of this response," was dated Nov. 21, 1985.

In the same package, provided to the Collegian by DeLong, Sinacore's report on the case, dated May 16, 1985, told Jane: "I cannot substantiate your claims of sex discriminination." It cited "a long history of personal problems" between her and a supervisor.

Sinacore blamed the delay on the death last August of the former director of the Affirmative Action Office, Thelma Griffith-Johnson. "Delays occurred due to problems beyond my control. I don't have to apologize anymore," he said.

He also said the 13-member hearing panel was busy reviewing more than one case simultaneously, although the panel has only taken six formal grievances in the past year.

The panel members "are volunteers, they're not paid," he said.

He called Jane "a very uncooperative woman to work with ... I'm sorry the woman had the problems she had, but I stand by my analysis."

Next: The future of the policy

Horrors of apartheid recounted by victim of it

Poppie Nongena by Elsa Joubert W.W.Norton and Co. 1980 335pp. $15.95

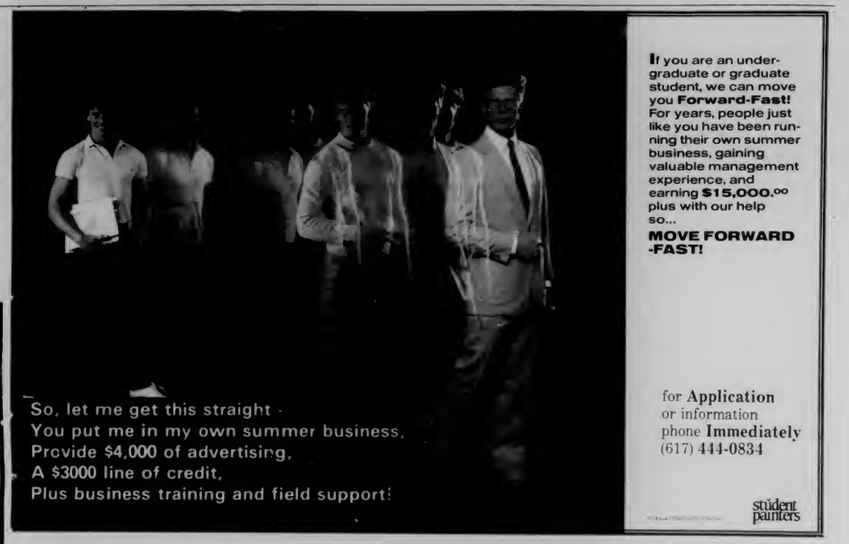
By KATHRYN POHNER
Collegian Correspondent

The word "apartheid" is on everyone's lips lately, and lingering in everyone's ears, especially on college campuses. But how many people have actually lived through the nightmare of apartheid - pass laws, police raids, segregation and murder?

Poppie Nongena has, and in the pages of Poppie Nongena author Elsa Joubert recounts the tale of Nongena's life, and the lives of her family and friends.

Poppie is a product of the country she comes from - life in South Africa has made her clever, strong-willed, and determined never to give up. As the book opens, the reader meets her as a young, happy girl living in Upington.

Joubert recorded Poppie's reminiscences of childhood and turned them into a heartfelt story. She gives the reader a sense of the life in her community - she describes the languages, clothing and customs of her people. This lends the reader an insight into the South African experience, adding life to the impersonal facts often found in the newspaper.



Poppie is content with her existence until she marries a migrant worker, Bonsile, and moves with him to Cape Town. Here she is first confronted with pass laws, and appalling prejudice.

The tales related by Poppie about her workplace demonstrate, in a new way, the prejudice which is so deeply rooted in the white consciousness. As the reader identifies with Poppie, we can only wince when she repeats some of the caustic remarks flung at her, in apparent kindness, by her employees.

Even more anguish comes from weekly visits to the Office of Native Affairs, where a white man sitting behind a desk would dictate Poppie's fate to her - whether an extension allowing her to stay in Capetown would be granted.

Poppie Nongena gives meaning to the printed word "apartheid", far beyond the just a dictionary definition. It immerses us in a life of segregation and hardship. Life that is spurred on by faith in God and hope for the next generation.

Can he do it
Why?
Ed out in !86?
How?
Is it true?

If you are an undergraduate or graduate student, we can move you Forward-Fast! For years, people just like you have been running their own summer business, gaining valuable management experience, and earning $15,000.00 plus with our help so...

MOVE FORWARD -FAST!

for Application or information phone Immediately (617) 444-0834

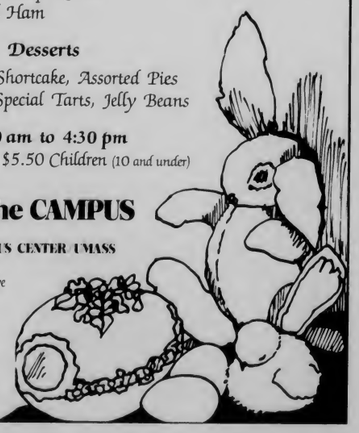
student painters

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE
SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Easter Sunday Buffet
All You Can Eat

Special Salad Bar
Bread Basket
Seafood Newburg
Broccoli Spears
Standing Steamship Round
Baked Ham
Fruit Basket
Jello Molds
Rice/Patty Shells
Sweet Potatoes



Desserts
Strawberry Shortcake, Assorted Pies
Layer Cake, Special Tarts, Jelly Beans

11:30 am to 4:30 pm
$9.95 Adults $5.50 Children (10 and under)

TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER UMASS

Call today to reserve a table for your entire family - 549-6000 ext. 639

Validated parking

Harvard this summer.

June 23-August 15, 1986

Harvard University Summer School, America's oldest summer session, offers open enrollment in nearly 250 day and evening courses, in more than 40 academic fields and pre-professional programs. The diverse curriculum includes courses appropriate for fulfilling undergraduate and graduate degree requirements, as well as programs designed for personal and professional development. The international student body has access to Harvard's outstanding libraries, museums, athletic facilities, and cultural activities, with the additional benefits of the Cambridge and nearby Boston communities. Housing for students is available in Harvard's historic residences.

Offerings include pre-medical and pre-law courses, undergraduate and graduate instruction in foreign languages, business, computer science, visual and environmental studies, anthropology, fine arts, education, psychology, the sciences and more. We feature a college-level program for secondary school juniors and seniors, plus special programs in Health Professions (for minority students), Dance, Drama, Film Studies, Writing, and English as a Second Language.

Further information is available by returning the coupon below or by calling: (617) 495-2494 (24-hour catalogue request line), or (617) 495-2921.

Harvard University Summer School

Please send a Harvard Summer School catalogue and application for:
☐ Arts and Sciences ☐ Secondary School Program ☐ Drama
☐ English as a Second Language ☐ Writing ☐ Dance
☐ Health Professions Program

Name
Street
City State Zip

Harvard Summer School
20 Garden Street, Dept. 391
Cambridge, MA 02138 U.S.A.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yance, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

A test of our tolerance

Stephen Erickson

With the arrival of the conservative newspaper the Minuteman on campus, as well as the activities of "Accuracy in Academia" came the shrill cries of the left, bemoaning an alleged new age of McCarthyism. White House press secretary James Buchanan's recent comments which insinuated that congressional representatives who voted against the contra aid package were supporting Communism was supposedly a reawakening of "red baiting" and other unfair tactics on a national level. Before those on the left go into a complete tizzy over such developments they should take a hard look at their own conduct, because assorted Democrats and campus leftists have long been utilizing the very tactics they now find so offensive.

The arguement goes that it is completely unfair to characterize a political opponent as unpatriotic or sympathetic to Communist totalitarians. Certainly to question an opponent's motives for political gain is an ugly practice. However, President Reagan's motives and intentions are constantly interpreted by those who disagree with him. If it is wrong to claim that a political adversary is unpatriotic, is it not also wrong to claim him to be uncaring, inhumane or war mongering? Reagan believes the welfare state to be detrimental to the long term need of the poor, yet many congressional Democrats claim he just doesn't care about the lower classes. During the contra debate, some congressmen claimed that the president was looking for an excuse to use U.S. troops. Are such accusations more just than ones that suggest certain actions will support communism? Today the "peace movement" attempts to make Americans paranoid about nuclear weapons just as McCarthy fueled the Communist scare of the 1950s. McCarthyism never died, it just changed its political stripes.

On college campuses a form of political repression and intolerance has been exercised by the left since the Vietnam War. Protests of that war developed into an unwillingness to allow the presentation of opposing views and the harrassment of individuals who attempted to express contrary opinions. On our own campus a brick came through a UMass Republican Club president's window, a swastika was taped to the Republican Club billboard, signs advertising conservative speakers are often quickly torn down and sponsors of the Minuteman were harrassed on the telephone by claims the paper was associated with the Ku Klux Klan. My door has been spit on and Nummo News associated me with Adolf Hitler.

At a recent senate meeting, Gerry Scoppettuolo, a staff member of the Student Center for Education, Research and Advocacy referred to the editors of the Minuteman as "facists." Given the horror and destruction fascism has brought to the world, such a statement is grossly offensive. Either Scoppettuolo is ignorant of the term's meaning or he deliberately attacked the characters of people who disagree with him. Since SCERA is supposedly an arm of student government dedicated to protecting different groups within our community from harassment, Scoppettuolo's conduct warrants his termination from SCERA. Perhaps worst of all the abuses of the left is their suppression of free speech. On campuses nation-wide the left has successfully silenced visiting conservative speakers through heckling, jeering and other obnoxious behavior or the threat thereof. Our university is no exception. Two years ago representatives of the contras attempted to speak here, but the event was completely distrupted by protestors.

Representatives of the contras are coming back. At 7 p.m., this Monday in Bartlett Hall room 65, a representative of the FDN will be speaking. Although the issues discussed will center on Nicaragua, at stake is another issue of perhaps even higher concern to our academic community--free speech. Rumor has it that protesters are being bused in from all over New England to disrupt the event. As students we all have reason for concern. Whether one is really interested in what's going on in Nicaragua or not, it is important that people come to Monday night's presentation in order to defend the crucial and basic right to free speech. Intolerance is a threat to democratic society whether is eminates from the right or the left.

Stephen Erickson is a Collegian columnist.

Contribute to restoration success

We invite you to join us at 11 a.m. tomorrow in Memorial Hall for the announcement of a major new campus initiative called Mass Transformation. Its goal is to restore the Tower Library to prime condition next Fall. And it will be accomplished through an innovative, grass roots effort.

Exactly what Mass Transformation will accomplish-and how-will be detailed tomorrow. If you are unable to attend this meeting you will find additional information in Thursday's Campus Chronicle and the Collegian.

Through Mass Transformation, those who care most about the campus faculty, staff, students, members of the local community, and even alumni and parents can make a major contribution to its quality. In the future, we believe that our efforts will become a significant point of pride.

Joseph Duffey, chancellor
Stacy Roth, campus president
Student Government Association

Very real threat to freedom

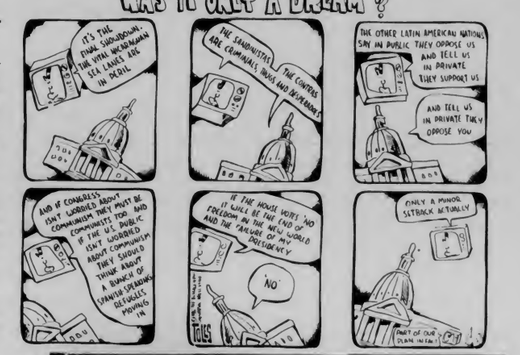
William Spain

Supposedly, we here in the land of the free and the home of the brave adhere to the idea that those among us accused of transgressing the law are presumed innocent unless and until proven otherwise. This is an essential part of our philosophy of individual liberty and one of the things that sets us apart from some of the more authoritarian systems on the planet.

This will no longer be the case if certain types in Washington get their way. Emanating largely from our friends in the Executive Branch, there is a movement afoot to strip away this most fundamental of American rights and casually toss it aside in the name of fighting drug abuse.

The President's Commission on Organized Crime recently released a report to Congress that advocated subjecting all federal employees and those of private companies that do business with Uncle Sam to mandatory drug-tests. Their primary reason for doing so is an idea that the drug problem must be dealt with in a "new" way. They freely admit that the millions of dollars spent on interdiction efforts have been wasted. Our borders are too porous and the profits involved too large for even the most powerful government in the world to put more than a small dent in the trade.

So, now these anti-drug zealots want to attack the market for drugs right at the source- the retail buyers. By instituting such a program, they maintain, John and Jane Q. Public will be scared into not firing up that weekend joint because it might show up when the boss tells them to piss in a bottle the following Monday morning. Using recreational drugs in their spare time would no longer raise only the possibilty of legal problems but would also lose them a way of making a living.



You know, it would probably work. The flaw lies not in its effectiveness but rather in its nasty intrusion into the private lives of American citizens. Under the system envisioned by the big brothers in question, job performance would count for little. Instead, the ability of individuals to take care of themselves would be tied to what they do or do not consume in their spare time.

Make no mistake about it. Mandatory drug-testing is no less than an assault on the civil liberties on all of us. Those who advocate it are betraying the ideals that make this country what it is. They want to shift the burden of proof from the accuser to the accused like something out of a totalitarian nightmare.

Such a proposal is not really surprising when one considers its source. The Reagan administration has an outspoken affinity for such things as lie-detector tests, lifetime censorship over federal employees and loyalty oaths. It would appear that they have relegated constitutional guarantees to the back seat in a search for what they consider deviance.

Luckily for freedom-loving Americans, the proposal has run into opposition in Congress. Several representatives, including Gary Ackerman (D-NY), are showing a rare bit of backbone and calling it what it is-an unfair idignity that no one should have to tolerate. We should all be thankful that there is more to our government than a group of quacks who want to re-shape us all in their own image.

William Spain is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Excercise caution and regard

As a founding member of the UMass Republican Club, and as an RA for four semesters, I would like to kill two birds with one stone (so to speak) and voice some concerns about the newest newspaper on campus, the Minuteman and Rusty Denton's column on the hypocrisy of the RA system.

I applaud the idea behind the Minuteman. For too long this campus has been dominated by the progressive point of view. Exposing the students to different ideas, in an intellectual, thoughtful and rational manner is an integral part of the college experience. However, the Minuteman should avoid statements which, on a campus as diverse as this one, could be interpreted as showing a lack of sensitivity to issues of oppression. The credibility for the conservative point of view that people such as Stephen Erickson and Peter Dow have worked hard to establish could be compromised by any recklessness on the part of the Minuteman's editorial staff. I urge the Minuteman and other publications to prove to the community that they are capable of quality journalism.

Rusty Denton once again has shown once again the lack of knowledge and wealth of hypocrisy that seems to characterize his writings. Lack of knowledge because he clearly has not done his research on Residential Education. He states "positions on being gay and pornography were laid out as policy:" What is the policy? First, that Residential Education will work against the oppression of gays and lesbians and second that pornography is offensive because it degrades men, women and children and as such will not be tolerated. I fail to see the problem here: basic human rights, no? He cites the example of "Charles" applying for a position with "extensive related experience and graduate work," and being declined: the position is an undergraduate one, not open to graduate students. Yes, there are occasions where the hiring practices are distorted to hire people based on minority group affiliation as opposed to qualifications, but this is the fault of individual Residence Directors, not Residential Education. And yes, you do get the occasional anti-Christian remark, but as a result of individual ignorance, not Residential Education policy.

Regardless, Residential Education does not discriminate on the basis of political or religious affiliation. It simply chooses not to hire narrow-minded bigots. This is where Denton's wealth of hypocrisy comes in. As a Catholic, I could have sworn I was taught that above all things Christ asked two things of us: "judge not lest ye be judged" and "love one another as you would love me." Denton's apparent homophobia exposes him as the fraud he is: he is not loving his fellow humans, and he is standing in judgement of them as well. As for opinions of the RA system, until Denton and others do more research, and once they discover the reality of the system, they should keep their opinions to themselves.

The Minuteman and Denton purport to represent the conservative viewpoint. Unfortunately they are only providing ammunition to the assorted progressives on this campus, and making it increasingly difficult to justify being conservative.

Ben Brogan
Central

Special Student / Youth Fares to

SCANDINAVIA

On Scheduled Airlines!

The inexpensive way to get to Scandinavia and other destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

Winter Rates to Scandinavia
New York to Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
New York to Helsinki
from $270 one way
Chicago to Copenhagen
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
Chicago to Oslo, Stockholm, Helsinki
from $280 one way, $480 roundtrip
and tours designed especially for students to the

SOVIET UNION

For Information Call:
WHOLE WORLD TRAVEL
Youth and student travel experts for over a decade
17 E. 45th St., New York, NY 10017
(212) 986-9470

Summer Fares Now Available!

Saturday Clothes 197 N. Pleasant Amherst 253-9729
- Open 7 Days -

Now We're Twice As Good.

The renovations are complete, and our newly expanded store is open, with twice as much space, and twice as many display racks to make your shopping twice as convenient.

Come see how we've grown, and take advantage of these specials:

Video Club Membership
1 Year ..... reg. 25 $15.95
Lifetime ..... reg. 50 $39.95

VIDEO To GO
44 Main St., Amherst • 256-1509

Can you manage, motivate, counsel and care for 40-60 people?

At Burger King, our restaurant managers are people oriented individuals who enjoy helping others live up to their potential. We prefer you have a minimum of 2 years of college or 1-2 years of retail or restaurant supervisory experience. It could be the most rewarding thing you ever did for yourself and for the people you'll work with.

ON CAMPUS INTERVIEWS:
Thursday, March 27

Unable to attend? Send your resume to: Human Resources, Burger King Corporation,1800 W. Park Drive, Westborough Office Park, Westborough, MA 01581. Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/H

BURGER KING. Pillsbury
Get all you need to succeed

it's that time again

when the Textbook Annex must begin to return unsold spring books to the publishers,

Returns start March 31st

Don't wait -- You may be disappointed!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Open Mon-Fri 9AM-4PM

POEMS WANTED

Major anthology now seeks poems: love, nature, haiku, song lyrics, reflective, free verse, religious — all types! Beginners are welcome! Our editors will reply within 7 days.

Send ONE POEM ONLY, 21 lines or less, to:
WORLD OF POETRY PRESS
Dept. AP • 2431 Stockton • Sacto., CA 95817

NURSING: CHECK IT OUT

New England Deaconess Hospital
School of Nursing
Fall openings available

- One of Boston's finest teaching hospitals
- Three year diploma program affiliated with Northeastern University
- B.S.N. available through articulation with Northeastern University
- Clinical experience starts in the first year
- Low tuition
- Scholarships and loans available
- 100% passing rate on state exams

Don't delay! For more information or an application please call Joy Erb, recruitment coordinator at (617) 732-8358.

NEW ENGLAND DEACONESS HOSPITAL
School of Nursing
1 Autumn Street
Boston, Massachusetts
02215

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available

Wednesday April 16th Fine Arts Center

Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public

at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.

Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

ARTS

Jo Gula, BFA student, is exhibiting his Early Paintings at Wheeler Gallery through April 6.

By JENNIFER ACKERMAN
Collegian Staff

Okay, we're all rested from Spring Break, so we have lots of time to peruse the galleries in the area, right? Well, there are some new things going on that you might want to check out this week if you aren't too busy showing off your tan.

ARTSLINES

Sculpture MFA David Fish will open his thesis show in his studio at Marshall Annex tonight at 7:30 p.m. The studio will be installed in both the Student Union and Herter Galleries on April 26. The entire studio/gallery event will run through May 7. The thesis is titled "Guts and Brains: A Study in Post-formal Systems Esthetics"

Hampden Gallery, in the Southwest residential area, is housing the annual "Professor's Choice' exhibit through April 11. Every year an Art department professor is invited to curate an exhibition of their choice. This year, the guest professor is James Hendricks, and his choices are Elizabeth Bryan Slater and Leigh Ann Tischler. Both women are graduates of the University's BFA program.

Herter Gallery, in honor of Women's week, is presenting the "Women's Video Exhibition" through March 29.

Wheeler Gallery, in the Central residential area, presents "Early Paintings", a BFA exhibition by Jo Gula. The show is an exploration of the mystery of human existence in the first series of oil paintings by the artist. "Early Paintings" will run March 27 through April 6, with the opening reception this Thursday, 5-7 p.m.

The Nicaragua Media Project is still running at the Student Union Gallery until Friday, March 28. This exhibition is a collection of very important visual information about Nicaragua. Go see this.

Hampshire College Gallery is exhibiting "Off The Press: 16 Contemporary Photoprintmakers' until April 9. The artists combine photography and printmaking, including photo-etching, photo-silkscreen, Photogravure, and offset lithography, as well as three-dimensional works.

The Northampton Center for the Arts will display "Ukiyo-e" or "pictures of the Floating World," a series of Japanese woodblock prints until April 13.

Also at the Northampton Center for the Arts, Greg Stone will exhibit portraits and landscapes in oil. Stone was American Artists magazine's featured artist in April 1985. This show will run until April 13.

What fun. If you have eyes for seeing, give them some exercise this week in some of the Happy Valley's galleries.

David Fish, sculpture MFA, will open his unique thesis exhibit tonight at Marshall Anex at 7:30.

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

The Guthrie Theater
Wednesday, March 26, 8 pm
Concert Hall

Five College Students Half-Price. Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office and Springfield Civic Center. Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

AMHERST CINEMA

Wednesday - Friday

Warner Brother Cartoons	7:00
Duck Soup (Marx Bros)	8:30
Horse Feathers (Marx Bros)	9:45

30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash only 6 ticket limit

On sale 4/3/86 at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

★ Senate meeting . . .

But two other motions are expected to trigger more debate. The first calls for the senate to oppose "continued US support for the anti-Sandinista contra rebels." The motion asks that copies of the resolution be sent to the US State Department, the Nicaraguan ambassador to the United Nations, and President Reagan.

The second motion calls for the senate to "congratulate the winners of the Illinois Democratic primary: Adlai Stephenson III, Mark Fairchild, and Janice Hart."

Fairchild and Hart are supporters of Lyndon LaRouche, the founder of "a neo-fascist, anti-Semitic organization," said Dave Martin, a Commuter Area senator. LaRouche has many of his followers running in state and local elections.

"These motions are examples of how individuals are trying to split the senate," said Greg Rothman from the Central Residential Area. Conservative senators will be opposed to the first motion, while liberal senators will oppose the second, he said.

Eric Ericson, a senator from Southwest, said he wrote the second motion because the SGA should support people elected by the democratic process, and that he would likely withdraw it before the vote.

Two arrested for fake SOS

BOSTON (AP) - Two Chelsea men were arrested yesterday on federal complaints charging they made fake distress calls to the US Coast Guard that set off a $60,000 search for a yacht reported to be going down with 10 people aboard.

Douglas P. Vaters, 20, and Norman Miller, 18, were arrested by US marshals, Vaters at his home and Miller at an undisclosed location, said Coast Guard Petty Officer 2nd Class Greg Creedon.

He said the complaints filed in US District Court against each man were for placing a false distress call, making a false statement and conspiring to defraud the United States.

Both men were released after signing a bail bond for $10,000, said court clerk Peter Gallagher. He said the men were scheduled to appear in court again on April 12 for a probable cause hearing, in which the government must defend its reasons for arrest.

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

LEARN TO FLY
U-MASS STUDENT CLUB
ACADEMIC CREDIT AVAILABLE-LOW COST 665-2577

Pinocchio's Restaurant
1177 North Pleasant St.
549-3669
Special Monday thru Thursday
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.00 + Tax
FAST FREE DELIVERY from 5:00 pm on
Does not apply in restaurant Mention when ordering.

* Last Week! *
Monday through Friday, 11-4
CLOSING EVENTS:
Thursday, March 27:
7:30 p.m. Harvest of Peace
The Nicaragua Media Project
A brand new 30-minute Jason video film about a North American brigade in Nicaragua. An inspiring look at what some U.S. citizens are doing to prevent war in Central America through people-to-people diplomacy.
This fall Bobbie Lepore, the American HARVEST OF PEACE staff member, a national Nicaragua Volunteer from Four, co-produces the film and speaks on contributors permissions and campaign locations.
Turning Tide Productions P.O. Box
9:00 p.m. Slides of a
North American School-building Brigade in Nicaragua by members of Northampton Committee on Central America
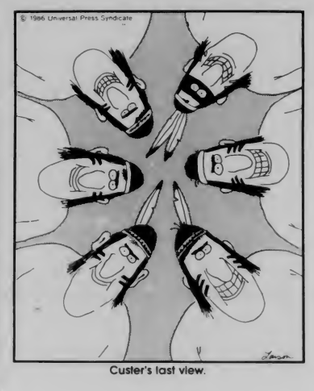
*several small paintings by a gifted Nicaraguan refugee will be for sale to raise money for the homeless
Friday, March 28:
3-4 pm closing reception of The Nicaragua Media Project
3:00 "Two Towns in Northern Nicaragua"
a 1986 slide show by Philosophy Professor John Brentlinger
All events are FREE and will be held in the gallery
STUDENT UNION ART GALLERY 413-545-0792

Something you want to say before you leave?
Submit your proposal for Senior Commencement Speaker to Trey Williams, 545-2334, 319 Whitmore.
(5 minutes: 3 pages, typed, double-spaced)
DEADLINE: APRIL 11, 1986 at 4:00 PM



Best Sale of the Year
Seniors!
Graduated Savings.

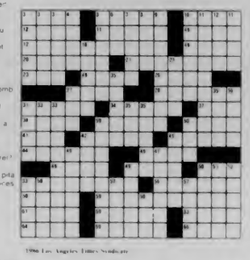
$15 OFF ALL 10K GOLD
$30 OFF ALL 14K GOLD
$40 OFF ALL 18K GOLD
One week only, save on the gold ring of your choice. For complete details, see your Jostens representative at:
Date: March 26, 27, 28 - Time: 10:30 - 3 pm Deposit Req.: $15.00
Place: outside
UNIVERSITY STORE
©1985 Jostens, Inc.
JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

Custer's last view.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Swedish rock group
5 Quebec peninsula
10 Is under obligation
14 River into the Caspian
15 Ascertain
16 River past Karnak
17 Novel garb?
19 Part of MIT
20 Tailor's concern
21 Narrative incidents
23 DDE's command
24 One of the Harts
26 Sun shades?
27 Evening in Venice
28 Type arrangement
31 French clerics
34 River at Rome
37 Fiscal exp.
38 Piled up
39 Whimpered
40 Three-handed card game
41 Words on a French menu
42 Turn away
43 Billiards shot
44 More shallow
46 Image
48 Revise
49 Of gases: Comb. form
50 Followers of Morris
53 Payment for a rerun
56 Ester
58 Imitation
59 Travel apparel?
61 Pantyhose
62 Rye, white or pita
63 Place for spices
64 Acts on
65 Wow!!
66 Timex

DOWN
1 WWII hero Murphy
2 Main force
3 Choir member
4 Der — (the boss in Bonn)
5 Allure
6 Fed. nuclear body
7 Purposes
8 Young yuppie's school
9 Qualified
10 Like some soups or stews
11 Airport appear?
12 Otherwise
13 Tennis units
18 Stuart king
22 Mosel feeder
25 — and took notice
27 Bishop's jurisdiction
29 Asian tree
30 Art gallery near the Thames
31 Right away: Abbr.
32 Philippine knife
33 Wheel's pump?
35 Martinique, e.g.
36 Prove false
39 Troubles
40 Diego or Jose
42 TV actor Tim
43 Dough
45 Phraseologies
47 Campaigner's favorite sight
49 Strange
50 Turkic language
51 City on the Mohawk
52 Searches for
53 Get the drift
54 External: Comb. form
55 Berne's river
57 Brontë heroine
60 Youth

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	U	N	T	S	A	G	A	R	A	D	A	M
A	F	O	O	T	D	E	W	E	Y	L	I	E
L	O	R	N	A	D	O	O	N	E	S
I	S	M		B	U	R		S	M	E	A	R
S		A	L	O	N	G		I	S	H
H	A	M	M	Y		E	A	T	S		S	A	W
A	L	A	I		P	I	S	C	E	S		M	U	R
L	I	O	N	E	L	B	A	R	R	Y	M	O	R	E
V	A	T		L	E	A	N	E	R		O	R	A	N
E	S	S		D	A	R	T		P	R	E	S	S
		E	R	E		A	S	L	A	N
A	T	T	I	N	E		Y	A	R	N		A	P	T
R	O	U	T		C	L	A	R	K		G	A	B	L	E
A	N	N	E		R	O	N	A		L	I	L	A	C
P	I	G	S		U	T	A	H		E	D	E	N	S

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES
BY R.MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

LUNCH
Grilled Cheese Sandwich
Chicken Stew

Basics Lunch
Grilled Cheese on wheatberry
Chicken Stew

Dinner
Veal Parmesan
Baked Scrod
Ham and Turkey plate
corny muffin

Basics Dinner
Eggplant Parmingiana
Get baked and have the Scrod

ATTENTION

All Collegian editors and associate editors Newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, AME at the Springfield Daily News

Next Wednesday, April,2, 8pm

Mandatory for editors ALL OTHERS WELCOME

Weather

Weather: Today: A balmy and beautiful day with temps in the low 70s. Tonight: Cooling, 45 to 50 degrees. Tomorrow: Showers and thundershowers, highs 55 to 60.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor.....Daniel Sobel
Copy Editor.....William Spain
Layout Technician.....Ansel Zinter
Photo Technician.....Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor.....Ansel Zinter
Production: SOD, Rob Skelton, Maura McHugh, Kevin Hayden (and some dude in Baker)

FACULTY!

The Textbook Annex needs your

HELP

to allow us to get all the necessary textbooks for the fall semester please send us your textbook orders

ASAP*

*as soon as possible

necessary forms are available through your departmental secretary or the textbook annex

ALSO: please inform your students that we will be returning this semesters unsold books to the publishers beginning March 31st

THANKS!

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Summer Employment

Camp Young Judaea, Amherst, New Hampshire (Resident, Co-ed, 1 hour from Boston) is in need of Department Directors and Activity Specialists for this summer in: Athletics, Gymnastics, Swim Instruction (WSI), Waterskiing, Sailing, Arts & Crafts, Campcraft, Israeli Dance, Drama, Israeli Folk Song, Riflery, Tennis, Photography, Office Personnel and Nurses (R.N.). Excellent Salaries and fringe benefits. Please contact Dr. Charles B. Rotman, Director, 81 Kingsbury Street, Wellesley, MA 02181, 617-237-9410.

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT

Welcome Back Party
with
* * * * CLIFF MYERS * * * *

Tonight Wed. March 26th - Showtime 9:30 PM
Proper sense of humor and ID required
Free sodas for designated drivers.
Rt 9 Amherst 256-8284
CHANGES dance club

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden
Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The BEST Chinese Food"

Boneless Bar-B-Q
Spare Ribs
Small $2.80 Large $4.60

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch

1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot + Sour Soup

Buffet Served 5-8
Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served
Sunday 11:30-3
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25

Luncheon Specials
From $2.25 served 11 a.m. -3 p.m.

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.
10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

Head Resident Positions

Amherst College is seeking candidates for part time (10 months) Head Resident positions starting August 15, 1986. Responsibilities include training and supervision of Resident Counselors, advising a council for residence governance and helping to develop social and cultural programs, and working with Dean's Office, faculty and physical plant departments to ensure proper functioning of residence halls. Qualifications include: completion of Bachelor's degree by September, 1986; ability to relate well to students; organizational and counseling skills. Previous experience in residential life preferred. Compensation: $3,500, room and baord. Submit resume, cover letter and two letters of recommendation to: Karen Tilbor, Associate Dean of Students, Amherst College, Box 68, Amherst, MA 01002 before March 31, 1986. An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. M/F/H.

This Wednesday is especially for you!!!

University of Massachusetts
Amherst

This Wednesday, March 26 from 4-6 pm dine in the casual elegance of Plumbley's for just

$5.95

- Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
- Sliced London Broil
- Tempura Fried Filet of Sole

All entrees complete with salad, potatoe, hot bread & butter.

Just show your UMass I.D. and enjoy

Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

Want to see a friend in the paper?
Bring a picture down to J.B.'s

WEDNESDAY

6-9 am	Sing About it with Johanna
9 am	NEWS
9-12	Stolen Moments
12	NEWS
12-3	In One Ear with Vinnie Van Gee
3-6	Schoolyard Emissions
5 pm	NEWS
6-7	Sportsline
7-10	Procession towards Learning Land
9 pm	NEWS
10-2	Terpsichorean Cacophonev
2-6	Guerilla Radio with Chris

WMUA 91.1

Writing a paper?
Need some help?
THE WRITING CENTER
Pierpont, Southwest
Monday and Thursday 7 - 9
B-24 Baker in Central
Tuesday 7-9, Wednesday 1-3, 7-9
Thursday 7-9
04 Cashin in Sylvan
Monday 7-9
Wednesday 2'30-4:30, 7-9

let us do your wash-dry-fold and hand pressing
SPEEDWASH
10-5 P.M. MON.-SAT.
SELF SERVICE
7 DAYS--7A.M.-10 P.M.
549-1665
Quality Laundry
11 Pray St.
Amherst, MA

EDWIN JEANS
sold at the finest stores
Lodestone
13 No. Pleasant
Amherst
256-0591

JBs
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
11 am - 2 am 7 days
50 Main St.
Amherst, MA
253-7018

Hey cowpoke, come on down to J.B.'s today 3/26 tomorrow 3/27 and you'll receive a Super One and a Large Coke.

Just a pinch of beef between your cheek and gum. Yep, that's good and it's at J.B.'s!!

For those who haven't tried our GREAT CHICKEN

Joe's Paradise
GOURMET FRIED CHICKEN
TRY SOME!
FRIED CHICKEN PALACE
TRY SOMETHING NEW & COMPARE THE VALUE
FAST FREE DELIVERY
ANY ORDER WITH COUPON BETWEEN $5 & $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE HAT FREE
ANY ORDER WITH COUPON OVER $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE T-SHIRT FREE
Downtown Amherst, 31 Boltwood Walk
(through the alley, next to Taco Villa)
253-7494

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon.-Thurs. 8:45-2:30 Fri. • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

3-D MOVIES
Thursday, March 27 CCA
5 pm $1.25
featuring the 3 Stooges
Creature from the Black Lagoon
It Came from Outer Space
plus classic comedy in 2-D
glasses are free

General Meeting of the American Society of Personnel Administrators Wednesday March 26 7:30 in room 172 Campus Center. There will be guest speakers from the personnel department of Reebok USA. Anyone interested in learning about personnel is welcome to join.

Important Armenian Club Meeting March 26 6:30 pm 804CC. All new and old members always welcomed!

Southwest Residents - Get Involved! Weekly Southwest Assembly meeting tomorrow, 7:00 pm in Hampden's Southside Room. All are welcome.

AUTO FOR SALE

76 Plymouth Volare 4 dr, body very good condition, many miles but very reliable AM/FM $1200 or BO 256-6281

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext 5931-A

1978 Rabbit - fuel injection, 92k, many new parts, Blaupunkt AM/FM cassette $1795 or BO Jon 256-6843

1980 Pontiac Phoenix, standard, front wheel drive, one owner $1,400. 256-1489 eves

72 Ford Mustang body in excellent condition new: exhaust, brakes, suspension BO call 549-6633

1976 Honda Accord very clean new parts stereo $1000 negotiable 253-5693

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7436

CAPE COD
SUMMER ROBIN RENTALS
Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DEAD

Hey Now - I missed Box of Rain in VA and I don't have a Thurs night Hartford tik. If you can help, call Mat 256-1203

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2133 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

One bedroom Cliffside Apt $350 please call Kenny 545-2234 or 665-7106

In Amherst 2½ miles from campus, washer and dryer, air conditioning. Available April 1. Call today! Chris 256-6238

Room available in vacant house this summer with option to rent next fall. 5 mon walk from town and UMass call for more info Mary 549-6799

Apt in house. 3-bedroom. Great locations; right next to 7-11 in Sunderland. Very clean, quiet and spacious. $660 month, lease starts June 1st. 665-8275

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric six-string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 6-6489

Smith Corona TP1 Printer $115.00 Computer Table $75.00 256-1489 eves

73 Ford LTD must sell! $500 OBO low rust, runs great. Doug 545-2593 or lv msg 549-7597

Numark Equilizer with LED volume readout. Used this 10 band eq once call 6-9659

X-Country Skis, Karhu 210's, boots, poles and bindings, waxless, $75. 256-1544

Gucci Watches only $30 call 6-7480

Gold Clubs. Ladies starter set w/canvas bag. Used once. $95.00 774 7682 eves. Ask for Debbie

FOUND

A men's gold watch, near Brittany Manor, on Sunday, March 2. Call and identify 665-8460

Red glasses' case with glasses keys call 6-9172

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Part-time merchandisers 25 hours a week. We seek mature-minded persons to service our book department keeping it attractive and up-to-date. Opening at STOP & SHOP HADLEY, MASS knowledge of and interest in books a definite plus. Dependable car essential. Must be available to work a flexible weekday schedule that will involve morning to afternoon shifts. Please call 1-800-524-6904 Barnes & Noble Bookstores, Inc. equal opportunity employer M/F

Work study, lab dishwasher, 5-7hr/wk, $4.20/hr, April and May, summer option 545-2364

INSTRUCTION

Jewelry Making Class
begins next week
Jackie Vajra 549-6539

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Invites all University
Women to Rush
Tues 3/25 5:15-6:15 Dinner
or 6:15-7:15 Wine & Cheese
Wed 3/26 5:15-6:15 Dinner
Thurs 3/27 6-7 Nachos
come and see what sorority life can do for you!!
For more info call: 256-6864

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost two keys on campus before Spring Break, unattached. Lorvan 546-9152

MAD WILD FLESHLY SINS

The Warriors come to play at UMass tonight 5, 7, 9 and 11 at the CCA

MONEY AND EXPERIENCE?

Five opportunities available for students of all majors. Must work well with people. Earn $75/week this summer call 256-4263

MOTORCYCLES

Suz GS650, 5000 mi, good cond, fairing with stereo, $1200 or BO, 256-1544

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0960

Karen - you loose, but you take a good picture

CONNOR - give us back our marker!!

Emo is coming!

Emo is coming! Watch the space

Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo

Kara B gets the award for cleanest Kappa of Spring Break

ISMA Chocolate candy sale on the CC Concourse. Homemade chocolates for only 50¢ - $2.00 today - Friday!!

To Renee & the girls with the 2 little Reeboks: I'm glad you finally got it together. I hope I get to come to the wedding?? All the best - DFK

Emily - Here is the personal from your B-day. I hope you feel better. Love ya Snoopy

Robin Lees and Carol Blum - Happy Birthday. Call me!! All my love, DK. (PS Sorry I'm a little late)

To Judy the McIdiot in 2110 JA, riding along in your G.T.I. with your Baileys by your side, forget V.C.C. see you at Chelmsfords driving range! Love Shags

Platts Australian Surf Wear

Back from Break

on sail now!!!
C.C.C.

Atten. Todd Rundle: Judges have officially elected you king of the belly flop!!! Bahama Papas on Paradise Island!!! 3/21/86

John Taylor (Christian) in Comm 150. I like your do! Teresa

HAPPY BIRTHDAY
KIM S.!
Tom

Congratulations
Joy & Bob

Jill and Lisa, U-Beach Sunday, March 23, 1986 - those are the days I'll remember for all my life thanks! Jenn

Come see Animal House Thurs March 27 at Maher Aud. 5:00 - $1.25, 7, 9, 11 - $1.75 It will be a great time!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING, SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate needed for summer in Hyannis - new house - ideal location - low weekly rent - call 546- 7297

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7662

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

SOFTBALL COACH

Softball Batting/Fielding Coach (or player/coach) needed for local adult co-ed team. April-August. Modest compensation for coaching. Leave message on tape at 545-1960 after 5:00 pm

SUMMER SUBLET

Need people to sublet our Southwood apt starting the first week of June. Call 256-1508

TRAVEL

Summer '86 Kenya safari scenic locations! Sun, fun and adventure. Student rates available. Free information: (413) 549-5664 (413) 548-7118

WANTED

Subjects needed -- Students who lost a parent - will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203 563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage, set construction, site prep, security) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3-week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Ana, 545-2803/4

Vocalist needed to complete the Fugative Guys UZ Clash REM Roxy Cost also keyboards call now for try out 6-6796

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease of house or apartment, 2-3 + bedrooms, pref. close to campus. Call 546-1088 or 546-9189

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

For summer. Two bedroom apt in Amherst call eves 546-4377 ask for Mark

SPORTS

Minutewomen roll through Florida trip

Sortino suprised by early romp

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

While the majority of University of Massachusetts students were littering the various beaches of southern Florida, the UMass softball team continued to romp to its own version of "fun in the Florida sun".

The Minutewomen returned from a very successful Florida swing on Monday with an 11-3 mark, winning nine of their first ten games over the Spring break. Although the fast start is a good indication of what to expect from the Minutewomen this season, the play of UMass has been a welcome and pleasant surprise for head coach Elaine Sortino.

"We went down their expecting to come back with a .500 record," said Sortino. "But we've been hitting the ball well and playing good defense. Overall, I am very pleased. I didn't expect that we would do so well.".

UMass pitching, which has been a consistent trademark over the years, held true to form on the Florida swing. As a combined staff, the Minutewomen sport an earned run average of 0.68 this season, compared to a 3.62 ERA given up by UMass opponents. Senior lefthander Lynn Stockley leads the UM staff with a 5-1 record and an 0.45 ERA. Her lone setback came against the University of South Florida, 5-0.

In addition to Stockley, senior righthander Cathy Reed is 2-0 with an ERA of 0.58, and sophomore righthander Lisa Rever is 4-2 with an 0.78 ERA. Both Rever and Stockley have posted three shutouts and Reed and Rever have had one-hit performances. Freshman Crhis Wanner, who saw limited action, picked up her first save of the year against DePaul University.

Offensively, Sortino's troops have been giving the pitching staff more than enough support, for the most part. The Minutewomen dropped their last two games of the swing to Stetson University, 2-1, and to South Florida. UMass hit the ball hard, but usually right at somebody, leaving a few valuable runners stranded in the late innings.

"We hit very well throught the trip, but we just couldn't get the runs across when we needed them," Sortino said. "Lisa (Rever) pitched a great game against Stetson, but we couldn't get the runs for her."

In the Stetson game, Rever only gave up two hits in her six inning stint. But they were costly hits, as Stetson got its only two runs of the game on a bunt single and a two-run homer in the third inning. The Minutewomen had no problem getting the hits, just bringing them in, a fact that Sortino attributed to the length of the season opening swing.

"We were very tired going into the last couple of games and it showed," Sortino said. "We didn't get much time to rest or practice, so the next couple of days we have off will do us some good."

But despite the lack of run production the last couple of games, the offensive machine has been running at full tilt for the Minutewomen, led by Beth Talbott. The senior catcher had a banner spring trip, ripping seven triples in 14 games, including a three-triple performance in a 12-0 destruction of Miami (Ohio) University. Talbott has also delivered on the defensive end, committing only two errors in 112 chances.

Sophomore Chris Ciepiela leads the Minutewomen in batting, hitting .375 with one triple. Senior co-captains Sally Maher and Carol Frattaroli are both hitting .364, with Maher leading the team in runs batted in with 13. Frattaroli and freshman outfielder Barbara Meehan both have seven RBI's.

Ciepiela has also done a fine job filling in for injured third baseman Debbie Cole. Cole played in four games over the Spring trip and looked to be recovered from an elbow injury suffered last Fall. Ciepiela is second in defensive assists with 24.

The Minutewomen will open their Northern schedule with a doubleheader against Boston College at Chestnut Hill. UMass opens its home season Tuesday against Providence College in a twin bill. The Minutewomen were 2-1 winners over the Eagles last season and will be looking to break a brief two game losing streak suffered at the Florida State Lady Seminole tournament over the weekend.

Minutewomen Mutterings: UMass has outscored its opponents on the Florida swing 52-8, including a 12-0 advantage in the first inning and 22-0 in the fourth inning. . .Rever leads the pitching staff in total innings pitched with 35 and strikeouts, registering 36 K's. . .UMass has left 77 runners stranded this season, compared to 58 by UM opponents. . .Sophomore firstbaseman Martha Jamieson played in three games, but is still recovering slower than expected from arthoscopic knee surgery she underwent a month ago. . .Talbott leads the team in slugging percentage at .563. Maher is next at .477 with Ciepiela and Meehan slugging .458 and .424, respectively.

Sports Information Photo

Carol Frattaroli, a senior second baseman. hit .364 with seven runs batted in as the UMass softball team went 11-3 in Florida over Spring Break.

Sports Information photo

Cathy Reed went 2-0 on the mound during the University of Massachusetts softball team's Florida trip. She was .259 at the plate. The team went 11-3.

UMass lacrosse notebook

Gorillas ranked 15th in nation

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts lacrosse team, by virtue of its 13-7 victory over the United States Air Force Academy, has been ranked 15th in the nation by United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association.

The Gorillas, who open up their Eastern schedule this Saturday at Delaware, are ranked fourth in the weekly Brine New England poll, but are ahead of three of those teams in the national rankings.

The University of North Carolina, at 4-0, gathered all 10 first place votes to lead the poll. Syracuse University followed in second place, at 4-1.

Johns Hopkins, 3-1, was third with the Naval Academy and the University of Maryland fourth and fifth respectively.

The rest of the poll is as follows:

6. Rutgers (2-1); 7. Virginia (3-1); 8. Army (2-1); 9. Adelphi (2-1); 10. Maryland-Baltimore County (2-2); 11. Towson State (2-1); 12. Loyola of Baltimore (3-0); 13. Brown (2-2); 14. C.W. Post (2-1) and UMass (1-0).

In the New England poll, which determines the New England title, Brown leads with 98 points while the University of New Hampshire (coached by UM coach Dick Garber's son, Ted) is second with 82.

Third place went to Harvard with 78 points with UMass in fourth place with 74 points. Yale University is fifth, with 69 points. Dartmouth College is sixth with 49.

This season, UMass will play Brown, Army, Rutgers and Syracuse, all currently nationally ranked.

The Army game will be home at Boyden Field on April 26. Brown. Rutgers and Syracuse are all at home against the Gorillas.

The Gorillas will also play New England contenders New Hampshire, Brown, Boston College, Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth this season. St. John's, a first-time UM opponent, and the always-tough Cornell round out the schedule.

The last UMass teams to be nationally ranked were the women's soccer team and the field hockey team this past fall. The football and men's soccer teams as well as the volleyhall team enjoyed national standing for one week only in the fall.

Bowsher and Roundtree selected

Two University of Massachusetts women's soccer players were recognized by national soccer magazine Soccer America in its annual Most Valuable Player awards.

Freshman foward Beth Roundtree was chosen as one of the co-freshmen of the year, along with Dana Hedin from NCAA Division 1 champion George Mason University.

Kristen Bowsher, the Minutewomen's best all-around player, was picked as one of a large group of national most valuable players.

The selection for coach-of-the-year, made by women's soccer writer Elizabeth House, was George Mason coach Hank Leung. UMass coach Kalekeni Banda was chosen coach-of-the-year by the national soccer coaches association.

Other selections included Mason's Lisa Gmitter as player-of-the-year.

The Minutewomen lost only one game this season, to George Mason in the national semifinals. UMass loses only two players from that squad and will be among the nation's leaders this coming fall.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 37

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1986

INSIDE

- Project will tackle the troubled Tower. Page 3.
- Elvis Costello, the king of America, a review. Page 12.
- Women's softball takes on Boston College. Page 20.

Campus heating up for visit by contra

Protests are expected; Duffey is assailed on security plan

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

Controversy is mounting at the University of Massachusetts over an anticipated visit to campus next Monday by a press secretary for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, one of the "contra" armies fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

Campus groups opposed to President Reagan's request to continue funding the anti-Sandinista guerrillas plan to protest the speech by Jorge Rosales, the FDN representative.

In what critics have termed "unprecedented," the chancellor's office has agreed to pay for security personnel during Rosales' appearance.

The Graduate Student Senate unanimously passed a motion Tuesday night condemning Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey's decision to provide the funding, saying it was "unwarranted and sets a bad precedent."

"When other groups sponsor someone they provide the security," said senate president George Claxton. "It makes no sense for the chancellor's office to do it."

James Leheny, assistant to Duffey, said the funding is not without precedent.

"It's routine to provide security to any kind of political personage that might lead to problems," he said.

Duffey, reached by mobile telephone yesterday on his way back from a Board of Trustees meeting in Boston, said the funding is important to ensure that Rosales can speak without interruption.

"The right of free speech is an important principle of democracy," Duffey said. "I can't imagine that the graduate students don't join me in ensuring free speech."

Gilbert Stair, president of the UMass Republican Club, which is sponsoring the visit, said the club will fund "individual security to stay with Rosales while he is on campus."

"In the past, presentations have been totally disrupted," said Peter Dow, vice president of the club. Two years ago, contra representatives came to speak in the Campus Center and were greeted by vociferous opposition.

"We need to guarantee his right of speech will be protected. It is unrealistic to suppose that we could provide sufficient security to allow the speaker to speak."

The Student Government Association Finance Committee approved $290 Tuesday night to pay for half of Rosales' traveling expenses, Dow said. The club will pay the rest.

In an address last night to the Undergraduate Student Senate, Duffey said he opposes aid to the contras, but that "when people come to campus and are not allowed to speak because of protesters, this is not acceptable behavior."

"Students will protest [Rosales], and they should – but those with unpopular opinions should be allowed to speak," he said.

Duffey would not comment on what type of security the University is offering or how much money it will spend. Stair said his club and administrators will meet today to determine the number and type of security personnel.

The Radical Student Union denied rumors that it plans to bus in protesters from around New England, but a group of activists has planned a "vigil against the contras" all day Monday next to the campus pond.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

"Did you order this war?" senior Carolyn Frimpter asks a diner in Earthfoods Cafe.

Antiwar activists serve up sobering fare

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

Patrons were served at their tables in the Hatch, the Coffee Shop and Earthfoods Cafe yesterday, but the waitresses were offering political statements, not food.

Five women carrying trays entered Earthfoods at 12:45 p.m. Maps of Central America covered the trays, and olive-drab plastic soldiers were placed around the maps.

"Excuse me, did you order this war?" they asked diners. "Here's the bill. You'll have to pay for it anyway." They presented menus, titled "Ronnie Reagan's Hot Wars To Go – We Deliver Whether You Order Or Not."

Calling themselves an ad hoc coalition, the women said they came up with the idea for the production last Monday, after learning a press secretary for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, one of the "contra" armies fighting the Nicaraguan government, would be appearing on campus next Monday.

"The Hatch was humming when we left," group member Jennifer Johnston said.

Another member, Dawn Hamel, said "everybody was talking about Central America" when they left the Coffee Shop.

Reaction wasn't all positive, though, as one man told group member Carolyn Frimpter that he had been opposed to war in Central America for years, but that her approach was "snotty."

The menu announced a vigil against the contras, to be held Monday by the campus pond, and one of the "main dishes" was "Steamed Nicaragua." The price for the item: "$107 million, known cost of contra funding."

Other menu items included "Crushed Grenada," "Media Mind Mixers," referring to news reports which accept the White House line, and "Guatemalan Squash." All had multi-million dollar figures attached, which Hamel said had been "updated yesterday."

At the bottom was the legend: "No substitutions for social programs or human needs."

The group visited the eating establishments between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. yesterday, and said it plans to stage a repeat performance on Friday, adding the Newman Center to the itinerary.

Inside: American helicopters helped transport Honduran soldiers to battle with Sandinista forces near the Nicaraguan border. The Sandinistas, meanwhile, continued to deny any incursion. Page 2.

A CLOSER LOOK
SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Officials: delay seen in revisions

Last in a series.

By ILANA LEVENSON
Collegian Staff

For the past year, various administrators and student groups have been revising the University's current sexual harassment policy, but administrators question whether a revised policy can be implemented during a unionization campaign.

Proposed revisions to the policy include lengthening deadlines for responding to complaints and increasing the size of the University's harassment hearing board.

"There is some question about whether or not a new

continued on page 7

Fraternity says prank unsanctioned

Says 3 pledges tied up member

By CRAIG SANDLER
Collegian Staff

Three fraternity pledges will be charged with hazing by the Greek Area Judiciary, the director of the Greek Affairs Office said yesterday, but he stressed the fratenity was not responsible for the incident that spawned the charges.

Earlier yesterday, the president of the fraternity had emphatically denied his house was officially involved.

The director of Greek Affairs said this is the first incidence of hazing on campus since a state law took effect that calls for up to a hundred days in jail for anyone convicted of hazing.

Scott St. Coeur, president of Phi Sigma Kappa, said the three pledges tied up a member of his house with ropes on Haigis Mall Monday afternoon without the knowledge or consent of the fraternity.

"These pledges took it upon themselves to do this," St. Coeur said. "We don't endorse hazing in any way."

He added that the pledges will not be admitted to the fraternity.

"They were in the first week of pledging," he said, adding that he thought the incident occured because the pledges had not yet been briefed on Greek Area regulations.

St. Coeur said he learned the names of the pledges and member as well as details of the incident during a house meeting Tuesday night. He discussed his findings yesterday with Bob White, director of the Office of Greek Affairs. White said Tuesday he would notify UMass of the results for possible action.

White said his office would make the student clerk of courts aware of the allegations so the pledges could be charged with violation of the Code of Student Conduct. If found guilty, the students could face penalities ranging from reprimands to expulsion.

He would not speculate about possible criminal proceedings against the pledges or release their names, but said, "At the moment it seems something inappropriate occurred."

[The fraternity] as an organization is unquestionably not responsible for this occurring," White said.

Under Massachusetts law, persons convicted of initia-

continued on page 15

US transports Honduran troops

Helicopters aid in fighting near Nicaragua

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — U.S. military helicopters with American crews ferried Honduran soldiers to a remote border area yesterday where up to 1,500 Sandinista troops were reported trying to fight their way back to Nicaragua.

U.S. officials here said 14 helicopters from Palmerola air base were carrying infantry and artillery units to the "Las Vegas salient" about 120 miles east of the capital.

The salient is a triangular-shaped area of Honduras that juts into Nicaragua along the irregular frontier between the two countries. It has long been the site of a major camp of the U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels, called Contras, who fight the Sandinista government from bases in southern Honduras.

Honduran military sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 1,500 Sandinistas crossed the frontier last Saturday in pursuit of rebels and were trapped inside Honduras by Contras who cut off their retreat.

Other sources put the number of Nicaraguan government troops at nearer 800 and said most probably would slip through the net because it was difficult to block all paths through the jungled mountain terrain.

U.S. officials said about 100 Sandinistas and 80 Contras had been killed in four days of fighting.

Accounts of fighting could not be verified independently. Honduran military sources said soldiers were ordered to keep journalists out of the area.

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government denies any incursion and says the reports are designed to win U.S. aid for the Contras.

The U.S. Senate was expected to vote by Thursday on President Reagan's proposal for $100 million in military and non-lethal aid to the rebels. The House of Representatives defeated the proposal by a 222-210 vote last Thursday.

Reagan approved $20 million in emergency aid to Honduras on Tuesday to help it cope with the reported incursion.

American officials said the helicopters wre ferrying about 500 to 600 Honduran soldiers, roughly a battalion, to the salient in four Huey and 10 Chinook helicopters of U.S. Task Force Bravo. The task force of about 1,200 men is permanently based at Palmerola, a Honduran base about 60 miles southwest of Tegucigalpa.

A U.S. Embassy officer in Tegucigalpa, also speaking on condition of anonymity, said the American helicopters were unarmed and would drop the Honduran soldiers at what he called a secure landing site at least 10 miles from the fighting.

The airlift represented an escalation of U.S. military involvement in Honduras, where U.S. forces hold almost continuous joint training exercises with Honduran units.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in Washington:

"There are reports of Sandinista troop reinforcements on the Nicaraguan side of the border with Honduras and there is a question of what their intent is. One of the goals that the Hondurans have is to head off any further Sandinista troop incursions."

In Tegucigalpa, however, sources close to the situation said there was no evidence of Sandinista reinforcements gathering on the Nicaraguan side of the border. Associated Press reporter Filadelfo Aleman went to the border from Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, and said it was quiet.

Little Steven celebrates in Hub

BOSTON (AP) — Rock 'n' roll music reverberated City Hall yesterday as Little Steven Van Zandt, producer of the anti-apartheid album and video "Sun City," arrived in Boston to kick off Free South Africa Day.

Van Zandt, wearing a flowing black velvet robe, a white ruffled shirt and a trademart kerchief on his head, thanked the City Council for divesting Boston of $12 million worth of stocks in companies that do business in South Africa and for declaring March 26 a day to honor the fight against apartheid.

Van Zandt, in turn, was honored by Councilors David Scondras and Charles Yancey for his campaign to convince musicians not to play in "Sun City," a Las Vegas-like casino complex in South Africa's Bophuthatswana.

"I was born in Boston and there's always been a special attachment for me," Van Zandt told about 30 people gathered in the front lobby of City Hall. "When I heard about the racial problems here it really disturbed me.

AP photo

CIFUENTES, Honduras — Honduran soldiers board trucks heading for the Nicaraguan border yesterday. Helicopters from the United States also aided in the transportion effort to transport Honduran troops to fight Sandinista forces reported in Honduras searching for contra troops.

At the University of Massachusetts, meanwhile, preparations began for a speech by a contra on next Monday. Protests are expected at the presentation with UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey saying he will provide security for the speaker. Story page 1.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Come Down and Relax
Free Food 4:30-6:00 p.m. every day
This Week's Specials
Miller and Coors Lite bottles 99¢
All Vodka Drinks $1.40

Bunnies, baskets
& other goodies
for Easter Giving!
FACES
Downtown Amherst
Daily 10-6 Fri. 9, Sun. 12-5

Playwriting
on Nantucket Island
July 1-August 22
The Theatre Arts Department of UMass/Boston offers a special summer program in which professionals and their peers at theatre examine and develop original scripts and work on individual problems of scenic composition and performance.
Participants in the program live in the town of Nantucket in comfortably furnished duplex apartments maintained by the University. Classes are held in the historic Coffin School in the center of town.
The program carries nine academic credits from UMass/Boston. The total cost of instruction and housing is $900. A non-credit option is available by special permission.
To apply, please send a brief statement of theatre experience and academic history by May 15 to:
Dr. Louis E. Bowers, Chairman
Theatre Arts Department
University of Massachusetts at Boston
Boston, MA 02125-3393
For additional information, please call the Division of Continuing Education at (617) 929-7900
UMass/Boston

CLARIFICATION: A headline on Monday's "A Closer Look" article referred to "gender harassment." The headline should have read, "sexual harassment," the topic of the story, since as defined by the University, gender harassment does not have sexual overtones and sexual harassment is not necessarily gender-based.

CORRECTION: An article yesterday incorrectly stated the dates of Dith Pran's imprisonment. He was sent to a work camp in 1975 and escaped in 1979.

Two missing Amherst teens sighted in Fitchburg

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Two teenage girls are still missing from their homes in Amherst, though they have been seen in Fitchburg and probably left home voluntarily, a University police official said yesterday.

Angel Rowland, 13, a resident of University Apartments, was reported missing at 10 p.m. Monday by her parents. She was last seen by her mother at 7:30 a.m. that day, when she dropped her daughter off at school, said Gerald O'Neil, director of public safety.

A 14-year-old girl, whose name has not been released by police, was reported missing at 4:15 p.m. Tuesday afternoon, Amherst police said.

"The two girls were friends," O'Neil said. "They are believed to be together."

"She [Rowland] has been seen in Fitchburg and we believe she is with the other girl," O'Neil said.

Tuesday night at 8:45 the two girls were seen on a street of that city by Rowland's sister, who attends Fitchburg State College, O'Neil said.

"We feel at the moment that they both just decided to leave," O'Neil said. "There has been no evidence of foul play."

Angel Rowland is white, about five feet, four inches tall, has brown hair, and was last seen wearing pink pants, a purple shirt and a maroon jacket.

The 14-year-old girl lives in Colonial Village Apartments. She is white, about five feet, six inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and has blond hair. She was last seen wearing blue pants, a white jacket and bangle blacelets.

Both are students at Amherst Regional Junior High School.

Plan for library out today

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

Plans to restore the University's Tower Library, plagued by falling brick chips, structural problems, roof leaks and faulty elevators since its opening in 1973, will be announced today.

"Mass Transformation," a volunteer project designed to clean and refurbish the library, will be unveiled at a press conference at 11 a.m.

The library's checkered past dates to September 1973, less than four months after the 26-story building opened, when it was discovered brick chips had fallen from the tower.

Further investigation revealed that the problem was related to a lack of weep holes, small holes in the mortar that allow water to drain. Trapped water froze and thawed, breaking the brick facade. Limited repairs were made and no flaking was noticed for two years.

Falling chips, however, were not the only construction flaw. Water damage to the first floor is the result of a leaky deck, according to Roger Cherewatti, director of the Physical Plant.

"The liner under the roof [above the first floor] has broken up," Cherewatti said, "just like your roof leaks at home." He said the problem is compounded by the fact the roof is walked on.

In late 1975 more chips were observed falling from the face of the Tower. Repairs were made and barricades were erected to protect pedestrains from falling chips.

In 1979 more chips fell. A consulting firm was hired to investigate the problem. On Aug. 31, 1979, after an oral presentation of the firm's findings, then-Chancellor Henry Koffler ordered the tower closed in the interests of pedestrian safety.

Findings indicated that 6,000 pounds of bricks were being supported by two bolts whose strength did not exceed 4,200 pounds.

In a Sept. 5, 1979, news conference Koffler said, "The brick panels are attached to the concrete walls of the building in a manner that makes the whole facade unsafe."

A chain-link fence was erected around the building and 1,000 bales of hay, treated with fire retardant, were placed around the building to absorb the impact of falling chips.

At a cost of more than $100,000, 250,000 most frequently used books and periodicals were moved to Goodell Library.

In December 1979 the library reopened on a limited basis with a new entrance. Access was limited to 500 persons at a time, and only to those who showed a "demonstrative need."

In February 1980 the access to the library was extended, but was still restricted to 500 persons at a time.

In May 1980 the state Legislature appropriated $2.5 million to repair the exterior, but in June 1983 University officials concluded no acceptable engineering solutions had been found for the brick facade. The University then obtained special permission from the Legislature allowing the remaining funds to be used for interior renovations.

Interior improvements began in April 1985. At a Faculty Senate meeting that month, University officials expressed hope that the tower will be fully operational by fall of this year.

Cherewatti said that although chips continue to fall, the new entrance, on the side facing the Old Chapel, is protected by a covered walkway.

Cherewatti said repairs to the tower will include refurbishing the elevator cabs and installing a computerized elevator system.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

SPRINGTIME PICNIC — Senior Doug Yargeau and junior Kristin Swift took advantage of yesterday's warm weather for a picnic outside of Brittany Manor apartments.

Professors debate 'star wars'

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

Two University of Massachusetts faculty members yesterday clashed over the feasibilty of the Strategic Defense Initiative, President Reagan's proposal for a space-based weapons system, and whether its development would preclude political solutions to the arms race.

Jerome King, professor of political science, and Michael Kreisler, professor of physics, met in a forum titled, "Should the University Perform SDI Research?" attended by about 35 persons in the Campus Center.

Kreisler, who argued for a "technical solution" and that SDI research should be allowed at the University, said that between the two superpowers there have been no agreements to disarm and there is very little chance that will be one in the near future.

"I don't know if we can build a 100 percent effective shield. But right now there is a 100 percent leak. There is no shield," he said. "Unless we can do something in that direction, we may find ourselves at the mercy of some idiot."

King disagreed, saying, "My fundamental argument is that SDI is not a technical fix, but a political ploy.

"The potential of SDI as a shield will always be a political controversy," King said. "The only proof we'll ever have that SDI works is the president's rhetoric. You can't test the system as a whole. The only test will be when the missiles fly.

"SDI is Reagan's alternative to the [nuclear] freeze movement and a comprehensive test ban - both of which contest military power, which is an illusion in the nuclear age," he said.

King said that in proposing SDI, President Reagan was "totally indifferent to what other nations think.

"The delusion that Americans and congressmen must have is that SDI will work," he said. "I don't want to see the University support the delusion of independence."

A 1972 UMass Board of Trustees directive bars from the campus any research that is classified, cannot be published, or requires outside approval to be released.

King said originally unclassified SDI research may be classified, "if the government thinks it's got something."

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Jerome King, left, and Michael Kreisler debated UMass involvement in the president's "star wars" plan.

Kreisler said, "If the University does work that the government classifies, we should drop it, run away from it, make as big a noise as we can," but stood by his support for unclassified SDI research on campus.

BU professor to give presentation on civil war in Afghanistan

H. Joachim Maitre, a professor of international relations and journalism at Boston University, will give a presentation on the civil war in Afghanistan at 8 p.m. tonight in the Student Union Ballroom. His visit is sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Republican Club.

Born in Gerlachshain, now part of East Germany, Maitre was active in Communist youth and paramilitary organizations. Trained to fly sophisticated Soviet MiG fighter aircraft, he defected to the West in 1953 and eventually became a Canadian citizen.

He began his practical training in journalism as a student editor of the Bonn University journal Spuren in 1959. Later, he became a regular contributor to the Hamburg newspaper Die Welt while lecturing at the University of Nigeria. Press assignments took him all over the continent of Africa until 1963, when he left to pursue graduate studies at McGill University in Montreal.

Again on assigment for Die Welt, he made repeated trips to South Vietnam. More recently, he has spent time with Nicaraguan contras and with Afghan rebels fighting the Soviet-backed government of their country.

Maitre has held fellowships at the Hoover Institute at Stanford University and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The event is free and Maitre is receiving no payment, according to Gil Stair, president of the Republican Club.

— WILLIAM SPAIN

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey discussed the future of liberal arts last night.

Duffey: humanities are in good shape

By DANIEL SOBEL
Collegian Staff

The fields of engineering, computer sciences and other high-tech industries rely heavily on the humanities, and the University of Massachusetts is meeting its funding needs in the area of liberal arts, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey told the Undergraduate Student Senate last night.

"I'm trying to get the [state] Legislature to understand that to read and write and think on your feet and the ability to understand history is just as important as the ability to understand circuits and robotized machines," Duffey said.

"If anyone cares about the humanities and the arts, they should first care about the strength of the economy," Duffey said, arguing that the US is lagging considerably behind Japan in today's highly competitive international economy.

Duffey and Murray Schwartz, dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts, answered five questions submitted by Ellen Breslin, chairwoman of the senate's Academic Affairs Committee, concerning the balance of state higher education funding between high-tech fields and the humanities.

Breslin referred to the proposed $24 million polymer research center at the University as evidence that the levels of funding are unequal. She also said women and blacks are vastly less represented in high-tech employment, and that when layoffs occur in high tech industry women and blacks must then compete with whites who are laid off.

Schwartz said there is enough funding for the humanities this academic year and "if we got as much money as the high-tech fields we wouldn't know what to do with it. Morale happens to be good at the University and is getting better. ... If you want to be a good historian these days you must have computer skills," he said.

Breslin later said she disagreed with Duffey over the importance of the economy and what role it should play in higher education. "I don't think that the burden [of the economy] falls directly on the University. He has a commitment to the arts and humanities but he has more of a commitment to the economy of Massachusetts," she said.

Breslin admitted UMass should gear itself towards high tech, "but there exists a definite lack of creativity in political science, philosophy, in the English departments, and they are being eventually outweighed by the emphasis on high tech."

$1 MOVIE CLUB
NO MEMBERSHIP FEES • $1 PER DAY • GROWING SELECTION

adirondack music
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET • AMHERST

PANASONIC
VIDEO TAPE STD
T-120 HIGH
GRADE, $4.99

Pioneer PK5AW
"All Weather Personal Stereo"
features:
Dolby N.R.
Auto Reverse
Metal Capable
Plus More
$99.95
SAVE 50%

PANASONIC CQE290
similar to illustration
• AUTO CASSETTE RECEIVER
• DIGITAL HYPERTUNER
• PRESETS • FADER
• PLUS MORE
A $189.95 VALUE
ONLY $139.95

TEAC 427 C CASSETTE DECK
•SOFT TOUCH OPERATION
• DOLBY B/C N.R.
$99.95

Last Piece One of a Kind, Demo Specials

Pioneer APM 500 speakers	$1500 value	$149.95 ea.
EPI model 500 speakers	10", 3 way, passive radiator	$149.95 ea
EPI 3DII speakers 3 way tower pyramids	1170 pr val	$149.95 ea
Scott 312D 3 way 12" speakers		$79.95 ea
OHM C3 3 way 10" loudspeakers	$650.00 value	$124.95 ea
Celestion D. Hon 110 speakers	$440 pr value	$99.95 ea
Onkyo CP1027F fully auto direct drive turntable		$99.95 ea
Akai GXC77 auto reverse reel to reel tape deck	$875 va	$299.95
10 assorted audio racks	values to $260.00	$79.95 ea
Car stereo specials from		$49.95
Car stereo demo specials from		$9.95
ADC demo linear tracking turntables (they work)		$19.95

15 East Pleasant St. Amherst all sales cash; MC - Visa - check add 3%
all quantities limited
not responsible for typographical errors

JAMO P180
3 WAY BASS REFLEX LOUDSPEAKER
• 3 YEAR WARRANTY
• $600 VALUE
$99.95 EACH

Photo by David Shimkus

EN GARDE! — David Mendez (left) and Christopher Darland (right) rehearse a fencing scene from Shakespeare's "All's Well That Ends Well."

FYI: Terrorism panel planned

Terrorism and US foreign policy will be the topic of two panel discussions at 4 and 7:30 p.m. April 1 in Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College. Robert Oakely, the director of the State Department's Office on Counterterrorism and Emergency Planning, will participate in both panels.

Neale Dobkin, the vice president of Shearson Lehman and an economics expert will speak at 7 p.m. today in room 116 of the School of Management building. The topic of the speech, sponsored by the Investment Club, will be: "How the Stock Market Reacts to a Changing Economy."

The editor of the Guatemala Network News, Bob Stix, will make two appearances today to address the suppression of human rights in Guatemala. At 4 p.m. he will speak in room 903 of the Campus Center, and at 7:30 p.m., he will speak at the Unitarian Society at 220 Main Street, Northampton.

Trailduster takes a tumble

A 26-year-old Amherst man suffered minor injuries Tuesday when his 1979 Plymouth Trailduster rolled over twice, Amherst Police said. The driver was traveling east on Main Street onto Pelham Road at 11:06 p.m. and skidded sideways into some brush and trees, police said. The man later told police he lost control of his car when another car, driving westbound, crossed into his lane and forced him to swerve left.

— ANNE TAUGER

Grad senate votes to request fee increase

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate voted Tuesday night to request the Board of Trustees to approve a $3 fee increase for graduate students so that more organizations could be funded and reserve funds increased.

The senate also passed a motion condemning Chancellor Joseph Duffey's office's appropriation to pay for security at an address next Monday night by a Nicaraguan "contra." (See story, page 1.)

A comparison of budgets since fiscal year 1981 shows that funding requests have increased about 60 percent. The senate, which had always funded about 90 percent of the requests it receives, saw that figure drop to 73 percent in the budget for fiscal year 1987.

"Everywoman's Center and some other very legitimate and deserving groups haven't even received level funding this year, so money is needed not just to meet higher requests," said Jonathan Frank, a senator from the history department.

Another matter of concern for the senate was that its reserve funds, which have averaged about $39,000 most years, have been depleted to about $28,000 for 1987 due largely to an emergency appropriation for five-college bus service last year.

Although the deadline to request fee increases with the Board of Trustees has passed, the senate will request the board to vote on the increase in the $51 graduate senate tax at its June meeting, rather than in April, when other fee increases will be considered.

Although the motion attacking Duffey was not a political statement supporting or condemning the contras, the chancellor's offer to pay for security was seen as an exception to campus policy in which each group must pay for security at its events if the UMass Police Department deems it necessary.

Frank, who was arrested last spring at Whitmore Administration Building while attending a sit-in opposing investment in South Africa, said lawyers for the University even asked that those arrested be fined for police overtime necessitated by the sit-in. Although the judge in the case did not levy the fines, Frank said the episode proved the University is "paranoid" about the cost of security, and that the chancellor's proposal is not justified.

TRADER FRED'S
LABELS FOR LESS
Hop On Down to Trader Freds
Ladies Jeans
Values to $38.00
Sassoon Unleaded $9.99 Pepe Gloria Vanderbilt

WOMAN'S Forenza French Terry Tops
reg $28.00
OUR PRICE $15.99

Gitano 100% Cotton Print Rompers
reg $18.00
OUR PRICE $9.99

Bugle Boy 100% Cotton pants
reg. $34.00
OUR PRICE $17.99

Forenza Floral Denim
reg. $38.00
OUR PRICE $22.95

MEN'S
Men's Famous Name Brand 100% Cotton Polo Shirts
reg. $22.00
OUR PRICE $10.99

Healthknit Sweatshirt
reg. $12.00
OUR PRICE $6.99

Tourage Dress Pa
reg. $32.00
OUR PRICE $16.99

Special Purchas
100% cotton dress
$9.99

SHOES
Ladies Kiss Sandals
reg. $18.00
OUR PRICE $9.9

VANS checkerbo skateboard shoe
reg. $18.00
OUR PRICE $9.9

Mens Pony Leather Hi-Top
reg. $48.00
OUR PRICE $29.

Mens Puma Leather Hi-Top
reg. $48.00
OUR PRICE $2

Ladies' Clipper Bay Cotton Jackets
reg. $48.00 OUR PRICE $24.95

253-7155
MC/Visa Mon-Sat 9:30-lower level ne
below Steve's

Best Sale of the Year
Seniors!
Graduated Savings.
COLLEGE
$15 OFF ALL 10K GOLD
$30 OFF ALL 14K GOLD
$40 OFF ALL 18K GOLD
One week only, save on the gold ring of your choice. For complete details, see your Jostens representative at:
Date March 26, 27, 28 Time 10:30 - 3 pm Deposit Req $15.00
Price
UNIVERSITY STORE
©1985 Jostens, Inc
JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING

KOSS musicbox

AM/FM Stereo Headphone Radio

Complete with Koss Sound Partner Headphones (these sell separately at $29.) our best walking radio

SAVE $20. $39.

SAVE $80

$198

FISHER® Double Cassette AM/FM Stereo System

FISHER® Double Cassette Music System with Digital Audio Disc Player

Compact Disc Player, quartz digital tuner, high speed dubbing double cassette, 30 watts per channel amp, 10 inch 3 way bass reflex speakers, semi auto belt drive turntable & matching cabinet

SAVE $200 $598

FISHER®

Quartz Digital 8 hour cable ready Video Recorder

14 day 4 event timer, cable ready tuner witn 82 channel memory, 13 function wireless remote soft touch controls

$348

Panasonic.

High Speed Dubbing Portable Double Cassette Tape

A portable (battery or AC) operated high speed dubbing double cassette with AM/FM stereo radio

$99

AVID 60

SAVE $50 ea

"Top Rated" Mini 2 way Speakers

$59 ea

SAVE $100

$149 ea. JBL

THE JBL L56. 10 INCH 2 WAY DIGITAL STEREO SPEAKERS

Whether You want To Build A Digital Ready System OrSimply Improve Your Present System The JBL L56 Is A Great 10 Inch 2 Way Speaker High Effeciency, High Power Capacity Great Sounding Loudspeaker

JENSEN EL-TECH

AM/FM Stereo Car Cassette Tape Player

Super value, a pair of Jensen 6x9 coaxial speakers is matched with an indash AM/FM stereo cassette tape player

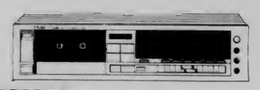
$69

SAVE $80

TEAC. 326 DOUBLE B CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER

Dolby B Noise Reduction, DC Servo Motor, Soft Touch Controls, 3 Positions Tape Selection, Mike Inputs, Separte Record Level Controls, Freq. Response 30 to 16,000 HZ Metal tape Capability

$69



SAVE $80

SCOTT 639 DOLBY B & C METAL CASSETTE TAPE DECK

Dolby B & C Noise Reduction, Metal Capability, Soft Touch Controls, Mike Inputs, Headphone Jack, LGE Function Indicators, Digital Counter, Freq. Response 25-18,000 HZ

$99

FISHER

High Speed Dubbing Double Cassette Tape Deck

Metal tape, high speed dubbing of one cassette to another, Dolby noise reduction, softtouch controls sequential play

$99

FISHER® 712 BELT DRIVER TURNTABLE MAGNETIC CARTRIDGES

Super Value, Straight Tone Arm Belt Driver for Accuracy, Matching Shock Absorbing Base & Dust Cover, Factory Installed Magnetic Cartridges

$69

FISHER AD 813 Compact Digital Audio Disc Player

Fantastic value, index serach & skip function, 3 position repeat, freq response 20-20,000, digital dash

$199

SAVE $80

Panasonic. PORTABLE OR HOME COMPACT DISC PLAYER

Works on Optional Battery Pack (Like A Walkman) or Plugs Directly into your Stereo System, Works As Well As Full Size Disc Players The Best of both Worlds

$199

ALL 4 STORES OPEN THURS., FRI. TILL 9 PM

The Sound Co.

AMHERST OPEN SUNDAYS 12 - 5 PM

★future of policy

continued from page 1

policy can be put into effect during a period when a group of employees effected by the policy are formally considering unionization," said James Leheny, associate to Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

UMass professional workers, the only non-union campus employees, will vote May 1 on whether they wish to be represented by one of two unions.

Howard Gadlin, the University ombudsman, said the policy "is not going to be distributed [for final approval] until the union matter is settled."

However, a National Labor Relations Board supervisor based in Boston said there is no reason not to implement the revised policy during a period of proposed unionization.

"Until the union is recognized, there is no obligation to talk to them [unions] about it [changes]," Robert Rebord, the acting supervisor, said in a telephone interview last week.

Leheney yesterday reiterated the University's position, saying, "A grievance procedure during formal deliberation concerning unionization may easily be interpeted as changing working conditions."

The Office and Professional Employees International Union and the Massachusetts Teachers Association are the two unions competing to represent university professionals.

The University sexual harassment policy defines sexual harassment as "unwelcomed sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other verbal or physical conduct of sexual nature."

The policy was supposed to be reviewed one year after it was implemented in 1982, but was not because no formal complaints had yet been filed, according to UMass officials.

The current policy is flawed but functioning well, according to Ron Sinacore, chairman of the Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel and acting director of the Affirmative Action Office. "It's not working the best that it could, but it's working," Sinacore said.

Sinacore said the new policy will remain basically the same, but that changes are proposed in some technical parts, such as deadlines he called "unreasonable."

He cited the amount of time allowed to respond to a complaint after it is filed with the ombudsperson. If a complaint is filed, and the complainant decides to have a formal hearing, the ombudsperson sends a written complaint to the vice chancellor in the department of whoever is accused of harassment. The vice chancellor currently is given only one working day to respond to the chairperson of the Sexual Harassment Hearing Panel.

"They should not be so rigid as they are. What if the vice chancellor is gone for a day?" Sinacore said.

Sinacore also said he thinks the panel is too small. Each hearing includes a faculty member, a student, a staff member and one administrator, out of 13 members of the panel. He said the small pool of panelists makes it difficult to arrange a hearing with one member from each group, and that therefore he expects the size of the panel to double.

Grant Ingle of the Office of Human Relations said he hopes the updated policy, by being more efficient and better publicized, will encourage more victims to come forward.

Leheny said proposed revisions of the current policy began about a year ago, and are the result of a combination of input from the Office of Affirmative Action, the Everywoman's Center, and The Mediation Project, among others.

End of series

Share the health GIVE BLOOD

American Red Cross

Blood Services – Northeast Region

1985 ARC

EUROPE by CAR

RENT or BUY LOWEST PRICES FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS

EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

THURSDAY

6-9	Grapefruit if You Must
9 am	NEWS
9-12	Concepto Latino
12	NEWS
12-3	Swing to the Left
3-6	Hip Noises with Ben Wilder
5 pm	NEWS
6-7	UMASS Hotline
7-10	BMCP THe Chic
9 pm	NEWS
10-2	BMCP Mark E.
2-6	House o' Fun

This Easter season, Crabtree & Evelyn offers a delightful selection of childrens' gift baskets, and great gift ideas for both men and women!

Visit our charming shop soon!

CRABTREE & EVELYN

71 North Pleasant St., Amherst 253-9561 Open 7 days

Bruno's

PIZZA SUBS

PIZZA SPECIAL

ONE FREE ITEM OF YOUR CHOICE ON ANY LARGE PIZZA

ALSO AVAILABLE WORLD CLASS SUBS FREE DELIVERY!

EXPIRES APRIL 30th, 1986

4:00pm to 2:00am
363 MAIN STREET, AMHERST
256-0222

REMINDER

Summer College Work Study Applications

are available in the STUDENT EMPLOYMENT OFFICE 239A WHITMORE

Deadline:

Friday March 28

You must have a 1986 - 87 FAF on file

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief | Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor | Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor

Peter Abraham, Sports Editor | Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor | Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor | Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor

John Yonce, Women's Editor | Michelle Segall, Photo Editor | Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor | Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

What politics have come to

Timothy Harris

It scares me when world leaders act like 12-year-old boys. 47 people died horribly because President Reagan couldn't resist Col. Khadafy's double-dare. Reagan felt like proving that his navy "goes where it damn pleases when it damn pleases," and, presto, the U.S. is on the brink of war.

The attack on Libya was a deliberately provoked confrontation to showcase America's awesome military might. If one remembers Dresden, Hiroshima, Nagasaki, Vietnam, El Salvador, etc., it's clear that America's ability to destroy has long been beyond question.

Americans no doubt feel pretty good about this latest flex of democratic muscle. We demonize the Libyans, viewing them as some sort of terrorist sect, and proudly pat ourselves on the back for scraping a little scum off the world's waters. It's like professional wrestling when the blond blue-eyed hunk takes the Slavic guy with the fu-manchu hand-shaved head and smashes his teeth into the post. The simple applicaiton of labels like "free world" and "terrorist" places the blame where it may fall; on the opposition.

The Reagan administration is very adept at creating reality through the power of naming. The Sandinistas, for example, are known as a "communist dictatorship" even though Nicaragua's Communist Party lost by a wide margin in an election recognized as fair by all observers but those from the U.S. Reagan calls Nicaragua a center for "world terrorism" with only the most nebulous facts to back him up, and refers to the murderous contras as "freedom fighters." If a lie is repeated enough it may begin to acquire the ring of truth.

Reality is routinely oversimplified by the U.S. media for easy digestion. Perhaps "Libyan strongman" Moammar Khadafy is a bit unstable; maybe he isn't the sort of guy you would want at your dinner table, but he and his country are certainly more complex than the cartoonish charactures the media offers us. The Totalitarian Terror/Freedom and Democracy dichotomy is a bit too pat to be of much use for serious analysis.

An interesting phenomena is the way Reagan's popularity surges when he acts tough. The nation swooned with admiration when he stormed tiny Grenada with 2,000 Marines just prior to his reelection. Reagan has shown how far he is willing to go to for his contra aid package, but until recently it had all just been hyperbole.

Which brings up the question, was the deliberate crossing of Quadaffi's "line of death" only a show of strength for its own sake? Whether the bad guys this year are the Iranians, the Nicaraguans or the Libyans, our goodness is measured against their badness. The polls will not doubt let us know how good we feel about beating up Libya.

The timing of this is really too perfect to be coincidental. Could Reagan have decided to blow up a few Libyans to create a climate favorable for passing his cherished contra aid? If so, it would be cold and calculated murder; terrorism, if you will. Could it have been just a costly media event, with real blood and bullets. Has world politics come to this?

Timothy Harris is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Some lessons from friend's death

College, despite the anxieties of tests, boring professors, and roomate hassles is a lot of fun. Few of us think of matters of life and death. If we do, it may be the loss of a friend or a family member, but we rarely reckon with our own mortality. So it was not with surprise that I read Stephen Erickson's article about the seat belt law. Automobiles are so much a part of our daily lives that we often lose sight of the fact that they are the most dangerous weapons available to us. A lot of us live in fear of being mugged or raped, but not many people understand the incredible violence that can be the result of a car accident.

The State Police, the Governor and the Legislature are trying to educate people to the benefits without showing them the terror of gory accidents. Wearing a safety belt is a small cost to pay for a most precious benefit; one's life or at least a much greater chance for survival in the event of an accident.

In the last year I've lost a family member and a close friend to car accidents. My cousin was a police officer responding to a call. His cruiser went out of control when he hit a patch of ice and he was killed. He was buckled in. He was in a dangerous job but he took every precaution he could take. My friend was killed when he was thrown through the windshield. He was not wearing a seatbelt and the driver had been drinking.

I can live with the former situation because every precaution was taken and an unpredictable variable intervened. My friend's death could have been avoided. Stupidity or just carelessness killed him. It's not a game. People die and are mutilated every day. A great many of these tragedies could be reduced if we think. Buckling your safety belt could be the difference between damaging your car and losing your life.

Robert O'Brien
Amherst

Masters of manipulation

Peter Dow

After the initial defeat of the contra aid in the Congress last week, one can only conclude that the Sandinistas are, indeed, masters of manipulation. While some far left Democrats wholeheartedly support the Marxist-Leninist doctrines of the Sandinistas, many other moderate Democrats succumbed to the barrage of Sandinista propaganda, and dealt a disastrous blow to the Nicaraguan rebels. This outcome can be attributed, in large part, to the effectiveness of the Sandinista lobby in the United States.

First, the Sandinista lobby has placed heavy emphasis on sponsoring tours for Americans to Nicaragua, as a tool for "educating" the public to support the Sandinistas. Such tours are usually taken by religioius groups and are often financed by the United Church of Christ and other religious political organizations. The importance of such pilgrimages is obvious, as the Sandinistas must display their Marxist political system and its institutions in the most favorable light. Tomas Borge illustrated how important such tours are to the Sandinista government, saying "Nicaragua's most important war is the one fought inside the U.S. ... the battlefield will be the American conscience... when the visitors return to the U.S. they have a multiplier effect on the public opinion of your country..."

Thus the tourists are given the red carpet treatment; nearly all tours are directed by the Sandinistas or their supporters, and they meet with selected Nicaraguans and Sandinista leaders who glorify the revolution. The manipulation involved in this process, however, is the tool which solidifies support for the Sandinistas. A report printed in the Congressional Record, for instance, detailed the experiences of two members of a Nicaraguan tour, sponsored by a Minneapolis group, "During the two week period our group was subject to incessant, thinly disguised indoctrination... one technique was setting aside a period for "reflection time," when our guides encouraged discussions, putting emphasis on 'feelings' rather than facts...the tour is designed, organized, and conducted to overwhelm the participants with information which supports the anti-U.S., pro-Sandinista bias of the tour's sponsors..." The participants concluded that "It is virtually impossible for anyone who is naive and uninformed, and trusting of their guides, not to succumb to this type of brainwashing..."

In addition to these attempts to manipulate the visiting foreigners, the Sandinistas also place much emphasis on persuading U.S. Congressional representatives to support their causes. There are many individual examples of Sandinista fabricaiton of stories and distortion of facts being used by members of Congress in the debates over contra aid (including many efforts of our two Massachusetts senators). More illuminating evidence exists, however, which proves that the manipulation of American officials is an explicit policy of the Sandinistas.

For example, a six-page memorandum from Rita Delia Casco of the North American Department of the Sandinista Foreign Ministry to Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega detailed the desired handling of a U.S. delegation composed of Senator Chris Dodd, Rep. Mike Barnes and Rep. George Miller. First, Casco reminded Ortega that "these persons are friends of the revolution," and require an appropriate amount of friendly attention.

In particular, the important position of Mike Barnes as Chairman of the Subcommittee on Inter-American Affairs led Casco to conclude that Barnes "has very special power and influence, and special care should be taken to cultivate his friendship." As a possibility, Casco suggested the tactic of "relating some information to Barnes and asking that he keep it a secret: this will make him feel that he enjoys our confidence." Finally, it was recommended that Ortega present "small gifts to the Congressmen and their assistants; cigars, liquor, and if possible some folk art or posters" to show the Sandinistas' appreciation for their help.

In short, while every country in the world strives to present its society and institutions in the most favorable light to foreign visitors, only communist regimes seem to enjoy overwhelming success. Such manipulation of political tourists became official policy in the USSR in the 1930s, in Cuba and Vietnam in the 1960s, and now in Nicaragua. The key to Sandinista success is their Marxist-Leninist structure which not only contrtols the allocation of economic resources but also controls an intimidated population which, in most cases, will not publicly question the "reality" which is defined by the authorities for foreign visitors.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Looking back at the SGA

Stacy Roth

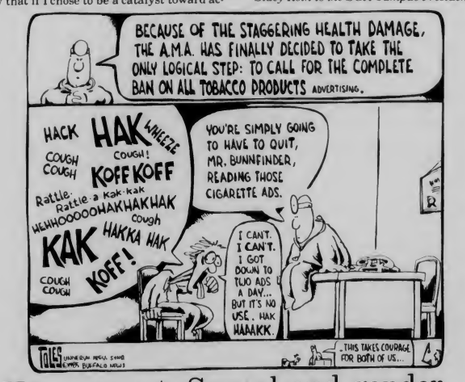
It was April 1, 1985. My walk from Sylvan to the Campus Center seemed especially short that day. Perhaps it was because I had a renewed interest in everything around me; or perhaps it was because I was wondering about exactly what I had just gotten myself into. You see, I had just been elected SGA Campus President, and I was on top of the world.

It was April 1, 1985. For the preceding three months, I had been ravenously pouring through files of memos, reports, fact sheets, meeting notes and who knows what else. I was attempting to learn even more about a place which had become a large part of my life for my first two and a half years at UMass. I had walked for endless hours with Dani; we walked from door to door, Hatch to Coffee Shop, and Worcester D.C. to Franklin to Berkshire and then we began over again. I wanted to meet as many of the 18,300 undergraduates here as I could, I wanted to know if you shared my concerns; I wanted to know what you needed. I felt completely overwhelmed. There was so much new information to learn, so many new ideas to process. I entered the office with a good, solid knowledge base, and yet there was so much more.

It was April 1, 1985. I knew that I was entering a new dimension of the "Student Government Zone." For months I had not seem my dearest friends. I came home at one in the morning, only to begin my homework and have "dinner." I was beseiged by the love, support, energy, patience and loyalty of friends who knew how tight my time was and made special attempts to reach me or to help me. I am indebted to the many who shared by crazy hours in order to see Dani and I elected. I was ecstatic to find a dish of homemade lasagna waiting for me in my suite lounge when I returned home at 3 a.m. from the campaign trail. I remember saying thank-you, but never the way I wanted to say it. This is not exactly the way I meant to do it either, but one more time, "Thank You--You are Wonderful."

It was April 1, 1985. I set out to work, with my co-officers. Our issues ranged from solving internal conflicts, to saving sports teams, to finding study space, to simply making the SGA a more accessible place to students and to finding ways to let you know what the SGA was about and what issues we were working on. I learned quickly that if I chose to be a catalyst toward action and not always be directly involved, I would be able to accomplish much more for students. I learned quickly that thank-you's for hard work are few and far between and that the inner-strength of knowing how much good you could accomplish would have to suffice.

I learned quickly that all one really needs to be successful is the self-confidence to take risks. I learned quickly that if I continued to learn all of the facts, I could present new ideas as well as very good defenses for old ones. I learned new perameters of patience, modified my style in order to maintain my sanity and build friendships which I hope to never lose.



It is almost April 1, 1986 and my term of office will be over. I have had many disagreements, and have solved many problems. I have endured one of the most stressful experiences of my life and have realized an amazing thing--I truly enjoyed, learned, had fun and loved "almost" all of it. You know, being SGA Campus President is a difficult position. One definately can not please everyone any of the time, let alone all of it. But is was worth it and if I had the time and could begin from where I am right now, I would like to try it again.

Finally though, I would like to step back a second and say thank-you. For what? For voting, for stopping by the office, for helping if you could, for anything and everything. We all have a lot to learn; about people, about issues, about being good, about hurting people, aobut the world around us, about everything. I had some very nice times. All in all, it was the combination of all the little things which made my year bearable and worth it.

I encourage you to stay in touch with the SGA and with the issues on campus. There may be a lot of malarky, but there are also a lot of very hard workers behind the scenes. Just for the sake of it, find out who those people are, stop them on campus and ask what's up. If you don't have time to stop, just say hello. A small smile goes a long way during a difficult day. Enjoy the remainder of the semester and good luck.

One more thing--Diane, Dani and John--thanks for everything. The drinks are on me!

Stacy Roth is the SGA Campus President.

Harassment: Sexual and gender

Sexual harassment is a serious problem and unfortunately, one which is easily misunderstood. I want to thank Ilana Levenson for her continued efforts to bring to light the issues surrounding sexual harassment on our campus, and also offer some points of clarification regarding her articles of Tuesday and Wednesday.

- Sexual harassment and gender harassment are very different issues and the article blurs the line which separates them. Sexual harassment is unwanted sexual attention, while gender harassment does not have sexual overtones. Both types of harassment represent sex discrimination, however, and are serious issues.

- While the sexual harassment of female students by male professors represents a common category of cases, many instances on our campus have involved employee-to-employee and student-to-student cases as well.

- A recent study at Harvard revealed that sexual harassment was experienced by 34 percent of female undergraduates, 41 percent of female graduate students, and 49 percent of untenured female faculty. It is likely that these rates of sexual harassment are similar to those on our campus.

- There is excellent documentation regarding the extent to which female undergraduates and graduate students experience sexual harassment on our campus (Pulse Survey, spring 1983). This same survey was readministered recently, and more up-to-date results will be presented by staff from the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office from noon - 1:30pm on April 23 at the Human Relations Forum in Campus Center 805-09.

Grant Ingle
Office of Human Relations

We are not that naive

Mark Caldeira

Mouse farts, baby gerb, vomit accumulation in Ft. Lauderdale, my face-- I wanted to write about funny phenomaena such as these in this column. I truly had hoped that I would be able to evade political solemnity this week. I even decided to abstain from crushing Reagan for his schizoid, little-baby-lusts-lolipops-and-wants-them-now-damn-it demonstration of blithering idiocy in his frantic begging for contra funds on TV last week. Unfortunately, the graveness of an upcoming event rendered my political abstinence impossible.

On Monday, the UMass Republican Club will plague the UMass community with the presentation of a member of the U.S.-backed terrorist mob, the contras. Jorge Rosales, press secretary and fabrication minister of the FDN faction will be accompanied by Mike Waller, director of publications for the council for inter-American security. This is probably a once in a lifetime opportunity for most of us - to meet, face to glaring face, two individuals who make a living by raping and slaughtering innocent people.

Under the guise of "Nicaragua: A Revolution Betrayed" these two thugs will lecture lies to us about their intervention and counterrevolution. They will call it a "civil war," mendaciously portraying the butcheries of the CIA brainchild as a struggle of a "popular democratic force." They seek to be monetarily and morally awarded for their "democratic" actions. Then they will go back to Honduras to continue their bloody war against the people of Nicaragua.

Rumor has it that Chancellor Duffey and the Chancellor's Office will provide funding for the security of these mercenaries. This act in itself is horrendous enough, but the hypocrisy involved is simply intolerable. Calling himself a "liberal," and at times a "progressive," Duffey offered to cover security for these illegitimate bandits of the right, having previously denied security funding to speakers of the legitimate ANC of South Africa. Duffey has not only regurgitated the conservative, mainstream ideological grub of everyone left-of-center being so dangerous as to necessitate utmost protection for right-wingers; Duffey has clearly shown his alliance with the right. A self-proclaimed liberal and progressive, who actively supports right wing policies is clearly a hypocrite.

Everyone concerned about the contra war and everyone who is outraged at the presentation of two of its conductors is asked to come, is begged to come to Bartlett 65 at 7 p.m. on Monday to protest the lies, the raping of women and children, and the massacre of innocent Nicaraguan people that these two men are deeply involved in. They come to entertain us, to woo us, to shower us with "freedom of democracy." But we are not so naive; we see the Nicaraguan blood oozing from these pretentious actions and phrases. Please attend the protest Monday evening, and come to the Nicaraguan teach-in at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 1 in Campus Center 101.(Contact CASA for more information.) We must stop the ruffle of right wing riff-raff.

Mark Caldeira is a Collegian columnist.

Dreams that are shared by all

Timothy Harris of the Radical Student Union has outdone himself. In his article, "The over amplified right" (March 13), he has shown a blatant disregard for the truth concerning conservative student involvement on this campus.

According to Harris, the "conservative" movement of the University is a well funded, highly organized minority. Harris would have you believe that the UMass Republican Club is being nurtured and supported by big business in America. Unfortunately, this view is incorrect.

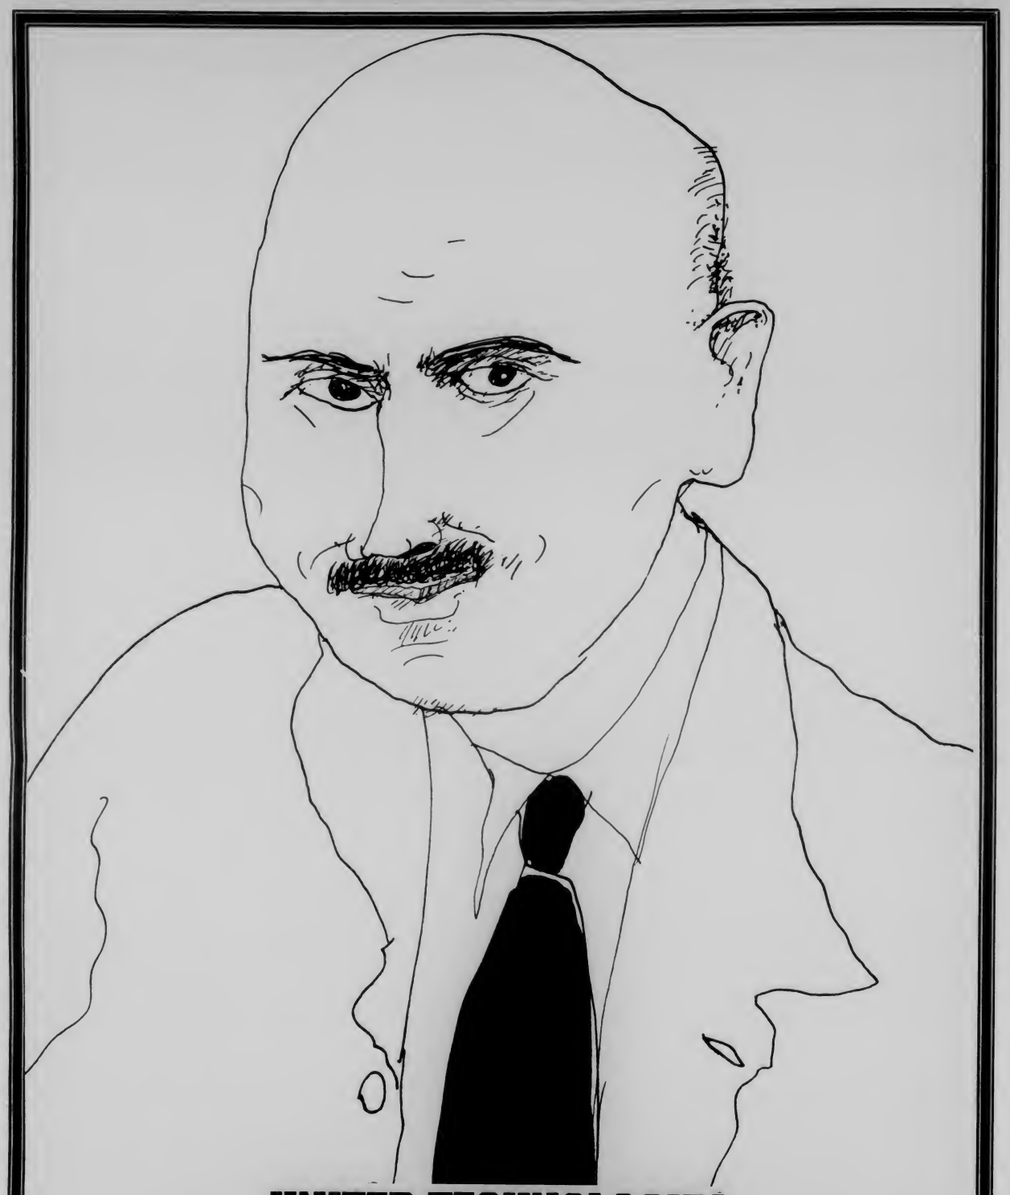
The Republican Club is an RSO that receives its funding from the SATF. For the fiscal year 1985-86, this amounted to $965. We have at no time solicited financial support from outside organization, nor have we received any. This includes the College National Republican Committee.

There is no organized effort underway by the Republican Club to direct the actions of the governing bodies of the SGA. It is true that at the first general meeting of each fall semester, the Republican Club encourages students to become actively involved in the SGA. This call to exercise student rights is one which I'm sure the RSU advocates. To the best of my knowledge, none of the "conservative" students serving as senators are being paid to do so by the College National Republican Committee, the Ray Shamie Foundation or Adolph Coors.

I'm sure that it will surprise Harris to learn that many of the dreams he has are shared by Republicans on campus, and across the nation. I will list a few:

1) A world free from discriminaton--sexual, racial, cultural.

2) A world free from the threat of nuclear destruction.



3) A world free from hunger.

The differences between Harris and Republicans lies in our perceptions of how to create such a world.

Gilbert Stair,
president UMass Republican Club

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified ad counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail received, individual replies cannot be made.

All letters submitted for publication must be signed and include the author's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Letters must be typewritten and double spaced at 67 characters per line. Column submissions should be between 40 and 60 lines. All submissions are subject to edition for clarity and length. — Editor.

UNITED TECHNOLOGIES IS LOOKING FOR ANOTHER GODDARD.

Everyone knows who fathered rocketry. The U.S. government made it official in 1960 when they paid for NASA's use of some 200 Goddard patents with a posthumous grant.

At United Technologies, we credit Dr. Robert Goddard with parenthood of an entirely different technology. In an undergrad paper at Worcester Polytech, he suggested the possibility of a high-speed electromagnetically-driven transit system. Otis Elevator engineers have applied that concept to people movers.

United Technologies companies have many such budding technologies under development: composites, robotics, artificial intelligence, to name a few. For each one, someone has to play the Goddard role. It might well be you.

One difference: Goddard worked alone. You'll join a company of 12,000 engineers where excellence is recognized and rewarded.

Like to know more? Stop by your campus placement office. Or write United Technologies, P.O. Box 1379, Hartford, CT 06143.

United Technologies means Pratt & Whitney, Hamilton Standard, Otis, Carrier, Automotive Group, United Technologies Microelectronics Center, Norden, Chemical Systems, Essex, Sikorsky and United Technologies Research Center.

An equal opportunity employer.

UNITED TECHNOLOGIES

Position Available

Student Staff Coordinator

Housing Assignment Office

Position Description: The Student Staff Coordinator is responsible for day-to-day operations of the Housing Assignment Office student staff. Position responsibilities include but are not limited to: interviewing, training, scheduling, evaluation and close and on-going supervision over 10-12 subordinate student staff members. Assists in staff development for all staff assigned to the Housing Assignment office section; promotes positive attitudes and behaviors among subordinate staff in the area of service delivery and human relations. Incumbent must be sensitive to new student housing concerns and should be able to facilitate effective and expeditious resolutions. Under all circumstances, this position will emphasize service delivery.

Qualifications: Demonstrated (through previous experience and/or recommendations) supervisory and organizational abilities; ability to work with diverse populations; ability to communicate effectively in oral and written form; ability to work effectively under stress.

Eligibility: Graduate applicants preferred but will consider applications from qualified undergraduates. All applicants must have at least 3 semesters remaining at the beginning of Fall Semester 1986.

Pay Scale: Hourly rate beginning at $4.55.

Starting Date: Successful candidate must be available full-time beginning May 26, 1986. Position requires full-time employment during summer/intersession periods, 20 hours/week during fall and spring semester.

Application Deadline: Completed applications, currently available in the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore Administration Building, must be received by April 18, 1986.

SNACKSENSE

SOME FACTS ABOUT FAT

Functional Fat
Fat in your diet carries fat soluable vitamins such as A, E, D & K. It also provides essential fatty acids. Body fat protect body organs and provides insulation.

BUT, a diet high in fat is associated with an increased risk of heart attack, stroke and breast cancer. Fats are also high in calories.

How to cut down
- drink skim or low fat milk and use it in cooking too.
- substitute low fat yogurt for sour cream or use a mixture of the two.
- eat fewer fried foods and try more fruits and vegetables instead.

University Vending Services & University Health Services
Division of Health Education/University of Massachusetts/Amherst

CHEERLEADING TRYOUTS!

All University Men and Women Invited

Practice Dates: March 31, April 1 & 2
Time: 8:00 pm
Place: Curry Hicks Gymnasium

COME TRY!

No Experience Necessary

WE DELIVER

ATILLA'S 2
Hampshire Mall
Home of Amherst's First and Finest Gyros

Don't sink from hunger Emerge yourself in one of our subs

GYROS
A delicious taste sensation.
Marinated beef served inside our fresh homemade pita bread along with your choice of toppings:
Special Salad — finely chopped tomatoes and onions specially marinated
Cacik (White Sauce) — homemade yogurt enlivened with cucumbers and mint

PITA TURKEY
Thinly sliced turkey breast in our pita bread with lettuce, tomato and mayonaise

SOUVLAKI
Beef charbroiled on skewers, wrapped in pita along with seasoned onions, lettuce and feta cheese

PITA CLUB
A tempting combination of thinly sliced fine turkey breast with crispy bacon served with lettuce, tomato, and mayonnaise in our fresh pita bread

PITA B,L,T
Crisps bacon stuffed into our pita bread with lettuce, tomato, and mayonnaise

STROMBOLI
A real taste tempter
Spicy ground beef combined with cheese and a tangy tomato sauce, baked inside our fresh pita dough

HAM SPEEDIES
Thinly sliced buffet ham in our pita with lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, smothered in cheese

STEAK SPEEDIES
Marinated steak in our pita bread with lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise and Bermuda onions smothered in cheese.

GREEK SALAD & PITA BREAD
A refreshing salad of tossed greens with the classic combination of feta cheese and greek olives, served with a fresh pita bread.

VEGETARIAN DELIGHT
A green garden salad tucked inside our pita bread with Italian dressing, feta and provolone cheese

TUNA PITA
Freshly made tuna salad in our pita with lettuce, tomato and mayonaise

11:00 am to 9:30 pm weekdays
11:00 am to 11:00 pm weekends
Just call 586-7070 for fast free delivery

ARTS

Record Review

King of America
The Costello Show
Produced by T-Bone Burnett and Declan MacManus
CBS Records (Columbia) 1986
By KEVIN M. SWEENEY
Collegian Correspondent

Whatever happened to Elvis Costello? Well, he dropped the name Costello, became Declan Patrick MacManus again, and began to sing the blues. Really, it's the truth. Perhaps the most prolific and talented songwriter of the eighties has once again done his damnedest to change gears completely on his most recent album, King of America.

On an emotion drenched version of the Animals' classic "Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood," Costello (a.k.a. MacManus) sings, "I'm just a soul who's intentions are good. Oh Lord, please don't let me be misunderstood." Though I am sure his intentions are admirable, I don't believe being understood is one of them. Don't get me wrong, this is a great album by a great musician, but it is also one of Costello's most confusing stylistic changes to date.

This is not the rave-up, rocking Elvis of the late seventies, nor is it Costello, the early eighties British popster. Instead, Costello has decided to take a trip back to his roots. The music here is pure folk, blues, and rockabilly. He combines the brooding, melancholy lyrics for which he is already famous with a lean, bare-to-the-bones sound produced by T-Bone Burnett. There are no symphony orchestras or thundering guitars here. Rather, Costello has created a very personal album filled with insight and anger. No doubt this record will be disturbing to the faint of heart, who are used to the bland wimperings of American top 40 radio.

With this change of style, Costello has lost the Attractions this time around; only one cut, the bitter "Suit of Lights" features his longstanding and outstanding sidemen. Instead, he and Burnett have assembled an impressive group of sessions players, who understand "roots rock," because they are a part of it. For example, Ron Tutt who provides percussions on several cuts has worked with the likes of Fats Domino. Costello seems as comfortable with this band, which he calls the Confederates, as he always has with the Attractions.

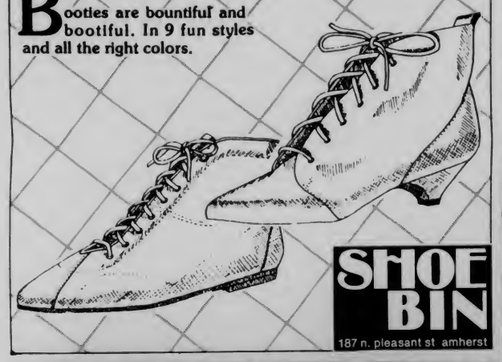
With the help of the Confederates, Costello takes the listener through a tour of his mind and the origins of modern rock music. His working class anthem, "Little Places," is an all out excursion into the world of folk music with a combination of gritty lyrics and sparse musical accompaniment by acoustic guitar and mandolin. Both "Glitter Gulch" and "Big Light" are rockabilly raveups that could stand well in the company of Jerry Lee Lewis, the master of rockabilly. With "Our Little Angel," Elvis gives the listener a taste of old-fashioned American country music, and "Poisoned Rose" is a nice little jazz blues piece in the spirit of "Almost Blue" off of Imperial Bedroom. Finally, "Lovable," which he co-wrote with his fiancee Cait O'Riordan of the Pogues, is a classic mixture of all these styles and his famous sardonic wit.

All in all King of America, is an exciting record by an always refreshing and innovative musician. Even with its few weak tracks like "Eisenhower Blues," it is still a unique blend of roots and experimentation. There are many who will compare this album favorably with Bruce Springsteen's Nebraska. I think that this would be a fair comparison; both are examples of great song-writers experiencing their roots with style and flair.

NAACP holds grudge against Oscar choices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Motion Picture Academy's failure to bestow any Oscars on "The Color Purple" is "a slap in the faces" of producer-composer Quincy Jones and director Steven Spielberg, the NAACP says in a complaint.

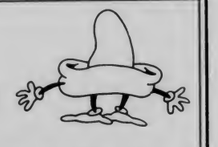
The NAACP's Hollywood-Beverly Hills branch sent a letter of protest Tuesday to the academy, complaining about what publicist Connie Watson called a "blackout" - an industry effort to suppress black film projects.



The film about a rural black woman's struggle for self-worth went into Monday night's awards ceremony with 11 nominations, the same number as "Out of Africa" which won seven Oscars, including best picture.

"The Color Purple" failed to win any, tying 1977's "The Turning Point" as the most nominated film to lose in the awards derby.

A spokesman said the Academy would have no comment, noting that winners and losers were the result of secret balloting by its 4,244 members.

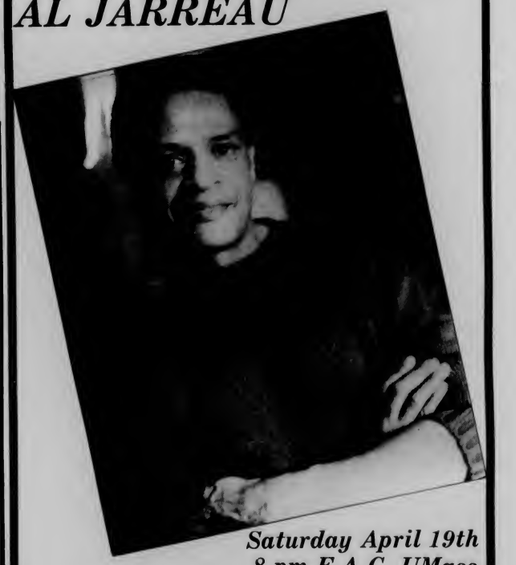


continued on page 14

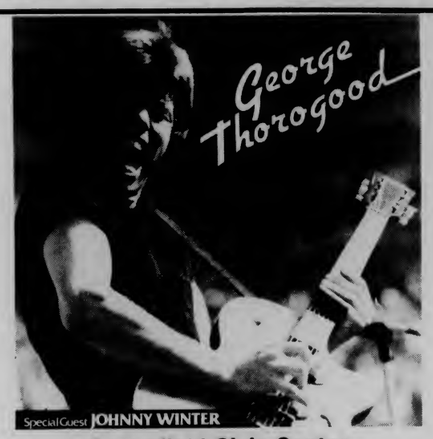
Bootles are bountiful and bootiful. In 9 fun styles and all the right colors.

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst

Try one of those salads that comes in the bowl you can eat!



...Offering Quality Mexican Foods



TACO VILLA

NORTHAMPTON	AMHERST	SPRINGFIELD
21 CENTER ST	41 BOLTWOOD WALK	749 SUMNER AVE
584-0673	256-8217	788-0919
Beer & Wine Served	Beer & Wine Served	Beer & Wine Served

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash only 6 ticket limit
On sale 3/31/86 at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Springfield Civic Center
Saturday, April 19th-8:00pm
$13.50 advance, $14.50 day of the show
TICKETS ON SALE ON CAMPUS AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES: (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
Produced in association with WAQY

LIVEWIRE
BY TOM MIDDLETON

Overall, this looks like a good week for music. You might have to travel to see some of the better shows but there should be enough of a variety to satisfy everybody.

Tonight, The Cult and The Divynals are playing at the Agora Ballroom in Hartford, Ct. If you need a label I guess this is a punk show. I've heard very good things about The Cult. The Divynals are new to me.

If you want to go north you can catch The Stompers at Flatstreet in Brattleboro, Vt. This band plays everywhere in New England and I think they are on perpetual tour. Basically, they do mainstream American rock 'n roll.

Friday night there's a good choice. There's a dance marathon to benefit the people of El Salvador at Hampden Dining Commons. The event starts at 9 p.m. and goes until 7 a.m. The line-up is filled with some really good local bands. The following are scheduled to play: Dinosaur, The Outpatients, Don't Ask, The Potatoe Heads, Circle, Free Press and The Steadys. It will cost you $3 unless you want to be sponsored as a dancer. The deal is you go to the CASA office on the 4th floor of the Student Union pick up a sponsor form and then find some friends to sponsor you by the hour.

At the Hatch, Nightmare Alley is playing with Free Press. Nightmare Alley is from New York City. The press release says they're loud and fast but I haven't done my homework so I don't know what they're really like.

Also Friday night at the Iron Horse, Full Circle will blast away. This is a good fusion band from Boston.

Saturday night, Livingston Taylor will play at the Iron Horse. this guy is James' brother but has gotten real far on his own merit. This should be a good folk show.

On Wednesday, there is a great motown show in Springfield. Check it out, The Temptations, The Four Tops and Martha and the Vandellas. I'm pretty sure there are tix still available but you should call first to find out.

At Pearl Street Wednesday, the Pajama Slave Dancers are having a record release party. This band is from the area and they are a lot of fun. They do lots of fun, danceable, silly tunes. If you don't feel like studying and want have some fun, you might want to go to the show.

Thursday night, The Bangles are playing at Smith College. I'm sorry, I'm really not sure if there are any tix left. Anyway, this band is riding high with their hit "Manic Monday."

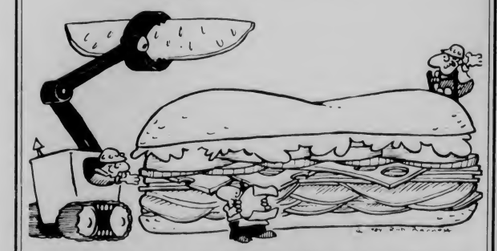
Tix are available for the following: Stevie Ray Vaughan at UMass; Kiss and George Thorogood and the Destroyers at Springfield. There's alot more music that I couldn't fit.

John Grillo has exhibit

John Grillo, painter and member of the UMass Art faculty, will exhibit his work at the Jones Library's Burnett Gallery for the month of April. There will be a reception on April 4. Grillo is known for his brightly colored figure and landscape paintings.

April will bring us a new exhibit at the University Gallery as well. Sculptor Mel Kendrick will show his recent sculpture from April 1 through June 8. The exhibition will include eleven wood sculptures and three cast metal works. His abstract work can be considered biomorphic or anthropomorphic forms. Kendrick has been included in recent exhibitions at the Museum of Modern Art, and the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York.

"Figure Drawings from the Permanent Collection" will also be on display from April 1 through June 8. This exhibition includes fifty drawings spanning the years 1921-1980 from the University's collection. The show has been organized by the students in a Museum Studies seminar here at UMass.



Lodestone
STARTS SAT!
3/29

13 N. Pleasant
Amherst, MA

48 Main St.
Brattleboro

Can we build one for you?
serving "quality" foot long subs.

If you believe that a sub should be more than just a lot of bread. It's time to visit

Reminder: We Deliver FREE

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-6314
Open til 8 pm M, T & W
10 pm Th, F, S

WE CAN'T TELL YOU WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN YOU SEE ROBIN WILLIAMS IN CONCERT.
WE DON'T KNOW. NEITHER DOES HE.

Springfield Civic Center
Limited Capacity "Mini-Arena"
May 7th-8:00pm
All Seats Reserved-$15.50
TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY, MARCH 31st-10am
ON CAMPUS AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES: (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
THIS PERFORMANCE IS PRESENTED FOR MATURE ADULT AUDIENCES
Produced in association with 96TICFM

NORTH AMERICA'S TRIBUTE TO THE ROLLING STONES
The Blushing Brides

Special Guest DOMAIN

Springfield Civic Center Exhibition Hall
Friday, April 4th-8:30pm
$7.50 advance $9.00 day of the show
TICKETS ON SALE ON CAMPUS AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
Produced in association with WAQY
ALL AGES WELCOME. CASH BAR — 21 AND OVER

Record Review

The Barry Altschul Quartet
Irina
Soul Note Records

By GLENN SIEGEL
Collegian Staff

The Barry Altschul Quartet begins Irina with tip toed syncopation. Altschul is cracking the rhythm on the rims of his drum set, sounding like Sandman Sims on the Apollo Theater dance floor. Bassist Mark Helias is insisting on a regular, if slightly jagged beat, while John Surman, baritone saxophone, and Enrico Rava, trumpet, enter in unison with a pungent line. During the head as well as the improvised passages of Ray Anderson's "Tap-A-Jack," indeed whenever Altschul picks up sticks, his group's have a palpable enthusiasm for rhythmic permutations.

Growing up in The Bronx, the 43-year-old Altschul was no doubt enveloped in a swirl of swing, soul, Latin and European music. Along with a steady earful of car horns, sirens, mingled voices and ambient city noise, it is easy to picture him as one of those precocious kids for whom the whole world is a percussion instrument.

Altschul arrives at his point in a number of ways. He can swing with the unflappable assurance of Jo Jones, has the driving energy of Elvin Jones and, with Sunny Murray and Andrew Cyrille, has pioneered a liberated conception of the drum's time keeping function. His comfort in a variety of grooves is matched by his willingness to play every part of his drum kit. That element of resourcefulness is what makes an Altschul-led date so exciting.

Listen, for example, to their novel arrangement of Fats Waller's warhorse, "Jitterbug Waltz." There is a constant shifting of the rhythmic sands, beginning with a slow, slurred statement of the melody by Rava. Altschul and Helias lay down a Latin-tinged beat the first time through, double the tempo for the next go round, then fall into a funky blues walk, which before long is racing at a comfortable 4/4 clip. There are detours for a dance-hall kick line figure and an inventive drum solo, but nowhere is the basic 3/4 waltz rhythm anything but hinted at.

Mark Helias' compositional contribution, on the other hand, is just what is says it is: "Le Tango." There are no solos in the piece, just the highly interactive contrapuntal lines of Rava and Surman above the tango. Next to the mercurial metric variety in the album's other five pieces, the sustained form of "Le Tango" provides a refreshing pause and allows the two horns to shine.

The trumpet and flugelhorn work of Italian-born Enrico Rava is one of the LP's great pleasures. His tone is alternatively fat and relaxed, as in Altschul's sensitive title composition, then thin and darting, in the manner of Don Cherry. "There is a daring in Rava's playing--a refusal to play it safe," writes Nat Hentoff. "And that quality gives his music, of course, a special dimension of excitement."

John Surman, who hails from England, plays a Lacy-like soprano saxophone on Irina, but concentrates primarily on the baritone sax. The amazing control he maintains in the upper register of the big horn sometimes makes it difficult to tell which of the saxophones he is playing.

Mark Helias is also a member of the Barry Altschul Trio (with trombonist Ray Anderson). The two are beginning to approach the telepathic rapport that Altschul achieved with bassist Dave Holland in the 1970's, when Anthony Braxton, Sam Rivers and Chick Corea were among their colleagues.

Since his first two dates as a leader for Muse Records, "You Can't Name Your Own Tune" (1977) and "Another Time/Another Place" (1978), Altschul has had a simple formula for success: invite the most accomplished and versatile avant-garde players, work hard at developing a group sound, then let his playful love of rhythm infect everything. Throughout Irina that strategy again yields positive results.

★ Oscars

continued from page 12

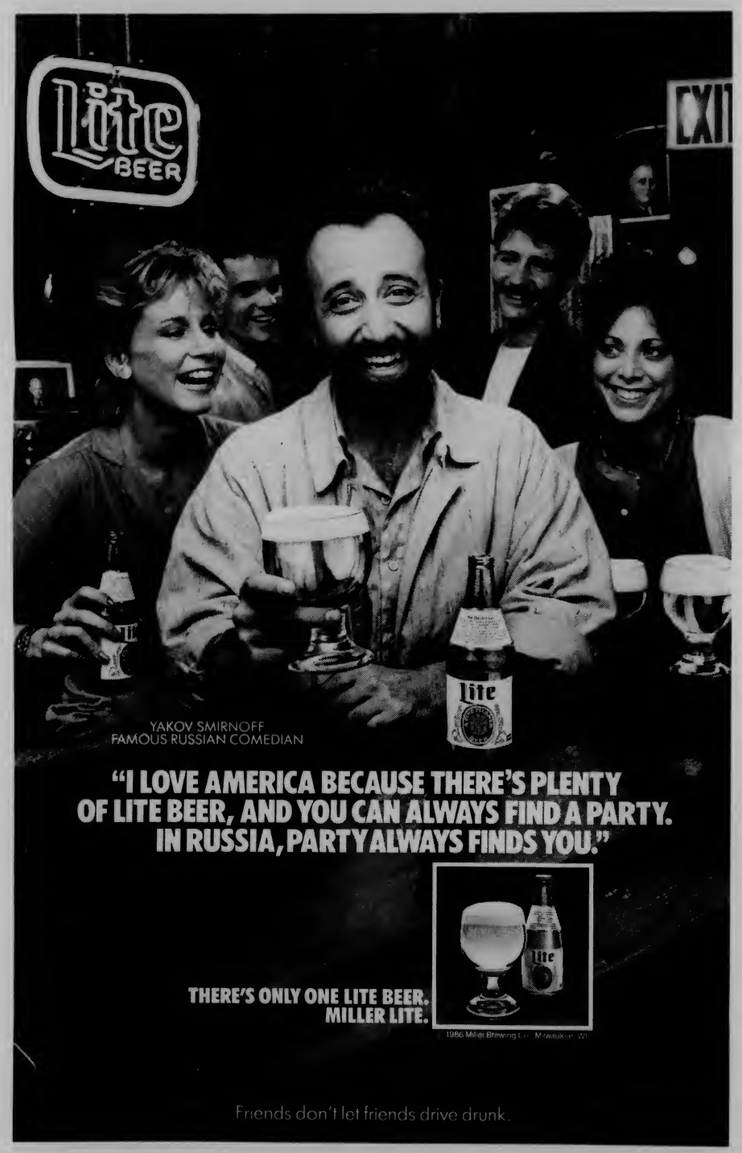
The NAACP called the film's treatment by voters "not only an insult to the talents of the wonderful artists participationg in this motion picture, but a direct slap in the faces of Quincy Jones and Steven Spielberg, two of the most talented personalities ever to work in this industry."

"I think there is a very strong social implication," Jones said after the Oscar ceremony Monday night. "That's the way it is, and we'll have to do something about that."

"I guess not enough people liked it," said Walter Mirisch, former Academy president. "I think people really enjoyed 'Out of Africa,' which was a good, big scale movie, the kind that David Lean has made."

Jack Valenti, head of the Motion Picture Association of America and a lobbyist and spokesman for the industry for nearly two decades, said in Denver on Tuesday that there was no conspiracy to shut the movie out of Oscar contention.

"A lot of people believed other performances were better," Valenti said, adding that the vote totals in the various categories were not known.



He took issue with the Academy's omission of Spielberg from the nominees for best director, saying it "verges on being a travesty. Two hundred and thirty-four directors in the Academy make the choice nominations in that categgory, and to me they were out to lunch."

Sydney Pollack, winner as director and co-producer for "Out of Africa," declined to analyze the reason behind "Purple's" failure.

"You put me in a difficult spot," he told a reporter, "because I can't win no matter how I answer that question. And I would like not to put a damper on the evening by trying to speculate on an undiplomatic question with an undiplomatic answer."

The Oscar show, in ratings trouble in recent years, fell a bit more this year, according to national A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings released Tuesday.

ABC-TV said the three-hour, 14-minute broadcast had a 27.3 rating with a 43 share, slipping slightly from last year's national rating of 27.7 and audience share of 45. A national ratings point equals 859,000 homes with television.

★ hazing

continued from page 1

tion activities that threaten the health and safety of others can be jailed for 100 days, fined $1000, or both.

"They were up to a prank but now the law says it's illegal," St. Coeur said. "It's important for people to understand that our members were not involved."

St. Coeur said he is worried about the incident's potential effect on his house. "I hope it doesn't hurt our reputation, but I'm under the impression that people will get the wrong idea. I don't want that to happen," he said.

Three-day symposium begins today

By BARBARA DELOLLIS
Collegian Correspondent

An informal welcome at 3 p.m. today by Catherine Portuges, a professor of Women's Studies at the University of Massachusetts, will open the second program of the Five College Women's Studies Project on Feminism and Difference.

The three-day symposium will discuss the subject "Gender and Visual Representation," and was preceded by a six-week series of film and video screenings in the five-college area.

"Race, Culture, Class: Challenges to Feminism" was the first topic discussed in the two and a half year project. That symposium was held last December at Hampshire College.

Lorna Peterson of the Five College Center, a sponsor of the women's studies project, said she hopes that the same faculty members will attend each symposium.

An estimated 80 faculty members of the five-college area will be attending this weekend's symposium, according to Portuges. Since much of the curriculum involves screenings, she said, much of the symposium will be open to the public.

This symposium will deal with the portrayal of women, and women's works in films and videos, according to Portuges.

The following screenings will be open to the five-college community: A Different Image at 8 p.m. tonight in Sage Hall at Smith College. Born in Flames at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Merrill room 2 at Amherst College. The last screening, The Man Who Envied Women, is an area premiere and will play at 8 p.m. Saturday in Merrill room 2 at Amherst College.

The women's studies project is funded by a grant from the five colleges and the symposium received the support of Murray Schwartz, dean of the faculty of humanities and fine arts at UMass.

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!
Styles by Deborah
Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

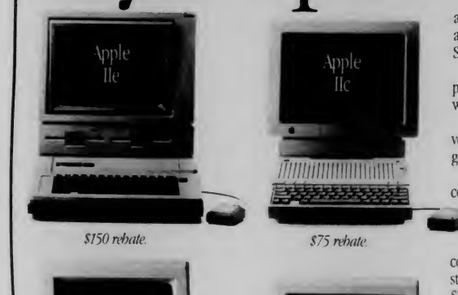
EASTER DOCUMENTARY ON THE LIFE OF JESUS CHRIST
Thurs. March 27, 7:15 pm
Rm 175 Campus Center
Free Admission,
Snacks and Drinks
sponsored by
Alliance Christian Fellowship

NURSING: CHECK IT OUT
New England Deaconess Hospital
School of Nursing
Fall openings available
• One of Boston's finest teaching hospitals
• Three-year diploma program affiliated with Northeastern University
• B.S.N. available through articulation with Northeastern University
• Clinical experience starts in the first year
• Low tuition
• Scholarships and loans available
• 100% passing rate on state exams
Don't delay! For more information or an application please call Joy Erb, recruitment coordinator at (617) 732-8369.
NEW ENGLAND DEACONESS HOSPITAL
School of Nursing
1 Autumn Street
Boston, Massachusetts
02215

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9) Hadley 253-2571
150 King St, Northampton 586-8220



THERE IS STILL TIME TO ENROLL
Study at
The Hebrew University of Jerusalem
A Unique Academic Opportunity plus the Unforgetable Experience of Jerusalem.
Choose from One Year Program or Summer School
Language of Instruction is English
For further information and applications write:
the Hebrew University
1318 Beacon St., Brookline, MA 02146
or call: 617-371-6810

So, let me get this straight
You put me in my own summer business,
Provide $4,000 of advertising,
A $3000 line of credit,
Plus business training and field support!
If you are an undergraduate or graduate student, we can move you Forward-Fast! For years, people just like you have been running their own summer business, gaining valuable management experience, and earning $15,000.00 plus with our help so...
MOVE FORWARD -FAST!
for Application or information phone Immediately (617) 444-0834
student painters

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704

How to get money out of someone besides your parents.

$150 rebate. $75 rebate.

$200 rebate. $175 rebate.

All you have to do is visit your authorized Apple dealer by June 30th and take advantage of "Apple's Student Break" rebate program.

Buy an Apple® IIe, the most popular computer in education, and we'll send you a check for $150.

Buy an Apple IIc, a compact version of the Apple IIe, and you'll get back $75.

Buy a Macintosh™ 512K, the computer you don't have to study to learn, and you'll get a $175 check.

Or buy a Macintosh Plus, the computer that gives more power to students, and get a whopping $200 rebate.

But first, you do have to do one thing that you're probably pretty good at by now.

Ask your parents for the money to buy the computer.

© 1986 Apple Computer Inc. Apple and the Apple logo are registered trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Macintosh is a trademark of McIntosh Laboratory, Inc. and is being used with its express permission. For an authorized Apple dealer near you, call (800) 538-9696, ext. 455. Offer good only in the United States.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

founded 1870

Circulation 19,000

Serving the Five College Area

Executive Board

Editor in Chief
Dode B. Levenson

Managing Editor Ian Polumbaum
Editorial Editor Larry Bouchie
Production Managers Peter Soderberg, Conor Plunkett
Business Managers Sherry Sharfman, Elizabeth Young

Business Board

Asst. Business Manager
Steve Rubin

Advertising Manager Paul Lesser
Finance Manager Vanessa Roth
Asst. Advertising Mgr. Melissa Forman
Asst. Finance Mgr. Kim Jackson
Circulation Manager Craig Naugle
Subscription Manager Karen Holland

Associate News Editors Jeanette DeForge, Patrick Johnson, Nancy Klingener Associate Editorial Editor Rob Skelton Associate Sports Editor John Nolan Associate Women's Issues Editor Ilana Levenson

Assistant to the Editors Anita L. Roye

Systems Manager Mathew Atkins Assistant Systems Manager Adam Lavine

Business Coordinator James Ristuben Senior Bookkeeper Maureen Magerowski Classified Manager Cathy Chilson Graphics Advisor Faye Whitney-Lussier Assistant Subscription Manager Alan Wilcox Advertising Layout Noelle Merlino Marketing Ron MAggio, Randi Schey, Patrice Lawsky Office Assistant Sue Cirella Maintenance Dan Roth Advertising Representatives Nancy Warhafting, Jon Cohen, Michelle Montagne, Maureen Crowly, Robin Engel, Stacy Wiederlight, Jeff Hammond, Stephanie Zucker, Robyn Leifer, John Kennedy, Shawn Stepanate, Cozy Wolan, Debbie, Stein, Ivan Speilberg Day Graphics Beth Bazinet, Amy Custance, Sue Lattanzi, Betty Ann Murphy, Jim Podesky, Kathy Wheeler, Sarah Cook, Andrew Myerson, Larissa Potapchuk, Jim Rice, Petra Phillip Librarian Tom Middleton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS permit No.58), a registered student organization at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, is published Monday through Friday excluding holidays, exams and vacation periods. Content is determined solely by the Collegian Board of Editors, without prior approval from University administrators, faculty, staff or student government. Operations are funded solely by advertising and subscription revenue. Subscriptions and advertising rates are available at 113 Campus Center, UMass-Amherst 01003, (413)545-3500.

ARE YOU
PREGNANT
& IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
- Same Day Results -
Services that are Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Now An Additional Location
adjacent to the UMASS campus
in the Amherst Creamery Building

Skills a professional secretarial service

WORD PROCESSING, TRANSCRIPTION,
THESES AND DISSERTATIONS
MANUSCRIPTS. a specialty
Monday - F
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
150 Fearing Street, Amherst
Telephone: 549-2686

it's that time again

when the Textbook Annex must begin to return unsold spring books to the publishers,

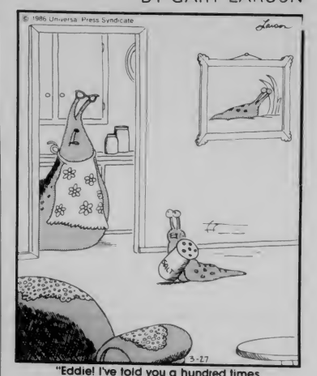
Returns start March 31st

Don't wait -- You may be disappointed!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Open Mon-Fri 9AM-4PM

free catalog★
Europe



From BOSTON	round trip from
LONDON	349
PARIS	439
AMSTERDAM	418
BRUSSELS	398

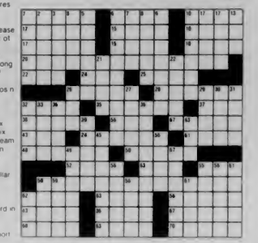
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 when busy 256-1261 or drop by
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

"Eddie! I've told you a hundred times never to run with that through the house!"

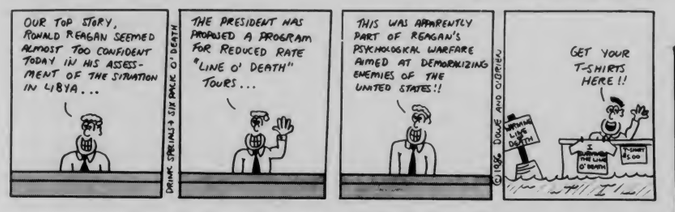
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Hackneyed
6 Otherwise
10 Kismet
14 Health genus
15 Reclined
16 Responsibility
17 Muffet or horner
18 Swedish Nightingale
19 Part of a budget
20 Brigadoon composer
23 Sun: speech
24 Rather dapper chap?
25 Relations
26 Yearns
28 Feed the fire
32 Mine, to Pierre
35 Restless desires
37 Commotion
38 Star of Cygnus
40 Metallic product
41 Warehouse
43 Emulated 17 Across
44 White sale purchases
47 Facial features
48 Camelot magician
50 Tomato disease
52 Descendent of Fatima
54 I, to Caesar
55 Minstrel's song
58 Oklahoma! composer
62 Bed for a bos'n
63 Pastures
64 Maternally related
65 Verbal suffix
66 Within, Prefix
67 High-tech beam
68 Actor's plum
69 Weapon for Tommy
70 Inscribed pillar

DOWN
1 Complains
2 Ibis, e.g., bird in the land
Luther
3 Chilean export
4 Served a winner
5 City on the Rio Grande
6 Musical Duke
7 Temporal
8 Kitchen receptacles
9 Boundary marking
10 Black or Sherwood
11 Turn over — leaf
12 "I Whistle a Happy — —"
13 Superlative ending
21 Sari wearer
22 More than Rubenesque
26 Tell a tall tale
27 Mountainside debris
29 Salver
30 Easy stride
31 Cote dwellers
32 Giselle composer
33 Boundary
34 Peerless person
36 Singer actress Florence
39 Bounty's captain
42 Reception
45 Breathes
46 Utah flower
49 Required
51 Prototypes
53 "— You Glad You're You?
55 Renter's guarantee
56 Soviet coop
57 Rhone feeder
58 Anthice
59 Peruvian
60 July 4th, e.g.
61 Flying insect
62 — canto

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



B	A	T	H	E		S	A	A	R		C	A	P	T
O	N	I	O	N		A	I	D	E		A	B	L	E
T	O	P	A	Z		G	R	A	D		N	E	A	T
H	A	I	R	Y	F	A	I	R	Y		N	A	T	O
			H	I	N	T		E	T	Y	M	O	N
S	E	A	M	E	N		S	E	D	A	N
A	C	R	O		E	F	T	S		P	A	S	S	E
C	H	A	R	A	D	E		S	T	E	N	T	O	R
S	O	N	A	R		A	T	E		M	I	T	A
				Y	A	L	T	A		D	R	Y	R	O	T
S	T	I	F	L	E		H	O	D	E
T	I	R	O		S	O	G	G	Y	D	O	G	G	Y
O	M	E	R		S	H	E	D		D	R	A	M	A
D	O	N	A		O	R	L	E		L	A	M	A	R
P	R	E	Y		N	E	O	N		E	L	A	N	O

3/28/86

1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/28/86

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES
BY R. MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

Lunch
D.C. BURGER DAY
Double Burger on Sesame Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll
Tartar Sauce

MENU

Dinner
Simmered Corned Beef
Horseradish, Steamed Cabbage
Sweet and Sour Chicken Fingers
Tomato Torte

Basics Lunch
D.C. BURGER DAY
Tofu Burger with Roll
Boston Burger on Sesame Roll
Tartar Sauce

Basics Dinner
Sweet and Sour Chicken Fingers
Tomato Torte

Staff Notice:

All Collegian editors and associate editors, including Larry, must attend a newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, an assistant managing editor of the Springfield Daily News.

The workshop will be held next Wednesday, April 2, at 8 p.m. in a yet-to-be-announced room. Mandatory for editors, other staffers are welcomed and encouraged to attend.

Weather

Today: Mostly cloudy with a 40 percent chance of showers. Highs will climb up to 60 with the wind coming from the Northwest at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

Tonight: Gradual clearing will give way to lows in the middle 30's.

Friday: Sunny, warm, high's in the 60's.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor Peter Abraham
Copy Editor Liz Hettinger
Layout Technician Conor Plunkett
Photo Technician Michelle Segall
Production Supervisor Conor Plunkett
Production: Nancy Klingener, Rob Catalano, Mia Rowan, Kelly Sieger and Norm Achin.

ENTER THE MISS HAWAIIAN TROPIC

HAWAIIAN Tropic

INTERNATIONAL PAGEANT

Sportswear and Bathing Suit Competition

CONTEST HELD AT

Thursday March 27 at 8 pm

CHANGES dance/club

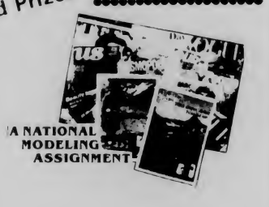
256-8284

HAWAIIAN TROPIC SELECTS MODELS FOR ITS NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN FROM CONTESTANTS WHO ENTER THE MISS HAWAIIAN TROPIC INTERNATIONAL PAGEANT.

Contestants have until 5 PM March 27 to register MISS HAWAIIAN TOPIC UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETS will receive in addition to other prizes an all expense paid trip to the beautiful PLAZA HOTEL IN DAYTONA BEACH to compete in the MISS HAWAIIAN TROPIC USA competition August 13-18, 1986. Miss Hawaiian Tropic International will receive: A NEW PORSCHE 944 SPORTS CAR, A DREAM VACATION FOR TWO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, AND AN INTERNATIONAL MODELING ASSIGNMENT WITH HAWAIIAN TROPIC. Finalists receive: A LUXURIOUS FUR COAT, A DIAMOND PENDANT, and an all expense paid trip to HAWAII. For further information contact: Craig B. Keenan, Young Adult/Promotions Manager. 549-4066, 253-9071 or Grad Rosenbaum 253-9071 or Mike Kane at Changes 256-8284

And win these Grand Prizes

A LUXURIOUS FUR COAT



A NEW SPORTS CAR

The Porsche 944 above will be awarded to Miss Hawaiian Tropic International 1986. Eech year the title winner will receive a luzurious sports car as one of our febulous Grand Prizes.

A MONARK SKI BOAT

Sportboat S-I Stern Drive complete with trailer

A NATIONAL MODELING ASSIGNMENT

In August 1986, 100 lovely young ladies will gether at the beautiful Plaza Hotel in Daytone Baech for a week of fun, entertainment, and excitment of competing in the second Miss Hawaiian Tropic International USA Finals.

Hawaiian Tropic invites you to enter the second annual Miss Hawaiian Tropic USA Finals to be held in Daytone Beach, Floride, August 12-18, 1986. Hawaiian Tropic, the #2 selling suntan cosmatic in the world, is sponsoring this globel seerch for the beautiful young lady who will reprasent Hawaiian Tropic with her health end beauty.

Co-Sponsored By:

Miller

MADE THE AMERICAN WAY

as seen in ... People weekly

HAWAIIAN Tropic

BEAUTIFUL TANS BEGIN WITH HAWAIIAN TROPIC. . .

To enhance their tans each contestant will receive a generous supply of Hawaiian Tropic tanning products.

HAWAIIAN Tropic SUN CARE & SWIM WEAR

FACULTY!

The Textbook Annex needs your

HELP

to allow us to get all the necessary textbooks for the fall semester please send us your textbook orders

ASAP*

*as soon as possible

necessary forms are available through your departmental secretary or the textbook annex

ALSO: please inform your students that we will be returning this semesters unsold books to the publishers beginning March 31st

THANKS!

the UNIVERSITY STORE's TEXTBOOK ANNEX @ physical plant bldg

Beer with us!

Choose from our bounty of more than 80 varieties of imported beer!

We won the Valley Advocate's "Best Beer Selection" award - 1982!

Our selection now is EVEN BETTER.

We now feature our own brand of low priced LIQUORS as well as our super selection of WINES at very affordable prices.

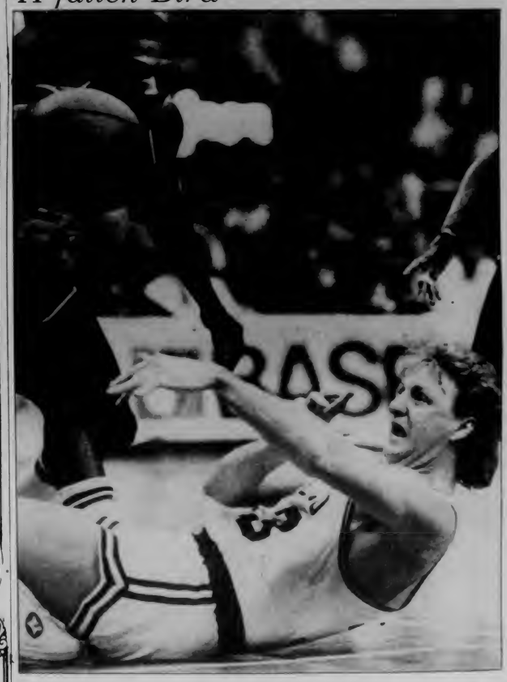
Plus BULMER'S CIDER

BILLY'S BEVERAGES

Beer—Wine—Liquor



SUNDERLAND • 665-2727

We welcome your empties!

UPC PARTY

8 pm 12 am 4 am

A fallen Bird

AP Photo

BOSTON — The world's best basketball player, Larry Bird, puts in that little bit of extra effort last night, scrambling on the floor for a loose ball before making a pass as Milwaukee's Charles Davis looks on. The action came in the first period at the Boston Garden.

The Celtics, with an 8-0 run that broke a tie late in the contest, rolled to their ninth straight victory, 121-115 over the Bucks. The run was sparked by a Bird layup.

The Green are now two short of the franchise record for consecutive wins at home, the venerable old Boston Garden.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day

Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ATTENTION

3-D MOVIES
Thursday, March 27 CCA
5 pm $1.25
featuring the 3 Stooges
Creature from the Black Lagoon
8 & 11 pm $1.75
It Came from Outer Space
plus classic comedy in 2-D
glasses are free

"Should SDI Research be Performed at the University of Massachusetts? Wednesday, March 26, 4:5:30 p.m., Campus Center 174

Documentary on the Life of Jesus Christ and teh meaning of Easter. Room 175, 7 p.m. free admission, snacks and drinks

25 + Club is having a social hour Friday 3/28 6-8 pm TOC. Join us

AUDIO

BOSE 101 speakers for sale $150 or BO call 6-7917

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Rabbit - fuel injection, 92k, many new parts, Blaupunkt AM/FM cassette $1795 or BO Jon 256-8443

1980 Pontiac Phoenix, standard, front wheel drive, one owner. $1,400. 256-1489 eves

72 Ford Mustang body in excellent condition new: exhaust, brakes, suspension. BO call 549-6632

1976 Honda Accord very clean new parts stereo $1000 negotiable 253-5693

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom apartments. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8355

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7436

Roommates needed for summer on Cape Cod Hyannis area call 546-5288 or 546-4717

CAPE COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

CAPTAIN VIDEO

Congratulations on your new baby! Men and women work well together from your friends at Roy's Towing

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH TONIGHT!

Discover Sorority Life, friends, and fun all university women invited to rush at Delta Zeta tonight 6 pm for more info call Pam at 549-6466 or 253-9916

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-7641

MOBILE MUSIC INC dinks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

Dead Tix - trade any Providence show for Friday Hartford show 546-5850

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus Pay it safe-call 5-2153 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Room available in vacant house this summer with option to rent next fall 5 min walk from town and UMass call for more info Mary 549-6799

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach call Heather 549-1106 or Mark 546-9291

FOR SALE

Guitar Electra electric sx string excellent condition 200 with hardshell case contact Andrew 1-6489

73 Ford LTD must sell! $500 OBO low rust, runs great Doug 545-2591 or rv msg 549-7597

Smith Corona TPI Printer $115.00 Computer Table $75.00 256-1489 eves

X-Country Skis, Karhu 210's, boots, poles and bindings, waxless, $75, 256-1544

Gucci Watches only $30 call 6-7480

Gold Clubs. Ladies starter set w/canvas bag. Used once. $95.00 774-7682 eves. Ask for Debbie

Peavy Guitar Amp Head 210 watts, many features $280 or best offer call Dave after 5:00 549-1703

3.4 cu. ft. Kenmore refrigerator only used 1 year. $125. or BO call 549-6593

Soft Contact Lenses most daily wear lenses, $18.00 to $25.00. Most extended wear lenses, $35.00 to $48.00. Most soft tinted lenses, $35.00 to $45.00. Lowest prices on all solutions, anywhere. Flexcare $1.98, heat units, $12.95. Amherst Optical Shoppe, Inc., 195 No. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5412 or (413) 256-6403

FOUND

Red glasses' case with glasses keys call 6-9172

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Part-time merchandisers 25 hours a week. We seek mature-minded persons to service our book department keeping it attractive and up-to-date. Opening at STOP & SHOP HADLEY, MASS knowledge of and interest in books a definite plus. Dependable car essential. Must be available to work a flexible weekday schedule that will involve morning to afternoon shifts. Please call 1-800-524-9904 Barnes & Noble Bookstores, Inc. equal opportunity employer M/F

Work study, lab dishwasher, 5-7hr wk. $4.25/hr, April and May, summer option 545-2764

Sophomores, Juniors looking for career experience? WMUA is hiring a new Business Manager Great opportunity for SOM majors interested in radio. Book keeping and computer experience a must 9-10 hours per week $3.35/hour. Applications available at the Student Activities Office or WMUA thru April 4th SGA is an equal opportunity employer

Camp Lovallowa, AIHC, 180 Wheatley Road, Brookville, Ny 11545. A residential, recreational camp for mentally retarded in Hunter, NY., is accepting applications for summer employment. Write or call (516) 626-1000

INSTRUCTION

Jewelry Making Class
begins next week
Jackie Vajra 549-6539

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost two keys on campus before Spring Break, unattached. Lorcan 546-9132

Kabuki 12-speed taken from Webster 2nd floor lounge over break. This bike was a gift from my father who I rarely see. It has alot of personal value to me. Please call if any knowledge of its whereabouts. Reward for return any condition. No questions asked Liz 210 Webster 6-7073

Lost black and gold papermate pen at Newman Center. Engraved Carlos. Very sentimental. Please call 549-4136

Lost gold frame glasses in Campus Center. If found call Jodi 6-8670 reward. Hurry I can't see w/out them

MOTORCYCLES

Suz GS650, 5000 mi, good cond, fairing with stereo, $1200 or BO, 256-1544

Honda '82 CB 750 F exc cond $900 mi many x-tras $1700 BO 665-4543

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th- May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden Application deadline April 1st 5-0960

Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo

Come see Animal House Thurs March 27 at Mahar Aud 5:00 $1.25, 7, 9, 11 $1.75 It will be a great time

Madog Thanks for putting the ad in Mathos

To the WILD Irish Rose: You've got me all screwed up, and since I still don't know your name, it's my turn to pick the game. So when the clock strikes one on Thursday morn, check your bot to see what you find. Remember as the song says, if you keep me guessing I still won't understand, the next move is yours!

Attention U.S. citizens freedom-fighters on campus! Support free speech and oppose communism in Central America!

Sea Semester: Spend an incredible semester at sea and learn more than you ever will in 4 years. Find out more on Tuesday April 1 1:00-3:00 Campus Center rm 903 or call 546-6376

Do you like watersports? Call Jen or Dawn 253-3625

MADOG - the legend lives on. . .

To the girl that sits next to me in Lucille Halgenu Psych class: leta get trashed tonight and forget about all our worries!! Your Drinking Partner

So you have to wait another two years - Have a Happy Birthday - wild woman! Go nuts - wait til tonite. Love, Deb, Alyssa, Michelle, Lauren

To my fraternal twin! Happy Birthday Randy! Summer '86 - watch out! Love, Deb

Free Press Save this upcoming Friday at the Hatch 9 pm, Saturday 5 am Hamden, S.W., Sun at Noho Ctr Fr Arts 2 pm Free beer! PAZ

Melissa Rice Happy 22 love your roomie

Here comes Emo!

Here comes Emo! Watch this space

Mary Jane, I know how much you like opals and thought you might like to know there is a 3 opal and diamond pendant for $60 and another opal and diamond pendant for $25 and much more at Golden Opportunity 13 N. Pleasant St. Amherst at Lodestone what do you think? Love, Bruno

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate needed for summer in Hyannis new house, ideal location low weekly rent. call 546-7397

Female housemate(s) needed for summer on Lake Pod call Karen 582-4072

SERVICES

COINS 121-123 Tutoring $7.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime 665-7652

Tailor for alteration SHAANN's at Mall 584-9362

Looking for housekeeper? Call Jobs 253-3406 rate $6/hr

SUMMER SUBLET

Need people to sublet our Southwood apt starting the first week of June. Cal 256-1508

TRAVEL

Summer '86 Kenya safari scenic locations! Sun, fun and adventure. Student rates available. Free information (413) 549-5664 (413) 549-7116

WANTED

Subjects needed — Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage set construction, site prep, security) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3 week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Aria, 545-2803/4

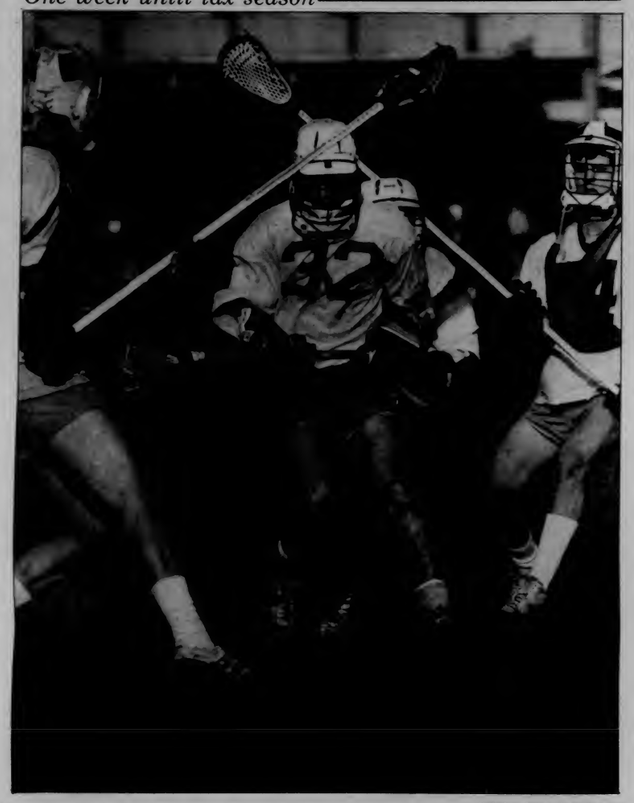
Vocalist needed to complete the Fugative Guys 1/2 Clash REM Roxy Cont also keyboards call now for try out 6-6796

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April, May and September Contact Aria 545-2803/4 Auditions, 4:30 April 3 Hagis Mall, Fine Arts Center

Wanted Dead or Alive Triumph TR6 in any condition call 634-2297

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease of house or apartment, 2-3+ bedrooms, prefr close to campus. Call 546-1008 or 546-5619



Looking to take over lease in Bran dywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5525 or 546-5019

For summer Two bedroom apt in Amherst call eves 549-4377 ask for Mark

Seeking room in Puffton for fall 86 please call Susan 546-7445 or Terese 546-7864

SPORTS

One week until lax season

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Senior midfielder Seamus McGovern (center, number 25) and the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team practice yesterday afternoon on Lower Boyden Field. The Gorillas open at home next Saturday, April 5, at Boyden against the University of New Hampshire.

Softball not overlooking 1-6 Eagles

Twinbill on tap for UMass

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts softball team, rested from last week's 11-3 Florida swing, will open the Northern portion of its schedule today against Boston College at Chestnut Hill. The first game of the scheduled doubleheader is slated for 2 p.m..

The Minutewomen will be looking to snap a two-game losing streak this afternoon, facing a 1-6 Eagle team, that dropped all five games of its respective southern swing. BC lost decisions to East Carolina (who, incidentally, UMass defeated 4-0 behind the one-hit pitching of sophomore pitcher Lisa Rever, last Friday), North Carolina, South Carolina, Illinois St., and Northern Illinois. The Eagles split a doubleheader with Quinnipiac College on Monday.

BC head coach Nancy McGuire, however, looked upon last week's southern swing in a positive manner, stating that the five losses served more as a learning experience more than anything else.

"Playing in South Carolina was a lot better than just practicing up here," McGuire said. "All things considered, I'd say that we improved a great deal over the last week or so."

The Eagles are led by co-captain Maria Montouri and will probably go with freshman pitcher Kelly Davenport and sophomore pitcher Leslie Lane against the Minutewomen. Montouri hit .317 last season with three home runs and 14 runs-batted-in and is producing more of the same numbers this season for McGuire. Montouri also claimed the team triple crown title last season, as she was the team leader in hits, homers and total RBIs.

Debbie Cole and the UMass softball team take on Boston College today.

Also pacing BC are freshman third baseman Nancy Fox and catcher Angela Scoussel.

Despite such a dismal record, the Eagles will be no easy time for the Minutewomen. UMass had to come from behind to nip BC last year in a nail-biter, 2-1.

"We had a really tough time with them (BC) last year," UM head coach Elaine Sortino said. "At this point, we can't look at anybody on our schedule and assume anything. We just have to go out and play our game."

Rever and senior southpaw Lynn Stockley will be the probable starters for today's doubleheader, although senior righthander Cathy Reed may also be called in for a possible start. Reed has been a regular substitute at first base for injured first baseman Martha Jamieson.

Stockley leads the UMass pitching staff with a 5-1 mark and a 0.45 earned run average in 31 innings pitched. Rever is 4-2 on the year with a 0.78 ERA in 44.7 innings. She also leads the staff in strikeouts (42) and complete games (six). Reed is 2-0 on the year with a 0.58 ERA over 12 innings.

On the offensive end, senior catcher Beth Talbott will be looking to back up the always strong pitching by continuing on her power hitting tear. Although she is hitting .250 this season, Talbott has been hitting the ball hard, and in most cases, long as well. Of her 12 total hits last week, eight went for extra bases, including seven triples. Talbott has terrorized opposing pitching with a .563 slugging percentage and a .373 on base percentage in just fourteen games.

Minutewoman Mutterings: Senior centerfielder Sally Maher leads UMass in on-base percentage at a .565 mark, total bases and steals. She is perfect in three theft attempts this season. She also shares the team lead in total hits with senior secondbaseman Carol Frattaroli at 16, and game winning hits with sophomore shortstop Paige Kopcza with two. . .As a staff, the Minutewomen hurlers have allowed only four extra-base hits, while the UMass offense has pounded out 18. . .Out of 14 games this season, the Minutewomen have pitched 11 complete games, two one-hitters, a two-hitter, and six shutouts.

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:
Today:
Softball: at Boston College, doubleheader, 2 p.m.

Going from the Atlantic 10 to the Big East

St. Bonaventure's O'Brien returns to BC as coach

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) Jim O'Brien has come home. Fifteen years after he captained Boston College's basketball team, Jim O'Brien was named yesterday to coach the Eagles.

"I am elated to get back to B.C.," said O'Brien, 35, who compiled a 67-51 record in four years as head coach at St. Bonaventure, which competes in the Atlantic 10 Conference. "If people say that home is where the heart is, then certainly I feel very happy to be back home at Boston College, where my heart has been for a long time."

O'Brien captained the 1970-71 Boston College team and wound up thes 10th leading career scoring leader. He was named New England's College Player of the Year his senior year. And he was elected to the Boston College Varsity Club Hall of Fame in 1976, his first year of eligibility.

"I think probably most coaches, when they say that coaching is going to be their profession, 99 percent of them at sometime think in terms of getting back to their alma mater," O'Brien said. "I can't put into words how happy I am to be here."

"He was selected because we felt that he was the best basketball coach for Boston College at this time," said Bill Flynn, Boston College athletic director. "We feel we have an excellent basketball program here and we have every intention of continuing in that direction. We feel we have the right person for that job."

O'Brien succeeds Gary Williams, who left March 15 to succeed Eldon Miller as head coach at Ohio State.

O'Brien was quick to point out there would be little difference in the way his Eagle teams will play and the way B.C. played under Williams, who compiled a 76-45 record in four years.

"We'll try to press and play defensively in the back court as much as we possibly can. We will be a little disciplined in our approach offensively. It will be up-tempo and entertaining," he said.

His arrival in the Big East is a big relief to O'Brien, after losing so many prospects he hoped to attract to St. Bonaventure.

"Part of the problem at a school like St. Bonaventure is that the Big East is such a monster. We tried to recruit against a lot of the schools that are in the Big East because we played so many of those teams," he said. "That combined with the teams that we have in our conference, St. Joe's, West Virginia, Temple. All three of those schools went to the NCAA tournament. We felt we had the need to recruit the same people that those schools recruited.

Another big problem O'Brien dealt with was St. Bonaventure's location. Olean, N.Y. is 75 miles south of Buffalo.

"There is nothing between Olean and Buffalo. It's a tough sell," O'Brien said. "I feel that selling Boston is going to be a lot easier. We'll be able to get some pretty good kids to come here."

But O'Brien is getting a late jump on recruiting. But he figures the attraction of competing in the Big East against some of the country's top teams will still help to attract some top talent.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 38

FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1986

INSIDE

SGA approves election...finally p. 3
Operation "Mass Transformation" uncovered p.3
Gorillas gear up for Blue Hens p.16

Photo by Richard Bonnano

WETNESS—Boots and umbrellas were the name of the game yesterday, as these students passing under the Herter Hall overpass yesterday prove.

Contra controversy continues

Plans for protest unclear

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

Student groups said yesterday there is no organized protest planned for Monday's speech by a press secretary from one of the anti-Nicaragua guerrilla armies, although a rally and day-long vigil protesting the visit have been scheduled.

Administrators and the UMass Republican Club, which is sponsoring the speech, said they will proceed with an offer by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey to pay some security costs for the appearance by Jorge Rosales of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, a US-backed army based in Honduras.

"We do not plan on interrupting their freedom of speech. [We'll do] non-violent actions which do not infringe upon their right of speech."
–Laura Gottschalk

"There's no planned protest [for the speech]," said Kerri Neil, a member of the Radical Student Union. "We're individuals; whatever happens, happens."

Laura Gottschalk, a student senator, said a silent funeral procession for Nicaraguan victims of contra attacks has been planned, but she did not specify if the marchers would enter the speech.

"We don't plan on interrupting their freedom of speech," Gottschalk said. "[We'll do] non-violent actions which do not infringe upon their right of speech."

Duffey, over the objections of some student leaders, allocated an undisclosed sum for security because he said he wants to ensure that Rosales can speak without interruption.

Gilbert Stair, president of the Republican Club, said he met yesterday with Duffey and UMass police chief Robert Joyce to iron out security arrangements.

Stair would not comment on the number or type of security involved, but said state police will be available "if necessary."

Duffey would also would not elaborate on the security arrangements, but said the club "is footing a great part of the bill." Stair said Tuesday that the club would provide individual security while Rosales is on campus.

Joyce could not be reached yesterday.

Stair said reports that members of the Republican Club were planning to infiltrate the audience to control protesters were "a good idea, but not true.

"If people attend and disrupt, I've encouraged our people to let the security handle it and not get involved in any disruption," he said.

The vigil at the campus pond and a 1 p.m. rally on the steps of the Student Union Building "to protest the use of our campus as a platform for Reagan's inhumane policies" are being planned by a coalition of student groups, Neil said.

"People should be allowed to say what they want to say," she said, "but that doesn't mean twisting the truth. What kind of freedom of speech is this misinformation we're receiving from Washington?" She was referring to the Reagan administration's insistence that Sandinistas have entered Honduras, despite denials by the Sandinistas.

Stair said he told Rosales to expect opposition.

"He [Rosales] said he was used to [protests]—it comes with the territory," Stair said. "These people who disagree with him are the people he wants to speak with most. It's his country."

Because of "intense interest" the speech may be moved from a Bartlett Hall auditorium to the Student Union Ballroom, Stair said. Confirmation is expected this morning.

Michael Waller, director of publications for the Council for Inter-American Security, and editor of West Watch, the Council's monthly publication, will also speak. Waller has traveled with the contras.

SDA members knock petition

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

A petition drive begun yesterday by the Massachusetts Public Interest Group drew criticism from some members of Students for Participatory Democracy, who accused MassPIRG of trying to deceive voters.

MassPIRG began the petition drive to gain enough signatures for a binding referendum election, to be held on April 16 and 17. The proposed question for the referendum asks,"Do you support a chapter of MassPIRG at UMass Amherst to be funded by a waivable fee of $3 per student, per semester, as of the fall semester, 1986?"

Two members of SPD said they objected to the proposed referendum question because it has no mention of the fee increase from the current $2 to $3.

"They're doing the same things that they accused us of," said Tony Rudy, one of the founding members of SPD.

Last month, the two groups opposed each other on another referendum question, as students were asked whether the fees for MassPIRG and the State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM) should be removed from their tuition bill.

SPD opposes the fee which is automatically added into students semesterly tuitions unless they check off a

continued on page 4

DuBois' remains moved to shrine

By C. RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

On Aug. 26, representatives from around the world are expected to fly to Ghana for the enshrining of the remains of the late W.E.B. DuBois, founder of the NAACP, and his wife, Shirley Graham DuBois.

DuBois, who died in 1963, grew up in western Massachusetts, and the University of Massachusetts library holds the largest collection of his books, articles and letters.

David G. DuBois, son of the late DuBois, spent spring break in Ghana arranging to move the remains from an area of Ghana now restricted by the military to a more "accessible" site.

They are now buried in the Castle Wall area, on a site selected by the former president of Ghana, the late Kwame Nkrumah.

"That area is not easily accessible. It is now a military area so that people who wish to visit the tomb must acquire special permission," David DuBois said yesterday.

Two years ago DuBois proposed to the Ghanan government that the remains be removed from there and that a shrine be built in the DuBois' honor. Authorities have now decided to move the remains to a shrine at the residence where the black activist and his wife lived after they came to Ghana from the United States.

continued on page 11

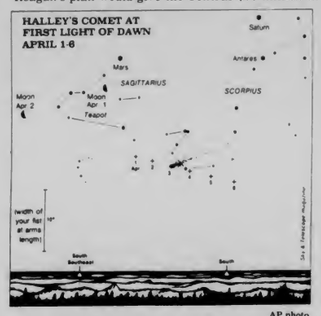
Plan to aid Contras goes back to House

Senate keeps Reagan's plan with provision

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate last night revived President Reagan's plan to send $100 million in aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels. The legislation now goes back to the House, where it was rejected just days before a reported Sandinista incursion into neighboring Honduras.

As approved by the Senate, the measure would send the money to the Contras but under the condition that no offensive weapons could be sent for 90 days, in order to give peace negotiations a chance.

That was the provision agreed to by Reagan last week in a last-minute bid to win House approval. But the House rejected his plan, 220-210, a week ago.



Since then, the political situation changed because of what the White House called an incursion by 1,500 Nicaraguan troops into Honduras.

The vote was 53-47.

The measure now returns to the Democratic-controlled House, but there will be no action until April 15. The House recessed earlier this week for Easter.

Reagan's plan would give the Contras $70 million in military aid and $30 million in non-lethal help in their effort to oust the Sandinistas. The current U.S. aid package, which expires Monday, contains $27 million in non-lethal assistance, including uniforms and medicine.

Opponents of the Regan approach, led by Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said the president's plan abandons the possibility of peace negotiations with the Sandinista government, sets the United States on the road to "a military morass in Central America," and raises the spectre of "Americans once again coming home in body bags."

AP photo

VIEWING HALLEY'S COMET—During the week of April 1-6, Halley's Comet will be a dim, fuzzy glow above the southern horizon just before the first light of dawn.

Kerry recalls Vietnam, condemns aiding rebels

WASHINGTON (AP)- Sen. John F. Kerry, D-Mass., invoked the memories of fallen Vietnam War comrades yesterday as he urged the Senate to reject a Reagan administration plea to provide military aid to rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

Meanwhile, Sen. Edward M. kennedy, D-Mass., lost 74-24 when he asked the Senate to block any U.S. assistance to the rebels.

Kerry voted for the Kennedy amendment.

Later, Kennedy and Kerry both backed a plan by Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., that would have emphasised diplomacy over military pressure, but would have provided $30 million in non-lethal aid to the Contra rebels.

Kerry, a Navy officer during the Vietnam war who later became a leading opponent of that conflict, said the Senate debate reminded him of how the United States edged into a military conflict in Southeast Asia, first with aid, then with advisers and then with combat troops.

Kerry said the Vietnam Memorial in Washington should be a reminder of what happens when the nation enters a war that doesn't have widespread popular support at home.

"I walk down there sometimes to clear my head on these issues," he said. "The names of friends of mine leap out at me. We should be cautious when we deal in blood before we see another wall of names."

Kerry said he also was reminded of Christmas 1968, which he spent aboard a Navy patrol boat in Cambodia when the president was denying any U.S. troops were in that country.

"One of my frustrations as a soldier was I always felt the Congress and the Senate weren't listening," he said in an interview later.

Kennedy urged adoption of his amendment to derail a U.S. policy toward Nicaragua he said could lead to direct American military involvement in Central America.

Jet incident investigated

BOSTON (AP)- Federal inspectors investigated claims yesterday that newly trained stewardesses botched the evacuation of a smoke-filled Trans World Airlines jet and two passengers decided to escape by jumping off the parked plane's wings.

The passengers apparently panicked at the sight of smoke entering the cabin of the plane as it taxied into Logan International Airport at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, TWA spokesman Daniel Dennitz said.

The smoke was caused by a fan that broke in an overheated air conditioner, he said.

"If there was smoke there, I might go out the wing window, too," Dennitz said. "But, of course, we're in a strike situation and I hate to say it, but I assume the union wants to make this as much of a safety issue as possible."

Kennitz said the stewardesses on board Flight 184 from St. Louis were newly trained replacements for attendants on strike for the past three weeks. Talks between the airline and the attendants' union are scheduled to resume by the weekend.

One passenger who apparently jumped off the wing suffered a minor wrist injury, said nick Lamberti, a spokesman for MassPort, which operates the airport. he said the woman was given oxygen by emergency crews, but she refused further treatment.

Dennitz said he heard reports that another passenger hurt his ankle jumping off the wing with his daughter in his arms. Dennitz said he did not know the names of any of the passengers or attendants.

The Federal Aviation Administration and the national Tranportation Safety Board were investigating the incident, said FAA spokesman Michael Ciccarelli.

Frank opposes Meese award

BOSTON (AP)- U.S. Rep. Barney Frank, protesting an award the Kennedy School of Government plans to give Attorney General Edwin Meese III, has rejected an invitation to represent the school at Harvard University's 350th anniversary.

Graham Allison, dean of the Kennedy School, has defended the award, saying the school is obliged to recognize all points of view. Meese is scheduled to receive the honor April 9.

Harvard Law Professor Lawrence Tribe also has criticized the award, claiming Meese has "a limited understanding of what justice means...He was an Oakland prosecutor who was lucky enough to know Ronald Reagan."

Frank, D-Mass., turned down the invitation to represent the school at Harvard's anniversary celebration in September and called the award to Meese inappropriate.

"I am most distressed by the extreme insensitivity to any need by the government to act against prejudice in this society against vunerable groups," Frank, who is a lecturer at the Kennedy School, wrote in a letter to Allison, released by his Washington office yesterday.

A story about Frank's move appeared in Thursday's editions of The Boston Globe.

"From his attack on the Voter's Rights Act early in this administration's first term, through his divisive and unnecessary effort to undo agreements to integrate police and fire departments...through his current efforts to appoint racists to the federal bench, Mr. Meese has labored hard to undo racial progress we have made in this society at great pain in recent decades," he wrote.

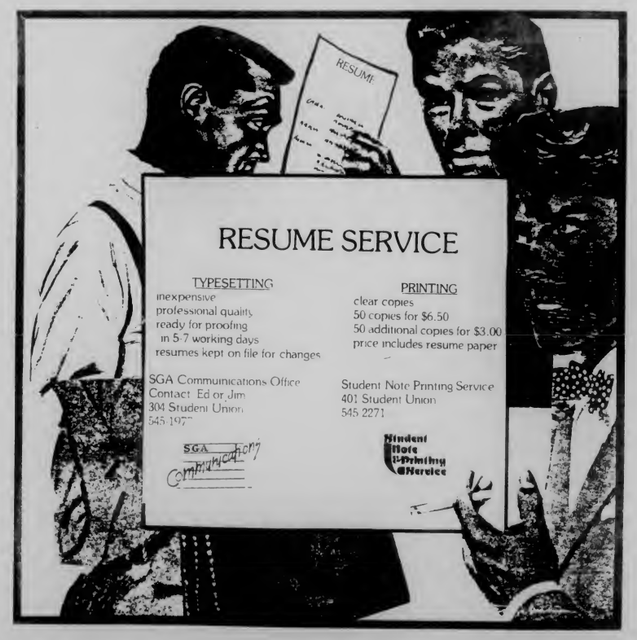
FACULTY!

The Textbook Annex needs your

HELP

to allow us to get all the necessary textbooks for the fall semester please send us your textbook orders

ASAP*



*as soon as possible

necessary forms are available through your departmental secretary or the textbook annex

ALSO: please inform your students that we will be returning this semesters unsold books to the publishers beginning March 31st

THANKS!

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Senate approves SGA election results

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate has approved the 1986 Student Government Association election results, putting to rest the question of who would become the SGA president and trustee.

The senate passed a motion Wednesday night approving the election of Dani Burgess as student trustee and Bill Bennett as campus president, and also agreed to send a letter to two former candidates in the 1982 SGA presidential election, apologizing for holding a runoff election that year.

In 1982, the team of Steve Robinson and Harvey Ashman finished ahead of Jim Murphy in the SGA presidential election but did not have a mandate of 33 percent of the vote. Murphy won the runoff.

Approval of the results had been delayed from the previous senate meeting because both elections were contested, and a decision was almost postponed for another week. Approval by voice vote came at 11:05 p.m., 10 minutes before the meetings are required to adjourn. Debate lasted more than 90 minutes.

Southwest senator Bill Collins, who proposed the apology motion, said,"There was no rule in the [SGA] constitution, bylaws, or parliamentary process that calls for 33 and a third approval ... For close elections, we have to erase this precedent and admit we made a mistake."

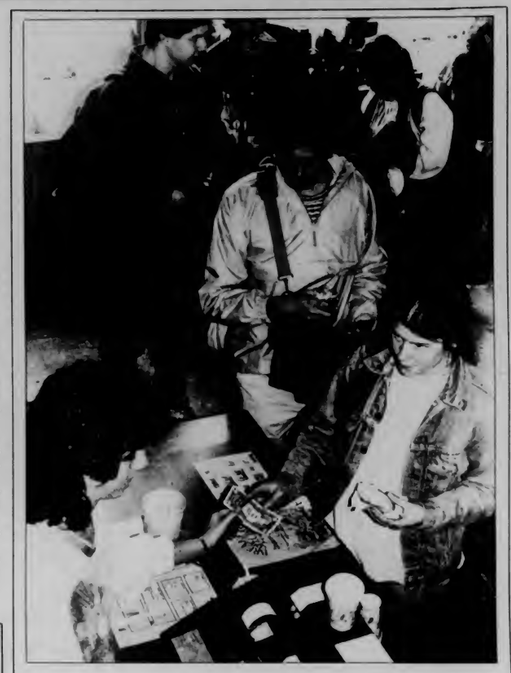
Burgess received 32.4 percent of the vote in the trustee election, winning by 360 votes. Based on the precedent of the 1982 election, a runoff election between Burgess and second-place finisher Joe Sparks could have been called.

Bennett initially finished ahead of opponent M. Lynne Murphy by eight votes, but a recount extended the margin to 60 votes. Supporters of Murphy filed a petition Monday afternoon calling for another recount, but according to Karen Morvay, co-chairwoman of the SGA Governmental Affairs Committee, the petition could not be considered during the meeting because it was filed late.

Dave Martin of the Comuter Area Government said he opposed the motion because he did not think two motions should be voted on together, since there were different factors involved in each.

Martin also said he opposed the senate apology, saying, "When Jim Murphy heard of this motion, he wanted to address the maker of this motion [Collins] to 'stick it.'"

A motion which asked the senate to support to right-wing winners in the Illinois Democratic primary was withdrawn by its maker before the senate could vote on it.



Eric Ericson from Peirpont House said he withdrew the motion because "national and international issues should not be considered here." He then asked the makers of a motion opposing US support for anti-Sandinista guerrillas to drop their motion in the interests of senate unity. The motion was not dropped, and will appear on next week's agenda.

FYI

The University of Massachusetts Central America Solidarity Association is sponsoring a dance-a-thon tonight from 9 p.m. to 7 a.m. at Hampden Dining Commons in Southwest. Laura Jean Beretski, the organizer of the dance, said she wants to increase student awareness of the crisis in El Salvador while at the same time helping with the financial difficulties.

Bands playing will be Circle, the Outpatients, the Steadies, the Potatoheads, Don't Ask, Free Press, Dinosaur, and possibly Short Stories.

Admission is free with sponsor sheets, and $3 for all else.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

PASSING THE BUCK—People's Market cashier Ann Reale, a first-year business student, collects cash yesterday from a hungry customer.

Plan to revamp Tower unveiled

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

An ambitious spring-cleaning project, designed to revamp the troubled Tower Library with the help of hundreds of volunteers, was unveiled in a press conference yesterday morning.

"The library has been serviceable, but not something we can be proud of," Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said. "Mass Transformation [the project] seeks a way to polish it."

Since ground was broken for it in 1969, the $16.8 million tower has been plagued by everything from sit-ins protesting its construction to cost overruns to falling brick chips to leaking roofs and faulty elevators.

Roger Cherewatti, director of the Physical Plant, said volunteers will be stripping and washing floors, washing bathrooms, repainting walls, refinishing doors, changing light bulbs, washing windows and cleaning all wastebaskets.

He estimated that an outside contractor would charge $1.2 million for the same work.

The first phase of the project, "A Class Act" was introduced by Stacy Roth, campus president, one of the coordinators of the plan. It calls for 200 UMass seniors to volunteer four hours apiece to refurbish the 12th floor of the 26-story building.

"This project isn't being done because no one else will do it," Roth said. "It's being done for pride."

Emerson Greenaway, a 1927 graduate of the University, said the project was "tremendous ... I wish I was 60 years younger so I could put in a few hours."

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey addresses yesterday's news conference.

Greenaway, who drove to the conference from his New Hampshire home, said he worked in the Old Chapel for 20 cents an hour when it was the library.

From May 1 through May 4 more than 200 student volunteers will "transform" the 12th floor of the Tower, Roth said. All seniors are welcome to participate.

Cherewatti said renovations to the Tower also include repair of leaky ceilings, new carpeting on the main level and netting to solve "the pigeon problem.

"The pigeons have been making a home on the 26th floor and making somewhat of a mess," he said. "We've got to get in there and close up the area so the pigeons can't get in."

The second phase of Mass Transformation will open Sept. 25 and is expected to draw more volunteers for four days of washing, sweeping and scraping.

"This library has served us well," Duffey said. "It is crowded with students day and night. I'm delighted to mark a new beginning for the facility."

An organizational meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. next Thursday in Campus Center room 165-69 for interested students. An information table will be set up on Campus Center Concourse today

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

H. Joachim Maitra

Negotiating futile, B.U. prof says

By WILLIAM SPAIN
CollegianStaff

H. Joachim Maitra, professor of journalism and international relations at Boston University, spoke of anti-communist liberation struggles in Afghanistan, Nicaragua and Angola before a crowd of about 60 people in the student Union Ballroom last night.

The main theme of the speech dealt with the possibility of negotiating with totalitarian regimes. He began by saying that, "We in the West are convinced that any problems can be negotiated away. Marxism is different—Lenin said that negotiation serves the class struggle, while you negotiate you take what you can."

He criticized Americans who believe "peace can be negotiated between Washington and Managua, ignoring those who are fighting for peace. Peace itself cannot be an ideal. Peace without liberty is a fake."

On the civil war in Afghanistan that pits the Afghan government and about 100,000 Soviet troops against tribal rebels, he said: "The occupation of Afghanistan by the Red Army continues to provoke a reaction among Western countries that a French philosopher called 'voluntary ignorance.'"

Complaining that Afghanistan is not taken seriously, he called the situation there "an expression of our cowardice. One-third of the population has been driven out by the Soviets. If the term 'genocide' is to mean anything, it must apply to the Afghans."

He said the notion that Afghanistan is Russia's Vietnam is ludicrous. The Soviet army is winning and winning big."

He said that regular troops had been largely replaced by elite units of a quality so high that he does not think "the United States has anything similar to offer."

Deriding the recent house vote to deny funding for Nicaraguan rebels, he said that American foreign policy is "confused. The president was elected by the tremendous majority, but the system of chekcs and balances is paralyzing our foreign policy."

He dismissed the notion of an American invasion of Nicaragua by saying, "Our armed forces are not willing or perhaps even capable" of it.

A preoccupation with human rights issues when dealing with the Soviets is untenable, he said, because "human rights under the Sandinista government and the Soviet-backed government in Afghanistan are very often hollow shells because concepts of individuality are not recognized."

Figaro's BUON APPETITO

Hampshire Mall, Hadley, Mass.

Delivers Italian Style pizza and specialty food.

FAST & FREE DELIVERY

Monday - Thursday 5:00 pm - 1:00 am
Friday, Saturday, Sunday 5:00 pm - 2:00 am

Now you can enjoy eating Italian food without having to go out!

Giant Pizza is 25% larger than any pizza around!

Pizza

FIGARO'S SPECIAL
GIANT 13.95
MEDIUM 12.95

GIANT - MOZZARELLA (18") 8.25
MEDIUM - MOZZARELLA (14") 7.25
Each Extra Ingredient 1.00
(Sausage, Anchovies, Peppers, Meatballs, Onions, Pepperoni, Mushrooms, or Extra Cheese.)

SICILIAN PIES
MOZZARELLA 10.95
Each Extra Ingredient 1.50
SPECIAL 17.95

CALZONE
Special Pizza Crust filled with Pepperoni, Ground Beef, Italian Sausage, Salami, Mozzarella Cheese and Ham
4.25

Grinders

Hot

Sausage Parmigiana 3.50
Meatball Parmigiana 3.50
Eggplant Parmigiana 3.50
Veal Cutlet Parmigiana 3.50

Cold Cuts
Served hot or cold with Lettuce, Tomato, Onions and Peppers With Italian Dressing or Mayo

Combination 3.50
Salami and Cheese 3.50
Ham and Cheese 3.50
Tunafish 3.50

TEL 586-6877

$2 OFF
Any Large Pizza with Crupon. Limit One Coupon per Customer
Valid thru April 15, 1986

$1 OFF
Any Italian Food with Coupon. Limit One Coupon per Customer
Valid through April 15, 1986

MINIMUM DELIVERY $5.00

Fireworks set off on campus after break

By FRANK GEARY
Collegian Correspondent

Spring is busting out all over, and University of Massachusetts police are not too happy about it.

Traditionally, the first week after spring break on-campus residents are treated to the sounds of firecrackers and other explosives, and this year is no different, police said.

Although injuries and property damage caused by explosives are a problem throughout the school year, most accidents usually occur during this week, according to Robert Joyce, UMass chief of police.

When returning from vacation in Florida, many students stop on their way back to school and buy fireworks, Joyce said.

Fireworks are illegal in Massachusetts, but are sold in some southern states, including South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.

"We have had two incidents [after spring break] involving fireworks," said John Ringle, a residential director in the Southwest Residential Area.

Tuesday night, five students were arrested and charged with violating the Code of Student Conduct after they were reported throwing firecrackers from windows at people below, Ringle said.

"In regards to fireworks, this is probably the worst week, but it isn't anything that can't be dealt with," Ringle said, adding he has confiscated several "long-stem fireworks" from students.

In the residence halls, students often explode fireworks in toilet bowls, pipes and windows, Joyce said. Permanent injuries to hands, fingers, and eyes are not uncommon.

"Once there was person permanently deafened when a M-80 [powerful firecracker] was thrown into a bathroom," said Joyce.

In Massachusetts, persons arrested for possessing or setting off fireworks may be fined up to $100. Those convicted of selling fireworks can receive up to a $1000 fine and one year in prison, Joyce said, adding, "If they want to make a profit they should just stay down there where it's legal.".

Those discharging fireworks will also be charged with disturbing the peace, he said.

Students who are "chronic users" of fireworks are usually eventually caught, said Ivan Siff, a residential assistant in Brown House. Other RAs from the Sylvan and Central areas said they have not had any problems with fireworks this week.

★MassPIRG

continued from page 1

specially-marked box and a waiver is filled out with the amount subtracted from the total.

Rudy and Brian Darling, also of SPD, last month admitted to hanging up fraudulent campaign posters. Darling was recently found guilty by a student tribunal for tampering with MassPIRG campaign material in December.

Darling said yesterday that SPD is starting a petition of its own to have a referendum question on the same ballot as MassPIRG's.

"We are going to have a question asking students to change the negative check-off to a positive check-off, which is what we feel the students want," Darling said.

Rayna Sargent of MassPIRG said her group is not trying to hide the fee increase from students.

"Students are not voting for an increase, they are voting whether they support PIRG. The fee increase is not the issue. The referendum is a reaffirmation of the chapter [on campus]," she said.

Sargent said the SPD petition is "one more attempt by the far right to undermine our work on campus."

"A couple of people can cloud the issue. I was hoping they wouldn't do it this time, that the students would have a fair chance to learn the issues," Sargent said.

STADIUM LACROSSE LIQUORS

Shortest Distance between 2 points is a straight line and 1 stop light save time and money

SPRING IS HERE!

"HAPPY EASTER" & "PASSOVER" WINE SPECIALS

Kegs - Beer - Wine - Liquors - Soda - Ice

Baseball

Carling	12 pk c.	$4.00	+ .60 12 pk
Miller Lite	12 oz c.	$10.99	+ $1.20 cs
Lowenbrau	12 oz bottles	$11.49	+ $1.20 cs
Busch	12 oz cans	$9.95	+ $1.20
Michelob	12 oz cans	$11.75	+ $1.20
Swinkles	12 oz bottles	$3.00	+ .30 6 pk
Kulmbacher	12 oz bottles	$3.00	+ .30 6 pk

Just Past U.Mass Stadium - 253-5595

STDs spread without intercourse

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

A common misconception is that sexually transmitted diseases are only spread through sexual intercourse, but one doesn't necessarily have to have intercourse to transmit or receive them, according to University of Massachusetts health educator.

The American Medical Association defines an STD as a disease that is picked up from an infected person and passed to another persdn through "intimate sexual contact," which can include oral or anal sex and other activity.

Three of the most prevalent STD's are chlamydia, gonorrhea and syphilis, said Pam Gonyer, a health educator at University Health Services.

The general symptoms of an STD for men include a discharge from the penis, sores, itching and a burning sensation. For women the general symptoms include vaginal discharge and itching, sores, and pain during urination or in the abdomen. Although these persistent symptoms usually occur in the genital area, they can also appear in the throat or rectal area if the disease is spread by oral or anal sex.

"Eighty percent of women have no noticable symptoms until complications occur," Gonyer said, adding that women are more likely to be unaware of an STD ware since many of the lesions are internal and not as visible.

Statistics on STDs are difficult to obtain, since only some of them are required by law to be reported to the state Department of Public Health, Gonner said. Gonorrhea, syphilis and chlamydia are must be reported, but there are no statistics available for chlamydia since it was declared a reportable disease this year.

A new STD case is reported in the nation every 12 seconds and approximately 80,000 cases of syphilis and 3 million cases of gonorrhea are reported nationally each year, according to the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

In 1985, Massachusetts reported 741 cases of syphilis and 9,477 cases of gonorrhea, according to the division of communicable and venereal diseases of the Department of Public Health in Boston.

The statistics for UMass are comparable to those for the nation, said Estelle Maartmann-Moe, director of nursing at Health Services. Of the patients seen at the center each year, about 75 to 80 people have gonorrhea and probably one has syphilis, she said.

Chlamydia is believed to be the most prevalent STD in the country today, Gonyer said. An estimated 3 million people contract chlamydia each year, making it three times more common than gonorrhea and 30 times more common than syphilis, according to the AMA.

"Treatment for STDs are disease-specific and specific to a person's medical history," said Gonyer. All diseases must be clinically diagnosed and treated. She advises seeing a doctor immediately if there is reason to believe that you have symptoms of an STD.

According to UHS health educator Ronald Mazur, general prevention of STDs is "not a moral judgment on how mahy people one loves, only that the more people you have sex with and don't communicate with, the higher risk you have of getting an STD.

"The golden age of sex is over, he said.

CHEERLEADING TRYOUTS!

All University Men and Women Invited

Practice Dates: March 31, April 1 & 2
Time: 8:00 pm
Place: Curry Hicks Gymnasium

COME TRY!

No Experience Necessary

THE SPOKE
A Drinkery to Meet, Relax and Enjoy

Beer of the Month
St. Pauli Girl $1.25

Drink of the Week
The Crab Apple
Apple Schnapps & Cranberry Juice
$1.20

Proper I.D. Required

35 EAST PLEASANT, AMHERST, MA 01002

U-Mass Food Services

COFFEE HOUSE & ICE-CREAM SHOP	desserts 7 DAYS (in Bluewall)
BLUEWALL CAFETERIA	lunch M-F	sunny bay, ice cream, pizza's, N.Y. deli
COFFEE SHOP	breakfast, lunch M-F
THE HATCH	breakfast, lunch, dinner 7 DAYS	golden bay, red barron, hot entre,
HAMPDEN SNACK BAR	breakfast, lunch 7 DAYS
WORCESTER SNACK BAR	breakfast, lunch M-F
WHITMORE SNACK BAR	breakfast, lunch M-F

Letters

Bricks popping out?

Sometimes I wonder if destiny is fact. Having just read an article in the Collegian about the Tower Library—and having decided to pick this day to begin my field research on my thesis project on poor campus design—I stumbled upon fate. How many years had I heard vicious rumors of falling bricks from the Tower?

The only bricks I saw in my five years at this "Emerald City" were those placed near the Tower on an April Fools joke years back. An then–here I was looking up at our colonial Tower Library–(a monument to the amount of bricks that can be stacked so high) when lo and behold—right before my two eyes were a row of bricks looking ready to pop out. Being a well-learned person from my previous news reading and a design major, I noticed that the row was logistically located right at the joint where these things are most likely to hapen. At first, I was struck with majestic awe, then whimisical marvel and at last, sheer excitement. "The bricks are falling–they really are popping off," I wanted to scream! I thought if I stood in my spot staring at the bricks I might attract a crowd as witneses. But the rain shot that idea away. Thus I made a dash to the Collegian—to report a tip for a hot story.

Now I'm not sure what implications this find may have on the campus, but I have renewed faith in the truth of the press.

The article stressed that it took 14 years to decide that nothing could be done to repair the brick facade. Authorities have stressed only chips have fallen; never whole bricks. If this popping trend keeps up, maybe the Tower will match its counterparts: the Fine Arts Center and Grad Tower. As for me, maybe I can leave this university with the knowledge that my name will be heralded down through future UMass generations, in legend, as the discoverer of the first mass-fallout of the brick facade. Now I can sit back with the knowledge that my legend will grow. Time takes its toll on the Tower.

Mark David Schwartzman
Amherst

W. Greg Rothman
Senator, Central

Rights go both ways

Concerning Mark Caldeira's column yesterday; he should have written about "mouse farts, baby gerbs, vomit accumulations in Ft. Lauderdale." That seems to be where his talent lies.

Caldeira is the typical Radical Student Union member who disagrees with everything, especially freedom of speech. Whether you agree or disagree with what these FDN representatives have to say on Monday night, you do have a right ot listen to them. A small gaunlet of radicals should not deny your right to peaceful assembly.

Caldeira also calls Chacellor Duffey a "hypocrite." Duffey has shown a great amount of integrity over this issue. How is it "hypocritical" to support free speech. Should we leave it up to people like Caldeira to determine who we should listen to or do we stand up for freedom of speech?

Tony Rudy
Sylvan

Heat is on, turn it off

In this era of fiscal restraint and decreased educational funding, I have come up with an idea which has apparently skipped the notice of the campus administration. We could save a lot of money by turning off the heat in the classroom buildings after April 1. In most years it seems that the heat is deactivated in late May and the air conditioning comes on in October. Not only could we save in fuel costs, but Health Services would be relieved of the burden of caring for pass-out victims from such infamous places as Bartlett Auditorium and Thompson 104. This idea may seem radical to some building operations experts, but I think it merits at least a cursory examination by the powers that be.

Timothy J. Kress
Amherst

A sensible alliance

In response to Mark Caldiera's column appearing in yesterday's Collegian, I would like to make one observation about his quote, "Duffey has clearly shown his alliance with the right." Well, Mark, our honorable Chancellor Duffey has shown his alliance with the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which is certainly not the work of "right wing riff-raff."

Brian Darling
Southwest

CLASSICAL JAZZ REGGAE BLUES ROCK SOUL FOLK JAZZ ROCK SOUL CLASSICAL

#1 IN THE VALLEY!

DYNAMITE RECORDS

New Used Buy Sell 584-1580

Maxell XLII90 2.00/case

TDK SA90 2.00 ea

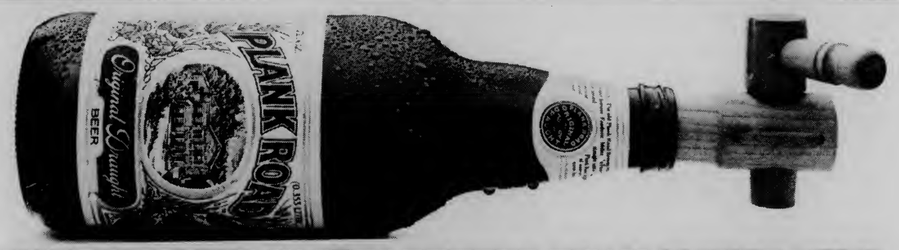
We buy and sell used L.P.'s and Tapes

THORNES MARKETPLACE

150 MAIN ST NORTHAMPTON

it's that time again

when the Textbook Annex must begin to return unsold spring books to the publishers,



Returns start March 31st

Don't wait -- You may be disappointed!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX

Open Mon-Fri 9AM-4PM

WHY KEG BEER TASTES BETTER THAN COOKED BEER.

Ask most beer drinkers, and they'll likely agree: nothing tastes better than beer from a keg.

Ever since the days of Frederic Miller's original Plank Road Brewery, keg beer has always been fresher. That's because it isn't cooked to preserve it like most bottled and canned beers.

Well, now there's a beer that delivers that same fresh draft taste in a bottle. A beer specially cold-filtered instead of cooked, so it tastes like it was drawn straight from the keg.

Plank Road Original Draught.
Keg beer in a bottle.

PLANK ROAD
Original Draught ™

©1985 Miller Brewing Co. Milwaukee, WI

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Shartman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Visa hypocrisy hits home

Rebecca Thatcher

As President Reagan tries to mold U.S. public opinion to conform to his view of a "free" hemisphere perennially engaged in combat against the "red menace," he has employed tactics which, at best, show a selective concern for first amendment rights.

When the UMass Republican club brings a representative from the contras to speak on Monday, and those who protest the visit are accused of not caring about freedom of speech, it is important to remember that representatives of the Nicaraguan government have been repeatedly denied visas for speaking engagements in the U.S.

While those whose viewpoint conforms to the right-wing foreign policy have no problem gaining access to the ears of the American public, the opposition, especially in the case of the representatives of the democratically-elected government of Nicaragua, is denied visas.

Both the Nicaraguan Embassy and the National Lawyers Guild confirming the following:

Last week, Rosario Murillo, spouse of Nicaraguan president Daniel Ortega, was denied a visa for series of speaking engagements.

In 1985, Servio Ramirez, the vice president of Nicaragua was denied a visa.

In August 1984, Carlos Lunez, president of the National Assembly of Nicaragua, was denied a visa.

In December 1983, Thomas Borge, Nicaraguan minister of the interior was denied a visa.

The director of the visa denial program of the National Lawyers Guild said the U.S. government routinely violates first amendment rights to hear foreign speakers. On the telephone from her office in New York, Claudia Slovinsky said visa denial is common "in the case of speakers who are coming to deliver a message that is contrary to U.S. foreign policy."

Members of the new right are not stupid, they have learned the lessons of Vietnam and they realize they have to do everything possible to manipulate public opinion in their favor. They know that Americans share a fundamental antipathy towards a foreign policy that is based on fanatical anti-communism and as my republican grandfather would call it, "pissing away money on unwinnable wars."

While President Reagan appears on television every night and calls the Sandinistas communists who have no respect for first amendment rights, his friends in the State Department trample over those same rights for U.S. citizens. Hypocrisy is too gentle a word for this type of behavior.

Rebecca Thatcher is a Collegian columnist.

Letters from the editor

Larry Bouchie

For all those apprehensive people who wonder when SAO Director Randy Donant may next dabble in their work, a sure sign of spring has arrived. Yes, it's time for an administrative vacation.

Today is Donant's last day of work until April 21. His itinerary includes the American Colleges Union International conference in Houston, and a vacation in sunny Mexico. Obviously, Donant chose not to spend spring break in Florida with the students.

So if anyone has business to settle with Donant before he leaves, they should catch up with him today, or for three weeks hold their peace.

Does this mean Vice-Chancellor Madson works from Donant's office until April 21?

★★★

The latest campus controversy, "Contras on Campus," is causing considerable exaggeration from many interested parties. Not surprisingly, some are using this event Monday night to intellectualize beyond reason about the Nicaragua they've been reading of for years. The rhetoric now has brought us to the thorny issues of free speech and University funding for a political event sponsored by a political group.

The tangle of funding for the event (from the Chancellor's Office, the Republican Club, and the SGA Finance Committee) belies a curious sharing of money and responsibility. Additionally, it would seem if that any one of the three "sponsors" decides to withdraw support at the last minute, the event might effectively be scuttled.

Oh, what tangled webs we weave....

★★★

Colleague Peter Wissoker has noted that University administrators would like the newly reopened Bart's. It has everything the University is hoping to achieve: flashing lights to attract people, self-praise covering the walls, etc.

However, Wissoker also observes, once inside Bart's one realizes the tables are smaller than before, the setting less comfortable, the atmosphere more tacky, and the prices, like the University's, have gone up.

★★★

Though Greek Affairs Director Bob White asserts that Monday's fraternity shenanigans out on the Haigis Mall represent the first reported incidence of hazing on campus since the new anti-hazing law took effect, people should remember that hazing can occur on sports teams, in residential halls, and in other groups, organized or not. More accurately, perhaps, is that this is the first reported incidence of hazing in the Greek Area, and one that will probably take some time to resolve.

Larry Bouchie is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Spying for the truth in our battle

I write primarily to my brothers and sisters in the peace and justice movement, whom I love.

It is an opportunity for us that representatives of the contras are coming to UMass. If we can contain our anger enough to attend to them, we may learn some important things about the character and the rhetoric of our antagonists. If we only protest, we lose that opportunity and we run the risk of alienating many who are on the fence on the issue of contra aid. If we only protest, we make war afresh and add to the sum total of hatred and miscommunication. Truth is the first casualty.

I feel helpless and my heart is full of indignation and shame as I watch our President provoke attack, play the bully, and bring our country to its most hated nation status of the world. We all need to find ways to own and express these feelings. But may we all find places to do that other than in a forum from which we may gain understanding.

There is truth hidden in every confrontation; do we place ourselves in a mood to learn rather than a mood to humiliate, to embarrass or to shame? Of course the contras' representatives may not say the truth, but their bearing, their rhetoric, their attitude toward the University, their way of dealing with questions reveals another level of truth which we need to attend.

So on Monday let us open our eyes and our ears, and become spies for the truth that can serve us in our battle for justice in Central America.

Joseph Havens
Shutesbury

Forget politics; remember freedom

I was very distressed to read Mark Caldeira's column in yesterday's Collegian, titled "We are not that naive." Caldeira has challenged the freedom of speech from a forum that lives by that same freedom. Because of this freedom, journalists like Caldeira are able to write anything they would like to.

Caldeira is encouraging the infringment of student's rights. Whether or not I personally agree or disagree with the contra's actions would not change my yearning for knowledge on the subject. Jorge Rosales and Mike Waller can provide the insight that I am interested in.

Chancellor Duffey's funding for security has been justified by Caldeira's "begging" for protestors. It is not a right or left view; it is a view from the point of student rights. What is the importance of UMass...education or politics? In using his position as a Collegian columnist, Caldeira is fostering the political split of our University. Let's try to forget politics and remember the freedom of speech.

We are not that naive, but should we allow ourselves to become ignorant?

W. Greg Rothman
Senator, Central

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail recieved, individual replies cannot be made.

Republicans avoiding real issue

The UMass Republican Club is looking for trouble. No sooner was the visit of a contra to campus announced than the Republicans began insisting that their speaker's right to free speech would be violated by protestors. They managed to convince Chancellor Duffey to provide the event with heavy security. While this was condemned by the Graduate Senate on the grounds that student groups are normally required to fund their own security, Republicans told the Collegian that a large police presence is needed "to guarantee (the contra's) right of speech."

The Republican's goal is clearly to prejudice the campus against possible anti-contra protests. They have already succeeded in terrifying Duffey. They have already succeeded in fabricating and publicizing a rumor that protesters are being "bused in" from around New England. How they expect to protect freedom of speech by surrounding their speaker with armed guards ready to silence protestors is beyond logic. Most importantly, by focusing on a possible confrontation, the Republicans are trying to avoid the real issue: there is widespread opposition to the contras on this campus because the contras are well-known violators of human rights and killers of civilians, and because they are helping the U.S. government fight an illegal war against Nicaragua. These are issues that will be addressed at a peaceful, day-long, informational vigil on Monday at the Campus Pond.

Beatrix Hoffman
Amherst

Chancellor protects free exchange

We all find it very easy to support the first amendment when doing so lines up with our own point of view. Chancellor Duffy's position of supporting the UMass Republican Club in it's effort to bring a spokesman from the Democratic Forces of Nicaragua is not unremarkable. He shares very few, if any, of our political views; but he still believes in our right to participate in the free exchange of ideas.

Last Tuesday night the Graduate Student Senate unanimously passed a motion condemning the Chancellor for providing security for our speaker. I would like to ask the Graduate Senate and others, since when has the support of free speech at this University become something that our Chancellor should not protect with all the means available to him?

Gilbert Stair, president UMass Republican Club

ARTS

Book Review

My Live Isadora Duncan (New York, Dwight 1927)

By TA SHEN
Collegian Correspondent

"Let that day be called lost on which I have not danced," runs the phrase from Nietzsche. Last night as I came away from the discotheque the thought came to me that, whatever else may have occurred in my life, the last two hours of dancing had made it worthwhile.

"You can dance," suggested Carl Jung, the psychologist, to produce an "effect" in the world. Joan Smallwood, a leading dance/movement therapist, writes that "from the dawn of history, dance/movement has been used to effect...changes in the larger environment." Today, dance could be used to resolve a relationship for the better, take the "next step," or create a social climate where love can easily thrive. Smallwood writes that the force of such effective dance flows "from a direct relationship to the universe."

Isadora Duncan, who taught dance to children, wrote that there are "reactions of the body and the spirit which the ancients did not neglect, but which we too often have misunderstood." She wrote that she "sought the source of spiritual expression, from which would flow into the channels of the body, filling it with vibrating light, the centrifugal force reflecting the spirit's vision." As she danced to orchestral music, Duncan felt "the presence of a mighty power within me which listens to the music and then reaches out through all my body..to find an outlet for this listening." Dancing "must be the expression of life," and in dance a human being can be "transmitted into the movements of the stars."

Isadora had much to say about education. She cited Jean-Jacques Rousseau's assertion that movement is probably a better form of education for children that reading and writing, until early adolescence. "The child of nine," wrote Isadora, "has already entered into the prison of conventional and mechanical movement, in which it will remain and suffer its entire life."

Duncan proposed a philosophy of education that has much in harmony with neoplatonic thought. For her, a dancer, the human body and mind could be coached to become translucent to spirit. Then a human being in their words, thoughts, and activities would reflect the evolutionary movement of the universe.

It is certainly fortunate that in a great university there are many opportunities to dance. For much of that we have Isadora to thank, for she expended her life to promote what she called the "dance of the future," and a university is an excellent place, with its roots in the cultural past, to build and to dance a dance of the future. "Today in the light of intelligence gained through years of civilization, it is essential that (humanity) seek what (it) has unconsciously lost," she wrote. Here, we can recover consciousness, we can dance for inspiration.

amc THEATRES
$1.95 TWILITE SHOW
MT. TOM 4 584-9153
A state of mind... Brazil pretty in pink MOLLY RINGWALD
HANNAH AND HER SISTERS
HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
DOWN AND OUT IN BEVERLY HILLS
Michael Keaton in GUNG HO
Steven Spielberg's The Color Purple
RUN FOR COVER! POLICE ACADEMY 3 BACK IN TRAINING
FRI & SAT at 12:15 - BEATS $ 3.50
ROCKY HORROR
MONTY PYTHON AND THE HOLY GRAIL
A CLOCKWORK ORANGE
PINK FLOYD THE WALL
TEXAS CHAIN SAW MASSACRE

Going Formal?
TUXEDO RENTALS
Lodestone
13 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
256-0591

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-8889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

FRIDAY FILM FOLLIES

By DON LIPPER
Collegian Staff

I'm telling you right now that I don't even want to think about that farce they call the Academy Awards. Not only did the jealous old toads of the Tinseltown establishment fail to recognize Steven Spielberg's popular yet controversial film The Color Purple (11 nominations, 0 awards), but these bozos lost a great deal of credibility by giving Oscars to Hollywood veterans who simply did not deserve the honor.

How in the world could they justify choosing Don Ameche over Klaus Maria Brandauer for Best Supporting Actor? How could anyone with ears believe that John Barry's insipid and forgettable score for Out of Africa was worthy of an Academy Award? Anyone who thinks the Art Direction in Out of Africa was better than the fantastic world Terry Gilliam created in Brazil needs a new set of eyes.

The big movie news for the valley this week is that Ken Burns, the director of the Academy Award nominated documentary The Statue of Liberty will be at Northampton's Pleasant St. Theatre for the western Massachusetts premier of his celebrated documentary Huey Long on Wednesday, April 2. The film examines the rise of the flamboyant Louisiana governor and later senator who many believe that if he hadn't been assasinated, could have become America's first dictator. According to the many reviews I've read, this film about this charming yet ruthless politician should be seen.

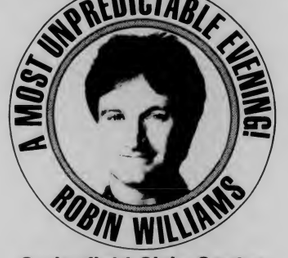
Weekend Best Bets: The Amherst Cinema is showing two great old Marx Brother's movies. See them before they leave after Saturday.

Northampton's Academy of Music is also offering a good double feature of recent movies you may have missed. Agnes of God stars Jane Fonda as a court appointed shrink who must determine whether a young nun named Agnes (Meg Tilly) is mentally fit to stand trial for the strangulation of her newborn infant. Anne Bancroft also stars as the secretive mother superior who tries to protect Agnes and the convent from Fonda's investigation. Jagged Edge stars Glenn Close as a savvy corporate lawyer who must defend newspaper publisher Jeff Bridges when he is accused of savagely butchering his wife. Close plays a strong capable woman who knows how to handle herself as she seeks out clues to the real murdrer's identity. These films are a great (also cheap) double feature.

The Mountain Farms Mall still has some of the best new movies around. Hannah and Her Sisters is Woody Allen's best film. Brazil is former Monty Python member Terry Gilliam's funny yet disturbing look at the future. The movie is a cross between 1984 and Dr. Strangelove.

The Color Purple is still playing at the Hampshire 6. Directed by Steven Spielberg, this film tells the story of Celie, who lives and eventually overcomes a life of victimization. Every member of the cast turns out a moving performance. Also playing at the Hampshire 6 is Down and Out in Beverly Hills, an uptown meets downtown comedy starring Nick Nolte as a drifter, and Richard Dreyfuss and Bette Midler as wealthy yuppies.

Serve In Appalachia



Come for one week to serve the needs of the poor in Appalachia. Single, Catholic men are invited to be involved in home construction, visiting the elderly, and sharing one's gifts with the mentally, emotionally and physically handicapped. There will also be opportunities to learn about the culture, people, and music of the Appalachian area.

The week-long sessions available are:
May 17 - 23
June 7 - 13
July 12 - 18
July 26 - August 1
August 24 - 30

For more information about the Summer Volunteer Program, please send this coupon to: Brother Jack Henn, Glenmary Home Missioners, P.O. Box 465618, Cincinnati OH 45246-5618
Name_____ Age_____
Address_____
City_____ State_____ Zip_____
Telephone ( )_____ College_____
S74-3/86

WE CAN'T TELL YOU WHAT TO EXPECT WHEN YOU SEE ROBIN WILLIAMS IN CONCERT.
WE DON'T KNOW. NEITHER DOES HE.

Springfield Civic Center
Limited Capacity "Mini-Arena"
May 7th-8:00pm
All Seats Reserved-$15.50
•
TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY, MARCH 31st-10am
ON CAMPUS AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES: (413) 787-6600 or (800) 243-4842
THIS PERFORMANCE IS PRESENTED FOR MATURE ADULT AUDIENCES
Produced in association with 96TIC-FM

Arts Calendar

By KELLY SIEGER
Collegian Staff

Now that we're all back from break, and in the swing of things, it's time to find out what's going on in the Five College Area. So many important and promising events are coming up;here are just of few of them.

Music: A faculty recital featuring horn player Laura Klock and pianist Estela Olevsky will be held at 8 p.m. on April 1 in Bowker Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts. Klock is principal horn of the Springfield Symphony Orchestra and Professor of Horn at UMass. The concert is free of charge. For more information call 545-2227.

The Five College Chamber Soloists welcomes Kim Scholes as guest soloist at 8 p.m. on April 3, in Bezanson Recital Hall at UMass. The performance will focus on the works of Haydn and Mozart. There is no charge for admission.

The UMass Department of Music and Dance will present the Langdon Piano Quartet in concert at 8 p.m. on April 4, at Bezanson Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Center. Works by Mozart and Brahms will be performed. Admission is free.

Important news for jazz fans: for all those willing to travel, legendary jazz pianist Oscar Peterson will be in concert with the Springfield Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. April 5 and 4 p.m. April 6 at Symphony Hall in Springfield. The performance is in commemoration of the city of Springfield's 350th anniversary. Proceeds from the event will benefit the orchestra.

The Seventeenth Annual Concert of Music for Percussion Instruments will be held at 8 p.m. on April 8 in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, UMass. The program includes performances from the University Percussion Ensemble and the UMass Marimbas. There will be a guest appearance by soprano Paulina Stark and the Mount Holyoke College Glee Club. The concert is free of charge.

Oscar Peterson will appear at the Springfield Symphony Hall on April 5, at 8 p.m., and April 6, at 4 p.m.

The University of Massachusetts Chamber Choir, conducted by E. Wayne Abercrombie, will perform its spring concert at 8 p.m. April 10, in Bowker Auditorium. Music set to poems by E. E. Cummings will highlight the program. Admission is free of charge.

Theater: There is still enough time to catch the Sidestage presentation of "Sister Mary Ignatius -- 'Denty Crisis," playing at 8 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night at the Hampden Theatre, Southwest Residence Area, UMass. Tomorrow is the last performance for this play directed by Ed Golden. Admission is $2.

The Hampden Program is presenting a performance of "One Good Look," at 8 p.m. on April 3 through April 5 at Hampden Theatre, Southwest, UMass. There will be a 2 p.m. matinee on April 5. For reservations or information, call 545-2803. Hampshire College Theatre is presenting "Adaptation," a play written by Elaine May, at 8 p.m. on April 10 through 12 in the Studio Theatre, Emily Dickinson Hall at Hampshire College. Tickets are $2 general admission and $1.50 for Five College students with I.D.

The Bertolt Brecht play "Mother Courage and Her Children," will be performed by the Amherst College Department of Theater and Dance at 8 p.m. on April 3 through 6 at Kirby Theater, Amherst College. Tickets are on sale now; $4 general admission and $2 for senior citizens and students. Amherst College students admitted free with I.D. April 3 is dollar night. For reservations call 542-2277.

The William Shakespeare's comedy, "All's Well That Ends Well," will be presented by the University of Massachusetts Department of Theater at 8 p.m. April 8 through 12 in the Curtain Theater, UMass. There will be a special matinee at 2 p.m. on April 12. Admission is $3 for the general public and $2 for students and senior citizens. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center box office.

The Smith College Theatre Department will present "Antigone Too, Rites of Love and Defiance, by Martha Boesing, at 8 p.m. on April 10-12 and April 16-19 in Theatre 14, Smith College. General admission is $4, students and senior citizens $2. Dollar nights are April 10, 16 and 17. Call 584-3023 for reservations and information.

Laura Klock

Anney Giobbe and Bradford West

The Five College Music Departments are presenting a symposium titled Culture and Spectacle in Rome, beginning April 1 and continuing through April 15. Various guest speakers will lead discussions. The symposium, which is funded by a grant from Five College, Inc., is open to the public, free of charge. For a full list of events, call the Collegian and ask for the Arts desk.

Dance: The Amherst Ballet Theatre Company will be presenting a production of "The Emperor's Nightingale" at 3 p.m. April 5 and April 6 at UMass. This performance is the final event in the Heritage-NIS Bank for Savings Performance Series for Children. Tickets are $4 in advance, $4.50 at the door and can be picked up at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

The Pioneer Valley Ballet will perform its annual spring concert, "In Performance," at 8 p.m. April 6 and 8 p.m. April 6 at the Academy of Music in Northampton. The program will include "A Midsummer Night's Dream," as well as four original ballet and modern dance works. Tickets are on sale. Call 586-8050 for more information.

A Boston-based modern dance company, Dance Bound, Inc., will perform at 8 p.m. on April 4 and 5 at the Center for the Arts in Northampton. The company, under the direction of dancer/choreographer Ruth Birnberg, will present "Just Around the Corner and Other Dances." Call the Center for the Arts box office for more information at 586-7782.

Year after year, semester after semester, the college plan from Fidelity Union Life has been the most accepted, most popular life insurance program on campuses all over America. Find out why.
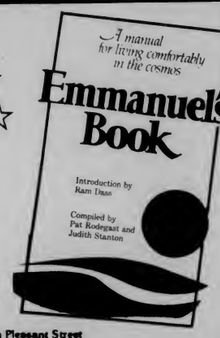
Fidelity Union Life
Call the Fidelity Union Life Field Associate in your area:
Ronald J. Nathan Agency
20 Gatehouse Rd.,
Amherst, MA
Tel: 256-8351



EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

AMHERST CINEMA
Friday and Saturday
Warner Brother Cartoons 7:00
Duck Soup 8:30
Horse Feathers 9:45
Sunday - Tuesday
Chan is Missing 7:30
Dim Sum 9:00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Bring a couple friends and your appetites and enjoy some of the best Mexican food anywhere. . .
...Offering Quality Mexican Foods
TACO VILLA
NORTHAMPTON 1 CENTER ST Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8... Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD ...3 SUMNER AVE ...8-1911 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

Sophia bookshop

The issue of whether there is a Greater Reality or not, for me at least, has been settled. I know that there is. So I will speak to you from the knowing that I possess and will not in any way equivocate or minimize my statements and my truth to fit nicely into the dualism of your human considerations.
- Emmanuel

103 North Pleasant Street
Amherst 253-5574

In Pursuit of HOUSING

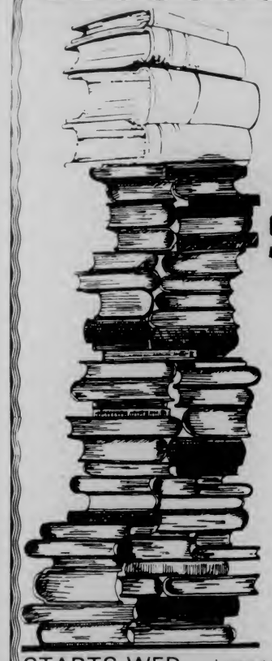
Cliffside Apartments offers you the chance to be secure this fall by making your off-campus housing arrangements now. 1, 2, & 3 bedroom apartments available - all utilities included - with dishwasher, disposal, stove and refrigerator. On the bus line.

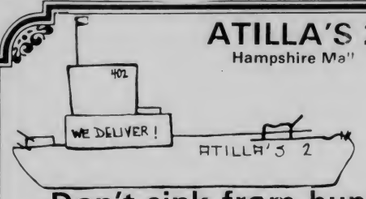
Call 665-3958 for more information.



RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser 12 oz cans	$11.99 case + dep.
Utica Club 12 oz long necks	$6.49 case + dep.
Naragansett 16 oz cans	$2.50 6 pk + dep.
	$9.80 case + dep.
Ballantine Beer 12 oz. cans	$3.40 12 pk + dep.
Heinekens & Amstel	$3.99 6 pk + dep.
Vodka or Gin 80°	$8.99 1.75 liter
Prodis Asti Spumante	$3.99 750 ml
Champagnes	$2.99 & up 750 ml

BEER & WINE SPECIALS ALWAYS COLD!!



PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
北京園
Open 7 Days for Lunch & Dinner - Hours: Sun-Thurs 11-10 - Fri & Sat 11-2
WEEKDAY DINNER BUFFET - Mon-Thurs $6.95, 5-8:30
SUNDAY BRUNCH 11:30-3
Full Liquor License

BOOK SALE
25%
SAVINGS
OFF
of Regular Price
hundreds to choose from Hardcover
and Paperbacks
3 DAYS
ONLY
Located on Sale
Tables on the Concourse

STARTS WED March 26, 9:30-4;30 Wed-Fri
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

ATILLA'S 2
Hampshire Mall

Don't sink from hunger
Emerge yourself in one of our subs

GYROS
A delicious taste sensation. Marinated beef served inside our fresh homemade pita bread along with your choice of toppings:
Special Salad — finely chopped tomatoes and onions specially marinated.
Cacik (White Sauce) — homemade yogurt enlivened with cucumbers and mint.

PITA TURKEY
Thinly sliced turkey breast in our pita bread with lettuce, tomato and mayonaise.

SOUVLAKI
Beef charbroiled on skewers, wrapped in pita along with seasoned onions, lettuce and feta cheese.

PITA CLUB
A tempting combination of thinly sliced fine turkey breast with crispy bacon served with lettuce, tomato, and mayonnaise in our fresh pita bread.

PITA B.L.T
Crispy bacon stuffed into our pita bread with lettuce, tomato, and mayonnaise

STROMBOLI
A real taste temper. Spicy ground beef combined with cheese and a tangy tomato sauce, baked inside our fresh pita dough

HAM SPEEDIES
Thinly sliced buffet ham in our pita with lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, smothered in cheese.

STEAK SPEEDIES
Marinated steak in our pita bread with lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise and Bermuda onions smothered in cheese.

GREEK SALAD & PITA BREAD
A refreshing salad of tossed greens with the classic combination of feta cheese and greek olives, served with a fresh pita bread.

VEGETARIAN DELIGHT
A green garden salad tucked inside our pita bread with Italian dressing, feta and provolone cheese.

TUNA PITA
Freshly made tuna salad in our pita with lettuce, tomato and mayonaise

Buy 2 Gyro's Get 1 FREE

Buy 2 Subs Get 1 FREE

11:00 am to 9:30 pm weekdays
11:00 am to 11:00 pm weekends
Just call 586-7070 for fast free delivery

BLACK AFFAIRS

Liberian economist speaks at Amherst

By BARBARA DeLOLLIS
Collegian Correspondent

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall
Joseph Sawyerr

Liberian economist, Joseph Sawyerr spoke Wednesday night to 11 people in an informal setting in the Octagon at Amherst College.

Prior to beginning his lecture on "The Historical and Contemporary Relationship Between the United States and Liberia," Sawyerr spoke about education.

"Interdisciplinary education is important. Learning about people from all over the world is also necessary for the total educational experience in order to know how interrrelated we are, whether we like it or not," said Sawyerr.

Referring to the map of Africa that he had brought with him,Sawyerr said "Liberia, in West Africa, has a population of about 2.2 million, a Gross National Product of $800 million, a 9.2 percent declining economy, and a 3.3 percent population growth rate, according to Sawyerr.

The United States initiated its current relationship with Liberia in the 1820's, Sawyerr said. At this time, he said, there was a movement that sent free Blacks and ex-slaves living in the U.S. to Liberia.

This movement was called the American Colonization Society, which was established in 1816 by whites, for the sole purpose of "deporting" ex-slaves and free Blacks to Liberia, he said.

Liberia's independence was recognized by Britain and France in 1847, whereas the U.S. acknowledged the country's independence 15 years later, in 1862.

In 1909, Liberia asked the U.S. for technical, economic, diplomatic, and military aid. By 1912, the U.S. was a strong presence in all of the country's activities.

"Liberia remained bankrupt until the 1920's when in 1926, Firestone Rubber contracted a 99 year lease with the country. Firestone's one million-acre concession is a flourishing one that will end in the year 2025," said Sawyerr.

★DuBois

continued from page 1

The residence has also been declared a national monument and is now the DuBois Memorial Center for Pan-African Culture.

Invitations are being sent by the Ghanan government to dignitaries around the world, most in the United States, the Carribbean, Latin America and Africa.

"We are inviting all the governments of Africa to send representatives, with the exception of course of South Africa. We are inviting the ANC and the PAC of South Africa. We are also approaching a number of organizations in the United States who have demonstrated interest in Pan-Africanism," DuBois said.

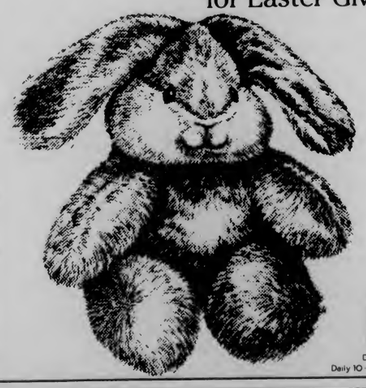
As well as UMass, the universities with which his father had close ties during his life – Fisk, Atlanta, Howard, Harvard and Tuskegee – will be asked to send representatives, he said.

In 1960, W.E.B. DuBois was invited by Nkrumah, then president, to take over the directorship of the secretariat of the Encyclopedia Africana. The encyclopedia on Africa had been a dream of DuBois for more than 50 years.

DuBois accepted the invitation and went to Ghana in 1961, but his son says widespread reports that he left resentful of the US and renounced his American citizenship are false.

"This is a misconception, part of the propaganda that was distributed at the time of his going to Ghana. He did not give up his American citizenship ... He did not go for reasons of resentment," David DuBois said. "He was not giving up the struggle in any sense; he was requested to come by President Nkrumah and the Organization of African Unity and he accepted the invitation."

Join us at DELANO'S



FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
For an Old Fashioned
New England Breakfast
Sunday 10:00 to 1:00
Serving:
Eggs Benedict
Eggs Commodore
Eggs Picante
Pancakes
French Toast
Eggs cooked to order
Build your own Omelettes
Make your meal complete with Our Famous Bloody Mary
57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

the chocolate bakery
"specializing in gourmet desserts"
With this coupon 10¢ off the regular price of any cake or brownie expires April 22, 1986
241 King Street, Northampton, MA 01060 (413) 586-7835

Bunnies, baskets
& other goodies
for Easter Giving!

FAGES
Downtown Amherst
Daily 10-6, Fri-9, Sun 12-5

Lodestone
STARTS SAT!
3/29

13 N. Pleasant Amherst, MA
48 Main St. Brattleboro

Nursing program runs breast feeding clinic

By JEFFRY BARTASH
Collegian Staff

For the past year undergraduate students in the University of Massachusetts nursing program have been running a breast-feeding clinic in Holyoke to help reduce the high infant mortality rate.

The clinic informs pregnant women about the safety of breast-feeding as opposed to government-supported artificial bottle-feed, according to Pat Bodelson, an assistant professor of the UMass Division of Nursing.

Anne Menapace, a student who works at the clinic said, "Nutritionally it's the best thing. Breast milk provides against disease, infections and allergies."

Her partner, Michelle Larocque, added, "It's the way the body is designed to feed and the baby is supposed to grow."

In 1981, Holyoke had 23.4 percent infant deaths per 1,000 births, one of the highest rates in the country, according to the Holyoke Health Department. In 1984 the figure was 12 deaths per 1,000 births. Statistics for 1985 have not been released.

The clinic has made bilingual films and pamphlets to reach Holyoke's large Hispanic population, but the federally sponsored Women, Infants and Children Program, which gives artificial feed to financially needy mothers, has created a cultural barrier hard to dismantle, Bodelson said.

"Poor Hispanic women see formula [artificial feed] as a way of expressing affluence," she said.

Debbie Abel, a teaching assistant who coordinates the clinic's activities with Providence Hospital in Holyoke, said formula is safe if used correctly, but problems are caused because it is in powder form that has to be mixed with water.

"If mothers do not dilute correctly or do not understand the directions, or if unsanitary conditions are present, the formula's nutritional value will be lower and make it more dangerous for the baby," she said.

Abel said the students go to the clinic twice a week. They visit mothers at the hospital who recently had babies, hold a few clinics for pregnant women and call or visit mothers at home to provide support and other information.

Linda Warren, who worked at the clinic last semester said, "People take for granted that breast-feeding comes naturally, but it takes a while for the baby and mother to learn."

One mother, who did not want to be identified said, "It was my husband's idea for me to breast-feed. I thought it was disgusting, but I heard how good and natural it is. I'm going to try it."

Cornell University has a place for you this summer.

Wonderful courses, great professors, magnificent environment, people from everywhere, lots of good things happening — come enjoy it all.

Send me Cornell's Summer Session Announcement of credit courses and special programs.

Name _____
Address _____
City/State/Zip _____
College _____

CORNELL UNIVERSITY, BOX 96, B12 IVES, ITHACA, NY 14853 607/255-4987

$5,000 raised for hungry

As children, many students were told to eat their vegetables because of the starving people in Africa. Last semester, students avenged their parents by participating in a fast and sending their uneaten meals to hungry people.

In the fall the University of Massachusetts Hunger Task Force raised over $5,000 by holding a fast, collecting donations at a table in the Campus Center, a march for hunger and other relief projects, said Pete Sliker, a member of the Hunger Task Force.

"This semester we are looking for information to find out where the money goes. We are educating ourselves," Sliker said.

Most of the money raised by students last fall, was sent to Africa. The money will be used to deliver food to the starving, and to support birth control education, new farming technology, and other hunger relief projects.

Every year on Nov. 22, the Hunger Task Force with the help of Oxfam America, a national hunger relief orginization, sponsors a fast for students who eat in the Dining Commons.

Last semester, 2,212 people choose not to eat and instead donated the price of their meal to the hungry, Sliker said.

Students filled out cards saying they would not eat in the D.C. that night. The money from their meal was given to Oxfam America to distribute.

"For every meal, the D.C. gave us a little over a dollar," Silker said. "Close to 20 percent of the students who eat in the Dining Commons fasted."

The fasting students raised about $3,000 by not eating in the Dining Commons, according to Sliker.

—JEANETTE DeFORGE

Best Sale of the Year
Seniors!
Graduated Savings. FINAL DAY!

$15 OFF ALL 10K GOLD
$30 OFF ALL 14K GOLD
$40 OFF ALL 18K GOLD

One week only, save on the gold ring of your choice. For complete details, see your Jostens representative at:

Date: March 26, 27, 28 - Time: 10:30 - 3 pm Deposit Req. $15.00

Place:

UNIVERSITY STORE ©1985 Jostens, Inc
JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™

FOUR SEASONS
RT 9 HADLEY 584-8174

CASE SPECIALS
BUD & BUD LIGHT.....$10.99
COORS & COORS LIGHT.....$10.99
LABATTS BEER or ALE.....$11.99
SAN MIGUEL DARK.....$13.99
BECKS light or dark.....$14.99
GENESSEE LONG NECKS.....$6.99
CARLING BLACK LABEL.....16 oz cans.....$9.99

SIX-PACK SPECIALS
ST. PAULI GIRL light or dark.....$3.99
BECKS.....light or dark.....$3.99
LABATTS beer or ale.....$3.50
ROLLING ROCK.....long necks.....$2.99
FISCHER MARCH BEER.....$1.85 bottle

Don't forget to take home that special bottle of wine for Easter!

EASTER WINE SPECIALS
1984 Domaine de Beau-Site Musadet.....$2.99
1984 Bolla Rose.....$3.99
Marion White Zinfandel.....$4.99
1983 Chateau Pitray.....$4.99
Taylor California Cellars 3 liter
Burgundy, Chablis, Rose and Rhine.....only $6.99
Almaden 1.5 liter
Chablis, Burgundy, Rhine, Rose all only $3.99 + $3.00 rebate!

LIQUOR SPECIALS
Fast Shootin' B.B. Shotz Schnapps
8 flavors 750 ml.....$4.99
Vodka and Gin.....1.75.....only $7.99

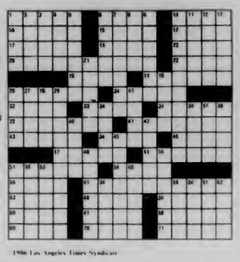
Four Seasons is located on Rt 9 just past McDonalds and Burger King
Have a Happy Easter!

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

The livestock would gather every morning, hoping for one of Farmer Dan's popular "airplane" rides.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Suffuse with light
6 European basin
10 USA officer
14 Stew ingredient
15 Assistant
16 Competent
17 Unis novel
18 Alumnus, for short
19 Shoshapce
20 Hirsute pixy?
22 Treaty org.
23 Colliery
24 Linguistic form
26 Sailors
30 City on the Meuse
32 Height: Prefix
33 Newts
35 Outmoded
39 Hepburn-Grant film, 1963
41 Loud-voiced one
43 Submarine detector
44 Suit to —
45 Entertainer Naldi
47 1945 Conference site
49 Type of wood decay
51 Suppress
54 Protuberance
56 Novice
57 Waterlogged pooch?
63 Biblical measure
64 Farm building
65 Theater offering
66 A Chaplin
67 Heraldic border
68 Truman's birthplace
69 Quarry
70 Inert gas
71 African antelope

DOWN
1 This and that
2 Cerebes ox
3 Skin tent: Var.
4 Type of frost
5 Organic catalyst
6 Astronomer Carl
7 Best ventilated
8 Hebrew month
9 Colored again
10 Shrewd nursemaid?
11 At right angles to a ship s keel
12 Greek philosopher
13 Wyoming range
21 Mulcted
25 Record
26 Wisconsin Native Americans
27 Ravenberate
28 Galway Bay isles
29 Ear rad?
31 Being
34 Accomplishment
36 Move to tears
37 Hernando de —
38 Part of QEF
40 Soviet sea
42 Kind of bear
45 Hybrid citrus fruit
48 School assignment
50 Red ocher
51 Small veranda
52 Indonesian island
53 A Forsyte
55 Poet Nash
58 Elbe feeder
59 Spoken
60 Vasco da —
61 FBI agent
62 Scotland —

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	H	O	W	B	L	A	S	T		F	L	E	D
L	E	V	I	T		I	O	N	I	A		A	I	D	A
I	R	E	S		C	R	A	N	K		T	R	I	M
P	A	R	T	A	K	E		E	S	T	A	T	E
		L	E	G	E	S		M	O	U	E
P	O	O	R		R	A		C	O	V	E	T	E	E
A	V	O	I	D		S	U	P	E	R		O	L	E
P	I	K	A		O	M	B	E	R		C	O	L	A
F	I	N	E		A	V	A	I	L		B	A	K	E	S
R	E	D	A	L	E	R	T		S	E	R	E	N	E
		S	E	R	T		S	H	A	R	D
B	A	S	K	E	T		M	O	T	I	O	N	S
A	S	H	E		A	L	T	E	R		A	V	O	W
S	T	I	R		K	A	R	A	T		G	E	R	A
S	O	N	S		E	M	I	R	S		E	R	A	T

1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES
BY R.MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

Lunch
Seafood and Shell Caserole
Pizza

Basics Lunch
Seafood and Shell Casserole
Pizza

Dinner
Roast Top Round of Beef
Jardinere Sauce
Fisherman's Plate/Tartar Sauce

Basics Dinner
Colache
Fisherman's Plate/Tartar Sauce

Staff Notice:

All Collegian editors and associate editors, including Larry, must attend a newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, an assistant managing editor of the Springfield Daily News.

The workshop will be held next Wednesday, April 2, at 8 p.m. in a yet-to-be-announced room. Mandatory for editors, other staffers are welcomed and encouraged to attend.

Weather

TODAY—Partly sunny, high in the mid 50s. TONIGHT—Clear, low 35 to 40. TOMORROW—Mostly sunny and warm, high in the 60s.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor	Andrew Wolff
Copy Editor	Jim Patriquin
Layout Technician	Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician	Rob Skelton
Production Supervisor	Norm Achin
Production: Dave Boardman, Bill Wenzel, Max Puddle, Peter Bullis, Laura Vogel, me
Volunteer: Michelle Eichelman

FREE T-Shirts & Hat

Joe's Paradise
GOURMET FRIED CHICKEN
TRY SOME!
FRIED CHICKEN PALACE
TRY SOMETHING NEW & COMPARE THE VALUE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON BETWEEN $5 & $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE HAT FREE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON OVER $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE T-SHIRT FREE

Downtown Amherst, 31 Boltwood Walk
(through the alley, next to Taco Villa)
253-7494

FAST FREE DELIVERY

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
Next to Town Hall
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $20 MINIMUM ORDER,
(OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial
253-3091
— All Prices In Store Cash Only —

Bud • Bud Light • Miller Lite
Coors • Coors Light
suitcase $11.99 ea. + dep.

Sam Adams Beer
6 pk $5.50 + dep.

Portland Lager
from Maine
"almost"
Now In Stock

10% Off
All California Wine including sparkling wines

Heineken • Becks
Grolsch • St. Pauli Girl
San Miguel (Lt.)
6 pk. $4.25 + dep

Summit Leather
Connect the dots
YELLOW - 10% off
RED - 20% off
BLUE - 25-40% off
SALE
MAR. 27-APRIL 11
purchase a regular priced coat, and receive complimentary conditioner
Hampshire Mall
Rte. 9 — Hadley
586-2014

KATINA'S
formerly Funnybones
Friday Night: STOMPERS
9:00 pm - 1:00 am
Saturday Night: Trapped
9:00 pm - 1:00 am
Sunday Night: Mannish Boys
18-21 welcome anytime!
New Juice Bar
Positive ID required
Grand Opening: April 5, 1986
with Mitch Chakour
Open Daily 5 pm - 1 am
322 Russell St. 586-4463

voted the best new restaurant in the valley
INDIA HOUSE RESTAURANT
Exceptional food & reasonable prices...
BUFFET BRUNCH
on Sunday
$6.95 all you can eat
11:30 - 3 PM
Gift Certificates Available
serving beer & wine
45 State St. Northampton
dinner: 5:00-10:30 lunch: 11:30-3:00 take-out available 586-6344

Pride and respect.
They come with the territory.

It's one of the first things you'll notice as a Navy Officer. The recognition that you've got what it takes to Lead the Adventure.

That adventure can lead you around the world and back again. And along the way you're picking up experience that builds confidence it takes years to get elsewhere.

There's no boot camp. College graduates start with management and leadership training at Officer Candidate School. Once commissioned, you'll have even more educational opportunities that can further professional growth.

You'll uncover your potential and get the responsibility and decision-making authority success needs. The challenge, satisfaction and rewards add up to personal and professional growth no other job can match.

When you Lead the Adventure you start out with pride and respect. It puts you a step ahead. Contact your Navy Officer Recruiter or call 1-800-327-NAVY.

NAVY OFFICER.
LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

★baseball

continued from page 16

(statistically, anyway) was Jack Larson at 3-1 with a 1.89 earned run average. He pitched Wednesday against Pace. Junior righthander Rich Danson (2-0, 2.25) is expected to start one of the games against UMass.

For UMass, senior rightie Bob Kostro (0-0, 3.65) will start the first game with senrior Jon Martin (0-1, 4.35) starting the first game on Saturday. In a surpise move by Bergquist, freshman lefty Mike Owens, who was 0-2, with a 9.72 ERA in Florida, will start the third game. He allowed 12 hits in eight innings in Florida. Junior southpaw Steve Allard (0-3, with a team-best 1.64 ERA) will the first reliever up.

At the plate, UMass will be looking to improve upon their .246 team batting average. The Minutemen's little leagueue-like .916 fielding percentage also needs improvemnt if they want to return from Philly with a couple of wins.

"Right away we have the imporatnt series," said Bergquist. "We'll see what kindof team we'll be this season soon."

Minuteman Mutterings: Last season, UMass won two of three versus the Owls. The teams also engaged in near-fisticuffs, meaning the weekend could see another scrap. ... freshman rightie Dave Telegheder and senior designated hitter Doug Wright will not make the trip with pulled stomach muscles and an injured wrist respectively.

★women's lacrosse

continued from page 16

her sophomore goalkeeper who has given up just eight goals this season.

But Mudway played backup in goal last season and although the Terriers' two games were good experience to get under her belt, she has yet to face a team with an offense as potent as the Gazelles'.

Spearheaded by senior first home Bunny Forbes, sophomore second home Ginny Armstrong and third home junior transfer Lisa Griswold, the Gazelle attack is expected by Hixon to fastbreak and attack at every opportunity.

"If any team tries to play us man-to-man or has a weak goalkeeper, we'll score a lot of goals," she said. "Our attack is strong. We have so many weapons that no one is going to shut us down completely.

"It's just a matter of whether our defense can hold its own, but after the way it played against Rutgers I feel very good about its play too. We're just going to go out and play and see what happens. That's all you really can do until the season starts."

AP photo

Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens lets one loose in Spring Training

FRIDAY
6-9 Jazz in Sillouette
9 am NEWS
9-12 Concepto Latino
12 NEWS
12-3 Art Decade
3-6 Soul Furnace
5 pm NEWS
6-7 The Baker's Dozen
7-10 BMCP The Sounds of the City
9 pm NEWS
10-2 Non-Sequitor Theatre
2-6 Bedspins

SATURDAY
6-8 Real Life Radio
8-1 Polka Bandstand
1-3 Concepto Latino
3-6 BMCP The Function
6-7 Reports in Color
7-10 BMCP Mix Master Mike
10-2 BMCP The Prince
2-6 BMCP The Quiet Touch

SUNDAY
6-10 Glory Raod Gospel Show
10-12 Zamir
12-2 Undercurrents
2-7 Country Blues and Bluegrass
7-10 Rock n' Roll Memory Time
10-2 Dadavision
2-6 Bedspins

WMUA 91.1 fm

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon. Thurs. 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

"Should SDI Research be Performed at the University of Massachusetts?" Wednesday, March 26, 4-5:30 p.m., Campus Center 174

Greetings, Jewish Students! Sun. 3/30/86 from 7:30 pm - midnight, "Post Purim Blues Bash!!!" Torrey Hall Mount Holyoke College — Be There!!

AUDIO

BOSE 101 speakers for sale $150 or BO call 6-7917

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Rabbit - fuel injection, 92k, many new parts, Blaupunkt AM/FM cassette $1795 or BO Jon 256-6843

1980 Pontiac Phoenix, standard, front wheel drive, one owner, $1,400. 256-1489 eves

72 Ford Mustang body in excellent condition new: exhaust, brakes, suspension . . . call 549-6633

1976 Honda Accord very clean new parts stereo $1000 negotiable 253-5690

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body,interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8494

1975 Ford Granada 4 dr PB/PS AM/FM body in good cond new parts 546-1497

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom apartments. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or top or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth summer rentals 253-7496

Roommates needed for summer on Cape Cod Hyannis area call: 546-5288 or 546-4717

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-8645

Dead Tix - trade any Providence show for Friday Hartford show. 546-5604

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME.

FOR RENT

Rooms available in vacant house this summer with option to rent next fall. 5 min walk from town and UMass call for more info Mary 549-6799

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach . . . call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Apt in house. 3 bedroom. Great location, right next to 7-11 in Sunderland. Very clean, quiet and spacious. $600 month, lease starts June 1st. 665-8275

FOR SALE

73 Ford LTD must sell! $500 OBO low rust, runs great. Doug 545-2591 or leave msg 549-7097

Smith Corona TPI Printer $115.00 Computer Table $15.00 256-4905 eves

XM quatrro Skis, Karhu 210cm, hard poles and bindings, waxless $75. 256-1044

Gucci Watches only $30 call 6-7480

Gold Clubs. Ladies starter set w/cover, bag. Used once. $95.00 (74-7082 eves. Ask for Debbie

Peavy Guitar Amp Head 210 watts, many features $280 or best offer call Dave after 5:00 549-1703

3.4 cu. ft. Kenmore refrigerator only used 1 year. $125 or BO call 549-6593

HED speakers by Cerwin Vega $200 firm. Akai F14 tapedeck. Sony turntable, rock guitar amp, need cash, call Dick, 549-1052

Speakers - 1 pair Cerwin Vega high energy design speakers, 12 inch woofer, 6 inch bass, $225 call any time 256-6761 negotiable

Televideo computer terminal like new. $350 or BO model 910+

HELP WANTED

Entry Level Marketing Positions Avail in local multi-mill dollar firm. Full-time, part-time, and student shifts. Paid training, wages from $4 to $12, also bonus and sales comm. Matt 584-3596

Work study, lab dishwasher, 5-7hr/wk, $4.20/hr, April and May, summer option 5435-2364

Sophomores, Juniors looking for career experience? WMUA is hiring a new Business Manager. Great opportunity for SOM majors interested in radio. Bookkeeping and computer experience a must. 9-10 hours per week $3.35/hour. Applications available at the Student Activities Office or WMUA. Univ April 4th SGA is an equal opportunity employer

HOLA' JOANNA

Oh m'gawd - I can't believe the class/career blockings may suit my birthday. I'm flipping g'out Happy B-day, love your Long Island buddies at 54 H.R. ST. Anyone seen any free B-day cakes? Anyone have a menager? Where's Al?

INSTRUCTION

Jewelry Making Class
begins next week
Jackie's gems 549-6439

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted. Please call 549-5130 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal.

LOST

Lost two keys on campus before Spring Break, unattached, Lorean 546-9152

Kabuki 12-speed taken from Webster 2nd floor lounge over break. This bike was a gift from my father who I rarely see. It has a lot of personal value to me. Please call if any knowledge of its whereabouts. Reward for return any condition. No questions asked Liz 210 Webster 6-7073

Lost black and gold papermate pen at Newman Center. Engraved Carlos. Very sentimental. Please call 549-4136

Lost gold frame glasses in Campus Center. If found call Jodi 6-8020 reward. Hurry I can't see w/out them

Lost 1 pair of Cloisonne swan earrings at 104 Puffton. Great sentimental value! Please return or call 546-7176

Brown softball glove 3/25 in area of Lot 40 if found, please call Eric at 546-7228

MOTORCYCLES

Suz GS650, 5000 mi, good cond, fairing with stereo, $1200 or BO, 256-1644

Honda '82 CB 750 F exc cond 8500 mi many extras $1700 BO 665-4543

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 549-0966

Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo Emo

Attention U.S. citizens freedom fighters on campus! Support free speech and oppose communism in Central America

Sea Semester: Spend an incredible semester at sea and learn more than you ever will in 4 years. Find out more on Tuesday April 1 1:00-3:00 Campus Center rm 905 or call 549-6376

Free Press Save this upcoming Friday at the Hatch 9 pm, Saturday 5 am Hamden, 8 W. Sun at Noho Cty Ex Arts 2 pm Free bagels? PAZ

Our Queen - we are sorry for what we have done. When you find out what it is don't take it too personally. Hee Hee

To the men of the 6th floor McVamara-tan and Friendship. That's what makes you guys the best! Happy Easter love from a friend (s)

For all Delta Chi Brother and Pledge activities and information call Pete Peter your number is 549-7467

Marilyn Hou - Happy Birthday!!! With lots of funkyswelle, fun wishes for a cool "roomie" (ahem) love from Alyxx and Mark

Thanx for 11 years of best friendship Happy Birthday KMAC Luv, Jo

Bibi your free for the week study hard

Spend the summer and/or 1986-87 school year in sunny Spain. Quality instruction at economy prices: Business Administration, Hispanic Studies, Arts and Sciences. Graduate courses in Hispanic Studies offered in July. Outstanding summer school. Contact: Admissions, St. Louis University, 221 North Grand Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63103. Toll free telephone: 1-800-325-6666

Happy 23 Birthday Chris! I hope it's a great one! . . . are you sure you're legal? Love B

Hey Kevin - I wonder if all holiday inns have ice. Wanna find out? Have a happy!

Gotta like those post Purim blues?

Billy I love you! Love Pam

Mercedes Lisa and Billy Thanks you for all you did to make my birthday extra special! You guys are the best! Love Pam

Lynn O - Hey look one for you HAPPY B'DAY" You're the best roommate Thanks, Claudine

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
Two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Eares) in Amherst, and Main St Records in Northampton

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus; dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female roommate needed for summer in Hyannis new house, ideal location, low weekly rent . . . call 546-7092

Female housemate(s) needed for summer on Cape Cod call Karen 542-3977

Room for rent in house $140/mth, call Dick, 549-1052 negotiable

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall. 584-9362

Looking for housekeeper? Call Julie 253-5406 rate $6/hr

Apartment Cleaning kitchen livingroom bathroom 1 2 price may vary call W N 7-9 549-0694

WANTED

Subjects needed — Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage set construction, site prep, security) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3-week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Aria, 545-2803/4

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one-credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April, May and September Contact Aria 545-2803/4 Auditions, 4/30 April 3 Hasp's Mall, Fine Arts Center

Wanted Dead or Alive Triumph TR6 in any condition call 634-2297

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease of house or apartment 2-3+ bedrooms, pref. close to campus Call 546-1066 or 546-9835

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5823 or 546-5610

For summer. Two bedroom apt. in Amherst call eves 546-4577 ask for Nicole

Seeking room in Pufffton for fall 86 please call Susan 546-7445 or Teresa 546-7064

SPORTS

Gorillas faze winless Delaware

Blue Hens, however, will challenge UMass

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Don't be fooled for a minute by the University of Delaware lacrosse team.

The Blue Hens, at 0-3, are without a doubt the best winless lacrosse team in the nation and are probably among the top six teams the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team will face this season.

But as Coach Dick Garber and his Gorillas prepare to face the Hens on the road (Saturday at 2 p.m.), they fully realize that if they play up to their level, Delaware will looking at an 0-4 start.

"They [Delaware] started the season thinking that they could grab one of the 10 NCAA playoff spots, and maybe they still can," said Garber. "They're tough."

Losers to the University of New Hampshire (8-7, in the mud) and the Naval Academy (16-12) at home as well as to second-ranked Syracuse University, 14-8, on Wednesday night in the Carrier Dome, the Hens will be looking to avenge a tough 14-13 overtime loss at UMass last season.

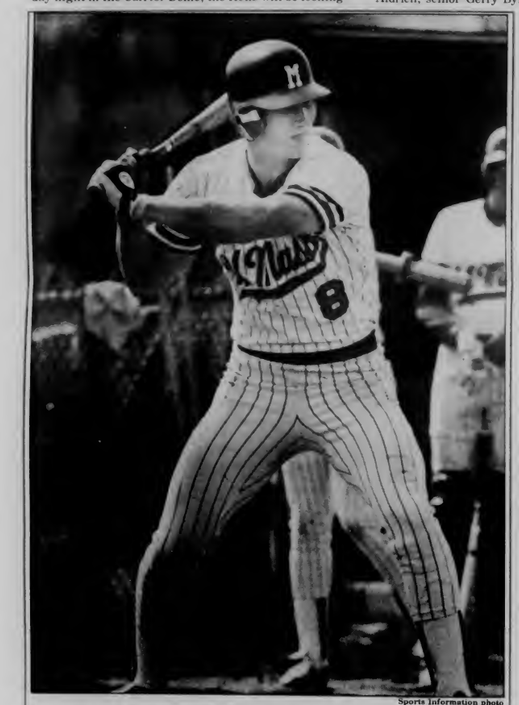
The Gorillas, 1-0 with a 13-7 spring break win at Air Force, have been adding to their offensive and defensive schemes in practices since the Air Force game.

"We've added a few new looks, it's coming along," said Garber. "The new guys have picked up the things we're teaching them. I'm feeling good about this game. We can win."

The Gorillas are being led by All-American junior attackman Tom Carmean with six goals while former junior college star Greg Canella has six assists. Kelley Carr and Ed Boardman have two goals each with Greg Fisk, Tom Aldrich and Neil Cunningham have scored once each. Doug Musco has added an assist.

On defense, the goaltending of freshman Sal LoCasio has drawn high praise from Garber as well it should. The keeper has faced 23 shots and made 17 saves for a .739 save percentage.

Aldrich, senior Gerry Byrne and juco transfer Chris Knapp have been tough on defense along with Scott Craig.



The Blue Hens trailed Syracuse 9-7 at home point in the game before the Orange blew it open. Traditionally a man-to-man team, the Bob Shillinglaw-coached Hens went to a zone defense in the Dome, so Garber is readying for both.

The Delaware goaltending, with three freshman splitting time, has been suspect meaning Carmean, Canella and Carr could benefit.

On offense, Delaware has been led by senior Steve Shaw. The former face-off artist has developed into a scorer with six points entering the Syracuse game. Junior midfielder Butch Marino leads the team with seven goals while World Team attckman Randy Powers checks in with four goals.

"It'll be a tough game and it's early in the season, that makes it one we'd especially like to win," said Garber. "This game will tell a lot about us."

Gorilla Grumblings: Aldrich graduated from high school with Powers as both attended New York lax power West Genesse High in Camillus.

Sports Information photo

Senior first baseman Jeff Cimin and the University of Massachusetts baseball team face Temple this weekend.

Early series is critical

Baseball at Temple

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

For the University of Massachusetts baseball team, it comes down to this: win two games and the 1-8 record in Florida doesn't mean anything. Lose two games (or more) games and suddenly the 30 games left this season will seem to last forever.

Starting today at 3 p.m. in Philadelphia with a game against Temple and a doubleheader against the Owls on Saturday, the most important games on the schedule are this weekend.

"We need these games to get a jump on the Atlantic 10 schedule," said UM coach Dick Bergquist. "You can't say it's over if we lose two, but it will be tough to come back."

Temple, at 8-8-1, has also been having its troubles with two straight losses, including an 8-3 loss on Wednesday at Pace University. Coach Skip Wilson's crew is also a scrappy one, having a game in Florida being forfeited after a Temple player punched an umpire.

Leading in Owls in hitting is senior second baseman Bob Niggebrugge with a .425 batting average and 11 runs batted in. Junior third baseman Darren O'Neill is hitting .400 with 11 RBI and two homers while shortstop Pat Tronoski has driven in 14 runs and has one dinger.

On the mound, Temple's best hurler

continued on page 15

Minutewomen rained out

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

CHESTNUT HILL - The first game outside of contests played during the break for any University of Massachusetts spring sports team never got off the ground.

The UMass softball team traveled here yesterday only to have their scheduled doubleheader against Boston College rained out in the fourth inning of the first game. The Minutewomen were well on their way to their 12th win of the year, leading 3-0 with the bases loaded before a sudden downpour settled the matter of whether to play or not.

Boston College women's sports information director, Sara Groden reported that the downpour occured at about 2:30 p.m., sending the Eagles scurrying for their fieldhouse and the Minutewomen for their vans.

Groden did not know when the games will be rescheduled, although a date later in April is likely.

UMass, however, did find themselves in a welcomed, but rather unexpected, position yesterday. The Minutewomen woke up yesterday to find that they were ranked 20th in the nation after an 11-3 southern swing. In addition, UMass is also ranked number one in the Northeast region ahead of regional nemisis University of Connecticut and Adelphi University.

UMass is also ranked ahead of Atlantic-10 foes Penn St. and Rutgers University in the Northeast poll.

Cal St.-Fullerton occupies the top spot in the Top Twenty, with Fresno St., Texas A&M, Louisiana Tech, and Kansas rounding out the top five.

By being ranked 20th, the Minutewomen are the only team from the East represented in the weekly Division I poll, and are tied with several teams with the fewest losses on the year. Fullerton St. is 27-3 on the season, and ninth-ranked Northwestern is 4-3. The University of Michigan, ranked 15th in the nation, is currently 8-3.

With yesterday's games being rained out, the Minutewomen will open the northern portion of their schedule at home against Providence College in a twinbill on Tuesday, and will face Holy Cross College on Thursday in a doubleheader.

Extra Innings: What do head coach Elaine Sortino, senior co-captain Sally Maher, freshman outfielder Barbara Meehan and junior third baseman Debbie Cole have in common? All four share the rare distinction of playing two seperate sports (the women's volleyball team was ranked as high as 12th) in the same school year. Women's lacrosse and field hockey coach Pam Hixon has also been nationally ranked in two different sports. . . UM opens its A-10 schedule with back-to-back doubleheaders against Rutgers on April 12, and Temple on April 13.

Gazelles hosting BU today

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Spring has officially arrived.

The ninth ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team opens its season today as it battles unranked Boston University, this afternoon at 3:30 at Totman Field.

The Gazelles are fresh from a five-game unbeaten exhibition schedule played during last week's Spring Break, a vacation that included a pair of victories over Rutgers University and wins over Kenyon College and Wooster(Ohio).

With today's game, the Gazelles, who have spent much of their preseason practicing indoors, are hoping to continue their string of success and orient themselves to playing outside, something the Terriers, 1-1, have done twice already this season.

UMass head coach Pam Hixon didn't think her team would have any difficulty adjusting to playing outside, however, saying that the week in Florida gave her team plenty of time to adjust to outside conditions.

"Since our two games against Rutgers I've been confident that this team is ready to go out and play hard," Hixon said.

Still, the Gazelles will be up against a Terrier team that already has two games under its belt (a 4-3 loss to Boston College and a 9-4 win over Hofstra University on Wednesday) and boasts the talents of junior attackman Keke Leand who has already scored eight goals on the young season. Head coach Sally Starr has also gotten good performances from Pam Mudway,

continued on page 15

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:

Today: Women's Lacrosse: BU, NOPE Field, 3:30 p.m.
Baseball: at Temple, 3 p.m.

Saturday:
Men's Lacrosse: at Delaware, 2 p.m.
Baseball: at Temple (2) noon.

Sunday: No games are scheduled.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 39

MONDAY, MARCH 31, 1986

INSIDE

• Slimnastics students dance their way to fitness. Page 3.
• Valade kicks off a week of presidential choices. Page 5.
• Suzanne Vega returns to the Valley. Concert review on page 6.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

BLOWN AWAY–Freshman theatre major, Lisa Kelman, sets some bubbles free from her roof at Moore House in Southwest, yesterday afternoon.

Faculty bonus scale questioned

'Money for merit' system lacks consistency

First in a series.
By CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

Professor X and professor Y earned $33,666 and $30,837 respectively in 1979. Today professor X makes $58,006 while professor Y makes $45,575, a difference of over $12,000. The discrepancies in their salaries can be attributed to faculty merit pay.

The allocation of more than $1.5 million in merit pay to University of Massachusetts faculty members is an ongoing controversy buried in undisclosed peer evaluations and vague regulations that are inconsistent throughout the University, several professors and union officials claim.

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

Faculty members are evaluated by their peers in the areas of teaching, research and service, then recommended for merit pay increases which are added to their base salaries for the next fiscal year.

The recommendations for awards are first forwarded to the various department heads, deans and Provost Richard O'Brien for approval. Eligible faculty members are then ultimately awarded merit pay from two pools of money by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, who does not directly review the faculty merit process.

Although "this is no perfect system," Duffey said, "as human animals, we need incentives."

The merit process measures and rewards professors' efforts. "Some work harder than others. Those who make strong commitments and enhance the life of the campus and the campus' goals should be recognized," Duffey said.

The controversy in this "money for merit" system stems from what some professors see as bias in the evaluation process. According to University regulations, each department must establish a personnel committee in which elected faculty members evaluate the performance of the other members within the department.

However, there are currently no specific guidelines for personnel committee members to follow when they evaluate an individual's merit except that merit money cannot be distributed in an across-the-board fashion, said Arlyn Diamond, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, the UMass faculty-staff union.

"Once the paper train is laid down, it's hard to evaluate how evaluations are arrived at and how adequate they are," added Daphne Patai, a department of Spanish and Portuguese personnel committee member. "I'm totally opposed to merit (pay) because of what it does in practice."

Personnel committees make confidential evaluations by looking at annual reports submitted by each faculty member and determining the value of each member's contribution "behind closed doors."

Guidelines set by the Board of Trustees and the union say the evaluations of teaching, research and publications and service are subject to "the professional judgments of the departmental personnel committee," which "ought to be given great weight."

"One hopes that judgment is sided on professional grounds, but we live in the real world and all kinds of things enter in. One scientist's science is hokum to another," said Bruce Laurie, former MSP president.

"Performance is a peer judgment and judgment is different. Some departments have gotten away with murder," Laurie said.

Next: The evaluation process.

FYI:

Students walking to class through the southwest corner of campus should allow an extra minute to get to their destinations.

Traffic will be restricted on the south side of the Curry Hicks Cage starting this week because of landscaping work, scheduled to last between six and seven weeks.

A temporary construction fence will be installed south of the work area. The Cage should be entered through the Curry Hicks Building, and service vehicles are asked to use the access road from the north.

Contra seeks $100m 'to win'

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

The guerrillas fighting to topple the Nicaraguan government, known as "contras," can prevail in the current conflict within one year if the United States gives them $100 million in aid, a contra spokesman asserted yesterday.

Jorge Rosales, assistant to the press secretary for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, one of the US-backed armies fighting to overthrow the Sandinista government, also said he is confident all will go well when he speaks at 7 p.m. tonight in the Student Union Ballroom. The talk is sponsored by the UMass Republican Club.

Meanwhile, an all-day vigil next to the campus pond and a rally at 1 p.m. today at the Student Union Building are planned to protest Rosales' speech and US support for the contra war.

President Reagan's proposal to give the contras $100 million, $70 million for military and $30 million for "humanitarian" purposes, was rejected by the House March 20, but approved 53-47 by the Senate last Thursday. The House is expected to vote again on the request April 15.

"The $100 million will allow us to improve our conditions to win the war," Rosales said in a telephone interview. "It is also moral support from the United States that will allow us to open more doors.

"We can win this with less money because we have the support of the Nicaraguan people," Rosales said. But he said the money will bring a quicker outcome. "We are winning right now and I am confident that the situation will change in favor for us."

Responding to reports that in five years the contras have yet to gain a single town's support in Nicaragua, Rosales said they were part of a series of lies denouncing the anti-Sandinistas.

"They (opponents) used to argue that we (contras) kill and rape people to keep the US from helping us," Rosales said.

Asked about data from newspapers and human rights groups that indicate many FDN field commanders were officers in former dictator Anastasio Somoza Debayle's National Guard, Rosales said, citing his own November 1985 figures, "The senior UNO-FDN ("UNO" means United Nicaraguan Opposition) military personnel was composed by 53 percent civilian, 27 percent former national guardsmen (under Somoza) and 20 percent former Sandinista."

He did not provide figures for field commanders, but asserted that only about 200 members of the anti-Sandinista forces are former guardsmen.

"You cannot judge a whole army criminal. It would be the same to say the German army after World War II was all criminal," he said. "For the people that form our ranks one condition is that they have to be free from crimes to the people."

At tonight's lecture, Rosales said he wants to explain why the contras are fighting. He said he plans to elaborate on the last decade to show the roots of the conflict.

He said the contra force has increased from 10,000 to 21,000 members in the last four years, "not because one morning President Reagan decided to make the contras. It's because the Nicaraguan people's revolution was betrayed." Most major news media estimate the contra forces at 12,000 to 15,000.

Rosales said people have the right to protest his speech, but added that he

continued on page 4

Lecture in SUB; protests are set

Jorge Rosales' speech is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets will not be distributed, as was done in a ballroom lecture last week. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m.

No details have been given on security measures, although Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey last week allocated an undisclosed sum for some security personnel. Protest signs will not be allowed inside the ballroom, according to Gilbert Stair, president of the UMass Republican Club, the event's sponsor.

Students will have a chance to protest more vocally at a day-long vigil by the campus pond and at a 1 p.m. rally on the steps of the Student Union Building. Both protests are sponsored by a coalition of student groups opposed to Reagan administration policy toward Central America.

AP photo

CAGNEY DIES—Actor James Cagney, the legendary screen and stage performer for over 40 years, who won an Oscar as the song and dance man in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," died yesterday at his home in upstate New York. He was 86.

Motorist deaths down by 16% in Mass. since seat belt law

BOSTON (AP)—The number of motorists killed on Massachusetts' highways fell by 16 percent in the first three months of a mandatory seat belt law, but the number of drivers using the restraints has lagged below expectations, officials said.

Motorist deaths decreased from 115 to 99 between Jan. 1 and March 27, compared to the same period in 1985, according to the Executive Office of Public Safety.

But a statewide survey of 11,000 motorists found that only 37 percent were using seat belts in February, up from 19 percent in December but far lower than the 60 percent to 70 percent expected.

Seat belt usage hit almost 50 percent in Pittsfield, then decreased eastward across the commonwealth toward Boston, according to a state study. The higher western Massachusetts compliance may be due to the area's proximity to New York state, which had a mandatory law in place a year earlier.

"The seat belt law is clearly working. We know that from the figures and from the dozens of 'survivor' stories reported in the press ... But we really have just begun to scratch the surface of its life-saving potential," Terrence Schiavone, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, said in a statement released Friday.

"If we can save 16 lives with a 37 percent usage rate, imagine how many lives can be saved if we could double the numbers of those buckling up," he said.

Youngsters crossing state lines to get abortions, study says

BOSTON (AP)—Laws requiring girls to get their parents' consent for abortions have little impact because the youngsters simply travel to other states to end their pregnancies, a new study shows.

Laws currently in effect in five states require the approval of parents before minors can get abortions, and in six others the parents must be notified of planned abortions.

"I suspect that most women, of whatever age, will find a way to have an abortion, as they have historically, if that's their choice," said Dr. Virginia G. Cartoof of Boston University. "I don't think that these laws, for the most part, will inhibit minor women from getting abortions if that's indeed what they want to do."

Cartoof's conclusions were based on an analysis of abortions in Massachusetts and five surrounding states after Massachusetts implemented a parental consent law in April 1981.

Even though the number of abortions performed on minors in Massachusetts fell dramatically, it was largely offset by increased abortions in nearby states.

Saturday Clothes
197 N. Pleasant
Amherst
253-9729
- Open 7 Days -

it's that time again

when the Textbook Annex must begin to return unsold spring books to the publishers,

Returns start March 31st

Don't wait -- You may be disappointed!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Open Mon-Fri 9AM-4PM

WHY KEG BEER TASTES BETTER THAN COOKED BEER.

Ask most beer drinkers, and they'll likely agree: nothing tastes better than beer from a keg.

Ever since the days of Frederic Miller's original Plank Road Brewery, keg beer has always been fresher. That's because it isn't cooked to preserve it like most bottled and canned beers.

Well, now there's a beer that delivers that same fresh draft taste in a bottle. A beer specially cold-filtered instead of cooked, so it tastes like it was drawn straight from the keg.

Plank Road Original Draught.
Keg beer in a bottle.

PLANK ROAD
Original Draught ™

©1985 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

Students stretching, dancing their way to fitness

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

Students in a slimnastics class limber up in Boyden Gymnasium.

By JOE SHARTRAND
Collegian Staff

To the tune of "I Got a New Attitude," Mary Claire Strouse's slimnastics students snap their fingers and clap their hands, as they dance their way to fitness.

The slimnastics classes are the most popular one-credit physical education courses at the University of Massachusetts. There are 1,571 students enrolled in the 36 sections offered this semester, said Russell Kidd, director of physical education.

"We have people waiting for assignments to teach," Kidd said. There are 67 slimnastics instructors in the program.

"Basically, slimnastics is calisthenics put to music," said Strouse, the coordinator of the slimnastics program. "A class consists of ten minutes of slimnastics and 25 minutes of aerobics, then a cool-down for 10 to 20 minutes," she said.

The slimnastics program started in the fall of 1982 with two sections, increasing to six sections the following semester. "There was an initial worry that there wouldn't be enough teachers, but there is an abundance (of teachers) who know how teach (slimnastics)," Strouse said.

"Teachers don't need a heck of a lot of experience," Kidd said.

Strouse said she runs a training session for new teachers at the end of every semester, and new teachers are also paired with more experienced teachers. "This provides new teachers with a basis for teaching," she said.

Slimnastics instructors are responsible for helping their students learn to monitor their heartbeats during the exercises, Strouse said. "They have to stay within 75 percent of their maximum heartbeat and stay there for 20 minutes."

The classes are designed "to provide a challenging and fun aerobic and slimnastic program for University students," Strouse said. The long run benefits of the classes include burning off calories, lowering of the pulse rate, the toning of muscles, and increased flexibility. "I love teaching; it's really motivating to work with people who want to get in shape," she said.

"This is the first semester we haven't had to turn anyone away, because of the opening of the Curry Hicks Cage."

"We're holding them (slimnastic classes) everywhere that we can possibly hold them," Kidd said. "We're over capacity, and our only expense is a few recordings and blank tapes."

WOMEN'S FORUM

The Graduate WAGES Program at the Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a Disseration Writers Support Group For Graduate Women. The group meets from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call the center at 545-0883.

Monday

Michal Palgi, a Sociologist at the University of Haifa who is currently at the Center for Kibbutz Studies at Harvard University, will speak on "Sex Roles in the Kibbutz" at 4:15 p.m. at Wright Hall Common Room at Smith College. The lecture is sponsored by the Smith College Project and Social Change and Smith College Hillel.

Barbara Katz Rothman, author of The Tentative Pregnancy: Prenatal Diagnosis and the Future of Motherhood will speak about the topics of her book, at 8 p.m. in Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College. The lecture is sponsored by the Hampshire College Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program.

Tuesday

Professor Dolores Hayden, of the Department of Architecture and Urban Planning at the University of California, Los Angeles, will speak on "Redesigning the American Dream: The Future of Housing, Work, and Family." The lecture begins at 8 p.m. in 168C Campus Center, and is sponsored by the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities at UMass, and the Amy M. Sacker Memorial Lectureship at Mt. Holyoke College.

Thursday

The Graduate WAGES Program at the Everywoman's Center is sponsoring a three week workshop series for women about "Exploring Self Esteem." It will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. There is no cost for participating, but sign-up is required. For more information call the center at 545-0883.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

SOUTHWEST BEACH- Spring has sprung and these students took advantage of yesterday's glorious 70-degree temperatures, as they soaked up the rays on the horseshoe at Southwest.

Safety director has grown with UMass changes

By JEFFRY BARTASH
Collegian Staff

When University of Massachusetts Director of Public Safety Gerald O'Neil became a full-time University police officer in 1958, UMass had five other officers, men and women lived in separate residential areas and his pay was about $67 a week.

O'Neil, who took his current job in 1979 after UMass officials conducted a national search and decided on someone who knew the campus well, now oversees 43 officers and the University is more than twice as big as when he started.

"My main duty right now is ... to provide an environment which I hope to be safe and free from harassment and making it conducive to study. I have to listen to what the community tells me, what are the concerns," O'Neil said. "I try to meet with various groups. I can't provide services for the University community unless they give me feedback."

O'Neil, 58, was in the area long before he became a police officer; he was born in Amherst and entered the Stockbridge School of Agriculture as a horticulture major in 1952.

When he was a Stockbridge student, he recalled recently, women lived in the Northeast residential area while the men lived in the Central residential area.

"Discipline was then dealt out by the dean of men and the dean of women," O'Neil said. "All the women's residence halls were closed at certain hours, the doors were automatically locked and no one was let in after hours.

"The male dorms never really had set hours, but God help males that were found walking through the female area after hours. Their ID was taken and they were sent to the dean of men," he said.

"Many strict school regulations were withdrawn in the early '60s when the building of Southwest began," he said.

O'Neil graduated from Stockbridge in 1954. He was hired by the horticulture department and received $57 a week and became a part-time auxiliary police officer. In 1957, he married his girlfriend, Lorraine, of Amherst, and joined the University force full-time.

"At the time it was purely economics. I was newly married. I was making $10 a week more as a police officer than working for the horticulture department," said O'Neil, who still gardens as a hobby.

In the 1960s problems arose when the Southwest, Sylvan and Orchard Hill residential areas were built and about 10,000 students were added to the University. The Vietnam War also complicated things for police, he added.

"There were a lot of demonstrations. Every day we had a demonstration. We [the police] were seen as part of the establishment. We were seen as the persons not allowing the students to go into Whitmore," he said.

He said he has had job opportunities outside of UMass, but O'Neil said he likes the Amherst area and it is a good place to raise a family.

"I think we have great students and a great staff ... If it wasn't as good I wouldn't have stayed here," he said.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

"I have to listen to what the community tells me, what are the concerns."
—Gerald O'Neil

Women's film symposium's aim is to 'widen minds'

By BARBARA DeLOLLIS
Collegian Correspondent

Contemporary feminist film was the subject of a five-college symposium, "Gender and Visual Representation," held last week by the Five College Women's Studies Project on Feminism and Difference.

"Film is so powerful that we have to be accountable for the statements we make," said Alile Sharon Larkin, a film maker. Film is a way to "widen minds, do away with the fear of difference," she said, speaking on "Defining Ourselves."

The symposium began last Thursday. Catherine Portugues, professor of women's studies and comparative literature at the University of Massachusetts, introduced the project to about 45 people.

One purpose of the symposium was to focus on women video artists and film theorists, according to Portugues.

At session I of the symposium, two films and one video were shown. The films shown were by Juli Dash, Illusions and Four Women. They examined the issue of women and skin color.

The third screening was a video by Joan Braderman, who teaches film and video theory at Hampshire College.

Joan Does Dynasty was the video shown. This was a sequel to her previous video, Natalie Didn't Drown: Joan Does the National Enquirer, Braderman said.

"Women, desire and the popular culture" is the focus of these videos, she said.

"The nuclear family is dead, and it's giving Fallon a migraine," is just one example of the humor expressed in Braderman's take-off of the nighttime television soap opera, Dynasty.

Session II followed in the afternoon with a discussion panel titled: "Self-Image: Other, Self and Image".

Braderman said she tries to make her videos "as funny as possible ... a kind of building a bridge to a wider audience." "TV Id: The Women You Hate to Love" was her topic of discussion.

Judith Mayne, professor of women's studies and French at Ohio State University, discussed "Performance Anxiety," particularly the representation of the female body in early films contrasted with today's films.

The last screening was viewed in session III of the symposium on Saturday morning: a feature film by Yvonne Rainer, The Man Who Envied Women.

This film encompasses sexual misrepresentations, along with the housing problems of middle-income artists living in New York City, and Central American issues.

Rainer said that she is interested in making "features that combine different kinds of things." She directs her films towards the "avant-garde audience of untraditional nature," including museums, revival houses, and academic groups.

★ Rosales continued from page 1

trusts the audience will allow him to speak freely.

"I believe it is very important to learn more and listen to both sides of the story," he said. "I'm sure the people in the United States are learning more about the situation in Nicaragua. Little by little the people of the US are getting the information and this is turning the tables."

Rosales has worked in the political office of the FDN in Washington, D.C., and is currently employed in the organization's US communications office in Miami.

Full & Part Time Positions available in both SALES & TELEMARKETING

* Telemarketing -
Guaranteed $4/hr. Bonuses
Commissions Benefits
Need Reliable Transportation

* Sales -
We need persuasive, confident, personable individuals to represent our in house food service - 32 locations from Maine to Florida! We now offer part time positions to expand to full time.

Call at once 413-584-1598
American Frozen Foods
48 Bay Rd., Hadley, MA 01035

SUMMER JOBS

Application forms and job descriptions for positions with Summer Conference Housing are now available outside of the University Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center. Jobs as student supervisors, desk clerks, and operations crew personnel are being offered. Full and part time openings are available and include all shifts, weekdays and weekends.

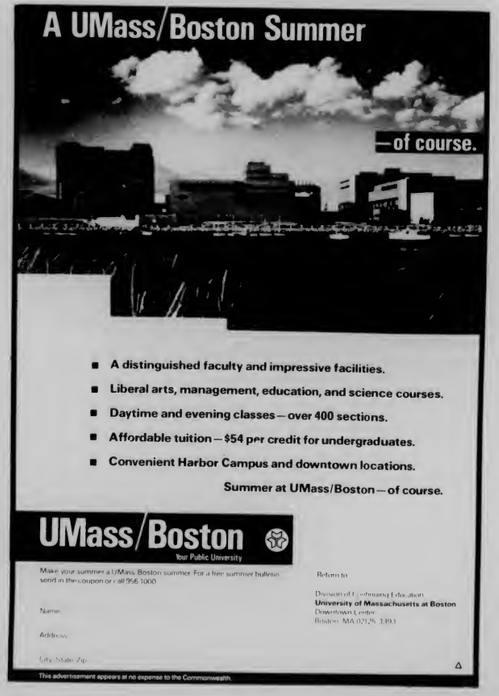
HRTA and work study students are encouraged to apply.

University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution.

abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz

SGA Communications Presents
a forum on

Publicizing With Print Media



guest speakers from

The Valley Advocate
UMass Alumni Relations
Hampshire Gazette
Fine Arts Center Publicity
The Collegian

learn about
Publicity "Know How's" and Career Pointers

Date: Tuesday, April 1, 1986
Time: 7-9 pm
Place: 811 Campus Center

Refreshments will be served

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Founded in 1890

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dede B Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dede B Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yance, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Seger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Free speech and war

This evening, a press secretary for the "contras" fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government comes to campus. His visit is sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Republican Club, which is obligingly working to muster public support for President Reagan's efforts to fund the contras with our tax dollars.

It is important that Jorge Rosales, the contra representative, be allowed to speak freely. But it is equally important that audience members not be fooled by his plug for a mercenary army that is anything but an indigenous rebellion.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey was not out of line to offer to pay for some security personnel during the speech, but he and the Republican Club are wrong not to disclose how much the University is contributing to the security measures. One hopes the official presence will be minimal and that protesters will be controlled only if they keep Rosales from being heard.

Rosales will undoubtedly say the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN), his organization and the larger of two contra armies, is a broad-based front with pluralistic ideals, though the majority of its field commanders were officers in Anastasio Somoza Debayle's National Guard, the deposed despot's version of the Gestapo.

It is likely he will present a list of abuses by, and discontent with, the Nicaraguan government—some true, most exaggerated, all omitting the fact that the FDN cannot claim the allegiance of a single town and has a far worse human rights record than the Sandinistas. Whatever disenchantment exists with the regime has not translated into support for the contras.

Rosales may extol the virtues of the United Nicaraguan Opposition, or UNO, an umbrella group recently formed in Miami in an effort to portray the contras as a cohesive force. The absurdity of this public-relations creation was highlighted in the March 18 episode of "Frontline;" not one of more than a dozen recruits interviewed at random had even heard of UNO.

Reagan is counting on a surge in public support for his military "solution" in Central America and on a politically fearful Congress to bow to him as he seeks $100 million more for the contras. What UMass students can do to counter this is to grant Rosales every right to speak on campus, but also to attend the "vigil against the contras" at the Campus Pond today to show the depth of resistance to paying for his sordid war.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Ortega and Khadafy in '88

David Valade

I believe there are two strong candidates for President in 1988, both of whom have qualities that make them desirable for the job. Who are they? Daniel Ortega and Moammar Khadafy.

Now wait, calm down, hold the uproar. Both of these men have strong backgrounds. We elected dear old Ronnie, for a great part, because of his image as a tough guy cowboy. He is our strong protector, a man who will stand up and face down bad guys. Mikhial, look out, you've met your OK Corral. But Reagan was only an actor. Ortega and Khadafy both have stood up and spit in the face of a tough guy who's packin' a whole lot more than a six-gun. It takes a lot more chutzpah to stand up to the threat of our dear, beloved Marines than the courage Reagan ever had to show in a barroom duel. Reagan always knew the outcome, and hell, if he got shot, it was no big deal. He could just get up and find a new role for next week. There's a lot more at stake in Libya and Nicaragua, and any wrong move will not only make getting up impossible, it could make next week disappear.

Both of these men have strong name recognition. In this age of electoral politics, this is necessary. After all, who knew that Ernest Hollings was running for President in '84? No one knew who he was, and even now, no one knows. Occassionally, he gets credit for being a part of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, but for the most part the reaction is "Who is this Hollings?"

Our dear President, yes, that's right, gunslingin' Ronnie, has given these two men more name recognition than either deserve. After all, they're the leaders of small nations with relatively few people. They don't have enough military strength to make them much of a real threat. So what is Ronnie doing? Seems to point to a cover-up of some sort. While our attention is diverted, the magician does the trick.

Just look at last week. Every major newspaper had the issue of aid to the contras as their lead stories. Bingo. Just a missile or two later and our attention is diverted. Instead of an open debate on Nicaragua, we can pause for a little pressure through backroom politicing. And who knows what Nicaragua and Libya are helping to hide. Maybe the issues surrounding nuclear disarmament. Perhaps the new right's ravaging of our environment.

Ortega has one final quality that needs mentioning. The national media keeps suggesting that the Sandinista attack on the contras in Honduras was poorly timed. This couldn't be further from the truth. We all know that the Contras will get some sort of aid. Militarily, it was a wise decision to attack them now. It would be sheer stupidity to wait until they are fully armed. With this, Ortega has shown that he can be decisive, that he can act when he should.

But the big question remains. Is this really true? Do I really believe these two men should be our President? Perhaps the best light to view this in is by considering that I am an anarchist. Given my choice, I'd do away with the government. Oh, and could one of the kind people in the UMass Republican Club please support freedom of the press and give a copy of this to Jorge Rosales?

David Valade is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

University reputation in jeopardy

I would like to express my concern for this University. For many years we have had the reputation for being an open forum for discussion on topics ranging from religion and human rights to politics.

Now that reputation is in jeopardy. Here is the perfect opportunity to have a speaker tell the side of the contras first-hand, and a lot of people are not only upset, they're mad. We have listened to students who have been there and the political and military experts, so why not someone who is actually there?

All this man wishes to do is present his side of the story. One cannot make an intelligent analysis of a situation without hearing from both sides. Most people seem intent on listening only to those students and intellectuals who speak in favor of the Sandinista regime.

The man has yet to arrive and already our "friends" in the RSU are ready to protest him. I would like to direct some of this to those who wish to hold a silent vigil and funeral procession for those "killed" by the contras. Why not a funeral for the Mosquito Indians who have been killed, tortured and forced off their land by the Sandinistas? One more thing on misinformation; if the Sandinistas claim not to be invading Honduras, why did the Honduran government request helicopters and emergency aid to help repel Sandinista troops that crossed their borders? I hardly think that the Hondurans would make up something like this.

The bottom line is to get all the facts—see both sides of an argument in an open mind. Then and only then can an intelligent, mature judgement be made. Never jump to conclusions, or should I say, never judge a book by its cover.

Jim Watson
Sylvan

Watch all week as Collegian columnists designate who should, or will be, our next President.

Special consideration for contras

I would like to use this occasion to clarify the position of the Graduate Student Senate on the impending visit of Jorge Rosales of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force. The Senate does not oppose the appearance of Rosales nor do we believe that he should be prevented from speaking. The Senate has always been among the strongest proponents of free speech on the campus and we hope it will continue to be so.

It is only right that controversial, and even unpopular, points of view be presented at a major university such as this, and that proponents of such points of view be subjected to questioning and their positions, if false, demonstrated to be so.

The Senate's primary concern in the case of Rosales is that, based on the information that we have gathered, all other groups holding functions and lectures at the University are required to pay for their own security. This apparently occurs even in cases where they believe no security is necessary. Given this information we find it strange that special considerations are being made in the case of Rosales and would like to know why this particular lecturer should be treated differently than others who have come to this campus.

On a more fundamental level, while we as individuals may disagree with the position or tactics of Rosales and his cohorts, I think that none of us really wish to refuse the right of free speech to anyone. I personally strongly encourage those with positions similar to, or opposite to that of the visiting contra to attend the lecture and ask probing and insightful questions, and present facts that will enlighten and perhaps sway the audience or even the contra himself.

George Claxton, president
Graduate Student Senate

Singer Suzanne Vega and her band strut New York 'fast folk' stuff

By ANDREW WOLFF
Collegian Staff

Vega and The Valley are a great mix, and her return Friday night, after four months, was proof.

In what will probably be her only spring appearance in the area, Suzanne Vega, armed with her acoustic guitar and smooth voice, knocked over an enthusiastic and spring-fevered crowd at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall.

But she did not do it alone. This time, she brought with her four back-up musicians who did more for the Vega voice and poetic lyrics than anyone could ever imagine.

Opening with her acapella "Tom's Diner" and closing more than an hour later with, "Daniella," a soft and beautiful tune about a two-year-old girl Vega had babysat for, Suzanne Vega proved that in that short span of four months, a talented singer-songwriter can grow to shine.

"My thing is writing," she said backstage after her performance. "I can't consider myself a musician because I am not trained."

For the slim folk rocker, training makes no difference. Vega studied dance at the New York High School of Performing Arts and majored in English at Barnard College. Out of all that comes highly introspective, emotional lyrics and a cool, high voice, setting her on top of the new folk genre.

continued on page 7

With her popularity skyrocketing, singer-songwriter Suzanne Vega plans to record a second album, to be released in the fall.

SMITH COLLEGE REC COUNCIL PRESENTS=

the Bangles
&
the Hoodoo Gurus

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1986, 9PM
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SMITH COLLEGE, NORTHAMPTON

SMITH STUDENTS $7 & $8
+LIMIT 4 TICKETS PER ID
NON-SMITH STUDENTS $8 & $9
AT THE DOOR $10

NO CANS, BOTTLES, CAMERAS OR RECORDING DEVICES
HALL IS WHEEL CHAIR ACCESSIBLE

TICKETS:
SEELYE BASEMENT - WEEKDAYS NOON-3 PM
+MARCH 25 - APRIL 2
MAIN ST. RECORDS - NORTHAMPTON
FOR THE RECORD (FACES) - AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE - UMASS
ALL DATATIX OUTLETS, INCLUDING:
+SPRINGFIELD STOP & SHOP
+SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER

AMHERST CINEMA
Monday - Tuesday
Chan is Missing 7:30
Dim Sum 9:00
Double Feature Only $3.00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

FACULTY!

The Textbook Annex needs your HELP
to allow us to get all the necessary textbooks for the fall semester please send us your textbook orders
ASAP*
*as soon as possible
necessary forms are available through your departmental secretary or the textbook annex
ALSO: please inform your students that we will be returning this semesters unsold books to the publishers beginning March 31st
THANKS!
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

RESUME SERVICE

TYPESETTING
inexpensive
professional quality
ready for proofing
in 5-7 working days
resumes kept on file for changes

PRINTING
clear copies
50 copies for $6.50
50 additional copies for $3.00
price includes resume paper

SGA Communications Office
Contact: Ed or Jim
304 Student Union
545 1977

Student Note Printing Service
401 Student Union
545 2271

★ Vega

continued from page 6

Even though Friday's performance showed no new material, except for "Daniella," since her last Valley visit (four solo jobs in November) the addition of her band rounded out her show. "Tom's Diner" was followed by "Some Journey," from her only and highly acclaimed first album, Suzanne Vega. "Small Blue Thing," and "Undertow," also from that album, gave Vega and her band opportunities to show their colors. Vega produced her usual healthy voice over a light drum beat (sounded by Sue Evans) and supporting synthesizer, bass and lead guitar.

Although dispelling the notion that having four people behind her on stage gives her more power than when she sings alone, Vega said after the show that the band is still very important to her.

"It's a real pleasure to play with a band," she said, sipping on a drink. "It doesn't give me more confidence, it gives me a different kind of confidence. It makes you stand back and come outside yourself."

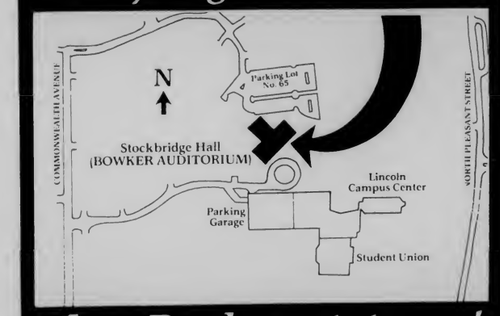
In her next and probably most exciting tune yet heard, Vega came alive with her story of an abused 9-year-old New York boy named Luka. Set to a driving rock beat, the lyrics spoke of an angry child.

"That song can be taken many different ways," Vega said later. "It can be angry or it can be sarcastic. You see children like that all the time all over the city."

Vega said she hoped to produce more songs like "Luka" for her next album, which is due out next fall. Even though other songs like "Cracking" heard drummer Evans seem a bit obtrusive, the percussion parts on all of Vega's works have been stepped up a bit since her album recording and have added more life to already very lively art.

"Queen and the Soldier," about a ruthless empress who executes a single rebel in her army, was yet another flawless piece. That, followed by "Knight Moves" and "Calypso," the story of the Greek goddess based on the Oddysey, created vivid imagery for the nearly sold-out audience.

Vega did not pass up the opportunity to showcase her "Left of Center," part of the movie soundtrack Pretty in Pink. The audience greeted the opening of the song with only mild applause. Needless to say, it is not one of her best works.



The Vega show was opened by guitarist Eric Wood and his band, The Way Out. Wood performed solo before Vega's performances in November, and his show Friday with his band fit perfectly into the evening.

Suzanne Vega departed yesterday for a three-week European tour, according to her producer, Steve Addabbo. Upon her return, Vega will begin work on her second album which, she said, will most likely include "Tom's Diner," "Luka," and "Calypso."

French pianists Katia and Marielle Labèque will present a concert of classical and contemporary music at 8:15 p.m., tonight in Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. The sisters have been performing internationally for three years, since debuting in New York in 1983. Admission is $9 for the general public and $7 for senior citizens and area students. This is the seventh concert in the 1985-86 Music at Amherst series.

First you get to Bowker...

Then Bowker gets to you!

THE BERLIN CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
Heinz Schunk, leader
Wednesday, April 9 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $15.13

MITCHELL-RUFF DUO
Willie Ruff, horn and bass
Dwike Mitchell, piano
Friday, April 11 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $13.11

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Five College Students Half Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office and Springfield Civic Center. Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

50% OFF 2ND SHOCK OR STRUT

FAMOUS MIDAS QUALITY INSTALLED AT A BUDGET PRICE.

Have any Midas shock absorber or strut installed now and you'll get the second one installed for half price!

Sale includes:
- Superguard GS* Gas Shocks
- Lifeguard* Shocks
- Springuard* Shocks
- Strutguard* Cartridges
- Mac Pherson* Struts

MIDAS

See warranty terms at your local Midas dealer.

TAKE IT TO MIDAS

Jct Rte 9 and 116 Hadley 586-4840 586-9991
King St. Midas Shop
NOW OPEN

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash only 6 ticket limit
On sale 3/31/86 at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Attention Computer Owners

IBM Portable, PC or Compatible?

We're offering fantastic SAVINGS on the following PERIPHERALS

1200 Baud Internal Modem	$149.00
Parallel Interface Board	$60.00
Serial Interface Board	$60.00
Memory Upgrades to 640K	$99.00
LEADING EDGE Basic Word Processor	$29.95

SPECIAL UNTIL APRIL 30th

PIONEER VALLEY DATA EQUIPMENT

259 Triangle Street
Amherst
549-1017

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!

Styles by Deborah

Coupon Specials

★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00

please call for an appointment

• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

DOVE
Secretarial Services

Fast, Accurate Typing of

- Resumes
- Term Papers
- Dissertations

79 South Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass 01002
256-1335
253-7480

UPE Union of Professional Employees — MTA Massachusetts Teachers Association

Wine and Cheese Reception for Professional Staff

Tuesday, April 1st, 4-6 pm
Campus Center 1101

Guest Speakers:

Nancy Finkelstein, President of MTA
Ed Sullivan, Executive Director
Ann Clarke, General Counsel

All professional staff invited to attend

For further information contact —
U.P.E. - M.T.A. Office at 549-4974

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!

Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper

Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON

Wickles FinePrint

1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148

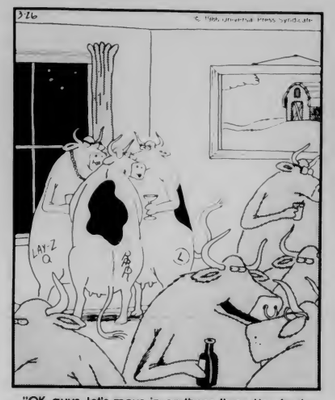
NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM

Engaged?

then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau

Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories

20% off your entire WEDDING ORDER



Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories

Hundreds to Choose From!

AMHERST STORE ONLY
WITH THIS COUPON

EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
Coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons.

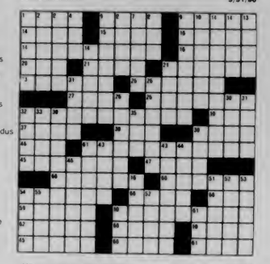
THE FAR SIDE — BY GARY LARSON

"OK, guys, let's move in on those three Herefords in the corner. ... Bob, you take the 'Triple R.' Dale, you take the 'Circle L,' and I'll take the 'Lazy Q.'"

"Hold it right there, Doreen! ... Leave if you must—but the dog stays!"

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Perfume measure
5 In addition
9 Age
14 Green land
15 Sparse
16 Wind blown
17 Fellow student
19 Flat Prefix
20 Vestment
21 Record
22 Carves the roast
23 Decrease
25 Contribute
27 Warm up
29 Flowering clusters
32 Highway junction
36 Mid-season
37 Average
38 Roaring Twenties, e.g
39 — delium
40 Once — lifetime
41 Sent in the understudy
45 Ductile
47 Give off
48 Most reasonable
50 Belittling
54 Savory jellies
56 Nimbus
58 Mineral rock
59 Undivided
60 Describing certain doors
62 Also-ran
63 Eastern tele
64 Where the Indus flows
65 Man from Malmo
66 Grant
67 Youngster

DOWN
1 Decorative transfer
2 Moon feature
3 Bedouins
4 — arms (my friends)
5 Farmer's reference book?
6 Show enthusiasm
7 Filled to repletion
8 Unit
9 Suppliant
10 Blush mineral
11 Classification
12 — — kleine Nachtmusik
13 Sgts
18 Man the tiller
22 Hindrance
24 Son of Noah
26 Flowery
28 Ancient Greek city
30 Feminine suffix
31 Plant product
32 Monogram pt
33 Not any
34 Invert
35 — — longa, vita brevis
39 Reo, for one
41 Candid
42 Diminutive suffixes
43 Beseech
44 Alpine region
46 Went by sea
49 Moist
51 Balance
52 Journalist Pyle
53 Lear offspring
54 Leather tools
55 Display
57 Eager
60 Amusement Abbr
61 Large vessel

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

T	A	F	T		T	O	G	A		A	R	C	S
A	R	L	O		P	O	P	E	S		F	A	L	L
L	I	E	U		O	P	E	N	S		T	R	E	E
E	L	E	C	T	R	I	C	E	E	L		B	A	D
			H	I	T		S	T	O	R	E	R	S
A	T	M	E	N	I	A	N		S	P	E	D
O	I	A		Y	O	D	E	L		S	E	W	E	D
O	R	U	M		N	A	V	E	S		L	I	M	O
S	O	L	O	S		M	E	D	E	S		R	I	G
		S	L	O	T		R	A	T	T	L	E	R	S
C	O	L	L	A	N	T			T	O	A
E	L	F		P	I	E	R	G		L	A	S	S	E	S
L	E	I	S		G	L	A	R	E		G	O	D	E
L	A	M	A		M	I	N	I	S		O	L	G	A
O	N	Y	X		A	C	I	D			R	E	E	S

3/31/86

1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 3/31/86

DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

HOUSEMATES — BY R.MILLER

GORDY — BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY — BY BERKE BREATHED

Menu

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Chili
Swiss Muffin Sandwich

BASICS DINNER
Stir Fry Vegetables and Tofu
Cheese Spinach Squares

LUNCH
Bacon, Lettuce, Tomato Sandwich
Chili Corn Chip Bake

DINNER
Beef Strips with MangeTout
Baked Cod with Lemon Wedge
Fruit Plate with Orange Bread

Staff Notice:

All Collegian editors and associate editors, including Larry, must attend a newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, an assistant managing editor of the Springfield Daily News.

The workshop will be held next Wednesday, April 2, at 8 p.m. in a yet-to-be-announced room. Mandatory for editors, other staffers are welcomed and encouraged to attend.

Weather

Today: Sunny, warm and wonderful with temps in the low 70s.

Tonight: Clear and cooling, temps 45 to 50.

Tuesday: A gorp-like mixture of sun, clouds and a possible raisin. Temps in the mid 70s.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor ..... Daniel Sobel
Copy Editor ..... Lisa DiMeo
Layout Technician ..... Peter Soderberg
Photo Technician ..... Brian Guarnotta
Production Supervisor ..... Peter Soderberg
Production ..... Laura Bell, Jennifer Coles, Petra Philipp, Jim Podesky, Peter Soderberg

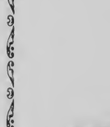
MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Writing a Paper?
Need Help?
THE WRITING CENTER
Pierpont in Southwest,
Mon and Thurs 7 - 9
B24 Baker in Central,
Tues and Thurs 7 - 9, Wed 1 - 3, 7 - 9
04 Cashin in Sylvan,
Mon and Wed 7 - 9
* Bartlett 103 Wed, 7 - 9
* New Location

SWAG Presents
The nation's Hottest Stand-up Comic
EMO PHILIPS
as seen on Late Night with David Letterman

THURSDAY
APRIL 10, 1986
in the
Student Union
Ballroom
Two shows 8:00 PM and 10:00 PM
Tickets are: $5.00 in advance $6.00 at the door
Available at: Tix in the Student UNion Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, Main St. Records in Northampton.
Another Southwest Area Government Production

CHEERLEADING TRYOUTS!
All University Men and Women Invited
Practice Dates: March 31, April 1 & 2
Time: 8:00 pm
Place: Curry Hicks Gymnasium
COME TRY!
No Experience Necessary



THE BLACK SHEEP
Deli & Bakery
79 MAIN STREET • AMHERST, MA 01002 • 253-3442
Hours Mon.-Sat. 9-6 Sun. 9-1
Across from Plumbleys
Soup • Bialys • Smoked Turkey • Rye • Kosher
Mousse • Brie • Pepperoni • Chocolates • Fresh Baked Breads • Gruyere • Cheddar Jalapeno Soup • Smoked Trout • Swiss Cheese • Chocolates • Curried • Lentil • Salads • Apple • Taragon • Cheese • Smoked • Cake • Corned Beef • Carrot Soup • Greek Rice Salad • Croissants • NY Deli Rye • Kosher
Lunch with a difference!
N.Y. Style Sandwiches
Homemade Soups, Salads
Breads and Desserts

Pinocchio's Restaurant
1177 North Pleasant St.
549-3669

Special Monday thru Thursday
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.00 + Tax
FAST FREE DELIVERY from 5:00 pm on
Does not apply in restaurant Mention when ordering.

Rock at DELANO'S

FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
FREE TACO BAR
MON & TUES NIGHT
9 — till it lasts
APRIL BEER OF THE MONTH
St. Pauli Girl
Proper ID Required
57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

Lodestone
ONLY SIX DAYS LEFT!

13 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
48 Main St.
Brattleboro

★ baseball

continued from page 12

Kostro then issued two unintentional walks and McDowell trotted home with the winning run as Kostro fell to 0-2.

Harry Daut pitched for Temple, throwing a complete-game five hitter with six K's.

The last game saw UMass fall behind 2-0, tie the game at two, only to see Temple score two in the third, one in the fourth and three in the sixth.

Freshman Mike Owens started and took the loss, falling to 0-2 with a four-inning stint that saw him allow five runs (three earned) while walking six.

Ken Greer, Chris Slattery and Jeff Jensen worked in relief. In all, the UMass staff walked 26 in 21 innings. The Minutemen made five errors, four in the opening game of the series.

In the third game, senior first baseman Jeff Cimini was three-for-three while freshman Steve Kern had two RBI, including his first dinger of the season.

Minuteman Mutterings: Scouts from the San Diego Padres, Los Angeles Dodgers, Philadelphia Phillies and the Central Scouting Bureau attended the series and were looking at Zerner, Sheran, junior catcher Sean Flint and Kern, who was drafted out of high school by the Detriot Tigers. . .UMass was 2-1 against Temple last year and 5-7 after 12 games. . .second baseman Rob Holiday, playing for the first time since a hamstring pull, made several fine plays, but also his first college error.

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Summer internship in Appropriate Technology
If you are interested in small scale agriculture, homesteading, or overseas service (private agency or Peace Corps), you can get hands-on practical experience with windmills, well and water systems, photovoltaics (electricity from the sun), small animal husbandry, gardening, and much more. The Windfarm Museum partially paid five week summer internship is for those who feel their future plans may need this knowledge. It is relevent to any major. While not a job, your work time should substantially cover your expenses.
For information write:
Windfarm Museum
RFD #2, Box 86
Martha's Vineyard, MA 02568
Tel.: (617) 693-3658

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9) Hadley 253-2571
150 King St, Northampton 586-8220

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.
After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.
That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.
So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.
KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT—BE ONE
Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide
358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

PENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

KATINA'S
Monday Night
come enjoy the fabulous sounds of the SOCH HOPS music from the 50's, 60's, & 70's
18-21 year olds welcome
enjoy juice bar
Grand Opening:
Saturday April 5
322 Russell St. 586-4463

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs, 8:45 - 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

University Sport Entertainment & Promotion meeting tonight 162 Campus Center 6:30 all members need to attend

Student Health Advisory Board meeting March 31, 1986 5:30 pm CHS rm 302 open to all be there

Cheerleading Tryouts! Tonight at Curry Hicks Gym 8:00 men and women invited. No experience needed! Come try!

The Truth About the Nuclear Arms Race a film "War Without Winners" McNamara Lounge Tuesday at 8:00

WSYL Radio - general meeting tomorrow night 4/1 at 7:00 in CC 165 all are welcome

AUDIO

BOSE 101 speakers for sale $150 or BO call 6-7917

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Rabbit - fuel injection, 92k, many new parts, Blaupunkt AM/FM cassette $1795 or BO Jon 256-6843

1980 Pontiac Phoenix, standard, front wheel driver, one owner $1,400. 256-1489 eves

72 Ford Mustang body in excellent condition new: exhaust, brakes, suspension BO call 549-6633

1976 Honda Accord very clean new parts stereo $1000 negotiable 253-5603

1976 Olds Cutlass a/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1975 Ford Granada 4 dr FB/PS AM/FM body in good cond; new parts 546-1497

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext. 5881-A

1979 Monza New clutch, brakes, 4 radials. $1500. 283-8592

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramids Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities: contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8835

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Roommates needed for summer on Cape Cod Hyannis area call 546-5288 or 546-4717

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

Female roommates wanted for summer on Cape Cod. Cottage in Hyannis. 1000 for summer. May 23 to Sept 2 call 546-9211

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH THIS WEEK

Check it out! All university women invited to rush Delta Zeta sorority Tues 6 pm Wed 9 pm (Dynasty hour), Thurs 6 pm for more info call Pam at 253-9916

DUE TO OVERWHELMING DEMAND

Alpha Epsilon Pi is holding a second rush. Be a part of the fastest growing fraternity * Great friends * superior social life * a new house * rush parties this week. Call now: Rob 546-9561 or Matt 546-9633

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jack, Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

Dead Tix - trade any Providence show for Friday Hartford show 546-5850

TURN THE TABLES 5 yr Pro D.J. latest records, best rates, lights free 586-9691 24 HR

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Rooms available in vacant house this summer with option to rent next fall. 5 min walk from town and UMass call for more info Mary 549-6799

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach, call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Apartment - three bedroom close to center sublet for summer with fall option, on bus route serious inquiries only 253-2284

Apartment available in Southwood. Take over lease June 1st, and it's yours for the fall. Low rent, good bus service. Call 253-3619 for more info

FOR SALE

Smith Corona TP1 Printer $115.00 Computer Table $75.00 256-1480 eves

X-Country Skis, Karhu 210's, boots, poles and bindings, waxless, $75, 256-1544

Peavy Guitar Amp Head 210 watts, many features $280 or best offer call Dave after 5:00 549-1703

3.4 cu. ft. Kenmore refrigerator only used 1 year. $125 or BO call 549-6593

HED speakers by Cerwin Vega $200 firm, Akai F14 tapedeck, Sony turntable, rock guitar amp, need cash, call Dick, 549-1052

Speakers - 1 pair Cerwin Vega high energy design speakers, 12 inch woofer, 6 inch bass, $225 call any time 256-0783 negotiable

Televideo computer terminal like new. $350 or BO model 910 +

Stereo Equip: Pioneer receiver $110, Teac cas deck $90, Technics turntable $70 or BO all exc condition! 549-3912

HELP WANTED

Sophomores, Juniors looking for career experience? WMUA is hiring a new Business Manager. Great opportunity for SOM majors interested in radio. Bookkeeping and computer experience a must 9-10 hours per week $3.35/hour. Applications available at the Student Activities Office or WMUA thru April 4th SGA is an equal opportunity employer

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost 1 pair of Cloisonne swan earrings at 104 Puffton. Great sentimental value! Please return or call 546-7176

Brown softball glove 3/25 in area of Lot 40 if found, please call Eric at 546-7226

MOTORCYCLES

Suz GS650, 5000 mi, good cond, fairing with stereo, $1200 or BO, 256-1544

1984 Honda Interceptor 700CC 8k mi ex celent cond. $2495 or BO 549-5990 keep trying or leave message

Honda Interceptor VF700 1984½ 3000 miles perfect condit'n blue 2500 call Tayler 253-3825

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5-0965

Sea Semester: Spend an incredible semester at sea and learn more than you ever will in 4 years. Find out more on Tuesday April 1 1:00-3:00 Campus Center rm 903 or call 546-6376

Free Press Save this upcoming Friday at the Hatch 9 pm, Saturday 5 am Hamden, S.W., Sun at Noho Ctr Fr Arts 2 pm Free bagels!! PAZ

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton

Spend the summer and/or 1986-87 school year in sunny Spain. Quality instruction at economy prices. Business Administration, Hispanic Studies, Arts and Sciences. Graduate courses in Hispanic Studies offered in July. Outstanding summer school. Contact: Admissions, St. Louis University, 221 North Grand Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63103. Toll free telephone: 1-800-325-6666

Now that certain people are happily "married" it's hard to think of existing personals

Happy Birthday Suzy to the best of friends love Marie

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment.

To Bird's Girlfriend and My Roommate: Happy one year anniversary! Hope there are many more. I'm going to miss having you as a roommate next year. Snuff too! Best of luck to ya love your roommate in the pink

Way to go Speedy Deliveries! Let's go for win number two!

Happy Birthday Skylly One from one who always cares Nigar

El Greco Rm 36, Thanks for watching Karen's camera. You guys take great pictures. Love El Greco Rm 33

Vally WR - great trip but what are my options now?

HAPPY BIRTHDAY JAN HAMANN

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

REWARD

We need a four person apartment for fall 86. If you can help us please call 546-6031 after 5 pm. Offering a nice reward

ROOMMATES WANTED

Female housemate(s) needed for summer on Cape Cod call Karen 542-3077

Room for rent in house $140/mth, call Dick, 549-1052 negotiable

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1289

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7692

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

Looking for housekeeper? Call Julie 253-5496 rate $6/hr

Apartment Cleaning kitchen livingarea bathares 12$ price may vary call W-N 7-9 549-0694

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst Center sunny 3 bdrm apt in house, call eves 549-5868

Looking for someone to take over Presidential Apt in June. Call Steve or Pat 459-1307

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

UPC MEMBERS

UPC is the number one college concert source in America. Keep it that way. Elect Art Stephenson UPC Business Manager. Vote Tuesday April 1

WANTED

Subjects needed – Students who lost a parent - will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9577 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage, set construction, site prep, security) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3 week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Aria, 545-2903/4

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one-credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April. May and September Contact Aria 545-2903/4 Auditions, 4:30 April 3 Haigis Mall, Fine Arts Center

Wanted Dead or Alive Triumph TRs in any condition call 834-2297

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

Looking for room in apt or house to sublet for summer. Close to 191, Northampton or Hadley. Call Sue 546-4462 weekends before 11 am weekys 5-7 pm

We'll pay you $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. Call 546-9865

Do you have a room in your Rolling Green apt? I want it!! Anytime after May 31st. Please call Christine at 545-2892 (daytime), 253-5248 (at nite)

SPORTS

Gorillas steamroll Hens 11-6

Canella, Carmean and LoCasio lead UMass to second victory

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

NEWARK, Del.—It's early, sure, but it's impressive.

The 15th-ranked University of Massachusetts lacrosse team destroyed the University of Delaware, 16-6 on Saturday, running its record to 2-0 on the season.

Led by junior All-American Tom Carmean's five goals and one assist, the Gorillas continued their strong play and await a Wednesday road trip to Ithaca to face Cornell. On Saturday, UMass opens up at home against the University of New Hampshire.

Junior Greg Canella helped spark the Gorilla offense with four goals and two assists while senior midfielder Greg Fisk, who is playing some of the best ball of his career, added three goals and two assists.

Doug Musco, Kelley Carr, senior Rich Abbott and freshman Greg Collins all added single goals with Musco, Neil Cunningham, Seamus McGovern and Pat Cain notching assists.

"We're playing real well, I'm surprised we won by 10 goals because Delaware's a good team," said UM coach Dick Garber. "I didn't expect it would be this easy, but like I said before, this is a great lacrosse team but and we have a lot of room for improvement which is a good sign at this point in the season."

UMass ran out to a 4-0 lead after the first quarter, opening the game with a great one-on-one move by Canella as the former junior college attckman-of-the-year beat his man around the cage and unleashed a rocket past the head of Blue Hen keeper Gerry deLyra.

The teams each scored four goals in the second period as UMass led 9-5 at hafltime. The Gorillas kept up the offensive pressure in the second half, scoring on a variety of broken plays or out of their half-field offense as Fisk ran the point, but it was the play of the defense that set the second half tone.

Freshman goalie Sal LoCasio continued his excellent play, making 21 saves as the Long Island native frustrated Delaware and World Team attckman Randy Powers (one goal, no assists).

With senior co-captain Tom Aldrich patiently shadowing Powers and senior Gerry Byrne continuing his solid play in the crease, UM's two junior college defensemen, John Jordan and Chris Knapp, played a little search and destroy.

"Those two guys had great hits," said Garber. "They each had a time when a midfielder was catching the ball and they were there right over his shoulder and bang, they nailed him. The Boyden Hill crowd will love these guys."

Statistically, UMass outshot Delaware, 44-32, had a 47-32 groundball advantage and was 18-of-23 in clearing the ball. The Gorillas continued to have problems with their extra man unit, however, scoring no goals in 10 attempts.

Senior co-captain Steve Moreland and Cunningham (who is playing short stick on the defensive midfielder unit) played well according to Garber.

"Fuzzy (Cunningham) took the ball and outran their offense a couple of times," said Garber. "He's looking impressive."

The face-off circle was the sight of a tough battle as McGovern battled the nation's best in Steve Shaw. Delaware came away with 14-of-26 faceoffs, but McGovern won most of his in the pivotal second half. On his assist, he beat Shaw and started a fast break, feeding Canella for the goal.

"We're playing pretty well right now, and I believe we'll keep it up," said Garber. "We haven't had time or weather to practice and we've still played tough. When we install some more tactics, we'll get even better.

I told these guys that the hard work they did this winter is paying off. This is what they're waited for and I'm glad to see them enjoying it. I think the fans at Boyden are going to like what they see."

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Chris Kocot works her way down field Friday as the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team beat BU, 11-5.

Women's lax crushes BU in opener

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

It was a little revenge for Pam Hixon. . .plus the best way to open the season.

Led by junior All-American Lisa Griswold with four goals and Bunny Forbes' hat trick and four assists, the ninth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team rolled over Boston University, 11-5, Friday at Totman field in its season opener.

The victory gave Hixon, UM's head coach in both field hockey and lacrosse, a way to payback BU head coach Sally Starr, whose team knocked UMass out of the NCAA field hockey playoffs last fall.

"We learned from them (BU) last fall that they are a momentum team and that unless you sit on them hard, they can make things very difficult," said Hixon, noting the many field hockey players on both rosters.

Hixon said that she had expected the Terriers, 1-2, to play a ball-control offense while packing the defensive zone to deny the Gazelles' offensive penetration around the BU net. However, that was not the case.

"I anticipated a slow-down game, but the only time they did that was when they were losing, and that didn't make much sense," Hixon said. "Instead of packing their zone, they played us man-to-man which allowed us to set more picks and screens to free our scorers."

Against the man-to-man defense, the Gazelles' offensive attack ran wild, scoring at will. Spotting BU a 1-0 lead as sophomore attackman Kim Pond scored the first of her team-high three goals just 3:38 into the first half, UMass took control.

Taking advantage of a weak right side of the Terrier crease which yielded 10 of the Gazelles' 11 goals, Forbes circled the net, beating both the creaseman and BU goalkeeper Pam Mudway to draw UMass even, 1-1, with 19:29 left in the half.

Forbes' goal sparked the UM offense, as the Gazelles scored the next five goals, all but putting the game out of reach.

"The way we played today, we could easily have scored 20 goals. We were really smooth," Hixon said.

At the 18:14 mark, freshman attackman Cathy Fuhrman scored her first collegiate goal, taking a pass from Forbes and stuffing the ball past Mudway.

Four minutes later, sophomore attackman Amy Robertson stripped a penetrating BU attackman of the ball, passed to Fuhrman who dished to sophomore attackman Ginny Armstrong who had cut across the middle. Armstrong fired past Mudway putting UM up, 3-1 with 13-47 left.

The rout continued at 11:32 when senior attackman Mary Scott scored off of a penalty shot before Forbes and Griswold each scored from BU' left side. Forbes assisted on Griswold's tally.

"Their creaseman wasn't that good," Griswold said, saying that BU's inability to stop the Gazelles' offense was due in part to Forbes' ability to get off good passes from behind the net.

The half ended with both teams trading goals, BU's Keke Leand scoring with 3:55 left and Griswold taking a pass from Forbes to cap the first-half scoring.

Baseball swept at Temple; falls to 1-11

Compiled from staff and wire reports.

PHILADELPHIA—The University of Massachusetts baseball fell to 1-11 on the season, dropping all three games against Temple University this past weekend.

Again, a lack of all three baseball skills: pitching, hitting and defense combined to haunt the Minutemen as they lost their fifth straight game. Temple, 11-8-1, won Friday by a football-like 24-7 score before winning Saturday's doubleheader, 2-1 and 8-4.

The Minutemen are now at the bottom of the Atlantic 10 Eastern Division with nine games remaining against league foes. On Tuesday, the Minutemen play at Connecticut before opening up a 14-game homestand with St. Joseph's on Saturday.

"We can still turn it around and do very well in the conference," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist. "But obviously we have some work to do."

On Friday, the Owls exploded on the Minutemen, driving starting pitcher Bob Kostro off the mound after he faced just seven batters. Temple then picked on Steve Allard and Jeff Richardson before Bergquist ran-up the white flag, bringing in outfielder Jack Card to pitch.

Jay Zerner continued to hit well for UMass, going three-for-four with a double and three runs batted in. Sophomore Matt Sheran was also three-for-four, with two doubles and four RBI. Shortstop Steve Allen ripped his third homer of the season, a rocket to left center.

In the first game Saturday, UMass senior righthander John Martin handcuffed Temple through five innings. Martin allowed only five hits, one run while striking out six in muffling the Owl bats.

UMass scored in the top of the seventh to tie the game. Bergquist then went with Kostro out of the pen and the senior co-captain proceeded to allow a single to Mike McDowell before a sacrifice put the runner on second.

Bergquist called for the intentional walk, but

continued on page 11

NUMMO NEWS

Connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution. A weekly Black news service publication

Volume 15 Issue 3 Monday, March 31, 1986

THE LATE DOCTOR KING

IN HONOR OF DR. KING

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

The Martin Luther King, Jr. Planning Committee, in honor of Dr. King's death, will be putting on its sixth annual ceremony. The ceremony will be on Friday, April 4, in Bowker Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The ceremony will feature a number of gospel choirs from surrounding states.

The diverse committee has about fifteen members and its purpose is "to keep King's dream alive," said Doris Clemmons, program organizer, CCEBMS advisor and adjunct Prof. of Afro-American Studies here at the University. This year the committee is focusing on the part of King's dream that states, "Today we are still challenged to be dissatisfied. Let us be dissatisfied until everyman has food and material necessities for his body, culture and education for his mind, freedom and human dignity for his spirit."

The committeee was formed about six years ago, by a group of students here at UMass. The committee designated the first week in April in which King was assassinated as Martin Luther King, Jr. Week here at UMass, to emphasize that he did not die in vain. Each Spring semester and after the week of activities is over, the committee continues with normal campus activities, still holding onto the committee's purpose and King's dreams.

The program is usually sponsored by student organizations and the committee appreciates any contributions. Proposals requesting donations were sent out to many organizations, but unfortunately, very few responded. Two groups that responded early were Afrik-Am and Iota Phi Theta Fraternity.

The committee is expecting to fill Bowker Auditorium with a mixed audience. The main speaker for this evening will be Dr. Brian Mosely from Newark, New Jersey. Mosely has been in the ministry for many years. Mosely feels he was called to do the will of God as a child. He has many followers and heads a "crusade of over 1,500 members," which is growing daily.

He is the first Pentecostal minister to have ever been received by highly ranking heads of State in Swaziland, and has also traveled to South Africa. Mosely is from Newark, New Jersey and has been traveling throughout the states for years.

The committee and Nummo News encourages all to attend.

Apathetic or Pathetic ?

by Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

Some members of the Third World community feel that the lack of funding and gradual nonexistance of Third World organizations is the product of apathy

Director of The Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and Minority Students, Paul Barrows said that one of his concerns is that the students are becoming more apathetic. "At the student level apathy is the lack of comunication that says that I am not part of a community or part of a struggle, people do not see themselves as part of a continuum."

Barrows said that this attitude has always been around. "Blacks in general have become more apathetic within the last 15 yrs. Before people were more political, people responded. Now people are comfortable just worrying. They do not feel a need for collective action."

"Apathy feeds on itself and once it sets in it overwhelmingly reproduces itself. And the few students who try to do something become burntout and apathetic," said Barrows. " This is the case where apathy is the cause and the result."

In response to students who say the Third World organizations are unorganized and that this is the reason they will not join them Barrows said that he feels that this type of attitude is counterproductive "even if it is true just criticizing without trying to help change the problem makes that person worse than the person they are criticizing."

"Just accepting things the way they are is empty criticism," said Barrows. Students should work to make a commitment to help improve these organizations, there are too many resources that students go to waste. The organizations are not that bad but they do have a long way to go.

Kimberly Alston a junior mathematics major said that she is not a member of any Third World Organization because she "doesn't really have the time".

"I know that I could benefit from joining one of these organizations by helping them to protect their interest because what effects them effects me, but I really don't have the time," Alston said.

Alston said that she feels that the organizations could also benefit from her input but only if they take her seriously "but if they don't care about my input

Responding to a question about the few students who are burdened because they feel a responsibility in keeping these Third World Organizations alive.

"It's sad that these organizations cannot increase their recruitment, but you can only do so much. Those who are in these organizations shouldn't feel burdened because they donnot have an abundance of members in there organizations. They should work with what they have and maybe once people see the progress they have made they will want to join,"

Charles Sheffield, program activities Chairman of Phi Beta Sigma, who sponsored a Third World Orgainzational meeting last semester in an effort to increase membership and awareness of Third World students.

"Right now there's no commitment or there is a lack of commitment within the Third World Community and that is why these organizations cannot function to their full capacity.

"There are only a few student leaders who sacrifice their grades to help the community on a whole," Sheffield said.

Ghana Dedication

photo by Ed Cohen

The West African state of Ghana plans to honor the late Dr. W.E.B. DuBois with four days of activities highlighted by the reinterment of his remains and those of his wife, Shirley Graham DuBois on Aug. 27, at a shrine currently under construction on the grounds of the former DuBois residence in Accra.

"Invitations from Ghana's Ministry of Culture and Tourism are going out to a long list of governments, international organizations, national organizations, institutes of higher learning and individuals who have been touched by the long life and many works of W.E.B. DuBois in the cause of Black freedom and advancement, in the U.S. and in Africa, and for Pan-Africanism and world peace," said David G. DuBois,

Continued on page 3

Bishop Tutu stresses the significance of the church and its relationship to apartheid

LESSON LEARNED

My friends, in our land today, hands and shoulders are drooping because we look around and we see no prospect of real change to a more just, a more open society with a more equitable distribution of the good things of our land. There is a gloom and despondency among Blacks and Whites who had hoped that things might be beginning to move in the right direction. Most Whites have decided to throw in their lot with the Nationalists and are really saying, "We are going to hold on to what we have and you will have to take it over our dead bodies." Blacks are growing more embittered, and the chances of reasonably peaceful and non-violent change are fast disappearing. Those of us who still speak of love and peace and justice and reconciliation are becoming discredited - and those who have worked for change and prayed for change are filled with despair and hopelessness.

And the Church of God must produce a relevant theology which speaks to this hopelessness and despondency. The Church of God must declare the Lordship of God and of His Christ - that God is the Lord of History and that this is His world despite all appearances to the contrary, that He is a God of justice and cares about oppression and exploitation, about deaths in detention, about front-enders, squatters' shacks, about unemployment and about power.

The Church exists primarily to worship and adore God. It must praise His most Holy Name. But it can never use this as a form of escapism. Precisely because it worships such a God it must take seriously the world He has created and which he loved so much that He gave His only begotten Son for it. Christians remember the strictures of the Old Testament prophets against an empty and formalistic worship. At the beginning of this paper we quoted examples of these prophetic denunciations. Jesus Himself reminded His followers that they could not offer an acceptable sacrifice on the altar if they had not been reconciled to their brother (Matthew 5:24), and the evangelist declares that anyone who claims to love God but hates his brother is a liar, because how can he love God whom he has not seen when he hates he brother whom he has? Our so-called vertical relationship with God is authenticated and expressed through our so-called horizontal relationship with our neighbour. Christianity knows nothing about pie in the sky when you die, or a concern for man's soul only. That would be a travesty of the religion of Jesus of Nazareth, who healed the sick, fed the hungry, etc. Christianity has been described as the most materialistic of the great religions. Jesus showed that for the spiritual God, His kingdom must have absolute centrality; but precisely because this was so, because He turned Godwards, he of necessity had to be turned manwards. He was the Man for others precisely because He was first and foremost the Man of God. If it must needs be so for the Son of God, it could not be otherwise for His Church.

The Church is constantly tempted to be conformed to the world, to want influence that comes from power, prestige and privilege, and it forgets all the while that its Lord and Master was born in a stable, that the message of the angels about His birth was announced first not to the high and mighty but to the simple rustic shepherds. The Church forgets that His solidarity was with the poor, the downtrodden, the sinners, the despised ones, the outcasts, the prostitutes, the very scum of society. These were His friends whom He said would go to heaven before the self-righteous ones, the Pharisees, the scribes, the religious leaders of His day. The Church thinks to its peril that it must sanctify any particular status quo, that it must identify with the powerful and uphold the system which will invariably be exploitative and oppressive to some extent. When it succumbs to the temptations of power and identifies with a powerful establishment, then woe betide that Church when the system is overthrown, when the powerless, the poor come into their own! It will go down wih that system as happened especially to the Roman Catholics in Mozambique, and the Anglican Church in Zimbabwe and now the Roman Catholics in Zimbabwe.

The Church is always in the world but never of the world, and so must always maintain a critical distance from the political set-up so that it can exercise its prophetic ministry, "Thus said the Lord", to denounce all that is contrary to the divine will whatever the cost. The Church has only one ultimate loyalty and that is to its Lord and Master Jesus Christ. The Church knows therefore that it will always have to say to worldly rulers whose laws are at variance with the laws of God that "We had much rather obey God than man" (Acts 4:19).

The Church must be ever ready to wash the disciples' feet, a serving Church, not a triumphalistic Church, biased in favour of the powerless to be their voice, to be in solidarity woth the poor and oppressed, the marginalized ones - yes, preaching the Gospel of reconciliation but working for justice first, since there can never be real reconciliation without justice. It will demonstrate in its very life that Jesus has broken down the wall of partition, and so in its common life there will be no artificial barriers to any Christian being able to participate fully.

A Church that is in solidarity with the poor can never be a wealthy Church. It must sell all in a sense to follow its Master. It must sit loosely to the things of this world, using its wealth and resources for the sake of the least of Christ's brethren.

WHAT THE CHURCH CAN DO

The solutions are both long-term and short-term. The short-term strategy is to oppose all removals. We suggest that representations are made to the authorities to persuade them to desist forthwith. If we know about any removals likely to happen then let us do all we can to oppose them. If all our efforts to dissuade the authorities fail, then we should be there, physically present as the witnessing and caring Church. We must use all non-violent methods to hinder the act of demolition.

We should support those in resettlement camps, providing them with as much relief that they will need as possible - food, blankets, etc. And the Church should help to rehabilitate these shocked persons by being a serving Church, helping to develop a community spirit and helping the people help themselves. These are not empty phrases - the Crossroads people showed considerable ability until some of them were subverted by money.

No doubt population removals and the uprooting of people should be a priority concern, for it is a part of the Total Strategy. The Church is being fragmented through the implementation of the Bantustan policy. This policy has very serious theological implications about the unity and integrity of the Church. How can a church minister faithfully or serve if it is constantly threatened with disabilities if it does not toe a specific political line? The so-called urban church is involved -the expense of rebuilding church structures and church congregations is quite staggering, and the Church is being torn asunder. "If one part of the body suffers, then the whole suffers with it..."

In the long term, the solution must be political. There are not two ways about it. Either there is going to be power-sharing or there is not. If not, then we must give up hope of a peaceful settlement in South Africa. If the Government is determined to go ahead with its Balkanization of South Africa on ethnic lines, and depriving Blacks of their South African citizenship, then we have had it, the ghastly alternative will be upon us. Population removals must stop immediately if we are able to work for a new kind of South Africa, and the Church should be in the forefront to prepare all of us for this new South Africa.

There is still a chance, but if we let it slip then it will be gone for ever. Neither the most sophisticated arsenal nor the best army or police force will give White South Africa true security, for that will come and come automatically when all of us, Black and White, know we count as of equal worth in the land of our birth, which we love with a passionate love. Please God, we pray you, let them hear us, let them hear us before it is too late.

White South Africa, please know that you are deluding yourselves, or you are allowing yourselves to be deluded, if you think that the present ordering of our society can continue. Blacks will be free whatever you do or don't do. That is not in question. Don't let the when and the how be in doubt. Don't delay our freedom, which is your freedom as well, for freedom is indivisible. Let it be now, and let it be reasonably peaceful. As I did to the students at Wits, so I call on all Whites to join the liberation struggle on God's side for justice, peace, righteousness, love, joy, laughter, compassion, caring and reconciliation.

March 1980,
Diakonia, Durban

I pray that for the sake of our children, for the sake of our land and for God's sake, the Dutch Reformed Church will be converted to its true vocation as the Church of God, because if that were to happen, if it were to stop giving spurious biblical support to the most vicious system - apartheid - since Nazism, if it were to become truly prophetic, if it were to be identified with the poor, the disadvantaged, the oppressed, if it were to work for the liberation of all God's children in this land, then, why, we would have the most wonderful country in the world. If it does not do these things and do them soon, then when liberation comes it will be consigned to the outer darkness for having retarded the liberation struggle and for misleading the Afrikaner. That is my fervent prayer for my fellow Christians in the Dutch Reformed Church. Woe betide all of us if the grace of God fails to move this great Church, and all churches, to be agents of the great God of the Exodus, the liberator God.

We must therefore, examine the biblical evidence to see what the scriptures say about liberation. Do they say God is concerned only about individual salvation and has no interest in the redemption of the socio-political and economic matrix in which individuals live? Does it say the world is religiously and ethically neutral and of no consequence to salvation and the final consummation of all things, that what happens in the market place, in the courtroom, or in Parliament is of no particular religious significance, and that all that matters to God is what is confined to the sacred sphere of the ecclesiastical? Does it say God is in fact not really interested too much in what happens from Monday to Friday but only in that which happens on Sunday, and that He does not much care about the plight of the hungry, the dispossessed, the voiceless, powerless ones - that he does not take sides? When two persons are engaged in a conflict and one of them is considerably stronger than the other, to be neutral is not just and fair and impartisan because to be neutral is in fact to side with the powerful.

We must have examples immediately that the alternative society which is the Church alive is possible and viable. It is important in a grasping, selfish society, for us to demonstrate in small or large church groups that it is possible for Black and White genuinely to share. We may have to run the risk of breaking the law....And unfortunately too many have been brainwashed into thinking that legally right and morally right mean the same thing. It is illegal in this country for church groups to meet for more than a day without permission. It is eminently not immoral to do so. And this sharing of worship and insights and resources must not be only for special occasions. It must be our lifestyle.

We must counter half truths and untruths. It just won't do to be apathetic and allow others free rein. Freedom and liberty lose out by default because good people are not vigilant. We give up too soon and say the Government is too powerful. They are this because we have refused to stand up and be counted.

Continued on page 3

Continued from page 2

I want to tell a story from the Old Testament, a story that I am sure you have heard before. Once upon a time there was a king of Israel called Ahab. He had extensive royal lands. But next to his property lay the vineyard of a relatively unimportant man. His name was Naboth.

His vineyard was rather a nuisance because it split up the King's lands into at least two bits. The King was a reasonable man. He went to Naboth with a proposal: "Look here, Naboth, I want to consolidate my possession and your vineyard is in the way of these plans. Look, I want to buy your vineyard. I will give you a good price for your vineyard, or I will exchange it for another of equal value elsewhere as long as I can get to put my land into one piece."

Naboth replied, "Haikona [oh no], sorry, Your Majesty. You see, this is my ancestral home. It is not just any old property. My family spirits are here. My ancestors have been buried here. I am part of this property and it is part of me; it is part of my children's life and they are part of it. I can't help you."

The King, being an Israelite himself, knew perfectly well what Naboth was saying and agreed in his heart with him. He knew that there was nothing he could do. Naboth had a right to the vineyard which nothing could take away, not even the king of the land.

Of course the King was disappointed by the answer he got from Naboth, so when he returned to the palace, he sulked and refused to eat. He first went to bed and turned to face the wall.

Then his queen, Jezebel, came along and asked , "What is the matter, King Ahab? Why are you sulking and refusing to eat the good food which I have placed before you?" Then the King told his Queen that Naboth had frustrated his plans to consolidate the royal lands. The Queen was quite flabbergasted: "What, you are sulking because one of your subjects, an unknown farmer, has spoiled your plans?" Now the Queen came from a different country where kings really were kings, that is, they did whatever they wanted to do. She thought that that was how her husband too should behave. So she told him, "Get up and eat. Don't worry, I will fix up everything so that you will get Naboth's vineyard. You are the king in this country and we won't stand for any nonsense from anybody."

Yes, she fixed up everything. She arranged a mockery of a trial where false witnesses declared that Naboth was a bad man. He had blasphemed against God and the King. For this crime there was only one punishment - death. So Naboth was stoned to death and the Queen told her husband the King, "Get up - go and annex Naboth's vineyard. He is dead and nobody will stop you doing what you wanted to do, and nobody will worry about what happened to Naboth, after all, he was a nobody."

The King got up smiling and pleased that his wife, the queen Jezebel, had acted so energetically and effectively. He went to expropriate Naboth's vineyard - and then an extraordinary thing happened.

The prophet Elijah, God's messenger, met the King as he was going to Naboth's vineyard. God, said the prophet, had seen what Jezebel and Ahab had done to Naboth, and God was angry and would take the side of this unimportant man, Naboth, in this cruel act of injustice. God would punish Jezebel and Ahab and their children.

That is the story I wish to leave with you people of Duncan Village. In this country you are regarded as of no real importance. You are told by those who are powerful in the land that you must move from your property because they want it. It does not matter to them that you don't want to move. You, like Naboth, are saying that your homes and your sites are not just ordinary property. They are part and parcel of who you are. You have lived in uncertainty and anxiety. You were threatened with removal some time ago and so you were not sure that you could afford to improve or maintain your homes. This village is deteriorating. Your community is being destroyed. You are being asked to abandon your South African citizenship and take on that of Ciskei, another ghetto of poverty and a reservoir of cheap labour. And it is almost as if you are being stoned to death as a community, just like Naboth.

King; like TuTu, emphatically stresses the power of the church.

You are nobodies in this country, the land of your birth, and those with power think they can act against you with impunity and that nothing will happen to them.

Now I want to remind you, and them too, that God cares. God cares about injustice, about oppression, about exploitation. God cares and always takes the side of those who are trodden underfoot. God cares that they want to move you from pillar to post.

Injustice and evil and oppression will not last for ever. They have been overcome by God in the cross of Jesus Our Lord. As we protest the evil of your threatened removal we must do so knowing that victory is ours already. The authorities will ultimately fail because what they are doing is evil and against God's law. You must be strengthened to resist what is evil. I want to remind you of the dignity and peaceful resistance of the mothers and wives in Langa and Nyanga in the Cape, where this Christian Government and its officials are actually disobeying a direct and explicit law of God contained in the Bible: "Those whom God has joined together, let no man put asunder" -and yet the Government is contravening this clear biblical law by making married men into migrant labourers staying in hostels, and by refusing their wives the right to live with their husbands and the fathers of their children.

There is enough land for everybody in South Africa. It is just that some people are greedy and at the moment they are also powerful, and so they can satisfy their greed at the expense of others whom they think to be unimportant and without power. But these are they whom God supports. South Africa, please remember the story of Naboth's vineyard.

"POLITICS AND RELIGION - THE SEAMLESS GARMENT"

...If the Church demonstrates a concern for the victims of some such neglect or exploitation or denounces the widening gap in the country between the very few who are rich and the vast majority who are poor (a gap that seems almost always to widen rather than narrow), then the Church will be accused of meddling in affairs it knows little about. This kind of criticism will reach crescendo proportions if the Church not merely provides an ameliorative ambulance service, but aims to expose the root causes; if it becomes radical (which refers to the roots of the matter) then it will arouse the wrath of those who benefit from the particular inequitable distribution of wealth, in its call for the eradication of corruption, for an end to the abuse of power, the need to empower the powerless. And so when you work for a more just, participatory and sustainable society whose members share in crucial decison-making about the issues that are important for their lives, that is when you hear the cry, "Don't mix religion with politics!"

It is strange that this happens only when a particular socio-political and economic policy is denounced as being unchristian or unjust. If that same policy is described by religious leaders as being in accordance with Christianity, then there is no question in this instance of religious persons being accused of mixing religion with politics. The White Dutch Reformed Church (DRC) in South Africa for a long time sought to provide scriptural justification for the Nationalist Party policy of apartheid. Nowhere was the cry uttered that this was mixing politics with religion; whereas when other South African Christians declared apartheid to be abhorrent to the Christian conscience, then people were told that religion and politics belonged in separate categories and that it was wrong to mix them. We need to add in fairness to the DRC that one hears less and less today that apartheid can be justified scripturally.

The same point about not mixing politics with religion or vice versa is made by those who think that religion does have a bearing on what happens in politics. These persons tend to have attenuated doctrine of reconciliation and want to avoid confrontation at all cost - to speak about a neutral God in situations of conflict, of injustice and oppression. They say God does not take sides and so the Church should not take sides, but must be somewhere in the middle. In an attempt to exercise a ministry of reconciliation such people present reconciliation as any easy option for Christians, and they speak about the need to be forgiving, especially to the victims of injustice, without making a call for repentance by the perpetrators of the injustice and for a redress of the unjust system - they will do this to such an extent that profound Christian words such as "reconciliation and forgiveness" are rejected with contempt by the poor and exploited because they appear to want them to acquiesce in their condition of oppression and exploitation and powerlessness. It appears then as if Christianity is interpreted by those advocates as an anaemic reconciliation aimed at their domestication. It is forgotten that reconciliation is no easy option, nor does it rule out confrontation. After all, it did cost God the death of His Son to effect reconciliation; the cross of Jesus was to expose the sinfulness of sin when He took on the powers of evil and routed them comprehensively. No, just as there can be no cheap grace so there can be no cheap reconciliation, because we cannot cry, "peace, peace" where there is no peace.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Marion Tinsley — Editor In Chief
Donette Wilson — Managing Editor
Tracey Bryant — News Editor
David Moore — Business Manager

• • • Contributors • • •

Giselle Andrade — Correspondent
Tracey Kemble — Correspondent
Yvonne Mendez — , Layout
David G. DuBois — Faculty Advisor

Address all letters to the Editor to: Nummo News, New Africa House Room 103

DEDICATION

Continued from page 1

son of Dr. and Mrs. DuBois. Prof. DuBois spent the Spring break in Ghana at the invitation of the Minister of Culture and Tourism, to participate in and approve the arrangements. Prof. DuBois has been a visiting lecturer in Journalism and Afro-American Studies Spring semesters at UMass since 1983.

Pointing out that Dr. DuBois was born and raised at Great Barrington, Massachusetts and that UMass is the repository of the vast collection of DuBois papers, Prof. DuBois expressed the hope that UMass will "guarantee a significant representation at the ceremonies in Ghana," which will take place from Aug. 26 through Aug. 29.

Dr. DuBois with his wife moved to Ghana in 1960, at the invitation of the then President of Ghana, the late Kwame Nkrumah, to head the Secretariate of the Encyclopedia Africana, a project that had been the dream of Dr. DuBois for 50 years. He died there on August 27, 1963, and was buried beside the Christiansborg Castle wall, at a site selected by Pres. Nkrumah.

For some years the site has been surrounded by a military area and thus accessible to visitors only by special permission, prompting the decision to move the remains to the grounds of the former DuBois residence in Accra for final interment and the raising of a shrine. The residence has been declared a national monument and designated the DuBois Memorial Center for Pan-African Culture, with plans for the development of a research center and other facilities for the promotion of Pan African culture.

Stress services

The office of Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns (OGLBC), is sponsoring a lesbian and gay week dates April 5-13th in an effort to make available campus-wide the facts, fears and problems of the community.

The OGLBC came out of the belief that existing agencies lack the necessary expertise to adequately serve the gay, lesbian and bisexual population. And the demonstrated fear that these students have of reporting incidents of harassment and discrimination.

Co-Director Felice Yeskel said "We provide an accessible space for gay and lesbian students. Most students who have experienced incidents of harassment find affirmative action inadequate, they can't really help the student or the student feels that they don't take their problem to heart or that they don't really care."

Those students who live in the dorms are forced to live in the closet, are harassed, or are forced to move off campus. "There is a social awareness corridor on the third floor of Brett, but it's not just for lesbian and gays but for anyone who wants to be around people with diverse backgrounds. However, a university of this size should have more than one floor," Yeskel said.

The OGLBC in conjunction with the Sexual Orientation Services (SOS), faculty and staff are working on a brochure that will be ready for mass distribution next semester, on debugging myths such as What Is Heterosexualism.

OGLBC also co-sponsors a lesbian support group. "It is a close and confidential group that offers supportive experiences from lesbians here at UMass. The group offers people who can emphasize," said Yeskel. "This is not an in-depth therapy group, we help lesbians feel supported. There is a feeling of being isolated and almost invisible, later that feeling changes to anger and frustration."

Working with other organizations to advocate the needs and to improve the quality of services i.e. mental services, health services and housing. OGLBC goal is to:

-Create a positive social, academic and employmentment environment at UMass .

-Increase campus-wide the understanding and awareness of the needs and issues by confronting and reducing negative attitudes toward the gay and lesbian community.

-To reduce the effects of alienation in the gay and lesbian community by supporting the concept that UMass accepts diverse lifestyles.

-To ensure enforcement of established campus policies and to publicize relevent grievance mechanisms.

Reed Ide, co-director of the OGLBC said that the office deals with concerns of students whether it is academic or social. "The impact from the feeling of isolation is overwhelming, it interferes with your total life, it is very destructive."

When dealing with students problems Ide said that the OGLBC donot push any one medium and that occasionally it works works as a referral service. "It depends on what we see the problem to be. Some students have to be handled individually because they (students) fear rejection if they use mental health services.''

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Vigil against the Contras today, all day, at the campus pond. "Protest the use of our campus as a platform for Reagan's inhumane policies."

Black Women Entrepeneurs panal discussion tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Smith College-Neilson library Browsing Room. The panalist will be Carol Creswell, Creswell Gallery (Arts),Dr.Wilesse Comissiong, Callie-Pearl Features (Publishing), Melrose Watkins, The Child's Workshop (Education/Child Development)

"Figure Drawing from the Permanent Collection" April 1, 1986 through June 8, 1986 at the University Gallery. Opening reception Saturday, April 5, 1986.
Friday, April 4th, 1986, in honor of Martin Luther King Week, there will be a FREE Gospel concert at Bowker Auditorium, 7:30 p.m.

Nicaragua's Tragedy: The Price of the Contra War. Teach-in, Tuesday April 1, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. in Earthfoods.

The University Gallery will present an exhibition of recent sculptures by Mel Kendrick from April 1 through June 8, 1986.The gallery is located in the Fine Arts Center, and is open to the public Tuesday through Friday 11:00 to 4:30 p.m., and Sat. and Sun. 2 to 5 p.m.

The Motown Reunion comes to Springfield. The Four Tops, The Temptations, and Martha Reeves and The Vandellas will all be there. That's Wednesday April 2nd, 1986 at the Springfield Civic Center. Tickets are on sale at the Fine Arts Center.

Five College Seminar in Black Studies presents William Eric Perkins Educational Testing Service on U.S. intervention in Grenada: Reasons and Remedies. Thursday, April 3, 1986 at 4:00 p.m. at the Agusta Savage Gallery, New Africa House, UMass.

THE FAR WORLD COMES NEAR: A Cambodian New Year Celebration April 4- Cambodian Art and photographic Art at 3:00 p.m. Frost Library, Amherst College

Saturday, April 5 and Sunday, April 6, a Weekend Colloquim Martin Luther King, Jr.
B-34 Brett House 9am-6pm

"Attention all CCEBMS seniors." There will be a mandatory meeting in room 311New Africa House, on April 11, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. . If you are unable to attend please call Doris Clemmons at 5-0031 between 8:30-5:00 p.m.

UPWARD BOUND CAREER DAY CONFERENCE April 12, 1986 9:30 a.m. at The Holyoke Community College-Frost Building A

TO BE YOUNG GIFTED AND BLACK
A play directed by Esther Terry, musical direction by LucienGochett
Monday through Friday, April 14-18 at Bowker Auditorium at 8:00

NUMMO is now accepting applications for typesetters and layout persons for the coming year. We are willing to train. For more information come to our office, located at 103 New Africa House.

Third World Community outreach counselor/advodate for women at the Everywoman Center is willing to listen to your problems. This program is designed to help women victims of violence. Call Evelyn at 549-7785 or 545-0800 anytime.

"Some of the poorest children in the city of New York have raised thousands of dollars and hired a plane to air lift some 40 tons of grain in to Ethopia, they did it. According to doctors and nutritionist on the seen our government is bogged down in red tape that the much needed food is not making it to the people of Ethc a on time.
We can help- with a penny, a nickle, a dime or a quarter a day. Yes- it has all been said but now it is time to start doing, if a group of children ages 5 to 19 can 'save the children' we too can 'give back a life'.
The Agusta Savage Memorial Gallery is spearheading the 'Give Back a Life' drive for the children of Ethopia, contact us at 545-0932."

NUMMO would like to congratulete Whoopi Goldgerg, Quincy Jones, Steven Spielberg for their Oscar award nominations.

Duffey will meet Khadafy and Ortega

By BILL THASTOODNZ
Collegian Correspondent

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey will travel to Libya and Nicaragua next week to meet with Libyan ruler Moammar Khadafy and Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega Saavedra.

In a written statement, Duffey described the planned trip as an effort, "in UMass' spirit of civility, to reduce tensions between those two countries [Nicaragua and Libya] and the United States ... at a critical juncture in relations." In giving the statement to reporters, Duffey's associate, James Leheney, noted that the chancellor served as an undersecretary of state under President Carter.

However, UMass administration sources yesterday said the chancellor is less interested in diplomacy than in expressing solidarity with the two leaders, both of whom have been branded by President Reagan as terror-backers and outlaws.

Duffey's desire to meet with Ortega was reportedly strengthened when he was criticized for offering to pay some security costs for last night's speech on campus by a spokesman for the US-backed "contras" seeking to overthrow the Nicaraguan government. (Story on the surprising speech, below.)

One Whitmore official said the chancellor "took a pasting on that. He wants to make clear his opposition to the war in Nicaragua and get back on a good footing with students."

The official, who requested anonymity, said, "Joe sees the folly in aiding the contras and getting the US into another adventure ... He also recognizes Libya has a historical claim to the Gulf of Sidra."

Last week's deadly clashes between the US and Libya occurred after American planes and warships challenged Khadafy's claim to the gulf by crossing a "Line of Death" he had declared 100 miles offshore.

The UMass Republican Club reacted angrily to Duffey's plans. Club members posted flyers showing the chancellor with a red hammer and sickle on his forehead. "The threat of communism has come all the way home this time," said Gil Stare, club president. "Now it is clear to us all that Amherst hates America."

The chancellor's office would not comment on reports that the trip is intended as a solidarity mission rather than a diplomatic effort. But one vice chancellor said of Duffey: "He knows he's not Jesse Jackson. Not only is he a white guy; he's a bit too reserved and squeamish to give either of them [Khadafy and Ortega] a hug. But he does know that Reagan is a reactionary prick whose actions he wants no part of."

The Reagan administration had no immediate comment, but a State Department official confirmed that "some idiot" in the department has already granted Duffey a visa.

The Massachusetts Daily A Registered Student Organization NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

SERVING THE 5 COLLEGE AREA—DISTRIBUTED TO EVERY SUPERMARKET IN THE VALLEY— Tuesday, April 1, 1986

Collusion photo by Grind Boombata

The three prisoners shown as evidence by contra defector Jorge Rosales.

'Contra' shocks audience by declaring defection

By LEIF TISTE
Collision Staff

A spokesman for guerrillas fighting the Nicaraguan government shocked a University of Massachusetts audience last night by announcing his defection from the "contras." To dramatize his decision, he brought along three prisoners he said the contras had captured and mistreated.

"I present to you two men and a woman from Nicaragua, good Sandinista supporters who happened to fall into the vicious hands of my superiors," said the speaker, Jorge Rosales of the Nicaraguan Democratic Front (FDN), as soon as the Student Union Ballroom was quiet.

"So I have no choice but to leave the FDN," Rosales said.

FDN leaders have repeatedly denied that they take prisoners. President Reagan, who is seeking $100 million more in US funds for the contras, also portrays them as humane "freedom fighters."

The captives, whom Rosales brought on stage, could not speak because they were bound, gagged, blindfolded and chained together at the ankles. When asked why he continued to detain them if they had been prisoners of the contras, he said, "I will show them at a few speaking engagements to prove my point, then set them free.

"My point, of course, is that the contras take prisoners and say they do not. I cannot be a public relations man for liars."

Stunned silence prevailed in the audience of more than 500, most of whom were well-dressed contra supporters seated early by the Republican Club, which sponsored the speech. After about a minute, Republican Club member Redd Bator asked Rosales, "Wait - are you sure? I mean, is this final?"

"Yes," Rosales answered, adding, "I'm sorry to ruin your fiesta. Vete al infierno, pendejo."

Meanwhile outside the ballroom, students opposed to Reagan's Latin America policy, who had been restricted to watching the speech on video monitors by security guards hired by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, burst into cheers.

"Now we can have revolution all over the Americas," exulted Murk Cauldron, as he waved a red and black banner, the colors of the Sandinista front. "They finally left Danny [Daniel Ortega, president of Nicaragua] alone to have some fun ... the party - no pun intended - has just begun," he said.

Michael Waller, a writer who was to speak after Rosales, cancelled his appearance. "My whole case for the freedom fighters has just been shot to shit," he said.

Student senate outdoes itself in floor violence

By CARL CARBUNKLE
SGA Bureau Chief

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night once again failed to make it through the roll call before the meeting exploded into chaos. It was the most turbulent session of the semester, as four senators were killed, seven injured, and six remain missing.

After hearing of the violent outcome, the director of the Active Students Office, Randy Gonad, declared the entire Campus Center/Student Union complex under martial law.

"I have had enough of this stuff," Gonad said. "It is time for us to show these students their role in student government, which is no role at all."

Late last night, members of Gonad's private secret police were seen in the Campus Center, rounding up stray groups of senators and transporting them to reeducation centers in Iowa.

The violence erupted as newly-elected senate speaker Paul Wanker was halfway through the roll call. When Wanker inadvertently referred to senator Z. Jane Frumpy as Jane Z. Frumpy, senator Jane Z. Frumpy smashed him over the head with a copy of the senate bylaws. As Wanker fell to the floor, the two sides of the senate, the progressives and conservatives, engaged in a no-holds-barred struggle on the floor.

"It is time for us to show these students their role in student government which is no role at all."
— Randy Gonad

Senator Phil Collins managed briefly to unify the senate, as both factions swarmed around him and smashed him to a bloody pulp.

Senator Gimme Burgers was seen standing on a table, beating off a group of conservative senators with an unidentified member of the Fascist Caucus. Burgers was holding his member by the ankles and swinging him like a club.

Senator Gnat Mooer pearlharbored senator Macy Wrath with a folding chair. As Mooer repeatedly smashed Wrath on the head with the chair, he was heard to say, "I don't want to be in your stupid senate. You suck." continued on page 3

Women's issues editor adapts

By SEKK CYST
Collegian Stud

The women's issues editor of the Collegian, seeking to deflect criticism that he was unfit for his position because he was a man, yesterday underwent a sex-change operation.

Joan Yonce, formerly John Yonce, women's editor since January, emerged tired but smiling from the six-hour procedure at University Health Services. It was the first gender change performed on campus, according to David C. McBlood, medical director of UHS.

Before he entered surgery, Yonce said, "I hope this will silence the critics. I see it as the ultimate in affirmative action."

After the operation, clad in a dress, she said, "I'm ready to go back to work ... I hope the Valley Women's Vulture people are satisfied." The Vulture had run an editorial claiming that Yonce was three months behind on alimony payments, was a secret partner in a pornographic videotape firm, and subscribed to Playboy, Penthouse, Hustler and Screw.

"I'm not even married, much less divorced ... and if I did have a wife she'd be doing some serious thinking," Yonce said.

Dode B. Levenson, Collegian editor in chief, said he was surprised that Yonce "actually went through with it.

"I'm a little bummed out that John -- ah, Joan and I can no longer go out to clubs and make lecherous comments. But it's much better to have a female women's issues editor," Levenson said.

But some were skeptical of Yonce's decision.

"She'll still be a he as far as I'm concerned," said Leester Trocky, whose name sounded familiar to observers but whose connection to UMass, journalism or feminism could not be determined at press time.

Trocky, his voice cracking, said, "I question whether a surgical gimmick will change his -- her, whatever -- philosophy. For all we know, 'Ms. Yonce' could just be a sexist male swine wallowing in an artificial woman's body. Therefore, I will continue to challenge his or her right to write and to exist."

In response, Yonce cited her editorial record and her newly soprano voice. "None of you here can doubt my femininity," she told reporters as she lifted her dress.

Probe of Marcos assets reveals ownership of properties in Mass.

WASHINGTON (PA) - The House Select Committee on the Assets of Deposed Despots today released more documents relating to the American real-estate investments of former Philippine strongman Ferdinand Marcos.

Among the documents was a purchase agreement tying Marcos and his wife Imelda to the ownership of two Amherst properties, Switz Village and Britiny Maner.

Committee chairman Stephen Solarz (D-NY) immediately went to inspect the properties in order to asess their worth and aid in possible attempts at their recovery by the new Philippine government of Corazon Aquino.

"We knew that Marcos owns some very high-class apartment buildings in Manhattan, but we never figured him for a Massachusetts slumlord," Solarz said.

Adding that he was "disgusted" with the conditions of the Amherst dwellings, Solarz went on to say, "this should convince the last Marcos boosters that he is really not a nice man."

To emphasize his point, Solarz also said "Hey, I know John Zaccaro and even he isn't as much of a sleazeball as Marcos."

Recruiting Contras — Sgt. Jose Sikpup takes his drive to Podunk Elementary School.

Security problems at Greek airport to be tackled by US contractor

ATHENS(AP)- Officials at the hijack-plagued Athens airport today threw in the towel and hired a group of American college students to perform security functions on a contract basis.

The facility was put under intense pressure to improve what many consider to be lax security standards in the wake of the hijacking of a TWA jet last summer. At the time, President Reagan issued a travel advisory for Greece and urged Americans not to go there if they could possibly avoid it.

"We depend a lot on the American tourist trade here in Athens and this is a way to help imperialist Yankee visitors relax on their way to famed historical sights," said Spiro Incompatentios, airport security coordinator.

The first batch of students are slated to arrive in mid-May and is composed exclusively of members of the Union Program Council of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Speaking for the group, Production Manager David Cannoli said "This is a great chance for our members to pick up some extra change this summer and use their practical experience in a different environment."

Expressing confidence that "we can do the job," Cannoli added that "compared to keeping UMass students from bringing beer into the Fine Arts Center, this will be a frigging walkwalk."

Questioned about possible terrorist repercussions against the organization, Cannoli dismissed the possibility by saying "Terrorists, Shmerrorists-- we aren't afraid of them. You gotta remember that we once had the J. Geils Band here."

First lady Nancy Reagan speaks to a conference on drug abuse in Des Moines. After saying "You don't have to take drugs to look like me," she flew off to catch insects.

La derrecha ha'ganado'

MANAGUA (PUU) - Se anuncio ayer un golpe de estado, que resulto en un nuevo gobierno instalado por la CIA norteamericana y rigido por el Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, obispo de Nicaragua.

El golpe occurro despues de muchos meses de lucha entre las dos partes de la Iglesia catolica del pais, la fe popular apoyado por los Sandinistas, y la iglesia conservadora de Obando.

El cardinal, hablando a unos 150 ciudadanos ricos y agentes de la CIA en la plaza principal de Managua, exulto: "Siempre hemos sabido que la Iglesia es para nosotros - que tenemos la fe porque tenemos dinero! - y no para los pobres subversivos marxistas-lenninistas."

Ronald Reagan, presidente de los EEUU, congratulo el nuevo gobierno con un anuncio grande en La Prensa, el periodico derechista que contribuyo mucho a la caida del gobierno Sandinista.

En el anuncio, dijo: "Ya sabiamos que Dios era un Republicano. Ahora sabemos tambien que El no acepta las maquinaciones de la izquierda, que segun El los ciudadanos no merecen comida si no pueden pagar, ni educacion, ni hospitales, ni Paraiso tampoco! si no pueden pagar."

Reagan tambien envio 600,000 tropas norteamericanos y 500 aviones B-52 para enforzar el poder de Obando. El dictador catolico dijo, "Tengo como modelo el sistema de mi buen amigo - no uso 'compañero,' es una palabra roja - Augusto Pinochet."

Daniel Ortega, que huyo el domingo con 2.500,000 apoyadores de la revolucion de 1979, dijo en un comunicado de las montanas: "Ya veremos que volveremos y venceremos!"

Canadians soak up unexpected deluge

TORONTO -- (LSD) Percentages of acid rain from factories in the United States reached record highs yesterday as the city was inundated with blotter-quality acid at an inch a minute, resulting in a tripping community.

Early in the day, as residents were traveling to work and school, the acid unexpectedly started pouring, causing "good and bad trips" for people of all ages.

There was a scramble by local drug dealers to collect as much as possible with the hope of selling it to Americans, according to Cy Kadellic, a leading local pusher. "This stuff is like totally wickedly awesome ... better than Ecstasy," Kadellic said.

Hal Ucinate, 4, who attends Joe Addix' class on tripping, said this acid rated an A. He told LSD reporters he caused the rain by "concentrating real, real hard."

Police are investigating Ucinate's claim, but are having much difficulty.

"The devil keeps telling me to take more acid," said officer Say Tann.

Gyp. C., a local tarot card reader, said she foresaw the downpour several weeks ago and tried to warn officials, but they would not listen.

"I told ya so," C. said.

HARE CLUB FOR MEN

ASK US ABOUT OUR EXCLUSIVE:

SUTURE PROCESS
WEAVE TOUPEE
FUSION PROCESS

NOT ONLY AM I THE HAIR CLUB SPOKES-MODEL I AM A CLIENT

The Disgusting Visitors Program presents

Dr. M.D. Pasta

Sexist Editor of New England's Largest College Daily
Advertising Supplement
speaking on

"IT"

Place:
a couch in the C. C.
Date:
almost any day & time
Reception to follow on 13th floor
Tower Library

Sticky solution found for Tower Library

By U.R. SKRUED
Collusion Staff

University of Massachusetts administrators yesterday announced a new plan to prevent more brick chips from falling off the sides of the Tower Library, outlining a program of spraying Krazy Glue all over the outside of the 26-story building.

"We've tried absolutely everything else," said Physical Plot director Roger Chewywater. "We figure if it can hold up a guy by a construction hat, then it can keep a few little brick chips from falling down for a while."

The library has been beset with problems since its opening in 1973, and students have been forced to enter through the lower level. Most recently, students involved in Mass Deprivation, a volunteer effort to refurbish the building, have been prevented from doing their work by falling debris. (photo, page 6.)

The plan calls for a crop-dusting plane to be loaded with the glue and then circle the structure until all surfaces are covered. The windows and doors will be covered with "all those boring technical journals that nobody reads anyway," Huffy said.

Students will be able to enter through all the doors, after the building has been cleared of all traces of the toxic substance, which has been known to glue eyelids shut, fingers and nostrils together, and books closed.

"It might take a while," Chewywater said. "But what the hell, the place is useless now anyway."

Physical Plant operations overseer Peter Wodzthat said the fences surrounding the library will be taken down, and signs begging students actually to use the facility will be erected.

"We're gonna put up a sign that says, 'This is the oldest 26-story library in the US. But it's dying due to lack of patronage,'" Wodzthat said. "We want to create a sort of package with that [Japanese elm] tree" on the southwest side of the tower, which is fenced off so that students do not trample its roots on the way to classes.

UMass: 'let them' eat duck'

By JIP MANRIQUIT
Collegian Stuffed

Featuring several new duck entrees, University of Massachusetts dining commons are more popular than ever with students.

"The kids like the DC as much as they did when we were serving real eggs," said Ethel Fitzpatrick, an eight-year veteran of the Hampshire DC staff. "My god, they love these ducks."

Roast duck, Peking duck and duck a l'orange are favorites, while lunchtime soups sporting last night's leftover duck draw less enthusiasm from students.

Although duck is a new food for most people, students "can deal with it," says Nate Fisher. "Eating ducks is weird, but it's good chow."

Students expressed a strong preference for duck over an old DC standby, canned turkey. "The meat's kind of tough, but with a real sharp flavor," said Shelley Lombardo, a sophomore on the 19-meal plan.

DC meal coordinator Gavis O'Rourke said duck "adds variety to our standard menu at a cost consistent with our budget needs."

By serving ducks, O'Rourke said, Food Services is responding to the chancellor's suggestion that all departments capitalize on the university's unused internal resources.

Pond population down

University officials yesterday confirmed rumors that the ducks who make their home in the campus pond are disappearing. Only 35 percent of the original population of ducks remains, and that figure is falling.

"But we don't know where they (the ducks) are going," said Francis Creighton, the university employee who monitors the pond's inhabitants.

"I count all the ducks every day. I know about this. The ducks aren't just leaving the place ... they never migrate out of season, and they're too healthy to be dying off. Besides, I'd see the bodies if they were dead."

The ducks have been a UMass tradition since 1927, but there is a growing concern in the community that this tradition will end.

-PIM JANRIQUIT

Macho Duffey

Collegian photos by Big Joe, Sno Blow

The chancellor, above, explains what makes him superior to lesser administrators. Below, some off-campus students struggle to compete. "Every time we get something of Whitmore caliber, it melts," complained one of the students. "We went to the Geek Area for help, but that was pretty useless. They either weren't up to par or wouldn't reveal their secrets."

Drinkers will bear new mark

By T.M. PERRANCE
Collusion Stiff

In an effort to eliminate any possibility of underage students drinking at the Hatch and Top of the Campus Bars, Campus Center Foo Soivices yesterday announced a program of tattooing students of legal age.

"We have decided tattoos are the only effective method," said Dick Illicit, head of Foo Soivices, in a press conference. "It is our final solution to the problem of underage consumption," he added. "If tattoo-less students are caught in either bar they will be forced to listen to the Campus Center's roof leaks dripping until they go crazy and die."

"It is our final solution to the problem of underage consumption."
- Dick Illicit, Foo Soivices

Starting May 1, all students who want to drink at the Hatch or TOC must have the word "Pariah" tattooed on their foreheads. The tattooing will be done by Campus Center personnel every Friday afternoon between 3 and 5 p.m.

In order to obtain the tattoo, each student must bring: Four forms of photo identification, two credit cards; the doctor who delivered him or her; an official from the hometown's bureau of records, a sworn statement from each sibling; and the stained sheet -- or car seat - from the night of his or her conception, which wil be verified by carbon 14 age testing.

UMass President David C. Knapp applauded the new policy, saying: "This should put the ZooMass image to bed once and for all. No one will think we are a partying school after this."

F U

"How to Haze and Not Get Caught" will be the subject of a symposium sponsored by a new campus group, Ex-Pledges of Phi Smegma Krappa, tomorrow at 4 a.m. on Haigis Mall.

Speaker: 'Get knocked up, never wear shoes'

By EMMA VACANT
Collegian Girl

Gloria Steinway, a well known anti-feminist, urged women to recognize their place in society is "in the kitchen barefoot and pregnant," at a lecture last night.

"Women's issues are simple. I believe we've made a great deal of progress in the last ten years, but we must go backwards," said Steinway, who spoke to about two people in a janitor closet because that was the only place the University would allow her.

The lecture was sponsored by the Allwomen's Center, which recently abandoned its progressive stance on women's issues in favor of a "return to the good old Dark Ages."

"Fashions, exchanging recipes and soap operas are global issues," Steinway said.

She said women have a lot of problems, and that stereotypes of women as bad drivers, stupid and emotionally unstable is true.

"We're fucked up, and I am insulted that men actually want us to hold jobs," she said.

Steinway said women should trap men into marriage by "getting knocked up and never wearing shoes again -- except for going shopping, of course."

She said it is important for women to be timid and never speak up so women will lose their rights and future generations will have it on "easy street."

"We [women] don't need to learn about balancing checkbooks, and voting and all that stuff. Leave it all to men. Dependence and helplessness is where it's at," she said.

Steinway served as editor of Ms. magazine in the early 1970s, but left in disgust to work in the New York City Playboy Club after the magazine's publisher refused to change the monthly's name to Miss.

★ SGA violence

continued from page 1

Katwoman Stickman, also a senator, then shouted to the new campus president, "That's it, Billit - I'm cutting you off!"

Minutes later, Campus Center security forces stormed into the room, and, amid clouds of tear gas, randomly sprayed the crowd with their automatic weapons, sending surviving senators scurrying for the exits.

Kal Morray, chairwoman of the Extragovernmental Affairs Committee, described the meeting as "like, death and destruction, baby."

The April 1 edition of the Collegian is published once a year, customarily on the first day of the fourth month. We trust that our readers will accept its contents as truth, regardless of the facts. If you are offended by today's issue, seek psychiatric help for hyperseriousness - or else lighten up, or piss off.

Farts Review

Rocky V marks the return of America's greatest hero

ROCKY V
Starring Sylvester Stallone
Directed, written, edited and choreographed by Sylvester Stallone
Playing at practically every theater in town

By TOMAS HERRINGTON

After a tedious five month wait, Sylvester Stallone has finally come out with the fifth installment of the Rocky series. While some may complain that the series is running short of ideas, most people will certainly agree that Rocky V is the most original and dramatic 53 minutes of film to be shown this year.

In the beginning of the movie, Rocky (Sylvester Stallone) is just about to announce his retirement when he has to face the ultimate threat to America's manhood in the form of the skinny, effeminate Pee Wee Herman (Pee Wee Herman) who challenges Balboa to a title fight. Rocky refuses, and is criticized by the press for being a "wimp."

Rocky's sidekick Paulie, in a desperate attempt to be taken seriously, offers to save his friend's honor by facing Pee Wee himself. Tragedy strikes in the third round though, when Paulie swallows his cigar and chokes to death. Then Rocky finally realizes that he must defeat Pee Wee himself.

I refuse to reveal anything about the exciting, twenty-second climax bout (shot in slow motion), but will simply say that it is more than enough to satisfy even Stallone's most rabid fans.

Stallone's next venture will be a joint project with Meryl Streep titled Rambo Out of Africa, in which the two play star-crossed lovers who have trouble reconciling one difference between them. Namely, she wants to stay in her plantation in Africa and raise coffee beans while he prefers to go to southeast Asia and slaughter Vietnamese Soldiers.

Stallone promises that it will be the first film to have the audience "wet with tears and screaming for blood at the same time."

Deadwire

By JANEY CANT-THINK

Come home from New Jersey to find out they'd killed the wrong man. Can't trust the Amherst drug Community (especialy when tied to certain 'high' officials of the local University) to do anything right. Anyhoo, I'm am back for my weakly column. Here's whats going on around here.

The big news is that that certain concert mongrel, Ewe P. See, has arranged for another of her favorite bands to play here at UMass. Gimme a break, The Rolling Stones?!? Blah and Boring! Just because Ms. See is about a thousand years old doesnt mean she can force down our throats that decrepit music, if you call it music. I think we need some new, fresh sounds, like those of Madonna or Bananarama, or maybe even Duran Duran (though since Simon got married and John moved in with Renee, their music hasn't been the same.)

With the local scene, our choices remain simalarly dim, though there are a few bright spots. There will be a dance-a thone held at 8 p.m. Friday night at Smith College, so bring some drugs, and of course a date. There will be some great local bands performing, including that band thats all the rage, Yellow Press with lead singer, our very own Rod Skeleton (who can also be seen at the local massage parlour, just ask for Maria). Proceeds will benefit the Smith College dating service, which is in desparate need of funds, due to an overload of clients.

At Amherst College, there is boredom on the horizen. The Local Boys will be head lining a concert held at Amherst, Friday night at 9 p.m. Either skip this one or make sure you are so drunk so that you won't remember them, because to put it mildly, THEY SUCK.

Diamond Street, located in beutiful (Ugh) downtown Northampton, is host to the Bullock Boulders, a punky sort of band straight from the nasty part of London. Get your chains, whips, leather, vibrators, drugs, booze, handcuffs, brands, rope, spikes, (Oh I could just go on forever!) polished and ready. You'll be sure to see me there, I'll be the one in the leather lingerie.

At Mount Holyoke, there are no events sceduled, because, as we all know, THEY ARE BORING.

Of course we all know that 'Zoo Mass' is the place to be on the weekends. Since the administration began advocating the 'party on every floor or die' policy, the dorms have been the best place to be. But the campus is offering some great tunes: The Boomerangs can be seen in their first American concert Wednesday night at 7:30 in the Hatch. The band doesn't start until 10 p.m. but have a few drinks and RELAX. (speaking of RELAX, whatever happened to Frankie?). Anyhoo, enjoy the Boomerangs, and remember, they weren't convicted of mass murder, only accused and no matter what the European standard is, in America you're innocent until proven guilty.

If you are willing to take the car out, there are some good bands playing within traveling range. At Rush St. - Lake Michigan and Lincoln Park Drives - there will be two favorite bands, the Pokes and Elvis MacManus tomorrow night at 8 p.m. (9 p.m. our time). Keep in mind that it is a 36 hour drive to Chicago, but it's worth the ride.

In New York City, Wenesday night Alfred's will present a great double bill as The Greateful Deads and Dillon warm up for this summers tour. Be sure not to miss. (Of course, I think the show is sold-out but you can hang around the back door and wait for a glimpse.

One last note, What the hell is Debra Winger doing, marrying Tim 'The Scrounge' Hutton. He must be good in bed or something. Whatever happenned to that wonderfull Nebraskan governor she has been constantly linked with. Oh well, I guess she must have gotten along well with Tim's friends wife, Mrs. Penn. I shall remain sleepless. Til next week, Tootles!

REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS

POEMS WANTED

Major anthology now seeks poems: love, nature, haiku, song lyrics, reflective, free verse, religious — all types! Beginners are welcome! Our editors will reply within 7 days.

Send ONE POEM ONLY, 21 lines or less, to:
WORLD OF POETRY PRESS
Dept. AP • 2431 Stockton • Sacto., CA 95817

REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL

WHEE!

ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL ADS REAL

FRESHMEN □ SOPHOMORES □ JUNIORS
SENIORS □ GRADUATE STUDENTS

NOW...Work PART TIME and step into Phase I of our dynamic new Training Program

CUSTOMER SERVICE REPRESENTATIVES
BUILD YOUR FUTURE WITH PEOPLExpress

It would take the nation's most innovative airline to "reinvent" career training like this! We're seeking highly competent individuals with a real capacity for compassion, caring and concern for people. Join PEOPLExpress NOW as a Customer Service Representative, and you will be on the most direct route to eligibility for POST-DEGREE TRAINING and a long-term career in the airline industry.

If you've got:
- Matriculated status in a full-time college program
- 2.5 cumulative GPA
- Professional appearance
- Customer contact experience
- Good communications skills
- Ability to provide own transportation

We'll offer you:
- $4.50 an hour for working 15–25 hours a week at BRADLEY INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT
- Schedules to fit your classes
- Travel privileges on PEOPLExpress
- Free parking

GET MEANINGFUL TRAINING–as you handle challenging responsibilities like customer check-ins/boarding, baggage procedures, and other operational support activities. PEOPLExpress offers you so much more than just a part-time job–here's a chance to really LEARN and EARN!

For further information contact the Hartford Recruiting Offices:
203-627-3492

PEOPLExpress
FLY SMART
Equal Opportunity Employer

FED/UP

The opinions on this page may or may not reflect the views of the Collegian. Don't pester us about it because we won't tell you.

1986-2006 RULING JUNTA

"Baby Dode" Duvalevensen
Editor-for-Life

Ion Playingdumb	Barry Looshy	Joker P. Coffiditis	Randy (Haig) Gonad
Mangling Editor	Catch up to Him	Nude Editor	Thinks He's Editor
Mabel Seagull	C. Sphinxman Alien	Smelly Kieger	Gin Anchorwoman
Feeto Editor	Black & Blue Editor	Farts Editor	Blarts Editor
Peel Sodomite	Con Man Punkshit	Jo Yo Wofo
Destruction Manager	Destruction Mangler	Wimmin Swimmin
Sherry Scheister	Piddler Abramson	Yizzbeth Lung	Paul Demerits
Corporate Spy	Jock Dude Liaison	Capitalist Tool	Porno Editor

Get a job!

Springtime is protest time at the University of Massachusetts, and for the life of us we can't understand why.

In the competitive atmosphere of the 1980s, college has become more than ever a job-training experience, a way to get a foot in the door and an edge on one's peers. This is why we at the Collegian have chosen to spend long hours in the basement of the Campus Center, gaining experience and clippings, while others make a lot of noise about anything from Nicaragua to Randy Gonad while getting themselves nowhere.

We admire the good intentions of students who express concern over events in "the larger scheme of things." However, for their own sake, we urge them to take a step back from their well-meaning zeal and recognize that the selflessness is obsolete.

On the other hand, the more some students devote their time to various causes and take themselves out of the running, the better chance the rest of us have to make big bucks. Ain't America grand?

Unsigned editorials resent the minority tyranny of the Collegian Ruling Junta.

"So Bob, if you don't surrender now, I'll show these pictures to your wife."

The pestilence of free thinking

William's Pain

I am concerned with the moral decay in our society. I am fighting the evils of oral sex, homosexuality, food stamps, premarital intercourse, Shakespearean plays, slut-pumps, jaywalking, and other assorted perversions. To this end, I announce the formation of a new campus organization. We are through screwing around. We are the Young Christian Brigade for the Apocalypse.

Borrowing methods from our historical heroes, the Spanish Inquisition, we managed to convince the editor of this page (a notorious pagan idolator) to give us space to announce the formation of our constitution to the Pioneer Valley community. Here it is - deviants watch out.

Resolved, that the Amherst area has been suffering from a plague of free-thinking secular humanism for some time and that this is an intolerable situation calling for drastic measures.

Resolved, that remedial action must come in the form of violence, brainwashing and repeated viewings of The Sound of Music to rebuild wholesome character traits long in remission. There are no other solutions.

Resolved, that Chancellor Joseph Duffey is largely responsible for the epidemic of tolerance and must be the first to spend time in the gibbet currently under construction next to the campus pond.

Resolved, that a University Mind Police be formed by offering 15-credit internships for participation and that the officers of it be given powers to arrest, try and execute offenders on the spot.

Resolved, that all unmarried University men and women be funnelled through "chastity checkpoints" before being allowed admittance to their dormitories. The trained sniffers of the YCBA canine corps will be pressed into service for this function.

Resolved, that all classes must, in the future, begin with a unanimous declaration of solidarity with the YCBA by a recitation of the Edwin Meese Wonder Bread Oath now posted on bulletin boards everywhere.

Resolved, that a history professor be publicly branded and then stoned to death on the first Sunday of every month.

Resolved, that television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart be given complete authority over all campus media organizations and veto power on Textbook Annex purchases.

We are in the forefront of a new wave of student activism sweeping the nation. We are shaking things up all over the land as evidenced by our recent crucifixion of decadent rock musician and Antichrist follower Jerry Garcia on stage at the Providence Civic Center. If you wish to a part of this exciting new movement, we are now accepting membership applications. Be prepared to show proof of your devotion - flagellant's whips will be provided at no extra charge.

Have a nice day.

William's Pain frequently clutters up the editorial page with obnoxious diatribes when he is not busy torturing small furry animals.

Letters from losers

Costly prank

Is my fraternity initiation ever going to end? I am a We Porka Gerbilla pledge and my brothers are going at me so hard that I am at the end of my rope.

Two weeks ago, after a rush party, two of the guys from the house slipped me some heavy tranquilizers, drove me to Boston, and put me in the cargo hold of a plane headed for Istanbul. Some of their Turkish brothers were waiting and they stripped me naked, took my money and dumped me in a bath house.

I finally woke up when this big bald guy with gold teeth started pounding on my back - some kind of massage, I guess. If he had not taken an immediate liking to me, I don't know what would have happened.

I like practical jokes as much as the next guy, but this is getting really expensive. I had to call my parents to get money for a ticket home. It took all their life savings to pay for it and now my little sister from Woburn will not be able to get her third arm removed before the prom.

A. F. Ratboy
Hanging out on the porch

Tan bias

There is, like, discrimination going on on this campus, and no one is doing anything about it. You'd think it was a bad thing to have a tan or something. We are wicked upset.

It's not very nice to have everyone saying you're going to get cancer and stuff, you know? All you guys are just jealous because you can't wear Esprit clothes and look as good as we do.

It's, like, our right as students and as human beings to go down to Florida and then to come back and wear tank tops for the rest of the semester. And everybody's giving us a hard time. It's just not fair.

Tami Luftkopf Cari Lucre
Southwest

Contra is O.K.

All this fuss about the Nicaraguan contra on campus is really very silly. I'm not even talking about the right of free speech. I'm talking about human rights, and basic human decency.

Jorges Rosales isn't such a bad guy. He puts his shoes on just like the rest of us. He even goes out, has a good time, and has a hangover in the morning. I bet none of you guys, right or left, ever thought about this guy as just a regular Joe. Well, he is.

Rosales sings in the shower just like everybody else. He enjoys Monday Night Football and Moonlighting. He is a good family man, but everyone gives him hell about his job. Nobody should get bugged all the time because of that. All of us have to make a living somehow and if he can do it without a conscience, more power to him.

'I bet if any of you people fighting about this issue ever went to the TOC with him, you would have a great time shooting the shit. Rosales is a great guy and he knows every dirty joke in the book. Really. And I think all of you should give him a chance, and stop bickering about all this political stuff.

Anastasio Somoza, Jr.
Central (America)

Rag time

I am sick of all the letters to the Collegian that are nothing but complaints. They piss me off and I am tired of reading them. To say I am upset would be putting it lightly. I am mad as hell, that is what I am. Nobody works harder than me but I don't get any credit for it, ever!

It sucks. It is horrible, awful, disgusting, putrid, a sad state of affairs, worthy of loathing, a mess, vile and evil-smelling viscous substance, a wretched situation, a truly rotten and lousy thing for all these people to just keep ragging on about all the stuff they hate.

Givm Ahard Tyme
Sylvan Caves

Fighting merriment

This letter is to inform the University community of the new rules governing student behavior at spring 1986 commencement ceremonies. The following regulations will be in force and it would be best if all would-be rowdies learn and obey them:

- To cut down on the possibility of people sneaking in champagne (strictly forbidden) we have replaced the traditional black cap and gown with a transparent sheet of plastic. All graduates must wear this garment and undergo a thorough body search before gaining entrance to the stadium.
- All students planning to attend the ceremony must first post a 1000 dollar "disruption bond" that will be forfeited if anyone engages in cheering, exultation, or other forms of misconduct. Money can be reclaimed only after filmed proof that the student remained in his/her seat throughout the ceremony (and spoke to absolutely no one) is provided to the appropriate officials.
- To further ensure a tranquil graduation, all students must leave their youngest brother or sister as a hostage with the Department of Public Safety where they will be kept under the vigilant eye of our highly-trained State Police Academy rejects .

Graduation has, in the past, been marred by outbursts of jocularity that I find most inappropriate. This will happen no more. I think that these new regulations will do a lot to improve the image of a University so tarnished by merriment. If you don't like them, tough shit.

Trite Williams
Asst. Vice Chancellor for Petty Rules and Insect Authority

Letters policy

All submissions to the editorial page must be scrawled in upper case on pieces of authenticated Egyptian papyrus or carved on clay tablets. Authors will be required to spend an average of two minutes under the editor's desk each time they wish to have something published.

Chilly Bill's Personalities on Parade

Liberace

Helms

Davis

Mondale

Koch

Khadafy

Liberace Helms

As if the recent turmoil in the gulf of Sidra weren't enough, there is news of another US-Libya showdown brewing. It seems that crazy colonel Moammar Khadafy and North Carolina's own Sen. Jesse Helms are engaged in a battle for the affections of pianist Liberace. The fickle prince of pomp has long been playing one off the other but with the deranged Libyan Romeo momentarily occupied, it looks like he may become "Jesse's Girl" on a full-time basis ...

******

Looks like there may be some truth to the charge that prominent American politicians are enamored of Nicaragua's Sandinista government. Information has reached us that a certain mayor of New York has been paying late-night visits to the residence of Nicaragua's UN envoy Nora Astorga, the femme fatale who seduced and killed one of the late, unlamented Anastasio Somoza's top generals to become a hero of the revolution. Better be careful, Ed, this lady is rough stuff ...

Davis Mondale

******

Could be some stormy times ahead for the first family. According to a California prison official, Reagan daughter Patti Davis has been carrying on a lengthy (and expensive) phone-sex affair with convicted murderer Charles Manson. Said the incarcerated carver of actress Sharon Tate, "This is just between the two of us. Please don't tell her old man, it might fuck up my pardon." Sorry, Charlie ...

******

Well, innocence ends for all of us sooner or later and it looks like pint-sized Mary Lou Retton's maidenhead is a thing of the past. The rumour that America's 1984 Olympic darling was recently deflowered by Houston Rockets basketball superstar Akeem Olajuwon has been confirmed. We could wish nothing better for the petite purveyor of "The Breakfast of Champions" and now truly believe she can do everything "the big boys do." And what's that about "supercharged ...?"

Koch Khadafy

******

The recording industry is in a considerable state of excitement this week after the news that rock legends Donny Osmond and Roger Waters plan to collaborate on a new album entitled "Depressing, but Still Cute". Listen for the Mormon Tabernacle Choir to back them up on the title cut.....

******

On the TV front, it appears that the hit kid's show 'Care Bears" has recruited some new talent by picking up former democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale for a trial run this fall. He will apparently play an abused puppydog that everyone feels sorry for but still does not like. Criticized for his lack of a good television personality, the spunky Minnesotan hopes to finally make a breaktrough to the small screen.

Curmudgeon footo by Grime Barlotta

CRUNCH! – A student volunteer for the "Mass Transformation" library restoration project bites the dust, evidence that bricks are still falling from the Tower. Story, page 3.

Collegian photo of Robbed Skeleton

BONES!

Collusion photo by Brine Gnazi

LEFT NO EVIL, AHEAD NO EVIL, DOWN NO EVIL – Three members of the SGA Political Police scan the audience for suspected radicals.

This day in history

•50 B.C. Julius Caesar enjoys first pint of bitters after successful conquest of Britain

•1 A.D. Mary Magdalene turns first trick

•100 Roman emperor Caligula I introduces dwarf-tossing as new sport to replace gladiatorial combat

•612 Byzantine empress Theodora lets Justinian the Great have it with a rolling pin

•750 Prophet Mohammed announces that black garter belts are acceptable under Islamic law

•1766 Catherine the Great founds Russian Humane Society and dedicates it to the promulgation of friendly relations between animals and humans

•1775 The name "Minuteman" is coined by the unhappy wife of an early American soldier. 1920 Richard M. Nixon has first wet dream.

•1951 The "dry-hump" is invented by two Westchester County teenagers.

•1953 Massachusetts politician Ed King takes first bribe.

•1954 Massachusetts politician Ed King takes 100th bribe.

•1964 John F. Kennedy's popularity rating goes up 50 points.

•1965 First beer bottle thrown from Kennedy Tower, Southwest.

1969 UMass drug dealers go on strike; panic grips campus.

•1970 Dean of Students William F. Field offers cocaine rewards for Dean's List students.

•1971 Dean's List program discontinued due to overcrowding.

•1973 Imelda Marcos buys East Wing of White House.

•1974 President Nixon first talks to portrait of William Howard Taft.

•1975 President Ford declared brain dead after fall from Air Force One steps. Story reported on page 42 of New York Times.

•1976 Imelda Marcos buys Campus Center, inspects it, sells it back.

•1979 Rosalyn Carter finally lets Jimmy get on top.

•1981 President Reagan says he finds strip mines more aesthetically pleasing than trees.

•1983 Chancellor Duffey calls Tower Library "eighth wonder of the world" after being beaned by a brick during rededication speech.

•1985 Vice President Bush admits taking testosterone injections.

•1986 Collegian managing editor says, "I suppose I can let this be printed."

Collegian photo by Fred Gusno

Jack the pigeon critiques the competition.

Work for the Collegian!

"We Fill Space"

Be a part of littering campus buildings, training puppies and more! Join us and watch your cum drop, meet new people, experiment with new substances and more, more, more!

Act now and just for signing up, you will get an autographed copy of Larry Bouchie's autobiography, A Pack a Day Keeps the Liberals Away.

Advice from Filthy Freddy

Dear Filthy Freddy,

There's this woman on my floor that I really like. The problem is that she is real pretty and I have been generously described as being "ugly as sin." I am really warm for her form but she is sleeping with this guy who looks like Hulk Hogan. When I asked her out, she just laughed and then he came around to my room and shoved my face in my roomate's aquarium. I don't understand it. All I said was "wanna go make whoopie, toots?" What can I possibly do to make her come back to my place some nice evening?

Des Porate
Orchard Pill

Dear Des,

Set it up so she thinks your dad is real rich. She would probably even drop 'em for an ugly bastard like you.

Dear Filthy Freddy,

I am a middle-aged married male who suffers from feelings of inadequacy because my wife (let's call her Anne) is so much more powerful and well-known than me. It really bugs me sometimes. You see, she parties out with all these big politicos (let's call them Mike, Walter, Gerry, and Teddy) and I get pretty jealous. All I ever get to do is take care of a bunch of snot-nosed, ungrateful kids at a big daycare center. How can I get her to spend more time with me? I mean quality time (hint, hint), you know.

(Let's call me Joe)

(Let's say I live in a white house on the hill)

Dear Joe,

Well, you can either keep bumming out or you can slap the chains on once and for all. With a woman like that, Filthy Freddy would grin and bear it. She sounds like a hot mama. I would be willing to talk to her if you would like....

WE NEED:

Reporters -- You would be surprised at how difficult it is to find people that can consistently misquote, shamelessly lie, and deliberately get their facts wrong just because they feel like it. If you think you are one of the select who can, come join your brothers and sisters in the basement of the Campus Center!!

Columnists -- Let the rest of the world know just how willing you are to commit blathering, self-centered, opinionated tripe to paper. Put that ridiculous political viewpoint up for the amusement of the entire community!!

CAUGHT IN THE ACT – Collegian photographer Ian Bulance Chaser snapped this of a man trying to eat a pole from the top down.

Ad Reps -- Earn valuable extra pocket money by selling gullible local merchants space in which to push their largely worthless products to impulse-buying college consumers!!

Graphics, Paste-up, etc. -- See how many reporters and columnists you can piss off by deliberately re-arranging the paragraphs in their copy. Join in the group laughter when the poor bastards come steaming into the room with loud cries of artistic genocide!!

Collusion Crassifieds

HELP WANTED

Can you breathe? Can you walk? Can you read at least one language proficiently? If so, you're our kind of people. If you have the rare ability to feel no remorse while giving pain to innocent people, then apply at the Financial Aid office in Whitmore. We make it happen -- but REAL slowly.

Are you blind? I mean totally blind? Then you couldn't possibly be reading this.

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? Think you can write? Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian. We need someone to teach us how. Currently we copy all of the news from other newspapers, or we make it up. Some times events occur within the five-college area and we simply don't write about it. If it's just sick. It's the blind leading the deaf, leading the dumb. We know where to put advertisments, though. Yessirree. So how about coming down and writing for the sorriest excuse for a paper in all New England -- Aw heck, the whole U.S. I mean it's getting so bad that even the people in the bathrooms would rather stare at the wall then read us. Won't you please help? If you can fill space, draw even stick figures. We're REAL interested. The bigger the drawings the better. Thanx a real lot. Ooops, my English. Thanks YOU a reel lot.

Cow Stunner needed -- No experience neccessery. Come to Mike's sleughismouse for an interview. Must like working with animals.

Afraid of rabbits? Ever thought they look ed like the enemy? We do. We're ROTC (Rabbits Off The Campus). Perhaps you remember the Southwest concert last year. Rock Against Rabbits? Well, we're doing it again this year, and we need volunteers to pound the crap out of a few of the little buggers. Call Brer Fox at 566-9872.

Jeeps for $447 Yes, it is possible to order jeeps through the mail for just $44. Of course we mail it to you one piece at a time. What the hell do you expect for 44 measly dollars. You Americans always think you can get something for nothing.

Peter Dow I still like you. I don't care what everyone else says. R. Reagan

Herb Ramy Stop writing about Nicaragua, the Philippines, South Africa, Communist Russia, abortion, school prayer, mandatory drug testing, and all those other fun things. Your facts are wrby off. You don't know WHAT you're talking about. Stick to the lighter stuff. -- Art Buchwald

My virginity Last seen at a party where we both had a bit too much to drink. If found, please return. No questions asked. Call Les Thanpure, at 566-6969.

Lost -- My sense of humor. I workied for the Collegian. Those jerks, they have no respect for anybody or anything. Cripes!

Dan Sobel -- You are an amazing hunk. You really excite me. You make me wet. Love, yourself.

Pat Johnson -- You are an incredible journalist. The insights with which you cover the SGA are beyond belief. How do you keep your patience with such a bunch of snotnosed, obnoxious, whimpering, carpetbeggers? Bob Woodweird and Carl Bernstein

All RSO's: A run this show. Don't you forget it. I love this University. Not like you. You only come for 4 years. 10 years from now you'll realize I was right. You are just college students. What do you know? I am an administrator. I have incredible judgement. You'll see. I'm right. I know I am. Sure I am. I must be. R. Donent, acting Director of Student Activities.

Lesley Clark -- I bet you think you're big stuff now. Ms. Rolling Stone. Ha! We're going to love it when all the angel dust and wild turkey finally catches up to you and you are a worn-out old bag, resting on your laurels like me. -- Hunter Thompson, somwhere in South America.

Nancy Klingener -- You had better be nice to us or we will tell everybody. That's right, everybody. And we won't leave any of the grisly details out. -- You know who.

FOR SALE

Used Swill Village Apt. 100,057 miles, 657 parties, 41 pukers. Call 566-RICH, ess for Ferdinand or Imelda.

PISS OFF. That's right, you heard us. Pissed off? It's better than being pissed on. -- one who knows.

PERSONALS

Weird Dude SWM br. 7' 5" with drug problem seeks other weird dude, SBM, SBF, SWM, etc. to partake in muzak, cooking, etc. mostly etc., call 566-GOON.

Andy Wolff You think if have a drinking problem? It's a good thing I don't light a match when you breathe or the whole place would go up in flames. -- Chancellor Joe Ilana Levenson So you think you're a hot shot because your brother is Editor, huh? Don't get too uppity, he's not that good.

Necrophilia Club Meets tonight in Northampton Graveyard at 11:30 p.m. Bring your mask!

BABY DOC -- How could you walk away like that? By the way, the test is positive. Michele.

GOT AN EXTRA TESTICLE? -- Senior Microbiology Major desperately needs one for research paper. Call Percy.

FOUND -- DIAPHRAGM, BLUE Extra Large, with the initials R. D. on it. Call and give inscription to identify and it's yours. 565-2567.

SUITCASE FULL OF COCAINE -- Better ransfrt hurry, buddy. (Or it will be 70 degrees out and SNOWing.)

WICKED WILLIE -- and his infamous burrowing gerbil ect. Parties, birthdays and Bar Mitzvahs. Leaveays available.

CHRISTIAN PHONE SEX -- Who are you saving yourself for anyway?

SERVICES

TRANSFER STUDENTS FROM BROWN UNIVERSITY will gladly escort generious men. When your grandchildren are bouncing on your knee, you'll have something to tell them about college.

GREAT TIX

I have QUALITY seats for Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, the Doors, (featuring Jimmy Morrison), Buddy Holly, Elvis Presley, Johnny Rotten (he showed 'em), David Crosby. (Don't you think he belongs here) Front row, center section, you'll be so close you can touch them. Call 1-800-DEADFOLKS.

CAR FOR SALE

'72 Plymouth Duster, white with black top. Needs work. Well, actually it needs a LOT of work. It's missing a few tires, some spark plugs, and an engine to plug them into. Hardly. Used. $4,500. Negotiable. Call Delwood, 566-CARR.

'73 Capri, Gulden's mustard color with a ripe olive black interior. It runs like a peach. Tires are a bit shredded, almost like cole-slew, the kind your mother used to make. Engine is as tough as an un-ripe apple. Stereo is a real lemon, but you can hear highs as crisp as fresh lettuce, and lows as resonant as spoiled watermelon. Asking price: Some big clams, probably out of your price range. Will better for canned spam, several Big Macs, and frash loaves of Wonder Bread. Negotiable. I'm no fruit, this is for real. Call Chip, 566-PLUM.

SHEEP BOARDING -- Inquire care of Peter S. at the Collegian. I am VERY affectionate and can give that something special to them.

FOR SALE

USED NUMCHUCKS -- Slightly bloodstained. Call Larry at 566-KILL.

USED CONDOMS at bargain prices. Call Phelps Th.

HIT MAN

I AM STILL in school, but I do professional work. Get rid of that meddlesome T.A. or that professor that just goes on and on. group rates available, guaranteed results.

WANT TO CONVERT TO JUDAISM? Well, you had best be circumsized. I do a great job at it (you should excuse the pun) cut-rate prices. Call Moll at 566-2123.

TO THE SISTERS OF KAPPA CERVICA -- We just think you're the greatest and the nicest and the sweetest. We are so happy to be your little sisters. God do we LOVE you. You are so wonderful and just so special, we want to pay you back. Somehow. Anyhow. Think of something. ANYTHING. We'll do it. Even if it's like, really grody. Love your adoring little sisters.

NEED A PLACE FOR FALL?

North Amherst closet formerly used by Joan Crawford, Patti Davis, Sybil. Includes outlet. $800/mo. + coathangers.

Want to live a hop skip and a jump from campus? Do you mind cockroaches? Like, so fucking many they like you can't fucking believe it? We're talking BIG city Kinda like a moving carpet, know what I mean? Ever see Creepshow? That was a cakewalk. I'm talking bugs. If you can cope, call Fred at Putter's Apts.

I OWN THE DRAKE NOW! ha he ha! And I'm raking in money by the bucketful. I need to get another building just to store all the green-backs. I'm going for Charlie's next... and after that Barbie's. Damn kids. Denny.

"Cash"
Paying cash for your student I.D.s. Serious inquiries only. Please call Mikey.

MUST SELL Car.

Sue -- I really enjoyed last night. What an INTERESTING birthmark! -- Jack.

Jack -- I was with Bill last night. Asshole. -- Sue.

Sue -- You slut. Bill, Brian, Bob. You're room is like a revolving door. -- Jack.

Jack -- All of them are better than you, pee wee. -- Sue.

Sue -- That's really funny. Think of it as a smell fish in a big pond. -- Jack.

Jack -- You want your drunken mother to see the video tapes? -- Sue.

Sue -- Do you want Father Quiggly to hear about the football team? The Lacrosse team? The Chess Club? Christ, anything that was incorporated got your "seal of approval?" -- Jack.

Jack -- Oh yeah? -- Sue.

Sue -- Yeah. -- Jack.

Jack -- Oh, Jaeack. -- Sue.

Sue -- Oooh, Suuuuue. -- Jack.
Jack -- Touch me there! Yes. THERE!

Sue -- Aaaaaaeeh. -- Jack.

Jack -- Got a cigarette? -- Sue.

Sue -- You're such a nut. But I love you. -- Jack.

Jack -- Zzzzzzzzz. -- Sue.

Ugly Blue early 70s car. I don't know what kind it is, because my manual is faded and moldy. Runs like shit, drives like shit, is forever running out of gas. And geez, if I had a dime for every time I had to change the tires, I'd be a rich man by now. But anyways, it is very reliable transporation. It has gotten me from the early 70s to almost the 80s. A lot of sentimental value, so I'm gonna ask $6,000. Firm. Call La Boosh, at 566-SUCKER.

Well Ya know, eh....Lemme (QUACK!) tell ye something -- I'm wicked sorry. Catch up with me.

Graphics people. All you artsy-fartsy types think you're so smart. Big deal, so you put out a paper every day. So what. So you stay at the Collegian till 3 a.m. every night working for pennies an hour trying to get everything just so. Well lemdee deh. So you've won awards in a lot of contests against papers that have a professional graphics coordinator working every night. Well, aren't you just the greatest. I'm just SO impressed. I'm on T.V. -- Ted Koppel

YOU BRING DE BEERS, LET'S HAVE APARTHEID! -- First annual UMass South Africa booster day. Come hear the Beautiful Boer Blues Band. Guest speaker John Sitter. Plenty of prizes for the kids in the sjambok whip proficiency contest.

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

My name a Micky and boy can I type. I type 400 words per minute, and for the right price will gladly do exhibition work. I can WRITE 200 words per minute. Term paper on bacteria a problem? Not any more. I also have a degree in everything this University offers. I have been a T.A. for almost all classes. Say it's the night before that big 10 page term paper is due. Whatever the subject I can have it typed on your typewriter within five minutes. I can also write it out in longhend in YOUR handwriting inside of ten minutes, leaving you to go out drinking with your friends. Oh yes, and if you're on the meal plan or have eaten any food from the Hatch the service is free. Call me at 566-TYPE.

GOD don't you wish that classified was true?

Happy 21 Steve! Well, now you're 21. Well, feel good about yourself. Nothing really more to say. Love Steve.

SUBJECTS NEEDED:
Bizzerre sexual experiment involving chainsaws, beby puppies, super glue, and thumb tacks. Worth extra-credit at Psych 100 classes. This could make the difference between an A.B and an A. Plus, you'll have one hell of a story to tell if you make it through. Oh yeah, must be very very intelligent.

Graphics Geeks You're gonine be so busy trying to sketch the basketball, you'll lose your shirts in the basketball game against the newsroom. We'll out maneuver you, out play you, out shoot you, and, if it comes down to it, we are going to embarress you in THE GAME.

News Nerds You haven't e prayer. We have studied lighting and angles so long we'll be able to measure the distance from the bell to the basket from across the count in a single second. We will never miss a shot. You had better bring someone who can count because we will make so many baskets, you'll think we're using ten balls. In THE GAME we will bring it all together, just like we do every night.

Jeanette DeForge Think you're so damn special, huh? Lots of people would love to capitalize more than one letter in their last name. You're no big deal. Sincerely, Joe DeBaker.

SPECIAL THANKS!

To Bill Spain and Ian Polumbaum for having a huge funnybone and for putting this sucker together.

SPORTS

Gerlufsen out; Vitale to UMass

ESPN basketball analyst takes over

By WILL McGAMMONS
Collegian Staff

Controversial ESPN cable television basketball analyst Dick Vitale, announced before the NCAA championship yesterday that he has been asked to take over as head coach at the University of Massachusetts, and that he will accept.

In Amherst, UMass athletic director Frank McInerney said that current head coach Ron Gerlufsen has been asked to resign and that Vitale would be given "free reign" to build a nationally-powerful team, and that, if needed, he could committ any recruiting violation.

Vitale, the former coach of the University of Detroit and the Detroit Pistons of the NBA, also announced that former UMass hoop star John Hempel, who transfered to St. John's two years ago, would be back in Amherst to play his senior season.

Gerlufsen, when reached at home late last night, said he was, "shocked" at the decision to fire him, but had no further comment.

"Hey, Dickie V's back at the helm," said Vitale to a packed press conference. "UM's gonna be at the head of the Atlantic 10 next season. Look out Gale Catlett, heads up John Chaney, here come the Minutemen."

Reaction from team members ranged from three star players saying they would transfer (see story) to others questioning just who Vitale was.

"All I know is that I better get the car Coach G promised me when I signed. Shit," said one player who asked not to be indentified. "Least I already got my shoebox full of money."

Vitale said he was not ready to name any assistant coaches, but that current television personalities Al McGuire, Billy Packer, Bucky Waters and ESPN host Bob Ley, Vitale's announcing partner, would be screened.

"We'll have the best coaching and the best-looking suits on our bench," said Vitale.

ESPN officials, when reached at their Bristol, Connecticut headquarters, said that they didn't know who would replace Vitale (or possibly Lee if he is hired as an assistant) but said that without a doubt no UMass graduates who worked on the WMUA sports staff this year would be considered for the highly-coveted positions.

"I saw Dean Smith at lunch yesterday and he told me I was the man to turn UMass around," said Vitale. "I know right that right away, UNC will be at the Cage and we'll beat them."

McInerney said the decision was the toughest he had to make in his tenure, but said he hadn't realized how far UMass had slipped since Dr. J left school. "I picked up a media guide from 1984 and realized something had to be done. I had no idea how awful we had become," he said.

photo by the Segall Beagle

Former ESPN basketball analyst Dick Vitale has been named head coach of the University of Massachusetts basketball team.

photo by Dee Paulmaris

Umass basketball coach Ron Gerlufsen said yesterday he was "shocked" at his sudden firing.

Hempel will transfer back to UMass, Vitale takes credit

By LEIGH SHAUGHNESSY
Collegian Staff

John Hempel, the former high-scoring foward at the University of Massachusetts before transfering to St. John's University two years ago, will return to UMass for his final collegiate season.

"As soon as I found out that Walter (Berry, St. John's consensus All-American foward and winner of numerous player-of-the-year awards) was coming back for his senior year, I decided to go back to where I was appreciated, UMass," said "the Hemp."

New UMass head coach Dick Vitale (see above story) took all the credit for Hempel's return, telling a press conference in Dallas at the NCAA championship game that, "John was told he could take all the shots, not play defense and not pass or rebound, just like when he was here before."

"I told John, Hey big guy, you'll be the main man in Amherst," said Vitale.

Hempel, the former Atlantic 10 all-star and one of the conference's top scorers, left UMass after leading the Minutemen in scoring in his first two seasons.

Local beer distributors said they planned to restock the shelves of local package stores in preparation for Hempel's return.

"At St. John's, I wasn't given the ball enough. Imagine that," said Hempel.

"I thought about going hardship, I really did," said the 6-7 foward. "But after talking to NBA scouts, I decided to hone my skills for a year before going into the draft."

Hempel, from Linden, New Jersey, said that at St. John's, players like Berry, Ron Rowan and Willie Glass started ahead of him while he was left to mop-up in routs.

"I couldn't figure it out," said he said. "Just because I can't jump over the Sunday newspaper doesn't mean I can't play in the Big East."

Hempel, with the departure of UMass stars Carl Smith, Lorenzo Sutton and David "Beatle" Brown (see other story) will have to shoulder much of the scoring load.

"I'm ready for that," said Hempel. "I like to shoot a lot to begin with and without those guys around, I'll be able to play my game."

UM coach Ron Gerlufsen, who was fired before Vitale took over, said that while Hempel was a good shooter, he felt the team was more together without him and that he will cause problems again.

"John's tough to figure out sometime, but he's a good player. Just ask him," said the ex-coach.

St. John's coach Lou Carnesseca, when told about Hempel's leaving, said that the departure of his reserve foward would do little to hurt the Redmen.

"Johnny's a good kid, I suppose, I never really got around to meeting him," said the coach.

Sutton, Smith and Brown said to be leaving

The three best players on the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team, Lorenzo Sutton, Carl Smith and David Brown, say they are leaving UMass after the school hired television analyst Dick Vitale as coach and John Hempel announced he was returning.

Sutton said he will transfer to North Carolina, Brown will attend the University of Maryland and Smith will spend his last season at Syracuse University.

Vitale, when asked about the trio, said "Hey, that's okay with me. I've still got John Milum, Will Hicks and Duane Chase, they're all PTP's baby."

Mike Mundy, UMass' freshman point guard, said he will return, but plans to spend the summer touring the nation billed as "The World's Fastest Dribbler."

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
The Real Thing!
The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN
RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 40
TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1986

INSIDE

- Protests fill the day. Page 3.
- Mexican plane crashes. Page 4.
- Minutewomen home against BC. Page 12

Contra claims Nicaraguan support

See related story, page 3

By JOEL P. COFFIDIS
Collegian Staff

A spokesman for the contras, the guerillas fighting to topple the Nicaraguan government, last night said that his forces are growing because of the Nicaraguan peoples' support, in a speech to a capacity crowd in the Student Union Ballroom.

Jorge Rosales, assistant to the press secretary for the Nicaraguan Force, one of the US-backed armies opposing the Sandinista government, made the speech after four days of controversy surrounding his campus visit. The presentation ended after about 75 minutes because of "a violent crowd" outside the Student Union Ballroom, the event's sponsor, the University of Massachusetts Republican Club, said.

Following Rosales was a slide show presented by Michael Waller, the director of publications for the Council for Inter-American Security, a conservative think-tank based in Washington, D.C.

Both speakers frequently faced hecklers in the crowd who oppose President Ronald Reagan's policy toward Central America. (see accompanying story).

"This is the first time our people have had a chance to be here and I'm glad I'm able to be here," Rosales said. He then proceeded to outline the last seven years' events in Nicaragua that have led "to the betrayal of the Nicaraguan revolution.

"We have been winning and I say we have been winning because we have been able to fight back," Rosales said. "The main reason we have been surviving is because we have the backing of the Nicaraguan people."

Rosales said the Soviet Union has been providing the Sandinista government with supplies and heavy equipment, which it needs for the continuing war against the contras, who he said are "fighting for democracy."

He elaborated on the unjustice of the Sandinistas and emphasized their threat to the security of the United States.

"By 1985, the Sandinista army was formed by 120,000 soldiers," Rosales said. "They had more than 300 armed vehicles, which is more than all of Central America and Mexico." He added that it is important for the US to support the contras because of Nicaragua's proximity to the US.

Rosales emphasized that the Nicarguan people support the contras and the civilians provide them with valuable help in the conflict. "They [civilians] provide us with intelligence reports," he said.

Waller presented a slideshow of his recent trip to Nicaragua, reaffirming Rosales' comments that the contras must be supported by American foreign policy. This was followed by a question period with most questions unsupportive of the speakers.

Gilbert Stair, president of the Republican Club, ended the question period when he said he received word from a UMass police spokesman of an angry crowd, estimated at 600 by Gerald T. O'Neil, director of public safety, in the outer hallway.

O'Neil said that the crowd outside was large but not violent. Shorty after the event, police responded to a report of a bomb placed inside the Radical Student Union offices, according to UMass Police Sgt. Paul Ominsky. He would not elaborate.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Heavy security, paid for by the Republican Club and the chancellor's office, greets spectators as they enter the Student Union Ballroom for last night's contra lecture and slide presentation.

Opposing sides speak out at lecture

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

Last night's speech by contra representative Jorge Rosales packed the Student Union Ballroom with a standing-room-only crowd that came to hear and be heard.

Police opened SUB doors at 6:30 p.m., and a steady stream of people, some dressed in black or with blood-like red paint on their faces, filed in to fill the seats and pack the aisles. Many people carried signs protesting the war being waged against Nicaragua's Sandinista government by the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, which Rosales represents, and other groups, known collectively as contras.

Before the speech, groups of protesters paraded around the SUB with signs saying "Let Nicaragua Live," while others with signs reading "Not a Penny for the Contra Cutthroats" and "Contras Equal Rape, Torture, Murder, and Destruction" lined the walls.

A loud chorus of hisses competed with pockets of applause as Rosales strode across the stage at about 7:10 p.m. His remarks were punctuated with editorial comment from the crowd. "We have the backing of the Nicaraguan people," said Rosales, only to be greeted by deafening shouts of "lies, lies."

Shortly after Rosales began speaking, eight people dressed in black picked up a woman wearing a red-stained dress and silently advanced toward the stage, only to be stopped by police who asked them to return to their seats.

Outside the ballroom, hundreds of protesters chanted "The people united will never be defeated" as the ballroom emptied.

Some were annoyed by the unruly crowd. "I'm very upset," said senior Howie Breslau. "This is a liberal university that prides itself on social awareness, but these people couldn't even speak. This is a free country."

Others did not agree with Breslau. "These people spread poison," said John L. Fisher of Northampton. "Basically I would favor free speech, but it is not limitless."

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Contra spokesman Jorge Rosales

Merit pay: Rubber-stamped by top UM officials

Based on points, peer evaluations

Second in a series.
By CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

Evaluating which faculty members receive how much merit pay involves both the critical judgment of professors' peers and a detached process of rubber-stamping by University administrators.

Beginning each fall semester, each department's personnel commmittee begins to evaluate faculty members' work in research, teaching and service.

Then, during the next three months, the evaluation process moves out of the departments and onto the desks of the deans and provost, Richard O'Brien. This channel, through which recommendations for monetary awards are passed, is rarely blocked by objections and questions of fairness. Instead, potential problems and any questions are usually deferred until the following year for the sake of protecting a smooth process.

"My practical role is close to zero," O'Brien said. "By the time recommendations come from the dean, if I try to change even $100, the dean must work back to his recommendations and personnel committee recommendations.

"We lean on the opinion of the chairman and dean," he said. "It's a great rarity that we would propose a change -- the whole machinery would have to be redone." He said if he spots a problem in a department's recommendations for merit increases, he would "take a closer look at it next year."

However, before the provost or

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey even see the merit evaluations, a more detailed scrutiny of each faculty member's work must take place.

In a period of approximately one month, each department's personnel committee members assess the work of their peers by reviewing faculty annual reports. Evaluative statements are then attached to the reports and handed to the dean with recommendations for merit increases.

Most departments' personnel committees work on a point system in the evaluation of meritorious work completed in the previous school year. For example, the home economics department has a five-point number system that translates merit into an eligibility rank for bonuses and, ultimately, into dollars.

"We assign weighted numbers -- a guess based on numbers one to five. A one means you're a Nobel Prize winner, a five means you need a road map to find your way to

continued on page 3

THERE IS STILL TIME TO ENROLL
Study at
The Hebrew University of Jerusalem
A Unique Academic Opportunity plus the Unforgetable Experience of Jerusalem.
Choose from One Year Program or Summer School
Langauage of Instruction is English
For further information and applications write:
the Hebrew University
1318 Beacon St., Brookline, MA 02146
or call: 617-371-6810

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Don't be a fool brighten up Spring with some fine lingerie from Le Boudoir

Carriage Shops,
233 N. Pleasant St.,
Amherst 549-6915 Mon-Sat 10-6

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!
Styles by Deborah

Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

UPE Union of Professional Employees
MTA Massachusetts Teachers Association

Wine and Cheese Reception for Professional Staff
Tuesday, April 1st, 4-6 pm
Campus Center 1101

Guest Speakers:
Nancy Finkelstein, President of MTA
Ed Sullivan, Executive Director
Ann Clarke, General Counsel

All professional staff invited to attend

U.P.E. - M.T.A. Office at 549-4974

FACULTY!

The Textbook Annex needs your HELP
to allow us to get all the necessary textbooks for the fall semester please send us your textbook orders
ASAP*
*as soon as possible
necessary forms are available through your departmental secretary or the textbook annex
ALSO: please inform your students that we will be returning this semesters unsold books to the publishers
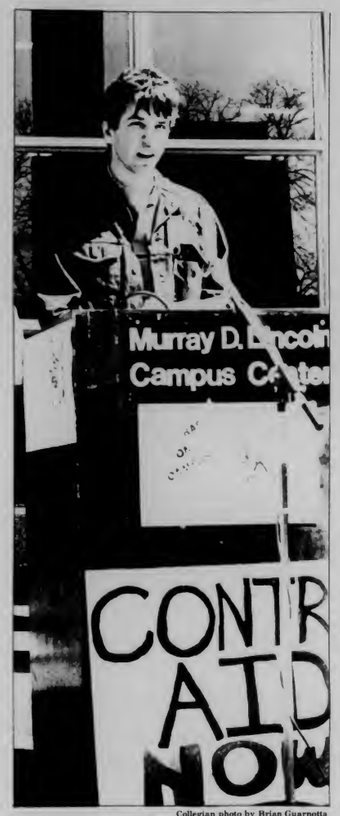
beginning March 31st
THANKS!
the UNIVERSITY STORE'S
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

SMITH COLLEGE REC COUNCIL PRESENTS:
the Bangles
&
the Hoodoo Gurus



THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1986, 9PM
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SMITH COLLEGE, NORTHAMPTON

SMITH STUDENTS $7 & $8
+LIMIT 4 TICKETS PER ID
NON-SMITH STUDENTS $8 & $9
AT THE DOOR $10

NO CANS, BOTTLES, CAMERAS
OR RECORDING DEVICES
HALL IS WHEEL CHAIR ACCESSIBLE

TICKETS:
SEELYE BASEMENT - WEEKDAYS NOON-3 PM
+MARCH 25 - APRIL 2
MAIN ST. RECORDS - NORTHAMPTON
FOR THE RECORD (FACES) - AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE - UMASS
ALL TATATIX OUTLETS, INCLUDING:
+SPRINGFIELD STOP & SHOP
+SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER

Separate groups demonstrate at SUB

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

University of Massachusetts student Tony Rudy joined the ranks of students involved in yesterday's demonstrations. He spoke during the Republican Club-sponsored rally at noon on the front steps of the Student Union Building, while around the corner. . .

Contra visit spurs action

By DANIEL SOBEL
and LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

Two sides of the Student Union Building served as backdrops yesterday afternoon for separate rallies addressing the issues of a "contra" speaking on campus and the Reagan administration's proposal to back the anti-Sandinista rebels in Nicaragua.

In the first rally, which drew about 150 people to the front steps of the building, students stressed their support for president Reagan's proposed $100 million in military and humanitarian aid to the contras and emphasized the importance of free speech.

"If this academic institution is the heart and conscience of America, then it is our responsibility as students of the University to fight for free speech at all costs," Scott Protentis, a senator from the Southwest Residential Area said.

"These people [the contras] want to fight like the founding fathers fought," said Lynne McCabe, a senator from Sylvan. "Our duty is to ensure democracy."

A woman dressed in army fatigues and holding an American flag flanked student speakers at the demonstration, which was sponsored by the UMass Republican Club.

There were few hecklers in the crowd, although a spectator's statement that the "communist threat" is close to US borders was met with jeers.

Around the corner, at a much larger rally, a crowd of about 300 listened to speakers and singers who opposed the presence of contras at UMass and denounced aggressive US policies toward Nicaragua.

Several area residents were in attendance as were many older people and children. Several demonstrators wore shorts and tank-tops as temperatures heated up to 75 degrees. The crowd responded with loud cheers and applause to comments made by speakers.

Earlier, an ad-hoc coalition of students and community groups erected a graveyard next to the campus pond with 59 crosses bearing the names of Nicraguans reportedly slain by the contras.

Methods of killing were described on the reverse side of several of the white, wooden crosses, including, "Shot in head while running", "Body cut up with knife" and "Arms broken, throat cut."

Carmen Deere, a UMass economics professor who has worked on agrarian reform in Nicaragua since 1980, said it is ridiculous to consider Nicaragua a "Soviet beachhead," as some have said, because, "A country of three million people -- peasants, traders and poets -- is hardly a threat to our national security."

She said 50,000 lives were lost in the struggle against former Nicaraguan dictator Anastasia Somoza, and the people of that country "are not about to give up any freedoms to become a lackey for the Soviet Union.

"I think the US is afraid of a good example, afraid that there are alternatives to capitalism. Should we be afraid of literacy, of health care, of women getting jobs and rights? I don't get scared at night, I don't know about you," Deere said.

Ron Peters, a minister from the United Christian Foundation, praised the rally, saying, "This is where the real classroom is and where the real learning takes place ... The scary part is that too frequently our national leaders appear to be on the wrong side," of the issue.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

. . . graduate student and Radical Student Union member Mitch Gaslin offers his own view of a contra, tongue-in-cheek, during a rally opposing US support for Nicaraguan opposition fighters. A vigil in memory of Nicaraguans allegedly killed by contra forces preceded the rally.

Police search for suspect

A 21-year-old man was cut in the face with a glass during a fight at 5:40 p.m. Friday in the Hampshire Dining Commons, University of Masachusetts police said.

The man was treated at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton and released. Police said they have a warrant for the arrest of a man, 22, in connection with the incident.

Police said he will be charged with assault and battery with a deadly weapon, and mayhem, the intentional disfigurement of an individual.

The man was expected to turn himself in Monday, police said.

In other police reports:

• A man reported his car was vandalized by a female acquaintace when he was sitting in it, at 6:02 p.m. Saturday in parking lot 49, police said.

The owner said he was in his car when a woman started banging on his hood and windshield and threatening him, police said.

• A bulletin board was ignited at 3:21 p.m. Friday on the fourth floor of Pierpont House, after a firecracker placed behind it, police said.

• A vacuum cleaner, 40 gallons of wax and 400 pounds of sweeping compound were reported stolen at 9:22 p.m. Friday from the Campus Center, police said.

— JEFFRY BARTASH

Transfer program approved

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and the presidents of six Massachusetts community colleges yesterday signed an agreement creating a dual admissions program for engineering students.

The agreement, signed at the chancellor's residence near Orchard Hill, will allow first-year students accepted into the University engineering program to enroll in a two-year program at one of the community colleges and then transfer to UMass as juniors.

The agreement was signed by Duffey and the presidents of Springfield Technical, Northern Essex, Greenfield, Cape Cod, Holyoke, and Berkshire community colleges.

The agreement will allow the School of Engineering to maintain its high standards and to be accessible to qualified students, Duffey said during the signing.

"As with many schools, it is imperative. With this program, we benefit, the community colleges benefit, the students benefit and the state benefits, since they need good engineers," said Duffey.

"Right off the top, it gives us credibility. People often ask us when we are going to grow up and become four-year colleges," said Ted Pamitz, the chairman of the engineering department for Cape Cod Community College, in praise of the new program.

"One of our problems is in the first two years, students do not know what they want to do," Pamitz said.

— PATRICK JOHNSON

★Merit pay

continued from page 1

the door," said Glenn Brown, acting director of home economics.

If the deans or department heads disagree with the original recommendations, the personnel committee is provided with an opportunity to defend its decisions, according to Susan Pearson, UMass director of academic administration.

But while the merit process schedule provides for "backtracking" to resolve differing opinions, the appeals process is seldom utilized.

Arlyn Diamond, president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, the faculty union, said: "Merit is basically not grievable. If a department says 'X' is worthless and the dean goes along with that, on what basis can you grieve the dean?"

If the dean follows the recommendations of the personnel committee, it is very difficult for the provost to recognize whether or not an unfair judgment has been made, she said.

She added, "There is no mechanism of addressing systematic abuses. The deans' level is the place where a lot of this can be addressed, but it isn't happening."

In response, Murray M. Schwartz, dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts, said his role is to create equity in merit pay by surveying the total accomplishments in the college and awarding comparable bonuses for comparable work.

But like the provost, Schwartz said he seldom does more than rubber-stamp the merit rankings recommended by the personnel committees in each department.

He said that before approving bonuses, he reviews the faculty annual reports and makes sure equal rankings are rewarded equally.

Next: Secrecy and subjectivity.

FYI

Robert Oakely, the director of the US State Department Office on Counter-terrorism and Emergency Planning will lead a panel discussion on terrorism and counter-terrorism at 4 p.m. today in Hooker Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College. Terrell Arnold, vice president of the Center of Terrorism and Sub-National Conflict in Washington D.C. will also speak on the panel.

A second discussion on Terrorism, Diplomacy, and Civil Liberties will be held at 7:30 p.m. Both panels are sponsored by the Five College International Relations Program and the Five College Peace and World Security Studies Program.

• Robert Brustein, the Artistic Director of the American Repertory Theater in Cambridge will be speaking on the "Humanist and the Artist" at 3 p.m. today at the University of Massachusetts Rand Theater.

• For students interested in spending a semester at sea, the director of admissions and financial aid for Sea Education will be speaking at 1 p.m. today in room 903 of the Campus Center.

Dormitory women's centers are open to all

By CAROL TANNENBAUM
Collegian Staff

Women's centers in the residential halls are resources frequently overlooked by University women, according to the staff of two centers.

"We want to be what the women who come to it want," said Debbie Raymond of the Northeast/Sylvan area women's center, located in Knowlton House. The other center, the Orchard Hill/Central area center is located in Van Meter House.

The centers sponsor rap sessions, support groups and workshops on issues such as Premenstrual Syndrome.

"A major goal of ours is diversity," said Ange DiBennidetto, the coordinator of the centers. "We want to run programs that include all women."

The centers are more than just information resources, Raymond said. They are also a place to relax and study.

"We're not just for services," Diane Jarvi of the Northeast/Sylvan area staff said. Both centers are run by students.

The centers are also unique because they are in the residental halls.

"Women don't need to go across campus," DiBennidetto said. "We want to know what women need, we're an advocacy for them."

Men are also invited, she said. "We want them to know what women are up against. Sexism has affected their lives, too."

The centers are open 7 to 9 p.m., Sunday through Thursday.

Mexican plane crashes; no apparent survivors

MEXICO CITY (AP) – A Mexicana Airline flight with 166 people aboard crashed into a mountainside yesterday en route to Puerto Vallarta and Los Angeles, an airline spokesman said. There appeared to be no survivors.

A source in the airport commander's office said three helicopters from the Federal Highway Police and an official of the Federal Electricity Commission flew over the wreckage of the plane and found no indication of survivors.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the plane was burning at the time the officials flew over the wreckage.

Cuevas said the only land access to the site was through a town called Contepec.

World Famous
Frank Santos
Tonight - Tuesday April 1st and Every Tuesday

® Rated
Hypnotist Comedian
at CHANGES
dance club

SELF POLLUTION

Come to the U.H.S. Smokers Assitance Program every Thursday from 3:30-5:00 pm in Room 250, University Health Center and learn to stop. Walk-ins welcome

Plumbley's is the Place to be all week
Specials good til April 20
Sundays
3:00 - 9:30 $8.95
Chicken, Steak and Chocolate Cake!
Sliced London Broil, Roast Chicken, Chocolate Cake and all the fixins
Monday
All You Can Eat $9.95
4:00 - 9:30 Fried Shrimp or Fried Chicken
Served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
Tuesday
All You Can Eat $9.95
4:00 - 9:30 Roast Sirloin or Fried Chicken
Also served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
Wednesday: Student and Faculty Special
• Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken $5.95
• Sliced London Broil
• Tempura Fried Filet of Sole
All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter.
Just show a student I.D. and enjoy
Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

SGA Communications Presents
a forum on Publicizing With Print Media
guest speakers from
The Valley Advocate
UMass Alumni Relations
Hampshire Gazette
Fine Arts Center Publicity
The Collegian
learn about
Publicity "Know How's" and Career Pointers
Date: Tuesday, April 1, 1986
Time: 7-9 pm
Place: 811 Campus Center
Refreshments will be served

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986
Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS
Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Put off until it was too late

Bob Kievra

When I was young, I used to stand on my grandparent's back porch on rainy days and wait for the schoolbus to creep over the top of the hill. My grandparent's house was closer to the bus stop than our own and that creaky back porch kept me dry during some long Vermont winters.

By the time the bus arrived at 7:15 a.m., my grandmother had already been awake for two hours. She loved to cook and the pre-dawn hours provided her the time to prepare some of the family's famous Polish delicacies. Some days when I was lucky she would slip me a pastry or two and whisper "Sssh...don't tell your mother. She doesn't have this recipe yet."

She seemed indestructable and was steadfast in her work habits. She refused to have the family garden plowed, insisting "I can do a better job than some newfangled rototiller." And she did. Apron tightly wrapped around her petite waist, this 76-year-old immigrant seemed equally comfortable with a spoon or shovel in her hands.

These images flooded back to me as I buried myself into the vinyl hospital chair. My grandmother lay sleeping in the bed, sheets drawn tightly about her. Frayed wisps of her silver hair leaked out around the pillow.

The television glowed, soundless, as the late afternoon sunlight receded from the room. All one could hear was the lonely droppings from the IV apparatus, methodically going about its work.

I squirmed about in the chair, attempting to submerge myself ever deeper. As hard as I tried I could not shut out the surrounding reality. The black hole I searched for was not to be found.

"Was it last summer or the one before?" I asked myself. "I know I saw her sometime in the past two years. I'm almost positive I sent her a birthday card."

My mother had called months earlier telling me about the cancer that had attacked my grandmother. "Next weekend," I told her when she asked when I would come home to visit. "I'm writing it here on the phonebook Mom. No sweat. See ya in a couple of days."

The weekend never came. There was the party in Puffton, the trip to New York City, that overdue lab project. My time was too precious to visit a dying human being. Mom kept calling and I kept promising.

By the time I finally made the trip it was too little too late. I sat in the sterile hospital room and watched the nurse change IV bottles. She sensed that within days the bed would be stripped and the flowers thrown out. Within a week the room would be occupied by another dying person.

The nurse asked if she could get me anything. I smiled and shook my head no. What I wanted she couldn't provide. No one could turn back time.

For the funeral, I attempted to sooth my conscience by purchasing a large floral arrangement. It helped neither the living nor the dead. Everyone said that the service was nice. I couldn't be sure. I drifted through it while a hollow feeling bored deep into my soul. The term papers, the keg parties, the study sessions all meant little now. My mind was occupied with the painful process of value reexamination.

I regret that I neglected my dying grandmother. We would talk for hours about what I would do in life. She took an interest in my studies though she could barely read or write herself. By example, she taught others the values of hard work and long hours. I miss the pride that was evident on her face when she learned that I would be the first family member to go on to college.

In one way my grandmother is still with me. On wet, rainy days when I run to catch a bus, I still feel that my grandmother is standing at the kitchen window, curtain pushed aside, making sure that everything is all right.

Bob Kievra is a member of the Collegian staff.

Consequences of US contra aid

Most media reports confirm that at present the contra rebels are ill-trained, ill-equipped, and lack the support of many of the Nicaraguan people due to their ties to the old Samoza regime. Even with US military aid, it is conceded that it will be a long time before the contras can present a force great enough to defeat or force the hand of the Sandinistas. This means that any war ensuing from US aid will most likely be a bloody standstill. The real losers will be the Nicaraguan people who will be in the middle of this war.

I will not dictate policy based on this unpleasant fact, I merely want people to consider what the consequences of US support really are. Many innocent Nicaraguans will be brutally butchered, many will be tortured, bombed, starved, relocated, machine-gunned in night raids--and we must take our share of responsibility for this. As our representatives, Congress will far away in this country be making the decision that these lives are worth losing for the great cause of democracy. Is this the only way towards progress in Central America? Regardless of which side is responsible, the victims in a war are always real, and their pain, in some small or large way, should be our pain too. Write Congress, if at least to tell them that these people of Nicaragua are not chess pieces, are not statistics--and that we must be careful.

Eric Nakajima
Amherst

Irony in Dean's statement

In the Collegian article about the meeting Chancellor Duffey and I had with the Undergraduate Student Senate on March 25, I was quoted as saying that "if (the humanities) got as much money as the high-tech fields we wouldn't know what to do with it." The quotation alone fails to capture my ironic intent. We in the Humanities and Fine Arts are not used to receiving the millions of dollars in new allocations that support some of our high-tech colleagues, nor do many of our teaching and research activities require such enormous expenditures. But if we did have such millions of dollars in new funds, we would only hesitate briefly before finding urgent and important uses for them. Among the uses would be:

- adequate stipends for our graduate student teachers
- repairs for the Fine Arts Center
- a new wing for the Fine Arts Center
- a renovated "high-tech" Language Lab
- a fund for recruiting new faculty who could help us meet General Education needs and develop new courses
- adequate support funds for faculty research and travel.

We are increasingly concerned with the integration of "high-tech" activities and technologies into our programs, and we certainly will need large amounts of new money if we are to keep up with our peers in the Northeast. The Chancellor and I agreed that the strength of the entire University depends on a strong State and national economy, and the economy will increasingly depend on the quality and integrity of education, including the humanities and arts.

Murray M. Schwartz, Dean Faculty of Humanities and Fine Arts

Voters go for the leaders

Rusty Denton

My editor has been agitating to make "Election '88" the editorial theme of the week. It may surprise some people, but I'm not going to laud Pat Robertson or George Bush or Bob Dole or Jack Kemp. In fact, I find the whole season of presidential campaigning very annoying; I was rather hoping it would start late this time.

First you get a bunch of sharps posturing and pretending they're not sure they'll run. Then all of a sudden 30 of them are trotting around, none with the vaguest idea of what it takes to win the election, but each determined to solve national problems in ways nobody ever thought of before. Some time later, the poor, the thin-skinned, and the secretly guilty drop out to let the big ones lay into each other. The media will try to win America to the cream of the progressive set, and then for weeks before, during, and after the election, those media will feed the nation a steady diet of statistics, platforms, and inside information.

If you ever find yourself, like me, occasionally disgusted with the news media as a class, that is the time to break free of your addiction to television, radio, and daily newspapers. If it's important, your friends will tell you about it.

The news blitz may not matter, anyway. The American vote seems to function almost independently of it. The vote almost always goes not according to the platform, not with the biggest smile, but with the candidate who is perceived as the strongest leader.

The last election is a good example of that. Aside from the fact that he could be excruciatingly boring, Walter Mondale had a reputation as a man who tried to please everyone. Every candidate needs support, but Mondale went after so many diverse groups that in the end, his actions were limited to the path of least resistance. My feeling is that most Americans want to be able to put a good man or woman in office and have done with it. They don't want someone who's going to keep coming back bothering them about what they want him or her to do next.

Walter was not the guy who worried Reagan supporters in '84. Gary Hart was. For one thing, Hart has the ability to capture the public imagination with a vision for the country. Citizens like to feel that their country is going somewhere. Hart is charismatic and likeable; he's got self-respect. Gary Hart would have turned around the sense of "politics as usual" and competed with the best of Reagan's strong points. Hart is a leader. Mondale is a politician.

Unfortunately for Mondale, no aura of leadership rubbed off on him as Jimmy Carter's vice-president because Carter was neither a leader nor an exceptionally good politician. He was an over-achiever aspiring to the highest office in the land, like a merit badge. Carter got into office because he looked like a trendsetter with something new and different and fresh and honest--a complete change from everything to Christianity was genuine, he drew no vision from it.

Given Carter's record as President, it was no surprise to see Reagan wallop him and Anderson in '80. Anderson had ideas, but no record of leadership. Carter had no ideas, and a lousy history both in Georgia and the White House as a leader. Reagan had ideas, and a great history as a leader in California. It's comforting to know that given that kind of choice, the electorate will go with proven abilities.

It's not my intent to defend or promote Reagan's presidency here; it will have to be judged on its own merits. But I think the message is clear for 1988 and beyond: leaders don't chase voters; voters go after leaders. And the media, unfortunately, go after both. Just ask my editor.

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist.

Check tomorrow's page for William Spain and Stephen Erickson's predictions for '88.

SWAG Presents
The nation's Hottest Stand-up Comic
EMO PHILIPS
as seen on Late Night with David Letterman

THURSDAY
APRIL 10, 1986
in the
Student Union
Ballroom
Two shows 8:00 PM and 10:00 PM
Tickets are: $5.00 in advance $6.00 at the door
Available at: Tix in the Student UNion Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, Main St. Records in Northampton.
Another Southwest Area Government Production

Bring a couple friends and your appetites and enjoy some of the best Mexican food anywhere. . .

...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

TACO VILLA

NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-8217 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788-0919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

Complete Hairstyling for Men & Women

Haircut $8.00
Haircut with Blowdry $12.00

228 Triangle St.
Amherst
Call: 549-1502

THE BLACK SHEEP
Deli & Bakery
79 MAIN STREET • AMHERST, MA 01002 • 253-3442
Hours: Mon.-Sat 9-6 Sun. 9-1
Across from Plumbleys

...Soup • Bialys •
...oked Turkey •
...li Rye • Kosher
...Havarti
...xies • Brie • Pepperoni
• Tabouleh • Chocolates • Fresh Baked
Breads • Gruyere • Cheddar Jalapeno Soup •
Smoked Trout • Swiss Cheese • Chocolates •
...stards •
...y Potato
• Lox •
...Bialys •
...urkey •
...Chili •
...Mousse
Cake • Corned Beef • Carrot Soup • Greek Rice
Salad • Croissants • NY Deli Rye • Kosher

Lunch with a difference!
N.Y. Style Sandwiches
Homemade Soups, Salads
Breads and Desserts

Bruno's

PIZZA SUBS

PIZZA SPECIAL
ONE FREE ITEM OF YOUR CHOICE ON ANY LARGE PIZZA

ALSO AVAILABLE
WORLD CLASS SUBS
FREE DELIVERY!
EXPIRES APRIL 30th, 1986
4:00pm to 2:00am
363 MAIN STREET, AMHERST
256-0222

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash only 6 ticket limit
Tickets on sale at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Attention
Computer
Owners
IBM Portable, PC or Compatible?
We're offering fantastic SAVINGS on the following PERIPHERALS

PIONEER VALLEY DATA EQUIPMENT
259 Triangle Street
Amherst
549-1017

BLACK AFFAIRS

Author of 'Blacks in College' to speak at Smith College

By C. RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Dr. Jacqueline Fleming, a psychologist and author on higher education will speak on "succeeding in college" on Wednesday April 2, at 8 p.m. in the McConnell Auditorum at Smith College. She will discuss what she has found to be the key ingredients to success in college-success, power, and a sence of belonging - and how these ingredients can be found for blacks and women at both predominantly black colleges and women's colleges.

Fleming is author of the book Blacks in College, published in 1984, which is the first comprehensive comparative study of black students' success in black and white colleges. The book is the result of a seven year study of 2,500 black students and 500 white students at seven predominantly black colleges in Georgia Mississippi Ohio and Texas.

In a recent report, Fleming said that black students have a better chance to succeed intellectually at balck colleges than at predominantly white institutions.

"Students in black colleges seem to have a virtual corner on intellectual satisfactions and outcomes during the college years," Fleming wrote in her book, Blacks in College. The project was founded by a $700,000 grant from the Carnegie Corp. and included interviews and psychological testing of the surveyed students. "In white college environments, black students may fail to exhibit the cognitive growth observed in white classmates and in the counterparts at black colleges, because they fall prey to the feelings of alienation and estrangement," Fleming said. "They are less likely to develop motivating relationship with faculty or to feel a part of campus life."

Fleming, a former senior research associate with the United Negro College Fund's Department of Research and Government Affairs, said blacks educated at black colleges ironically are beter prepared for competition in integrated environments than blacks educated at white colleges.

Fleming, an adjunct professor of psychology at Barnard College in New York City, received her B.A. in psychology from Barnard College in 1969 and her ph.D from Harvard in 1974.

Announcement

On Thursday April 3, at 7:30 p.m., stories and inspiration from the from the Civil Rights Movement entitled The Sixties Speak to the Eighties will be presented in the Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union Building. Civil rights activists Bill Strickland, Evangeline Darrity and Meyer Weinberg will share stories of their own experiences during that tumultous time.

Share the health
GIVE BLOOD
American Red Cross
Blood Services
Northeast Region
SUB
9:30 a.m. — 3:30 p.m.

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED FOR FALL, 1986

Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits -
Work directly with attorneys -
No experience in the legal profession is necessary; training is provided -
Deadline to begin your application is APRIL 9 -
Contact Legal Services today - 545-1995

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available
Wednesday April 16th
Fine Arts Center
Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public
at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield
Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

ARTS

Book Review

Antrobus Complete
Lawrence Durell
Faber and Faber, Boston. 202 pages

By ROLFE HEGWER
Collegian Correspondent

Lawrence Durrell is not be to confused with Gerald Durrell. Lawrence writes books like the Alexandrea Quartet while Gerald recounts the anecdotes of his international ramblings as a wildlife naturalist like Beasts in My Belfry.

One usually finds the latter in the London-Heathrow airport bookstores while waiting for that connecting flight to wherever, I've read a good deal of Gerald's anecdotes. Confused about the distinction I figured I was familiar enough with the author to write a review when my editor handed me Antrobus Complete by Lawrence Durrell.

Antrobus is a compilation of caracatures and anecdotes from Lawrence's postings in the British Foreign Office (better known to Americans as "the Diplomatic Corps"). His descriptions of the various crackpots, clowns, villians and the unbelievable scandals and situations he encounters are very much in the vernacular and humor of his upper-class British background. Extremely funny and dark at the same time.

As an American reader it is exactly that vernacular and humor which may make or break the book. Here and there I found myself not understanding a saying in French or Latin. As endless source of amusement was from the breakdown of protocol between the British and various other Diplomatic Missions. When that very English anxiety of staying composed at all costs, known as "keeping a stiff upper lip," would crack and the true nature of the characters' personalities would become apparent. Durrell also uses national stereotypes that might not be as hilarious without first-hand experience. Despite that the subtler aspects of Durrell's style depend on a familiarity or understanding of his cultural background, quite a few of the stories would be outrageously comical to even an Antarctic penguin in Patagonia.

The anecdotes are narrated as a series of reminicient chats that Durrell has years later with an ex-collegue from the Dip. Corps. -- a man by the name of Antrobus. Most of the going-ons seem to take place in pre-WWII Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, both of which were in a dramatic transition from agriculture to modern industrialism at the time. Included in the stories are a few great sketches of those countries' awkward attempts to make the transition from peasantdom to suave sophistication. But all in all the focus in on the inner going-ons of the diplomatic community.

An account of the local English daily whose Serbian typesetters frequently made mistakes like leaving the "c" out of an entire article about the "Canal Zone" of Suez. An embassadorial assistant trying to escape persuit by the Parisian police with a skeleton sitting in the back seat of his sportscar. A villianous minister of culture with sinister visions of literally feeding an entire Dip. Corps. to the wolves one by one. A Japanese representative and his wife who accidentally get drunk on vodka at the New Year's ball, end up waltzing their way into a pond. These are the kind of stories that make up the contents of this book.

It had me chuckling for minutes on end, but towards the end the humor began to wear thin so that there was a thin smile on my lips -- kind of like what happens when you watch three hours of Bugs Bunny cartoons. It's all good entertainment, especially for those of us trying to shake off a bout of taking life too seriously. Browse this one if you see it in the bookstore, whether you dig it depends on who you are. For the fanatic anglophile who lives eight hours away from any bookstore, it can be ordered from the publisher ISBN 0-571-13602-8.

As for the distinction between Gerald and Lawrence, I have since found out that they are brothers.

Kaplan stays with you for the long run.

After you take a Kaplan course, you're not only better prepared to take on marathon tests like the LSAT, GMAT, GRE, NTE, CPA, SAT, among others, but the study techniques you'll learn will help you through the rigors of your grad school courses.

That's why for nearly 50 years, over 1 million students have gotten in condition with Stanley H. Kaplan. And for those interested in breaking records, we also offer SPEED READING.

So call Kaplan. You've got a long race ahead to the top of your career. Every bit of training and coaching counts.

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD
DON'T COMPETE WITH A KAPLAN STUDENT—BE ONE

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide

358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

Full & Part Time Positions available in both SALES & TELEMARKETING

* Telemarketing -
Guaranteed $4/hr. Bonuses
Commissions Benefits
Need Reliable Transportation

* Sales -
We need persuasive, confident, personable individuals to represent our in house food service - 32 locations from Maine to Florida! We now offer part time positions to expand to full time.

AF
Call at once 413-584-1598
American Frozen Foods
48 Bay Rd., Hadley, MA 01035

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

KATINA'S
Tuesday Night
if jazz is your style
Check Out
JEFF HOLMES'
14 piece jazz band
18-21 year olds welcome
enjoy juice bar
Grand Opening:
Saturday April 5, 1986
322 Russell St 586-4463

COOL SHADES. CHEAP.

AND OTHER NEAT STUFF

The Mercantile
Sun 12-5
Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St.
Amherst-Carriage Shops

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!

Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper

Wickles FinePrint

1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148

Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON

NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM

Engaged?
then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau

Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories

20% off your entire WEDDING ORDER
Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories
Hundreds to Choose From!
AMHERST STORE ONLY
WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
C - coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons.

THE FAR SIDE — BY GARY LARSON

Cartoon teen-agers

"Randy's goin' down!"

DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

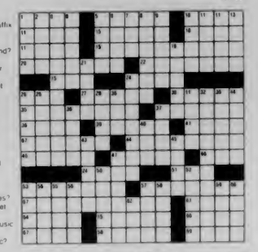
HOUSEMATES — BY R.MILLER

GORDY — BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY — BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Private teacher?
5 Changes for the better?
10 Part of a flower
14 City on the Adriatic
15 Actress Eve
16 Malaysian canoe
17 Curves
18 Chatterers?
20 Extents of influence
22 Peter, e.g.
23 Sooner, to Keats
24 Ran, as madras
25 Ethiopian prince
27 Desert stopover
30 Lions' dens
35 Those who leave no will?
37 A young swan
38 Twerp
39 Cease
41 Being
42 Doctrine of centralized government?
44 Open car
46 Ruhr city
47 — Carlo
48 Native of Suffolk
49 Uncles, in Scotland
51 Aleutian island?
53 Deceive
57 Printing error
61 Doubt?
63 Twining plant
64 Scrutinize
65 — with the times?
66 Real estate items
67 Roosevelt's mother
68 Twangy
69 Slaughter of baseball

DOWN
1 Soussaphones?
2 Canvas sheet for short
3 Arranges music for the philharmonic?
4 Step part
5 Relay, for one
6 Time periods
7 Edsel and Henry?
8 Gold and silver
9 Wading bird
10 Outpourings?
11 Mara's gal
12 — Grey tea
13 Erato, e.g.
19 Devout
21 Classic cars
24 Small restaurants
25 Wash lightly
26 Dill seeds of the Bible
28 '.Up and —!'
29 Gusts?
31 Matures
32 Educational organization?
33 Mount a diamond again
34 Cubic meter
36 Singer Adams
37 Follows bureau or pluto
40 A long, long time
43 Express derision
45 Beloved
47 City in W Saudi Arabia
50 Of the early morning
52 Household need
53 Long for 54 Quechuan
55 Isolated rock
56 Entertainer Horne
57 Best or Farber
58 Scottish dance
59 Biblical preposition
60 Military dining room
62 Ballerinas costumes?

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

D	R	A	M		A	L	S	O		A	I	P	E	N
E	I	R	E		I	R	A	N		O	L	I	V	E
C	L	A	S	S	M	A	T	E		P	L	A	N	O
A	L	B		T	A	P	E		S	L	I	C	E	S
L	E	S	E	N		D	O	N	A	T	E
			M	E	A	T		R	A	C	E	S
I	N	T	E	R	C	H	A	N	G	E		E	T	E
N	O	R	M			E	R	A		A	N	T	L	E
I	N	A		S	U	B	S	T	I	T	U	T	E	D
T	E	N	S	I	L	E		E	M	I	T
		S	A	N	E	S	T		P	O	P	E	R	A
A	S	P	I	C	S		M	A	L	O	D	O	R	E
W	H	O	L	E		R	E	V	O	L	V	I	N	G
L	O	S	E	R		E	M	I	R		A	S	I	A
S	W	E	D	E		C	I	D	E		T	E	E	N

4/1/86

Menu

Lunch
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Cranberry Sauce
Cheese Strata

Basics Lunch
Chicken Cutlet Sandwich
Cheese Strata

Dinner
Rotini/Salsa Con Verdure
Roast Pork/Gravy
Spiced Apples
Silver Palate Salad Plate
BREAD AND SPREAD BUFFET

Basics Dinner
Garden Medley Casserole
Hi-Protein Spaghetti
Tomato Sauce
BREAD AND SPREAD BUFFET

Staff Notice:

All Collegian editors and associate editors, including Larry, must attent a newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, an assistant managing editor of the Springfield Daily News.

The workshop will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in a yet-to-be announced room. Mandatory for editors, other staffers are welcomed and encouraged to attend.

Weather

TODAY: Sunny, high around 70.
TONIGHT: Partly cloudy, lows in the 40s
TOMORROW: Fair and mild.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor Andrew Wolff
Copy Editor Sheryl Jean
Layout Technician Tom Middleton
Photo Technician Brian Guarnotta and Rob Skelton
Production Supervisor Mark Parker
Production: Leslie Nakajima, Nancy Klingener, Kelly Sieger [illegible] Bill Wenzel

Sponsored by Orchard Hill Area Government

Tues. April 1st at 5, 7, 9, 11 C.C.A.
Admission 5 - $1.00 — 7, 9, 11 - $1.50
* This is a wonderful movie, it makes us very, very happy —Roger Ebert Chicago Sun-Times

SUMMER JOBS

Application forms and job descriptions for positions with Summer Conference Housing are now available outside of the University Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center. Jobs as student supervisors, desk clerks, and operations crew personnel are being offered. Full and part time openings are available and include all shifts, weekdays and weekends.

HRTA and work study students are encouraged to apply.

University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution.

TEAC 427 C CASSETTE DECK
• SOFT TOUCH OPERATION
• DOLBY B/C N.R.
$99.95

NIKKO NR320 RECEIVER
• 28 WATTS/CHANNEL
• TAPE MONITOR
• 3 YEAR WARRANTY
$230 VALUE
$99.95

SHARP 19" COLOR TV
LINYTRON TUBE
AUTO FINE TUNING
RAPID-ON PICTURE AND SOUND
$239.95

SHARP 25" COLOR TV
WITH WIRELESS REMOTE
Features:
• random access tuning
• lynitron tube
• in-home service policy
$449.95

PIONEER
PK5AW
ALL WEATHER
PERSONAL STEREO
• AUTO REV.
• DOLBY NR
• MUSIC SEARCH
A $199.95 VALUE
$99.95

SHARP 585U VCR
4 HEAD • WIRELESS REMOTE
PROGRAMMABLE • MORE
SAVE $429.95

PANASONIC
COE280
• AUTO CASSETTE RECEIVER
• DIGITAL HYPERTUNER
• PRESETS • FADER
• PLUS MORE
A $189.95 VALUE
ONLY $139.95

JAMO P180
3 WAY BASS REFLEX LOUDSPEAKER
• 3 YEAR WARRANTY
• $600 VALUE
$99.95 EACH

SCOTT PS89 TURNTABLE
• FULLY AUTOMATIC, DIRECT DRIVE
$99.95

$1 MOVIE CLUB
NO MEMBERSHIP FEES • $1 PER DAY • GROWING SELECTION
ALSO, VIDEO DISC EXCHANGE AND RENTAL
$10 PLUS OLD DISC = NEW DISC
RENT ANY DISC IN STOCK FOR JUST $1.00 PER DAY
MONDAY-SATURDAY 10 A.M.-6 P.M.
All sales cash • MC/Visa add 3% • All quantities limited • Subject to prior sale • Not responsible for typographical errors.

Spring is Here
Frisbees, Wiffle Balls & Bats.
Yes, all the utensils necessary for a Happy Spring.
A·J·Hastings, Inc.
Newsdealer and Stationer
Conveniently located in the center of Amherst
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays, 5 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Summer internship in Appropriate Technology
If you are interested in small scale agriculture, homesteading, or overseas service (private agency or Peace Corps), you can get hands-on practical experience with windmills, well and water systems, photovoltaics (electricity from the sun), small animal husbandry, gardening, and much more. The Windfarm Museum partially paid five week summer internship is for those who feel their future plans may need this knowledge. It is relevent to any major. While not a job, your work time should substantially cover your expenses.
For information write:
Windfarm Museum
RFD #2, Box 86
Martha's Vineyard, MA 02568
Tel. (617) 693-3658

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wendy's Store
549-4704

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

ARE YOU
PREGNANT
& IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
Same Day Results
Services that are
Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

it's that time again

when the Textbook Annex must begin to return unsold spring books to the publishers,
Returns start March 31st
Don't wait -- You may be disappointed!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Open Mon-Fri 9AM-4PM

let us do your wash-dry-fold and hand pressing
SPEEDWASH

10-5 PM MON-SAT
SELF SERVICE
7 DAYS 7AM-10 PM
549-1665
Quality Laundry
11 Pray St
Amherst, MA

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon.-Thurs. 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

Armenian Genocide Information Session. April 24 is the 71st commemoration of the Armenian Genocide. Come Wednesday April 2 and learn - 806 CC.

Open Mike Night
at the Hatch Wednesday, April 2 8 p.m. comedians and entertainers check in with MC at the beginning of night all ages welcome must be 21 to drink

"How-to's" of Publicity Seminar Tuesday, April 1, 7:00 Room 811 Campus Center gain insight into promotion and print media advertising refreshments will be served

Attention CCEBMS Seniors mandatory meeting April 11 Friday in Room 311 New Africa House for more information call Doria Clemmons 50081

AUDIO

BOSE 101 speakers for sale $150 or BO call 6-7917

AUTO FOR SALE

1978 Rabbit - fuel injection, 92k, many new parts, Blaupunkt AM/FM cassette $1795 or BO Jon 256-6843

72 Ford Mustang body in excellent condition new exhaust, brakes, suspension BO call 549-6633

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1975 Ford Granada 4 dr PB/PS AM/FM body in good cond new parts 546-1497

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO 253-2294

1979 Monza New clutch, brakes, 4 radials. $1500. 283-8592

Mona needs a new home 77 Honda Civic good cond needs some work $600 but neg. 586-5409

1976 Ford Grenada four door extremely reliable needs no work $650 or BO Derek 549-1656

78 Plymouth Horizon 4 spd good trans 700 or BO Mike 549-8335

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramids Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom apartments. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Women's Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Roommates needed for summer on Cape Cod Hyannis area call 546-5288 or 546-4717

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

Female roommates wanted for summer on Cape Cod Cottages in Hyannis. 1000 for summer, May 23 to Sept 2 call 546-9211

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH THIS WEEK

Check it out! All university women invited to rush Delta Zeta sorority Tues 6 pm Wed 9 pm (Dynasty hour), Thurs 6 pm for more info call Pam at 253-9916

DUE TO OVERWHELMING DEMAND

Alpha Epsilon Pi is holding a second rush. Be a part of the fastest growing fraternity. * Great friends * superior social life * a new house * rush parties this week Call now: Rob 546-9561 or Matt 546-9633

EDIE "THE MAKEUP LADY"

Will be in the CC April 3-5 9-4 PM buy your Spring shades!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

TURN THE TABLES 5 yr Pro D.J. latest records, best rates, lights free 586-9691 24 HR

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc-Jockeys Light-Shows, Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME.

FOR RENT

Rooms available in vacant house this summer with option to rent next fall. 5 min walk from town and UMass call for more info Mary 549-6799

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach, call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Apartment - three bedroom close to center sublet for summer with fall option, on bus route before inquiring call 253-2264

Apartment available in Southwood. Take over lease June 1st, and it's yours for the fall. Low rent, good bus service. Call 253-3619 for more info

Two female roommates needed for Southwood Apt. Take over lease starting June 1st. $130 incl. heat please call 256-1518

Apt in house. 3-bedroom. Great location; right next to 7-11 in Sunderland. Very clean, quiet, and spacious. $600 month, lease starts June 1st 665-8275

In Amherst 2½ miles from campus washer/dryer air conditioning available April 1 call today Chris 256-6258

FOR SALE

X-Country Skis, Karhu 210's, boots, poles and bindings, waxless, $75, 256-1544

Peavy Guitar Amp Head 210 watts, many features $260 or best offer call Dave after 5:00 549-1703

HED speakers by Cerwin Vega $200 firm, Akai F14 tapedeck, Sony turntable, rock guitar amp, need cash, call Dick, 549-1052

Televideo computer terminal like new $350 or BO model 910+ 253-2294

Stereo Equip: Pioneer receiver $110, Teac cas deck $90, Technics turntable $70 or BO all exc condition! 549-3912

Gucci Watches many styles for men & women, only $30. - call 6-7480

Violin inexpensive good condition Catherine 253-3089

FOUND

Found dog approx 4-6 months old. Black and brown. If you lost him and can identify him please call Stefanie at 546-8015

Found in Brandywine parking lot a VW car key on silver ring call 549-6709

GLENN MOSES

Happy Birthday!!! Happy Birthday!!! I hope you have a great day. hope this birthday brings you everything you want, glad we've gotten so close Love NANC

HELP WANTED

Sophomores, Juniors looking for career experience? WMUA is hiring a new Business Manager. Great opportunity for SOM majors interested in radio. Book keeping and computer experience a must. 9-10 hours per week $3.35/hour. Applications available at the Student Activities Office or WMUA thru April 4th SGA is an equal opportunity employer

Weekend job Amherst Farmers Market Manager Sat May 10 to Nov 15, 6:45 am to 1:45 pm. Responsible, friendly, oecisive person to enforce rules, negotiate disputes & handle cash. Apply by April 7th call Nancy 5-2249 leave message Hands wanted for WSYL Radio • local showcase on 4/28 in the S.U.B. Tapes and letter of interest due Friday 4/4 Box 8 Room 416 Student Union at 5:00. More info call (ath 253-3502 before 11 PM

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at The Legal Services Office for the Fall semester. All attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary, training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

JAMISON MACLACHIAN

Happy Birthday Scoop!! You're the cutest fool we know. Love Psycho Crash Ace Lis

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost 1 pair of Cloisonne swan earrings at 104 Puffton. Great sentimental value! Please return or call 546-7176

Reward for return of lost pearl ring 3/27, possibly in ladies room in FAC or Newman. Please call Anne-marie 546-4205

School Bag - Adidas, tan - taken from the counter near Post Office. Reward for return only the books and notebook No questions asked 665-8501

Lost wallet green plastic last week reward big bucks quick 545-0770

MOTORCYCLES

Sue GS650, 5000 mi, good cond, fairing with stereo, $1200 or BO, 256-1544

1984 Honda Interceptor 700CC 8k mi excellent cond. $2495 or BO 549-5990 keep trying or leave message

Honda Interceptor VF700 1984½ 3000 miles perfect condition blue 2500 call Tayler 253-3825

PERSONALS

BANDS WANTED - SWAG is looking for bands interested in playing the Southwest Pyramids during Southwest Week (Apr 29th - May 4th) Applications available in the SWAG office in Hampden. Application deadline April 1st 5:0960

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton

Sea Semester: Spend an incredible semester at sea! Learn more than you ever will in 4 years. Find out more on Tuesday April 1 1:00-3:00 Campus Center rm 903 or call 546-6376

Spend the summer and/or 1986-87 school year in sunny Spain. Quality instruction at economy prices. Business Administration, Hispanic Studies, Arts and Sciences. Graduate courses in Hispanic Studies offered in July Outstanding summer school. Contact: Admissions, St. Louis University, 221 North Grand Boulevard, St. Louis, MO 63103 Toll free telephone 1-800-325-6666

Happy Birthday Suzy to the best of friends love Marie

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment.

Rabbit, Rabbit

Michael - Have a great 20th Birthday!! Let's spend more time together soon... go wild on your big day... Love always, Nancy

Roy I love you and miss you! Thanks for the best time! See you soon - Di

J.H. Happy 20th and many, many more. Boring personal, huh? Montreal sounds good! A day late, oops

To Kevin the Drummer who played with my band one night and left his set - call me now Rick 6-1256

Dear Anatasia, happy 24th, it's been a great year. Hope we have many more. All my love, Joe

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

REWARD

We need a four person apartment for fall 86. If you can help us please call 546-6631 after 9 pm. Offerge a nice reward

ROOMMATES WANTED

Room for rent in house $140/mth, call Dick, 549-1052 negotiable

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

Apartment Cleaning kitchen livingsarea bathareas 128 price may vary call W-N 7-9 549-0694

The Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center, provides free legal services to fee-paying UMass students

Professional Word Processing/Typing on bus line 665-3661

STEREO FOR SALE

BOSE Acoustic wave sound system list $695 quick sale $450 call SEC 256-0626

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst Center approx. 3 bdrm apt w/ w/d, call even 549-5866

Looking for someone to take over Presidential Apt in June. Call Steve or Pat 459-1357

TRACEY MARCEL BYRANT

Our guardian angel Thank you for saving j s from a long night Thursday Night Collegian Crew

TRAVEL

SUMMER '86 Kenya safari scenic locations! Sun, fun and adventure. Student rates available. Free information (413) 549-5664 (413) 549-7116

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0364

UMASS CRITICAL ART REVIEW

Seeking Editorial and Production Staff
Students of Art, Art Hist, Journalism preferred
Contact David Fish
at 545-3625

UPC MEMBERS

UPC is the number one college concert source in America. Keep it that way. Elect Art Stephanson UPC Business Manager. Please be at tonight's UPC meeting and vote to keep UPC number one

WANTED

Subjects needed – Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9677 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage, set construction, a/a prep, security!) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3 week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Aria, 545-2803/4

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one-credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April, May and September. Contact Aria 545-2803/4. Auditions, 4:30 April 3 Hasgs Mall, Fine Arts Center

Wanted Dead or Alive Triumph TR6 in any condition call 634-2297

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

Looking for room in spt or house to sublet for summer. Close to 191, Northampton or Hadley. Call Sue 546-4462 weekends before 11 am wkdys 5-7 pm

We'll pay you $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. Call 546-9965

Do you have a room in your Rolling Green apt? I want it!! Anytime after May 31st Please call Christina at 546-2842 (daytime).

SPORTS

Minutewomen are at home against Friars

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts softball team, ranked 20th in the nation, got an unexpected seven day rest after the Minutewomen's doubleheader was rained out against Boston College at Chestnut Hill, last Thursday, a rest that the 11-3 Minutewomen could have used after a demanding Florida swing.

But the vacation is over for UMass, and head coach Elaine Sortino wouldn't have it any other way.

"When you're off and rolling you need some time to regroup," Sortino said. "But it's real key for us to get out and keep going. A seven day layoff is much too long."

The Minutewomen will be looking to get back into early season form against a pesky Providence College squad today in a scheduled doubleheader at Totman Field.

The first game of the twinbill is slated for 2 p.m. with senior southpaw Lynn Stockley (5-1, 0.75 earned run average) as the probable starter.

Sophomore righthander Lisa Rever (4-2, 0.58 ERA) will be the likely starter for the nightcap.

The Friars, 10-18 last season, had their season opener against B.C. rained out last Tuesday, and will be playing their first game of the season against the Minutewomen.

Providence is led by junior catcher Ann Malzone, who hit .228 last season and oufielder Evonne Percy, who batted at a .176 clip last season. Junior first baseman Sue Mussy only batted a mere .105 last year, but was a Northeast All-Star selection as a freshman.

The Friars are also paced by freshman shortstop Jackie Kincella and freshman pitcher Joanna Masropolo, who anchors a pitching staff badly hurt from graduation.

PC graduated eight seniors last season, including three pitchers from an experienced staff.

Masropolo was said to be the probable starter for the Friars in the opener, while the starter for the nightcap had not been decided.

"We don't know much about UMass, but we do know that they are one of the powerhouses in the Northeast," PC assistant coach Jackie Gladu said. "We are just going to work fundamentals and play basic softball."

UMass swept the Friars in a doubleheader last season at Providence, with Stockley and Rever picking up the victories. But despite last year's success, Sortino expects a rough go of it against the Friars.

"They (Providence) are a very scrappy team. They'll take you as far as let them," Sortino said.

"They'll take it right to us. They won't let us get away with anything."

"All we have to do is play good defense. That's what we are going to be looking for in the next couple of weeks," said Sortino about her home opener.

Slumping baseball at UConn

The World Series it isn't.

The University of Massachusets baseball team, at 1-11, travels to the University of Connecticut to play a Husky team that is 2-12 this season.

Something, obviously, has to break for either team.

"We'd like to come out of this game with a win to build momentum for out upcoming 14-game homestand," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist.

The Minutemen will go with freshman lefthander Chris Slattery on the mound. Slattery is 0-2 this season with an earned run average of 3.38. Ken Greer (0-0, 13.50) and Bob Kostro (0-2, 6.14) will work in relief.

Bergquist said cutting down on walks (UM has allowed 76 in 91 innings) and hits (107) is of paramount importance right now.

Junior outfielder Jay Zerner leads UMass at the plate with a .385 batting average. Sophomore Matt Sheran has driven in eight runs.

Coach Reid takes over

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

New University of Massachusetts head football coach Jim Reid (center) has a close eye on the situation as the Minutemen opened spring practice yesterday.

Novak leaves UM for USFL

Spring practice begins for Minutemen; assistant hired

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team, for the first time in some years, started spring football practice with the intention of maintaining their level of play, not having to dramatically improve it.

But the big news regarding first-year head coach Jim Reid's team was off the field.

Reid's newly-hired associate head coach, Frank Novak, has told Reid that he will not be with the team this coming season after all. Novak, a former receivers coach with the Birmingham Stallions of the USFL, will leave UMass to take over as offensive coordinator of that same pro team. He was expected to fill that role with UMass.

"It's a tough position to be in, I really can't say what we'll do. It's tough to get a good coordinator at this point in the year," said Reid. "I can't stand in Frank's way, it's too good an offer for him to pass up."

In other assistant coaches news, Reid announced he has hired Garry Emmanuel to be his outside linebackers coach. Emmanuel replaces Kevin Faulkner (who went to UTEP with former head coach Bob Stull), and comes from the Westchester State program.

Also, Reid said earlier he will elevate Mike Hodges to defensive coordinator and that former offensive coach Mike Dunbar will handle the defensive line.

The coach said that the spring drills will be a time to try some players at different positions and for himself to settle into his new position. "It's a fun time for me," he said.

UMass women's lacross faces Yale in second game

The ninth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team faces Yale University today, looking for its second win of the season, at 3 p.m.

Fresh from an 11-5 pasting of Boston University on Friday, UMass head coach Pam Hixon said that she was pleased that her team had performed as smoothly as it did in its season-opener.

"It was a good way to start the first game out of the way," she said. "I was pleased with our intensity and the turnovers we created. It was good to see that we didn't turn the ball over."

Yale coach Francesca Hartog's team is 1-3 and led by junior attackman Kelly LeComte (9 goals and 2 assists). UMass is led by junior Lisa Griswold with five goals.

– JOHN NOLAN

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:
Today:
Softball: Providence College (2), NOPE Field, 2 p.m.
Baseball: at Connecticut, 3 p.m.
Women's Lacrosse: at Yale, 3 p.m.
Men's Volleyball: Wesleyan, Boyden Gym, 7 p.m.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 41

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1986

INSIDE

▪ Trustees to vote on fee hikes. Page 3.
▪ Stephen Erickson on the Jorge Rosales speech. Page 5.
▪ Women's Lacrosse beats Yale. Page 12.

Two students cite UMass in rights suit

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Two University of Massachusetts students filed a lawsuit yesterday in Northampton, charging UMass officials with four civil and constitutional rights violations.

Marc Kenen and Beatrix Hoffman, members of an ad hoc divestment committee called the April First Coalition, were arrested April 10 for silently raising a banner during a speech by a vice president of CitiCorp, a US bank which was the largest lender to the apartheid regime in South Africa.

According to a statement issued yesterday by the coalition, the suit is to fight back against the "attempt by the University police and administration to suppress anti-apartheid activities on campus."

The statement cites 30 other complaints or lawsuits alleging police misconduct filed against the University since January, 1978, and calls for "the end of the systematic violation of students' rights by the UMass police department and administration."

Hoffman, a senior history major, and Kenen, a graduate education student, were arrested during a month of divestment protests at UMass which occurred at a time of protests at campuses throughout the country. They were attending a conference on "Training of and US Business' Need for International Specialists," where the keynote speaker was Susan Bergan, the vice president of CitiCorp.

As Bergan approached the podium, Hoffman and Kenen rose and unfurled a banner which said, "CitiCorp pays for apartheid, apartheid kills." They were immediately dragged, via the banner, out of the hall and into the adjacent kitchen, according to the suit.

Hoffman spent the night in jail after refusing to pay a non-refundable fee of $15. Kenen agreed to pay the fee and was released on personal recognizance.

The next morning, they were arraigned in Northampton District Court and charged with disturbing the peace. In June 1985 the charges were dropped. According to the statement, the district attorney refused to prosecute, citing the students' first amendment rights.

Hoffman and Kenen are represented by attorneys Charles J. DiMare and Carol Booth of the UMass Legal Services Office, and the University is represented by their general counsel, attorney William Searson of Boston, according to the statement.

Also in June 1985, the UMass Board of Trustees voted unanimously for complete divestment from companies involved in South Africa.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

PARADISE FOUND- Rick Rioles, a junior Animal Science/Zoology major, catches up on his reading in the sunshine on the Campus Center yesterday. The forecast calls for similar weather this afternoon, but showers in the morning.

Pondering a controversial event

By PHIL SERAFINO
Collegian Staff

NEWS ANALYSIS

After all the chaos and controversy was over, many observers said little of substance came out of Monday's speech by contra supporters Jorge Rosales and Michael Waller, while others said the speakers did their best, given the crowd conditions.

The event was marked by vociferous protests from those who oppose contra attempts to overthrow Nicaragua's Sandinista government, but Rosales did speak for 10 minutes, and Waller spoke about his travels in Nicaragua and presented slides of his trips there.

Initially, the speakers presented concise arguments, but faltered during the question period as they were unable to give suitable answers to queries from the audience.

"They [Rosales and Waller] were very well prepared for this but they were very intimidated by the crowd's jeers," said junior Brian Darling of the UMass Republican Club, which sponsored the event. "I think that they could have had a great impact if there had not been so much disruption. The average person did not get a fair shake," he said.

But Kathleen Lacey, a member of the Radical Student Union and the Central American Solidarity Association, which protested Rosales' appearance, had a different view. When asked if Rosales and Waller were able to influence people's views on the Nicaraguan conflict, Lacey said "I don't think they could have. Their intent was to get publicity, to create a media event.

"I think people who came without any strong opinions about the contras went away not being supportive of the contras," Lacey said, adding that she thought that both speakers gave evasive answers to questions.

Gilbert Stair, president of the Republican Club, said the club did not sponsor the event to change people's minds about the contras. "I don't think we were too much concerned about trying to change the left-progressive bent of people in the Valley."

"I'm sure they wanted to change people's minds," Stair added. "There was a lot of information that they wanted to get out that they were unable to."

Stair ended the event at 8:30 p.m., about a half-hour earlier than scheduled, because he said that UMass Police Chief Robert Joyce told him to because of a crowd outside the SUB that Stair characterized as "violent."

Gerald T. O'Neil, director of public safety, said he "was amazed as anybody when he [Stair] made the statement that there was a violent crowd outside. I told the chief to ask him if maybe he would be willing to end it after three or four more questions. That was their [the Republican club's] decision."

Cooperation needed to fight terrorism

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Terrorism is a trend of the 1980's similar to the anti-communism trend of the 1950's which cannot be controlled without help from other governments, two experts on terrorism said yesterday.

"We are trying to build a web of cooperative relationships... without the cooperation of other governments, we cannot get a grip on it (terrorism)," said Robert Oakely, the director of the US State Department's Office on Counter-terrorism and Emergency Planning, in a five-member panel discussion at Mount Holyoke College.

Oakely said although there have been incidents of terrorism in the Middle East since the 11th century, media hype has recently encouraged more violence by giving it greater importance.

"To deal with the problem abroad, we have strengthened our legislation so it is now a crime to take American citizens hostage," Oakely said.

The definition of terrorism frequently depends on political choice; many people call the US-supported contras terrorists, said Eqbal Ahmad, a fellow at the Institute for Policy Studies and professor of Politics and Middle Eastern Studies at Hampshire College.

continued on page 3

Closed-door evaluations faulted

Third in a series.

By CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

The absence of clearly defined rules to governing the University of Massachusetts' faculty merit pay process is the target of criticism from many UMass faculty members.

However, former and current faculty union officers, citing union studies, say an approximately equal number of professors are content, if not happy, with the existing merit pay system.

Closed-door faculty evaluations, the kind done by the personnel committees of UMass departments, are criticized in a National Education Association report, Evaluation of Faculty in Higher Education, which suggests that closed-door reviews may "work to the evaluatee's detriment since he or she is kept in the dark at critical moments and perhaps denied the opportunity to correct mistaken perceptions."

"Secrecy aids and abets this problem," said Daphne Patai, personnel committee member in the UMass Spanish and Portuguese department.

"Everything that goes on in the personnel committee is confidential. People get labeled a certain way and the labels stick with them."

Glenn Brown, acting director of the home economics department, said faculty members have the option to talk and appeal the personnel committee's scoring of their "meritorious work," on which pay bonuses are based. But other instructors in that department disagreed.

"We can't appeal. They [members of the personnel committee] make no comments on merit and there is no open notification of who received merit," said professor of home economics Alfred P. MacDonald.

continued on page 3

Students protest MIT research

CAMBRIDGE- (AP) About 150 people gathered at the main entrance to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology yesterday to protest the school's military research, while most MIT students ignored the demonstration.

"MIT is perfectly willing to allow its students to be happily co-opted into doing military work," said Paquita Zuidema, an MIT graduate student speaking at the rally.

Speakers, including MIT faculty members, charged that government pressure on university research has led to "the militarization of the university" and claimed that options for non-military work after graduation are diminishing.

Hundreds of students walked through the demonstration to and from classes without stopping to listen.

"They don't have any impact on me," said sophomore Jim Harrison, who was passing through the crowd to go to lunch. "I think they're a minority and the majority, who support a strong defense, just don't hold rallies."

Another student passerby said he agreed with the demonstrators but was too busy to stop. "Personally, I don't think Star Wars is a good idea, it's not practical," said Mike Heflin, a graduate student of astrophysics. "I'm also very hopeful that I won't have to work in defense when I leave MIT."

According to a flyer prepared by the MIT Student Action Coordinating Committee, which organized the rally, MIT research funded by the US Defense Department leaped from $15.2 million in 1979 to $38.5 million last year, up 153 percent.

More that 550 people, including students and faculty, signed a pledge vowing not to work on Strategic Defense Initiative research, funded by the Department of Defense, which is the administration's "Star Wars" space defense system.

State Rep. Thomas Gallagher, a candidate for US Congress, spoke against a "brain drain" caused by diversion of the university's intellectual resources away from areas like medicine and pure scientific research and into weapons development.

"Money is being taken away from things that are useful and interesting to the human race and into things that could end the human race," Gallagher said.

Two students from a faction in favor of space weapons programs staged a small demonstration of their own, as one wore a large black tube fashioned into a Soviet missile with the words "Give me a free ride to the USA" written on it.

"I'm planning to be a scientist and chances are I'm going to into the defense industry," said Ron Lovejoy, vice president of Students for a National Defense, who stood beside the Missile mock-up. He said his group consists of about 15 students.

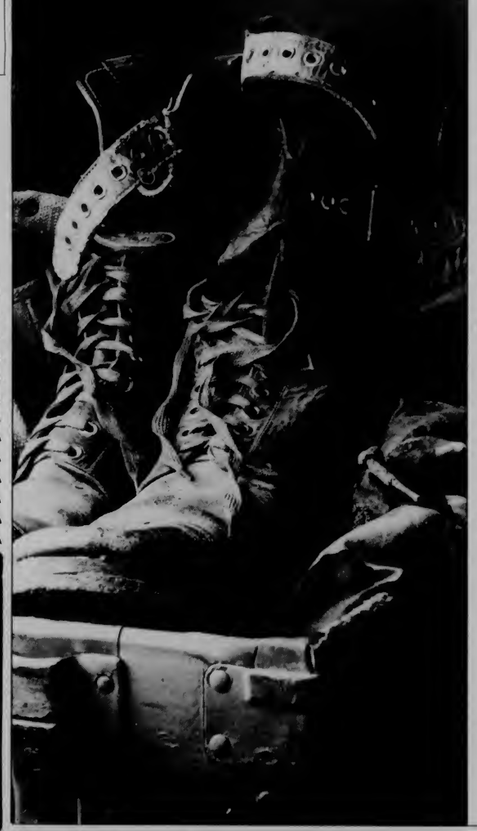
SMITH COLLEGE REC COUNCIL PRESENTS=

the Bangles
&
the Hoodoo Gurus

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1986, 9PM
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SMITH COLLEGE, NORTHAMPTON

SMITH STUDENTS $7 & $8
+LIMIT 4 TICKETS PER ID
NON-SMITH STUDENTS $8 & $9
AT THE DOOR $10

NO CANS, BOTTLES, CAMERAS OR RECORDING DEVICES
HALL IS WHEEL CHAIR ACCESSIBLE



TICKETS:
SEELYE BASEMENT-WEEKDAYS NOON-3 PM
+MARCH 25-APRIL 7
MAIN ST. RECORDS-NORTHAMPTON
FOR THE RECORD (FACES)-AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE-UMASS
ALL DATATIX OUTLETS, INCLUDING:
+SPRINGFIELD STOP & SHOP
+SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT
Distinctive food and drink from Mexico and the American Southwest
7 KING STREET
NORTHAMPTON • 586-6400

EXAM ALERT!
Learn to manage time and stress.
Workshop open to all students
Wednesday, April 2, 7 - 8:30
Campus Center Rm. 804
Sponsored by
Mental Health Division of UHS

AMHERST CINEMA
Peter O'Toole Films
The Stuntman 7:00
The Ruling Class 9:15
Sat Matinee
Charlottes Web 1 PM
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Your father's combat boots could be worth $5000 to you.

It's our way of saying thank you to America's veterans, with the Coors Veterans' Memorial Scholarship Fund.

If you're the son or daughter of an honorably-discharged American veteran, you can qualify for a three-year scholarship worth $5,000. Last year, Coors awarded 114 scholarships, totalling more than $500,000, to students from 49 states and Puerto Rico.

To be eligible for this year's awards, you must submit your application by July 1, 1986. You also need to meet the following requirements: Be under age 22 and enrolled in a full-time institution which is accredited by one of six regional accrediting associations. • Have a college grade-point average of 2.75 or better (on a 4.0 scale). • Be at least a first-year student in a four-year baccalaureate program, or in an accredited two-year program which leads to transfer to four-year institutions. (Five-year programs are acceptable, but awards will not be extended for the extra year of study, nor will awards be applicable to graduate studies).

If you have a parent who helped America through its difficult times, we want to help you through your times—with a Coors Veterans' Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Get your application today. Write: Coors Veterans' Memorial Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 7529, Wheeling, IL 60090. Or phone, toll-free: 1-800-49COORS.

Coors
Getting together with America.

© 1986 Adolph Coors Company, Golden Colorado 80401
Brewer of Fine Quality Beers Since 1873

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

CALLING ALL CORPUSCLES- Senior political science major Michael Wall sends out the call for blood donors outside the Student Union yesterday. Service organizations Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Sigma Sigma, and the American Red Cross are sponsoring the drive in the Student Union Ballroom. The drive's goal is 500 pints of blood, and the drive will continue 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. today and tomorrow.

Trustees will vote on fee increase today

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees is scheduled to vote today whether to increase annual student fees by $69 and the average room and board bill by $157 at a 2 p.m. meeting in Memorial Hall.

Joyce Hosie, of the University president's office, said the trustees will consider raising the health services fee $30; the supplemental health benefits fee $20; the athletic fee $13; and the Fine Arts Center fee $6.

This would raise mandatory fees 8.5 percent, she said.

Hosie said the trustees will also consider raising the average room bill $84 and the average board bill $73.

"The majority of the requests seem reasonable when you read the supportive documentation," said Dani Burgess, UMass student trustee.

Reading from a statement, Hosie said a $50 increase in the health and supplemental health benefits fees are needed "to cover additional malpractice and general liability insurance as well as higher-than-average costs for lab tests and pharmaceuticals."

Hosie said the supplemental health benefits fee might be waived by a student having a comparable health plan.

An increase of $157 in the average room and board bill is "necessary for personnel costs, and goods and services. No major expansions [of personnel] are planned. However, $3.1 million is earmarked for resident hall maintenance."

Rising coaching salaries, maintenance and travel costs make an athletic fee increase necessary, Hosie said.

Police investigate bomb threat

University of Massachusetts Police said yesterday that they are investigating a bomb scare in the Radical Student Union Monday night after Jorge Rosales' speech.

The Amherst Police received and recorded the threat and notified the UMass police. The office was searched, but nothing was found, police said.

"Reporting the threat of a bomb is a pretty severe way of suppressing a point of view. I think it's a fairly typical of the right-wingers on our campus," said Mitch Gaslin, of the Radical Student Union.

Jennifer Abrams, a member of the Republican Club, said the club was not connected with the threat. The club sponsored the speech.

"Obviously we don't know who did it. The Republican Club does not endorse radical actions like that," Abrams said.

In other reports:

•A $527 Myata racing bicycle was reported stolen at 12:05 p.m. Monday from basement of Hamlin House, police said.

•$130 was reported stolen at 11:32 a.m. Monday from a room on the 10th floor of John Quincy Adams Tower while the owner was momentarily absent, police said.

In Amherst, two people were arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol yesterday on West Street in separate incidents, Amherst police said.

A 19-year-old Holyoke woman was arrested at 2:24 a.m. when she was "operating in an erratic manner, weaving back and forth in her lane and crossing over the center line, police said.

A 26-year-old Boston man was arrested at 1:27 a.m. and also charged with speeding, police said.

-JEFFRY BARTASH and ANNE TAUGER

Hoop-A-Thon a personal cause for UMass senior

By PATRICK JELLIFFE
Collegian Correspondent

Imagine your father being stricken with a degenerative, disabling fatal disease and discovering the disease is hereditary.

Then you discover you have a 50 percent chance to live.

University of Massachusetts senior Keith Kidd's father has an ailment known as Huntington's Disease. The disease causes a loss of brain cells controlling thought and motor function.

Kidd says this is one of the reasons he is the chairman for the Basketball Hoop-A-Thon for Huntington's Disease at UMass tomorrow.

The Hoop-a-thon will take place from 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Boyden Gymnasium, and from 3:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Curry Hicks Cage.

"Being at risk for it is scary... the worst fact is once you start showing the symptoms, it's over," Kidd said.

People participating in the Hoop-a-thon will stand at the free-throw line and try to make as many baskets as possible in the allotted time while rebounders are provided.

Participants can pick up a sponsor sheet at the Hoop-A-Thon booth in the Campus Center concourse until today.

In Hoop-A-Thons held at Boston University, "shooters have averaged 80 baskets and the record is 300," Kidd said. Sponsors pledge money for each basket made, usually five to 10 cents.

Proceeds will go to Huntington Disease research and for operational costs of a new hospital floor in western Massachusetts devoted to Multiple Sclerosis and Huntington Disease patients.

According to Kidd, "Victims usually die of secondary causes such as pneumonia or heart failure that result from the body's weakened state.

"Becoming involved with others who are at risk has helped me deal with the disease. Not a day goes by that you don't think about it," Kidd said.

Keith said he is optimistic about the Hoop-A-thon at UMass. "Maybe the dollar we raise here will be the dollar that finds the cure," he said.

★ merit pay

continued from page 1

MacDonald and others added that the personnel committees' criteria in determining the merit value of each faculty member's work was never explained to them.

"I have no idea what the guidelines are or what criteria to give merit increases are," Jesse Ortiz, professor of public health, said.

"In the past, the personnel committee operated on a system of points, but the only thing you know is your points.

"There's no way to compare points with the rest of the faculty and you don't know if they're telling the truth or not," Ortiz said.

Commenting on the vague rules governing the merit pay process, Provost Richard O'Brien acknowledged, "It's a matter of concern in allocating merit. The wording is sufficiently vague as to create problems."

Also absent from guidelines negotiated between the University's Board of Trustees and the the Massachusetts Society of Professors/Faculty-Staff Union are specific criteria for the establishment of personnel committees.

There are no rules, for example, on what percentage of a department's faculty may serve on a committee or how many consecutive terms a person may serve.

In some instances, departments have eliminated personnel committees in favor of having one person evaluate the merit of its department members.

Last year the Division of Public Health elected to have its director, Andrew Sorensen, serve as the evaluator in place of having a personnel committee.

A chairperson or director of a department is usually not eligible to serve in such a position, but Sorensen was made eligible by department election.

Before he began the evaluating process, Sorensen said he distributed his criteria for evaluation to the faculty and asked them to vote on it.

Sorensen said he later called each faculty member into his office to discuss the evaluations.

Other departments include their entire faculty on the committee, said Murray Schwartz, dean of humanities and fine arts. But he said this method is flawed because communication often breaks down and decisions are made without consulting all members.

Some departments have built-in safeguards to prevent the tyranny of a majority opinion, said Bruce Laurie, former president of the MSP.

For example, some departments bar an individual from serving more than two consecutive one-year terms, "to insure some turnover and broader representation," he said.

Next: Financial complexity and inconsistency.

Robert Oakely

★ Oakley

continued from page 1

"The killing of Mr. Klinghoffer received a great deal of media attention," Ahmed said. When the Jewish defense league supported the killing of the secretary of an Arab organization in Los Angeles two months later, it was barely covered by the press, he said.

There are three types of terrorist groups, according to Ahmad: oppressed political groups which want to state their messages; those backed by a government; those with religious reasons, "who we don't hear of much."

"The hijacker is a particular phenomenon," he said.

"50 percent of all terrorist acts have nothing to do with politics," Ahmed said. Many of the terrorist acts are caused by people who have pathological problems, he said.

FYI

The Amherst League of Women Voters will sponsor a Candidates' Night at 7:30 p.m. today in the Amherst Junior High School cafeteria. The candidates for town-wide office will give a brief presentation and answer questions from the audience. The meeting is free and open to the public.

Yossef Bar-El will speak at 7:30 p.m. today in Chapin Lounge at Amherst College. Bar-El, the Five College B'nai B'rith Hillel Israel Scholar-In-Residence, will speak on "The Moslem Fundamentalists vs. Western Civilization."

Noted anthropologist Jack Kugelmass will give a slide show at 7:30 p.m. today at Memorial Hall. The slide show, "The Miracle of Intervale Avenue," focuses on a small synagogue-- the last remaining Jewish institution in the South Bronx

NORTHAMPTON NAUTILUS
Student Special with coupon
$29.95 till end of semester

- 24 Nautilus machines
- Olympic free weights
- Aerobics classes
- Mohawk exercise bikes
- Concept II rowing machines
- Full lockerroom shower & towel privledges
- Co-ed whirlpool

Membership good till 5/25/86
CALL FOR FREE TRIAL WORKOUT
216 N. King St. Northampton
Open 7 Days 584-4975 Men-Women

Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Summer internship in Appropriate Technology
If you are interested in small scale agriculture, homesteading, or overseas service (private agency or Peace Corps), you can get hands-on practical experience with windmills, well and water systems, photovoltaics (electricity from the sun), small animal husbandry, gardening, and much more. The Windfarm Museum partially paid five week summer internship is for those who feel their future plans may need this knowledge. It is relevent to any major. While not a job, your work time should substantially cover your expenses.
For information write:
Windfarm Museum
RFD #2, Box 86
Martha's Vineyard, MA 02568
Tel. (617) 693-3658

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Walrobia's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

SUMMER JOBS

Application forms and job descriptions for positions with Summer Conference Housing are now available outside of the University Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center. Jobs as student supervisors, desk clerks, and operations crew personnel are being offered. Full and part time openings are available and include all shifts, weekdays and weekends.

HRTA and work study students are encouraged to apply.

University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution.

Tonight at DELANO'S
HAWAIIAN NIGHT!
starts at 9 pm

Tropical Island Blend Juice
Pina Colada Schnapps
Raspberry Schnapps
FREE HAWAIIAN Hors d'oeuvres
Wear your Hawaiian Shirt
BE THERE, ALOHA!
57 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
Proper ID Required

SENIORS:

"It's fabulous. Exciting. Dynamic. I can't wait."
-- Claire Adams, Class of '86

"★★★★★. Awesome. A must-see."
-- Tony Mazola, Class of '86

"The most incredible thing to hit UMass since dorms went co-ed."
-- Joe Wagner, Class of '86

Nominated for Most Original Screenplay, Most Animated Soundtrack and Best Supporting Cast, it's

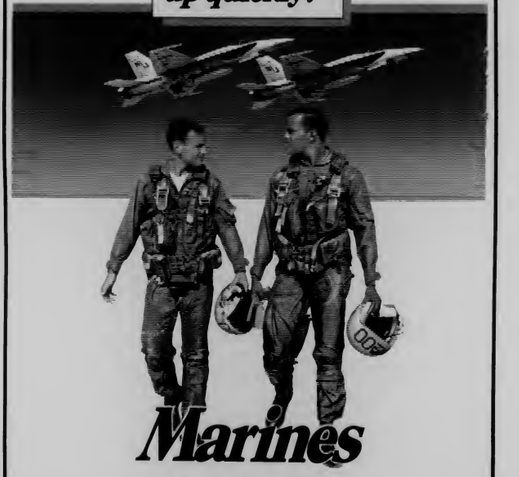
Mass Transformation

A Class Act.

Thursday's your chance to join in. Organizational meeting for all seniors will be held at 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 165-169. This will be your only opportunity to sign up, so don't miss it. Bring a friend.

In the meantime, more information is available at our table outside the Student Union Mini Store. Or, call 545-0487. So don't miss out.

It's a class act.



Then get in on the ground floor in our Platoon Leaders Class undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start planning on a career like the men in this ad have. And also have some great advantages like:

- Earning $100 a month during the school year
- As a freshman or sophomore, you could complete your basic training during two six-week summer sessions and earn more than $1100 during each session
- Juniors earn more than $1900 during one ten-week summer session
- Seniors and graduates can be commissioned through the Officer Candidate Class Program
- You can take free civilian flying lessons
- You're commissioned upon graduation

If you're looking to move up quickly, look into the Marine Corps undergraduate officer commissioning program. You could start off making more than $17,000 a year.

Want to move up quickly?

We're looking for a few good men.

Marines

See 1st Lt Chapala in the Campus Center Concourse today and tomorrow
or call 1-800-255-USMC

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager
Conor Plunkett, Production Manager
Elizabeth Young, Business Manager
Sherry Shartman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Community problems grave

Stephen Erickson

Since I transferred to the University of Massachusetts in the fall of 1983 I have always felt a fondness for UMass. I am always quick to recommend our university as an instutution of excellent educational, recreational and social opportunities. There are times, however, when I am deeply ashamed, embarrassed and a little bit frightened by the actions of a few who insist on dominating the campus with their own point of view to the exclusion of others. The fiasco that took place during the Republican Club's presentation, "Nicaragua: A Revolution betrayed," was such a time.

Contra representative Jorge Rosales and writer Mike Waller, guests at our university, were greeted by jeers and insults. "Liar, murderer and killer" were among the accusations rudely yelled out. Chants and heckling made hearing the speakers impossible at times. Protestors tried to distract from the speakers through guerilla theatre and a slide show of their own. A bomb threat had been called in during the afternoon, but having failed to stop the event other tactics were employed. By 8:30 p.m. the demonstration in the SUB lobby had reached dangerous proportions, as protestors were wielding rather large wooden crosses used to represent alleged contra atrocities. The call came in from the Director of Public Safety to shut the event down. Freedom of speech was once again violated at the University of Massachusetts.

To many UMass students (not to mention Nicaraguans!) Ernesto Cardenal is a leader of a murderous totalitarian regime, yet not one insult was uttered to him when he visited our campus last spring. Protests against Geraldine Ferarro were respectful of her and her audiences' rights. All Monday, campus leftists held their vigil, free from any disruptions. Why do such people feel obliged to ruin presentations they do not agree with? Do they believe they possess a monopoly on truth? Why can they not stand to hear an opposing view? Our UMass protesters have so much in common with the Sandinistas it's no wonder they support them. Why should the conservatives on this campus not start disrupting leftist events? Although I asked myself this question Monday night, I quickly realized that for conservatives to violate the very principles for which we stand would be wrong.

However, if the suppression of free speech ever became widespread throughout our society then freedom would cease to exist. The fact that freedom of speech does not exist at places of learning is tragic and perhaps dangerous. Something must be done. The UMass student government has an anti-opression arm called SCERA (Students Center for Education, Research and Advocacy). In the past, this group has attempted to fight racism, sexism and intolerance of gay people on our campus, but no effort has ever been made to combat political intolerance. Sadly, the staff of SCERA promotes intolerance, as several staff members were among the hecklers and perpertrators of abusive language. The Student Senate should put such people on notice, and instruct SCERA, perhaps in coordination with the Chancelor's Office, to create a task force on political intolerance.

Following the leftist frolic on Monday night I found the Republican Club office vandalized. On the desk was a note that sent a chill up my spine, "Republican Fascists - You'll get yours." Clearly, our academic community has a grave problem which needs to be addressed.

Stephen Erickson is a Collegian columnist.

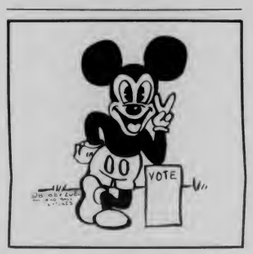
Why we need a rodent

William Spain

Being a registered Democrat (yes, there are a few of us left), my major concern for the 1988 presidential election is that my party come up with a viable candidate untarnished by Jimmy Carter, the welfare state, or any of the other things Ma and Pa Kettle are so violently opposed to.



Although I hold such things in considerably less contempt than the average American voter, I am painfully aware of the need to infuse some new blood into the party of Thomas Jefferson, Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy if we hope to regain the Executive Branch from the current crop of right-wingers.

Luckily, there are a few individuals who have successfully divorced themselves from the past and offer the possibility of a victory. Shall we take a look at the field?

•Gary Hart - The man from Colorado with all the "new ideas" offers some hope. In many ways, he is similar to our current president. He looks good on television, is not averse to putting on a little makeup, and in a grand old acting tradition, changed his name to make it more publicly appealing. The problem is that he is very much like a Potemkin village. By disconnecting himself from the past, he has come up with an empty sack when it comes to actual programs.

•Mario Cuomo - Now this guy can make a great speech. More importantly, unlike Ronald Reagan, he can also write it largely by himself. However, something rings false. I just cannot trust a guy who says he cares that much about poor people. I doubt anyone else would, either. Keep him in New York. He might even make a good Senator.

•Bill Bradley - Not a chance in hell that I would vote for this guy. Having an actor in the Oval Office is bad enough. An athlete, Christ, who is next? Would it be a rock star? Perhaps a circus performer sick of the big-top? Give me a break. Sure, he is supposed to be really smart but I just cannot swallow the idea of him in the White House. I am old-fashioned in that I think coming to public prominence in politics should be as a result of intellectual accomplishments and not how well someone can play one-on-one.

•Lee Iacocca - An interesting possibility who has never made his personal politics very clear but has been mentioned by a number of Democratic leaders as a candidate. Forget this guy. I am sorry, but I am not prey to the adulation he has recieved for turning a bankrupt company around. Chrysler may make lots of money now but if we are talking about quality products, we should vote for the president of Honda.

• Mickey Mouse - Apart from having a hard core of supporters who consistently write him in, year after year, Mr. Mouse enjoys an almost universal popularity with people here and abroad. He is probably the only candidate that enjoys the reputation of having met with virtually every foreign leader visiting the United States and enjoying their company in an exclusively amiable way. Although, like Iacocca, he has never let his views be pinned down, I feel sure he is a Democrat. After all, the Democratic Party has a reputation of appealing to minorities and as a talking mouse, Mickey certainly qualifies.

Quite a selection, is it not? An image, a bleeding heart, a jock, a car salesman and a rodent. Since voting is frequently a question of finding the least objectionable contender, I have to go with the rodent. I hope you will too.

William Spain is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Both sides have much to learn

I supported the presentation by Jorge Rosales of the contra group FDN for the sake of free speech and it was that, more or less, until Gilbert Stair, president of the UMass Republican Club, called for the end during a predominantly leftist line of questioning, which exposed some of the lies and just how farcical the show was.

Stair did this when a "violent minority" chanted a leftist slogan in the hallway. What I saw and heard was the overwhelming majority, who opposed US supported contra actions in Nicaragua, but nonetheless was disrupting the show. The Republican Club promised a presentaion by Rosales, but he did less than half of the speaking. The microphone was dominated by a North American man, whose name and affiliation I could not hear over the shouts.

Why was he there? To antagonize the student body? To call the leftists both Communists and Nazis? To tell Rosales how to answer or, rather, evade questions? He was worse than the shouting leftists. I attended to hear a responsible, objective view of the Nicaraguan situation, but in addition to insults against detractors, I heard a diatribe against anyone who does not support Reagan's policies. Was there a laugh in his voice because the opposition amused him or because he did not believe what he was saying? I felt as if he had written rosales' speech. Even worse, I heard intransigent rightists and intransigent leftists in the audience. If it were not for the security crew, fights would have broken out.

I got a letter from Senator John Kerry yesterday which states that the Sandinistas have supported the Contadora negotiations and their requests since 1984 and that Reagan subsequently withdrew his support. The North American claimed the opposite. Whether or not the Sandinistas mean to honor the agreement, he was lying. It is true that photographs might be staged or the explanation of them might be fabricated, but I saw a picture of the dead contra soldier, by a North American staying there, reported by the North American media. Rosales said that the contras do not attack civilians. With these examples in mind, how many of the speakers' claims can I believe?

In conclusion, I censure the right, especially the Republican Club for being irresponsible and the left for not allowing the right, as scurrilous as their presentation was, to speak.

Brian Wilga
Amherst

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editior at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail recieved, individual replies cannot be made.

Irresponsible behavior shameful

Ever since Central America began making the news in the late 70s, I have been following the situation there. During the last seven or eight years, I have geen bombarded by a vast amount of material about Central America from the left and the right. From this enormous and contradictory mass of material, I have gathered a small collection of facts. Monday night, I attended the speech by Jorge Rosales of the FDN in hopes of gaining a few more facts. I did gain two facts, but only because I asked a specific question and I got a specific answer.

The atmosphere in the SUB was not conducive to factual arguement. The protestors cheered, booed, hissed, and chanted at every opportunity, and generally attempted to turn the forum into a circus. The UMass Republican Club and their supporters, to their discredit, joined the shouting match. When the floor was opened to questions, the speakers were presented with a nearly unbroken string of accusations presented as questions. As a result of these conditions everyone talking and no one listening--almost nothing was gained from the evening. This behavior is a disgrace to the UMass student body, and the people responsible for it should be ashamed of themselves.

Hank Thayer
Amherst

Attention Computer Owners

IBM Portable, PC or Compatible?

We're offering fantastic SAVINGS on the following PERIPHERALS

PIONEER VALLEY DATA EQUIPMENT

259 Triangle Street
Amherst
549-1017

OPEN MIKE NIGHT

AT THE HATCH
April 2, 1986
Starting at 8 P.M.

Comedians check in with M.C. Patty Small at the beginning of the show

Pi Kappa Alpha

INVITES YOU TO THE

7TH ANNUAL DANCE MARATHON

A BATTLE TO OVERCOME MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS

APRIL 12TH, 1986

12 NOON THRU 12 MIDNIGHT

at CHANGES Dance Club ROUTE 9 AMHERST

To Register call 1-545-2150 collect or pick up a registration form at PKA, 418 North Pleasant Street, Amherst

Campus Center March 31 - April 4

99.3 FM THE HOT SPOT

POSITION AVAILABLE

Office of the Dean of Students

Student Manager

Information Data Bank (IDB)

and Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

QUALIFICATIONS	Demonstrated (through previous experience and/or recommendations) communication skills; organizational and supervisory skills; ability to organize data; ability to proof-read and edit; some typing and/or word processing experience. Promotional and marketing experience desirable.
ELIGIBILITY	Undergraduate or graduate student (preferably Work-Study eligible) with at least three semesters remaining at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1986.
PAY SCALE	Hourly rate, beginning at minimum of $5.00, 20-25 hours.
STARTING DATE	Selected individual must be available part-time in late April or early May (10-20 hours), full time mid-July and August (37½ hours). Full-time option may be available June to mid-July.
DEADLINE	Completed applications, available at the Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore, must be received by April 11, 1986.

The Information Data Bank (IDB) is a telephone or walk-in referral center which maintains information on University administrative and academic policies and procedures; bus, library, and athletic schedules; listings of current campus events such as seminars, movies, and lectures; and a variety of other reference materials.

The Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS) is a library of more than 300 tape cassettes with information about academic rules, regulations, and programs; registration policies; counseling services; financial aid information; current events; health and safety programs; housing and food services; athletics; student organizations and activities, etc.

The Student Manager is responsible for day-to-day operations of IDB/TIPS including recruiting,training, scheduling and supervising student staff of 10-15; maintaining and updating the IDB/TIPS library and information resources; preparing scripts and tapes; arranging and monitoring production schedules for the Student Telephone Directory, Registration Update, and Dean's List; with the assistance of a student Graphics Coordinator, arranging for placement of ads in the "Collegian" promoting IDB/TIPS; soliciting and processing new material for IDB/TIPS; and related assignments.

IDB 545-1555 — A Service of the Dean of Students Office — TIPS 545-1540

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with

AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass

Tickets $17.00 cash onlu 6 ticket limit

Tickets on sale at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

SPECIALS

Rolling Rock and Miller bottles $.99
All Vodka Drinks $1.40
TONIGHT IS GROLSCH NIGHT
T-Shirts, Prizes, Hors d'oeuvres
Friday,
Mike's famous all you can eat smorgasboard

SWAG Presents
The nation's Hottest Stand-up Comic

EMO PHILIPS

as seen on Late Night with David Letterman

THURSDAY
APRIL 10, 1986
in the
Student Union
Ballroom

Tickets are: Two shows 8:00 PM and 10:00 PM
$5.00 in advance $6.00 at the door
Available at: Tix in the Student UNion Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, Main St. Records in Northampton.

Another Southwest Area Government Production

Going Formal?
TUXEDO RENTALS
Lodestone
13 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
256-0591

KATINA'S
Wednesday Night
Wailon Dave and
The Blue Dogs
Great R & B Music
18-21 year olds welcome
enjoy juice bar
GRAND OPENING
Saturday, April 5, 1986
check out new pool tables
322 Russell St 586-4463

RENT-A-WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

TOWN OF AMHERST
Part Time Positions

The Town of Amherst is seeking applications for present and future seasonal and part time positions for:

Recreation Instructors Recreation Supervisors
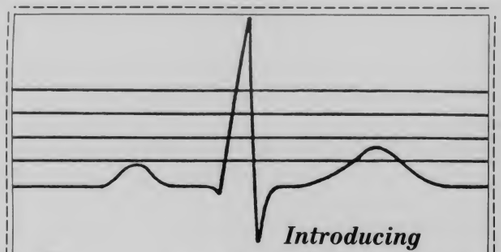
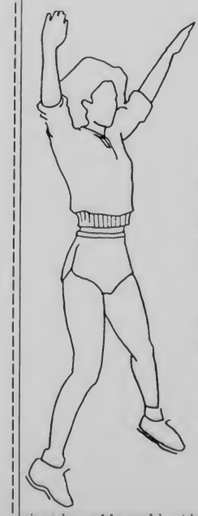
Playground Leaders
Lifeguards/Swim Instructors
Drivers for Transportation Projects
Library Assistants and Substitutes
Laborers for Public Works
Pond Caretakers
Conservation Maintenance
Clerical Assistants
Billing/Accounting Clerks
Substitute Health Aids

Salary is up to $5.17 per hour, based upon qualifications for position. Apply to Town Manager's Office, Town Hall, Amherst, MA 01002. EEO/AA employer.



家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden
Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The BEST Chinese Food"

Boneless Bar-B-Q
Spare Ribs
Small $2.80 Large or $4.60



Luncheon Specials
From $2.25 served 11 a.m. -3 p.m.

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch
1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot + Sour Soup
Buffet Served 5-8
Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served
Sunday 11:30-3
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.
10 Belchertown Road
at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

Introducing
Aerobic Dance
at the Body Shop

Join us for a Free Aerobic Workout on Wednesday, April 2, 7-8 PM, in the NEW EXPANDED BOYDEN BODY SHOP (Boyden Gym, basement).

Enjoy our large new carpeted facility and expert instruction.

Regular aerobic classes will be held 7-8 PM, M-F, for six weeks (up to 30 sessions). Fee: $25 (first session free).

Sponsored by the Exercise Science Department.

A map of the new location is available in the current Boyden Body Shop & in Totman Body Shop.

U-MASS &
Coca-Cola
YOU COULD BE AN INSTANT WINNER!
WIN
A Coke
T-Shirt
Make a selection at any Coke Vendors and you could become an Instant Winner!
1986 SPRING FLING

Redeem your winning coupon at -
University Store
Campus Center

DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

BLOOM COUNTY — BY BERKE BREATHED

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED FOR FALL, 1986

Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits -
Work directly with attorneys -
No experience in the legal profession is necessary; training is provided -
Deadline to begin your application is APRIL 9 -
Contact Legal Services today - 545-1995

Summer'86
At The University of Rhode Island.

ACCELERATE YOUR DEGREE.
STIMULATE YOUR CURIOSITY.

Move your degree plans ahead this summer at the University of Rhode Island. Choose either our convenient downtown Providence center or our scenic campus located in Kingston minutes away from the state's beautiful beaches and historic Newport. Our extensive selection of stimulating courses, taught by an exceptional faculty, offers you a chance to add up credits for completing your degree ahead of schedule.

Term I: June 9 to July 11.
Term II: July 14 to August 15.

Call or write for your copy of our Summer Course List — 277-3800 or from RI toll areas call TOLL FREE 1-800-367-1144.

Setting The Pace
URI
College of Continuing Education
199 Promenade Street
Providence, RI 02908

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Deception
5 Algonquians
10 Rig
14 Nobel physicist 1944
15 Western author
16 Took steps
17 Liquid dispenser
18 Negative atom
19 Small brook
20 Sow dissension
22 Giver of wise opinion
24 Spree
25 Builder of St Paul's Cathedral
26 Dresser's Sister —
29 Those who waiver
33 Words on a French menu
34 Profit
36 Parson from Waco
37 California rockfish
39 Press a suit
41 To laugh, in Le Havre
42 Imitation
44 Playful mammal
46 Formerly called
47 Home on —
49 Forest figure
51 Stout companions?
52 Leo's pride
53 Attraction
56 Most zesty
60 Eager
61 Leather strip
63 Refuge
64 Encourage 65 Unhampered
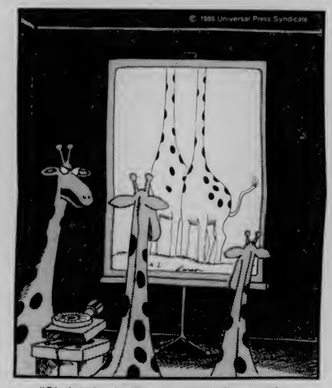
66 Mars
67 The Cowardly Lion
68 Fished for conger
69 Hose mishap



DOWN
1 See 65 Across
2 Societal code
3 Encourage in a way
4 Image maker
5 Pitcher's choice
6 Long-limbed and slim
7 Buffalo's lake
8 WWII command
9 Lady of Spain
10 Outsider
11 Skater Heiden
12 Defoe's Flanders
13 At loose ends
21 Seed coat
23 Sign a lease
25 Staple crop
26 Jeweller's unit
27 A, to a Sabra
28 Lady of Lahore
29 Mediterranean island
30 — out (eliminating)
31 Street show
32 Heavy's expression
35 Wooden footwear
38 Musical planner
40 Mad
43 Eli's institution
45 Reverberated
48 Vex
50 Stable sounds
52 Minister's residence
53 Heavy hammer
54 Indian tourist city
55 Vincent van —
56 53 Down is one
57 Dash
58 Marsh bird
59 Bud's setting
62 Tiller's tool

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

Z	T	O	R		R	E	A	M	S		S	T	E	M
B	A	R	I		A	R	D	E	N		P	R	A	U
A	R	C	S		C	A	S	T	I	G	B	O	R	S
S	P	H	E	R	E			A	P	O	S	T	L	E
			E	R	E		R	I	D
R	A	S		O	A	S	I	S		L	A	I	R	S
I	N	T	E	S	T	I	N	E	S		C	Y	G	N	E	T
N	E	R	D		E	S	T	E	R		E	S	S	E
S	T	I	S	M		R	O	A	D	S	T	E	R
		E	S	S	E	N		M	O	N	E	Y		T	E
	E	M	E	S		A	T	T
M	I	S	L	E	A	D		E	R	R	A	T	U	M
I	N	C	E	R	T	I	T	U	D	E		B	I	N	E
S	C	A	N		I	N	I	N	E		L	O	T	S
S	A	R	A		N	A	S	A	L		E	N	O	S

4/2/86

THE FAR SIDE BY GARY LARSON

"Oh, lovely—just the hundredth time you've managed to cut everyone's head off."

Menu

LUNCH
Italian Grinder
Eggrolls/ Duc Suace

DINNER
Junior Club Sandwich
Roast Top Round of Beef
Seafood Quiche

BASICS LUNCH
Veg Grinder
More Eggrolls

BASICS DINNER
Seafood Quiche
Chicken Salad Plate with Chittos

Announcement

ALL Collegian editors and assoc. editors, that includes you Larry and don't try to snake out of it, must attend a newspaper critique by Wayne Phaneuf, an assistant managing editor of the Springfield Daily News.

The workshop will be held at 8 pm tonight in CC 904 be there or be square

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor	John Yonce
Copy Editor	William Spain
Layout Technician	Ansel Zinter
Photo Technician	Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor	Ansel Zinter

Production: Sod, Naomi Davis, Bill Freeman, Maura Mchugh, Rob Skelton, Kevin Hayden, and Justin of Brett

Plumbley's is the Place to be all week

Specials good til April 20

Sundays
3:00 - 9:30 $8.95
Chicken, Steak and Chocolate Cake!
Sliced London Broil, Roast Chicken, Chocolate Cake and all the fixins

Monday
All You Can Eat $9.95
4:00 - 9:30 Fried Shrimp or Fried Chicken
Served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter

Tuesday
All You Can Eat $9.95
4:00 - 9:30 Roast Sirloin or Fried Chicken
Also served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter

Wednesday: Student and Faculty Special

- Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken $5.95
- Sliced London Broil
- Tempura Fried Filet of Sole

All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter.
Just show a student I.D. and enjoy

Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

Something you want to say before you leave?

Submit your proposal for Senior Commencement Speaker to Trey Williams, 545-2334, 319 Whitmore.

(5 minutes: 3 pages, typed, double-spaced)
DEADLINE: APRIL 11, 1986 at 4:00 PM

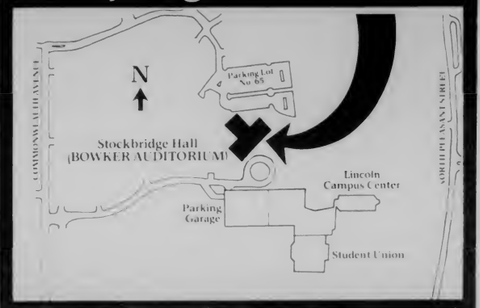
AUDITIONS
UMass
Music Theater Guild
50 Year Review see table on CC Concourse for more information
Wed & Thurs April 3 & 4

FREE T-Shirts & Hat

Joe's Paradise
GOURMET FRIED CHICKEN
TRY SOME!
FRIED CHICKEN PALACE
TRY SOMETHING NEW & COMPARE THE VALUE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON BETWEEN $5 & $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE HAT FREE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON OVER $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE T-SHIRT FREE



Downtown Amherst, 31 Boltwood Walk
(through the alley, next to Taco Villa)
253-7494

FAST FREE DELIVERY

NORTH AMERICA'S TRIBUTE TO THE ROLLING STONES
The Blushing Brides
Special Guest DOMAIN
Springfield Civic Center Exhibition Hall
Friday, April 4th-8:30pm
$7.50 advance $9.00 day of the show
TICKETS ON SALE ON CAMPUS
AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE
PHONE CHARGES (413) 787 6600 or (800) 243-4842
Produced in association with WAQY
ALL AGES WELCOME. CASH BAR — 21 AND OVER

Lodestone
ONLY 4 DAYS LEFT!
Spring Sale!
POLOS 15% OFF
SWEATS 20% OFF
ALL JEANS 20% OFF
STIRRUPS 20% OFF
CARDIGANS 20% OFF
ALL JEWELRY 20% OFF
WOOL SWEATERS 20% OFF
LEATHERS 20% OFF
SPRING JACKETS 20% OFF
IN-WEAR 20% OFF
MATINIQUE 20% OFF
50-75% OFF WINTER WEAR
AND MORE!
BIGGEST SALE IN ALL THE HAPPY VALLEY!
13 N. Pleasant St. Amherst
48 Main St. Brattleboro

First you get to Bowker...

Then Bowker gets to you!

THE BERLIN CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
Heinz Schunk, leader
Wednesday, April 9 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets $15 13

MITCHELL-RUFF DUO
Willie Ruff, horn and bass
Dwike Mitchell, piano
Friday, April 11 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets $13 11

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
For College Students Half Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800 243-4842

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8 45 3 45 Mon Thurs. 8 45 2 30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

Open Mike Night
at the Hatch Wednesday, April 2 8 pm comedians and entertainers check in with MC at the beginning of night all ages welcome must be 21 to drink

SENIORS: Join in A Class Act tomorrow 4:30 p.m. in CC room 165-169. This is your only chance, so don't miss it!

The Minority Graduate Students Association is having a wine and cheese reception with the minority faculty April 6, 1986 from 2-6 PM at The Faculty Club. For more information call 5-3424 Distinguished Visitors Program meeting tonight, Wed. April 2, 7:00 pm CC 169. Mandatory programming for next fall!

AUDIO

BOSE 101 speakers for sale $150 or BO call 6-7917

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1975 Ford Granada 4 dr PB/PS AM/FM body in good cond new parts $45-1497

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi very dependable $2200 or BO 253-2204

1979 Monza New clutch, brakes, 4 radials $1500. 283-8592

Mona needs a new home 77 Honda Civic good cond needs some work $600 but negotiable 586-5409

1976 Ford Grenada four door extremely reliable needs no work $850 or BO Derek 549-1656

78 Plymouth Horizon 4 spd good trans $700 or BO Mike 665-8335

76 Plymouth runs good looks good must see! $1000 256-6281

1977 Datsun Truck well-maintained solid bed, full cap, runs great, $900 or best offer call eves, Mike 256-8788

1984 Reliant K car automatic new battery. Very good running condition. Good for off campus or commuting. Call Amy at 546-6198

'79 Datsun B210 standard good condition 950 or BO call Cathy 549-5632

74 BMW 2002, red. California car. Restored. 6,350 obo 538-4127 or 538-2896

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramids Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BICYCLES

Univega Gran Premio 3 5 in, blus, racing high pref touring, great cond, extras, $650 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom apartments Heat and hot water short term leases Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never too late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Roommates needed for summer on Cape Cod Hyannis area call 546-5288 or 546-4717

Seagull Brach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7439

Female roommates wanted for summer on Cape Cod. Cottage in Hyannis. 1000 for summer, May 23 to Sept 2 call 546-9211

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6160.

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH TONIGHT:

See what Delta Zeta Sorority can offer you! All University Women invited! Tonight 9 pm Dynasty hour! 11 Phillips St. For more info call Pam at 253-9916

DR. STRANGELOVE

Thursday, April 3rd in Engineering East 5:30 $1.00, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30 $1.50

DUE TO OVERWHELMING DEMAND

Alpha Epsilon Pi is holding a second rush. Be a part of the fastest growing fraternity. " Great friends " superior social life " a new house " rush parties this week. Call now. Rob 546-9561 or Matt 546-9633

EDIE "THE MAKEUP LADY"

Will be in the CC April 3-5 9-4 PM buy your Spring shades!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party boons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

TURN THE TABLES 5 yr Pro D.J. latest records, best rates, lights free 586-9691 24 HR

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc Jockeys Light Shows Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME.

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach, call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Apartment - three bedroom close to center sublet for summer with fall option, on bus route serious inquiries only 253-2284

Apartment available in Southwood. Take over lease June 1st, and it's yours for the fall. Low rent, good bus service. Call 253-3619 for more info

Two female roommates needed for Southwood Apt Take over lease starting June 1st $130 incl heat please call 256-1518

In Amherst 2½ miles from campus washer/dryer air conditioning available April 1 call today Chris 256-6238

Apartment available in Southwood for summer cash reward call Dave or Mike 256-1640

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st, bus stop in front Tracey 256-1807

FOR SALE

Peavy Guitar Amp Head 210 watts, many features $260 or best offer call Dave after 5:00 549-1703

H&D speakers by Cerwin Vega $200 firm, Akai T14 tapedeck, Sony turntable, rock guitar amp, need cash, call Dick, 549-1052

Televideo computer terminal like new $350 or BO model 910+ 253-2204

Stereo Equip: Pioneer receiver $110, Teac cas deck $90, Technics turntable $70 or BO all exc condition! 549-3912

Gucci Watches many styles for men & women, only $30. - call 6-7480

Violin inexpensive good condition Catherine 253-3069

Have 2 tix for Hartford Dead! Need 2 tix for Fri trade only Heidi 256-0049

1978 Subaru 4x4 wagon. Needs exhaust, possible engine. Good parts car or restoration 700 or BO call 256-0196

FOUND

Softball Glove on 3/25 at field outside NOPE. Call John 5-224

Found - silver bracelet across from FAC call to identify nites 253-2475 Ann

HELP WANTED

Sophomores, Juniors looking for career experience? WMUA is hiring a new Business Manager. Great opportunity for 30-IM majors interested in radio. Bookkeeping and computer experience a must. 9-10 hours per week $3.35/hour. Applications available at the Student Activities Office or WMUA thru April 4th SGA is an equal opportunity employer

Weekend job Amherst Farmers Market Manager Sat May 10 to Nov 15, 6:45 am to 1:45 pm. Responsible, friendly, decisive person to enforce rules, negotiate disputes & handle cash. Apply by April 7th call Nancy 5-2249 leave message

Bands wanted for WSYL Radio's local showcase on 4/28 in the S.U.B. Tapes and letter of interest due Friday 4/4 Box 8 Room 416 Student Union at 5:00. More info call Cath 253-3362 before 11 PM

INSTRUCTION

Are you Danish? Do you speak Danish? I'm going to Denmark and need to learn Please help tutor me! Call Amy 546-4791 best time: 10 pm - 1 am

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semester. Aid attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary; training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost 1 pair of Cloisonne swan earrings at 104 Puffton. Great sentimental value! Please return or call 546-7176

Reward for return of lost pearl ring 3/27, possibly in ladies room in FAC or Newman. Please call Anne-marie 546-6205

School Bag - Adidas, tan taken from the counter near Post Office. Reward for return; only the books and notebook. No questions asked 665-8501

Lost wallet green plastic last week reward/ big bucks quark 545-0770

Lost large male tiger cat near Cliffside Apt Sunderland if found please call 665-8315

MOTORCYCLES

1984 Honda Interceptor 700CC 8k mi ex. cellent cond. $2495 or BO 549-5990 keep trying or leave message

Honda Interceptor VF700 1984½ 3000 miles perfect condition blue 2500 call Tayler 253-3825

1980 Suzuki GS1100EX 6000 mi[illegible] totally equipped $2495 Bill 549-[illegible]

82 Kawasaki 440 Ltd mint condition! New sport mirrors, cruise control, back rest, Belt drive, very fast! Call 546-6165 or 546-6047

Classic white Vespa exc cond runs prft low mi $675 or BO Chris 6-6648

1976 Yamaha SX650 under 12,000 miles New battery! Best offer Call Gary 256-1557 keep trying

PERSONALS

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment

Some of us are definitely from another planet.

Christa Wright you secret admirer is psyched he finally met you. To bad its so late in the semester

Kim Hackett, President o' Kappa Happy Birthday, from the Brothers o' Lambda Chi Alpha

Davy Davy Doo, where are you?! By Rock Me Amadeus 266 Puffton

Greg from Canada living in Johnson, couldn't find you in Econ 104 call me 6-4284 Lauren

Marie Leary We hope you have a great birthday! Luv Julie & Lisa

Lisa Warshauer Happy Birthday! Have a great day! Love Lisa B

Hey Squeeze! Happy Belated Birthday to a great friend and walking buddy. We are going to have an awesome Spring! CWP

Maurisa I will never fully understand what happened but I hope that you will find the person that you are looking for love Rich

Alpha Chi Omega presents their annual Monte Carlo Night on Friday April 4th from 8 pm to 1 am at 38 Nutting Ave Donation is $3.50 and all proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis. Valuable prizes will be auctioned off. Open to Greek Area only

D'anne - The finest food for the best woman in my life. A cool bottle of Don P is waiting and so am I. For dinner with you, I'll never be blue! Your Barsi Buddy EM XOXX

Loren - Here it is. I love you! Irene Happy Anniversary!

Renee. It does too!!! Love H.D.

Beth, What's this about a same address? Interesting gossip! Norm

REWARD

We need a four person apartment for fall 86. If you can help us please call 546-6031 after 9 pm. Offering a nice reward

RIDE WANTED

Need a ride to Plattsburg this wknd call Donna 545-2412

ROOMMATES WANTED

Room for rent in house $140/mth, call Dick, 549-1052 negotiable

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

TO SHARE BRITTANY MANOR APT. AVAILABLE NOW ONE MONTH FREE KEN, RICH, STEVE 253-7312, DAVE 665-4151

Cape Housemates Wanted perfect location, Main St. Hyannis. $800 for summer. Call 546-6267 or 546-8265

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alterstion. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

Apartment Cleaning kitchen livingarea bathares 12$ price may vary call W N 7-9 549-0694

The Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center, provides free legal services to fee-paying UMass students

STEREO FOR SALE

BOSE Acoustic wave sound system list $698 quick sale $450 call Scott 256-0685

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst Center sunny 3 bdrm apt in house, cat eyes 549-5866

Looking for someone to take over Presidential Apt in June. Call Steve or Pat 459-1357

Three subletters needed for entire summer 5 minute walk from campus and town cheap rent call after 5 256-8047

June - July $400 inclusive. One bdrm in four bdrm apt. Clean pleasant. On busline, close to campus. Fall option. Call Mary 256-0045 7:30-10:30 am

TO SUBLET

Subletters needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 August 31 call 549-6675

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

UMASS CRITICAL ART REVIEW

Seeking Editorial and Production Staff
Students of Art, Art Hist, Journalism preferred
Contact David Fish at 545-3625

WANT A HOBBY?

Buy my car. 1978 Monarch it runs, but needs lots of work. Call Don 253-9330 after 8 PM

WANTED

Subjects needed — Students who lost a parent will you and your family help a UMass grad student in a research study about how families adjust to the death of a parent? I will travel if your family doesn't live here. Please call Claudia collect 203-563-9677 after 9 pm, or sign up in the experiment booth, 4th floor Tobin Hall

CREW (stage, set construction, arts prep, security) needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September 86. 3-week commitment, possible credit involved. Call Ana, 546-2803 4

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one-credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April, May and September. Contact Ana 546-2803/4 Auditions, 4:30 April 3 Hasia Hall, Fine Arts Center

Wanted Dead or Alive Triumph TR6 in any condition call 634-2297

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

We'll pay you $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. Call 546-3665

Do you have a room in your Rolling Green apt? I want it!! Anytime after May 31st. Please call Christina at 546-2892 (daytime), 253-5248 (evening)

Looking for lease to take over in Brandywine for fall 1986 $$$ call Ellen 546-1442

Two females looking for 1 bedroom in Brandywine or Townehouse for fall 86 call Ellen 546-1442

Responsible mea seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house next fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

Eight females want to rent a house in the Amherst-UMass area for fall 86 call 546-5135

SPORTS

Minutewomen sweep Friars

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

It was one of those afternoons where the sun was shining brightly, the birds were singing, and everyone was sporting their favorite pair of Jams.

It was also one of those afternoons when you could've come out and watched the University of Massachusetts softball team, ranked 20th in the nation, litter the sky with softballs en-route to a crippling sweep of Providence College, 16-0 and 12-0, yesterday at Totman Field.

The Minutewomen, 13-3 on the season, unleashed an awesome display of hitting in game one, pounding out a season-high 18 hits in a game that was halted in the bottom of the sixth inning because of a 15 run "mercy" rule. UMass won game one and added insult to injury when freshman rightfielder Barbara Meehan crushed a bases loaded triple in the right field gap to cease the game with the Minutewomen up, 16-0.

Senior lefthander Lynn Stockley picked up her sixth win of the season against one setback, giving up only three hits in a strong five inning shutout performance. Stockley struck out eleven batters and mowed the Lady Friars down twice in order. Freshman reliever Chris Wanner was sharp in a one inning stint of relief, only giving up a walk in the sixth inning.

UMass rode the big inning in game one, picking up seven runs in the first inning on eight hits, and six runs on five hits in the third. The first inning explosion was highlighted by Meehan's bases loaded bloop single to center field, scoring Ilene Freeman and Emily Bietsch, who had singled ahead of Meehan. Meehan scored on Beth Talbott's single to end the scoring in the inning.

Sophomore third baseman Chris Ciepiela led the UMass barrage, going three-for-three. Senior co-captain Sally Maher, Talbott and Meehan each had two hits for the Minutewomen.

Sophomore pitcher Lisa Rever got all the runs she needed in the second inning of the nightcap, as she tossed a one-hit shutout past the baffled Friars for her fifth win of the season, 12-0. PC's only hit came in the opening stanza on Janine MacAleeses's single down the left field line.

Rever then commenced to retire the next 14 out of 15 batters, as the Minutewomen backed her up with eight additional runs. Rever was in total control throughout the game as she struck out 10 Lady Friars in a complete game effort.

The four-run second inning was keyed by Martha Jamieson's two-run homer to right field off PC losing pitcher Joane Mastropolo, who was also rocked in the first game. Jamieson also doubled in the third to lead the UMass hit parade, and was credited with the game winning hit.

The totals on the day were nothing short of awesome. In about three hours of work, the Minutewomen humiliated the Lady Friars for 30 runs and 31 hits. Amazingly enough, only six of the 31 hits went for extra bases, as UMass literally singled PC to death. UMass did not have a single player strikeout, while Rever and Stockley victimized Providence hitters for 21 strikeouts and gave up only four hits.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Senior pitcher Lynn Stockley readies to let one fly yesterday at NOPE field. UMass swept Providence College to go to 13-3.

Ninth-ranked Gorillas challenge Cornell

Undefeated UMass seeking revenge for 1985 defeat

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

ITHACA, N.Y. - As far the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team is concerned, the NCAA playoffs can start tomorrow.

Following a 16-6 pasting of Delaware, the Minutemen climbed from 15th in the national rankings to ninth. The top 10 teams in the nation make the playoffs. UMass hasn't made been to the tournament since 1981.

Unfortately, 11 games remain on the Gorillas' schedule, starting this afternoon against Ivy League-rival Cornell University at 3:30 in Ithaca.

The Big Red have been the big disappointments so far this season, losing three of four games. On Saturday, they dropped a 6-5 defensive battle to the University of Maryland-Baltimore County.

"Cornell is dangerous, don't just look at their record," wraned UMass coach Dick Garber. "I know that they are pretty upset with the way things have gone so far. If they lose to us, they're out of it as far as the playoffs are concerned, so it's a pivotal game for them."

UMass will also be looking to payback a 13-9 loss to Cornell, and their vocal coach Richie Moran, suffered at home last season.

The Gorillas, at 2-0, also see this as a vital game due to their upcoming home opener Saturday, against the University of New Hampshire at 1 p.m.

"If we can manage to go into the game Saturday with a 3-0 record, I would imagine there will be a few thousand people there on the hill at Boyden," said Garber.

"We want to give the fans a reason to come out."

This season, Corenell has also dropped games against Harvard (10-7) and Adelphi (11-10). They have beaten only a weak Cortland State team (15-10).

The Red have averaged just over nine goals-per-game, led by senior attackman Bill Hughes with seven goals and five assists this season. Senior midfielder Tom Gunderson has five and five while junior Tony Reece checks in with six and none.

UMass has been paced by junior attackmen Tom Caremean (11 and one) and Greg Canella (four and eight). Senior middie Greg Fisk has four and two with sophomore Kelley Carr has three and two.

The game also shapes up as a battle of freshman goaltenders. UMass' Sal LoCasio has been spectacular, allowing only six gpp with a .760 save percentage. Cornell's Paul Schimoler lets up 8.2 goals with a save percentage of .637.

Women's lax gets by Yale 14-10; baseball self-destructs again

NEW HAVEN - The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team, paced by Lisa Griswold's six goals and one assist, defeated Yale University yesterday, 14-10.

UMass, 2-0 and ranked tenth in the nation, led 8-4 at halftime and cruised in from there. Ginny Armstrong had three goals and Bunny Forbes and Cathy Furhman two each for UMass. Pam Stone made eight saves in goal for the Gazelles.

Mary Scott and Becky Bekampis each had assists for UMass.

"It was a tough game, certaintly not our best," said UM coach Pam Hixon. "We got up early on them and then sort of slept through the rest of the game."

UMass next plays Saturday, at home against Springield, at 1 p.m.

In baseball, UMass was one batter away from a 9-4 win at the University of Connecticut, when the roof caved in, thanks agan to the Minutemen's shaky defense.

A decently-hit fly ball to freshman leftfielder Jack Card fell out of his glove for an error with two outs in the bottom of the ninth. The next two batters walked before the next five consecutive batters singled and UMass lost, 10-9, to fall to 1-12 on the season.

All five of the Huskies that had ninth-inning hits had two strikes on them, with two getting infield hits. UMass committed six errors in the game. UConn is now 3-12.

For UMass, sophomore John McKeown had a three-run homer in the first, that sparked a five-run inning.

Sophomore third baseman Steve Allen belted his fourth dinger of the season, a two-run blast to left center in the third. He had three runs batted in on the day.

For the Minutemen, junior catcher Sean Flint was three-for-four with a RBI. Matt Sheran (two-for-four), Jeff Cimini (two-for-five), Steve Kern (two-for-five with a triple) and Allen (two-for-three) each had two hits.

Jack Hurley threw one pitch, retiring Kern on a pop-up to end the UMass ninth, and got the win.

Chris Slattery started, and pitched well for UMass, going six innings. He allowed four hits and two earned runs before giving way to Ken Greer who allowed six runs, only one earned in two and two-thirds innings.

Senior righthander Jon Martin (1-2) took the loss with his hard-luck work in the ninth.

"Looks like we found another way to lose a game," said an unhappy UMass coach Dick Bergquist.

The Minutemen open at home on Saturday with a doubleheader against St. Joseph's at noon.

Memorial service scheduled for assistant track coach

A memorial service will be held in the Newman Center tonight for Mary Fortune, an assistant coach with the University of Massachusetts women's track team.

Fortune, 30, died of natural causes last month at her home. She served three years with coach Kalekeni Banda's team as an assistant coach in charge of the weight events.

At UMass, Fortune helped develop the Minutewomen's competitors in such events as the javelin, shot put and discus. She will be remembered as one that helped make UMass one of the strongest women's track programs in New England and the East.

The service, which will be held in the Main Chapel of the Newman Center, is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Team members, coaches and friends of the coach are invited to the service.

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:

Today:
Men's Lacrosse: at Cornell, 3:30 p.m.
Men's Tennis: Hartford, Boyden Court, 2:30 p.m.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 42

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1986

INSIDE

- Luggage bomb explodes on airborne jet killing four Americans. Page 2.
- Gay/Lesbian Awareness Week begins this weekend. Page 3.
- The contra-versy continues. Pages 8-9.

Officials refuse comment

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts officials yesterday refused comment on a lawsuit that charges two administrators with civil rights violations, saying they had no information on the case.

Gerald T. O'Neil, UMass director of public safety, and Dennis L. Madson, vice chancellor for student affairs, were named in a suit filed Monday by two UMass students charging four counts of rights violations.

Richard Shanor of the Office of Public Information, the University news bureau, said the administration had not received any papers regarding the suit. "It is generally against our policy to comment on cases that are before court," Shanor said.

Madson is away for a week, according to his office, and O'Neil said, "Obviously I can't make a comment."

University counsel Sidney Meyers would not return calls because he had no information on the suit, his secretary said.

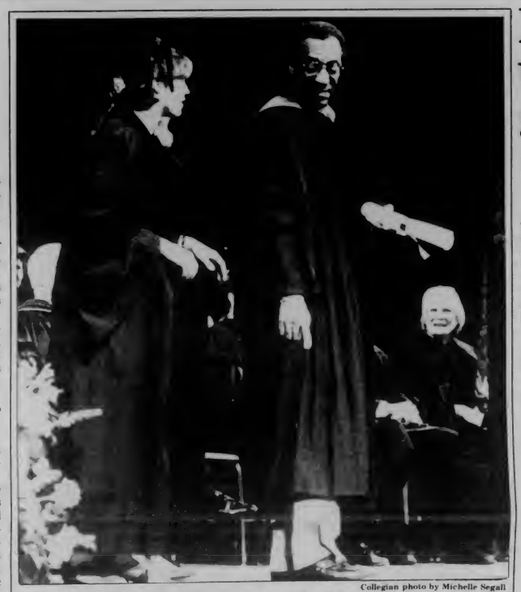
The suit charges Madson, O'Neil, the University and two campus police officers with denial of freedom of speech and assembly, false arrest and false imprisonment, malicious prosecution and unconstitutional custom or usage. It stems from an April 10, 1985, incident in which Beatrix Hoffman, a senior, and Marc Kenen, a graduate student, were arrested for unfurling an antiapartheid banner at a business conference in the Campus Center. They were protesting the presence

continued on page 5

Contra gets pelted

Jorge Rosales, the "contra" press secretary who spoke at the University Monday, was greeted with a barrage of imitation blood and raw eggs at his speech Tuesday night at Wellesley College, said the event's organizer.

"We really met with something that wasn't expected," said Tony Ravosa, chairman of the Federation of Massachusetts College Republicans. "It was a very rough crowd. [Michael] Waller [Rosales' speaking mate] almost got into a fist fight."



Ravosa said Rosales could not speak and had to be escorted out by six police officers.

"It was a mess," Ravosa said. "Complete confusion and chaos."

But he said Rosales' speech at Boston College the same day "went very, very good. No off-campus people were allowed in."

Rosales spoke at Harvard University last night and will speak at Brandeis University tonight.

–LESLEY CLARK

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

AMERICA'S FAVORITE—Bill Cosby, UMass alumnus, motions to his argyle socks during yesterday's convocation at the Fine Arts Center.

Cosby comes to campus; receives arts degree

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

There was pomp, circumstance, a host of University of Massachusetts dignitaries. But most of the 2,000-plus capacity crowd went to the special convocation in the Fine Arts Center yesterday for just one reason — to see one particularly esteemed alumnus.

And from the time he stood up to receive his honorary masters of fine arts degree — revealing some argyle sock to a standing ovation that seemed prepared to roar on without end — to the friendly greeting he gave a small child outside before he left, he was classic, comic, Bill Cosby.

On a rare visit to his alma mater — he holds a masters (1972) and doctor's (1977) in education from UMass — the man we know on Thursdays as Cliff Huxtable, obstetrician and father, and exuberant Coca-Cola and Jell-O spokesman the rest of the time, spoke with warmth, humor and only a little bit of modesty.

First he reminisced about the way he came to study at UMass. Here for a performance, he was recruited from a green vinyl couch in the Cage — "which is still there" — convinced to give up a $7,500 a week salary to earn a master's degree "which would enable me to make in a year what I could make in four weeks." Several years later, his extensively titled doctoral thesis — "An Integration of the Visual Media via Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids Into the Elementary School Curriculum," it begins — was published.

He blasted critics who claim he didn't earn his degree. "I don't care what person writes 12 more books about whether I went to class or not — tell them to come see me. I'll throw down all the things I've

continued on page 10

Fees up by $226

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Board of Trustees yesterday raised mandatory student fees by $69 per semester, an 8.5 percent hike, and raised the average room and board bill $157 per semester.

With the fee increases, the cost of attending UMass for in-state undergraduates living on campus will rise from $4,342 to $4,656 next semester.

The fee hikes include: a $30 increase in the health services fee; a $20 increase in the supplemental health fee, which all students must pay if they do not purchase other insurance; a $13 rise in the athletic fee; and $6 more for the Fine Arts Center.

"There's been a decided effort to keep fees down," UMass President David C. Knapp said, responding to what he called "rumors" that University fees are climbing uncontrollably.

Knapp said the $50 total increase in the supplemental health benefits and the health services fee was forced by rising malpractice insurance costs.

He attributed the athletic fee increase to higher coaches' salaries, maintenance and travel costs.

The average room bill was increased $84 and the meals bill $73. Joyce Hosie, spokeswoman for the president's office, said the increases are necesary for personnel costs and goods and services. $3.1 million has been earmarked for residence hall maintenance.

The board, meeting yesterday afternoon in Memorial Hall, also voted to continue the Engineering Trust Fund Fee, the $100-per-semester fee engineering students pay for purchase and upkeep of laboratory equipment. The fee had been opposed by the Student Government Association Rents and Fees Committee, which argued that a onetime grant of $4.5 million pending from the state Legislature would make the fee unneccesary.

Knapp said the fee is still needed because the state money would be for purchases only and not for equipment maintenance.

The trustees also voted to direct the University of Massachusetts Foundation to acquire the Kappa Sigma fraternity house at Butterfield Terrace for no more than $800,000, in order to remodel the building into a proposed admissions office.

"We must project a more personalized image [to potential students] than our present admissions office enables us to do," said Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

Dual system causes merit pay discrepancies

Fourth in a series.

BY CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

Differences in faculty salaries due to merit pay are complicated by the University of Massachusetts' two-tier bonus system, in which deans and administrators make separate awards that often skew the recommendations of academic departments.

Some faculty members charge that the system allows high-level UMass officials to create rich and poor classes of professors at their own discretion. Administrators defend the process as creating incentives and keeping the best instructors at UMass.

In fiscal year 1986, merit pay money was divided into two pools of $786,047 each. The pools, known as pool A and pool B, are distributed among academic departments according to the number of bargaining unit members within each, under guidelines negotiated between the UMass Board of Trustees and the faculty union.

Seventy percent of each school or college's pool B money can be arbitrarily doled out by each dean to the departments of his or her choice; hence pool B is commonly called the "dean's pool."

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

Once each department is informed of how much bonus money it has, its personnel committee can review its instructors' work and make recommendations for merit awards from both pools.

The main difference between the two pools, says Susan Pearson, director of academic administration, is that pool A is grievable by departments and pool B is not. If a personnel committee disagrees with Pool A changes made by deans or administrators in its original recommendations, it may submit an appeal.

Personnel committees make recommendations for both pools of money, while deans recommend bonuses from pool B only.

For pool B, "I don't follow the recommendations of the personnel committee," said James John, dean of the School of Engineering. "Pool B has the department heads' recommendations and then I make my recommendations."

Dean of humanities and fine arts Murray Schwartz said

continued on page 7

Bomb explodes in jetliner killing four

Palestinian group claims responsibility

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - A luggage bomb exploded inside a TWA jetliner bound for Athens yesterday, hurtling an American man, two women and a baby three miles through the Greek skies to their deaths, officials reported.

A little-known Palestinian group claimed responsibility for the bombing, saying it was in retaliation for "American arrogance" in last week's US military clash with Libya.

Seven other people, including four Americans, were injured aboard the Boeing 727 - Flight 840 from Rome - which landed safely in Athens 10 minutes later, a gaping hole in its side, officials reported.

The explosion occurred at floor level in rows 10 or 11 of the passenger cabin, blowing one seat out through the hole as the jet flew at 15,000 feet, TWA President Richard D. Pearson said in New York. A senior Athens airport security official, Panagiotiso Christopoulos, had said the blast occurred in the cargo section below the seats.

The airline said 121 people were on board, including 111 passengers, seven crew members and three off-duty crew members. Earlier accounts said 124 were on board. The flight originated in Los Angeles, stopped in New York and was scheduled to go on to Cairo, Egypt, after leaving Athens.

"There was a big bang and then the man beside me was blown out along with his seat," said Ibrahim al-Nami,29, a Saudi Arabian passenger who was among the injured. "I felt myself being pulled out too and I hung on to my wife's seat beside me."

Three bodies were found on an unused Greek air force landing strip outside Argos, 120 miles southwest of Athens, said Christopoulos. Police said all four bodies were recovered.

He identified the dead as Alberto Stino, a Colombian-born American; Dimitra Stylianopoulu, 52, a Greek; her daughter, Maria, 25; and her infant granddaughter. The baby's name and age were not given.

A reporter in Argos, Georgios Seraphim, told The Associated Press that a shepherd saw the bodies tumbling from the sky.

"The villagers found them - the partly dismembered body of an elderly man, a woman and a baby girl, about 18 months old, and a shattered plane seat," Seraphim said. He said "part of a leg" of a fourth person was found.

Christopoulos at one point said another man and another baby were missing, but those reports turned out to be wrong.

The Palestinian group, Arab Revolutionary Cells, claimed responsibility for the bombing in an anonymous telephone call to a Western news agency in Beirut, Lebanon.

The caller, speaking in Palestinian-accented Arabic, said the Ezzedine Kasam Unit of the Arab Revolutionary Cells planted the bomb aboard the plane in retaliation for last week's US military confrontation with Libya in the Gulf of Sidra.

It was a response "to American imperialist attacks against our Arab nation and the Jamahiriya Libya," he said.

He denounced "American arrogance and attempts to dominate our Arab nation," and said his group would stage further attacks against US targets "across the world."

There was no immediate official Libyan comment on the attack. But an employee of the government news agency in Tripoli, Libya, asserted that it had "nothing to do with us."

Reagan orders probe into airplane bombing

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Reagan ordered an investigation into the bomb blast yesterday that killed four passengers on a TWA flight to Athens, his aides said.

"It is highly probable that the situation that occurred does involve violation of United States law and so it is appropriate that we provide investigative resources," Attorney General Edwin Meese III said in an interview on the CBS Evening News.

"The president directed US authorities to cooperate in the investigation," White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters in Santa Barbara, Calif., near where Reagan is vacationing.

Speakes said the president was notified of the explosion at 6:35 a.m. PST 9:35 EST by Donald Fortier, an official of the National Security Council.

The Justice Department, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Aviation Administration were assigned to help Italian and Greek authorities investigating the bomb, which exploded on a Boeing 727 as it flew at 11,000 feet over southern Greece.

The chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and a prominent expert on terrorism - both speaking prior to the telephone call claiming responsibility - said they believed the bombing may have been related to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, but neither suggested he ordered the attack.

Terrorists may have set the bomb "to make us look important," said Robert Kupperman, an expert on terrorism at the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies.

"My instincts tell me that this is related to the Gulf of Sidra matter," said Kupperman. "In my mind, I see it as purely a retaliation."

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said that the incident, "coupled with the very real possibility of Libyan-inspired terrorist attacks following our recent freedom of navigation exercise in the Gulf of Sidra, underscores the need for prompt and effective action to combat the spread of international terrorism." ??????investigators are looking into the explosion, but declined to say specifically whether the State Department believes it is safe for Americans to travel in the region.

Vice President Geoge Bush, who was briefed on the incident by NSC officials, planned to depart as scheduled today on a trip to the Middle East, said spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. Bush plans to meet the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Oman and Bahrain.

In other developments: - A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Bill Carter, said officials were "monitoring the situation."

FBI agents cannot go to a foreign country and investigate unless invited by the country, but they can gather evidence in cooperation with foreign agencies for presentation to a grand jury for a possible indictment.

AP photo

WALLACE SAYS GOODBYE—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace announced yesterday he will not seek a record fifth term as governor.

AP photo

STRIKE SUPPORT—United Steel workers of America president leads several hundred steel workers on a march to TWA's Pittsburgh sales office yesterday. The steel workers marched in support of TWA flight attendants who have been on strike for the last month.

Air Force search-and-rescue plane crashes killing eleven

MAGDALENA, N.M. (AP)- An Air Force search-and-rescue airplane carrying 11 crewmembers crashed in a ball of flames yesterday in a desolate area of west-central New Mexico, and authorities said all aboard were killed.

The HC-130 plane was assigned to Kirtland Air Force Base at Albuquerque, said Kay Peterson, spokeswoman at the base. Ruben Leal, public affairs specialist at Kirtland, said the airplane was on a routine training mission.

Rudy Chavez, state police dispatcher in Socorro, said the medical investigator reported that all aboard the aircraft were dead.

"The wreckage is scattered over a mile radius," at the scene 10 miles north of Magdalena.

Bob Hlady, spokesman for University of New Mexico Hospital, said the hospital's helicopter ambulance was dispatched to the scene but "did not come back with anybody."

Joe Sanchez, a ranch hand, said he witnessed the accident from about 10 miles away.

"We saw a big ball of smoke, then another one, then a big ball of fire," he said. "It was a big old explosion - like a forest fire."

He said he met sheriff's officers on the way to the crash site and went to the scene in an isolated area known as Bear Mountain.

The wreckage was "spread in little canyons and little hills...and little trees," Sanchez said.

"It looks like a lot of burned parts on the ground, broken parts."

Family receives suspended sentence

STOUGHTON, Mass. (AP)- Three members of a white family have received suspended jail terms after pleading guilty to 42 charges of harassing a black family living next door to them in Sharon.

The charges included civil rights violations, threats and trespassing. They alleged that from June 1985 through last January, the three uprooted shrubs and cut rosebushes in the black family's yard, dumped dog excrement, refuse and garbage in the yard and made threatening telephone calls after midnight.

Stoughton District Judge Robert B. Sheiber called the offenses "a form of terrorism."

He imposed suspended jail terms on Edmund P. Marvelli, 71, a retired cabinetmaker; his wife, Barbara, 59; and their daughter Judith, 27, a professional dog groomer.

They also were placed on probation for six years and fined $3,062.50.

"Our other neighbors are fantastic," said Thomas C. Sweeney, 44, whose family was the target of the harassment.

"They rallied to our cause. We love Sharon. This is not indicative of the mentality of people in Sharon."

Sweeney, who is an assistant vice president of State Street Bank & Trust Co. in Quincy, lives in Sharon with his wife, Vera, and their children, Joanne, 14, Vanessa, 11 and Thomas Jr., 7.

Lesbian/Gay awareness week begins Saturday

A lesbian comedian, a coffee house with local gay and lesbian artists and a speech by a former nun who is a lesbian, will be some of the events held next week during the third annual Lesbian and Gay Awareness week.

"By offering this kind of program to the whole community we do attract, to these events, not only gay and lesbian people but also people from the heterosexual population," said Reed Ide, a director of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns at the University of Massachusetts. "And that's the first step in overcoming homophobia -- education, in fact, that's all the steps."

The week begins Saturday with comedian Robin Tyler. There will be about 36 events held in eight days including speakers, films, workshops, and cultural events. The event will close with the performance of the Boston Gay Men's Chorus April 13, Ide said.

"The week is held to celebrate and give lesbian and gay people a chance to feel good and to feel proud," said Felice Yeskel, the program's other director.

Tables containing information on issues concerning the gay and lesbian population -- including AIDS and safe sex and related literature -- will be set up in the Campus Center Concourse and at each event.

"We will be giving out buttons at the tables and asking people in to wear them in solidarity and support of us," Yeskel said.

"I think a week like this affirms and supports people and it makes it possible for some people to come out [of the closet] more," Yeskel said.

—JEANETTE DeFORGE

Quiet senate acts on 18 items

By CRAIG SANDLER
Collegian Staff

An unusually quiet Undergraduate Student Senate meeting last night was more notable for what did not happen than for what did, as motions on international affairs and the censure of student leaders were postponed or withdrawn.

Under newly sworn-in Speaker Paul Wingle, the senate took action on eighteen agenda items, far more than in recent weeks, and there was general agreement that the atmosphere in the senate was much improved over the recent past.

"You have a speaker the senate supports," said Southwest Residential Area senator Bill Collins, who earlier said the departure of former speaker John Ruddock was "like having a bad tooth pulled."

The content if not the style of his comments was echoed by other senators. Senator Joe Sparks attributed the lack of rancor to Wingle's being "direct and to the point," and also pointed out that debate on controversial issues was avoided.

Southwest Area senator Denise Forbes withdrew her motion to thank President Reagan and the U.S. armed forces for "blowing Libya out of the water." Forbes told the senate she made the motion to protest what she called "stupid motions" dealing with the senate's view of international issues.

A motion to condemn US involvement in Nigaragua was referred to the senate's public policy committee. A motion to censure Student Judiciary Attorney General Scot McCracken was postponed indefinitely, and a motion to censure Collins for "debating for the sake of debating" was withdrawn by its maker, Commuter Area senator Felipe Barreda.

The senate passed a measure requiring its speaker to call the roll at any future meeting at which there is a question of whether a quorum is present. The motion was a reaction to a meeting last month that was abruptly ended by Ruddock, who ruled no quorum was present after a walkout by some senators.

The senate referred to its Rents and Fees committee the question of whether to endorse plans for a proposed $36.5 million domed stadium at the University of Massachusetts. Construction would begin in 1990 under present plans.

With his hand on a Bible, the SGA bylaws and a copy of Robert's Rules of order, Wingle was sworn in at 7:38 p.m. He was shortly followed by new Treasurer Katherine Strickland, incumbent student trustee Dani Burgess, and incoming campus President Bill Bennett. Each ended their oaths of office by promising "to have fun."

Collegian photo by Michelle Segail

LAY IT OUT DUDE—Seniors Donny Williamson and Gregg Novick battle for the disc at yesterdays Zoo Disc practice. Zoo is currently ranked second in the country and heads to Virginia this weekend for the annual April Fools tournament.

Pizza delivery man punched in the eye

A 19-year-old man allegedly punched a pizza delivery man in the eye "for no apparent reason" at 11:50 p.m. Tuesday in a parking lot near the John Quincy Adams Tower, University of Massachusetts police said.

In other police reports:

- Obscenities were found painted on a 1978 Chevrolet at 12 p.m. Tuesday in the stadium parking lot, police said.
- Bathroom shower stalls received about $150 in damages when curtains were slashed, metal walls were dented and ceramic tiles were reported broken at 7:54 a.m. Tuesday on the 9th floor of the John Quincy Adams Tower. The showers have already been repaired, police said.
- A portable radio cassette deck worth $150 was reported stolen at 9:32 p.m. Tuesday from a jeep in lot 32, police said.
- Three no parking signs and six sign poles were reported stolen at 10:26 a.m. Tuesday from the tow zone near Fisher Labs, police said.

—JEFFRY BARTASH

Bright night flight

Collegian photo by Ian Polumbaum Paul Franz

The University skyline is a backdrop to cars speeding along Route 116, in this time exposure taken from the Rocky Hill Road bridge

Landscaping at Cage continues

Landscaping work on the south side of the Curry Hicks Cage resumed Tuesday after being postponed in the fall due to cold weather, the Physical Plant department said.

The landscaping for the area, which is about 50 feet wide and 150 feet long, will include the installation of two walkways from the Southwest Residential Area, granite slabs flush with the ground, and shrubs. On the south side of the building, facing Munson Hall, benches and a sitting wall will be created, said Edmund Ryan, Physical Plant construction director.

According to Ryan, the total cost of the project is $150,000, which includes work done last fall.

"In order to open the Cage last fall, we just laid the blacktop down," he said.

A temporary fence has been installed around the work area for safety reasons, said Ed Zaganiacz, a foreman with the Warner Brothers Construction Co. of Sunderland, which is doing the landscaping. Zaganiacz said he expects work to be completed within six weeks.

Pedestrians will not be inconvenienced by the construction because a path connects the walkways between Southwest and behind the Cage, Zaganiacz said. The work will slightly restrict the parking in the area, he said.

"We are making every effort not to inconvenience people, and are asking everyone to bear with us," Ryan said. The work should not interfere with fans who gather near the area to watch lacrosse games at Boyden Field, he said.

—JENNIFER ACE

SMITH COLLEGE REC COUNCIL PRESENTS=

the Bangles
&
the Hoodoo Gurus

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1986, 9PM
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SMITH COLLEGE, NORTHAMPTON

SMITH STUDENTS $7 & $8
+LIMIT 4 TICKETS PER ID.
NON-SMITH STUDENTS $8 & $9
AT THE DOOR $10

NO CANS, BOTTLES, CAMERAS OR RECORDING DEVICES.
HALL IS WHEEL CHAIR ACCESSIBLE

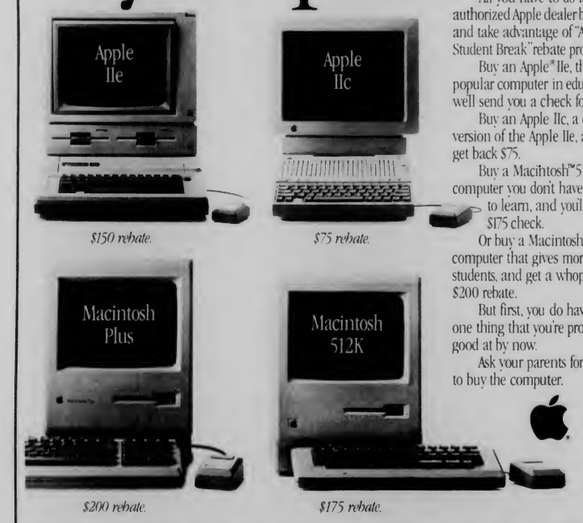
TICKETS:
SEELYE BASEMENT - WEEKDAYS NOON-3 PM
+MARCH 25 - APRIL 2
MAIN ST. RECORDS - NORTHAMPTON
FOR THE RECORD (FACES) - AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE - UMASS
ALL DATATIX OUTLETS, INCLUDING:
+SPRINGFIELD STOP & SHOP
+SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER

Summer at Brandeis University

Session I—June 9 to July 11
Session II—July 14 to August 15

- Liberal Arts
- Premedical Sciences
- Computer Science
- Theatre Arts
- Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
- Foreign Languages
- Costume Field Research in England
- Archaeological Field Research in Israel

Small classes taught by Brandeis Faculty
Information, catalog and application
BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY
SUMMER SCHOOL
Waltham, MA 02254
617-647-2786



free catalog★

round trip from LONDON 438
PARIS 438
AMSTERDAM 428
BRUSSELS 438

Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 when busy 256-1261
or drop by
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

How to get money out of someone besides your parents.

$150 rebate. $75 rebate. $200 rebate. $175 rebate.

All you have to do is visit your authorized Apple dealer by June 30th and take advantage of "Apple's Student Break" rebate program.

Buy an Apple® IIe, the most popular computer in education, and we'll send you a check for $150.

Buy an Apple IIc, a compact version of the Apple IIe, and you'll get back $75.

Buy a Macintosh™ 512K, the computer you don't have to study to learn, and you'll get a $175 check.

Or buy a Macintosh Plus, the computer that gives more power to students, and get a whopping $200 rebate.

But first, you do have to do one thing that you're probably pretty good at by now.

Ask your parents for the money to buy the computer.

© 1986 Apple Computer Inc. Apple and the Apple logo are registered trademarks of Apple Computer Inc. Macintosh is a trademark of McIntosh Laboratory, Inc and is being used with its express permission. For an authorized Apple dealer near you, call (800) 538-9696, ext. 455. Offer good only in the United States.

ANDRE GREEN
psychoanalyst and literary critic speaks on

"HAMLET:
A Psychoanalytic
Interpretation"

Date: April 3
Time: 8 p.m.
Place: 165-169 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts

Downtown Amherst
Daily & Sundays
ESPRIT

Noontime tomorrow: discussion on gay issues

A noontime discussion tomorrow led by a facilitator of Lesbians of Color, an on-campus support group, will kick off a series of weekly programs focusing on lesbian, gay and bisexual issues.

Darlene Jackson, an assistant coordinator of the educator/advocate program at the Everywoman's center, will start the series, which is "designed to be a very informal forum in which students can meet older gay, lesbian and bisexual people, adults, and just sit around and talk around with them," said Reed Ide, co-director of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

The idea for the program, "Celebrating the Diversity of Our Lives," came from an informal discussion that gay activist David Summers had with students before speaking on campus last December.

"For those who were there, it was a more valuable experience than the evening presentation," Ide said.

The discussion will be held tomorrow, on April 11, 18 and May 2, at the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Alliance office on the fourth floor of the Student Union Building. Speakers will include a lesbian faculty member, a graduate student in education, and Ide, who will relate his experiences as a gay rights activist.

The series aims to achieve "for the students, a sense of diversity for the gay, lesbian, bisexual community, a stronger sense of people achieving in their lives. A certain amount of role-modeling I suppose is built into all that," Ide said.

"This is a chance for people to widen out the view of gay, lesbian and bisexual lives, and to start looking at the questions and issues that come up in a way that's real safe and comfortable," Ide said.

— NANCY KLINGENER

Lesbian/Gay Week Schedule

Saturday, April 5 8 p.m., Mahar Auditorium
An evening with Robin Tyler, nationally known feminist comic 8 p.m., Hampden Theater
Play: One Good Look, written and directed by UMass student Richard Ballon, $2 admission
Sunday, April 6 12-4:30 p.m., Campus Center
Workshops 7:30 p.m., Campus Center Auditorium
Films: Buddies, The Times of Harvey Milk
Monday, April 7 12-1:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge
Lunchtime film series 4 p.m., Memorial Hall
Speaker: Kevin Cathcart, "AIDS, Its impact on family and criminal law, housing and employment and lesbian and gay civil rights law 8 p.m., Memorial Hall
Keynote speaker: Rosemary Curb, author and former nun, "Lesbian Nuns, Breaking Silence"
Tuesday, April 8 4 p.m., Campus Center 168
Speaker: New York AIDS activist David Summers and film, Hero of My Own Life" 8 p.m., Campus Center 168
Speaker: author, activist Vito Russo, "The Celluloid Closet: Lesbians and Gays on Film," followed by film of the same title
Wednesday, April 9 12-1:30 p.m., 805 Campus Center
Human Relations forum with film 8 p.m., 168 Campus Center
Speaker: Gwendolyn Rogers, National Coalition of Blacks, Lesbians and Gays, staff psychologist, City University of New York, "Lessons from Nairobi: Black Lesbians' Organizing Solidarity"
Thursday, April 10 12-1:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge
Lunchtime film series 4:30 p.m., Memorial Hall
Speaker: author Kathleen Barry, "Susan B. Anthony: A life for the Love of Women" 8 p.m., 227 Herter
Speaker: David Scondras, openly gay Boston city councillor, author of Boston Human Rights Ordinance, "The struggle for gay rights in Boston"
Friday, April 11 12-1:30 p.m., LBGA Office, 413 Student Union
Brown bag speaker series, lesbian faculty member at UMass 3-5 p.m., Campus Center
Lesbian caucus for UMass lesbians 7:30 p.m., Blue Wall
Coffee House, local lesbian, gay and bisexual artists

★ lawsuit

continued from page 1

of officials of Citicorp Inc., said to be the largest US lender to the South African government.

In June 1985 charges of disturbing the peace against Hoffman and Kenen were dropped. Also that month, the UMass Board of Trustees voted unanimously to divest from all companies doing business in South Africa.

Charles DiMare, director of the UMass Legal Services Office, who is representing the plaintiffs, said the litigation is the last resort in an effort to persuade the University police department to "take a close look at its training, discipline and civilian complaint investigation procedures."

Student leaders have periodically accused campus police of overstepping their bounds, notably last April when John Ruddock, then speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate, was arrested during a senate meeting for his role in a sit-in in Treasurer Robert Brand's office. Ruddock was convicted of wanton destruction, because he vaulted a police officer's car to warn officials that a bus carrying arrested protesters was leaking gasoline. He is appealing the case.

STAFF WANTED for the
UMASS
CRITICAL ART REVIEW

Production/Editorial
for this and Fall semester
* General Meeting April 7th, 7:00 pm
Room 4 Marshall Annex
* For further information, contact
David Fish at 545-3625

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓

Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM

Pu-Pu Platter $12.00

Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM

2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571

150 King St,
Northampton
586-8220

CO-OP COMES TO YOU
The Office for Cooperative Education
presents
A Series of April Information Sessions
on
Summer and Six Month Co-ops

Monday, April 7	Mary Lyon Main Lounge	7:00-8:30
Tuesday, April 8	CCEBMS New Africa House	12 Noon
Wednesday, April 9	232 MacKimmie	7:00-8:30
Thursday, April 10	Webster Main Lounge	7:00-8:30

The Co-op Connection: "Benefits to Students and Employers"
Tuesday, April 15 Campus Center 168, 7 pm
Speaker: Charles Trearchis, Meneger of College/Professional Recruiting, IBM

SUMMER JOBS

Application forms and job descriptions for positions with Summer Conference Housing are now available outside of the University Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center. Jobs as student supervisors, desk clerks, and operations crew personnel are being offered. Full and part time openings are available and include all shifts, weekdays and weekends.

HRTA and work study students are encouraged to apply.

University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution.

GRAND OPENING WEEK!
KATINA'S
RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS. 586-4463
COME SEE & ENJOY OUR HUGE DANCE FLOOR & BEAUTIFUL FIREPLACE!

18-20 YEAR OLDS:
Come sample our full juice bar & enjoy the entertainment!

★ THURSDAY! Top 40's band HIGH TIDE with Trey Johnson
★ FRIDAY! IN THE FLESH plus Special Guests ART IN MOTION
★ SPECIAL SUNDAY SHOW: STARTS AT 9:00 p.m.
COMEDIAN/VENTRILOQUIST BOB CARROL
R-RATED SHOW
PLUS ROCK!
THE MANNISH BOYS AT 10:00!!

SATURDAY NIGHT GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION - Begins at 7:30 p.m.
•COME AND MEET KATINA
•HORS D'OEUVRES
•PARTY FAVORS!
•NEW GAME ROOM
•GRAND DOOR PRIZE A FREE WATERBED courtesy BETTERLST WATERBEDS RT. 9, HADLEY

the Hungry U Restaurant
Buy any Sub at Regular Price
Get Second at ½ PRICE
Good with coupon only!
(Higher priced item prevails)
expires 4.10.86
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!
Styles by Deborah
Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl. $34.95
6 Cyl. $39.95
8 Cyl. $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil, and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wahlburg's Store
549-4704

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

KARATE
$19.95
for 4 weeks
Fred Villari's
Studio
253-7349

NO MUSS. NO FUSS.
HAPPY SMILE
KAMIKAZE
COCKTAIL
60 PROOF
VODKA · TRIPLE SEC · NATURAL LIME FLAVORS
JUST CHILL AND SERVE
HAPPY SMILE KAMIKAZE T-SHIRT
100% cotton with label design on front side
• 1 shirt $6.00 postage paid
• 2 shirts - Happy Smile frisbee $15.00 PPD
Circle Size XL L M S
SEND CHECK OR MONEY ORDER TO
(Allow 2 weeks for delivery)
HAPPY SMILE T SHIRT OFFER
PO BOX 2218
Princeton NJ 08540-0011
Please Print
Name
Address
City State Zip

services · legal · office · university · massachusetts, amherst, ma. 01003
LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED FOR FALL, 1986
Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits -
Work directly with attorneys -
No experience in the legal profession is necessary; training is provided -
Deadline to begin your application is APRIL 9 -
Contact Legal Services today - 545-1995

Hampden Creamery
located in Hampden Snack Bar
presents a
New Ice Cream Adventure
OPEN
10 am-11 pm
7 days
Homemade Waffle Cones
Super Sundaes
Banana Splits
Hand Dipped Ice Cream
Candy Topping
Ice Cream Milkshakes
Awful Waffle Sundaes
Homemade Gourmet Chocolate Chip Cookies
Get the Scoop!

SENIORS:
"It's fabulous. Exciting. Dynamic. I can't wait."
-- Claire Adams, Class of '86
"★★★★★. Awesome. A must-see."
-- Tony Mazola, Class of '86
"The most incredible thing to hit UMass since dorms went co-ed."
-- Joe Wagner, Class of '86
Nominated for Most Original Screenplay, Most Animated Soundtrack and Best Supporting Cast, it's Mass Transformation
A Class Act.
Thursday's your chance to join in. Organizational meeting for all seniors will be held at 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 165-169. This will be your only opportunity to sign up, so don't miss it. Bring a friend.
In the meantime, more information is available at our table outside the Student Union Mini Store. Or, call 545-0487. So don't miss out.
It's a class act.

★ Two-pool system causes discrepancies in merit pay

continued from page 1

departments.

"I may be aware of special activities that are not as visible to the department committees. I make sure that people end up with comparable amounts of merit money for comparable work," he said.

If he or she feels adjustments are necessary, a dean usually compensates an instructor through pool B.

However, examination of fiscal 1986 merit allocations shows vast differences in how departments and deans awarded the money.

Bonus figures for several departments show that deans do not always divide pool B money based on departments' judgment, but often award a few large sums that do not reflect personnel committee recommendations.

The merit increases awarded each year are added to professors' base salaries, which can lead to vast differences in their income. Even if two professors have the same academic ranking and start with the same salary, merit pay can quickly push one's income up while having little impact on the other's.

The department of mathematics and statistics awarded M$590 each to 34 faculty members and $1,180 or more to 14 of the 57 professors eligible for merit pay.

While none of the professors who received $1,180 from pool A were awarded money from pool B, one professor who only got $590 from pool A was compensated from pool B with $3,720.

The division of public health fairly evenly distributed merit increases from pool A. But from the "dean's pool," four of the 17 public health professors received additional increases ranging from $2,000 to $3,425 from pool B, while others were awarded comparatively little or no money.

One public health professor who received $725 from pool A was awarded $300 from pool B. In contrast, another professor received $775 from pool A and a $3,425 dean's increase, more than 10 times the first professor, who was deemed equally deserving by the personnel committee.

As a result, the merit pay process creates two classes of professors who receive bonuses. The majority of professors receive increases totaling less than $1,000, while approximately one-third of the professors receive almost three times as much money.

"Some people retire with enough to live on; others don't have enough to live on. This is reality," said Daphne Patai, a professor of Portuguese and one of the strongest critics of the merit pay process. "The thing we're talking about is long-term inequalities. People of the same age may have salaries $20,000 apart from one another. There's nothing [that can change this] short of abolishing the present merit system."

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

UMass administrators and professors who are satisfied with the system respond that the process' purpose is to distinguish and reward the best faculty members.

"Merit will vary to the extent of the meritorious work done," Provost Richard O'Brien said. "After years of this process, the best should be the best paid. Otherwise they'll be stolen by other institutions.

"The merit process signals to people and their colleagues how they are perceived [and] whether they are in the right business," O'Brien said.

"It provides a financial incentive to do things that are considered important for the professor's individual career and for the benefit of the University," said Stanley A. Lemeshow, public health professor. "It's the only mechanism we have."

Pearson, the academic administrator, added: "If there is a distinction in the performance of these people, I don't see why there shouldn't be a distinction of the rewards given to them."

Next: How is merit determined?

Summer internship in Appropriate Technology
If you are interested in small scale agriculture, homesteading, or overseas service (private agency or Peace Corps), you can get hands-on practical experience with windmills, well and water systems, photovoltaics (electricity from the sun), small animal husbandry, gardening, and much more. The Windfarm Museum partially paid five week summer internship is for those who feel their future plans may need this knowledge. It is relevent to any major. While not a job, your work time should substantially cover your expenses.
For information write:
Windfarm Museum
RFD #2, Box 86
Martha's Vinayard, MA 02568
Tel. (617) 693-3658

The U.S. Postal Service will be accepting applications for temporary summer employment on April 8, 1986 from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM in Room 901 of the Campus Center. This work involves distribution of mail, delivery of mail and loading/unloading trucks at the Springfield General Mail Facility, 190 Fiberloid Street, Springfield, MA 01152. The pay is $5.00 per hour and 10% for work performed between 6:00 PM and 6:00 AM.

arts jump with the Collegian

IBM-PC* COMPATIBLE
$1500
256 K memory
10 MEGABYTE (w/single Floppy)
• 150 watt power supply (upgrade to 640K available)
• Hi-res green or amber monitor
• Parallel printer port
• Keyboard: AT or XT style
• Hi-resolution Hercules emulation board
Dual Floppy System only $1050
* Trademark of International Business Machines
promptWorks
Northfield, MA (413) 498-2724

Summit Leather
Connect the dots SALE
YELLOW - 10% off
RED - 20% off
BLUE - 25-40% off
MAR. 27-APRIL 11
purchase a regular priced coat, and receive complimentary conditioner
Hampshire Mall
Rte 9 — Hadley
586-2014

OPENING DAY
Boston Red Sox vs.
World Champion
Kansas City Royals
MONDAY APRIL 14th
Reserved Grand Stand Seats
$22.00 for bus transportation tickets
Call Leisure Services and Supplemental Education
256-6781 for further info

Come Down and Make Your . . .
Caribbean Connection
at
Bart Street
10 Pearl St., Northampton
MONDAY, APRIL 7th
8:00 PM
A Night of Island Magic with 4 Live Bands!!
MONTAGE recording artists
COOL RUNNINGS
LOOSE CABOOSE
also soloist Bill Potter being taped for the TV series
CARIBBEAN CONNECTION
made possible in part by the Advocate Newspapers and the Springfield Arts Lottery Council
Tickets available at:
Albums - Amherst
Main St Records - N'hampton
Dynamite Records - N'hampton

University Sport Entertainment & Promotion
"USEP"
presents
Monty Python's
LIFE OF BRIAN
Thursday, April 3
Campus Center Auditorium
5 p.m. $1.50 7, 9, 11 p.m. $2.00
ANOTHER SGA SPONSORED EVENT

Special Student / Youth Fares to SCANDINAVIA
On Scheduled Airlines!
The inexpensive way to get to Scandinavia and other destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.
Winter Rates to Scandinavia
New York to Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
New York to Helsinki
from $270 one way
Chicago to Copenhagen
from $240 one way, $400 roundtrip
Chicago to Oslo, Stockholm, Helsinki
from $280 one way, $480 roundtrip
and tours designed especially for students to the SOVIET UNION
For Information Call:
WHOLE WORLD TRAVEL
Youth and student travel experts for over a decade
17 E. 45th St., New York, NY 10017
(212) 986-9470
Summer Fares Now Available!

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Founded in 1890

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief · Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor · Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager · Conor Plunkett, Production Manager · Elizabeth Young, Business Manager · Sherry Shartman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dede B. Levenson, Editor in Chief · Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor · Joel P. Coffids, News Editor · John Yonce, Women's Editor · Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor · Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor · Michelle Segall, Photo Editor · Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor · Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Can't be silenced

Peter Dow

Once again, the radical left has shown its true colors for all to see. Indeed, despite their empty rhetoric assuring us that they support freedom of speech, and despite their blatant lies assuring us that they would not organize disruptive protests, the radical left did succeed in disrupting and ending the presentation on Monday by Jorge Rosales and journalist Mike Waller, sponsored by the UMass Republican Club. For the record, it was the police who ordered the event shut down, not the Republican Club, which is furious at the decision. The disgusting actions perpetrated against these people and the audience by the radical left simply exposes many frightening aspects of this fringe of the political spectrum.

First, the radical left are hypocrites and pose a severe threat to the academic freedom of University students. While they rant and rave about "white male oppression ," and "corporate oppression," they simultaneously engage in activities which oppress our constitutioal rights as American citizens. The repeated shouting of "liar," "fascist," and "murderer," the hissing and booing, the guerilla theatre, and the hurling of obscenities are not innocent exercises of the right to protest. These actions are deliberate attempts to prevent the free exchange of ideas at this university. Indeed, the radical left held a vigil and rally on Monday which were not disrupted by conservatives in any way. Yet, when the radical left was asked to universally apply the right of free speech to the contra presentation, they claimed that the disruptive protest was required since Rosales and Waller did not speak "the truth." I would remind the radical left that nobody at the University appointed them as regulators of the "truth." Indeed, we should all fear the day when this collection of anarchists, Marxists, and communists might gain power for that is the day our civil liberties and academic freedom will end, only to be followed by ignorance and tyranny. The tactics of Accuracy in Academia certainly pale in comparison to the tactics of the new McCarthyism of the radical left.

Secondly, it is only appropriate that the radical left has adopted the same tactics (on a much smaller scale, for now at least) employed by the Sandinista dictatorship in Nicaragua they so vehemently support and defend. Sandinista mobs, called turbas, continually harass and disrupt any organized meetings of opposition groups, and Sandinista-sponsored violence against opposition leaders has frequently occurred. I can only hope more rational people prevail, and this escalation of conflict can be averted on this campus.

Thirdly, the actions of a group of SCERA employees at the contra presentation merits discussion. SCERA has long been involved in fighting oppression on this campus; yet, on Monday night, a number of employees violated the principles of SCERA, as they were active in disrupting the Republican Club event. Stephen Erickson made two appropriate suggestions in his column yesterday: that the SCERA employees be put on notice, and that SCERA create a political tolerance task force. Moreover, if these SCERA employees can not adhere to the SCERA principle of non-oppression during both work and leisure hours, then they should not be paid with student money. Lastly, many UMass conservatives and organizers of the contra event, including myself, have received threats of physical violence from the radical left. Speaking for myself, I can assure any person(s) who would carry out such a threat that appropriate actions will be taken against them. This is not a threat, but merely a warning. Attempts at intimidation have failed in the past, and will continue to be futile. Our right to oppose the radical left and the repressive governments they support is guaranteed, and we will not be silenced.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Not an educator

Timothy Harris

Pity the poor contras. Jorge Rosales came to UMass Monday to simply state his case; that the contras are a popular movement seeking to liberate the Nigarauan people from a totalitarian dictatorship. He faced an angry crowd that on many occasions was downright rude. They seemed to feel this man did not deserve their courtesy.

Some members of the audience carried signs or wore make-up that seemed to exceed the bounds of "good taste." Perhaps they were trying to point out that the realities of the US contra war are not pretty. On July 26, 1984, contras killed seven unarmed civilians in Tapasle, Matagalpa. One had the skin scraped from his face. All of them were castrated and had their throats slit. Some were dismembered and had pieces of their bodies strewn about. On June 28, 1984, contras cut off Pedro Adkinson's tongue and ears and forced him to chew and swallow them. Then they cut off his penis and killed him. Contras are not interested in being decorous.

Channel 40 News depicted the protesters as having approached the issue "emotionally." It's true. People were very upset. Perhaps it bothers them when contras kill civilian workers as they did March 2, 1984 in Ruben Dario, and feed their hearts to dogs. Many feel rage is the only appropriate response to attrocities such as this. Maybe a more rational response than shouting at contras would be to just shoot them. But we are more humane than that.

Others would say the crowd that shouted at Rosales had compromised his right to free speech. The tolerance contras have for ideas is well-known. On July 28, 1982, the FDN took Alberto Rodriguez and 17 members of his family prisoner, accusing them of suppporting liberation theology. They beat and slashed them, killing nine of them. Some were decapitated, others had their throats slit. One contra drank blood. Alberto's daughter and niece were raped. Contras don't believe in basic human rights, let alone free speech.

The college republicans tell us we ought to have approached Rosales' visit as an opportunity to educate ourselves; to sit quietly, maybe take some notes, and leave enricched from the experience. The contras take a dimmer view of education. On April 12, 1983, in Aqua Sacro Abajo the FDN tied up teacher Hector Rivas in front of his class and proceeded to break his ribs and put two bullets in his head. Between that incident and August 1984 nine more teachers from that area have either been killed or disappered.

Internationally, the contras are considered pariahs. This is the only nation in the world that will support them; against the will of its citizens. All of the nations who have signed the Contadora Peace Treaty (the United States is the only hold-out) do not support contra aid. They realize that pumping up a vicious mercenary army can only create more problems in Central America than already exist.

Although Rosales was well groomed and wore a neatly pressed suit, these trappings of respectability did not prevent his audience from seeing the blood he wears. The murder of civilians is not a topic to be polite about, and in light of this the crowd Monday was remarkable restrained. While the war may seem far away, a man who is a murderer there does not become an educator here. Baby-faced Rosales is a barbarian in disguse, and no amount of smooth talk can change that.

Timothy Harris is a Collegian columnist.

The work has just begun

William Bennett

The SGA elections may finally be over, but the work has just begun. Yes, thanks to many of you, I have been elected to the position of SGA Campus President. This is a position which entails experience, which is needed to perform the job effectively; honesty, which is needed to create understanding and cooperation between all UMass students; and motivation, which will be necessary to accomplish the many goals I have set. Experience, honesty, and motivation...qualities that I am thankful you believe I possess.

My job is going to begin with meeting you. Each week I plan on setting aside the time necessary to go out and meet students within the various areas connected with this campus. Meeting you will give me the opportunity to present my ideas first hand as well as for you to voice your concerns or problems you may have encountered here at UMass. This is one of my main objectives: to reach out and to be available to as many students as possible. After all, I was elected by you to represent you.

In connection with this objective, I have begun to formulate and activate a President's Council. This council, which will consist of House Council Presidents, Area Government Presidents, Senate members, and other UMass students, will have the task of bringing all your concerns to the SGA and to the eyes of the administration. The President's Council will bring to students what television has brought to the world...a vast network of communicaton. A network which will effectively allow all concerns to be heard and acted upon. The activation of this council has been long overdue.

Furthermore, I wish to make it known that you are always welcome to stop by the President's Office. Your comments will be valued as well as your input appreciated. I remember, looking back at my campaign, the many questions and the bewildered faces of concerned students. Those students being ones who cared but had not had the opportunity to express that feeling of concern. That will change in 1986-1987. It is time to bring back into student government the main ingredient...the voice of the UMass student. A voice that has been silenced for years and desperately needs to be awakened. Please stop by Student Union room 406 if you have the chance, or call the office and be heard!

Once again, I wish to extend my thanks to all of you for giving me the opportunity to show you my dedication towards the UMass student and our community. I would also like to thank all of my campaign staff who aided me during the first few weeks in March by donating their time and for their support when needed most. But most of all, I wish to extend a special thank you to Mark DeNyse, the person who gave his all, and then some; all in hopes that I would be elected.

Thank you, and remember your voice counts. It's going to be a year filled with progress.

William Bennet is the newly elected SGA president.

Join Mass Transformation

Stacy Roth

Remember all those great ideas you heard about when you were young -- and now that you're older, you wonder where they'll fit in your life. Sure, you remember comaradary, friendship, sharing, caring, community service, respectablity, FUN!!! Ahhh! Now I see the wheels turning. Well there's a project coming up which incorporates all of these things and more, and should be one of the biggest Mass Transformations UMass has ever seen.

On May 1 through May 4, the Mass Transformation, A Class Act project will take hold of the UMass Library Tower. We are inviting members of the Class of '86 (200 altogether) to join in this event. In old jeans and t-shirts, or other work clothes, we will turn out to help with the full renovation of a study floor (the 12th floor).

With our sweat and labor and our style and ability, we, as a group, together -- with the help of some paint brushes and the like -- will create this gift from the Class of '86 to the University, it's history, resources, and community for years to come. With that many of us it will only be a few hours work, but, lest this seem less than the FUN!!! I mentioned, I should add that there will be music and refreshments daily. On Sunday evening, there will be an Awards Ceremony and Victory Celebration to reflect a job well done. And, on Monday, the floor will be unveiled to the public and media.

But this isn't a dressed up rehabilitation project. This won't just be a physical transformation (for us or the Library), it will be an intellectual one as well. We will be changing the way we think about our school, and changing the identity of the Umass community. We have gained academic prowess, awards, and recognition in a place with high quality programs and a multitude of opportunities for a socially diverse population to interact, share, and grow together. This is our way of showing that we are proud of that. Our achievement with A Class Act will say, we, as a part of the community, want to go beyond being thankful as individuals in the privacy of our own minds. We want to be thankful out where people can see it, make use of it, and appreciate it.

After all, for good and ill, better or worse, in sickness and in health, through all-nighters and days in the sun by the Pond, from As to Fs, 'til death does you in, these were your college days, and this is your college. From UMass you'll take away an education that will take you thorugh the rest of your life. You can leave this in return, to say, "I was here," and to say, "thanks."

So while everyone else is doing preregistraton and room drawing, let's you and me -- and a few of your pals plus a few of mine -- get together and do the Tower proud. If you, a senior (for the love of Mike) haven't ever had this kind of involvement, stop by our last chance meeting at 4:30 p.m., ??????s welcome, but you should come register. And remember, we are A Class Act.

Stacy Roth is the departing SGA president.

Factory closings and laws

Said Chlih

United Technologies recently made the decision to close down their plant in Springfield, Massachusetts (American Bosch). Almost 700 employees of this plant suddenly found themselves left in the lurch. "Help! Our sweat and our blood are embodies in these machines that UT are going to move somewhere else!" That is how these employees seem to express their fright about their uncertain future. They have been making several steps in quest of an alternative solution to the shutdown. Unfortunately, most of the people whose help was requested simply turned either a deaf ear or a blind eye.

Because of my experience as Inspector of Labor for the state for six years, I have been following the day-to-day evolution of this case with great interest. To my surprise, I learned that no federal legislation regulates plant closings in the United States. The only one that could have existed was rejected by Congress. It also came to my kowledge that a state law on this matter was passed in Massachusetts. In practice, however, such a law remains without effectiveness because it relies on "a voluntary declaration by (the) employer." In other words, it has no mandatory character; in short, it cannot be enforced.

In this context, I would like to give the reader a brief presentation of a plant closings law which has existed in Morocco since 1967. This law sought essentially to protect the regional economy and the employees from the abuse of some employers.

No doubt is that the incessant thirst of the employers to make more money leads them to minimize, as much as possible, the labor costs in order to guarantee the largest margin of benefits. As a result, they always look for a cheaper labor force. As soon as they find one, they try every possibility that enables them to get rid of their employees; beginning with layoffs and finishing with shutdowns. They never think about the damages that such acts could cause to the community of the area where their plant operates. That is exactly what is going on in Springfield. According to Robert Forrant, the business agent of American Bosch, UT is planning to move out the whole plant to Korea where labor is much cheaper.

In August 1967, the Moroccan legislature issued a decree which regulates every kind of shutdown that could occur. This law is so effective that since it was enacted, it has been "hell on earth for employers."

The third article of this decree states that no employer is allowed to lay off more than three employees and at the same time not to close down his plant unless he gets the permission from the governor of the city. Any violation is sanctionned with jailing and/or a fine.

Moreover, the decree establishes a complicated procedure that makes it difficult, if not impossible, for an employer a plant. In most of the cases, the requests made by employers were rejected. The governor uses this efficient weapon to avoid all what could put the regional economy and his own political reputation, ipso facto, at stake.

Nevertheless when the governor notices that the business is really going through a financial crisis, he allows the employer, for instance, to reduce the working hours until such situation is overcome. If, however, the situaton turns out to be worse, the governor simply asks the employer to sell out his business. In consequence no shutdown occurs and the employees are protected.

This is an example of a Third World country labor law I give here with the hope to see the US Congress enact a federal law which could certainly maintain the social peace between American capital and labor. Besides, a particular attention should be given to the laborers who have been building the American economy and making it stronger.

After all, every thing is possible, and I strongly believe in the American Genius.

Said Chlih is a UMass graduate student from Morocco.

Letters

Problems with papers solved

How do you feel about the paper you're writing? Your ideas are good, but you're having trouble organizing them? The deadline is tomorrow, and you don't know where to begin? You have so much to say that you're becoming confused? Or, are you having trouble saying anything at all?

A visit to a campus Writing Center can help. Because of the increasing demand for this service, the Writing Center has expanded in recent years to its present three locations. All are in the residential areas, where the demand has been greatest, to make them as accessible as possible.

The guiding principle, shared by University Writing Centers nationwide, is the belief that writing is an act of communication, and that by talking about writing, and by learning some simple writing practices, anyone can learn to express themselves better.

The student staff members of the Writing Center are actively engaged in improving their own writing, and are enrolled in a course where they have learned to help you to improve yours. They have been trained to help you unlock what you have to say; to bring out your ideas and help you to decide how best to organize them. "They ask the questions you would not have asked yourself" (Writing Center visitor, Spring 1986). The tutors are not teachers but counsellors: they do not have the answers -- You do. The tutors help you to discover them.

You don't need an appointment, a finished draft, or a knowledge of grammer to use the Writing Center. The tutors are there to listen, even if you only want to complain: "I can't write this paper."

(The Writing Centers are located in Pierpont, Southwest; b24 Baker, Central; and 04 Cashin, Sylvan.)

Margaret Fitzgibbons Peer Counsellor

Rights of audience sacrificed

I attended the Monday evening contra presentation, and the Republican Club made a big fuss over the issue of free speech.

While the disruptions didn't help, the speakers were able to give their point of view. The audience was less fortunate, because the Republican Club cut off the question and answer period -- the only opportunity for responsible dialogue.

I can understand why the Republicans wanted to end the questions: the contras were losing the verbal battle, and losing it badly. Those few questions the audience was able to ask were specific and articulate, but the answers of the contra were evasive and weak. The contra's claims were unable to withstand the force of probing quesions from informed people who had been to Nicaragua, or even from those who hadn't been there.

The rights of the audience were sacrificed to rescue the contras form an embarrassing and certain defeat. If anyone's free speech was violated Monday night, it was NOT that of the speakers, but the audience.

Mary A. Cooker Williamsburg

A denial of freedom of speech

This letter is in response to the recent events on campus surrounding the speaking engagement of Jorge Rosales. This letter is not an expression of my opinion on the political situation in Nicaragua, but rather a concerned and sincere outcry at what I perceive to have been a flagrant display of intolerance and hypocrisy.

As students in an educational environment, it is our responsibility to open our minds and expose ourselves to the maximum amount of information available to us. This is what constitutes an educated opinion and true awareness. In an environment that prides itself on social and political awareness, we are constantly in situations whre we need to protect an individual's right to express their opinions freely and without censorship. This is a difficult right to maintain, for it necessitates the allowance of all opinions to be expressed.

This may mean that we need to allow individuals with whom we may be ideologically opposed the right to express their opinions. But this is a fundamental necessity so that we may ourselves maintain our own right to express our views. The intolerance and complete disregard for Rosales' right to speak represents, in my opinion, the crudest and most frightening from of mob censorship and denial of freedom of speech.

It was an abuse and adulteration of students' collective power to silence views to which they do not agree. It you were an individual at the SUB Monday night who contributed to the chaos that prevented Rosales from speaking freely, I resent your harassment. This denied me the right of access to his knowledge and experience of a situation to which I have no first-hand exposure. Had this same action been taken by students on campus to prevent a pro-Sandanista speaker from expressing him/herself, how many people would have cried censorship and denial of freedom of speech?

Isn't it time that we as students use our collective power to promote and foster a tolerant and educative environment? We are here to learn, and this means exposure to all views and opinions. No one student, or group of students,has the right to inhibit or hinder this open atmosphere.

Amy de Roode Northeast

Convocation honors Cosby and others

Degrees given to five others

By KELLY SIEGER
Collegian Staff

A special convocation was held at the University of Massachusetts yesterday honoring six performers and educators from the arts community, four of whom are UMass alumni.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey opened the event amid pomp, ceremony and even a trumpeteer. According to Duffey the need to recognize the arts community was brought to him by students.

"Members of the Student Government Association Academic Affairs Committee approached me some time ago to express their concern that science and technology seemed to get major funding and publicity these days," said Duffey.

He went on to call the arts "the basis of learning," and then stressed the importance in giving "them visibility and support."

Duffey then introduced keynote speaker Francis S. M. Hodsoll, chairman for the National Endowment for the Arts.

According to Hodsoll, "This (Fine Arts) center is truly a regional center. It brings the best in the arts to audiences from all across Western Massachusetts.

"What we're talking about here is a great diversity of expression, a kaleidoscope of heritages."

Hodsoll noted that, much of our cultural heritage lives in what he calls "the shadow market of the commerical art world," or "The Twilight Zone."

"The huge potential of the new media technology of cable and home viewing on video cassettes offer new opportunities," said Hodsoll. "As the fidelity of the sound and the resonance of the picture improve, they can expand the national consciousness for all of art."

The degree honoris causa was then bestowed by UMass president David Knapp and provost Richard C. O'Brien to six artists for their contributions to music, art, and architecture.

Bill Cosby, the man solely responsible for filling the Fine Arts Concert Hall, was the first to receive his diploma. O'Brien called Cosby a "mirror and mentor of our shared humanity."

Cosby received a doctorate of education degree from UMass in 1977; in 1972 he was awarded his masters in media from the school of education.

The other degree recipients were no less prestigious. Architect Graham Gund, known for his restoration of old buildings, and president of a Cambridge-based architect firm, gained the honor for "protecting the best in our heritage."

Hodsoll next approached the podium for his diploma, receiving the award for his work as chairman of the National Endowment, and it's effort to encourage "better regional and local support for the arts, and championed initiatives to integrate the arts into elementary and secondary school programs."

Composer and teacher Bruce MacCombie was awarded his third degree from UMass for "the major impact on the future of the arts in America," he will make upon his recent appointment as Dean of the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

MacCombie received a B.A. from the University in 1968 and a Master of Music degree a year later.

William E. Taylor, who has taken on nearly every possible aspect of the music industry as performer, composer, actor, author, teacher and lecturer, was honored for his mastering of the "uniquely American art form" of jazz. Known as the "Renaissance Man of Jazz," Taylor's "committment in serving as its national and international spokesman" was commended.

Taylor earned a combined master's and doctorate in education from UMass in 1975.

Last to receive recognition was art collector Lois Torf, who graduated from UMass with a B.A. in history in 1946 and is an internationally known art collector and patron of the arts. Torf was honored for her dedication in "making the beauty of art a more important part of our lives."

The convocation concluded with words of wisdom from the man of the hour - Cosby. Whether discussing the world of the graduate, The Cosby Show, or his work at UMass, Cosby kept the audience laughing.

★ Cosby — continued from page 1

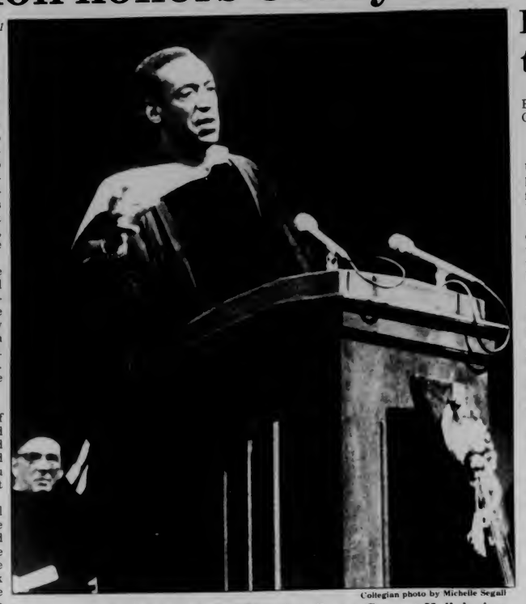
done...let's see if they can match it. They cannot."

And, before giving a little bit of comic advice to graduating seniors, he explained the force behind both the "Cosby Show" and his other professional pursuits.



"Everything I do has to do with some form of education," he said. "It has to do with some form of giving a message to people. But mostly, it has to do with trying to help some people realize that there's a different way to do something, there's a different way to think about it. And perhaps because they saw, they now know that there's a way to change — not themselves, but whatever it is they're trying to figure out.

"Here [with the Cosby show] you have the example, the epitome, paramount, all of those, of what came out of being cognizant, aware of what it was I wanted to give and how to do it. I didn't take that show on because I wanted to show America something, I took it on because I was tired. And there was nothing I wanted to watch. And I knew there were some people like myself. I decided it was the time."

And finally, there was classic Cosby.

"When you graduate, you'll hear a lot of people tell you 'now this is your world and this is your life,' and they use this word forth. 'And as you go forth...'" he told seniors. "First I have a message for you from your parents: forth, f-o-r-t-h, is not back home.

"When you come out of that football stadium wearing funny shoes, and you're celebrating and you drank champagne and you smoked a joint, there are people waiting for you to beat upon you, to take advantage of you," he roared. "And I think it takes about three days for you to realize there's something else you're going to have to do — and work is not one of them. Adjust, you're going to have to adjust."

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Bill Cosby speaks to a packed Fine Arts Center Concert Hall during yesterday's convocation.

Burns premieres latest film

By DON LIPPER
Collegian Staff

Northampton- Filmmaker Ken Burns told audience members at the western Massachusetts premiere of his latest documentary, that his film Huey Long was "good history that engages people's minds on all cylinders."

The documentary chronicles the career of the controversial Louisiana Governor and Senator of the 1930's who, according to many historians, could have become America's first dictator had he not been assasinated in 1935. His campaigns to provide free school books; paved roads, bridges, and vastly expanded public college and health systems, endeared him to the voiceless and impoverished poor as their champion. While his "Share The Wealth" philosophy and ruthless administrative manuevers angered the more wealthy members of the electorate. Burns juxtaposes newsreel footage of the charismatic Long with comments by those who both loved and hated him.

Burns said he didn't want his film to judge Long. "Too often we surrender ourselves and say we'll let 60 Minutes do the deciding for us and I refuse to do that. I refuse. I'm asking you. You bring yourself to the screen. I don't want to come down and assuage your inertia. I want you to engage yourself and ask yourself some questions. When you do that, and most people do that, then the film is satisfying. It's satisfying because it is complex and not because it is facile. This is good, this is bad. Filmmaking has to engage many aspects, many inquiries and it just can't be a political essay." Burns said.

Burns, 32, is the director of Brooklyn Bridge (1981) which was nominated for an academy award and won a dozen other major film awards. His 1984 film The Shakers: Hands To Work, Hearts to God won a blue ribbon at the American Film Festival plus several other awards and was the highest rated episode in 15 years of PBS's Nonfiction Television series. In 1985 Burns' The Statue of Liberty was nominated for an academy award and was subsequently shown on public television.

Burns' Huey Long (also produced in 1985) has been shown at the Berlin Film Festival, the New York Film Festival and several other film festivals and will be shown on PBS this coming fall. Film critics have generally lauded the film. "It's been fabulous. In nearly every city we've had an extraodinary review....I've read a few reviews that I thought really saw the film and then went farther to try to extrapolate, to try to put together this horrible yet wonderful feeling at the end of the film of suffering for Long and being glad it happened. If you can produce those same emotions at the same time, it makes you think about what a extraodinary man he was. I think he was one of the most important political figures in the twentieth century because he embodies all the political traditions of the century. He's a fascist and a populist, a liberal and a conservative, a Democrat and a Republican and he leaves office the way too many of the twentieth century's politicians have left office...and that's in a coffin. There's Huey Long, he's a prism to look at our own age.

"And that age is still around, we're still complaining about politicians who know how to manipulate the media, who speak well but have no substance. We still complain about people who vacillate between satisfying the liberal and the conservative aspects of the constituency. We talk about people who are just out for their own personal good. We talk about the arrogance of power, about the corruption of ambition in politics. It's all there in Huey Long."

Huey Long is now playing at the Pleasant St. Theatre through April 14

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Ken Burns premieres his latest film, Huey Long at Pleasant St. Theatre

Ginsberg in Amherst

By CHARLES FRANCIS CARROLL
Collegian Staff

In a day and age when the official line in the U.S. more and more resembles the party line behind the Iron Curtain in reverse, and, although in reverse, that mirror image is still the same image of the world, it is mildly refreshing, if not absolutely necessary that we hear free and differing views of the world. One such source of alternative world views is poetry. So it was not only very entertaining but also most enlightening when the poet Allen Ginsberg came to the valley a week ago.

From his two performances at the Iron Horse, through myriad interviews, to his informal readings with Richard O'Brien, McKeever McKinley, at al., to his visit to UMass to see the Nicaragua Media Project and his interview with the Collegian, to his meeting with poetry's elder statesman Robert Francis, his reunion with writer James Baldwin, and his lunch with "Buddhist Bob" Thurman, on to the climax of his trip, his talk at the Albion Book Shop following the world premiere of Andy Lass' film of Ginsberg being crowned the King of May by the students in Prague, Czechoslavakia, in 1965, Ginsberg constantly reported his unique view of the world as a poet who has travelled almost everywhere.

The Saturday night affair at the Albion was nothing less than a happening. After viewing the ten-minute B&W film, Ginsberg and Lass sat on stage in a loveseat before the select audience of Albion faithful, Amherst literati, and assorted ruffian and discussed for an hour-and-a-half the context in which the film had been made 21 years ago in Prague. What followed was a unique history lesson which would be hard to find in any classroom.

There had not been a King of May, or Kral Majales, in Czechloslavakia since Hitler invaded and siezed power in 1939, nor during the post-war Soviet occupation. However, after a quarter century chill, there was some thawing in the spring of 1965: the students would have their King of May! No biggie. Enter Allen Ginsberg.

Ginsberg had been in Cuba but was deported for criticizing the government's abusive treatment of homosexuals. Since

continued on page 11

LIVEWIRE
BY TOM MIDDLETON

This weekend does not look real promising. There are only a few free shows to choose from and some of the bigger acts are not exactly in our back yard.

The Bangles will play tonight at the John M. Greene Hall at Smith College. This group has made it into the top 40 and onto music video with their wicked awesome big hit...'Manic Monday.' Tune in most major rock radio stations for more than 20 minutes and you'll hear this one. They have also had some of help from Prince.

Anyway, the bangles are an all-female band who have done well in the big-money, pop-rock groove.

The Hoodoo Gurus from Australia will open for the above at 9 p.m. Tickets cost $8 to $10.

Bluesman Clarence Gatemouth Brown is playing at Pearl Street in Northampton. This middle-aged guy plays electric guitar pretty well and has been on the circuit for some time. This one will cost you $9 and should be a decent blues show.

Also tonight, Echo and the Bunnymen are playing at the Agora Ballroom in Hartford, Ct. Too bad you need to travel to this show because it should be a good one. Real British modern rock is what this band will give you. The Church are opening and they should add a lot to the show. It will cost $11.50 and if it were closer I would really plug this show.

At Sheehan's Cafe in Northampton tonight, Liquid Lesson will be jammin' in the basement. This is a local band and friends tell me they're O.K. The show is free.

At the Hatch you can catch the 18-piece UMass Jazz Ensemble, no charge.

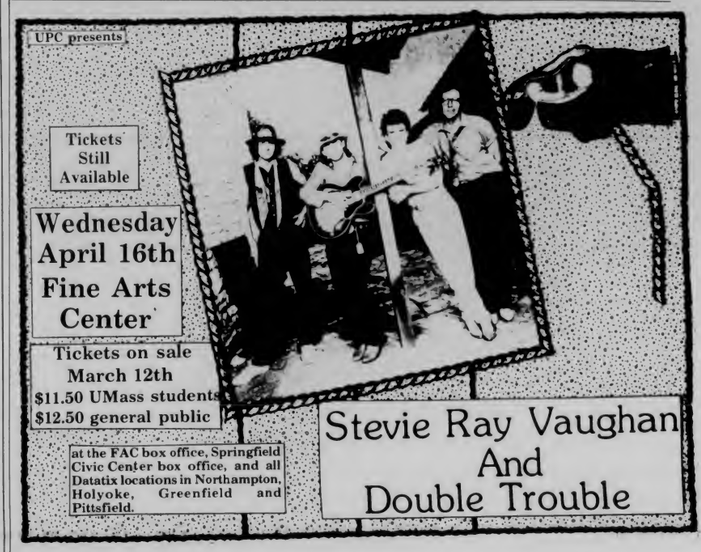
Friday night, Dr. John is playing the Iron Horse in Northampton and the show will cost you $11.50 at the door. The deal is billed as New Orleans blues.

The Bangles and the Hoodoo Gurus will play the Agora Friday night in case you missed the Smith show.

Group Therapy will play downstairs at Sheehan's Tommorrow night.

Saturday night looks sad. Beat Therapy at Sheehan's and Max Creek at the Agora.

Monday night there will be a reggae line up at Pearl Street called the Caribbean Connection for $6. Although there are no real big names on the bill, if you want to dance this show should be fun.



Tix on sale: Al Jarreau at UMass for $17. Stevie Ray Vaughan at UMass, 11.50 for students. George Thorogood at the Springfield Civic Center. Peter, Paul and Mary at Springfield.

★ Ginsberg — continued from page 10

the U.S. had imposed restrictions on travelling to and from Cuba, the first plane Ginsberg could be put on out of Cuba was to Prague.

In the month he stayed in Prague, Ginsberg became something of a celebrity with students who admired his brash independence. They decided to nominate him as King of May, and Ginsberg was carried through the streets of Prague to a park where over 100,000 people had gathered.

It wasn't long after his coronation that Ginsberg was picked up by Czech authorities and deported out of the country. The police had stolen a notebook of Ginsberg's because they presented it as evidence when they charged him with "writings against the state." Ginsberg was surprised when they later quoted a line from a couplet in the notebook in a published report of the incident, "All the communist lies about capitalism are true," without reporting the other line of the couplet, "And all the capitalist lies about communism are true." Ginsberg elaborated this point by saying that after he had been arrested in Cuba, the U.S.S.R., and Czechloslavakia, each on trumped up charges of one sort or another, he was arrested once again as he returned to the U.S., another frame according to him. All in all, it was a remarkable story. And after it was over, much mirth was had by all at the sumptuous reception.

WINNER'S CIRCLE
PUTS A BITE ON THE COMPETITION

Spotbilt® Monster™ Reg. $29.99 $25

Spotbilt® Cougar™ Reg. $49.99 $41

Puma® Rapid™ Reg. $32.99 $27

Men's Sizes

Make a sure footed move. Come to the Winner's Circle during our brandname leather cleat shoe sale. Step ahead in these action-packed shoes made with supple leather, comfort cushioning, padded collars and sure grip soles. Visit the Winner's Circle and get set to leave the competition biting in the dust.

WINNERS CIRCLE
You always come out ahead
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

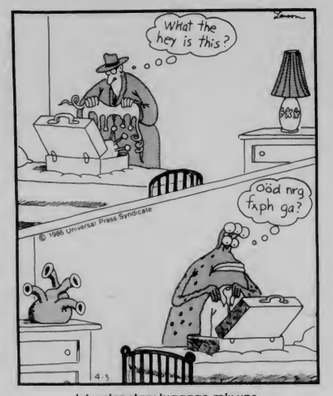
Attention Computer Owners

IBM Portable, PC or Compatible?

We're offering fantastic SAVINGS on the following PERIPHERALS

PIONEER VALLEY DATA EQUIPMENT

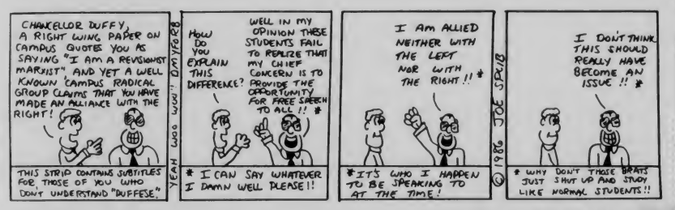
259 Triangle Street
Amherst
549-1017



DOONESBURY

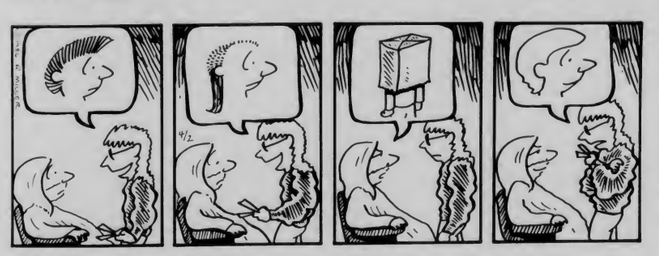
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE



BY GARY LARSON

Interplanetary luggage mix-ups



FREAKER PATROL

BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES

BY R.MILLER

GORDY

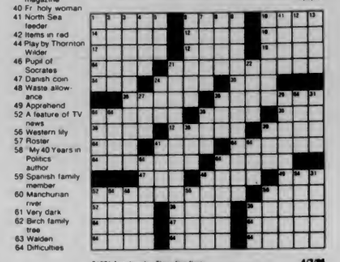
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY

BY BERKE BREATHED

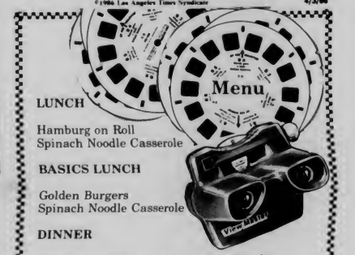
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Consumer
6 Carry on vocally
10 Bandleader Alpert
14 Habituate
15 Nurse, in Nanking
16 Bacchanalian cry
17 Improvise
18 Whirlybird
19 Sets
20 Den denizens
21 Tony-winning musical
23 Part of HSH
24 God: Lat
25 Rhine feeder
26 'When We Were Very — Mine
28 Bermuda
32 TV role for Guillaume
34 Pheasant
35 — de vie
36 Lab vessel
37 Massey of films
39 Fashion magazine
40 Fr. holy woman
41 North Sea feeder
42 Items in red
44 Play by Thornton Wilder
46 Pupil of Socrates
47 Danish coin
48 Waste allowance
49 Apprehend
52 A feature of TV news
56 Western lily
57 Roster
58 'My 40 Years in Politics' author
59 Spanish family member
60 Manchurian river
61 Very dark
62 Birch family tree
63 Walden
64 Difficulties
65 A first lady of the theater

DOWN
1 Shute's 'On the —'
2 Inappropriate
3 'The King and I' king
4 Goddess of discord
5 Johnny —
6 Floor covering
7 French friends
8 City E of Osaka
9 Fats, of jazz
10 Exodus
11 Constantly
12 Continental breakfast item
13 Mrs. Truman
21 McCloud of TV
22 Impudence
24 Twosome
27 She-bear Sp.
28 Common ending
29 Star of 'Rose Marie'
30 Evans of oaters
31 Sweet girls
32 Amigo's kiss
33 — Brute!
34 In honor of
38 Author Deighton
39 Time in NYC
41 Long, long ago
43 Feedbag item
45 Not long before
46 Dresses up
48 Pulsate
50 Concur
51 African Dutch
52 Lobster pot
53 Ecce — Behold the man
54 Vingt-— Casino game
55 Banned
56 Room in a casa
59 — -jongg



ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

F	L	A	M		C	R	E	E	S		S	E	M	I
R	A	B	I		H	A	R	I	S		T	R	O	D
E	W	E	R		A	N	T	O	N		R	I	L	L
E	S	T	R	A	N	G	E		D	R	A	G	O	N
			O	R	G		T	W	E	N
C	A	R	R	I	E		C	H	A	N	G	E	R	S
A	L	A		U	C	R	E		T	E	X	A	N
R	I	N	A		C	L	E	A	D		R	I	N	E
A	P	E	X		O	T	T	E	R		A	N	N	E
T	H	E	R	A	N	G	E		R	A	N	G	E	R
			A	L	I	S			M	A	N
M	A	G	N	E	T		S	T	A	N	G	I	E	S
A	G	O	G		S	T	M	O	N	G		G	L	O	W
U	R	G	E		L	O	O	S	E		H	A	R	I
L	A	M	A		E	E	L	E	O		S	M	A	G

4/3/86

©1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 4/3/86

The Wednesday Night crew making the Collegian safe for humanity!

Weather

Today: mostly sunny, lows in the 60s. Tomorrow: a repeat performance — mostly sunny, lows in the 60s

BROUGHT TO YOU BY

Night Editor.....Lesley Clark
Copy Editor.....Liz Hettinger
Photo Technician.....Michelle Segall
Layout Technician.....Conor Plunkett
Production Supervisor.....Conor Plunkett
Production Staff: Matthew Laurence, Laura Bell, Mia Rowan, Rob Catalano, Leslie Nakajima, Norm Achin, the Police, and the Rolling Stones.

Cody by 9 West

In six Spring colors for fashion and comfort

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
Open Sundays

Pleasant St. Theater

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
BEST ACTRESS
"THE YEAR'S MOST WINNING COMEDY-DRAMA... ONE OF THE YEAR'S TEN BEST"

The Times Bo BOUNTIFUL

at 5:45 & 10
also 7:30 Sat & Sun

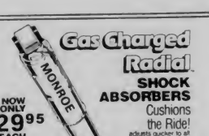
The New Film by Academy Award nominee Ken Burns

HUEY LONG

at 6:15, 8:15, 10:15
also 4 Sat & Sun!

the Hungry b Restaurant

FREE with coupon only
SMALL CHEESE PIZZA
with a purchase of a pitcher
of soda or beer
(offer good Tues-Sun, 9-10 PM only!)
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713



Our 1986 color catalog features many of the most innovative new products in bicycling. Together with dozens of tips to increase your riding enjoyment.
To get your free catalog, call toll-free anytime 1-800-HOT GEAR.
RHODE GEAR USA
The advantage is obvious.™

FRI. APR. 4
Campus Center Aud. UMass
Desperately Seeking Susan
$1.00 at 5;
$1.50 at 7, 9, 11

All "Susans" with I.D. Half Price

Gas Charged Radial SHOCK ABSORBERS
Cushions the Ride!
adjusts quicker to all types of road conditions
NOW ONLY $29.95 EACH
FREE INSTALLATION!

We have the latest BEAR COMPUTER 4 wheel alignment equipment. Full alignment $22.95

APPLY NOW
$500 instant credit to qualified customers

HADLEY TIRE & AUTO CENTER
"HANGER ONE" BUILDING
439 Russell St., Rte. 9 Hadley
253-9911

WOMEN'S CAREER DAY
at the University Career Center,
Fraternity/Sorority Park,
E. Pleasant Street
Saturday, April 5, 9-5
Open to all University Women
Students and Staff Welcome
Featuring:
SKILLS WORKSHOP
JOB SEARCH ASSISTANCE
and a
PANEL PRESENTATION BY WOMEN'S STUDIES
ALUMNAE
To Register Call - 545-1922

SPONSORED BY: UPS University Service Placement
COORDINATED BY: University of Massachusetts Amherst Women's Studies

Serve In Appalachia

Come for one week to serve the needs of the poor in Appalachia. Single, Catholic men are invited to be involved in home construction, visiting the elderly, and sharing one's gifts with the mentally, emotionally and physically handicapped. There will also be opportunities to learn about the culture, people, and music of the Appalachian area.

The week-long sessions available are:
May 17 - 23
June 7 - 13
July 12 - 18
July 26 - August 1
August 24 - 30

For more information about the Summer Volunteer Program, please send this coupon to: Brother Jack Henn, Glenmary Home Missioners, P.O. Box 465618, Cincinnati, OH 45246-5618

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Telephone ( ) _____ College _____ S74-3/86

Great Mexican Food!

...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

TACO VILLA

NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584-0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK Pop Ins Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788-0919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

ARE YOU PREGNANT & IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
• Same Day Results •
Services that are Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

SWAG Presents
The nation's Hottest Stand-up Comic
EMO PHILIPS
as seen on Late Night with David Letterman

THURSDAY
APRIL 10, 1986
in the
Student Union
Ballroom

Tickets are: Two shows 8:00 PM and 10:00 PM
$5.00 in advance $6.00 at the door
Available at: Tix in the Student UNion Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, Main St. Records in Northampton.
Another Southwest Area Government Production

Try to relate
by not seeing straight!
Make your appointment!
Don't be late!

Perms
$28.00 includes conditioning and blow dry or set. (does not include cut)

MARJON HAIR DESIGN
Mountain Farms Mall Hadley, MA 586-4551

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon. Thurs. 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

Last chance to donate blood for the BIG UMASS BLOOD DRIVE! Thursday's goal, 175 donors 9:30 - 3:30 in the SUB

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1975 Ford Granada 4 dr PB/PS AM/FM body in good cond new parts 546-1497

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO 253-2204

1979 Mazda New clutch, brakes, 4 radials $1500. 283-8592

Mona needs a new home 77 Honda Civic good cond needs some work $600 but negotiable 546-5409

1976 Ford Grenada four door extremely reliable needs no work $850 or BO Derek 549-1656

78 Plymouth Horizon 4 spd good trans $700 or BO Mike 665-8335

76 Plymouth runs good looks good must see! $1000 256-6281

1977 Datsun Truck well-maintained solid bed, full cap, runs great, $960 or best offer call eves, Mike 256-8788

1984 Reliant K car automatic new battery. Very good running condition. Good for off campus or commuting. Call Amy at 546-6198

'79 Datsun B210 standard good condition 950 or BO call Cathy 549-5932

74 BMW 2002, red. California car. Restored. 6,350 obo 539-4127 or 538-2896

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramide Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities: contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BANDS WANTED

Central Area's Spring Fling '86! Bands wanted for benefit concert for Massaid. All interested groups call anytime by April 9th. Concert will be April 25th. Call 546-6402 or 546-6406

BICYCLES

Univega Gran Premio 3.5 in., blue, racing/high perf touring, great cond, extras, $650 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

BRITTANY MANOR

Immediate Opening two bedroom aparts. Heat and hot water short term leases. Act now 256-8535

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

Female roommates wanted for summer on Cape Cod. Cottage in Hyannis 1/00 for summer, May 23 to Sept 2 call 546-9211

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

COURTNEY

Happy Anniversary Baby! I love you and the night is just beginning at the CC Hotel lobby. The champagne is chilling. Kathleen

DELTA ZETA OPEN RUSH TONIGHT!

Check it out! See what Delta Zeta Sorority can offer you! South Pacific Night 6 pm 11 Phillips St. For more info call Pam at 253-9916

DR. STRANGELOVE

Thursday, April 3rd in Engineering East 530 $1.00, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30 $1.50

EDIE "THE MAKEUP LADY"

Will be in the CC April 3-5 9-4 PM buy your Spring shades!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2869

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock, Kool party toonz at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste. Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

TURN THE TABLES 5 yr Pro D.J. latest records, best rates, lights free 586-9601 24 HR

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc Jockeys Light Shows Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. Everyday anywhere on Campus. Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?! Cheap, 2 blocks from beach call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Apartment available in Southwood. Take over lease June 1st, and it's yours for the fall. Low rent, good bus service. Call 253-3619 for more info

Two female roommates needed for Southwood Apt. Take over lease starting June 1st. $130 incl. heat please call 256-1518

In Amherst 2½ miles from campus washer/dryer air conditioning available April 1 call today Chris 256-6238

Apartment available in Southwood for summer cash reward call Dave or Mike 256-1040

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st, bus stop in front Tracey 256-1807

Need temporary housing? Apts in Brittany Manor open now. Rent low 400 rent from leaseholder. Lease on apts run through June call 549-4714

Summer Sublet/Fall Option 2 bdrm, utilities included last mo. rent and security deposit yours must get rid of 665-4828

Must See large 2 bedroom 2 bath recently redone apt. air conditioning & extras. Available June 1st call after 6 pm. 665-8766

Apt is house, 3-bedroom. Great location; right next to 7-11 in Sunderland. Very clean, quiet and spacious. $600 month, lease starts June 1st 665-8275

FOR SALE

HED speakers by Cerwin Vega $200 firm; Akai P14 tapedeck, Sony turntable, rock guitar amp, need cash, call Dick, 549-1052

Televideo computer terminal like new. $350 or BO model 910+ 253-2204

Gucci Watches many styles for men & women, only $30. call 6-7480

Violin inexpensive good condition Catherine 252-3089

Have 2 tix for Hartford Dead! Need 2 tix for Fri trade only Heidi 256-0049

1978 Subaru 4x4 wagon. Needs exhaust, possible engine. Good parts car or restoration 700 or BO call 256-0195

PLATTS
Australian Surf Wear
on sale!
C.C.C. 3-4-86

For sale Tennis Rackets Wilson (pro-staff & sting) Head graphite edge, Prince graphite comp, all rackets are brand new. Please call Wang 546-9422 for very reasonable prices

203 cm Atomic, Raichle boots; 11, salomon 737, used twice $280 546-5769

Soft Contact Lenses. Most daily wear lenses, $18.00 to $25.00. Most extended wear lenses, $35.00 to $48.00. Most soft tinted lenses, $35.00 to $45.00. Lowest prices on cl solutions, anywhere. Flexcare $1.98, heat units, $12.95. Amherst Optical Shoppe, Inc., 195 No. Pleasant St., (413) 253-5412 or (413) 256-6403

FOUND

Softball Glove on 3/25 at field outside NOFE. Call John 5-234

Found - silver bracelet across from FAC call to identify nine 253-2475 Ann

HELP WANTED

Weekend job Amherst Farmers Market Manager Sat May 10 to Nov 15, 6:45 am to 1:45 pm. Responsible, friendly, decisive person to enforce rules, negotiate disputes & handle cash. Apply by April 7th call Nancy 5-2249 leave message

Camp Lavallowa, AHEC, 189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545. A residential, recreational camp for mentally retarded in Hunter, NY, is accepting applications for summer employment. Write or call (516) 626-1000

INSTRUCTION

Are you Danish? Do you speak Danish? I'm going to Denmark and need to learn. Please help tutor me! Call Amy 546-4791 best time 10 pm - 1 am

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semester. Aid attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary; training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 422 Campus Center.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-5190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

School Bag - Adidas, tan, taken from the counter near Post Office. Reward for return only the books and notebook. No questions asked 665-8501

Lost wallet green plastic last week reward big bucks quick 545-0770

Lost large male tiger cat near Cliffside Apt. Sunderland if found please call 665-8315

Beige Bracelet-Watch. Thurs 3/27 between Herter and FAC has flag. Great sentimental value. Please call 665-2020

Black tweed wool gloves lost Thurs. night, March 13 in the Pub call Karen 546-1027

MOTORCYCLES

1984 Honda Interceptor 700CC 8k mi excellent cond. $2495 or BO 549-5990 keep trying or leave message

Honda Interceptor VF700 1984½ 3000 miles perfect condition blue 2500 call Taylor 253-3825

1980 Suzuki GS1100EX 6000 miles mint totally equipped $2495 Bill 546-5106

82 Kawasaki 440 Ltd mint condition! New sport mirrors, cruise control, back rest Belt drive, very fast! Call 546-6165 or 546-6047

1976 Yamaha SX650 under 12,000 miles New battery! Best offer. Call Gary 256-1557 keep trying

Yamaha XS400H 1981 bought as 83 overstock. 2600 mi exc. cond. great first street bike 533-3994 keep trying

MR. MUFF

Alias the Hacks! Happy Birthday Buddy! I hope the king strikes 21 years later

PERSONALS

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment

Dairy Dairy Doo, where are you?! By Rock Me Amadeus 268 Puffton

What's the matter Norm, jealous?

Yo, Amy - Moo who? Smile at life! You're a wicked awesome person. Lis

To the guys in Pierpont who helped me start my car on Thursday night, thanks for coming to my rescue! Stranded 6-8130

Thank you Jorge, Michael, and the Republican Club your hes do more to unite the left than any amount of organizing

Maureen I love you! Gizmo

The Speedy Deliveries win once again! Keep up the good work everyone! Let's get psyched for the next win! Hey Coach Dave - should we order our championship rings yet?

Betty Ann - Thanks for allowing me to get out of the dungeon for a little culture.

April, the promise is fulfilled! Happy Birthday! Matt

Mary Jane, I know how much you like opals and thought you might like to know there is a 3 opal and diamond pendant for $60 and another opal and diamond pendant for $25 and much more at Golden Opportunity 13 N Pleasant St, Amherst at Ledestone what do you think? Love Bruno

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

REWARD

We need a four person apartment for fall 86. If you can help us please call 546-6031 after 9 pm. Offering a nice reward

RIDE WANTED

Need a ride to Plattsburg this wknd call Donna 545-2412

Ride wanted to Hartford Civic Center Friday 4/4. Will split expenses. Call 5-AM 584-8495

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 546-1262 after 9 pm

ROOMMATES WANTED

Room for rent in house $140/mth, call Dick, 549-1052 negotiable

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

TO SHARE BRITTANY MANOR APT. AVAILABLE NOW ONE MONTH FREE KEN, RICH, STEVE: 253-7312, DAVE: 665-4131

Cape Housemates Wanted perfect location, Main St. Hyannis. $900 for summer. Call 546-6267 or 546-6295

One female needed for fall 1986 only Brandywine evening 549-7717 Sharyn

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lisa 549-1428

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN at Mall, 584-9362

Apartment Cleaning kitchen livingroom bathroom 128 price may vary call W N 7-9 549-0694

The Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center, provides free legal services to fee-paying UMass students

STEREO FOR SALE

BOSE Acoustic wave sound system list $695 quick sale $450 call Scott 256-0685

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst Center sunny 3 bdrm apt in house, call eves 549-5866

Looking for someone to take over Presidential Apt in June. Call Steve or Pat 459-1357

Three subletters needed for entire summer 5 minute walk from campus and town cheap rent call after 5 256-8047

June - July $400 inclusive. One bdrm in four bdrm apt. Clean pleasant. On busline, close to campus. Fall option. Call Mary 546-9045 7:30-10:30 am

Large, 2 bedroom Colonial Village apartment available for summer sublet Rent is very reasonable and negotiable Call 256-1264 anytime

Don't depend on the bus Live directly across from campus this summer. Large double room in house w/private bathroom, washer/dryer, backyard and deck, lovable puppy. $190/month each Allison or Sheila 549-6964

TO SUBLET

Subletters needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-6675

To sublet with fall option sunny spacious 2 bedroom apt Downtown Amherst keep trying 253-7816

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

WANT A HOBBY?

Buy my car. 1978 Monarch it runs, but needs lots of work. Call Don 253-9330 after 6 PM

WANTED

SKATEBOARDERS needed for outdoor dance theatre production in September one credit performance project. Rehearsals begin April, May and September. Contact Ana 546-2803/4 Auditions, 4:30 April 3 Haigis Mall, Fine Arts Center

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

We'll pay you $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. Call 546-9695. Cristie

Do you have a room in your Rolling Green apt? I want it!! Anytime after May 31st. Please call Christine at 546-2892 (daytime), 253-5248 (e-mail)

Looking for lease to take over in Brandywine for fall 1986 $$$ call Ellen 546-1442

Two females looking for 1 bedroom in Brandywine or Townehouse for fall 86 call Ellen 546-1442

Responsible men seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house next fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

Want to take over your lease in Puffton or Brandywine. Reward offered call Sharon 546-9725

Interested in Israeli politics? Are you Jewish? Want to see William Casey, director of the CIA in a rare speech? Want to hear what Senator Ted Kennedy and what Edwin Meese have to say about Israel? There's a conference in Washington D.C. Sunday April 6th to Tuesday April 8th. Call Dode TODAY at 253-7205. Generous scholarships available.

SPORTS

Gorillas tumble at Cornell, 11-6

Big Red hand UMass first loss

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

ITHACA, N.Y. - The bubble burst for the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse yesterday, as they were upset by unranked Cornell University, 11-6.

Trailing 8-6 midway through the fourth period after junior midfielder Doug Musco scored, the Gorillas lost any chance to comeback as Tim McDevitt scored at the 5:57 mark. The Big Red then rattled to more goals to put the game away.

Cornell, now 2-3 on the season, came out in their typically aggressive manner and led 4-1 after the first period.

UMass, now 2-1, stayed even with the Red in the next two periods, as each team scored four goals. But Cornell's flurry in the final period buried UMass' hopes of going into their home opener on Saturday undefeated.

For the Gorillas, junior attackman had two goals and one assist for three points. Senior midfielder Greg Fisk had one goal and one assists as did Musco.

Junior Greg Canella was contained by Cornell, as the former junior college attackman-of-the-year was held to one goal and no assists. Ed Boardman, a junior attackman, scored the other UMass goal.

For Cornell, senior attackman Ed Cook broke out of his slump with four goals and four assists. Nick Latuh added two goals and one assist.

Frank Kelly and Kevin Finneran scored two goals apiece as Cornell registered their second straight victory over UMass, as they were 13-9 winners last season at Boyden Field.

McDevitt had one goal while senior midfielder Tom Gunderson contributed three assists. Junior Tony Reece added one assist.

In the goal, Cornell freshman Paul Schimoler made 20 stops, frustrating the Gorilla attack.

UMass freshman Sal LoCasio suffered his first collegiate defeat as the rookie keeper made 11 saves between the pipes.

Statistically, Cornell held a 51-48 advantage on ground balls, attesting to the Red's aggressive style of play.

The Gorillas, who were 10-9 winners at Cornell to open the 1984 season, were successful in 19-of-29 clears. Cornell was good on 21-of-30 clear attempts.

Cornell was called for six penalties and UMass made good on two-of-six extra man attempts. The Gorillas committed seven penalties, but the Big Red made good one only one extra-man attempt.

In the face-off circle, UMass specialist Seamus McGovern, a senior midfielder, had a bad day. McGovern won only seven of 22 face-offs. Kelly had a good day, battling McGovern successfully.

The defeat, to an unranked team, will undoubtedly drop UMass from its ninth-place ranking in the recent United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association Poll, unless the Gorillas defeat New Hampshire in an impressive manner on Saturday.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

University of Massachusetts softball coach Elaine Sortino calls the shots behind the bench. The Minutewomen host Holy Cross today.

Softball hosting Cross for two

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The 20th-ranked University of Massachusetts softball team hopes to continue its hot hitting, as they host Holy Cross this afternoon for a doubleheader at NOPE Field at 2 p.m.

UMass, now 13-3 after shutting out Providence College in both ends of a doubleheader on Tuesday, 16-0 and 12-0, is hitting .317 as a team with eight players over the .300 mark.

The Minutewomen, the only ranked team in the Northeast, have also had the pitching as their staff has a combined earned run average of 0.60, allowing only nine earned runs in 105 innings pitched.

Senior righthander Lynn Stockley, at 6-1 with an ERA of 0.39, leads the UMass staff. Sophomore Lisa Rever, at 5-2 and 0.68, is the second-half of UMass' potent 1-2 punch on the mound.

Cathy Reed and freshman righthander Chris Warner add to the pitching depth, Reed sports a 2-0 record including two complete games, and Warner registered the team's only save.

Last season, UMass crushed the Crusaders, 12-0 behind the shutout pitching of Stockley, and figure to have little trouble with them again this year.

This season, the Minutewomen have also shown grace in the field chalking up a combined .956 team fielding percentage, committing just 21 errors in 336 chances. The Minutewomen defensive corps has eight members with perfect fielding percentages, seven of whom are starters.

Extra Innings: UMass has outscored opponents 19-0 in the first inning and 13-0 in the sixth inning. Opponents have had their best luck in the third inning, scoring nine of their 16 runs. . .Providence College made 11 errors in the two games at NOPE on Tuesday. . .opponents have managed only four extra-base hits 467 at-bats this season. . .those very same opponents have a slugging percentage of .175. The opposing batting average is .156.

UMass is averaging close to eight and onhits per game this season. . .the Minutewomen have stolen 18 of 24 bases. . .the team's combined on-base percentage is an amazing .404, putting great pressure on enemy pitchers. . .UMass has struck out 22 times, compared to the 91 K's registered by the four UMass pitchers this season.

Sports at a Glance

Today:

Softball:

Holy Cross (2) NOPE Field, 2 p.m.

Women's Tennis:

at Connecticut, 3 p.m.

UMass notebook

UMass women's tennis opens today

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis teams, recently saved from extinction by the University's Board of Trustees, opens up their season this afternoon at the University of Connecticut.

The Minutewomen will be coached this season by Deedie Steele, who is in her first season at the UMass helm.

The home opener for the team, which plays seven matches this season, will be April 15 against Smith College.

The men's tennis team, coached again this season by manny Roberts, opened up their season yesterday, but results were not available. They faced Hartford at the Boyden Courts.

The men will play 12 matches this season, six at home. They are in action again on Sunday at Boston College at 2 p.m.

The men's golf team, coached by Jack Leaman, opens up tomorrow at Springfield against the Chiefs, Connecticut and Bentley. Senior Brian Fitzgerald will serve as captain of the team.

Football Notes: Channel 40 was among the media that showed up for the first day of spring practice on Monday. . .two starting linebackers, Vito Perrone and Todd Rundle, have missed the early practices with injuries. . .former punter Dimitri Yavis is being worked at defensive tackle, at 6-6, 255, the freshman should be able to handle the switch. . .sophomore linebacker Jim Tandler is practicing full-speed at linebacker, fully-healed from his season-ending knee injury from last year. . .former quarterback Mike Trifari, who quit the team last year, is back and playing wide receiver. . .tight end Ed Toffey is being used at center. . .the quarterback situation is good as six signal-callers are in camp.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 43

FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1986

INSIDE

•Stephen Erickson on Republican presidential hopefuls. Page 8.
•A review of the UMass Theatre Guild's productions of "Snoopy." Page 13.
•The softball teams sweeps a doubleheader from Holy Cross. Page 20.

Collegian photo by Sarah Cook

Sculpture under wraps

Pam Tillis, a Fine Arts major, yesterday wrapped the sculpture outside the Fine Arts Center in response to what she said is the misuse and misunderstanding of what a piece of art work is. Her wraps are meant as a reminder of the value of the sculpture at the center. Tillis was aided by five other UMass students.

Two RAs will fill alcohol rules panel

By JEFFRY BARTASH
Collegian Staff

Four residential assistants will be selected today at random to complete the membership of a 12-person panel designed to recommend a revision of the University of Massachusetts residential area alcohol policy.

The four RAs will have their names drawn from a hat, the Residential Committee of the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs decided Wednesday. Two RAs will be chosen from the Southwest Residential Area and two from other residential areas, the Committee said.

The RAs are important to the committee because they "have to enforce the alcohol policy," said Joe Demeo, chairman of the Southwest Area Government Issues Committee.

Any RA selected not wishing to participate on the panel will be dropped and another chosen. RAs not selected and who want to present viewpoints of their own will be given a chance, the Committee said.

Demeo said the panel, which will also have four students and four Housing Services officials on it, will discuss ways to relax the alcohol policy and release RAs from their duty to enforce the exisiting policy, which bars all students -- including those of legal drinking age -- from drinking alcohol in public areas of residential halls.

He said the SWAG has proposed that people of legal drinking age be allowed to drink alcohol in all areas of residence halls.

"The committee was supposed to create a panel by March 26th, but we [the students and Housing Service officials] could not decide how to choose the RAs," Demeo said.

Student members Demeo and Scott Protentis accused Housing Services of delaying the formation of the panel.

"One thing the administration does is cooperate but in a slow way. The slower it is for them, the more it works to their advantage. The students are transitory, the administrators aren't," Protentis said.

Joseph A. Zannini, director of Housing Services, said he brought the alcohol policy issue to the committee in September and it was agreed that SWAG President Bill Collins would form a proposal, but said Collins did not send the Housing Services a proposal until February.

Demeo said the SWAG voted against the present alcohol policy last spring, "but the administration passed it anyway while we were away during the summer.'

He said there is a good chance the policy will revised in the interest of the students.

"Whatever the recommending committee decides usually gets done," he said.

IBM gives UMass $2m grant for interface science research

By CARYN BOWERS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has received a $2 million grant from International Business Machines to form an "Institute for Interface Science."

UMass was one of 12 universities across the country to be selected last month by IBM to research interface science, which concerns the study of chemistry and physics at the interface, or surface, between dissimilar objects.

"The institute plans to coordinate and initiate research on interface science in any area of science, not necessarily polymer science and engineering," said Thomas McCarthy, polymer science professor and one of three principal investigators in the program.

UMass will be given money for basic research into materials and process techniques for advanced computer systems.

"This money will only serve as a seed," said McCarthy. "We hope it will initiate new research programs that will become self-sufficient."

McCarthy said the primary objective of the institute is to continue functioning after the money runs out.

The money will be allocated once a year for five years, in accordance with a budget proposed by the school.

The institute's first projects will involve McCarthy, Edwin L. Thomas, chairman of the polymer science and engineering department, and mechanical engineering professor John Ritter.

Their main goal is to advance computer technology by making computers smaller and faster, to miniaturize computer

continued on page 5

Teaching, grants, books? Bonus criteria nebulous

Last in a series.

BY CHRIS POON
Collegian Staff

One professor wrote a book, another published a dozen journal articles. One science instructor secured a $10,000 grant while another taught four undergraduate classes. Which of these professors deserves more merit pay?

"Personnel recommendations and decisions shall be made only after a review of all the contributions of the individual in the areas of teaching; of research, creative or professional activity; and of service," state the guidelines established by the Board of Trustees and the Massachusetts Society of Professors/Faculty Staff Union.

The merit pay system as adopted by the University allows for a "relative weight" to be given in merit evaluation rather than an equal emphasis in all the areas. The varying emphasis allow each department's personnel committee to evaluate faculty members in light of their duties and the nature of the department.

For example, research and the securing of grants are heavily emphasized in the sciences, while programs such as nursing emphasize service and teaching.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said, "In my opinion, teaching and research are the more critical areas." He added that the evaluation of teaching and service need more attention, especially since the latter is not always rewarded by the merit system.

But the faculty union president, Arlyn Diamond, said "Teaching and service are not as highly valued at the University as research.

"Research is the most traditional form of scholarship. The overall path of merit increases reflect this," Diamond said.

A CLOSER LOOK
FACULTY MERIT PAY

Research, which is primarily funded through grants from government and industry, gives professors opportunities to publish their work which is also considered a meritorious activity.

"In engineering, you have to keep up with the field and the way you do that is to do research in the forefront of technology," said Dean of the College of Engineering James John. 'Some people who just teach fall behind in technology."

Teaching and service, the two other areas that warrant merit increases, are usually harder to evaluate.

Currently, most departments rely on student evaluations of professors to determine the quality of professors' classes. Murray Schwartz, dean of the College of Humanities and Fine Arts, said student opinions are taken very seriously, but Diamond said otherwise.

Most faculty members consider student evaluations poor reflections of their actual teaching performance and rarely value them highly, Diamond said.

Personnel committee members rarely review syllabi, visit a classroom lecture or ask professors about their teaching. Teaching is sometimes evaluated by reviewing letters from students and graduates and by distinguishing those professors who have won teaching awards.

The dean of the College of Engineering, James John, said he did not know how each of his school's departments evaluated teaching, but added that he asked each of them last semester to give him its criteria for evaluations.

In his appraisal of merit pay recommendations, John said he looks for teaching quality, number of publications, research dollars per faculty member, the number of professors who hold a doctorate and the number of students who earn degrees from each department.

AP photo

Three unidentified protestors cheer the window of the Wellesley College administration building as a demonstration takes place in support of their occupation of the building. They were protesting the school's investments in South Africa.

Wellesley students protest investments

40 occupy building

WELLESLEY, Ma (AP) - About 40 Wellesley College students occupied the main campus administration building Thursday in protest over the school's investments in companies doing business with South Africa.

The protesters, who entered the building at 4 a.m., planned to stay for at least 24 hours, according to Helene Alpert, 19, a sophmore from Bethesda, Md., and spokeswoman for the Ad Hoc Committee for Divestment Now.

She declined to say how the students entered the building, which she said is usually locked.

Wellesley spokeswoman Ann O'Sullivan said college officials have "no thought" of removing the students.

"I think Wellesley officials feel it's an appropriate way for the students to express their concern," Ms. O'Sullivan said.

"It's being conducted in an orderly fashion."

The protesters said they want the college's Board of Trustees, which meets Friday, to vote for a full divestment plan. The school has divested about $3 million in investments, but still has another $36 million in South African-tied stock, about 20 percent of the school's portfolio, Ms. O'Sullivan said.

Thursday's protest was held on the third floor of the administration building, blocking hallways leading to the offices of the president, dean and other top administrators.

The officials moved for the day, but Ms. O'Sullivan said business was conducted as usual.

"It's come to the point where this kind of action is necessary. It shows we're willing to take a personal risk," Ms. Alpert said.

Wellesley students have held other anti-apartheid protests, including the construction of a replica of the cell where South African activist Winnie Mandela was held.

Oraganizers said about 100 students attended an early afternoon rally. An evening candlelight vigil was also planned.

Shouting, eggs stop contras

CAMBRIDGE, MA (AP) - Police were required to escort two supporters of the Nicaraguan Congra rebels out of an auditorium and through a barrage of eggs after demonstrators prevented them from speaking.

It could not be determined whether the raw eggs hit the invited speakers or their sponsors Wednesday as they left Boylston Auditorium.

One of the scheduled speakers, Jorge Rosales, a spokesman for the Nicaraguan Democratic Front, fell to the ground as he left through a back door, The Harvard Crimson reported Thursday.

Police said no arrest were made.

None of the demonstrators inside the auditorium was identified as a Harvard student. The Harvard student organization Committee on Central America, which had organized a demonstration outside the hall, disassociated itself from the protest inside.

The scheduled speeches by Rosales and J. Michael Waller, an American who is director of public relations for the Council for InterAmerican Security, were sponsored by the Conservative Club and the Republican Club, both Harvard undergraduate groups.

About 165 people were admitted to the auditorium to hear the speeches and some were hissing before they began, prompting Achie C. Epps III, dean of students, to ask for silence.

But when Rosales began to speak, his words were drowned out by chants from the crowd.

Epps returned to the stage and said, "Let him speak. Will you give him that? Everyone has a right to speak."

Rosales began again but managed only about three sentences before he was stopped, the Crimson said.

Arab woman terrorist sought for bombing of TWA jet

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - Police are hunting for an Arab woman suspected of planting the bomb that exploded on a TWA jetliner over southern Greece, killing four Americans, police sources said Thursday.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said a woman called May Elias Mansur, a known terrorist, flew on the TWA Boeing 727 from Cairo to Athens Wednesday morning. The plane went on to Rome and the bomb exploded during its return flight from Rome to Athens Wednesday afternoon.

"We have launched a search around Athens and other cities and also put out a signal to trace this person through Interpol," one police source said. Earlier Thursday in Rome, Italian Interior Minister Oscar Luigi Scalfaro said, "It is certain that a suspect person, who is on file as a terrorist, got on in Cairo and got off in Athens, occupying in the airplane the exact seat where the explosion occured."

The Italian news agency ANSA on Thursday night quoted unidentified Italian investigators in contact with Greek authorities as confirming that the suspect was believed to have boarded with a Lebanese passport in the name of May Manusur.

ANSA said she may have boarded a Middle East Airlines flight to Beirut, Lebanon, shortly after arriving in Athens.

The Greek police sources said the woman may have passed through Greece previously.

The blast tore a 9-by-3-foot hole in the right cabin wall in front of the wing while the plane was about 15,000 feet over the ground. A Columbian-American man and three Greek-Americans - a woman, her daughter and 9-month-old granddaughter - were sucked out.

TWA President Richard D. Pearson said in New York Wednesday that the explosion took place on the cabin floor in row 10 or 11 and blew out seat 10F.

AP photo

Tim Alexiou, right, reads a statement from relatives of three Americans killed when a bomb exploded on a TWA airliner Wednesday.

FYI: Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week Schedule

Due to typographical problems, the schedule printed yesterday contained errors. Here is the corrected schedule.

Saturday, April 5

8 p.m., Mahar Auditorium: An evening with Robin Tyler, nationally known feminist comic

8 p.m., Hampden Theater: Play: One Good Look, written and directed by UMass student Richard Ballon, $2 admission

Sunday, April 6

12-4:30 p.m., Campus Center: Workshops

7:30 p.m., Campus Center Auditorium: Films: Buddies, The Times of Harvey Milk

Monday, April 7

12-1:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge: Lunchtime film series

4 p.m., Memorial Hall: Speaker: Kevin Cathcart, "AIDS, Its impact on family and criminal law, housing and employment and lesbian and gay civil rights law"

8 p.m., Memorial Hall: Keynote speaker: Rosemary Curb, author and former nun, "Lesbian Nuns, Breaking Silence" Tuesday, April 8

4 p.m., Campus Center 168: Speaker: New York AIDS activist David Summers and film, Hero of My Own Life

8 p.m., Campus Center 168: Speaker: author, activist Vito Russo, "The Celluloid Closet: Lesbians and Gays on Film," followed by film of the same title

Wednesday, April 9

12-1:30 p.m., 805 Campus Center: Human Relations forum with film

8 p.m., 168 Campus Center: Gwendolyn Rogers, National Coalition of Blacks, Lesbians and Gays; staff psychologist, City University of New York, "Lessons from Nairobi: Black Lesbians' Organizing Solidarity"

Thursday, April 10

12-1:30 p.m., Cape Cod Lounge: Lunchtime film series

4:30 p.m., Memorial Hall: Speaker: author Kathleen Barry, "Susan B. Anthony: A life for the Love of Women"

8 p.m., 227 Herter: Speaker: David Scondras, openly gay Boston city councilor, author of Boston Human Rights Ordinance, "The struggle for gay rights in Boston"

Friday, April 11

12-1:30 p.m., LBGA Office, 413 Student Union: Brown bag speaker series, lesbian faculty member at UMass

3-5 p.m., Campus Center: Lesbian caucus for UMass lesbians

7:30 p.m., Blue Wall: Coffee House, local lesbian, gay and bisexual artists

Saturday, April 12

10 a.m.-5 p.m., Campus Center: workshops

5 p.m., 10-01 Campus Center: Reading: Becky Birtha, black lesbian poet and short fetion writer, "For Nights Like These: Stories of Loving Women"

7:30 p.m., 101 Campus Center: Films: Choosing Children, The Times of Harvey Milk

Sunday, April 13

7 p.m., Campus Center Auditorium: Boston Gay men's chorus, 65 member choir now in its fifth year

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Professor Robert Kirchoff and his students are studying the winds whipping around the Graduate Research Tower.

Project studies grad tower winds

Reducing gusts is goal

By ADAM LAVINE
Collegian Staff

The buffeting winds that have whipped around the Graduate Research Towers and harassed walking students for years are now the subject of a research project headed by a University of Massachusetts engineering professor.

The project, initiated last spring by professor Robert Kirchoff and seven students from his senior fluid mechanics class, studies wind patterns around the towers and neighboring buildings. With the aid of blueprints from the Physical Plant department, the group built a model of the buildings to a scale of one inch equals sixteen feet.

The goal, according to Kirchhoff, is to improve the "pedestrian micro-climate" - in English, "to keep people from getting blown over." Using the department's wind tunnel, the group studied how air currents around the tall buildings interact with walkers on the ground.

"Winter is the worst season," Kirchoff said. "There's a lot of bad winds from the northwest." The wind wraps in a horseshoe fashion around the jutting wing of the 17-story tower, causing a vortex that often causes trash and bits of paper to eddy up the side of the building. These gusts also cause a roaring tunnel in the walkway between the two towers with winds "as high as 25 miles per hour," according to Kirchhoff.

The project now is being continued by Kirchhoff and his assistant Peter Peck, who has a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

Peck and Kirchoff are looking for solutions to the wind problem as well as examining possible sites for a new building in the tower area. One solution would be to form a fiberglass or concrete "skirt" which would encircle the towers at slightly above pedestrian level. Another possibility would be planting evergreen trees around the buildings and erecting a wall by Goessman to block and dissipate the winds. The team has made numerous experiments with combinations of the solutions, observing the wind patterns by blowing smoke and helium through their model.

Kirchhoff and Peck are also advising the University on the best location for the polymer research building, hoping to incorporate the new building along with their suggested solutions.

Funding for the experiment came from a Healy Endowment Grant, with additional funding from the engineering department.

Bottle rocket shot into RA's room

A bottle rocket was shot under a residential assistant's door at 2 a.m. Wednesday on the 20th floor of Coolidge Tower, University of Massachusetts police said.

In other police reports:

•A bicyclist suffered a scraped knee when he was struck by a Ford at 4:50 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of North Pleasant Street and Massachusetts Avenue, police said.

An 18-year-old Hadley driver and her passenger suffered minor injuries Monday, when the woman's car was struck by a car driven by a 19-year-old male University of Massachusetts student.

He was cited for failure to stop at a red light and causing an accident because he allegedly did not stop at the intersection of University Drive and Amity Street, Amherst police said.

- JEFFRY BARTASH and ANNE TAUGER

Photo by David Shimtus

WATERBIKER — Senior Steve Swain tests Fine Arts Center surf.

Women's career day tomorrow

Women's Career Day, tomorrow at the University of Massachusetts Career Center, will offer women practical and ethical solutions to career-related problems.

Morning workshops will be held on skill identification, resume writing and career counseling. In the afternoon, there will be a panel discussion featuring five UMass women's studies program alumnae who will speak about their experiences in the workplace.

The career day will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the center, located in Fraternity-Sorority Park.

"Its goal is to help women who have liberal arts degrees think about their options," said Nancy Arnold, coordinator of the event.

Arnold said the morning program will feature "practical" suggestions for women entering the work force, while the afternoon session will address more ethical concerns.

One ethical question that may be a great concern to many women is "how to be successful and still be a feminist," Arnold said.

The panel discussion, at 2 p.m., will include panelists from a wide range of careers: a lawyer from Washington, an employee from a New Bedford women's center, a fundraiser for a women's center in Holyoke, a legislative analyst and a local poet who teaches at Holyoke Community College.

The event, sponsored by the University Placement Service and coordinated by the Women's Studies Program, is free and open to the public. Further information is available from the women's studies office in Bartlett Hall.

-LISA DiMEO

Director shows film banned in Poland

By LISA DiMEO
Collegian Staff

The director of a film depicting atrocities during the early years of communist rule in Poland showed the movie last night to a University of Massachusetts audience, then told why the film was banned in Poland in 1981.

Richard Bugajski, director of Interrogation, said he disclosed a subject that the Polish government found sensitive. during the film's screening to an audience of about 80 people.

"I touched on a taboo subject," Bugajski said, although he said the subject, political trials of the early 1950s, is "common knowledge" among the Polish people.

The film was completed in 1981, but Bugajski has since left Poland after obtaining an illegal copy of the film. It has never been shown publicly in Poland but is widely distributed in the Polish underground on videocassette, he said.

Bugajski, who is now living in Canada, left Poland because he could no longer work there. After initially being denied a passport, he was permitted to emigrate five months ago.

Although the film takes place more than 30 years ago, Bugajski said it offers "a contemporary vision of the Stalinist period." This, he said, is another reason for its banning.

"The uniforms of the internal [Polish security] forces are still like they were in the '40s," Bugajski said. He added that Polish authorities felt that if young people were to see Interrogation they would not be able to tell the difference between the Stalinist period of the '40s and '50s and today's socialist era.

Interrogation's plot begins in 1951, when many political trials are taking place in Poland. The film is based on a branch of these trials in which Polish authorities are trying to convict a Major Olcha of spying. To do this, they torture Tonia, Olcha's former lover, for two years until she confirms he is a spy. In the meantime, Olcha is killed.

"I tried to make this film true to life," said Bugajski, who had two consultants throughout the project. Tonia's story is not true, but, according to Bugajski, "there are elements of truth" in it.

In Poland, "anything serious is discouraged," said Bugajski, while "empty, shallow subjects are supported."

He is currently planning two films, one based on a Joseph Conrad novel and the other based on a true story by a Canadian journalist.

Collegian photo by Nick Sokoloff

Director Richard Bugajski

Book shows ordinary folks' views

By JENNIFER ACE
Collegian Correspondent

When Gerald McFarland decided to write about the history of the westward migration in America, he wanted to approach the subject from the view of the common person, a technique introduced in the late 1960s as "history from the bottom up."

"For a long time, much history was done from the famous people's approach," said McFarland, a University of Massachusetts history professor. "In the late 1960s, there was a concern for hearing from people who had never been heard from."

For McFarland, this meant looking at people who were not the elite, the "ordinary folk."

"My book takes its heart from that [perspective]. It describes middle class people who were not famous for wealth, politics or social standing," he said.

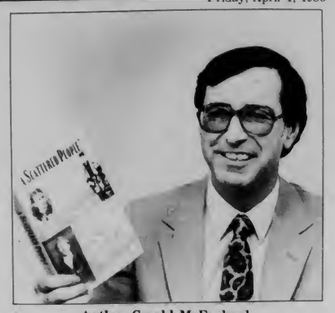
A Scattered People, subtitled "An American Family Moves West," tells the story of the westward migration of five generations of McFarland's own family.

"I started with the ordinary concerns of people," he said, "and showed how the large events forced choices on those people.

"The book is episodic," he said. "I keyed in on certain events that were illustrative of the times, and then tried to show why people did the things they did."

Although this perspective is obviously not the whole story of the westward migration, McFarland said, "It is amazing how these people's lives, though seemingly innocent, reflected the times."

Trying to trace the lives of people who are not famous can sometimes be difficult, McFarland said.



"For ordinary people, records are extremely fragmentary. I was dependent on writings in political, women's and social history," he said.

McFarland said he used more general historical information and then fit the people in his book topically. "The problem is often putting together a story that is coherent and interesting from small bits of information," he said. "To connect the story, I had to tell it as best I could from what I had."

McFarland said visiting the homes of his ancestors was fascinating, and that often he met descendants who were still living on the land their ancestors had homesteaded.

When he visited the areas his ancestors homesteaded and discovered they had bought poor farming land, he was moved to highlight the lives of ordinary people in history, he said.

"There are no history books about these places," McFarland said, "so you have to visit them to write about them."

Author Gerald McFarland

voted the best new restaurant in the valley
INDIA HOUSE RESTAURANT
Exceptional food & reasonable prices...
BUFFET BRUNCH on Sunday
$6.95 all you can eat
11:30 - 3 PM
Gift Certificates Available
45 State St. Northampton
serving beer & wine
dinner-5:00-10:30 lunch-11:30-3:00 take-out available
586-6344

This Afternoon, Friday April 4th
Warm Up to the Weekend
with
* * * * CLIFF MYERS * * * *
3:00 p.m. — ? at
CHANGES dance club
Proper sense of humor and ID required
Free sodas for designated drivers.
Rt 9 Amherst 256-8284

Summer internship in Appropriate Technology
If you are interested in small scale agriculture, homesteading, or overseas service (private agency or Peace Corps), you can get hands-on practical experience with windmills, well and water systems, photovoltaics (electricity from the sun), small animal husbandry, gardening, and much more. The Windfarm Museum partially paid five week summer internship is for those who feel their future plans may need this knowledge. It is relevent to any major. While not a job, your work time should substantially cover your expenses.
For information write:
Windfarm Museum
RFD #2, Box 86
Martha's Vineyard, MA 02568
Tel. (617) 693-3868

amc THEATRES
$1.95 TWILITE SHOW
MT. FARMS & 584-9153
A state of mind... Brazil
Fri at 4:15 @ $1.95 7:00, 9:45
Sat at 4:15 @ $1.95 7:00, 9:45
Sun at 3:45 @ $1.95 6:15, 8:45
pretty in pink
MOLLY RINGWALD
Fri at 4:45 @ $1.95 7:30, 10:15
Sat at 1:45 4:45 @ $1.95 7:30, 10:15
PG-13 Sun at 1:30 3:45 @ $1.95 6:15, 8:45
HANNAH AND HER SISTERS
Fri at 4:15 @ $1.95 7:0, 9:45
Sat at 1:30 4:15 @ $1.95 7:00, 9:45
PG-13 Sun at 1:00 3:30 @ $1.95 6:00, 8:30
Tom Hanks S. Long The MONEY PIT
Fri at 4:30 @ $1.95 7:15, 9:55
Sat at 1:15 4:30 @ $1.95 7:15, 9:55
Sun at 1:15 3:30 @ $1.95 6:00, 8:30
PG
The AMC Clubhouse Series presents GOBOTS: BATTLE OF THE ROCK LORDS
Sat at 1:00, 2:45
Sun at 11:30, 2:15
HAMPSHIRE 6 584-7550
DOWN AND OUT IN BEVERLY HILLS
Fri at 4:45 @ $1.95 7:30, 9:55
Sat at 2:00 4:45 @ $1.95 7:30, 9:55
R Sun at 1:00 3:15 @ $1.95 5:30, 8:15
Deborah Foreman Griffin O'Neal
APRIL FOOL'S DAY
Fri at 4:45 @ $1.95 7:30, 9:55
Sat at 2:15 5:00 @ $1.95 7:45, 9:55
R Sun at 1:15 3:30 @ $1.95 6:00, 8:30
Michael Keaton in GUNG HO
Fri at 7:15, 9:30
Sat at 4:30 @ $1.95 7:15, 9:30
PG13 Sun at 5:30, 8:15
TOMMY LEE JONES BLACK MOON RISING
Fri at 4:30 @ $1.95 7:45, 9:55
Sat at 2:15 4:30 @ $1.95 7:45, 9:55
R Sun at 1:15 3:30 @ $1.95 5:45, 8:30
RUN FOR COVER!
POLICE ACADEMY 3 BACK IN TRAINING
Fri at 5:00 @ $1.95 7:30, 9:30
Sat at 2:30 5:00 @ $1.95 7:30, 9:30
PG Sun at 1:30 3:30 @ $1.95 6:00, 8:30
LUCAS
Fri at 4:45 @ $1.95 7:15, 9:30
Sat at 2:00 4:45 @ $1.95 7:15, 9:30
Sun at 1:00 3:15 @ $1.95 6:45, 8:00
PG13
Cara Beer Movie II A New Generation
Fri at 4:30 @ $1.95
Sat at 2:30
Sun at 1:30 3:45 @ $1.95
THE CLASSIC LATE SHOWS
FRI & SAT at 12:15- SEATS $ 3.50
Rocky Horror in it's 332nd week
Monty Python and the Holy Grail
R
Highlander
R
Pink Floyd The Wall
The Texas Chain Saw Massacre

BICYCLE WORLD
located: 50 Main St. rear 253-7722 Amherst
FREE WITH THIS AD
CYCLING CAP OR WATER BOTTLE exp. 4/8
TUNE-UPS $15
OVERHAULS $
UNIVEGA
EDUARDO BIANCHI
SKATEBOARDS & ACCESSORIES:
Powell/Peralta Alva Santa Cruz
Independent G&S Madrid
NMB Bearings Tracker

A DELICIOUS DEAL!
BREAKFAST FOR TWO 4.95!
Each breakfast includes 2 large eggs, 2 strips of bacon, 2 sausage links, and 2 pancakes
4/14/86
BEER & WINE ALSO AVAILABLE
McManus eating place
Next to Super Stop & Shop
Rte. 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6889
Open Sun.-Thurs. 6 A.M.-3 A.M.
24 Hrs., Friday & Saturday

Newspaper recycling sheds placed at Puffton Village

By JASON SHAW
Collegian Correspondent

In a cooperative effort between the Amherst Recycling Committee and the Department of Public Works, three wooden recycling sheds were placed at the Puffton Village apartment complex, to help preserve the town landfill.

The goal of the project is to reduce the dependency on the landfill, located on Route 9, which is filling up rapidly.

"The sheds, placed three weeks ago, are for the disposal of only newspapers and are only located at Puffton but will expand to other areas if the project is successful," said recycling committee member Jeannie Jones.

The Puffton complex was chosen because of its large population of students, which are easily informed, and the willingness of Stephen Puffer, the owner of the apartments, to participate in the project, Jones said.

Puffer said, "It's a nice way to recycle and we need to do more of it."

Money for the $1,000 project came from the four-year-old recycling committee's budget, on suggestion from the committee. The Department of Public Works, which constructed the sheds, has already collected one load and plans to pick up another in the middle of next week.

"We have picked up 1,000 pounds, but there should be more, so we are encouraging a greater participation in the project," said Stanley Ziomek, superintendent of public works. The newspapers are brought to a trailer and later ground up and used for insulation.

Public Works encourages everybody in the Amherst area to use the sheds but urges people to tie the newspapers in a bundle or place them in paper bags and not put anything other than newspapers in the sheds.

FYI: reception set

A reception celebrating the publication of "Medieval Woman's Visionary Literature," a book by Elizabeth Petroff, will be held at 4 p.m. today at the Goliard Bookshop in Amherst. Petroff is a University of Massachusetts professor of comparative literature. The reception is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

The Western Massachusetts chapter of the National Endometriosis Association will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Everywoman's Center. Further information is available from the center in Wilder Hall.

A mathematics competition is scheduled for April 23 and first-year and sophomore students may sign up today through April 18 in room 1521D of the Lederle Graduate Center. First-prize is an $8,000 Digital personal computer and second and third prizes are $300 and $100 respectively, said Henry Jacob, professor and associate head of the department of mathematics.

★grant continued from page 1

microchips, Ritter said.

"Once that's done, you can make the chip as small as you want," Ritter said.

"I envision the program growing so that, in a few years, it will involve 10 to 12 faculty members, 12 graduate students and two post-doctorates," he said.

Ritter said the institute should be in a steady state operation when the money runs out in five years, and other funding sources will then be available.

"There are a number of computer companies in the commonwealth who would also like to support this kind of research, but IBM will get us started," Ritter said.

Share the health
GIVE BLOOD
Blood Services – Northeast Region

Sophia bookshop
A manual for living comfortably in the cosmos
Emmanuel's Book
The issue of whether there is a Greater Reality or not, for me at least, has been settled. I know that there is. So I will speak to you from the knowing that I possess and will not in any way equivocate or minimize my statements and my truth to fit nicely into the dualism of your human considerations.
—Emmanuel
Introduction by Pam Dass
Compiled by Pat Rodegast and Judith Stanton
103 North Pleasant Street
Amherst 253-5574

Spirit Haus
BEER SPECIALS
Piels ..... 12 pack $3.90
Eku (light only) ..... 6 pack $3.70
Heineken ..... 12 pack $7.90
Samuel Adams ..... 6 pack $5.70
WINE SPECIALS
Sun Country Wine Coolers $3.29
2 liter/all flavors
Folonari Soave ..... 1.5 liter $4.29
As usual, many other specials in store
338 College Street

THE SPOKE
A Drinkery to Meet, Relax and Enjoy
Beer of the Month
St. Pauli Girl $1.25
Proper I.D. Required
35 EAST PLEASANT, AMHERST, MA 01002

Can we build one for you?
BULKIE ROLL
TOMATO LETTUCE
SWISS CHEESE
ROAST BEEF
MAYONNAISE
BULKIE ROLL
Reminder: We Deliver FREE
THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops 549-6314
Open til 8 pm M, T & W 10 pm Th, F, S

Hellooo Spring!
3 DAYS ONLY/FRI, SAT, SUN APRIL 4, 5, 6
Mexican Sun-dresses Now $18.85
reg. 28.95 shown elsewhere $45-$60
Ribbed Tank Tops Now 4.95
100% cotton in a dozen dazzling colors reg. 8.95
Straw Hats 25% OFF
Flip Flops Now 2.99
1¼" soles canvas straps brightly colored reg. 3.99
Sunglasses
reg. 5.95 Now 2.95
Kites & Wind Socks 25% OFF
Thermal Bottles up to 25% OFF glass & steel
Baskets & Picnic Hampers up to 25% OFF
Acrylic Glassware 25% OFF
Parasols & Umbrellas 25% OFF
SALE!
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst/Daily 10-6, Fri. til 9, Sun. 12-5
FACES

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE
DAILY

—The Massachusetts Daily—
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 14

1985 WINNER OF FIVE
GOLD CIRCLE AWARDS

★NEWSWRITING
★OVERALL DESIGN [TABLOID]
★PAGE ONE DESIGN [NEWS]
★OPINION PAGE DESIGN
★FEATURE PAGE DESIGN

ADVERTISE IN AN AWARD-WINNING NEWSPAPER

CONTACT ADVERTISING DEPT.
(413) 545 – 3500
COLLEGIAN
113 CAMPUS CENTER
AMHERST, MA 01003

Young to receive award, fellowship

By LINA PANAGOPOULOU
Collegian Correspondent

Judith Young has been a full-time professor at the University of Massachusetts for only two years, but has already won world-wide recognition for her achievements.

Young, a physics and astronomy professor, said she will receive an Alfred Sloan Fellowship, along with another UMass professor, from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. "It has the beauty of $25,000 which will allow me to first, take a leave from university teaching for one semester and secondly, hire a research assistant," she said.

Young will also be the first recipient of the Maria Goeppert-Mayer Award, given by the American Physical Society to any woman in the world for outstanding achievement in the early years of her career.

"It is a great honor," she said. "The award is intended not only to recognize, but to encourage other women to go into physics."

The award includes a $2,000 grant and $3,000 to travel, lecture, and research at other institutions.

"I am saddened to see so few women in sciences. We are half the population, but nowhere near half of the faculty is women. We must create the situation that women go into science," Young said.

WOMEN ON CAMPUS

"It is not fashionable in junior high to be good in math. The number of girls that enter college feeling comfortable in science is already reduced," she said. "Counselors and teachers in high schools need to be very open-minded and to encourage women to go into science.

"My thesis advisor in graduate school was a woman. If it hadn't been for her presence, I wouldn't have gotten my Ph.D.," she said.

Young now advises six students herself, three of whom are women.

"The Astronomy program in UMass has 25 to 28 active graduate students and eight are women. That is many times above the national average."

Young is married and has a two-year-old daughter. "We try very hard to give her a non-sexist education -- it is not a snowman, it is a snowperson," she said. "We try not to offer her traditional toys and there is no evidence of her being traditional and that's great."

Collegian photo by Paul Franz
Judith Young

Last year Young received a $25,000 grant from NASA, which is renewed each year. "It allowed me to support a graduate assistant and to travel because the data available for analysis was in California," she said. She has applied for a renewal and will be notified this month if the grant is renewed.

Young received her bachelor's degree in astronomy from Radcliffe College— which "never gets credit for women"— and her master's and doctorate in physics from the University of Minnesota. She has been at UMass since 1979 and a full-time faculty member since 1984.

the Hungry U Restaurant
FREE with coupon only
SMALL CHEESE PIZZA
with a purchase of a pitcher
of soda or beer
(offer good Tues-Sun, 9-10 PM only!)
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

KARATE
$19.95
for 4 weeks
Fred Villari's
Studio
253-7349

IBM-PC* COMPATIBLE
$1500
10 MEGABYTE
(w/single Floppy)
• 150 watt power supply
• 256 K memory
(upgrade to 640K available)
• Hi-res green or amber monitor
• Parallel printer port
• Keyboard: AT or XT style
• Hi-resolution Hercules emulation board
Dual Floppy System only $1050
* Trademark of International Business Machines
promptWorks
Northfield, MA (413) 498-2724

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

FREE T-Shirts & Hat
Joe's Paradise
GOURMET FRIED CHICKEN
TRY SOME!
FRIED CHICKEN PALACE
TRY SOMETHING NEW & COMPARE THE VALUE
ANY ORDER WITH COUPON BETWEEN $5 & $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE HAT FREE
ANY ORDER WITH COUPON OVER $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE T-SHIRT FREE
Downtown Amherst, 31 Boltwood Walk
(through the alley, next to Taco Villa)
253-7494
FAST FREE DELIVERY

Lodestone
ONLY 2 DAYS LEFT!
POLOS 20% OFF
SWEATS 20% OFF
ALL JEANS 20% OFF
STIRRUPS 20% OFF
CARDIGANS 20% OFF
ALL JEWELRY 20% OFF
WOOL SWEATERS 20% OFF
LEATHERS 20% OFF
SPRING IN-WEAR 20% OFF
MATINIQUE JACKETS 20% OFF
50-75% OFF WINTER WEAR
Spring Sale!
AND MORE!
BIGGEST SALE IN ALL THE HAPPY VALLEY!
13 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst
48 Main St.
Brattleboro

Try to relate
by not seeing straight!
Make your appointment!
Don't be late!
Perms
$28.00 includes conditioning and blow dry or set. (does not include cut)
MARJON
HAIR DESIGN
Mountain Farms Mall Hadley, MA 586-4551

ED/OP

GOP hopefuls for 1988

Stephen Erickson

As a registered Republican and former president of the UMass Republican Club, I thought I would share with you (actually my editor is forcing me to do this assignment) my thoughts as to how the Republican primary will shape up. Since the Democratic Party is in clueless disarray, it is the primary of the party of Lincoln, Eisenhower, and Reagan that will decide the leadership of our country in the 1990s. Here are a few of my thoughts on the possible Republican candidates.

George Bush - Forced to pick the winner of the 1988 presidential election, I have to go with Bush. Despite his wimpy kiss-Ron's-fanny image and the feeling among Republicans that no one knows just what this man stands for, Bush appears to be the heir to the Reagan presidency, just as Truman was to Roosevelt and Johnson to Kennedy.

Jack Kemp - A favorite of conservatives and a real threat to Bush, Kemp's best chance is if Bush, Baker and Dole all fail to drop out of the race early, thus dividing the moderate vote and leaving Kemp with most of the conservatives. Kemp's crazy ideas about going back to a gold standard bother me, and I think he should relax ideologically. Rumors that Kemp may be bisexual could leave his candidacy in ruins.

Bob Dole - He's an intelligent and witty fellow, but Dole is just too liberal on issues like taxes to get the Republican nomination or my approval.

Howard Baker - Baker offers little that another candidate cannot supply. I don't see him going anywhere. Besides, he's too short.

Jeane Kirkpatrick - She's not a politician, but a scholar. Jeane, Jeane, the foreign policy machine doesn't have any experience with partison legislative politics or domestic issues. Watch out for her as a possible vice presidential candidate, however.

Pete Dow - Heck, I'd vote for him.

Pete du Pont - Here's an underdog I'd like to hear more from. He has served as Governor of Delaware, where apparently he has done some good things. He is conservative, but doesn't carry the ideological baggage of a Jack Kemp. A Presidential candidate should have experience in an Executive position, something none of the other candidates have. Should Kemp falter, du Pont's star may rise as the strong conservative alternative to Bush.

Stephen Erickson is a Collegian columnist.

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail recieved, individual replies cannot be made.

Next Chief will be God

Herb Ramy

"Here at ABC News, we've just received some very important information. Both Gary Hart and George Bush have made their concession speeches. The new president for 1988 will be God. We have Ted Koppel live at divinity headquarters where God is about to appear and accept some questions from the audience. Ted, it's all yours."

"Thank you, Mike. Well, folks as you can plainly see it's bedlam here at divinity headquarters. Everyone is clapping and chanting "God" over and over again in anticipation of her arrival. Wait a minute, the noise level is suddenly going up. This may be it. Yes. Yes, it is. God is making her way to the podium with her hands raised, flashing peace signs to the audience. She's trying now to calm them down so that the question and answer period can begin. We're now going to hook you into our microphone at the podium because it seems God is about ready to speak."

"Folks, can you please simmer down so we can begin." Suddenly there is complete silence in the room. "There that's better. Now for the first question. Ted, you've got your hand raised. God ahead."

"Thank you God. My question is; seeing that your're a woman, how do you explain the seeming unfairness of only women having to carry a fetus for nine months?"

"A good question. First of all, I'm not just a woman. For legal reasons I've had to assume one form for the duration of my term of office. I chose being a woman because one had never been President before, and I've always liked being the first in everything. Secondly, when I first set up male/female sexes I thought they were quite fair. Sure woman had to carry the child, but originally there was to be no pain involved. How was I supposed to know Eve would succumb to temptation before Adam?

As far as men go, I gave them the much uglier sex organ, and the sometimes uncontrollable erection. Women will never know how embarassing it is to carry books several inches in front of their bodies when walking around. Next question, please. You in the corner."

"My question is how do you explain your landslide victory over your opponents when you just joined the race last week?"

"I attribute my success to a good clean campaign strategy, and my campaign manger Rusty Denton. Rusty, from my mouth to your ears buddy. Nobody believed you, but you kept on believing. Next question. Yes, you in back."

"God, isn't your presidency in direct violation of the Constitution's separation of church and state clause."

"I don't believe so because I'm not affiliated with any church. The churches of this world have tried to interpret what I've said. It's not my fault that they've done such a bad job. I mean stuff like unbaptized babies going to Hell. Let's be serious, people. I'm no ogre, I'm God. Sure I get angry sometimes, but in general I'm a nice person. I only have time for one more question. Yes, in the front."

"God, do you think you will do a better job as a woman than you would as a man?"

"I sure do. Look at all the great losers through history. Everyone of them has been a man. Look at all the wars. All of them were started by men. Most of the great tragedies of this planets' history were caused by men. You tell me, how can a woman not do a better job?"

Herb Ramy is a Collegian columnist.

FOUR SEASONS
RT 9 HADLEY 584-8174

CASE SPECIALS

BUSCH.....$8.99
BUD & BUD LIGHT.....$10.99
LABATTS BEER or ALE.....$11.99
BECKS light or dark.....$14.99
UTICA CLUB.....long necks.....$6.99
CARLING.....16 oz deep cans.....$9.99

SIX-PACK SPECIALS

SAN MIGUEL DARK.....$3.99
BECKS.....light or dark.....$3.99
ST. PAULI GIRL light or dark.....$3.99
LABATTS.....beer or ale.....$3.50
MOOSEHEAD.....$3.50
ROLLING ROCK.....12 oz. bottles.....$2.99

We carry UMass' own Portland Lager
Famous from the Hills of Central

SUN COUNTRY WINE COOLERS
all flavors imaginable.....$3.89 2 liter bottle

Fine selection of California White Zinfandels, great for Springtime enjoyment

Kegs? We got 'em lowest price in town we deliver, Master Charge orVisa accepted for deposit.

Four Seasons is located on Rt 9 just past Burger King
why clown-around with anyone else?

Summer Session 1986 June 2- July 22

This summer WPI is offering courses in BIOLOGY. CHEMISTRY. CIVIL ENGINEERING. ENGINEERING SCIENCE. HUMANITIES. MANAGEMENT. MATHEMATICS. MECHANICAL ENGINEERING. SOCIAL SCIENCES and PHYSICS.

For further information, please call or write: Summer Session Office Worcester Polytechnic Institute 100 Institute Road Worcester, MA 01609 (617) 793-5591

Please send a Summer Session catalog to:

Name: _____

Address: _____

City: _____ State: _____

ZIP: _____

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief | Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor | Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor

Peter Abraham, Sports Editor | Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor | Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor | Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor

John Yonce, Women's Editor | Michelle Segall, Photo Editor | Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor | Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Continuing the work

Tomorrow night Robin Tyler, the west coast lesbian comic, will kick off Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week at the University of Massachusetts. The week of programming provides a wide range of opportunities for both entertainment and education.

Sandwiched between the big-name cultural events are films, speakers and a coffee house featuring local performers. The high quality of what is being offered is both unprecedented and represents progress that has occurred on this campus over the last two years.

Last spring, the atmosphere of hatred directed at gays and lesbians reached a peak when posters appeared announcing that a "homosexual" would be hung in effigy during Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week. This public display of intolerance demonstrated that the estimated 2,500 gay and lesbian UMass students did not have the institutional support that other groups have on this campus.

Within 24 hours of receiving the threat of a protest featuring the hanging, the gay community and heterosexual allies organized a counterdemonstration and demanded, among other things, that the administration establish an office of gay and lesbian concerns.

Felice Yeskel, who at the time was a heterosexism awareness trainer for the east side of campus and an advisor to the lesbian/gay/bisexual Counseling Collective, was hired as a human relations planner and advocate and prepared a report on the lives of gay students at UMass which documents the difficulties of living in the residential system, the fear of violence and harassment against students who are "out of the closet."

Under pressure from Yeskel and the students, "sexual orientation" was added to UMass' anti-discrimination clause and the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns was created. Things have changed but they have also stayed the same.

The coordinators of the office, Yeskel and Reed Ide, have been working with many agencies to improve services for gay and lesbian students and headed the committee which organized the awareness week. Unfortunately, they have had to do this full-time job on a part-time salary.

And though "sexual orientation" has been added to the official antidiscrimination clause, it is still evidently not within the realm of tolerance for many students. The report prepared by Yeskel states that 65 percent of gay and lesbian on-campus students "feel they have been harassed, ostracized, ignored, or made to feel invisible by other residents." The issue of ROTC's presence on campus also needs to be addressed; the military openly discriminates against gays and lesbians.

We urge everyone, gay and straight, to attend next week's events to educate themselves, to have some fun, and to help make this campus a safer, happier place for everyone.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified ad counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail received, individual replies cannot be made.

Terrorism—on the roads

Daniel Sobel

As a spring-time college senior I do my share of drinking. I also happen to own a car,(although many of my friends would dispute my calling it "a car" for reasons I won't go into). And although I try to avoid it, I have found myself driving home at night after a party, somewhat less than sober.

I never really gave the subject of inebriation and operating machinery deep thought before one early evening last spring. I was leaving Hampshire College, where I had been visiting a friend. I turned left on route 116 and headed back towards town.

I had driven about one mile when a brand new Saab pulled over the dotted line and passed me on the left. Route 116 is only a two lane two-way stretch of road from Hampshire to town and the driver pulled back in front of me innocently enough, but kept swerving to the right. Clouds of dust blew in the air as tires hit soil on the side of the road.

I immediately became worried and suspected alcohol abuse and my fears were somewhat confirmed when the car drifted left again and stayed on the wrong side of the road as a pair of oncoming headlights approached quickly from the distance. Trying desperately to get this unknown person's attention, I honked my horn repeatedely. The car stayed in the left lane and I began to develop a great fear for this person's life as the oncoming car came dangerously close.

I stayed ose behind, with my hand glued to my horn. At the last moment, the Saab veered back into the right lane as the other car slowed and pulled off to the side of the road; the driver probably scared and pissed off. I too became pissed. This person obviously had no regard for personal safety and was endangering the lives of other drivers on the road. I was somewhat safer because I was behind the intoxicated driver.

I don't know how, but the driver pulled into the public parking lot in town near the police station. I pulled in too, got out of my car, only to find a woman passed out on the seat. I shook her awake and found her car keys and she said slurringly that she had just graduated from Hampshire, had partied all day and was going to her boyfriend's house; she was apparantly having some trouble finding it, though.

The story goes on, with me convincing her to let me drive her home, trying to find out where she wanted to go, only to have her pass out again before I could get exact directions and find the destination. Finally, I found her friend's house and delivered her safely.

Is there a moral to this story? Obviously, the best one is Don't Drink and Drive. But as sure as the sun will come up in the morning, people will drink and drive. When you go out on Friday night and you know you'll be behind the wheel, moderate your consumption. When the blond in the corner starts looking like twins, drink some water. It tastes good and it dilutes the alcohol content in the bloodstream. If you're too drunk, pass out on a couch at the party -- it will make for a great story on Monday in your Drugs and Society class. When I do drive and realize I'm buzzed, I remind myself, "Dan, you're buzzed, drive slow and be cool. Death is too final."

It's almost May and a lot of us seniors will soon be celebrating the end of our UMass experience. The best graduation gift we can give ourselves is the gift of "life," so let's be careful out there.

Dan Sobel is a member of the Collegian staff.

Letters from the editor

Larry Bouchie

The Massachusetts House of Representatives will begin debating Fiscal 1987 budgets this Monday, including the budget for UMass. The University's biggest fiscal priority is getting a piece of the capital maintenance budget that all other public colleges will benifit from next year.

After about three weeks, our budget and House recommendations will move to the Massachusetts Senate, which should work up its own initial version before the Senate begins debate. If all goes well, maybe our own Rep. James Collins can effectively lobby for adaquate University funding in the House, and the Senate can collectively come through for public higher education, in light of the estimated $500 million plus state fiscal surplus.

It's already clear that Gov. Dukakis not only doesn't know what he wants to spend the surplus on (a rainy day fund -- be serious), but he also isn't inclined to deliver on his promise and "dream" for higher education.

★★★

Ever stop to wonder just how Jorge Rosales and Michael Waller happened to come to the University to speak? The answer is that UMass Republican Club member and columnist Peter Dow decided last semester to call Washington D.C. and inquire about getting some contra representatives to speak on campus. It took awhile, but Rosales and Waller were contacted and agreed to come in exchange for travel money and security.

While they were at it, Rosales and Waller accepted speaking invitations at UMass, Wellesley, Boston College, Harvard, Brandeis, and a few other schools.

As you may know by now, the reception these two received at Wellesley and Harvard was less polite than the University's. Apparently, Rosales was doused in blood at Wellesley, leading Waller to cuff a perceived perpetrator. At Harvard, Rosales was less than a minute into his speech when he was drowned out by jeers from the audience, leading Harvard sponsers to usher Rosales and Waller out the back door under a barrage of eggs.

More fear and loathing on the campaign trail for the contra and his sidekick, and more proof that UMass, while not perfect, can outclass any school in its reception of outsiders.

★★★

This state's new (anti) hazing law includes a provision that places the responsibility of informing college students about the law on the college's administrators. The University, understandably cautious about the law and the school's enforcement and liability, is considering printing a revised text of the law on the back of preregistration forms.

This proposal would require students to sign a statement that they have read that text and understand it, before the preregistration will be accepted by the University.

Larry Bouchie is a Collegian columnist.

Attention Computer Owners

IBM Portable, PC or Compatible?

We're offering fantastic SAVINGS on the following PERIPHERALS

PIONEER VALLEY DATA EQUIPMENT

259 Triangle Street
Amherst
549-1017

Legal Services Office - University of Massachusetts, Amherst

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED FOR FALL, 1986

Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits -
Work directly with attorneys -
No experience in the legal profession is necessary; training is provided -
Deadline to begin your application is APRIL 9 -
Contact Legal Services today - 545-1995

STADIUM

LIQUORS

Shortest Distance between 2 points is a straight line and 1 stop light save time and money

Support U.MASS Sports

Kegs - Beer - Wine - Liquors - Soda -Ice

Miller Lite	12 oz. cans	$10.99	+ $1.20 case
Meister Brau	12 pk. cans	$4.20	+ $.60 12 pk.
Carling	12 pk. cans	$4.00	+ $.60 12 pk.
Piels	12 pk. cans	$3.75	+ $.60 12 pk.
Ballantine Beer	12 pk. cans	$3.60	+ $.60 12 pk.

Just Past U.Mass Stadium - 253-5595

BLACK AFFAIRS

Activities to commemorate MLK week

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

As part of a program commemorating the memory of Martin Luther King jr., events are scheduled for tonight through Tuesday.

A gospel concert featuring choirs from the area will be held at 7 p.m. tonight in Bowker Auditorium in Stockbridge Hall. Also featured is the Greater Bethleham Choir from Newark, N.J., and guest soloists Lisa Robinson and Beverly Rohlehr.

A one-credit colloquium, titled 'Martin Luther King jr.: His Life, His Work and His Ideas,' will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at B-34 of Brett House in the Central Residential Area.

According to Sally Majewski, the assistant student development coordinator in Central, the colloquium has been held for the last three years in connection with Martin Luther King Week because "most students born between 1962 and 1967 have little memory of the events of the '60s. This gives people an idea of why Martin Luther King, of what the issues and events were about."

The program will feature films and discussions of King and the civil rights movement, she said.

The fourth annual Youth Seminar will be held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, April 15 in room 163 of the Campus Center. The topic of the event is the civil rights movement and features films and guest speakers.

The seminar is designed for students of area high schools. "There will be discussions about the reasons for the civil rights movement," Mitchell Smith, the event organizer said. The film, called "King: Montgomery to Memphis" will be shown, along with a film about the Ku Klux Klan, he said.

Each of the three events is free and open to the public.

Puerto Rican politician to speak Tuesday

By C.RON ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Carlos Gallisa, General Secretary of the Puerto Rican Socialist Party, will speak on "Crisis in the Puerto Rican Society" on Tuesday April 8th in the Campus Center Auditorum at 7:30 p.m.

Recently, the island of Puerto Rico has been undergoing a series of criminal acts which is believed to have stemmed from the economic dependence on the US. Twenty percent of the population is unemployed and 60 percent receive some form of asistance from the Federal goivernment.

Tania Meisner, Treasurer of Ahora, said that the government is blaming the uprise of criminal acts on the loss of traditional values and morals such as broken homes. However, she thinks that the high unemployment rate and the dependency on the US are the main reasons for these acts.

Meisner said that there is an average of 317 crime committed daily, 80 percent of which is committed by youths between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five years old. She also said that of every five crimes, four are believed to be drug related

Governor Rafael Hernandez, has made a proposal to the legislature to introduce eleven new laws which he said would curve these crimes. However, members of his senate believe they need to work on improving the old laws before enforcing new ones.

Marisol Carlo, a member of Ahora says, "the idea of creating new laws just demonstrates the government inability to run the country well."

Alas at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, there will be an imformal meeting with Carlos Gallisa where he will answer questions. The event is sponsored by Ahora, Concepto Latino, Bilingual Collegiate Program, Every Woman's Center, CASA, and the Office of Third World Affairs.

Share the health GIVE BLOOD

American Red Cross
Blood Services - Northeast Region
1985 ARC

CLASSICAL JAZZ REGGAE BLUES ROCK SOUL FOLK JAZZ ROCK SOUL CLASSICAL

#1 IN THE VALLEY!

DYNAMITE RECORDS

New Used · Buy Sell 584-1580

Maxell XLII90 · 2.00/case
TDK SA90 · 2.00 ea

We buy and sell used L.P.'s and Tapes

THORNES MARKETPLACE

150 MAIN ST NORTHAMPTON

Join us at DELANO'S

FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
For an Old Fashioned
New England Breakfast
Sunday 10:00 to 1:00

Serving:

Eggs Benedict
Eggs Commodore
Eggs Picante
Pancakes
French Toast
Eggs cooked to order
Build your own Omelettes

Make your meal complete with Our Famous Bloody Mary

57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

WOMEN'S CAREER DAY

at the University Career Center,
Fraternity/Sorority Park,
E. Pleasant Street

Saturday, April 5, 9-5

Open to all University Women
Students and Staff Welcome
Featuring:

SKILLS WORKSHOP
JOB SEARCH ASSISTANCE
and a
PANEL PRESENTATION BY WOMEN'S STUDIES ALUMNAE

To Register Call - 545-1922

SPONSORED BY: UPS University Placement Service

COORDINATED BY: University of Massachusetts, Amherst — Women's Studies

CHINESE JUNK-with sails and small motor. Sleeps 4. Cheap. Call YO 3-8047

APT WITH VIEW-overlooks Moscow Square. 3 rooms. 48 rub. mo. 387 Lenin Blvd.

FOLDING TENT-thr... old. Waterproof . . Sh... 108

BURRO - ... Senior P... Sil 2.0... ...sistant.

TO ... ...odes... ...food dream ... Cr... ...gent Alp 35- ...00

EXP... SHERPA GUIDE - all kinds of Mt. climbing. Call Cliff 854-0028

The Collegian classifieds: They do the job!

ARTS

UMass hosts Black Musician Conference

By GLENN SIEGEL
Collegian Correspondent

Each April for the past fifteen years, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst has been the site for the Black Musicians Conference.

The purpose of the week long event has always been broader than simply presenting world-class musicians in concert, and this year's conference, beginning Sunday, April 6 and running through April 11 is no exception. There are films, a gallery exhibit and a panel discussion all relating to jazz and the blues, in addition to the usual fine array of musical offerings.

The conference gets underway at 8 p.m., Sunday in room 165 of the Campus Center with a screening of rare jazz films from the private collection of David Chertok. This trip in time with provide many younger fans with their first opportunity to see such jazz greats as Coleman Hawkins, Billie Holiday and Charlie Parker in action.

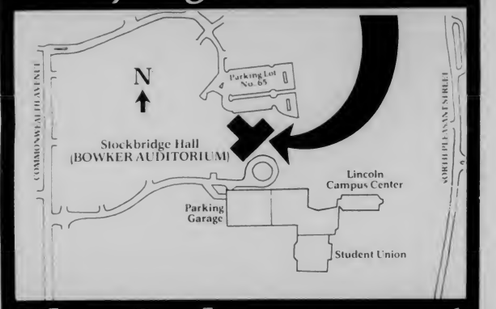
On Monday, the scene shifts to Southwest's Hampden Theater for an 8 p.m. concert featuring the Dewey Redman Quartet. The tenor saxophonist, who has been making music professionally with Ornette Coleman, Keith Jarrett, and Don Cherry, among others, for almost 30 years, will be joined by one of jazz' greatest drummers, Ed Blackwell, the talented young bassist, Mark Helias and saxophonist David Bond.

A panel discussion in the Cape Cod Lounge on Tuesday, will be followed by a guitar performance by Grammy-award winning bluesman, Luther "Guitar Jr." Johnson. The discussion, entitled "Perspectives on Black American Music," will bring together the opinions of Redman, jazz photographer and writer, Val Wilmer, Village Voice jazz critic, Gary Giddins and pianist/educator Valerie Capers. The program begins at 7:30 p.m.

There will be an artists reception for Ms. Wilmer at 5 p.m. Wednesday, in the Augusta Savage Gallery in the New Africa House, where "Sorrow Songs," her exhibit of photographs can be seen through April 19. The Stephen Newby Singers will provide gospel inspired music.

You can see Bessie Smith in room 174 of the Campus Center on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. She is the subject of the film "St. Louis Blues," which will be shown along with "Jazz on a Summer's Day," capturing highlights from the 1958 Newport Jazz Festival. Thelonious Monk, Chuck Berry

continued on page 13



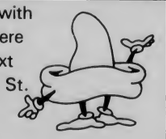
Dwike Mitchell and Willie Ruff

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
北京園
Open 7 Days for Lunch & Dinner - Hours: Sun - Thurs 11-10 - Fri & Sat 11-2
WEEKDAY DINNER BUFFET - Mon - Thurs $6.95, 5-8.30
SUNDAY BRUNCH 11:30-3 Full Liquor License
GRAND OPENING NIGHT
featuring Live Entertainment
FOOLS PARADISE
Free Admission with Dinner 8:30 - 12:30

First you get to Bowker...

Then Bowker gets to you!

THE BERLIN CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
Heinz Schunk, leader
Wednesday, April 9 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $15,13



MITCHELL-RUFF DUO
Willie Ruff, horn and bass
Dwike Mitchell, piano
Friday, April 11 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $13,11

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Five College Students Half Price Tickets available at Fine Arts Center Box Office and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545 2511 or 1-800-243-4842

C & C LIQUORS
61 Main St., Amherst
Next to Town Hall
FOR FREE DELIVERY OF $20 MINIMUM ORDER, (OFF UMASS CAMPUS)
Dial 253-3091
— All Prices In Store Cash Only —

Olifant Vodka from Holland 750 ml. $6.25
Ballantine Beer 6 packs $2.25 + dep.
San Miguel Lt. 6 pk. $3.50 +dep.
10% Off all German Wine
Burnetts Gin 1.75 liter $13.75
Rolling Rock refills case $10.99 +dep.

We're that Mexican Restaurant with all the great food and atmosphere down the narrow alleyway next to the Time-Out on N. Pleasant St. Come Discover Us Today!

TACO VILLA
...Offering Quality Mexican Foods
NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST 584 0673 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256 8211 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 749 SUMNER AVE 788 0919 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

UMass Theater Guild brings the 'Peanuts' characters alive

By YOAV SHORR
Collegian Correspondent

Last weekend's production of "SNOOPY!!!", performed by the UMass Music Theater Guild, was a delightful bringing to life of everyone's favorite childhood comic strip.

Based on the book by Charles Schultz, the musical was a stringing together of many short strips, combined with songs accompanied by a piano. Lots of the little stories "Peanuts" told came out here, as well as the famous personalities of Charlie Brown and his friends.

There was Sally Brown, portrayed by Mary Kay Olson, the bratty little girl who is hopelessly head over heels in love with intellectual trivia-wizard can't-be-without-his-blanket Linus Van Pelt, played by Lloyd Rutledge. There was Lucy Van Pelt, the crabby, arrogant sister obsessed with her own vanity and sense of beauty and greatness, played by Molly McDaneld. Along came Charlotte LeBlanc as Peppermint Patty, the rugged, freckled, baseball-capped tomboy.

Then there was Woodstock. Although his role was speechless, it was very funny. Eric Woodman and his facial expressions were definately the pathetic, clumsy, cowardly yet courageous little bird who stumbles all over the place.

Torbjorn Pedersen, or Snoopy, as usual shared his thoughts about the world. Sitting on top of his doghouse, he tried so hard to be a great author, clicking away at that famous black typewriter. Finally there was James Fitzpatrick, III, as good old Charlie Brown--everyone's favorite loser.

There was no plotline in the production--only a series of short comic strips. For instance, we see Linus, sitting faithfully, waiting for his hero, the Great Pumpkin. Snoopy, TERRIBLY offended when Peppermint Patty called him a dime-a-dozen, sang a song reminiscing about the good old days at Daisy Hill Puppy Farm.

We see Lucy in her "PSYCHIATRIC HELP 5 CENTS...The Doctor is IN" booth. Charlie Brown had a deep conversation with Peppermint Patty about marriage, and one with Lucy about the leaves falling in autumn. Snoopy, of course, did not fail to remind us that he is, after all, Joe Cool. Lucy sent her annual letter to Santa Claus, requesting for money this Christmas--preferably in 10's and 20's.

As usual, good old Charlie Brown got

continued on page 14

Bluesman Mac Rebennack, a.k.a. "Dr. John," will be at the Iron Horse tonight at 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. He has bee in the music business for 15 years and his latest album, The Brightest Smile in Town, has earned him fave reviews.

The Southwest Area Government is presenting one of America's leading comics, Emo Phillips, for a night of laughter. Phillips, seen on "Late Night with David Letterman,"can be seen at 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. on April 10 in the Student Union Ballroom at UMass. Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door.

★preview

continued from page 12

and Louis Armstrong are among the featured performers.

Finally on Friday, April 11, pianist Dwike Mitchell and Bassist/French hornist Willie Ruff will be in concert at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Mitchell and Ruff have traveled the world spreading the gospel of jazz in their informative and highly entertaining style. Singer Abbey Lincoln and alto saxophonist Jackie McLean will be on hand to accept thie year's Distinguished Achievement Award, given annually to artists who have made lasting contributions to Afro-American music.

This year's Black Musicians Conference is called "Standing On the Shoulders of Giants" and is dedicated to the livingmemories of singers Willie Mae "Big Mama" Thornton and Joe Turner, and drummers Jo Jones, Philly Joe Jones and Kenny Clarke, all of whom in the past year and a half.

All events are free except the Mitchell/Ruff concert.

AMHERST CINEMA
Friday and Saturday
The Stuntman 7:00
The Ruling Class 9:00
Sunday - Tuesday
Gone With The Wind 7:00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

HADLEY PUB
THE DRAKE BLUES BAND
featuring Danny, Jared & Brez—You heard them at WILLY'S RATHSKELLER!
FRIDAY, APRIL 4
CLUB DEBUT 9:00 PM - 1:00 AM
RTE. 9 HADLEY 586-4444 Pub opens at 4:30 PM

TRADER FRED'S
LABELS FOR LESS
THE BASEMENT STORE OF AMHERST

Out Back Red Floral Tee Shirt	Reg. $22. Our Price $9.99
Piccolo Sweat Shirts	Reg. $18. SPECIAL $4.99
Mens Hawaiian 100% Cotton Shirts	Reg. $24. Our Price $12.99
Jantzen 100% Cotton Slacks	reg. $28. Special $9.99

Ladies Forenza Floral Jeans Reg. $38. Special $14.99
Men's 100% Cotton Polo Shirts Reg. $22. Special $8.99
Puma Leather Hi-Tops Reg. $42.00 Special $19.99

Attention Bargain Hunters!
Special Racks of Mens and Womens Sweaters and Pants $2.99

Lower Level Below Steve's Ice Cream
MC/VISA 253-7155
Hours: M-Sat 9:30-6; Sun. 12-5

ORDER YOUR 1986 YEARBOOK NOW!

To receive your copy of the 1986 INDEX please fill out the coupon below and send it, with a check or money order for $18.00, to:

INDEX, 103 Campus Center

Due to a contractual agreement, students who do not order an INDEX will not receive a copy when the books are sent to campus in the fall.

Books will be mailed to SENIORS ONLY, who include a permanent address on the coupon.

Send to: INDEX, 103 Campus Center

Name _____ Year

Local Address _____

Permanent Address (seniors only) _____

_____

I.D.# _____ Date _____

★Snoopy!

continued from page 13

ragged on--good old wishy-washy Chuck, always getting the short end of the stick. Even Snoopy grew up to be another one who did not like him. James Fitzpatrick managed to remind us that there is a little bit of Charlie Brown in all of us.

Overall, the musical was excellent. It was funny and entertaining. All of the actors had excellent stage presence, and projected themselves very well. The singing was great. The set design—a doghouse, some bushes and trees, a fence and the blue sky—was just right.

Working from a comic strip, however, created a lot of limitations. Besides a lack of plot, it seemed there was very little that could be done in terms of characters. If you are looking for a deep, thought-provoking drama, obviously this was the wrong place to be. The audience had to make a big departure from the characters and voices we grew up with. These limitations aside, "SNOOPY!!!" was a lot of fun.

FRIDAY FILM FOLLIES

By DON LIPPER
Collegian Staff

Northampton's Pleasant St. Theater is the host to two of this week's best films. Geraldine Page won an Oscar a few weeks ago for besting leading performance by an actress for The Trip To Bountiful. This film has been impossible to find because it has been playing in just a handful of moviehouses. Now it comes to NoHo. The critics have just been wowed by the movie and by Page performance.

The other movie at Pleasant St. is local filmmaker Ken Burns' celebrated documentary about the controversial Louisiana Governor and Senator Huey Long. Burns, 32, a Hampshire graduate has twice been nominated for an Academy Award says his film isn't meant to judge Long but is designed to force people to make their own decisions about the charismatic figure of the 1930s who could possibly have become America's first dictator. The film is well put together that you have to keep on reminding yourself that what your watching isn't a fictional creation but one of the most complex characters in American history. I would wholeheartedly recommend this film.

Huey Long

There are no other new movies this week that are worth your time but now might be a good chance to see some really good old movies. NoHo's Academy of Music is showing Woody Allen's Manhattan and his 1977 academy award winning (Best Picture) Annie Hall, Diane Keaton co-stars.

Two wonderful Peter O'Toole movies are playing at the Amherst Cinema. In The Stuntman O'Toole stars as a tyrannical movie director who forces a fugitive from justice to work as a stuntman in his war film. The fugitive has no one to turn to when he begins to suspect that O'Toole is trying to kill him.

In The Ruling Class, O'Toole stars as the 14th Earl of Gurney who must take his late father's place in the House of Lords. There's only one problem, he thinks he's Jesus. The family gets another Jesus to heal him. It works, he's cured. Now he thinks he's Jack The Ripper. This comedy is so far off the wall, its not even in the house. It's fun, see it.

For those who like to take the status quo and snake it up a bit, we've just the thing from the Marc Alpert collection....

Snake skin loafer in black, white, pink, light blue and silver.

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

Springtime
Photo Developing Special
Develop one print at reg price and the next one is
FREE!
COLLEGE DRUG
4 Main Street, Amherst 253-2523
Mon-Fri 9-9, Sat 9-6, Sun 9-3

the Hungry U Restaurant
Buy any Sub at Regular Price
Get Second at ½ PRICE
Good with coupon only!
(Higher priced item prevails)
expires 4/10/86
56 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713

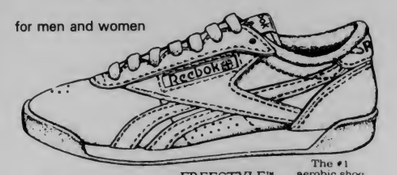
James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

TIME OUT
The Ref says I'm a screamer when it comes to Time Out Lunches.

NORTHAMPTON NAUTILUS
Student Special with coupon
$29.95 till end of semester
• 24 Nautilus machines
• Olympic free weights
• Aerobics classes
• Mohawk exercise bikes
• Concept II rowing machines
• Full lockerroom shower & towel privledges
• Co-ed whirlpool
Membership good till 5/25/86
CALL FOR FREE TRIAL WORKOUT
216 N. King St. Northampton
Open 7 Days 584-4975 Men-Women

FRI. APR. 4
Desperately Seeking Susan
Campus Center Aud. UMass
$1.00 at 5;
$1.50 at 7, 9, 11



All "Susans" with I.D. Half Price

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

NARRAGANSETT 16 oz. cans	$2.50 6 pk + dep.
new low price	$9.80 case + dep.
Utica Club 12 oz long necks	$6.49 case + dep.
Bud, Bud lite, Coors, Lite	$11.99 case + dep.
Molsons, Heinekens, Amstel	$3.99 6 pk + dep.
ALMADEN Mt. Wines	$3.99 1.5 Liter
CHAMPAGNES	$2.99 and up 750 ml.
Vodka or Gin 80°	$8.99 1.75 liter
Still a Good Selection of 1982
Vintage Red Bordeaux	$3.99 and up

Reebok®
Are Here!
for men and women

FREESTYLE™ The #1 aerobic shoe in the world
Matthews SHOES
THE VILLAGE COMMON, AMHERST

adirondack music
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET • AMHERST

In the process of moving merchandise to our new Greenfield store we found a bunch of great deals on demo's and left over inventory in our back room —

OHM Walsh II Loudspeakers (demo's)	$249.95/pair
OHM Walsh IV Loudspeakers (demo's)	$699.95/pair
Pioneer HPM 1500 Loudspeakers (demo's) 1500 pr. value	$149.95/ea
OHM C3 Speakers (demo's) 700 pr value	$249.95 pr.
Teac 25000 master cassette deck $1100 value (demo)	$499.95
Pioneer CT1040W3 $500 dubbing cassette deck (demo)	$299.95
Denon DRM33 3 head $500 cassette deck (demo)	$299.95
Nikko ND500II cassette deck (demo)	$79.95
Aiwa L450 cassette deck $400 value (demo)	$99.95
Luxman R404 33 w/ch receiver s/n 107db+ were $300	$199.95
Sony STRV3 40 w/ch receiever (used)	$99.95
Sansui 6060 50 w/ch used receiver	$99.95
Technics SA103 22 w/ch receiver	$49.95
Scott 418A 35 w/ch integrated amplifier	$49.95
Phase Linear T5200 tuner $600 value	$199.95
Vector Research VT 300 linear tracing J.T. $300 value	$99.95
Sharp RT 103 system w/o speakers $400 value	$99.95
Sherwood S-90 Dolby cassette decks $179.95 value	$49.95
Sherwood 2620 25 w/ch PLL tuned reciever $279.95 value	$89.95
Ohm E2 (new, just 7 pr.) $395.00 value speakers	$159.95 pr.
Ohm L2 (new, just 5 pr.) $600 value speakers	$199.95 pr.

Now Over 800 Movies!!!
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst
All Quantities Limited
Subject to Prior Sale

$1 a night MOVIE RENTALS
Come In For Details

239 Main St.
Greenfield
A/O 4/11/86
Not Responsible
For Typographical Errors

W·E·E·K·D·A·Y·W·E·A·R

Introducing...

Jackets, Sport Shirts, Pants and Sweaters for any day of the week. Contemporary styling and uncompromising quality...all in 100% cotton.

House of Walsh

32 Main St., Amherst 253-3361 Mon.- Sat. 9-5:30

W·E·E·K·E·N·D·W·E·A·R

Newman Student Association and "Run For Ritter" present

FR. BRUCE RITTER

founder of Covenant House at the CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM

7 PM

Monday, April 7, 1986

no admission charge

SUMMER JOBS

Application forms and job descriptions for positions with Summer Conference Housing are now available outside of the University Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center. Jobs as student supervisors, desk clerks, and operations crew personnel are being offered. Full and part time openings are available and include all shifts, weekdays and weekends.

HRTA and work study students are encouraged to apply.

University of Massachusetts is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Institution.

FANTASTIC MASH ©
CHOCOLATE FUDGE BROWNIE © COOKIE MONSTER ©
WILDBERRY SORBET & CREAM ©

Steve's

HAS

CRAZY NEW FLAVORS

AND

HOMEMADE WAFFLE CONES

CHECK 'EM OUT!

Pearl Street

Must be legal drinking age 584-7771

Thursday April 10th

the Stompers

see them in the biggest and the best

$8.00 at the door

Miller High Life Rock Series

Presents

Wednesday April 16th

"I Melt With You"

MODERN ENGLISH

Tix in advance $7.00 at Albums & Main St Rec's

10 PEARL STREET NORTHAMPTON, MA 413 584-7771

Yes, I'm now on my way to J.B.'s to consume mass quantities of my favorite nourishment.

JBs

HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

11 am - 2 am 7 days

253-7018

50 Main St. Amherst, MA

J.B.'s FEVER CATCH IT!

DOONESBURY

GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE

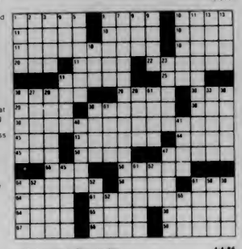
BY GARY LARSON

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Bathing ploys
6 Food thickener
10 Furniture style
14 Walking
15 Innocent
16 Like some concerts
17 Sweetheart of John Ridd
19 Wallet items
20 Philosophy
21 Jefferson's vice-president
22 Slanders
24 It's — way to Tipperary
25 Somewhat Suffix
26 Like some acting
29 Downs
32 Adage
35 Jai —
36 Sign of the Zodiac
38 Charioteer Ben
39 Oscar-winning actor 1930 31
42 Cistern
43 Scoring point in horseshoes
44 Mediterranean port
45 Curve in a road
46 Move swiftly
47 Lock of hair
48 — I saw Elba
50 Chinese or Japanese
53 Garb
56 Angora or worsted
57 Likely
60 Decisive defeat
61 Oscar-winning actor 1934
64 British princess
65 Barrett of Hollywood
66 — Garden Tudor ballet
67 Dinkers
68 Beehive State
69 Delightful places

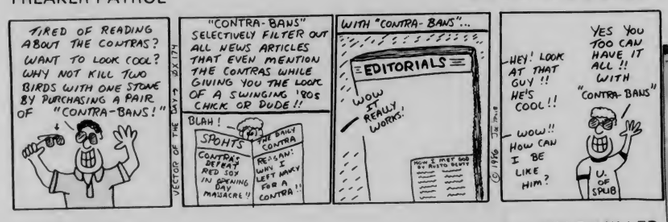


DOWN

1 Indonesian island
2 Sci-fi sightings
3 Standard
4 Weight unit
5 In a dependable manner
6 Embellish
7 Author of The Last Puritan
8 Barley broths
9 Bakery products
10 A Lesson from Fugard play
11 Emmy-winning singer 1954 and 55
12 Declare
13 Muddle
18 Pair
23 Little lady
24 Gamayel of Lebanon
26 Divide equally
27 Word on a wanted poster
28 China's Chiang-man 1949-76
30 Realtor's measure
31 Dist
33 Halos
34 Small song birds
36 Legal action
37 Construction beam
40 Senior
41 Poetic time of day
47 Jumble
49 Baptism and confirmation
51 Singer Vaughan
52 Nettle
53 Doesn't give —
54 Singer Tennille
55 Decorator's choice
57 Competent
58 Blueprint
59 Gumshoes
62 Realtor's space
63 Support

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

B	U	T	E	R		R	A	N	T		P	E	R	B
E	M	U	R	E		A	M	A	H		L	E	V	O	E
A	O	L	I	S		G	I	R	O		G	E	L	S
C	U	B	S		D	R	E	A	M	G	I	R	L	S
H	E	R		D	E	U	S		A	A	A
		Y	O	U	N	G		I	S	L	A	N	D	S
B	E	N	S	O	N		P	O	W	E	L		E	A	U
E	T	N	A		L	O	A	F		A	L	L	E
S	T	E	Y	E	R		L	O	S	S		S
O	U	R	T	O	W	N		P	L	A	Y	S
			O	P	E		T	H	E		N	A	D
T	H	E	W	E	A	T	H	E	R		S	E	G	O
R	O	T	A		V	A	R	I		M	A	D	R	E
A	M	U	R		B	O	N		A	I	D	E	R
P	O	N	D		R	U	B	S		H	A	Y	E	S



4/4/86

1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 4/4/86

FREAKER PATROL

BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES

BY R.MILLER

GORDY

BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY

BY BERKE BREATHED

Menu

LUNCH

Tuna Salad on Water Roll
Turkey Divan

BASICS LUNCH

Tuna Salad on Water Roll
More Turkey Divan

DINNER

Roast Lamb/Gravy, Mint Jelly
Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

BASICS DINNER

Rice Frittata
Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

Weather

Today, partly cloudy with highs in the low 60's and lows in the high 40's.

Tonight: Overcast, but warm in the low 50's. Saturday will see a mere chance of showers and high's in the upper 50's for the lacrosse game. Extended outlook: Sunday will see more of the same with an increasing chance for rain.

Staff Notice

Elections for positions at the Collegian will be held April 17 in the newsroom. Anyone wishing to run for an office must submit a letter of intention to editor-in-chief Dode Levenson by 5 p.m. on April 10.

Candidates will have a night to present campaign speeches on April 15

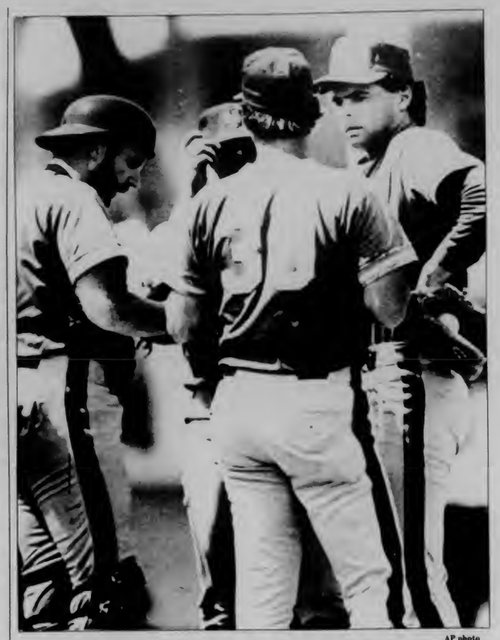
STAFF

Night Editor.....Peter Abraham
Copy Editor.....Jim Patriquin
Layout Technician.....Anne McCrory
Photo Technician.....Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor.....Norm Achin
Production: Dave Boardman, Peter Bullis, Max Pudle, Laura Vogel, Michelle Eichelman, Peter Sod, Beatrix Hoffman

The U.S. Postal Service will be accepting applications for temporary summer employment on April 8, 1986 from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM in Room 901 of the Campus Center. This work involves distribution of mail, delivery of mail and loading/unloading trucks at the Springfield General Mail Facility, 190 Fiberloid Street, Springfield, MA 01152. The pay is $5.00 per hour and 10% for work performed between 6:00 PM and 6:00 AM.

MIKE'S FAMOUS SMORGASBOARD

at 4:00 pm



Friday you can eat

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

SPECIALS

Rolling Rock and Miller bottles $.99

All Vodka Drinks $1.40

AP photo

CAN WE TALK? - New York Mets' pitcher Rick Aguilera, right, seems to be a little unhappy as he chats with pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre (30) and catcher Barry Lyons. The meeting came during a spring training game yesterday in Tampa.

TOC LOUNGE

LIVE MUSIC

FEATURING

FRIDAY 4.4.86

& JOHN CRUZ

SATURDAY 4.5.86

STUART CUNNINGHAM

9:00 P.M.- CLOSE

"CHECK OUR WEEKLY DRINK SPECIALS"

Dyslexia: Challenges-Success

Guest Speaker: Dr. Mary Groda Lewis

Her life inspired the 1985 CBS docudrama "Love Mary" with Kristy Mc Nichol

Time: 1:00 p.m.
Date: April 10, 1986
Place: Memorial Hall, U.Mass.

For more information: Call The Dyslexic Student Organization Telephone 545-0018

★baseball

continued from page 20

Bergquist also talked about the possibility of changes on the left side of infield to try and tighten up the defense.

"We are going to try a few things the next few days," said Bergquist. "I have a couple a things in mind we would like to see in practice."

Bergquist said he would look at sophomore infielder Darrin O'Connor at shortstop, sophomore Steve Allen at short and third, and freshman Steve Kern at third base.

"We're looking for the right combination in the infield," said Bergquist. "I may have to change some people around. We have been hurt at shortstop and third quite a bit." Tuesday's demoralizing loss to the University of Connecticut has left UMass at an emotional low going in to Saturday's twin-bill. The Minutemen were up 9-4 with two out in the ninth when an error opened the flood gates and the Huskies roared back for the victory.

"We would have been upbeat if we had beaten UConn," said Bergquist. "Now its (team attitude) really down. It will be a real test to see if they can play up to their capabilities. The danger of losing games like that is people begin thinking we're jinxed. It's throwing and catching, it's not a jinx. We just have to go out and do it."

In other UMass action, the men's lacrosse team will open at home against the University of New Hampshire (see story, front cover of paper).

The women's softball team will be on the road against Adelphi, a tough opponent that figures to test the 15-3 Minutewomen, who are undefeated since their Florida trip.

Yesterday, the Minutewomen swept Holy Cross to go to 15-3 on the season. In the second game, pitchers Lisa Rever and Chris Wanner combined for a no-hitter. A perfect game was marred only by Rever hitting a batter.

In track action at the Derby Track (near the baseball field), the UMass men's team will face the Big Green of Dartmouth College.

The Green defeated UMass during the indoor season, but the Minutemen have a wealth of talent in the distance events as well as in middle distances and should be able to stay close to Dartmouth.

In crew, the UMass men's and women's teams open up their season with a meet against Wesleyan University. The races are set for Saturday afternoon.

The men's tennis team, coached by Manny Roberts, will be in action against Boston College in Chestnut Hill on Sunday. The men will be in action again on Tuesday, when they host the Crusaders of Holy Cross at Boyden Courts.

Next week will see all of the UMass teams in a flurry of action.

Tuesday will see the baseball team at home (as part of a 14-game homestand) against Holy Cross.

The softball team will open Atlantic 10 Conference action on Tuesday, when the play the University of Rhode Island in a doubleheader in Kingston.

The women's lacrosse team meanwhile will be in action at Boston College, taking on the Eagles.

Rankings News: The men's lacrosse team, at this writing, was ranked ninth in the nation. The women's softball team was 20th in the NCAA Division 1 Poll and seem sure to move up after winning four straight games. The women's lacrosse team was tenth in the nation.

★the UNH game

continued from front cover

The fun and sun aside, this looms as a very important game for the Gorillas.

Wednesday's loss at Cornell will be easily forgotten with a win against the Wildcats. A loss however, outs UMass back at square one.

An indication of how highly-regarded the Gorillas are becoming is this week's United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Assocition's newsletter, published out of the University of Virginia.

One sections mentions UMass as "the sleeper team of the year in Division 1." Garber, with his careful selection of junior college transfers and freshman, has developed a team capable of beating any team in the nation.

But at the same time, all but one or two teams UMass will face this season comes into the game thinking they are capable of beating the Gorillas. Count New Hampshire in that group.

At 2-2 this season after beating a lightly-regarded Vermont, 12-11 in overtime on Wednesday, the Wildcats have also beaten Delaware, 8-7 in Newark.

The two losses have been to nationally-ranked teams, including an 11-8 defeat at top-ranked Maryland and a tough 8-7 loss at 10th-ranked Towson State.

The game will be the last of a five-game road trip for UNH and they will be looking for a momentum boost going into their first contest at home, next Saturday and SUNY-Stony Brook.

Junior attackman Barry Fraser leads the Wildcats in scoring with 13 points (11 goals and two assists). An All-New England selection as a sophomore, Fraser is a crafty scorer.

Midfielder Tom Arrix has struggled some this season, but netted three against Vermont to raise his season total to five and one. An All-American, he scored 25 goals last season and is atough face-off man.

Senior attckman Tom Snow is the third Wildcat for UMass to worry about. He has only three goals, but is UNH's best feeder with nine assists.

In goal, the Wildcats go with senior Andy Soma. Garber reported that people in Maryland called Soma one of the best in the nation after he held the Terrapins to 11 tallies. He has allowed 8.7 goals-per-game this season.

Defensively, the Wildcats look to senior Steve Fay, sophomore Jack Sebastian and senior John Silverio.

"With the limited schedule that most lacrosse teams have, you can overlook anybody or say that a certain game isn't important, but this game is even more important to us," said the elder Garber.

"We obviously would like to get off to a good start at home and keep the fans happy, plus they beat us last year, so we want to get them back. On top of that," laughed the coach, "I don't want to lose to my son!"

Freshman goaltender Sal LoCasio saw the first four Cornell shots go in, but he kept his composure and, according to Garber, played well the rest of the way.

"We're going out there playing as hard as we can, I feel pretty good," said Garber. "This will be a good game for the fans to come out ans see what we can do."

Gorilla Grumblings: Glenn Stephens, a sophomore midfielder, is expected to miss the game with an injured shoulder. . .Garber said that at Cornell, the man-down team played well and that UMass did a good job of clearing against the Cornell ride.

The game will mark the first home contest for Canella and junior college transfer defensemen John Jordan and Chris Knapp as well as the freshmen. . .With good weather, the crowd could soar up well over 6,000.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs, 8:45 - 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

Pi Sigma Alpha PolSci Honor Society is sponsoring a free video presentation "Atomic Cafe" 7:30 PM Fri 4/4 in CC 162

25 + Club Hike in Amherst area Saturday 4/5 meet at lot across from Hasbrouck at 11 am bring lunch

Graduate Students and Faculty will hold their Annual Spring Reception with the topic of Affirmative Action highlighting the event April 6, 2-6 pm at the Faculty Club

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 Olds Cutlass s/w very good cond $950 323-6442 after 5 pm

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO 253-2204

Mona needs a new home 77 Honda Civic good cond needs some work $600 but negs 586-5409

1976 Ford Grenada four door extremely reliable needs no work $850 or BO Derek 549-1656

78 Plymouth Horizon 4 spd good trans $700 or BO Mike 665-8335

76 Plymouth runs good looks good must see! $1000 256-8281

1977 Datsun Truck well-maintained solid bed, full cap, runs great, $900 or best offer call even. Mike 256-8788

79 Datsun B210 standard good condition 950 or BO call Cathy 549-5032

74 BMW 2002, red California car. Restored. 6,350 obo 538-4127 or 538-2696

VW Rabbit 1981 diesel 50 mpg excellent condition Rusty Jones AM/FM cassette $2500 negotiable 527-6277

1983 Toyota Tercel four door hatchback automatic AM/FM cassette, good condition, 37,000 mi. Asking $4000 call Sue or Steve, eves 323-4855

1975 Chevy Vega GT good condition needs some work 500 or BO call 549-7578 after 9

1977 VW Rabbit new clutch, brakes, fuel pump. Runs excellent. Four door, sunroof. $1800 or BO 584-0593

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramids Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities: contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BANDS WANTED

Central Area's Spring Fling '86! Bands a anted for benefit concert for Massaid. All interested groups call anytime by April 9th. Concert will be April 25th. Call 546-6402 or 546-6406

BICYCLES

Univega Gran Premino 3.5 in, blue, racing/high perf touring, great cond, extras, $630 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 255-7436

Female roommates wanted for summer on Cape Cod. Cottage in Hyannis. 1000 for summer, May 23 to Sept 2 call 546-9211

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 545-0100

EDIE "THE MAKEUP LADY"

Will be in the CC April 3-5 9-4 PM buy your Spring shades!

ELECTRICAL REPAIRS

All electrical appliances sewing machines, clocks, shavers, vacuum cleaners. House calls and shop repairs Amherst Repair 253-2969

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock, Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6445

TURN THE TABLES 5 yr Pro D.J. latest records, best rates, lights free 586-9691 24 HR

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc-Jockeys Light-Shows, Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2 a.m. Everyday, anywhere on campus. Play it safe, call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?! Cheap, 2 blocks from beach call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9281

Apartment available in Southwood. Take over lease June 1st, and it's yours for the fall. Low rent, good bus service. Call 253-3619 for more info

Apartment available in Southwood for summer cash reward! Call Dave or Mike 256-1040

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st, bus stop in front. Tracey 256-1807

Need temporary housing? Apts in Brittany Manor open now. Rent low - 400 rent from leaseholder. Lease on apts run through June call 549-6214

Summer Sublet/Fall Option 2 bdrm, utilities included last mo. rent and security deposit yours must get rid of. 665-4829

Must See large 2 bedroom 2 bath recently redone apt, air conditioning & extras. Available June 1st call after 6 pm. 665-8766

Sublet summer and it's yours in the fall renovated Brit Manor apt. new carpet and bathroom 256-0239

2 bedroom starting June. Cliffside $410/month inclusive. Fall option nice apt. on woods edge! 665-3281

FOR SALE

Televideo computer terminal like new. $350 or BO call 910 663-2204

Gucci Watches many styles for men & women, only $30. - call 6-7480

1978 Subaru 4x4 wagon. Needs exhaust, possible engine. Good parts car or restoration 700 or BO call 256-0196

For sale Tennis Rackets Wilson (prostaff & sting) Head graphite edge, Prince graphite comp all rackets are brand new. Please call Wang 546-9422 for very reasonable prices

203 cm Atomic, Raichle boots: 11, saloman 737, used twice $285 546-5769

Mistral Maui sailboard for sale 350 or BO call 256-6978

For Sale a pair of Mitsubishi speakers $95.00, 3 ways-system, 100 watts, excellent condition. Please call Wang 546-9422

FOUND

Softball Glove on 3/25 at field outside NOPE. Call John 5-2234

Found - silver bracelet across from FAC call to identify nites 253-2475 Ann

Found student ID on 4/1/86 about 2:35 pm between Bartlett and Goodell Library you may pick up your ID in the Bursars Office

HELP WANTED

COUNSELORS - Private co-ed camp in Berkshires has openings for head and assistant instructors in: softball, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, archery, video/filmmaking, photography, horseback riding assistant, hiking/backpacking, waterskiing, computers, waterfront (WSI), bunk counselors, and bunk unit heads. Good salaries friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Krouner Camp Schodack 54 Sheffield Road Newtonville, MA 02160 (617) 964-1912, days 9-6

Bands wanted for WSYL Radio's local showcase on 4/28 in teh S.U.B. Tapes and letter of interest due Friday 4/4 Box B Room 416 Student Union at 5:00. More information call Ceth 253-3362 before 11 PM

INSTRUCTION

Are you Danish? Do you speak Danish? I'm going to Denmark and need to learn. Please help tutor me! Call Amy 546-4791 best time 10 pm - 1 am

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semester. Aid attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

LET'S MAKE A DEAL

I need your furniture!!! Livingroom and bedroom furniture wanted! Please call 549-8190 and ask for Cheryl. Let's make a deal

LOST

Lost large male tiger cat near Cliffside Apt. Sunderland if found please call 665-8316

Black tweed wool gloves lost Thurs. night, March 13 in the Pub call Karen 546-1027

MOTORCYCLES

1984 Honda Intercepter 700CC 8k mi excellent cond. $2495 or BO 548-6860 keep trying or leave message

Honda Interceptor VF700 1984½ 3000 miles perfect condition blue 2500 call Tavier 253-3625

1980 Suzuki GS1100EX 6000 miles mint totally equipped $2495 Bill 546-5106

82 Kawasaki 440 Ltd mint condition! New sport mirrors , cruise control, back rest. Belt drive, very fast! Call 546-6185 or 546-8047

1976 Yamaha SX650 under 12,000 miles New battery! Best offer. Call Gary 256-1567 keep trying Yamaha XJ400H 1981 bought as 83 overstock. 2900 mi exc. cond. great first street bike 533-3894 keep trying!

1982 Kawasaki KZ550 new battery, 8,00 miles, black & red, very fast, runs great, $1,000 or BO Dan 546-4773

PERSONALS

SWAG presents

Emo Philips

America's hottest stand up comic

Thursday, April 10, 1986

two shows 8:00 and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom

tickets are $5.00 in advance

available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton.

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment

Ad Reepe - who needs them?

Sparky Happy 21st! It's your turn to kiss the Queen, take one home, ice cream on the house. When you blow us off! tell Jess we love her too. Love your Roomies

You may be a scooch and a nudge but I still love you. Just remember though nobody likes a hypocrite

Velvet - I'm "ready for the world" if you're always be in it KYTU ILU! - Eyes XO

Brie, Thought we'd forgotten. Think again. You're a great friend and roommate. Have a great birthday. We love ya, Lori and Ali

Alpha Chi Omega presents their annual Monte Carlo Night on Friday April 4th from 8 pm to 1 am at 36 Nutting Ave. Donations are $3.50 and go to cystic fibrosis. Valuable prizes will be auctioned off. Open to Greek Area only.

David, Think I'd let you have the last word? Does not!! Love FD (femme)

Miss Piggy - We may struggle at times but though it all we thrive. Thanks for 6 wonderful months. I love you, always. - Kermit -

Stop Reagans War Before It Kills You! No aid to the Contras

Tami: How many tiles are there really on the bathroom wall? The Sattine Submarine Commander

Anne Happy 6 months, the best of my life. Love ya - Kevin Linda RI Happy 21st Birthday! I want to see that "bet" come true by Monday - no backing out! Best wishes coming from your one and only Snarl Siever!

Walkathon for Nuclear Disarmament to benefit the Great Peace March Saturday April 26 contact UMass Peacemakers 546-2881

Wild Irish Rose Party on Sat night, call for more info

Notice little Jane is now 29! Happy Birthday Spika luv 1407, 08, 11

It's a wonder that we will choose acrose from campus this summer. Large double room in house w/private bathroom, washer/dryer, backyard and deck, lovable puppy. $190/month each Allison or Sheila 549-6364

TO SUBLET

Sublet ers needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-9575

To sublet with fall option sunny spacious 2 bedroom apt Downtown Amherst keep trying 253-7818

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

WANT A HOBBY?

Buy my car. 1978 Monarch it runs, but needs lots of work. Call Don - 253-9330 after 8 PM

WANTED

Two used but not abused skateboards wanted call 546-5444 or 546-5673

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

We'll pay you $100 for your lease. House wanted near campus. Call 546-9805

Do you have a room in your Rolling Green apt? I want it!! Anytime after May 31st. Please call Christine at 546-7662 (daytime), 253-5248 (at nite)

Responsible men seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house next fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

Want to take over your lease in Puffton or Brandywine. Reward offered call Sheron 546-9725

Want to give up a 2 bedroom Brandywine lease for any one bedroom and near campus call 549-1741 after 8:00 pm

Apartment in North Amherst call 665-2176

Three subletters needed for entire summer 5 minute walk from campus and town cheap rent call after 5 256-8047

Large, 2 bedroom Colonial Village apartment available for summer sublet. Rent is very reasonable and negotiable Call 256-1288 anytime

Don't depend on the bus Live directly across from campus this summer. Large double room in house w/private bathroom, washer/dryer, backyard and deck, lovable puppy. $190/month each Allison or Sheila 549-6364

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

REWARD

We need a four person apartment for fall 86. If you can help us please call 546-8031 after 9 pm. Offering a nice reward

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 545-1282 after 9 pm

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nedine 549-7478

TO SHARE BRITTANY MANOR APT. AVAILABLE NOW ONE MONTH FREE KEN, RICH, STEVE: 253-7312; DAVE: 665-4131

Cape Housemates Wanted perfect location, Main St. Hyannis. $900 for summer. Call 546-8267 or 546-8265.

One female needed for fall 1986 only Brandywine evening 549-7717 Sharyn.

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lee 548-1428

Brandywine - seeking young couple to share apt., nonsmokers only. call eves 549-1813 or 546-7076

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription, Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mail, 584-9362

The Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center, provides free legal services to fee-paying UMass students

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst Center sunny 3 bdrm apt in house, call eves 549-0886

SPORTS

Softball sweeps by Holy Cross

Rever and Wanner near perfect

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts softball team made it four in-a-row yesterday, sweeping its second straight doubleheader, 7-0 and 12-0 over Holy Cross at NOPE Field.

The 20th-ranked Minutewomen raised their record to 15-3 on the season, 4-0 since coming North after their trip to Florida.

The highlight of the day was with little doubt the no-hitter turned in by sophomore Lisa Rever and freshman Christine Wanner in the second game.

The duo combined to strike out six, walk none and faced only 22 batters. The only Crusader to reach base was second baseman Tammy Rogers, who was hit by a Rever pitch to open the third inning.

She was left at first however as Rever struck out the next two batters before getting the third to fly out to Chris Ciepiela in right field.

In the first game, senior righthander Lynn Stockley raised her record to 7-1 on the season, striking out 14 while authoring a two-hitter.

Stockley, in 43 innings, has allowed only 19 hits and two earned runs while whiffing 48. The UMass staff has thrown four straight shutouts.

The first game saw UMass score two runs on five first-inning hits. Second baseman Carol Frattaroli singled abefore shortstop Paige Kopeza tripled and UMass led, 1-0.

Centerfielder Sally Maher then drove in her team-high 16th run of the year, singling to plate Kopeza.

The second inning saw UMass being two more runs across. Emily Bietsch reached on an error, was sacrificed to second by Barbara Meehan before Debbie Cole reached on an eror. Beth Talbott then hit into a fielder's choice, scoring the first run, before Frattaroli's single made it 4-0.

On the game, Kopcza drove in two runs with two hits, both tripled. Frattaroli, Mahar, Illene Freeman and Cathy Reed each had two hits.

UMass banged out 11 hits in the game off of Holy Cross starter Diedre Driscoll, who went the distance. She struck out none, walked none and allowed five earned runs.

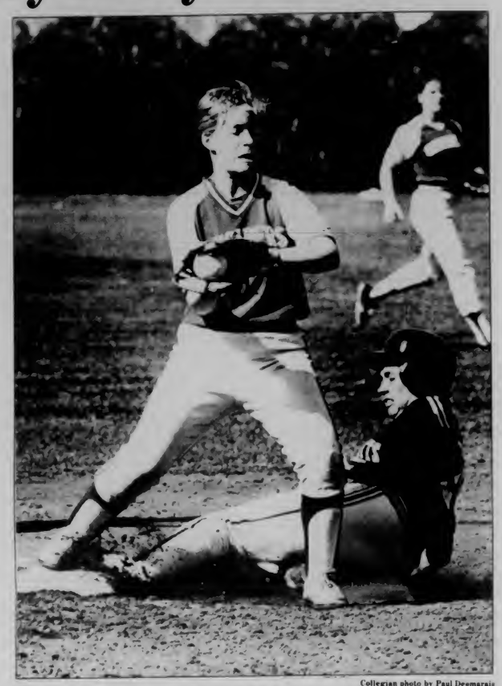
The second game saw UMass, with Rever and Wanner shutting down the Crusader offense, bang out a 15-hit attack and rout the visitors.

The Minutewomen scored five runs in the first inning, all that they would need to cruise in for the victory. Catcher Beth Talbott walked to lead off the first, Frattaroli sacrificed her to second, but was safe at first. Kopcza then reached on a fielder's choice, but the Cross was unable to produce an out. Maher then singled in a run, Freeman executed a sacrifice that scored another and the rout was on.

UMass scored one in the second, four more in the third and two runs in the fourth. The fifth inning was the only frame Holy Cross was able to keep UMass from scoring, although the Minutewomen did have a baserunner.

For the game, Talbott, Fratteroli, Kopcza, Freeman, Leigh Petroski and Rever had two hits. Wanner contributed to her own cause with a hit, her first of the season in her second at-bat.

Rever drove in three runs thanks to two triples while Kopcza drove in two.



Holy Cross' Cathy Renaud was left in the whole game and took a savage pounding, allowing 15 hits in six innings, 12 runs (nine earned) while walking only one and striking out none.

The Cross made two errors in the game while UMass came away from the doubleheader with none, raising their team fielding percentage to a sparkling .961 with only 21 errors in 119 innings.

Extra Innings: Fratteroli leads the team in hitting with a .404 average. Only she, Maher, Talbott, and Kopcza have started every game for coach Elaine Sortino this season.

UMass has struck out only 22 times this season, compared to 111 times for opponents. . .the Minutewomen are 26-of-33 on the basepaths. . .As a team, UMass is slugging .454.

Next up for UMass is a tough doubleheader with Adelphi in New York.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

University of Massachusetts designated hitter Cathy Reed is out here, but the Minutewomen had few other problems as they swept a doubleheader from Holy Cross yesterday at NOPE Field.

Women's lax at home vs. Springfield

By JOHN A. NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Whenever any team fields a young lineup, every game is looked upon as a positive step toward gaining experience. With patience it is hoped that the inexperienced youth will be seasoned by tournament time.

With just one senior in the starting lineup, the defensive corps of tenth-ranked University of Massachusetts head coach Pam Hixon's women's lacrosse team is a unit dominated by inexperienced players. It is their progress which Hixon hopes to nurture in time for the ECAC Tournament in May.

Hosting Springfield College tommorrow at 1 p.m. at NOPE's Totman Field, Hixon's defense will take another step forward in its quest for solidity.

Until our defense can come around we're going to have to draw on our offense to keep us in games," Hixon said. "I'm not saying we have a weak defense, certainly we do not. We just need to bring it along slowly. It's just a matter of slugging it out every day."

The mental errors it committed in the Gazelles' 14-10 victory Tuesday over Yale must be eliminated. Having given up eight goals off penalty shots, Hixon said she knows her defense must also clean up its play around the net.

Hixon said that playing Springfield, a Division II school, would give her a chance to experiment with players in different positions to see how well new combinations work out.

"How Springfield plays is really immaterial in terms of what we're planning to do,"she said. "I don't want to downplay them, but in my mind I do think that this is a game we should win. But its the kind of game where we'll have to execute in order to win."

UMass weekend preview

Baseball in a must-win situation

By BRYAN QUENZEL
Collegian Staff

Only one week after beginning its Atlantic 10 schedule, the University of Massachusetts baseball team is faced with a must win situation this weekend as the Minutemen open their home season with a three-game series against St. Joseph's University at Earl Lorden Field.

UMass plays a doubleheader against the Hawks on Saturday and a single game on Sunday. Both contests begin at noon. The Minutemen (1-12, 0-3 in A-10) must take all three games if they hope to salvage any semblance of a respectable record and make a bid for the Atlatic 10 playoffs this season. The series also opens a pivotal 14-game homestand.

"Two out of three is not enough," said UMass manager Dick Bergquist. "The top two (teams) make it to the playoffs and a team might be able to go 8-4 and still get in."

St. Joe's is 1-15-1 this season, 0-2-1 in the league after a series with Rhode Island. Catcher Jim Moran, hitting .426, is their top player followed by first baseman Bill Anderson at .365 with 18 runs batted in and six doubles.

A combination of inconsistent pitching and a swiss cheese defense is for the most part responsible for the Minutemen's poor showing so far this year.

"Offensively, we've showed we can score runs," said Bergquist. "We've scored enough to win. But if there's one thing I've learned over the years its that winning is pitching and defense. That's what has caused our trouble to this point."

The pitching staff has given out 81 walks to opposing batters in just 103.1 innings of work while Minutemen fielders have commited 38 errors in 13 games.

"One problem is the control of the pitchers," said Bergquist. "The walks are terrible, we are putting to many on base. Also, the inability to stop the ground balls that we should."

The coach has not had a pitcher he can send to the mound and count on to have a quality performance.

"Every pitcher needs to improve out there," said Bergquist. "Jon Martin (1-2, 3.52 ERA) has been our most consistent pitcher. The rest have to develop more consistentcy or they can't win at the college level."

Martin will start the first game before two freshman will be called on. Lefthanders Mike Owens and Chris Slattery will work the final two games. Owens, with an 8.76 ERA and 10 walks and 17 hits in 12 innings pitched, has a lot to prove. Slattery looked strong at Connecticut on Tuesday and was beating the Huskies before Bergquist pulled him and watched his team lose 10-9 in the last inning. He is 0-2 with a 3.21 ERA.

Senior Bob Kostro (0-2, 6.14), junior Steve Allard (0-3, 3.29) and freshman Ken Greer (0-0, 11.12, 19 hits in 12 innings) will be used in relief.

Kostro has been a major disappointment in the early going. The senior righthander had been pegged as the cornerstone of the staff in preseason, but has not come through so far. Bergquist sees his turn around as the key to the Minutemen's hope for any success this year.

"Kostro should be one of the dominate pitchers in New England," said Bergquist. "He has the talent, he just has to do it. His problem is control, he is always in trouble. Hits are an indication of control (13 hits in 14.2 innings). He gets behind the hitters and then has to lay the ball in there."

continued on page 19

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:

Today:
Men's Volleyball: Amherst, Boyden Gym, 7 p.m.

Saturday:
Men's Lacrosse: New Hampshire, Boyden Field, 1 p.m.
Baseball: St. Joseph's (2), noon.
Women's Lacrosse: Springfield, NOPE Field, 1 p.m.
Men's Track: Dartmouth, Derby Track, 1 p.m.
Softball: at Adelphi (2), noon.
Crew: Wesleyan.

Sunday:
Baseball: St. Joseph's, Lorden Field, noon.
Men's Tennis: at Boston College, 2 p.m.

UMASS vs UNH

SPECIAL COLLEGIAN LACROSSE EDITION

Saturday,
April 5, 1986
Boyden Field
1 p.m.

INSIDE

News.....pages 1-7
Editorial.. pages 8-9
Arts.....pages 12-14
Sports..pages 19-20

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Sports Editor

OK, so they lost.

Wednesday's 11-6 loss by the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team at Cornell took many people by surprise. The Gorillas, after easy victories over Air Force and Delaware, seemed like they were on their way to national prominence.

And they still are. Maryland and Navy are the only undefeated Division 1 lax teams in the nation at this moment. Syracuse, North Carolina and Johns Hopkins, the traditional powerhouses, all have lost. The smart money says that by the time the playoffs come around, no team will be without a loss, maybe two.

Keeping that in mind, there is little reason to believe that the Gorillas will not supply long-suffering UMass fans with what their looking for - a nationally powerful team.

Saturday, at 1 p.m. at Boyden Field, the University of New Hampshire will square off against UMass. If the weather cooperates, close to 6,000 fans are expected. It's the kind of event that come Saturday night when everybody at the party you're at is talking about it, you'll wish you had gone.

continued on page 19

ART WORK BY CONOR PLUNKETT

COLLEGIAN

KATINA'S

GRAND OPENING WEEK!

RT. 9 HADLEY MASS 586-4463
COME SEE & ENJOY OUR HUGE DANCE FLOOR & BEAUTIFUL FIREPLACE!

8-20 YEAR OLDS
Come sample our full juice bar & enjoy the entertainment!

SATURDAY NIGHT GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION - Begins at 7:30 p.m.
- COME AND MEET NATINA
- HORS D'OEUVRES
- PARTY FAVORS!
- NEW GAME ROOM
- GRAND DOOR PRIZE A FREE WATERBED courtesy DETTEREST WATERBEDS RT 9 HADLEY

★ FRIDAY! IN THE FLESH plus Special Guest ART IN MOTION
★ SPECIAL SUNDAY SHOW STARTS AT 9:00 p.m.
COMEDIAN/ VENTRILOQUIST BOB CARROL R-RATED SHOW
PLUS ROCK!
THE MANNISH BOYS AT 10:00!!

Figaro's
FAST & FREE DELIVERY
Hampshire Mall, Hadley Mass.
Delivers Italian Style pizza and specialty food!
Thursday 6 pm - 1 am
Friday 6 pm - 2 am
Saturday and Sunday 12 pm - 2 am
Giant Pizza is 25% larger than any pizza around!
FIGARO'S SPECIAL
GIANT 13.95
MEDIUM 12.95
GIANT MOZZARELLA (14") 8.25
MEDIUM MOZZARELLA (14") 7.25
Each Extra Ingredient 1.00
(Sausage, Anchovies, Peppers, Meatballs, Onions, Pepperoni, Mushrooms, or Extra Cheese.)
SICILIAN PIES
MOZZARELLA 10.95
Each Extra Ingredient 1.50
SPECIAL 17.95
CALZONE
Special Pizza Crust Filled with Pepperoni, Ground Beef, Italian Sausage, Salami, Mozzarella Cheese and Ham
4.25
Hot
Sausage Parmigiana
Meatball Parmigiana
Eggplant Parmigiana
Veal Cutlet Parmigiana
Cold Cuts
Served hot or cold with Lettuce, Tomato, Onions and Peppers With Italian Dressing or Mayo Combination
Salami and Cheese
Ham and Cheese
Tunafish
$2 OFF
Valid thru April 15, 1986
$1 OFF
Valid through April 15, 1986
MINIMUM DELIVERY $5.00
TEL

Tobacco, Magazines, Cigars, Cigarettes & More
Local & Regional Newspapers, Maps, Paperbacks
Agent for Western Union
Agent for Western Mass State Lottery
Augie's Tobacco Shop
108 S. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-7896
Open Mon-Fri 6:30-9, Sat 7-9, Sun 6-6

Good Luck UMass Lacrosse
MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Free Food and Drink Specials Daily
Come Relax at Mike's after the game

State Contract Pricing available to all students and faculty and PERIPHERALS MICROCOMPUTERS
*Immediate local delivery with a staff of professionals to support your purchase.
*Name brands -- EPSON, COMPUPRO, KAYPRO, SHARP, PANASONIC, CORDATA(CORONA), TOSHIBA, ROYAL, IOMEGA, RACAL VADIC, QUME, WYSE, LOTUS, ASHTON-TATE, MULTIMATE.
Visit the friendly professionals at. . .
Computer Works
228 Triangle Street Amherst
549-7133
Store Hours M-F 10-5:30 Sat 10-5

NOW FAST DELIVERY!
theSUB
33 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST • OPEN 11 AM TO 2 AM • SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
One FREE can of soda with delivery order
expires 4-11-86
FOR FAST DELIVERY call
549-5160
4:30 PM TO 1:00AM

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

No.	Name	Class	Pos.
1	Neal Cunningham	Jr	M
2	Sal LoCasio	Fr	G
3	Kelley Carr	So.	A
4	Mike Tomasello	Sr.	M
5	Tom Carmean	Jr.	A
6	Chris Tyler	Fr.	A
7	Brad Carr	So.	M
8	Greg Collins	Fr.	M
9	Greg Fisk	Sr.	M
10	Greg Cannella	Jr.	A
11	David Mehlhorn	Sr.	M
13	Stephen Moreland*	Sr.	M
14	Tom Aldrich*	Sr.	D
15	Glenn Stephens	So.	M
16	Chris Zusi	Fr.	M
17	Scott Santarella	Jr	M
18	Perry Seale	Sr.	M
19	Doug Musco	Jr.	A
20	Brett Jenks	Fr.	M
21	Patrick Craig	Sr.	D
22	John Jordan	Jr.	D
23	Chris Knapp	Jr.	D
24	Pat Cain	So.	A
25	Jeff Salanger	Fr.	D
26	Ed Boardman	Jr.	A
27	Rich Abbott	Sr.	M
28	Adam Rodell	Fr.	D
29	Tom Bonnet	Fr.	D
30	David Avidon	Fr.	M
31	Scott Craig	So.	D
32	Seamus McGovern	Sr.	M
33	Charles Moores	So.	G
34	Paul McCarty	So.	G
35	Matt Woods	Fr.	D
36	Gerry Byrne	Sr.	D

Coach: Dick Garber
Assistant Coaches: Kevin Campbell, Eric Kemp, Guy Van Arsdale, and Jeff Thomsen.
★denotes co-captain

Bruno's
PIZZA SUBS
PIZZA SPECIAL
ONE FREE ITEM OF YOUR CHOICE ON ANY LARGE PIZZA
ALSO AVAILABLE WORLD CLASS SUBS FREE DELIVERY!
EXPIRES APRIL 30th, 1986
4:00pm to 2:00am
363 MAIN STREET, AMHERST
256-0222

CLASSIC TO THE LETTER.
These uniquely crafted classics come in your choice of 14Kt. Gold or Sterling with 14Kt. letters. Precision monogramming ensures sharp, crisp initials. Three weeks delivery Styles available for engraving.
by BALLOU
WARD AMIDON
Registered Jeweler
Amherst, Ma
Hanover, N.H. — Brattleboro, Vt.

ATILLA'S 2
Hampshire Mall
Don't sink from hunger
Emerge yourself in one of our subs
GYROS
PITA B.L.T.
STEAK SPEEDIES
STROMBOLI
GREEK SALAD
HAM SPEEDIES
VEGETARIAN DELIGHT
PITA TURKEY
PITA CLUB
SOUVLAKI
TUNA PITA
586-0877
11:00 am to 9:30 pm weekdays
11:00 am to 11:00 pm weekends

UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

No	Name	Class	Pos
1	Craig Benes	Fr	G
2	John Gavin	Fr	A/M
3	Walt McMurray	Jr	M
4	Dave Applefeld	Jr	G
5	Pat Martinson	Fr	M
6	Jack Mungovan	So	M
7	Rich Pachino	So	A
8	Prescott Nash	Fr	M
9	John Zwack	So	M
10	Brendan O'Brien	So	A
11	Jack Sebastian	So	D
12	Ron Bansak	Fr	M
13	Steve Fay	Sr	D
14	Bill Cragg	Fr	A
15	Andy Soma	Sr	G
16	Seth Worcester	Jr	M
17	Mike McCaffrey	So	M
18	Glen Harcourt	So	M
19	Tom Snow	Sr	A
20	Kevin Growney	So	M
21	Steve Thomas	Jr	A
22	Brian Quirk	Fr	M
23	Dave Haynes	Fr	M
24	Paul Talmo	Fr	M
25	Tom Arrix	Sr	M
26	Steve Zamonski	Sr	D
27	John Silverio	Sr	D
28	Eric Howes	So	D
29	Frank Fiore	Fr	M
30	Barry Fraser	Jr	A
32	Keith Hughes	So	D
33	Bob Crutchfield	So	M
34	Bill Shelton	Fr	M
36	Mike Luvuolo	So	D
37	Eric Harvey	Sr	A
39	Dean Hansen	So	D

Head Coach: Ted Garber
Assiatant Coaches: Jim Urquhart, John Fay and Peter Drummond.

Baseball & Softball
Glove Sale
10 to 50% OFF ALL MODELS
Louisville Slugger
Spalding
Wilson
MacGregor
Rawlings
Mizuno
FENTON'S
ATHLETIC SUPPLIES
317 Main St. Amherst 253-3973
Mon, Tues, Weds, Fri 9-5:30;
Thurs 9-8; Sat 9-4

STADIUM LIQUORS
SUPPORT UMASS SPORTS
Look for our Spring Specials

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!
NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM
Wickles FinePrint
1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148
Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON
20% off your entire WEDDING ORDER
Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories
Hundreds to Choose From!
AMHERST STORE ONLY WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES JUNE 1986
One coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons.

NOW HIRING

for available positions in Amherst and for summer positions

in Amherst & on THE CAPE.

A great career opportunity and experience builder that entails telemarketing Tools and Industrial Supplies to Construction Companies Nationwide. Commissions and Bonuses. 3 shifts allow you to work around your schedule. Shifts: 6:30 am - 10:30 am; 3 pm - 6 pm; 6 pm - 9 pm; Saturdays 8 - 12 and 12 - 4. Call 7 am - 7 pm Dave 256-4101.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 44

MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1986

INSIDE

- Women graduates discuss careers. Page 3.
- The "invisible people." Page 5.
- Softball wins sixth in a row. Page 12.

State Student Assn. pushes voter drive

By JEANETTE DeFORGE and PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

BOSTON—The State Student Association of Massachusetts, a nonpartisan student lobbying group, announced plans Friday for a statewide campaign to register college students as voters.

At an informal brunch at the Statehouse, representatives from SSAM and the secretary of state's office described their goal of registering between 30,000 and 40,000 students at state colleges and universities for state elections this fall.

"National figures ... show only one-third of the people eligible to vote between the ages of 18 to 25 bother to register," said Harry Petrucci, assistant director of elections under Secretary of State Michael Connelly.

Not even 50 percent of that number voted in the last election, Petrucci said.

Michael Ferrigno, executive director of SSAM, said, "The bottom line is that students are one of the least-represented groups when it comes to votes—and the politicians know that."

Ferrigno asked the 30 representatives, from student governments of the state's 28 public college campuses, to make the last two weeks of April "Voter Registration Week."

If the goal is realized, "The whole political structure of the state would be changed," Ferrigno said. Worrying about financial aid cutbacks would be obsolete, he said.

The registration drive is made possible because of a new on-site registration law, which allows people to register at any location in order to vote in a specific town, Ferrigno said.

"Students don't want to be treated like second-class citizens anymore," he said, noting that blacks and blue-collar workers won legislative victories in civil rights and labor relations when they registered in great numbers.

Ferrigno said the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts "has got to take the lead. UMass is the flagship."

Jennifer Hughes, the newly-elected co-chairwoman of the UMass Student Government Association Public Policy Committee, was the only SGA member at the conference.

She said she had "no idea" how the plan would be implemented at UMass because she is new to her position and because her impression was that SSAM and the SGA have not had a good working relationship during the last few years.

Hughes said she plans to meet with SSAM to facilitate the registration drive.

Costly police plan irks concert organizers

By BOB KIEVRA
Collegian Staff

With the annual Southwest spring concert four weeks away, staff and students organizing the event are seeking a compromise with the University of Massachusetts Department of Public Safety for security arrangements.

At issue is the department's security proposal, which calls for 18 officers, two sergeants and three internal protection officers to be assigned to the May 4 concert, at a cost to Southwest of more than $2,500.

"We feel that the nature of talent in Southwest this year (John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band) will be a real problem for security," said UMass Police Sgt. Paul Ominsky. "I'm expecting between 8,000 to 10,000 people."

Joel Rabinowitz, Southwest security coordinator, charged that the proposal is designed to do more than ensure adequate security.

"What they're trying to do is take away as much of our money as possible so that we can't provide students with a good show," he said. "It's absolutely pathetic."

Mike Jones, program director for the Student Activities Office, said, "My concern is timing. The increased security demands just came to light."

But Jones added, "We've established a good rapport with the police. They're professionals and we'll work to reach a solution amenable to all."

Ominsky said the recommended security increases were due to problems last year, where "there was excessive alcohol at the concert ... There were no control points to monitor alcohol consumption and the organizers underestimated the crowd size."

"This caused us to hold over an entire day shift and left us with no campus patrols," he said.

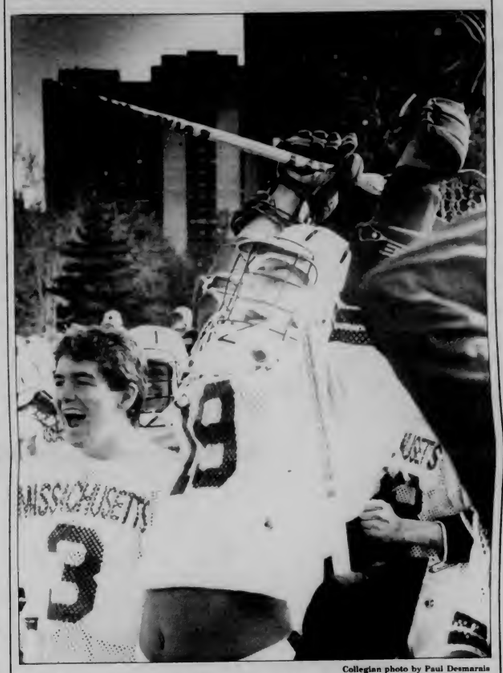
Jones said, "There were a few fights, but overall I thought the concert went well."

Three persons were arrested at last year's Southwest show and charged with disorderly conduct.

Bill Collins, Southwest Area Government president, suggested the University pay some concert costs. "If the chancellor can pay for the Republican Club's security (for a recent "contra" speech), he can surely do the same for us," he said.

Smith rally puts pressure on divestment committee

By JESSICA PORTNER
Collegian Correspondent



About 50 Smith College students protesting the college's investments in South Africa staged a rally Saturday outside the administration building to apply pressure on members of an ad hoc committee meeting there.

The group meeting was the Investor Responsibility Committee of the college's board of trustees, composed of students, faculty and three trustees. The committee was formed last month after a student occupation of College Hall which ended March 2.

The purpose of Saturday's committee meeting was to formulate proposals and discuss strategies which will be presented on April 12, when a voting majority of trustees will meet and deliberate with the committee's total divestment proposal and the board's current investment policy, said Suzinne Pak, a senior who is chairwoman of the Ethical Investment Committee and

continued on page 7

Lacrosse fever

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Sophomore attackman Kelley Carr (3) and junior midfielder Doug Musco (19) celebrate the lacrosse team's 15-7 victory over New Hampshire on Saturday.

5,000 see Gorillas roll over New Hampshire

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

In these days of the apathetic student body at the University of Massachusetts, the lacrosse team accomplishes something no election, concert, speech or exhibit can: It gets the students out.

A crowd estimated at close to 5,000 at Boyden Hill on Saturday saw coach Dick Garber's ninth-ranked Gorillas open their home schedule with a 15-7 bashing of the University of New Hampshire.

"This is what I call fun, in a major way," said UMass freshman goalie Sal LoCascio. "I've never played before a crowd like this anywhere. They're crazy, but it's like having an 11th man out there for us. It was a great time."

Sophomore attackman Kelley Carr (four goals and one assist) and junior attackman Tom Carmean (one goal and five assists) sparked a relentless offense while LoCascio (18 saves) led a hard-hitting defense to delight the partisan mob.

"This is a much better team then the one we beat last year," said Ted Garber, UNH's coach and son of the UMass leader. "We played Maryland, the number one team in the nation, and I'd have to say UMass is just as good as they are."

The tone of the game was set early when UMass senior Seamus McGovern buried UNH's Steve Fay on the opening face-off. The play wasn't allowed, but the point was

continued on page 20

FYI

Rev. Bruce Ritter, founder of the Covenant House, will speak at 7 p.m. tonight in the Campus Center Auditorium at the University of Massachusetts.

Covenant House was started 18 years ago when six homeless children, who survived in New York by selling drugs or through prostitution, sought refuge at Father Ritter's apartment. In addition to New York, there are now Covenant Houses in Houston, Ft. Lauderdale, and Toronto.

The seventh annual "Run For Ritter" will be held Saturday to raise funding for the Covenant House system.

Writing a Paper?
Need Help?
THE WRITING CENTER
Pierpont in Southwest,
Mon and Thurs 7 - 9
B24 Baker in Central,
Tues and Thurs 7 - 9, Wed 1 - 3, 7 - 9
04 Cashin in Sylvan,
Mon and Wed 7 - 9
* Bartlett 103 Wed, 7 - 9
* New Location

free catalog★
Europe
round trip from LONDON 438
PARIS 438
AMSTERDAM 428
BRUSSELS 438
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 when busy 256-1261
or drop by
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

Is your academic major a puzzle? Can we help you put the pieces together?
BDIC
Contact: BDIC
15 Bartlett Hall
545-2504 or 545-0736

All potential BDIC students, non-traditional majors and any others interested are cordially invited to attend our ALUMNI CAREER NIGHT when a panel of BDIC graduates will discuss:
"The First Year Out:
Trials, Tribulations and Triumphs"
WHEN: Tues, April 8, 1986 at 8:00 p.m.
WHERE: Campus Center, Rooms 162-175
Refreshments will be served
TOMORROW

James H. McManus
eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

Try to relate
by not seeing straight!
Make yourappointment!
Don't be late!
Perms
$28.00 includes conditioning and blow dry or set
(does not include cut)
MARJON
HAIR DESIGN 586-4551
Mountain Farms Mall Hadley, MA

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE
SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Waltroba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

50% OFF 2ND SHOCK OR STRUT
FAMOUS MIDAS QUALITY INSTALLED AT A BUDGET PRICE.
Have any Midas shock absorber or strut installed now and you'll get the second one installed for half price!
Sale includes:
• Superguard GS* Gas Shocks
• Lifeguard* Shocks
• Springuard* Shocks
• Strutguard* Cartridges
• MacPherson* Struts
Offer expires 4/30/86
See warranty terms at your local Midas dealer.
TAKE IT TO MIDAS
MIDAS
Jct Rte 9 and 116 Hadley 586-4840 586-9991
King St. Midas Shop
NOW OPEN

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!
TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX HAS BEGUN TO RETURN UNSOLD SPRING COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK — YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
the UNIVERSITY STORE's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg

Celebrants gather to greet Cambodian New Year

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta
Ratank Ek, age 5, samples the fare at last weekend's Cambodian New Year celebration.

By JAMES BARILLA
Collegian Correspondent

Cambodian music, dance, food, art and a Buddhist religious ceremony on the Campus Pond ushered in the Cambodian New Year this past weekend at University of Massachusetts.

The celebration represents the end of the dry season and the beginning of the celebration of the end of the harvest, when Cambodian people ask for blessing for the new season, according to one of the celebrants.

Lucy Nguyen of the Celebration Organizing Committee and the Bilingual Collegiate Program at the University of Massachusetts said the ceremonies and exhibits educate the campus community and young Cambodian-Americans, many of whom grew up in refugee camps and were not exposed to their own culture.

Journalist Timothy D. Allman, speaking Friday at Amherst College's Alumni House, said he realized over the years that he and the collection of Cambodian artifacts he purchased before 1969 constituted a "repository of historical memory."

He described Cambodia as it was when he first arrived in 1969, before the war which he said has destroyed most of the historical landmarks in the country.

Cambodia before 1969 was a "paradise" compared to other Southeast Asian countries, Allman said, because the traditional arts continued to thrive. He displayed several silver bowls and utensils, which he said were created not as art but for everyday use.

The average peasant was relatively wealthy and the "objective conditions for revolution did not exist," he said.

Saturday's activities began with a food tasting at Hampden Dining Commons, followed by a religious ceremony conducted by Maha Ghosananda. The festivities continued with traditional music by Chhun Yong and Arh Chorn, as well as a dance by the Royal Ballet Troupe of New York City.

The Buddhist religious ceremony was held on a tropical plant and colored light-bedecked river boat on the campus pond. The Ghosananda explained each ceremony in English and Cambodian, and said the water of the pond represented the water of loving kindness which is everywhere, while the boat symbolized Dharma, which takes us from suffering to happiness, bondage to liberation.

More than $300 were collected and presented to the Cambodia Crisis Committee.

Elaine Abel, a member of the committee, said the donations will be used to educate the estimated 120,000 children on the border of Thailand and Cambodia, who have received little or no education in the past 11 years.

Comic's routine draws from gay life

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

In the 1950s, lesbian comic and activist Robin Tyler recalls, she and a gay male friend would stand on a street in Canada holding a banner that read, "Gay is good."

"People thought we meant 'happy' and would give us money," said Tyler, entertaining about 500 people Saturday night at the University of Massachusetts.

Tyler opened Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week at UMass by telling jokes on religion, lesbian affairs, pets, politics and Hollywood gossip to a capacity crowd at Mahar Auditorium.

"You have to come from your own truth. I'm a comic, I happen to be a lesbian and I happen to be Jewish," said Tyler, who is a native of Canada and has been a comic for 17 years.

Tyler said she began telling gay and lesbian jokes when she found her jokes about her own experiences were funnier.

Straight people have been enjoying gay culture for years without knowing it, she said, adding that disco music came from the gay and lesbian movement.

Tyler related her first experience in a gay bar, where normally "men would dance with the men and the women would dance with the women." Since the club was raided by police two or three times a week, somebody would stand at the door with a whistle and "as soon as they blew the whistle the dykes would dance with the faggots," she said.

"I use the word 'dyke' to turn it around and take the negativeness out of it," Tyler said yesterday.

Tyler lives in California, worked for ABC for three years and has produced and recorded two feminist comedy albums.

"There is no correct way to be a lesbian ... We are not a sorority, we are a revolutionary movement about the right to love," she said.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais
Left: Amherst Fire Department Captain Michael Zloger (left) and firefighter Pat Riley (right), "rescue" Clark House resident Robert Ricci in a $400,000 Aerial Platform truck. The department hopes to purchase a similar truck.

Amherst checks out new ladder truck

The residents of the Clark House in downtown Amherst were entertained Saturday morning by the Amherst Fire Department.

The six-story building was used by the fire department as the practice site for the Aerial Platform, a $400,000 fire truck equipped with a 90-foot ladder and enclosed platform.

Amherst Fire Chief Victor Zumbruski said the Aerial Platform is a necessity for the department. "The 34-year-old ladder truck we have now has served us well, but it has seen its years."

The demonstration was intended to show the efficiency the aerial platform has to offer in comparison with the present truck, a fire fighter said.

Zumbruski said firefighters will be able to fight the fire from the platform or, when the fire is too intense, control the hose from the base of the ladder.

The truck is also effective at rescuing the handicapped and injured from buildings, Zumbruski said.

—PAUL KARPAWICH

WOMEN'S FORUM

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events related to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's Issues Editor, care of the Collegian by the Friday before the event.

Wednesday

A support group for women in transition will discuss concerns unique to older women students for five weeks from 3:30 to 5 p.m. The group is sponsored by the Everywoman's Center. For more information call 545-0883.

Six area women entrepreneurs will discuss their careers at a lecture about "Entrepreneurship II: Women in the Valley" at 4:15 p.m. in the Neilson Library Browsing Room of Smith College.

Sunday

Susan Griffin, author of Voices, Pornography and Silence and Women and Nature will be reading from her works at 8 p.m. in the Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton
UNEXPECTED LOAD—Senior Sociology major Jon Tuppa clears his car off yesterday after Saturday night's surprise snowfall.

Panelists offer advice on sexism in the workplace

By LISA DiMEO
Collegian Staff

Sexism and burnout are among the problems women encounter in the workplace, according to five women's studies alumnae who spoke in a panel discussion at Women's Career Day Saturday.

The panelists, who spoke to an audience of about 15 people, gave advice on starting a career through techniques such as networking and interviewing effectively.

In addressing the sexism which surfaces when working with men, Linda Geary, a legislative analyst with the Environmental Conservation Committee of the New York State Assembly, said, "I focus on how they (men) treat me," rather than how they treat other women. Geary said that proving her competence and earning men's trust develops a good relationship and helps them to see women in a better light.

Barbara Joseph, a 1976 graduate, is an attorney advisor for the Office of the General Council, Personnel Legal Services and Appeals Group in Washington. Joseph, the only women in her office, said she encounters sexism when dealing with witnesses and supervisors, but is able to handle it by being aggressive and bringing a new perspective to her work.

"I bring to my work more sensitivity than the men who I work with," she said. Joseph said she has an "automatic bond" with women and minorities because of her women's studies background.

The career day, sponsored by the University Placement Service and coordinated by the women's studies program, was conceived and organized by women's studies student Nina Martin.

Martin said she found gaps in the placement service's program because "a lot of the material was geared toward business and science majors," rather than toward the liberal arts student.

Past art spurs critical thought

More than 60 scholars, students and independent researchers of art history came to the University of Massachusetts this past weekend to discuss art and its historical interpretation.

The first New England regional art history conference was sponsored by art historians from the land grant universities of New England.

Paul Norton, conference chairman and professor of art history at UMass, said the purpose of the conference was to "stimulate critical thought among art historians examining the art of the modern era as well as the Renaissance and ancient periods."

"Questions such as why did ancient Egyptians need pyramids and why did Greek temples arise are questions that art historians try to answer," he said.

Billy MacGregor, an independent art researcher from Albany, said, "It's interesting that the New England consortium is running a thing like this because sometimes you can get isolated doing your own research, so it is good for scholars to get together."

—JOHN SHEEHAN

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT
Distinctive food and drink from Mexico and the American Southwest
7 OLD SOUTH STREET
NORTHAMPTON • 586-0400

Before you make a long distance commitment, make sure you know what you're getting into.

If Fletcher Christian and Captain Bligh had known what being stuck in the same boat would mean, chances are neither would have set foot aboard.

And if you're stuck in the same boat with a long distance company that doesn't give you all the services you need, it's easy to harbor mutinous thoughts.

But when you pick AT&T as your long distance company, you know you're in for smooth sailing. You'll get trouble-free, reliable service. Immediate long distance connections—even at the busiest hours. And long distance operators to assist you with immediate credit for wrong numbers and collect calling.

And you'll get discounts off our Day Rate on your state-to-state calls. With savings of over 50% during weekends until 5pm Sundays, or nights from 11pm to 8am, Sunday through Friday. And 40% discounts evenings between 5pm and 11pm, Sunday through Friday.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, sign aboard with AT&T. With AT&T Long Distance Service, you'll never be left stranded. Just call 1 800 222-0300 for more information or to choose AT&T. Reach out and touch someone.®

AT&T
The right choice.

© AT&T 1986

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Founded in 1890

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

For bonus consistency

There is an old saying that rules are made to be broken, but when it comes to the University of Massachusetts faculty merit pay system, guidelines established by the faculty union and the Board of Trustees have been stretched, if not broken, to such an extent that the system is deeply flawed at best and unjust at worst.

The current process, which allocates $1.5 million in bonuses that can alter a professor's salary by thousands of dollars, is riddled with inconsistencies.

The vague criteria governing the faculty merit pay system have given departments' personnel committees license to operate secretly and arbitrarily. This is sometimes rectified, but often compounded, by a second bonus pool from which each dean makes separate awards at his or her own discretion.

The trustee/union guidelines state: "Personnel recommendations and decisions shall be made only after a review of all the contributions of the individual in the areas of teaching; of research, creative or professional activity; and of service." But it is well known, as union president Arlyn Diamond said, that "teaching and service are not as highly valued at the University as research."

Personnel committees operate differently throughout the University; some work better than others. The system should be standardized and changed in several ways.

- Personnel comittees should be held more accountable to the professors they evaluate. Some departments, such as psychology, make their criteria for bonuses available to all instructors. This should be done throughout the University so that all faculty members and deans are aware of how judgments are made. Also, every department should limit the time an individual may serve on its committee.
- Student evaluations should be taken into consideration, but because some professors regard them as inaccurate reflections of their performance, evaluators could augment them with classroom visits and examinations of syllabi.
- The University considers research a valuable service. As undergraduates, we would like to see more emphasis on rewarding professors for their service to students. Undergraduate advising, in particular, deserves more encouragement from personnel committees.
- The two-pool recommendation system is justified as a way to correct unjust decisions by personnel committees. But it can also skew months of hard work by committees and create huge salary differences on one dean's whim.

For now the dual process should stay. But if departments' bonus deliberations were consistent and open, it would not be necessary. Ideally, deans should neither be able nor feel a need to interfere suddenly with a process in which they had little prior involvement.

Top University administrators generally approve without question the recommendations of departments and deans. Provost Richard O'Brien says, "My practical role (in merit pay) is close to zero," and obviously he and others in Whitmore do not have time to do much more. But surely everyone would feel more comfortable if they rubber-stamped a less questionable process.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

HELLO? HEY WHAT'S HAPPENIN' MUAMMAR BABY? WHY SURE I CAN GET HIM TO TALK TO YOU - MIKE GORBACHEV JUST CALLED TO ASK THE SAME THING HOW MUCH?

Root of oppression: fear

Corinna Moebius

"Kill all Lesbians" is scraped onto a bathroom wall in the Fine Arts Center, a scar which remained for a long while, until someone changed the word "kill" to "love." It is a message written by an anonymous person to be viewed by many. Graffiti is the media of the invisible, of unidentified persons.

Despite all the forums, workshops and clinics available on this campus to educate us on homophobia and heterosexism, there are many students who will claim they are not racist or sexist, but will hesitate before they admit to not being heterosexist. "Heterosexism" concerns the oppression that walks hand in hand with homophobia; fear and discrimination go together.

"You faggot, you homo..." jeers a voice from a dorm window. The callers cannot see who they shout at, but resort to an "insult." They want to make the unseen enemy into a victim, reduced to a label, using words meant to degrade. It seems safe to shout out a dorm window, for, like the unseen writers on bathroom walls, the caller remains anonymous, while feeling somewhat powerful.

Think about it. The heterosexist person, like any other oppressor, acts out of fear and is therefore dependent on this separation. Fear which scares, takes over, controls; it is not rational fear, as a phobia, and yet the heterosexist is under its will.

Is it rational? Is there any realistic justification of this fear? Prove it. So, you've heard stories about gay men taking advantage of young boys. Did you realize that one in four girls is molested by heterosexual men? Or that most child molesters are not gay?

Give me another reason. You don't want any gays to pick you up? Now really. Gay people have more than sex on their mind...they're human beings like you. Not some strange creature which spends each minute of the day lusting for innocent victims.

And why? Why this feeling of threat which pervades the mind of the homophobic? Is that a wall created by prejudice a way of keeping safe, of disassociating yourself from gay people, for fear that you, too, will become a "victim?"

When and if you find yourself among a group of people pointing your finger at a victim of your oppression, remember the witch hunts. Remember how innocent people were burned at the stake because others were afraid of them. Think about how far fear can lead us: to walking around with a handgun, to mass hysteria, even to war. Are you so willing to have yourself under the power of that fear?

If you are ready to help in the fight of oppression, then don't keep your mouth shut and those stereotypes growing and festering in your head. If you are homophobic and/or heterosexist, admit that fact first to yourself and then to others, and perhaps you can then learn to open your mind to the perspective of gay people who are also willing to "break silence."

When opinions are repressed or withheld, it is detrimental to all. Even the violent words "Kill all Lesbians" should be read, thought about, discussed. The invisible people may not give us a chance to talk back, but when they do speak their mind they serve as a reminder of the subtle but powerful oppression which still exists.

Corinna Moebius is the SCERA media campaign worker.

It's a real struggle

David Valade

"You can't be idealistic all your life, Jim. No one thanks you if you stick your neck out." So said Jim Bachus to James Dean in Rebel Without A Cause. Dean replied, "Except for yourself...except for yourself." This column is for all people who stick their neck out, who question the values and beliefs of our society, who risk all because they believe they can be idealistic. Whether Marxist, Feminist, Socialist, Gay, Lesbian, or Anarchist, you risk all in this society. Our society isn't known for its tolerance of beliefs and lifestyles that question the status quo.

In 1835, Alexis De Toqueville wrote: "The master no longer says: 'You shall think as I do or you shall die'; but he says: 'You are free to think differently from me and to retain your life, your property, and all you possess; but you are henceforth a stranger among your people. You may retain your civil rights, but they will be useless to you, for you will never be chosen by your fellow citizens if you solicit their votes; and they will affect to scorn you if you ask for their esteem. You will remain among men, but you will be deprived of the rights of mankind.'" This is a mild rebuke compared to what history has shown can happen to people who dared to speak out in our society.

To you conservatives who tried so hard to hide behind lies last Monday night, I say, "Find somewhere else to cry. You'll get no sympathy here." For too long you have preached intolerance. For too long you have oppressed those who dare speak against you. This sudden facade of tolerance and support for free speech is only fit to serve your immediate needs. It will be gone next time you are in a Senate meeting and someone speaks out against you. Is crying "Point of Order" to interrupt an opposing speaker any more appropriate than cries of "liar?"

Somehow your new-found tolerance only fits the moment. Where was it when your conservative predecessors called out the Army to smash labor unions as they struggled for justice? Where was it in 1917 and 1918 when the Espionage and Sedition Acts were passed and people were jailed because they dared to speak out against our involvement in World War I? Remember Joseph McCarthy? He was a Republican.

And you liberals, who by now are feeling so good about your tolerance, wake up, here's a dose of reality. It was the Democrats who supported and passed the McCarren Internal Security Act of 1950. This act was designed to suppress Communism. So what if their rights to free speech and assembly were violated? It was Democratic presidents who got us involved in Vietnam, who tried to destroy a native people's attempts to govern themselves.

Together these conservatives and liberals suddenly complain of the intolerance of the left. We have endured a long history of your oppression. With you as our teachers, I wonder how it is possible that the left can still show such a high level of tolerance.

But the people I'm most concerned about are those that feign apathy. Most of you know who you are. Your reason for coming to college is all mixed in with the dream of a career and success. Visions of a BMW and a home in the suburbs cloud your view of reality. Soon you'll wake up to a cold, harsh world. After the law or med school rejections, you'll start to see your dream fade. Even if you get in, with the number of doctors and lawyers being produced, the prestige you desire will not be found. Suddenly you'll be faced with a job you don't want, a life forced on you that you have no desire for, a day-to-day existance with the only reward being survival.

Even you in the business school, you are not protected. Not everyone can manage. For every manager there are many more that follow.

All of you need to wake up. Your senses of greed and individualism are not not what created the middle-class in this country. It was fought for. People died for the right to unionize. They died for the right to the better life that our industrial society could give them. If you want a better life, you better learn this lesson. Most of you won't get this good life on your own. It will only be found through a long and hard struggle.

And you on the left, you have my undying respect for not giving up. I'll see you soon in the streets. Don't give up on our apathetic brothers and sisters. We won't survive without them. We can't win without them. Show them what tolerance you have left. We will endure. We will find justice.

David Valade is a Collegian columnist.

IBM-PC* COMPATIBLE

$1500
10 MEGABYTE
(w/single Floppy)
• 150 watt power supply
• 256 K memory
(upgrade to 640K available)
• Hi-res green or amber monitor
• Parallel printer port
• Keyboard: AT or XT style
• Hi-resolution Hercules emulation board

Dual Floppy System
only $1050

* Trademark of International Business Machines

promptWorks
Northfield, MA (413) 498-2724

BALLY'S

• TONIGHT Sockless
• TUESDAY Battle of the Bands with Fall Out, Art in Motion, Barb Wyre, & Project Adventure. Come cheer on your favorite band!
• WEDNESDAY: ASKARIS
High Energy, Top 40 sounds!
• THURSDAY: Take 3 Top 40 Band
• THURSDAY and FRIDAY: Oui
Bands begin at 9:00 pm
Open Daily 5:00 pm - 1:00 am
18-20 YEAR OLDS:
come enjoy juice bar & entertainment
Rte. 9 Hadley 586-4463

AMHERST CINEMA

Sunday - Tuesday
Gone With the Wind 7:00
Clark Gable
Vivian Leigh
Leslie Nelson
Olivia DeHavilland
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Learn About Publicity Using Broadcast and Visual Media

attend
SGA Communication's forum on
"Publicizing With AudioVisual Media"

guest speakers from
• Hamilton Newell
• Union Video Center
• Community Center for Access T.V.
• WMUA
• WHMP

Date: Tuesday, April 8, 1986
Time: 7-9pm
Place: 811 Campus Center

All who attend receive the Student Publicity Manual for FREE!

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Going Formal?
TUXEDO RENTALS
Lodestone
13 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
256-0591

ORDER YOUR 1986 YEARBOOK NOW!

To receive your copy of the 1986 INDEX please fill out the coupon below and send it, with a check or money order for $18.00, to:

INDEX, 103 Campus Center

Due to a contractual agreement, students who do not order an INDEX will not receive a copy when the books are sent to campus in the fall.
Books will be mailed to SENIORS ONLY, who include a permanent address on the coupon.

Send to: INDEX, 103 Campus Center
Name _____ Year
Local Address _____
Permanent Address (seniors only) _____
_____
I.D.# _____ Date _____

NCR Internship
Computer Sales
Retail Systems Division

NCR a $4 billion dollar a year marketer of a full line of computer products has year long internships beginning May 1986 in our Retail Systems Division in Hartford, Connecticut.

Your progression through NCR will involve several stages of development. The first stage begins with 40 hours of training. During the second stage you will participate in customer installations and customer training. The final stage will culminate in your involvement in a variety of entry level sales activities. At the end of 12 months your work will be formally evaluated and you will be eligible for a full-time position as a Sales Representative upon graduation in May 1987.

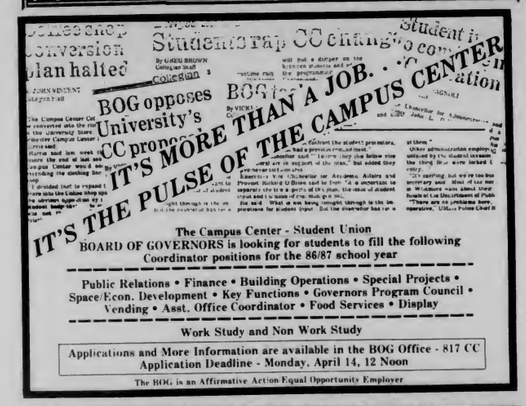
Starting salary will begin at $6.00 per hour during training and will be increased

NCR
1884 - 1986
When you know where you're going, you'll choose NCR.
#1 in point of sale equipment to the retail industry

in increments reflecting your mastery if increasing responsibilities. You will be guaranteed 10 - 20 hours of work per week throughout the year and close to a full-time schedule and that you are able to make a year long commitment to this internship.

To qualify you must be in your junior year of college graduating in May 1987. You must be a business major and have an overall GPA of 3.0 or more. There are no exceptions to these requirements. The results of this experience could be beneficial to both you and NCR.
For a screening interview contact:

Constance A. Donovan
Region Personnel Manager
NCR CORPORATION
180 Wells Avenue
Newton, MA 02159
(617) 969-9810



or contact your college placement office.

Students must have an automobile and will be reimbursed for business expenses.

IN THE LAND OF ISRAEL
A One Woman Show
Saturday, April 12, 8 pm
Hampden Theatre
Southside Room UMass

Tickets
Available at Tix, the Hillel Office, and at the door
$3 General
$2 Students
$1 Hillel Fee-Payers
Limited Seating.
Advance Purchase Recommended

Sponsored
by UMas B'nai B'rith Hillel and Student Alliance for Israel and made possible by a grant from the UMass Arts Council

BOG opposes University's
CC proposal
IT'S MORE THAN A JOB. . .
IT'S THE PULSE OF THE CAMPUS CENTER

The Campus Center - Student Union
BOARD OF GOVERNORS is looking for students to fill the following Coordinator positions for the 86/87 school year

Public Relations • Finance • Building Operations • Special Projects • Space/Econ. Development • Key Functions • Governors Program Council • Vending • Asst. Office Coordinator • Food Services • Display

Work Study and Non Work Study

Applications and More Information are available in the BOG Office - 817 CC
Application Deadline - Monday, April 14, 12 Noon

The BOG is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

★ Smith

continued from page 1

member of the school's Task Force on South Africa.

Ann Ford, a senior government major who held a sign emblazoned in red paint with the words "Smith Divest" in both English and Arabic, said she hopes this rally will "encourage further communication between the trustees and students, and ultimately the move toward total divestment."

Pak said she felt optimistic about the committee meeting because it marked more open communication between the trustees and the students. She added that "this is not a whimsical issue," but rather a crucial step in moving toward effective negotiation with the trustees.

Saturday's meeting was the result of cooperation between school officials and students March 2, when six major agreements were made, including the creation of an ongoing committee which will address the college's investment policies in South Africa.

The March 2 response followed the trustees decision Feb. 22 which announced plans to divest $1.75 million of $22.3 million it has invested in 25 companies with ties to South Africa. The stocks divested included IMS International and United States Steel, both which had not signed the Sullivan Principles, guidelines operating in South Africa. Since that time, IMS has signed the principles, so the divestment is now $550,000.

Don't compete with a Kaplan student—be one.

Why? Consider this. More students increase their scores after taking a Kaplan prep course than after taking anything else.
Why? Kaplan's test-taking techniques and educational programs have 50 years of experience behind them. We know students. And we know what helps boost their confidence and scoring potential.
So if you need preparation for the H.S ENTRANCE EXAMS, PSAT, SAT, ACT, ACHIEVEMENTS, LSAT, GMAT, MCAT, GRE, DAT, ADVANCED MEDICAL BOARDS, TOEFL, NURSING BOARDS, NTE, CPA, INTRO TO LAW, SPEED READING, or others, call us.
Why be at a disadvantage?

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide

358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

SIX DAYS TO THE GAME . GRAPHICS WILL RULE

CAREER NIGHT
For ENGLISH MAJORS

April 8th 8 p.m.
Campus Center 163

Alumni/ae will return to talk about their jobs — and yours.

For further information contact English Undergraduate Studies Office
Bartlett 252, 5-0388

Sponsored by:
The Univ. Placement Service
Alumni Office
English Dept.

Dyslexia: Challenges-Success

Guest Speaker:
Dr. Mary Groda Lewis
Her life inspired the 1985 CBS docudrama "Love Mary" with Kristy Mc Nichol

Time: 1:00 p.m.
Date: April 10, 1986
Place: Memorial Hall, U.Mass.

For more information:
Call The Dyslexic Student Organization
Telephone 545-0018

The U.S. Postal Service will be accepting applications for temporary summer employment on April 8, 1986 from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM in Room 901 of the Campus Center. This work involves distribution of mail, delivery of mail and loading/unloading trucks at the Springfield General Mail Facility, 190 Fiberloid Street, Springfield, MA 01152. The pay is $5.00 per hour and 10% for work performed between 6:00 PM and 6:00 AM.

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓

Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM

Pu-Pu Platter $12.00

Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM

2 LOCATIONS:

430 Russell St (Rt 9)
Hadley
253-2571

150 King St,
Northampton
586-8220

TIME BY CUSTOM AUDIO

We are not "too busy" to talk to you about a stereo you will live with, on the average, for the next 9 years.

We are not "too busy" to let you listen to all different components.

We are not "too busy" to carefully explain any or all aspects of home music playback.

People shouldn't rush into purchasing a stereo system because a salesperson is just "too busy" to spend enough time.

AT CUSTOM AUDIO, TIME IS ON YOUR SIDE.

Dealers of:
Adcom, Ariston, Conrad-Johnson, Creek Audio Systems, Denon, Pres Speakers, Stax, and more.
Systems for all budgets.

Open 9 am to 7 pm, Monday thru Saturday

183 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON 586-6277

Pinocchio's Restaurant
1177 North Pleasant St.
549-3669
Special Monday thru Thursday
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA
$5.00 + Tax
FAST FREE DELIVERY from 5:00 pm on
Does not apply in restaurant Mention when ordering.

NEWLY RENOVATED
WORCESTER SNACK BAR
OPEN
7 AM to 4 PM

Full Breakfasts
Sandwiches
Fresh Baked Pastries
Hot & Cold Beverages

Hot Lunches
Salads
Ice Cream
Lunch Box Express

and

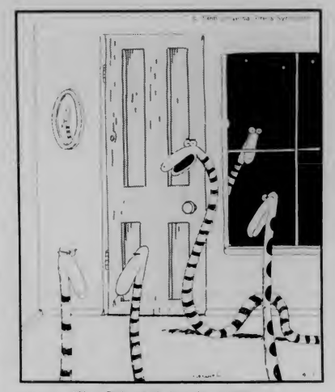
Play the Midway Game & win a 16 oz. COKE

Daily Specials

Play the Video Games

CALL US - 545-0706

Newman Student Association and "Run For Ritter" present



FR. BRUCE RITTER

founder of Covenant House at the
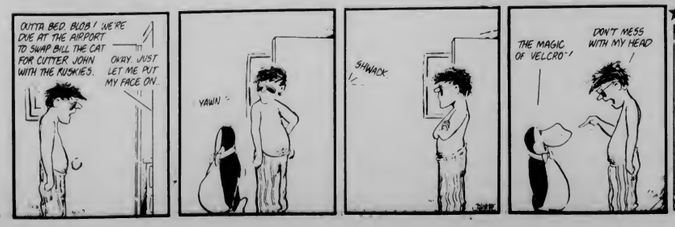
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
7 PM
Monday,
April 7, 1986
no admission charge

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

"Hey, Bob wants in—does anyone know how to work this thing?"

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN



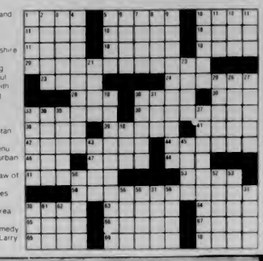
HOUSEMATES
BY R.MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Way on or off
5 Color in the French flag
10 Gil — Lesage hero
14 But to Fritz
15 Psalm word
16 Be in line for
17 And — bed Peeps
18 Pine Tree State
19 Woodsman at times
20 Battle awards
23 Did you ever — dream walking?
24 Fight a la or a la Boone
28 Col.'s superior
30 Fresh-water tortoise
32 Shakespearean prince
33 Market place participant
36 Backpacker's burden
38 Sister of Thalia
39 See 38 Across
41 Fencer's blade
42 Salesmen's goals
44 Doubleday and others
46 Hostel
47 Ardent
48 The Shropshire
49 Laterals e.g.
51 Peter or Paul
54 Suddenly with out warning
60 — for All Seasons
63 Comedian Hardy to Stan
64 Word on a trattoria menu
65 Part of the urban sprawl
66 Mother-in-law of Ruth
67 So-so grades
68 With skill
69 Heavenly creature Ger.
70 Musical comedy performer Lanny

DOWN
1 Grating sound
2 Ben Ashem et al
3 Verse rhythm to Auden
4 Part of an outboard
5 Mus. degree
6 Rachel's rival
7 — cannot tell
8 Zola novel
9 Mined fuel
10 Impudence
11 Slipshod
12 Munched
13 Sun. speech
21 Kind of bloomer
22 Undertaking
25 Mold
26 Shoe salesman, at times
27 Summer and namesakes
29 Jade, for one
30 Clean the slate
31 Consort of Ra
33 Token currency
34 Italian saint
35 Lodge members
37 Returns
40 Three -in grade school
43 — et mon droit
45 Moderate
50 Fighter Liston
52 Formal avenue
53 — the — of the Queen's Navee!
55 Pearl Buck character
56 Ballyhoo
57 Noon e.g.
58 Whole in Wien
59 Bridge seat
60 — standstill
61 Crowd
62 Leather tool

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	B	B	A	G	A	S	P	E		O	W	E	S
U	R	A	L		L	E	A	R	N		N	I	L	E
Q	U	S	T		J	A	C	K	E	T		N	S	T
I	N	S	E	A	M		E	P	I		S	O	E	S
E	T	O		M	O	S	S		T	A	I	N	S
		S	E	R	A			L	A	Y	O	U	T
A	B	R	E	S		T	U	B	E	A		C	P	A
S	O	R	E		P	U	L	E	D		S	K	A	T
A	L	A		R	E	P	E	L		M	A	S	S	E
P	O	K	E	R			I	C	O	N
		E	O	I	T		A	L	O	H	U	S
R	E	S	I	D	U	A	L		O	L	E	A	T	E
E	C	H	O		R	A	I	L	W	A	Y	T	I	E
A	T	O	M		B	R	E	A	D		R	A	C	K
D	O	E	S		S	E	N	D	S		E	R	A	S

4/7/86

Menu

LUNCH

Monte Cristo Sandwich
Squash Bake

BASICS LUNCH

Caponata with Pocket Bread
Squash Bake

DINNER

Roast Top Round of Beef/Gravy
Fried Shrimp Dinner/Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce
Italian Garden Plate

BASICS DINNER

Garbanzo Cheese Loaf/Mushroom Sauce
Fried Shrimp Dinner/Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce

Weather

Today:
Rain ending in the morning, but it will remain cloudy with a chance of showers in the afternoon, high in the 50s.

Tonight:
Partial clearing, low 40 to 45.

Tomorrow:
Partly cloudy, high 60 to 65.

Staff Notice

ALL COLLEGIAN STAFF MEMBERS
MANDATORY
STAFF MEETING
Wednesday, 8:15 p.m., newsroom Topics:
ELECTIONS, PARTIES

Brought to you by

Night Editor.....John Yonce
Copy Editor.....Lisa DiMeo
Layout Tech.....Sod
Photo Tech.....Rob Skelton
Production Supervisor.....Sod
Production.....Laura Bell, Rob Catalano, Jen Coles, Jim Podesky, Sod

Record setting crew, out for 11:00

ICELANDAIR TO EUROPE. EVERYTHING THAT ISN'T A BARGAIN IS FREE.

To Luxembourg: Roundtrip Fare

New York	$458*	$499†
Chicago	$518*	$559†
Balt./Wash.	$488*	$529†
Detroit	$508*	$549†
Orlando	$518*	$559†

Get in on our lowest fare to Europe in years. And with it, get a lot more than just the trip over. Because, when you fly Icelandair, you get everything you expect from a full-service airline, with no charge for meals or baggage. Every fare includes free wine with your in-flight dinner and free cognac after.

Icelandair Values Continue After You Land: Free deluxe, round-trip motor coach between Luxembourg and select cities in Germany, Belgium and Holland. Special $15 train fares to Switzerland or France. Super Saver Kemwel car rentals at just $59 per week in Luxembourg. And, if you choose, a day or two stopover in Europe's most beautifully kept secret, Iceland.

*Super Bargain Fare, 6-30 day stay. †Super Cougar Fare, 1-365 day stay. Valid 5-16, 6-8-86. $300 departure tax applies. For information & reservations, call your travel agent or Icelandair at 1-800-223-5500.

ICELANDAIR

MOTHER COURAGE
AND HER CHILDREN

by Bertolt Brecht
with songs by Paul Dessau
directed by Walter Boughton

KIRBY THEATER
AMHERST COLLEGE
APRIL 3,4,5,6 at 8P.M.

for reservations
call 542-2277
1-5p.m. weekdays

Now's the time to call...

North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

HAPPY 22 BIRTHDAY SHERRY SHARFMAN from the staff

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!

Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper

Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON

Wickles FinePrint
1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148

NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM

Engaged!

then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau.

Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories

20% off your entire WEDDING ORDER

Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories

Hundreds to Choose From!

AMHERST STORE ONLY
WITH THIS COUPON

EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
C - coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons

THE BLACK SHEEP
Deli & Bakery
79 MAIN STREET • AMHERST, MA 01002 • 253-3442

Hours:
Mon.-Sat. 9-6
Sun. 9-1

Across from Plumbleys

• Soup • Bialys •
• Roast Turkey •
• Rye • Kosher
• Brie • Pepperoni
• Chocolates • Fresh Baked
Breads • Gruyere • Cheddar Jalapeno Soup •
Smoked • Swiss Cheese • Chocolates •
• Potato
• Lox •
• Chili •
• Mousse
Cake • Corned Beef • Carrot Soup • Greek Rice
Salad • Croissants • NY Deli Rye • Kosher

Have a SPECIAL PARTY with a DIFFERENCE
Call us for our custom party platters - over 100 kinds of domestic and imported cheeses, smoked meat & fish, exotic salads, fresh cakes and pastries.
ENJOY

SUMMER '86 at C.W. POST

SHORT TERM
HIGH YIELD
LASTING GROWTH

At Long Island University's beautiful C.W. Post Campus, this summer's schedule combines diversity with flexibility. Complete a full semester's work with 6 credits in each of 3 sessions, or select a single course or workshop.

Planning to work or play by day? Then our evening or weekend classes might be your key to adding credits or credentials this summer. Dorms, recreational facilities and services are available at the Post campus on Long Island's lush North Shore, just minutes from beaches, and only 25 miles from Manhattan.

Call 516-299-2431
or return the coupon for a combined bulletin listing Summer '86 undergraduate and graduate offerings at the C.W. Post campus as well as Long Island University Campuses in Brentwood and Southampton.

CP
SUMMER SESSIONS OFFICE
Long Island University
C.W. Post Campus
Greenvale, NY 11548

Please send Summer '86 Bulletin.

I am most interested in:
☐ Undergraduate ☐ Graduate
☐ May ☐ June ☐ July
☐ Day ☐ Evening ☐ Weekend
☐ C.W. Post
☐ Brentwood
☐ Southampton

Name _____
Address _____
City, State, Zip _____
Phone ( ) _____

DELANO'S

FINE FOOD & SPIRITS
FREE TACO BAR
MON & TUES NIGHT
9 — till it lasts
APRIL BEER OF THE MONTH
St. Pauli Girl
Proper ID Required
57 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

Lacrosse notebook

Dick Garber, a coach on the couch

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Few fans on Boyden Hill could understand why University of Masschusetts lacrosse coach Dick Garber called off his troops in the last quarter of Saturday's 15-7 rout of New Hampshire.

For, after all, a 20-4 win would look good when the voting's done for the weekly national rankings, but there was one small matter for Garber to consider, his son.

UNH is also coached by a Garber, Ted, the UMass' coach's son. With his wife Mary Jane watching the proceedings from the sideline, Garber knew it was take it easy, or else.

"I'm on the couch for about a week," laughed the UMass coach after the win. "My wife's going to kill me when I get home."

Mrs. Garber, sitting behind the UNH bench, said before the game that her cheers were for the Wildcats.

"Ted is my son, Dick's only a good friend," she said, with the same sharp wit her husband is known for. "I just want to see a good game."

One interested fan was Brooks Garber, Ted's five-year-old son. The little Garber, with goalie stick in hand, spent his time shuttling back-and-forth between benches during the game and headed out to the crease after the contest, delighting the exiting fans with his own shooting exhibition. Baseball, with little doubt, is not in his future.

"Dad's a great coach, he's taught me a lot," said Ted. "With the crowd and Mom, it's great to play here, but they'll have to come up to Durham (NH) next year. We'll get 'em then."

★ softball —

continued from page 12

up her eighth win of the season and mastered Adelphi in a three-hit performance. The senior southpaw, struck out 10 on her way to pitching her third straight shutout.

Adelphi did mount a threat in the sixth inning, but a brilliant defensive play by the Minutewomen thwarted the rally. With a man on first base and one out, Stockley gave up what looked to be a single to right field. But sophomore Chris Ciepiela threw the batter out at first base and sophomore first baseman Martha Jamieson completed the double play by pegging the runner at third to preserve a scoreless tie.

Baseball hits new depths

St. Joe's sweeps Minutemen

By BRYAN QUENZEL
Collegian Staff

In a battle between have-nots, the University of Massachusetts baseball team dropped a doubleheader to St. Joseph's Unversity, 8-4 and 9-5, on Saturday at Earl Lorden Field to take firm control of the Atlantic 10 cellar.

The Minutemen (1-14, 0-5 in A-10) continued the sloppy play that has plagued them all season by commiting eight errors and allowing 13 walks to the Hawks (3-16-1,2-2-1 in A-10) over the twinbill.

"We're still searching for something," said a disgusted UMass manager Dick Bergquist. "I can't believe what I'm seeing. Other than that, there isn't much to say."

In the first game, the Minutemen booted five fielding chances leading to three unearned runs. UMass also grounded in to three double plays to effectively stifle any comeback bids.

St. Joe's jumped out on top with two runs in the first, one unearned, off starter and loser John Martin (1-3). UMass came right back with two runs of their own the bottom of the inning.

Right fielder Jay Zerner and center fielder Matt Sheran drew lead-off walks, before first baseman Jeff Cimini plated them with a solid triple to right-center.

The Hawks regained the lead with a single run in the second, but the Minutemen scored two in the third for a brief 4-3 advantage. Cimini again provided the offensive punch with an RBI double to score Sheran and came home himself when Hawk second baseman Chris Abruzzo couldn't come up with catcher Sean Flint's groundball.

Designated hitter Steve Kern then hit in to a crucial double play as the Minutemen proceeded to load the bases before second baseman Rob Holiday grounded out to first.

St. Joe's took the lead for good with three runs in the fourth on an array of singles, walks, and a suicide squeeze. One bright spot for UMass was the pitching of co-captain Bob Kostro who came on to throw three solid innings.

In game two, freshmen hurlers Mike Owens (0-3) and Ken Greer combined to walk five batters and hit another in the third, as the Hawks scored six runs on one hit in the inning.

Zerner went two-for-four with a double, a home run, and four RBI's in the game. The three-run dinger came with two out in the bottom of the seventh (in a seven inning game) and hit the top of the fence at the 330 marker.

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!

Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

DOVE
Secretarial Services

Fast, Accurate Typing of
• Resumes
• Term Papers
• Dissertations

79 South Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass 01002
256-1335
253-7480

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45 - 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACT NOW! DISKETTES!

Bulk 5-¼" DS/DD, 49 cents each. Lots of 50. These are not Junk. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. No questions asked. Call MEI, 1-800-634-3478, 9-9 EST-M-F; 10-6 Sat. Offer expires 5/15/86

ACTIVITIES

How to avoid nuclear war is subject of film "War Without Winners" showing at McNamara Lounge Tuesday at 8:00

Crisis in the Puerto Rican Society Lecturer - Carlos Gallisa April 8, 2:30 pm CCA. Informal presentation for Puerto Ricans & Faculty at 2:30 pm, CCA

UPC General Meeting Important meting tomorrow night!! Elections for Talent Coordinator & Production Manager. Tuesday (April 8), 6:30 pm, Room 803C

Pioneer Valley Combat Club Meetings: Tuesdays and Thursdays, TOTM 22; Fridays in Boyden Wrestling Room; meetings from 7 pm - 10 pm

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new ex haust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1980 Civic Hatchback only 63,000 mi. very dependable $2200 or BO 253-2204

Mona needs a new home '77 Honda Civic good cond needs some work $600 but negotiable 586-6409

1977 Datsun Truck well-maintained solid bed, full cap, runs great, $900 or best offer call even, Mike 256-8788

74 BMW 2002, red. California car. Restored. 6,350 obo 538-4127 or 538-2896

VW Rabbit 1981 diesel 50 mpg excellent condition Rusty Jones AM/FM cassette $2500 negotiable 527-6377

1983 Toyota Tercel four door hatchback automatic AM/FM cassette, good condition, 37,000 mi. Asking $4000 call Sue or Steve, eves 323-4855

1975 Chevy Vega GT good condition needs some work 500 or BO call 549-7578 after 9

1977 VW Rabbit new clutch, brakes, fuel pump. Runs excellent. Four door, sunroof. $1800 or BO 584-0593

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new ex haust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the U.S. government? Get the facts today! Call 1-312-742-1142 ext S931-A

77 VW Rabbit, brown, A/T runs well, great stereo, $1300. 584-8736

81 Toyota Tercel SR5 fwd 5 spd AM/FM stereo radio int & ext in exc shape asking 2500 413-867-3430 days, 413-634-5045 evenings

1976 Maverick runs $350 or BO call John 584-5173

1972 VW Karmann Ghia good condition many new parts $2700 or BO call Bill 584-5173

BANDS

Bands interested in playing the Pyramids Southwest Concerts and other spring music activities contact Embassy Recording Studio for the best demo tapes and rates in the area. Student specials. Located near UMass. 549-7640

BANDS WANTED

Central Area's Spring Fling '86! Bands wanted for benefit concert for Massaid All interested groups call anytime by April 9th. Concert will be April 25th. Call 546-6402 or 546-6496

BICYCLES

Univega Gran Premino 23.5 in. blue, racing/high end touring, great cond. extras, $650 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

CAPE COD
SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock. Kool party toons at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-8645

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT
Professional Disc Jockeys Light-Shows, Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2 a.m. Everyday, anywhere on campus. Play it safe, call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach, call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st, bus stop in front Tracey 256-1807

Need temporary housing? Apts in Brittany Manor open now. Rent low - 400 rent from leaseholder. Lease on apts run through June call 549-4714

Must See large 2 bedroom 2 bath recently redone apt. Air conditioning & extras. Available June 1st. call after 6 pm. 665-8766

Sublet summer and it's yours in the fall renovated Brit Manor apt - new carpet and bathroom 256-1232

2 bedroom starting June. Cliffside $410/month inclusive. Full option nice apt on woods edge! 665-3202

Rent or sublet. Southwood, 1 bedroom, very cheap, room for 3 people, 256-6679

FOR SALE

Televideo computer terminal like new $350 or BO model 910 + 253-2204

Mistral Maxi sailboard for sale 350 or BO call 256-6979

DecMate I, with communication port and software. For more details, call Diane Westcott, 732-4104

Pentax Spotmatic Camera 2 lenses $65.00 256-8484

Platts Australian Surfwear on sail now!!
Campus Center Concourse

Camera - Olympus OM-1 SLR. with 50 mm F1.8, leather case, skylight and close up filters, 2X converter, tripod, all in great condition. $225. or best offer. 665-8276

Stereo - Nikko NR-1000 receiver; 70 w/pc Vector Research VT-150 turntable; QL-DD, FA, Celestion CS-5 3-way speakers Cost over $1100 new, asking $695 or best offer. Great condition. 665-8276

For Sale sleep-sofa and chair $80 or BO other items too call 665-7756

FOUND

Found student ID on 4/1/86 about 2:35 pm between Bartlett and Goodell Library you may pick up your ID in the Bursars Office

HELP WANTED

COUNSELORS - Private co-ed camp in Berkshires has openings for head and assistant instructors in: softball, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, archery, video/filmmaking, photography, horseback riding assistant, hiking/backpacking, waterskiing, computers, waterfront (WSI), bunk counselors, and bunk unit heads. Good salaries - friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Krouner -Camp Scholack 54 Sheffield Road, Newtonville, MA 02160 (617) 964-1912, days 9-6

Bring your brains and enthusiasm to... The BOG for jobs jobs jobs!!! Eleven motivated people are wanted for the 86/87 school year apply now in 817 Campus Center deadline Monday April 14 at high noon. The Board of Governors is an AA/EOE and are we proud of it!

Jewish Community of Amherst looking for Sunday School and Hebrew teachers for September 1986. Also Music teacher needed. Experience with children prefer red. Call 549-0225 for application

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semster. Aid attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary; training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

LOST

Black tweed wool gloves lost Thurs. night, March 13 in the Pub call Karen 546-1027

Vicinity Amherst Woods - 3½ year minature collie male named Fraser last seen Shays and Wentworth call 253-2963

MOTORCYCLES

1976 Yamaha SX650 under 12,000 miles New battery! Best offer. Call Gary 256-1557 keep trying

Yamaha XS400H 1981 bought as 83 overstock. 2600 mi exc. cond. great first street bike 533-3894 keep trying!

1982 Kawasaki KZ550 new battery, 8,00 miles, black & red, very fast, runs great, $1,000 or BO Dan 546-4775

82 Honda 650 Nighthawk exc cond low miles with helmets call Dave 549-7882

PERSONALS

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment

Lack of time is no excuse for ignorance

Just because certain people are happily married doesn't mean they don't know how to have fun anymore. Especially with those intense snacks up high. Morris

Stacey - Go ahead. .gain 100 lbs.! - Dean

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 pm and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building. For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton.

To a certain Tomato, Potato, and Moosh: From the 20th. Just wanted to say thanks for being so nice -Stephan

"While not reading the newspapers is a practice to be condemned, there are times when it can yield interesting results."

Lonely single female guinea pig seeks well bred, long haired male of same for brief romantic interlude. No strings if interested please call Flosi at 253-9779 serious inquiries only

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 546-1282 after 9 pm

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

One female needed for fall 1986 only Brandywine evening 549-7717 Sharyn

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lisa 549-1428

Brandywine - seeking young couple to cahre apt. nonsmokers only. call eves 549-1813 or 546-7076

Jewish roommate wanted to share 2 bedroom apt in Colonial Vlg. Will have own furnished bedroom. Lease starts June 1. Will sublet over summer. $172/mo. call David 253-2965

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing, Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

The Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center, provides free legal services to fee-paying UMass students

Perfectionist Typing on computer - letter quality. 25% off first job 549-6178

Professional Word Processing/Typing on bus line 665-3661

SUMMER SUBLET

Large, 3 bedroom Colonial Village apartment available for summer sublet. Rent is very reasonable and negotiable Call 256-1268 anytime

Don't depend on the bus Live directly across from campus this summer. Large double room in house w/private bathroom, washer/dryer, backyard and deck, lovable puppy. $190/month each Allison or Sheila 549-6364

Two bedroom apt in Colonial Vlg is available for summer. Fully furnished, on bus route, $245/mo. Call David 253-2965

On Amity Place luxury condo 2 bedroom back patio AC 450 inclusive per month call Lisa 549-0947

Summer sublet Paffton apts price negotiable call Susan 549-0938 Heather 546-4010

June-August $400 inclusive. One bdrm in 4 bdrm apt. Clean & pleasant. On busline, close to campus. Fall option. Call Mary 256-0045 7:30-10:30 am

BRANDYWINE APT for summer sublet. Call 546-8968 or 546-8970

TO SUBLET

Sublet ters needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-0675

To sublet with fall option sunny spacious 2 bedroom apt Downtown Amherst Keep trying 253-7416

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-1005

WANTED

Two seed bat not abused skateboards wanted call 546-5444 or 546-5673

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86 $$$ reward $$$ 546-5328 or 546-5010

Responsible men seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house next fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

Want to give up a 2 bedroom Brandywine lease for any one bedroom apt near campus. call 549-1741 after 8:00 pm

Apartment in North Amherst call 665-2176

Single room needed for fall in a house or apartment, will sign lease 256-1662

Reward for lease of 3 or 4 bedroom apt in Nobo or Amherst (walking distance to campus) for fall '86, will consider summer as well. Call eves 546-6928

SPORTS

UNH hit with a Gorilla attack

Carr nets 4, defense excels in 15-7 win

continued from page 1

made: Following last Wednesday's loss 11-6 at Cornell, the Gorillas were coming to play.

Senior midfielder Greg Fisk, who has returned to the all-New England form he displayed as a sophomore, opened the scoring with 12:54 left in the first period. Taking a feed from Carmean directly in front of UNH goalie Andy Soma, Fisk rifled a blast past the keeper's left side.

With the defensive corps of seniors Tom Aldrich and Gerry Byrne and freshman Adam Rodell (with solid held from junior John Jordan and senior Pat Craig) clearing the ball out of the UNH end at will, the Gorillas went on the attack again.

Taking advantage of a missed defensive slide, Carr took a pretty Carmean pass and beat Soma with 6:28 left. Junior midfielder Neil "Fuzzy" Cunningham then came down, started to look for a pass, but decided on a shot from 25 feet out and his rocket made it 3-0 with 5:50 to go. UNH went for the time out, but the damage was done.

"What I like is the fact that we didn't play up to our potential," said UM's Garber. "We didn't control the tempo like I would've liked and we were without a few players because of injuries and sickness. We're not close to being as good as we're going to be and we easily handled a good team in UNH."

The Wildcats, coming in with losses only to Maryland and 10th-ranked Towson State, seemed shocked as how easily the Gorillas buried them.

"We have a good team," said UNH's Garber. "And I thought we could beat UMass. There was some terrible calls made, but that didn't beat us, a great team beat us."

UNH did score in the first quarter as Soma took a clear the length of the field, was checked and lost the ball, but regained the rock and slid a shot past a screened LoCascio with 1:42 left.

LoCascio, a freshman from Lindenhurst, New Jersey, quickly became a crowd favorite with his daring expeditions outside the crease. Becoming practically a fourth defenseman at times, he shut down the UNH passing lanes and stood his ground in the face of its attack.

"You have to pick and choose the times to come out of the net," LoCascio said. "I like getting involved and I'm at the point now that I'm not nervous. We have a great defense and they are always there. Birdie (Aldrich), Gerry and the rest of them are the best."

The second period saw Carmean, Fisk, junior Greg Canella and Carr notch goals for UMass. Canella ended up with three on the day and Fisk two, with one assist.

With the score 7-3 at halftime, UMass quickly increased their margin with two quick scores. Aldrich, taking a clear all the way to the UNH crease, passed off, but hung around and stuffed a loose ball home with 13:18 left. Canella tossed his second one in less then a minute later. Mike McCaffrey tallied for UNH, but then the issue was decided as UMass ran off the next four.

With McGovern (who was 12-of-23 on the day) winning every face-off, the Gorillas unleased a barrage on Soma as sharp passing accounted for goals by Carr (who played his best collegiate game), sophomore Pat Cain, Canella and then Carr again.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Junior attackman Tom Carmean, had one goal and five assists as the Gorillas swamped UNH, 15-7.

The quarter ended with UM up, 13-4. UNH tallied three garbage time goals with senior Rich Abbott and freshman Chris Tyler scoring for UMass. Tyler's first collegiate point came with no time left on the clock.

Statistically, UMass was 25-of-30 on clears, enjoyed a 55-37 ground ball advantage (Byrne led with 10), had a 44-35 shot advantage and was four-of-seven during extra-man situations.

"This is what I've been waiting for," said Aldrich, a co-captain. "We've put it together, and more's to come.

UMass rolls to third win

Gazelles crush Springfield, 20-7

By JOHN A. NOLAN
Collegian Staff

Every team needs to have an easy game on its schedule.

The tenth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team played its stat-builder Saturday afternoon, swamping Division 2 Springfield College, 20-3, at NOPE Field.

Senior attackman Bunny Forbes led the Gazelle offensive barrage scoring a season-high six goals and added an assist while junior attackman Lisa Griswold had five goals and four assists.

Senior attackman Mary Scott, who combined with sophomore attackman Amy Robertson to win 20 of 24 faceoffs, scored four goals and had two assists.

Sophomore attackman Ginny Armstrong had a hat-trick, freshman attackman Cathy Fuhrman had a goal and an assist, junior attackman Becky Bekampis scored once and freshman attackman Adrienne Recla had an assist.

"You always have to have a game like this to give players a chance to show what they can do in other positions," UMass head coach Pam Hixon said.

Scott, who entered the game with just one goal and an assist in two previous games, said that for the most part, the game was one to work on fundamentals and one to strive to keep from lowering to the opponents level of play.

"It was good to play in a game like today because there was a lot less pressure and we were able to work on fundamentals," she said.

The Gazelles sent Springfield victory hopes home quickly, scoring the game's first seven goals just 11:33 into the game. Cathy Fuhrman's fourth goal of the season set the UMass offense rolling with her goal, 1:44 into the game. Forbes then scored her first of the game 51 seconds later before Armstrong, Griswold and Scott scored to extend the UMass lead to 5-0 with 17:51 to go in the half.

Forbes scored again 12 seconds later before Scott added an unassisted tally with 13:27 left. Springfield scored three goals within a four minute span to get on the board. UMass, getting two more goals from Forbes before the end of the half, put the game away for all intense and purposes with its 9-3 halftime lead.

Despite the offensive fireworks, it was the team's defensive work that Hixon said was the key to the win.

"In the first half we were a little shaky playing too tight of a man-to-man defense but after we switched to looser, sagging man-to-man coverage, the second half was much better," Hixon said. "We really wanted to keep them scoreless in the second half."

"It really felt good to get to work on other things, not only that but it was also a confidence builder for our defense," Forbes said. "It was just really good to see different people getting into the game."

Minutewomen sweep Adelphi for 6th straight

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

If you have ever experienced the feeling of passing an early midterm exam with flying colors, then you can identify with how the University of Massachusetts softball team must feel.

The Minutewomen passed their toughest test of the season on Saturday, sweeping perennial East Coast powerhouse Adelphi University, 1-0 in 12 innings in the first game, and 3-0 in the nightcap, at Garden City, New York. UMass raised its record to 17-3 and is sure to move up in the national rankings from its current 20th spot.

"They just did everything right against Adelphi. They hit the ball hard and played superb defense," head coach Elaine Sortino said. "It was a battle to the very end."

The Minutewomen took game one in more than dramatic form. After being held scoreless for 11 innings by Adelphi pitcher Julie Bolec, considered to be one of the top five pitchers in the nation, UMass got the long ball to work for them. Senior co-captain Sally Maher led off the inning with a triple and then scored when catcher Ilene Freeman followed with a triple of her own to left field. Freeman was thrown out at the plate, but the damage was done.

The rest was up to pitcher Lynn Stockley, who picked

continued on page 11

NUMMO NEWS

Connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution. A weekly Black news service publication

Volume 15 Issue 4 Monday, April 7, 1986

photo by Michelle Segall

Bill Cosby lectured students to "go forth," but not home, and also said that there were people "out there waiting to eat them alive;" if they are not prepared.

BILL COSBY RECEIVES HONORARY DEGREE

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

Among the recipients of honorary degrees given out on April 2, 1986, at "a special convocation on the Arts in America" was celebrity and UMass alumnus, William (Bill) Cosby, Jr.

The student body and award recipients were welcomed by Chancellor Joseph Duffey. He talked briefly about the program's object to "honor six remarkable people," four of which have degrees from UMass. He mentioned how the Arts were falling behind science as far as recognition and funding, and this was one reason for this honorary celebration.

The six recipients were Bill Cosby, Graham Gund, Francis S.M. Hodsoll, Bruce Franklin MacCombie, William Edward Taylor, and Lois Beurman Torf.

While receiving his degree, Cosby amused the audience with humorous gestures. When he came to the stage for remarks he instructed everyone to "go back to class now." He said that he knew students would use any excuse not to attend classes.

He said that he had a great deal of pride for Temple University where he did his undergraduate work, and UMass where he did graduate studies.

He told the story of his recruitment to the UMass graduate program. Cosby feels that comedy is "necessary and useful in everyday life." His decision was "solidified by three professors," who told him what he was worth in terms of educating people, after his first performance at UMass's Cage; which Cosby told the audience he thought he had named.

Cosby explained that once he left Temple University, he was no longer concerned with what was the number one record or who was the best basketball team in the NBA, his main concern was how he was going to pay his rent. No one realizes it until he/she is out there in the real world; how hard it really is, said Cosby.

He comically explained that he was asked to return to school with the incentive of financially making in a year, by means of a Master's Degree, a sum he had been making every four weeks.

He described UMass at the time he attended as having a great deal of diversity. He said that when there are 'all kinds of minds working, you've got the most fantastic thing around.'

He talked about his successful program, "The Cosby Show." He said that he was conscious of what he wanted to do (through the program) because he was tired of there being nothing on television he wanted to watch.

He advised students that after graduation many people will congratulate you saying, "go forth." "Forth," said Cosby, "is not back home," and relayed that this was a message from parents. The degree, he said, "It means nothing; it's just a piece of paper. People are out there waiting for you: we will eat you alive," he joked.

He asked that people remember that UMass was then at a different time and that out of that 'different time' came a Bill Cosby. He ended by saying "Theo" his tv son loves to wear his UMass t-shirt. So we gave him a complimentary one, along with a couple of standing ovations.

DR. MOSELY HONORS M. L. KING

by Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

Helping to commemorate the life of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the Angelic Voices, along with other choirs, two soloists and guest speaker Dr. Brian Mosley joined forces to celebrate King's work, Friday night.

Joining in the celebration were approximately 250 people from the Five College community, Springfield and New Jersey.

The program began with the recorded words spoken by Dr. King at the March on Washington, with the background music of "We Shall Overcome." "I Don't Fell No Ways Tired," sung by the seven choirs and two soloists, set the tone of the event. The theme of the evening was "There Is No Easy Road To Freedom."

Dr. Brian Mosley, ordained minister, and pastor and founder of the Greater Bethlehem Healing Temple, opened his sermon by singing the first verse of "Amazing Grace".

Mosley said that we should remember what King did and that we should try to incorporate it into our lives today, "but first of all let's thank God because he is the one who is in control of our lives."

Mosley correlated the struggle and the fight to freedom that King initiated to those that exist in Nicaragua, South Africa, the Phillipines and in Europe. "People are struggling all over the world for some type of freedom," said Mosely. "Those people who are struggling over issues of public concern are trying to become free."

Mosley said that in the last couple of years the country has become more oppressive. "There is a perplexity of struggle right here in the states. In order to have the satisfaction that I am somebody, you are going to have to pay," he explained.

Mosley said that out of all the great work that Dr. King did that there are still people who question his credibility. "People today have lost that heart-felt religion that our grandmothers and grandfathers had: treat others as you would have them treat you.

Mosley said that he feels there are also personal struggles going on - young people are struggling to become adults: girls to be women, and boys to become men.

"People today have to hold onto their self-respect, dignity and their morals. King lived for something and he exemplified everything that he lived for. Education does not make you free, you have to know who you are. I am a Black man, I know who I am, I am free,"Mosley said. "There is more to life than drums and music. And in order to have freedom you have got to have freedom within yourself."

Mosely stressed, "The theme 'No Easy Road to Freedom' means something when you think about freedom: You are going to have to suffer. People want so much and pay so little."

Pentecostal preacher Dr. Brian Mosely told the audience on Friday night in Bowker Auditorium to remember what King did and to try to incorporate it into their everyday lives.

Reports in Color

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

"Good Evening and Welcome to 'Reports in Color'." "Reports in Color" is a Black Affairs show on 91.1 WMUA, from 6-7 p.m., every Saturday night, sponsored by The Black Mass Communication Project (BMCP). "Reports in Color" strives each week to bring to you issues and information that are of interest to Black community members and Third World students.

The program's host is Marc Elliot Giles, "strives to enlighten you, the listener." "But to do the best we can, we need your support," said Giles.

This program is also produced and engineered by Giles, a senior sociology major here at UMass. Giles is a member of BMCP. He says the show was creatd by BMCP and has been here since the organizations inception. The problem, explained Giles, was that even though the program was here, "no one did anything with it." The show has been put on by other community members such as Sharon Jackson, Julian Tynes, and Frank Oglasby, who is a recent UMass graduate.

Giles selects the program's guests by choosing Third World community members with positions of authority and duty to the community. He chooses these people because he feels that their opinions are more respected. "When they talk, everybody listens," says Giles, thereby making the program more effective. "Reports in Color" also often asks for opinions from the larger community on controversial issues.

This program is very time consuming to create, produce and engineer single-handedly, says Giles, who usually does his show on Tuesday night from 6:00 p.m. - 2:00 a.m. He does this while taking 18 credits.

He has had a number of people on his program, like CCEMBS Advisor Rick Townes, members of Nummo News, BMCP, Malcolm X Center, Afrik-Am and even The United Christian Fund.

Giles is presently looking for people to train since he will be graduating this year. He would like to see the program continue. Giles explained that everyone says that they are interested, but few (or none) show that interest. He said, "You can gauge the interest, by the initiative."

A training session by Giles simply entails students coming down to the station and doing everything along with him, until the students(s) are able to produce the show alone. He has had some help from Wallace McCloud and his consultants Rod Clare and Chris Williams.

Giles plans to return to New York hoping to find a job with a radio station possibly doing a show such as this one. He enjoys his work because he gets to meet, understand and relate to different people, and believes that work on this program will facilitate job offers in the future.

NUMMO NEWS congratulates and thanks Marc Elliot Giles for the work he has done and wishes him the best of luck in his future endeavors.

Cape Verdeans Celebrate Culture

by Giselle Andrade
Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

There are approximately 100 Cape Verdeans on this campus, many of which are not aware of their culture.

The Cape Verdean Students Alliance(CVSA), established in the fall of 1982, came out of a need for Cape Verdeans to come together and form an identity here at the University.

On March 28th at an awareness day, hosted by the CVSA, they were awarded a citation for the preservation of culture by Chairman of the Rhode Island Subcommittee on the Preservation of Cape Verdean Culture, Oling Monteiro Jackson. Jackson said, "This event is very important, everyone is watching. They may not be here but they are watching you."

Jackson said that the goals of the CVSA and those of the Subcommittee are to preserve and to make people aware of the Cape Verdean culture in the Five College community, in the states and abroad.

Included in the activities, in helping to celebrate Cape Verdean Awareness Day, were speakers, a photo exhibit and a dinner of traditional Cape Verdean dishes, followed by a traditional Cape Verdean dance.

Paul Barrows, advisor of the CVSA and director of the Collegiate Committee for the Education of Black and Minority Students (CCEBMS), lectured on the strength, unity and history of the struggle of Cape Verdeans.

"Struggling is an integral part of our being. Cape Verde is one of the poorest countries in the world. Struggling is a part of our tradition," Barrows said.

"You have two things that you have to do in being Cape Verdean," said Barrows. "One is to be successful students and the second is to tell your younger brothers and sisters to do something about their education. There is something called the Cachupa Connection where you try to do something for your country; this is what you have to do, don't be selfish."

Rui Periera, president and a founding member of the CVSA, said "This is a very historical event for us. We have waited for the right time because we first had to organize and establish ourselves."

"The alliance is grateful to all the people who came forth and got involved. We would like to thank everyone who participated and supported us," said Periera. "To me this shows that all Third World organizations can come together and help one another," Periera said.

Denise Warner, coordinator and member of the CVSA, said that she was pleased with the turn-out. "We would have appreciated a greater turn-out from those who are not familiar with Cape Verdean culture. However, those people who came, left with a better knowledge of the Cape Verdean people."

The goals of the CVSA are to promote and create an awareness within the Five College community, about Cape Verdean history:

-To establish alliances with Cape Verdeans at other universities.

-To establish a curriculum so that Cape Verde history will be taught at UMass.

-To establish an exchange program between UMass and the Cape Verde Islands.

Cape Verde consists of 10 islands off the western coast of Africa. Originally, Africans were taken from Africa by Portuguese slave traders and placed on the islands to work. The country is very poor and still largely agricultural today, with a population of 296,000. Creole, the unifying language of Cape Verdeans gets its manisfestation from Portugal, other parts of Europe and Africa.

The Cape Verde islands received their independence from Portugual ten years ago and are a part of the greater Pan-African struggle for independence. The country is now trying to obtain modern technology to overcome the economic stagnation created by colonialism.

Feed the Hungry

"Some of the poorest children in the city of New York have raised thousands of dollars and hired a plane to air lift some 40 tons of grain into Ethopia, they did it. According to doctors and nutritionists on the seen, our government is so bogged down in red tape that the much needed food is not making it to the people of Ethopia on time.

We can help- with a penny, a nickle, a dime or a quarter a day. Yes- it has all been said but now it is time to start doing, if a group of children ages 5 to 19 can 'save the children' we too can 'give back a life'.

The Agusta Savage Memorial Gallery is spearheading the 'Give Back a Life' drive for the children of Ethopia, contact us at 545-0932."

Bill Cosby: Backgroundto Greatness

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

It no longer does justice to William H. Cosby, Jr. to refer to him as a comedian or entertainer. As it is with Will Rogers, W.C. Fields, and Groucho Marx, Bill Cosby is best described as a "humorist."

The distinction is important because, whether through his work in television, concerts, recordings or education, Bill Cosby always centers his comedy on the basic elements of our lives, touching them in a way that transcends either comedy or entertainment.

His most recent and perhaps greatest success is his NBC television series. In addition to being TV's most popular series, "The Cosby Show" is among its most influential. The show has been credited with boosting the entire NBC network, reinvigorating the situation comedy and provoking critics and television industry leaders to examine more deeply the content of network shows, their treatment of the American family and of Blacks.

Born in Philadelphia on July 12, 1937, Bill Cosby is the oldest of William and Anna Cosby's three sons. He attended Wister Elementary School along with his pals Fat Albert, Old Weird Harold, Dumb Donald, Rudy, Nolan and Weasel, for which his cartoon characters are named. He left high school to join the Navy and later finished high school via a correspondence course.

When he was discharged, he enrolled at Temple University as the result of an athletic scholarship. He played football and track at Temple. Cosby left Temple University to begin his entertainment career more than 25 years ago. His first stage appearance (for $5 a night) was at a night spot in his native Philadelphia called "The Underground." From that humble beginning, Cosby's career took off.

He is the best-selling comedian of all-time on record albums. He has had 20 albums, three of them musical, on the national pop charts. Three albums were in the Top 10 - "Revenge" went to number two in Billboard magazine, and three others made the Top 20. Cosby has won five "Best Comedy Album" Grammy awards.

He made the transition from standup comic to actor in the series "I Spy." His NBC co-star role alongside Robert Culp was a historic moment in casting, marking the first time a Black man was placed with a White man as an equal. "I Spy" earned international attention and Cosby earned three Emmy awards.

He married Camille Hanks on Jan. 25, 1964. They have four daughters and one son and reside in Shelburne, Massachusetts.

In 1977, Cosby received a doctor of education degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst; he head received his master's in education from UMass in 1972.

His doctoral thesis had the somewhat tongue-in-cheek, elongated title, "The Integration of Visual Media Via Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids into the Elementary Schools Culminating as a Teacher Aid to Achieve Increased Learning." The research influences instructional home videos Cosby produces, which are designed to develop readiness skills in pre-school children. The program was awarded the Gold Award at the 1981 International Film and TV Festival as "Outstanding Children's Program."

Cosby made his motion picture debut in "Man and Boy," a drama set in the post-Civil War era. He has also appeared with Robert Culp in "Hickey and Boggs," with Sidney Poitier in "Uptown Saturday Night," "Let's Do It Again" and "A Piece of the Action," and with Richard Pryor in "California Suite."

In addition, Cosby has filmed numerous television specials and produced two education TV shows -"Concern," dealing with his concern for school children, and "Prejudice," an irreverent spoof of prejudicial hangups. He has also made contributions to PBS-TV's "The Electric Company."

Portions of this article were donated by the Arts Council.

CCEBMS Summer Program Continues

by Tracey Bryant
Nummo Staff

The CCEBMS Summer Program was initiated in 1983to allow some minority students a pre-September adjustment period by approximating the first year, and to build the discipline necessary to prioritize, organize and study in the face of multiple first-year alternatives. Another goal is to familiarize students with the campus, campus agencies and administrative organizations.

The first-year of college is normally the hardest for students. It is the time when the most number of people get put on academic probations. Rick Townes, director of the summer program, said"The program seems to have made a difference." Not only does CCEBMS Summer Program students generally not end up on probation the first year, they tend to excel, Said Townes. "Students from the program are the best advocates of the program. They all say they would do it again."

The students in the Summer Program take two courses and are offered a multitude of extra-curricular activities. The students are placed in various levels of college math and English, through the Rhetoric and Math Department testing.

All students must attend both math and English classes daily and study hours are mandatory along with a few prescribed activities. During the six weeks of the Summer Program, study time predominates the students' days, because says Townes, "One of the problems on campus among students, is that people don't always demonstrate sound academic discipline."

The program consists of 30 hours a week of mandatory study hall, with retribution even for class tardiness including possible expulsion, and in general, "not a lot of free time," said Townes, who added cheerfully "weekends - Friday nights through Sunday nights are free."

Townes decried the claim that CCEBMS Summer Program students wouldn't have received UMass admission had they not been enrolled in the program. Said Townes, "Many present UMass students wouldn't make it through the Summer Program; which has a good mix of academic levels and backgrounds."

Townes said thatat first kids moaned and groaned, but they adhered and adjusted. The professionals involved with the program, which was slightly different this year, were pleased with the response and results.

The first two years the program was administered jointly by CCEBMS, BCP and Everywoman's Center. CCEBMS who produced the program soley last year and will continue to do so, Introduced some new ideas. "Academic discipline was new," said Townes. The first two summers, the classes were the same, but kids were expected to study on their own. Townes pointed out that most did.

Of the new ideas, Townes said, "We wanted to begin a process that would stay with them during the four years. We wanted them to begin to think about time-management - dividing up the day into scheduled sectors of time." The hope was that when September came and the students had five clases, they would construct a schedule and stick to it.

The concept for last year's summer program was to try to instill and build what it takes to have a successful college career, not just to make it through; basically, extending the previous idea of first-year success, related Townes.

Some of the tools used to accomplish this was pertinent cultural, historical readings and guests, and more cultural interaction built into the curriculum and activities. Last year, Tanzanian leaders had open discussions with the students and the students had to academically utilize the UMass Summer Jazz Festival for papers and presentations.

CCEBMS intends to continue with this type of summer program format, because, said Townes, "Last year, we saw solid improvement in first semester achievement, with fewer CCEBMS students on academic probation after the first semester; primarily because so many CCEBMS Summer programmers did well."

There were 45 students in the summer program last year and they expect to have the same number this year. Said Townes, "Any CCEBMS student could benefit from coming in six weeks earlier."

Conference Promotes Networking

by Marion Tinsley
Nummo Staff

The planning committee of the Third World Student Leadership Conference is inviting students to attend and participate in their program to be held on Saturday, April 19, at the Campus Center Auditorium. This year the conference's theme is networking in the Five College community.

Committee Chairman Sherwood Thompson said "I cannot over-emphasize how important it is for Black and other Third World students in the Five College community to actively support this conference. Above and beyond attending these important workshops there are many ways that students and their organizations can make a positive contribution towards the success of this event."

"The community has to work together and understand that their diversity lies in their unity," Sherwood said. It will also give students the opportunity to meet new friends."

Activities include workshops that explore issues surrounding the survival of Black and other Third World students at predominately white colleges and universities. A luncheon will be given with a presentation by Dr. John Henrick Clarke, chairman of the Department of Black and Puerto Rican Studies at Hunter College in New York City. He will speak on the nineteenth century origins of Black Nationalism.

The day's activities will be shared with high school students from throughout Massachusetts as part of the Undergraduate Admissions Office's Challenge Program.

For futher information contact Sherwood Thompson at 545-2517.

NUMMO NOTEBOOK

Third World Theatre Grants

The Five-College Third World Theatre Committee is pleased to announce again the residency and production fund available for the academic year 1986-87. This fund is intended to stimulate interest in the exploration of Third World Theatre within our productions. Up to $4,500 is available for:

Artist-in-residence. An actor, playwright, director, designer, dramaturge, etc. would work with a specific theatre production for a period of 3-6 weeks.

Production fund. Grant assistance is available for a Five-College production, department production, or student production.

Small Projects Development Loan. Up to $500

Available to Five-College student groups to develop production projects. Money may be used for supplies and other initial production expenditures and must be repaid from box office earnings. Proposals for projects scheduled during September through Ocober 1986 must be submitted by May 9, 1986. Proposals for projects scheduled during November through December, 1986 must be submitted by September 1, 1986. Proposals should be submitted to Shelia Rose Bland, Chair, Third World Theatre Committee.

In the current academic year funds were awarded to: New World Theatre's productions of "Dance of the Railroad," "In Living Color" and "Shango De Ima," and Laila Lee Taylor's production of "Gold Bracelets."

The committee will consider a wide variety of proposals which fall under the following general description Third World Theatre:

The term "Third World Theatre" is not meant to obscure the distinct theatrical traditions, forms, and achievements of African, Hispanic, Asian and Native American cultures, nor to suggest that they are a single entity. Rather, the term recognizes the important differences in the history and development of these cultures as well as many shared themes and similar experiences.

In America, the term refers to those theatre movements which not only project the social values and ethnic experiences of non-European American communities, but which, in an increasingly conscious manner, utilize the forms and traditions of the original cultures. Thus in this uniquely American context, Third World theatre represents a continuum and transformation of world drama expanding and enriching our contemporary American theatre.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact the chair.

We hope you will take advantage of this exciting opportunity.

Sincerely,
Shelia Rose Bland

Five-College Third World Theatre Committee Members, 1985-86.

Sheila Rose Bland, Theatre Faculty, Smith

Laila Taylor, Smith

Suzanne Dougan, Theatre Faculty, Amherst

Dana Woods, Amherst

Ellen Donkin, Theatre Faculty, Hampshire

Anna Ibe, Hampshire

Joyce Devlyn, Theatre Faculty, Mount Holyoke

Lisa Anderson, Mount Holyoke

Penny Remsen, Theatre Faculty, UMass

Roberta Thelwell, Theatre Faculty, UMass

Selina Cavalcanti, UMass

Daphne Reed, UMass and Five Colleges Center

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Attention all CCEBMS seniors." There will be a mandatory meeting in room 311 New Africa House, on April 11, 1986 at 7:00 p.m. . If you are unable to attend please call Doris Clemmons at 5-0031 between 8:30-5:00 p.m.

TO BE YOUNG GIFTED AND BLACK
A play directed by Esther Terry, musical direction by Lucien P. Gochett Monday through Friday, April 14-18 at Bowker Auditorium
at 8:00

NUMMO

WE ARE THE AUGUSTA SAVAGE ART GALLERY.
We are in the New Africa House on the first floor.
Come by and check us out.

The Commuter Area Government presents the PROGRESSIVE FILM SERIES:

Thursday, April 10
"Jazz on a Summer Day" and the film "the St. Louis Blues." Co-sponsored by the Black musicians conference. "Jazz" is the definitive jazz film featuring Thelonious Monk, Louis Armstrong, Chuck Berry, Dinah Washington, et al. at Newport in 1958.
Cape Cod Lounge, SUB.

Thursday, April 17
"September Wheat" - by Peter Krieg. An award-winning film about food and hunger in the rich industrialized countries and in the poor countries of the world.
CC 163.

TIMES FOR ALL COMMUTER AREA FILMS WILL BE 7:30 P.M.

Third World Community outreach counselor/advodate for women at the Everywoman Center is willing to listen to your problems. This program is designed to help women victims of violence. Call Evelyn at 549-7785 or 545-0800 anytime.

IOTA PHI THETA'S THIRD ANNUAL UMOJA GREEK STEP SHOW

April 19,
8:00 PM
Bowker Auditorium.

Tickets may be purchased at Fine Arts Center, or $4 at the door.

UPWARD BOUND CAREER DAY CONFERENCE
April 12, 1986 9:30 a.m. at the Holyoke Community College-Frost Building A. Contact the Upward Bound Office for more information.

The 15th Annual Black Musicians presents:
"From Sorrow Song to Soulful Shout."
The event will take place at the Augusta Savage Memorial Gallery, New Africa House, April 7-19.
There will be a reception with music on Wednesday, April 9, 5-8 p.m.

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY MARATHON

April 12-13
There will a 12-hour marathon dance held in an effort to help fight Muscular Dystrophy.
The dance will be held at Curry Hicks Cage beginning at 12 midnight and ending 12 noon.
For further information contact W.Greg Rothman at: 545-0341.

"Variation on a Theme"
An exhibition of works by Daniel Bona, Peng Yew Chin and Cynthia Gilliland will be presented at Wheeler Gallery in Wheeler House. April 10-20

WANTED

NUMMO NEWS is now accepting applications for typesetters and lay-out persons for the 1986-87 academic year. These are 10-hour/week student positions. Experience preferred, but will train. Workstudy preferred. Contact NUMMO NEWS at 545-0061, 545-0062, or write NUMMO NEWS, 103 New Africa House.

NUMMO is now accepting applications for typesetters and layout persons for the coming year. We are willing to train. For more information come to our office, located at 103 New Africa House.

NUMMO NEWS is now accepting applications for the position of Business Manager.
Business Majors or previous experience preferred. This is a 10-hour/week student position for the 1986-87 academic year. Workstudy preferred. Contact NUMMO NEWS at 545-0061, 545-0062, or write NUMMO NEWS, 103 New Africa House.

NUMMO NEWS is now accepting applications for the position of Administrative Assistant. Good secretarial skill necessary. This is a 10-hour/week student position for the 1986-87 academic year. Workstudy preferred.

GET INVOLVED IN THE STRUGGLE!

KEEP THE COMMUNITY ALIVE!

KEEP THE COMMUNITY INFORMED.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Marion Tinsley — Editor In Chief
Donette Wilson — Managing Editor
Tracey Bryant — News Editor
Giselle Andrade — Staff Writer
Nadine Marsellas — Staff Writer

• • • Contributors • • •

Tracey Kemble — Correspondent
David G. DuBois — Faculty Advisor

Address all letters to the Editor to: Nummo News, New Africa House Room 103

ANNOUNCEMENT

AL JARREAU

Saturday, April 19
8:00 PM
at the Fine Arts Center, UMass.
Tickets are $17.00, cash only,
6 ticket limit
On sale at the F.A.C. Box Office and at the Springfield Civic Center

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 45

TUESDAY, APRIL 8, 1986

INSIDE

•Reagan mulls reprisal. Page 2.
•UNH vehicles vandalized. Page 3.
•Women's lacrosse hosts BU. Page 12.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

I'M SO GLAD ELEPHANTS DON'T FLY—Lack of sun did not stop School of Management junior Paul Murphy from studying outdoors under a lone bird yesterday.

Top legal officials call review unfair

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

The administration's plans for reviewing the University of Massachusetts Legal Services Office drew criticism yesterday from two members of the office, who said it is an attempt to deprive students of the right to sue the University.

Today through Thursday, a lawyer selected by the Office of Student Affairs will examine the "mission, goals, objectives, organizational structure and reporting line" of the LSO.

David Valade, chairman of the LSO Governing Board and Charles J. DiMare, LSO director, questioned Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson's selection of George Shur, general counsel to the University of Southern Illinois, for the review.

Valade said the choice of Shur to prepare a report on LSO appeared to be "the reviewing of the office with the prior intention of taking away students' right to sue, and then making it seem justified."

Valade said Madson assured the eight-member LSO governing board it would have input into the review, "then he put it off for a while. The next thing we knew he was going to Washington to talk to Shur.

"We sent a letter to Madson but he hasn't responded to it," Valade said.

Madson was unavailable for comment yesterday.

DiMare said: "I think the itinerary proposed by Madson is questionable in the least."

Valade said Shur's position with the University of Southern Illinois makes him biased in favor of the administration, and he would like another person to conduct the review in addition to Shur.

"I'd like to see someone who is at least unbiased, where the report would be based on the review, not the review based on the report," Shur said.

DiMare said he believes the primary reason for the review is the number of students that LSO represents in lawsuits against the University.

The office says it handles 2,000 to 3,000 clients per year, and that between 400 and 500 involve students against the University. Of those cases, an average of 1.5 end up in court.

"We do everything we can to negotiate settlements out of court," DiMare said.

The most recent student suit against UMass was filed last week by two students who said their civil rights were violated when they were arrested for holding up an anti-apartheid banner at a business conference in the Campus Center last April.

"The administration for years has been discussing the control of this office," DiMare said. "It's interesting that they appear more interested in our office after we file lawsuits."

DiMare said most lawsuits against the University involve Health Services, campus police, the dean of students office, Housing Services and the Student Affairs Office, all of which are under Madson's control. He said he would rather see LSO under the chancellor's office or the provost's office.

Madson was unavailable for comment last night.

Former student files suit against police

A former University of Massachusetts student filed suit Friday in US District Court in Springfield, accusing the Amherst Police Department of denying him constitutional rights and beating him when he was taken into protective custody in 1983.

Michael Gemme, the former student, is seeking $350,000 in damages from Police Chief Donald Maia and several other officers in the department, which is self-insured.

Court documents show that on April 13, 1983, Gemme was returning to campus from a bar on North Pleasant Street when an officer stopped him and asked if he had been drinking. Gemme said he was not walking in a straight line because he had suffered a knee injury. He then fell and the officer handcuffed him and allegedly beat him.

Gemme was then brought to the Amherst police station, where he claims he was further beaten, according to the records.

The lawsuit also charges that Gemme was not allowed to make a phone call, was not informed of his right to take a breathalyzer test and was refused treatment for his injuries.

"I don't know when it will be tried; the average case against the Amherst police takes about three years," said Charles DiMare, director of UMass Legal Services, who is representing Gemme.

Maia told the Daily Hampshire Gazette he could not comment on the suit during litigation, and he could not be reached yesterday evening.

—JEANETTE DeFORGE

FYI The Fall 1986 Official Schedule of Courses will be distributed in the Campus Center Concourse from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. next Monday. Only one copy will be distributed per person. Beginning one week from today, the schedule of courses pamphlet will be available in the Whitmore 1st floor lobby.

Conte says aid will help women

Conte responds to charge

By WILLIAM SPAIN
Collegian Staff

Representative Silvio Conte, R-Mass, was on campus yesterday to announce a $150,000 grant from the US Labor Department to the University of Massachusetts School of Education for a program to help women attain high-level management positions.

The Corporate Linkage Program, which calls for UMass to collaborate with private firms and the government, is aimed to assist women in the private sector to work their way up the job ladder. Roundtable discussions between representatives of academia, corporations and government will seek to identify the problems that stop women from advancing into upper levels of management, according to a University statement.

Results of the discussions will aid in forming programs aimed at eliminating the difficulties women face in this area, the statement said.

In a news conference at Furcolo Hall, Conte said the program will create "a partnership between the University and the private sector to develop ways of assisting women improve their mobility and opportunities in corporate management."

Conte cited a Wall Street Journal survey in which only two percent of the top executives polled were women, as an example that there are not enough women in high-level management positions.

"The need for a project like this is there," he said.

Norma Jean Anderson, professor of organizational development in the School of Education, said that in addition to the program, "We plan to have a strategy for corporate people to come and look at the model."

She also said that the model would be primarily directed at private financial institutions, manufacturing and technical institutions, and the entertainment and communications media.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, introducing the 20-minute press conference, said the program is one of many University efforts to "work more closely with business and industry on a whole host of problems that confront our society."

Before his news conference yesterday, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., took a minute to respond to a reporter's inquiry into allegations of voter intimidation leveled by Bob Weiner, a Democrat who is seeking to unseat him in the congressional election this fall.

The charges involve a Feb. 9 vote by the Hadley-based Polish Club to support Weiner's candidacy. In a press release, Weiner charged that a member of the club told him after the vote that Conte aides, and "possibly the representative himself," called Polish-Americans in this area to attempt to overturn the vote.

According to the release, the club responded by upgrading its support to an outright endorsement of Weiner.

"I don't even know where it [the Polish Club] is," Conte said outside Furcolo Hall. "Weiner is just hungry for news. While Conte works, he runs around."

Reached by telephone, Weiner said, "I stand my ground. Conte has a history of intimidation dating back 12 years and it comes from the arrogance of power."

He added: "Every time an organization endorses someone else, Conte doesn't think they have the right to do it."

—WILLIAM SPAIN

Collegian photo by Michelle Segoli

Congressman Silvio Conte, R-Mass.

Evidence points to Libya; Reagan ponders retaliation

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan was said yesterday to be studying the possibility of a military strike against Libya as the United States compiled evidence that the renegade Arab republic was involved in the fatal bombing of a West Berlin disco.

Ambassador Richard Burt, the US envoy to West Germany, said there were "very clear indications that there was Libyan involvement" in the nightclub bombing that killed an American Army sergeant and a Turkish woman.

When asked whether he favored a military move against Khadafy, Burt said that Reagan was "studying this issue right now."

One US diplomat in the divided city, speaking on condition he not be identified, said: "The Libyan angle is being explored very vigorously. Khadafy is an active suspect."

On his return from a California vacation Sunday, Reagan refused comment when reporters asked him whether he planned to strike at the Libyan leader. He ignored questions yesterday as he left the White House to watch the start of the Baltimore Orioles' season-opening baseball game against the Cleveland Indians.

At the White House, spokesman Edward Djerejian said the administration would "have to reserve final judgment on exactly who was responsible until we make further progress on the investigations."

But he said the weekend explosion in West Berlin and the bombing last week of a TWA jetliner over Greece followed the "pattern of indiscriminate violence which we have traced to the types of terrorist activities that Col. Moammar Khadafy has sponsored in the past."

AP Photo

A REAL SCREWBALL—President Ronald Reagan tosses out the second ball at the Orioles opening day game at Memorial Stadium yesterday. He is using a glove worn by Orioles all-star shortstop Cal Ripken.

Is your academic major a puzzle? Can we help you put the pieces together?

BDIC

Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration
. . .a program for self-designed majors.

Contact: BDIC
15 Bartlett Hall
545-2504 or 545-0736

All potential BDIC students, non-traditional majors and any others interested are cordially invited to attend our ALUMNI CAREER NIGHT when a panel of BDIC graduates will discuss:
"The First Year Out:
Trials, Tribulations and Triumphs"

WHEN: Tues, April 8, 1986 at 8:00 p.m.

WHERE: Campus Center, Rooms 162-175

Refreshments will be served

TONIGHT

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd. No. Amherst, MA
Across from Warnick's Store
549-4704

GRAPHICS WILL RULE

Try to relate by not seeing straight! Make your appointment! Don't be late!
Perms
$28.00 includes conditioning and blow dry or set. (does not include cut)
MARJON HAIR DESIGN
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551

ARE YOU PREGNANT & IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
• Same Day Results
Services that are Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

SUMMER JOBS
Girls overnight camps on Cape Cod and New Hampshire needs general counselors, waterfront and sailing staff, C.I.T., Director, Cooks, Assistant Cooks and Nurses. Contact Janet Waddeń, Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council, 6 St. James Avenue, Boston, MA, 02116, 617-482-1078.

Learn About Publicity Using Broadcast and Visual Media
attend
SGA Communication's forum on
"Publicizing With AudioVisual Media"
guest speakers from
• Hamilton Newell
• Union Video Center
• WMUA
• WHMP
• Community Center for Access T.V.
Date: Tuesday, April 8, 1986
Time: 7-9pm
Place: 811 Campus Center
All who attend receive the Student Publicity Manual for FREE!

vol. tone color

Low turnout expected for Amherst elections

Today's Amherst town election is expected to attract a light turnout because there are few contested races, according to Acting Town Clerk Rose Quinton.

Three candidates running for two seats on the Board of Selectmen and a two-way race for elector under the Oliver Smith Will are the only races with more candidates than seats.

Incumbent selectman Allen Torrey, and candidates Judy Brooks and Susan Roberts are vying for two places on the board. Elector Rosemary Sprague is being challenged for the first time since 1977, by Inez Haggerty.

Quinton attributes the expected low turnout to a lack of candidates for Town Meeting seats.

"Not as many people as usual ran for Town Meeting, as they should," Quinton said. "I think it's pathetic when people don't turn out to take a local interest in their candidates."

The highest voter turnout in the last four years was 29 percent, in 1983. In 1984, 10 percent came to the polls and last year, the total was 8 percent.

The polling places will be open from noon until 8 p.m. They are:

Precinct 1 — North Congregational Church Hall, Precinct 2 — North Fire Station, Precinct 3 — Immanuel Lutheran Church, Precinct 4 — Bangs Community Center, Precinct 5 — Bangs Community Center, Precinct 6 — Fort River School, Precinct 7 — Crocker Farm School, Precinct 8 — Munson Library.

— NANCY KLINGENER

UNH team vehicles dented following game

By JEFFRY BARTASH
Collegian Staff

A man dented the roofs of a University of New Hamphire lacrosse team bus and van when he jumped on them after the lacrosse game Saturday in the parking lot near Curry Hicks Cage, University of Massachusetts police said.

In other police reports:

●A male student from Kennedy Tower suffered a swollen jaw, a cut lip and bite wound after he was assaulted by two 18-year-old men, also from Kennedy Tower, at 1:57 a.m. Saturday on the 16th floor of Kennedy, police said.

The men will be charged with assault and battery and malicious destruction of state property — a lounge door, police said.

The victim was treated at University Health Services and released, police said.

●More than $1,200 worth of equipment was reported stolen at 1:30 a.m. Friday from three rooms on the first floor of the Marcus Engineering Building East. The locks were forced open, police said.

●Five bottles of liquor and 84 cans of beer were confiscated at 11:16 p.m. Friday from about 20 minors who were in a room on the 4th floor of James House, police said.

●Four sinks were ripped from a wall and connecting water pipes were severed at 11:24 p.m. Friday in a bathroom on the first floor of Baker House, police said.

●Four UMass students were charged with willful and wanton injury to state property after they were found in possession of a UMass sign at 12:32 a.m. Saturday near the School of Education, police said.

● A stereo valued at $300 was reported stolen at 2:30 a.m. from an unlocked room on the fourth floor of Cance House, police said.

●A $250 Sony television was reported stolen at 11:28 p.m. Friday from the second floor of Melville House, police said.

●Four persons were charged with being minors in possession of alcohol over the weekend, police said. One person was also charged with giving false information to obtain identification, police said.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segail

DON'T LOOK UP—Sophomore Ross Garber, a finance major, goes about his painful job as parking lot attendant as Charlie Warner, standing, and Danny Sullivan, top right, both of the Physical Plant carpentry shop, repair the booth's roof.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

Father Bruce Ritter delivers his plea to a Campus Center Auditorium audience last night.

Father Ritter seeks aid for youths

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

Father Bruce Ritter, founder of the Covenant Houses and Run for Ritter, a non-profit road race designed to raise money for the house and the disadvantaged youths who live there, appealed to an audience of about 150 people last night to volunteer their time to help him save the teen-agers who wind up as prostitutes in the cities.

These people are "16 or 17 years old. Within a 24 hour period they would have used drugs and alcohol and have participated in commercial sex to survive. They come from single parent families with alcohol problems and have been subject to physical and sexual abuse," Ritter said in his speech in the Campus Center Auditorium.

The Covenant Houses provide food, clothing, shelter and protection from pimps who would coerce them to work, Ritter said. They get 20,000 youths a year, 14 percent of whom get reunited with their families.

Two-thirds of the people at the houses, which are in New York, Toronto, Fort Lauderdale and several other cities, are female. But Ritter noted: "Over age 18, more boys are involved in prostitution than girls. People think boys can better take care of themselves but the brutal reality is that young Tom Sawyers are becoming prostitutes."

Ritter said that 95 percent of the people who pay for the services of these teen-agers are "white middle class males who think it's okay to pay for sex."

"If you buy a pornographic magazine or rent a video here on campus you have contributed to organized crime and become part of the process which destroys these children," Ritter said. "People separate themselves from their consciences and say they are not accountable for the deaths of these people."

Lesbian nun speaks on homophobia

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

The best way to avoid homophobia is to tell everyone you are gay or lesbian, said a former nun, author and professor at Rollins College in Florida, last night.

"The best way to prevent homophobia was to be sure I was absolutely out to everybody," said Rosemary Curb, the keynote speaker of the Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week at the University of Massachusetts, to a capicity crowd in Memorial Hall.

Curb said her worst experience with homophobia was when the Dean at a college where she was teaching discovered that she was a lesbian and harassed her continuously.

"He used his homophobia to threaten my life and carrer. When I looked for another job I put it on my resume," she said.

Curb was raised in a Irish Catholic neighborhood in the 1950s. She attended Catholic schools and became a nun when she was 18.

"Many of us considered our lack of interest in going out on a date and our interest in the sisters as an interest in a vocation [in the church]," Curb said.

"In the convent I had a relationship with an older nun. I thought I was the only one," she said.

Curb wrote a book called Lesbian Nuns with another former nun, and discovered many nuns with similar experiences.

Curb left her convent, the Dominican Sisters, seven years after she joined and then married and had a child.

"I didn't know it was possible to have a relationship out of the convent as intense and emotional, so I got married," Curb said. She was divorced five years later but her husband is "still a good friend," she said.

After learning about women's consciousness and lesbians through the feminist movement, Curb said she discovered she was a lesbian.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

Rosemary Curb delivers keynote speech last night for Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week.

Truck will travel to gain support

A 24-foot truck driven by a University of Massachusetts student set out yesterday to gather support in the form of educational materials and money to aid the University of El Salvador.

The truck, driven by Doug Calvin of the New England Central America Network, will travel to more than 10 New England colleges and universities during the next two weeks to gather the materials for the school.

In 1980 more than 800 government soldiers stormed the San Salvador campus, killing students and faculty and setting up a military occupation that lasted until 1984. Calvin said recent violence against the University includes the shooting of a dean.

The aid truck will be at UMass Friday, Calvin said.

CAREER NIGHT
For ENGLISH MAJORS

April 8th 8 p.m.
Campus Center 163

Alumni/ae will return to talk about their jobs — and yours.

For further information
contact English Undergraduate Studies Office
Bartlett 252, 5-0388

Sponsored by:
The Univ. Placement Service
Alumni Office
English Dept.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor — Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager — Conor Plunkett, Production Manager — Elizabeth Young, Business Manager — Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor — Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor — John Yonce, Women's Editor — Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor — Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor — Michelle Segall, Photo Editor — Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor — Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Taxing pains

Rusty Denton

In exactly one week, state and federal tax forms are due. Every year as I look at the amount of income I pay the government, the same question arises; what are they doing will all this money? Between state, federal, and social security deductions, most taxpayers forfeit one quarter to one third of their income.

And that's not all. Most employers have to pay a premium that almost doubles a worker's social security contribution, and have to pay into a federal unemployment fund, even if no worker has ever been fired or laid off. And then they pay corporate income tax. What does the government do with all this money?

I am sure someone will trot out a list–a lengthy one–of all the assistance programs which the government offers. State or federal, it doesn't matter to me; they both take my money away. Which leads to my next question; what business does the government have taking away my income or even my employer's income to fund programs that are basically handouts?

Aside from their minimal effectiveness, I have a lot of beefs with these programs. For one thing, receiving charity is not a constitutional right. For another, the programs are run by bureaucrats who jealously guard their political turf, have few incentives to keep overhead and personnel costs down, and have no real penalties for inefficient or incompetent work. If a public employee is fired, it gets national headlines. One solution might be to contract our program administration to private firms. A better solution would be to dump the programs entirely and give the money back to the taxpayers. Let us do the charity.

The usual justification for social programs is that they help do what people can't do for themselves. Right–like taking out social security because people don't know how to save for their old age? Let's teach them how–it's cheaper! We're making a mistake because we're trying to guarantee a standard of living, forgetting that the American standard of living was first reached without economic experts, price supports, or federal handouts.

Guaranteeing a standard of living makes people lazy. It undermines their self-reliance, it sabotages their mutual dependence in family structures and it reduces the voluntary labor force. Besides that, it costs me money. There's a wonderful biblical directive that says, "He who doesn't work, doesn't eat." Let's recognize the legitimate place of hunger as a motivator.

Don't get me wrong – I'm all for charity (it would be easier if my paycheck had less deductions). But I don't want to subsidize irresponsibility. And I don't want to pay the bill for somebody else's idea of generosity. Let them pay it.

Someone is probably going to say at this point that the military takes the biggest proportion of taxpayer money. Baloney. A government has very few genuine obligations, but protecting its citizens is one of them. Most of that protection pays for itself. Tariffs pay for import/export control. Tolls pay for well-engineered roads. Court systems hand out substantial fines for everything from speeding tickets to pollution. The military is the one protective agency that isn't and shouldn't be a money-maker and needs to be supported, although I'd like to see closer auditing of defense contractors. For those who think the military is such a large drain, I'll pose the question of what it costs us annually to pay the interest on our trillion dollar national debt. Does anybody know? I don't, but I'll bet it's steep. I'll also bet that if all the other baggage were weaned from the federal and state coffers, we could support the military on an income tax of less than five percent, as we did prior to the 1940s. So my question remains; what is the government doing with all that money?

Rusty Denton is a Collegian columnist.

Run over, few regrets

On March 26, the Undergraduate Student Senate chose to approve the results of the SGA presidential elections, according to a recount of the ballots. There was a controversy over this issue as the recount results were quite different from the original count results, with many questions surrounding the discrepancies left unanswered. Also, there were judicial actions being taken against Bill Bennett, the president-elect, Lynne M. Murphy, his supporter and the senate due to alleged violations of the election rules, the Student Code of Conduct, and the democratic process. Many student senators felt that they could overlook these serious questions about the legitimacy of the election outcome in order to quickly get a new president into office. I feel it is unfortunate that the senate feels so comfortable in ignoring the principles of a democratic process, the process that insures proper representation of their constituents, UMass undergraduates.

Of course, I am disappointed that both halves of the Murphy/Burgess ticket did not obtain office, but I have no regrets. My campaign was difficult: sometimes requiring 20 hour workdays, causing me to miss a full month's academics, not allowing me to spend time with my friends and loved ones. But the campaign also gave me the opportunity to meet thousands of UMass students, to hear their concerns, their hopes for the University, and their ideas. This, coupled with the preparation and research I did for the campaign and the office, has given me real insight into students' wishes for their University experience.

I would like to thank all of the students who did support me in the elections and to pledge to all students my continued involvement in the SGA. I plan to continue in my position as assistant to the SGA president and student trustee and to continue to represent student concerns in the senate. I would like to thank all students at UMass for allowing me to run and allowing my ideas to be heard.

(M.) Lynne Murphy Orchard Hill

Hairy situation

Patrick Johnson

Due to the extremely polarized opinions on campus about the situation in Nicaragua, our editorial editor has had his mental facilities worn to a frizzle. With all the contra this and anti-contra that he's been subjected to, I thought it would be nice to write about a subject which would inspire no controversy, which would contain no slanted political statements. I decided, for everyone's sake, to write about my hair.

To say there is nothing controversial about my hair is not quite accurate; my mother has been after me for months to get it cut. Since my last haircut in September, my hair has crept down to my shoulders. She says I look like a hippie; I say so what.

I have this unique understanding with my hair; if it doesn't bother me, I won't bother it. All I ask is that it stays out of my eyes and in return I'll only run a comb through it once a day. This agreement with my hair stems from the Johnson/Hair Treaty of 1982. The non-binding agreement, signed when tensions between my hair and I were at an all-time low, states, "no haircuts, trimmings or styling will be done to the party of the first part [hair] by or with direct consent of the party of the second part [Johnson] if said first party remains above the horizontal line known as "the eyebrows." Any violation of this will give the second party the legal, moral, and ethical right to immediately make ammends for said violation, i.e. a haircut."

It didn't take long for my godless hair to spot a loophole in this treaty. Rather than growing down on my forehead, towards the "Line of Death," my hair reversed direction and started growing off my forehead.

I've tried explaining this to my family but they all say I'm crazy, that I'm spending "too much time at that silly newspaper," which is true, of course. But that isn't the point. My actions are hindered by International Law. I am powerless to take action.

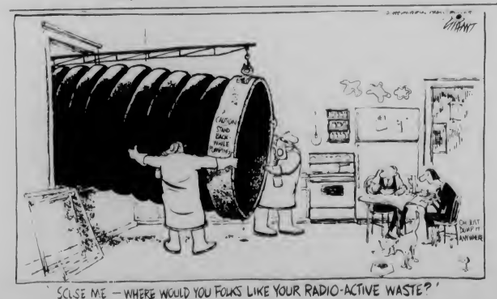
I remember the good old days, before this treaty rigamarole, when I used to get haircuts every four months like everyone else. My barber, when I had a barber, had one of those shops which hasn't changed a bit since 1953. I can see it all so clearly: the picture of President Truman, the table in the waiting area cluttered with back issues of the New York Daily News and Boston Herald. Across from the waiting area were yellowing posters of "Today's popular hairstyles" were bottles of hair tonic which have long since been discontinued. Walt the barber must have bought the stuff by the truck-load when the Russians developed the Bomb.

Every time I went to Walt's for a haircut, we would follow a sort of ritual. After I would sit in the chair, Walt would ask, depending on the time of year and the current temperature, "So is it hot/cold enough for you?"

I would reply, "Oh yeah, sure is."

Walt would then ask, "What will it be today?"

I would say, "A regular haircut."



Remember, this setting was 1953. You could use words like "regular" and "normal" back then without starting a philosophical debate.

All of this used to cost $3.50 per haircut. I never spent more than $12 per year on haircuts. My mother recently tried to convince me to have my hair done by a stylist for the low, low price of only $16. Hearing that, I was in shock.

"But that includes a blow dry," she said.

"No it won't, because I'm not getting a haircut. Do you want me arrested for violating International Law?"

Patrick Johnson is a Collegian staff member who has no intention of cutting his hair in the near future.

Just stop on by for a poster

It is inherent to the nature of MassPIRG to continually strive to educate the students about the issues PIRG works on, which we do in many ways. Currently we are working on a reaffirmation campaign and are using a series of posters as a vehicle to educate. Unfortunately, many of these posters have been removed shortly after they have been put up. We are urging everyone to respect the right of others to have that opportunity to educate themselves on an issue we will all be voting on April 14 and 15.

If you would like any of these posters, there is no need to rip one down. Just stop by the office and we will be happy to give you one.

Janina Braun MassPIRG

They've shown their true colors

Timothy Harris in last week's column exposed his true feelings in the following sentence, "Maybe a more rational response than shouting at contras would be to just shoot them." I think that Harris and his comrades in the Radical Student Union have shown the university community their true stripes.

Brian Darling Southwest

BLACK AFFAIRS

Jarreau makes only N.E. appearance

Al Jarreau, jazz singer and composer, will make his only New England appearance at the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center on Saturday, April 19.

In the decades since his first Warner/Reprise album, We Got By, was released, Jarreau has come in for more praise, well wishes and congratulations than many recently arrived superstars.

Rave reviews and crowds greeted Jarreau everywhere he went on his early 1976 European tour, which included two sold-out weeks at London's Ronnie Scott's Club.

Jarreau's childhood was one filled with music. The Milwaukee native began singing in church before he was old enough to attend school. Later, he handled whatever part was assigned to him in neighborhood street corner vocal groups.

A graduate of Ripon College, Jarreau received his bachelor's degree in psychology and his master's at the University of Iowa. Following six months in the Army Reserve, Jarreau moved to San Francisco, where he was a counselor for three years at the California Division of Rehabitation.

A review in Cashbox magazine said Jarreau is "the most unique, controlled talent to hit the scene this year and perhaps, because he is true original, in many years. Yet he plays no honky keyboards, flashes no metalloid guitar. Those are mere props, Jarreau is an instrument–he plays the most sophisticated jazz available to man: free finesse."

–C. RON ALLEN

Al Jarreau will appear at UMass April 19.

Don't compete with a Kaplan student—be one.

Why? Consider this: More students increase their scores after taking a Kaplan prep course than after taking anything else.
Why? Kaplan's test-taking techniques and educational programs have 50 years of experience behind them. We know students. And we know what helps boost their confidence and scoring potential.
So if you need preparation for the: H.S. ENTRANCE EXAMS, PSAT, SAT, ACT, ACHIEVEMENTS, LSAT, GMAT, MCAT, GRE, DAT, ADVANCED MEDICAL BOARDS, TOEFL, NURSING BOARDS, NTE, CPA, INTRO TO LAW, SPEED READING, or others, call us.
Why be at a disadvantage?

KAPLAN
STANLEY H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER LTD.

Preparing Now
For GMAT, LSAT and GRE
get started early
and complete studies
at 1 of 120 locations nationwide

358 N. Pleasant St.
549-5780

Look What WICKLES Has For You!!!

Thesis Special
7¢ Copies
Acid Free Paper

Resume Package
50 print sheets
50 plain sheets
50 matching envelopes
$13.50
AMHERST STORE ONLY — WITH THIS COUPON

Wickles FinePrint
1 Boltwood Walk
Amherst
256-0148

NOW OPEN SATURDAYS 9 AM - 1 PM

Engaged!
then you'll be thinking about Wedding Stationery. Let Wickles Fine Print show you their exciting collection! Our beautiful line of contemporary wedding stationery will provide you with a wide selection of styles in every price range. Stop and see us for your complete paper trousseau
Invitations • Announcements
Napkins • Matches
Accessories

20% off
your entire
WEDDING ORDER
Invitations • Announcements
Matches • Napkins • Accessories
Hundreds to Choose From!
AMHERST STORE ONLY
WITH THIS COUPON
EXPIRES JUNE 1, 1986
C - coupon per order. Cannot be combined with other coupons

DANCE

A 60's Dance
Saturday April 12, 9pm-1am
Campus Center Room 1009
Admission:$2.00
Sponsored by
Music by D.J. Jim McDee from WMUA
No one under 21 admitted, everyone over 21 welcome

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available
Wednesday
April 16th
Fine Arts Center
Tickets on sale
March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public
at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.
Stevie Ray Vaughan
And
Double Trouble

IT'S MORE THAN A JOB. . .
IT'S THE PULSE OF THE CAMPUS CENTER

The Campus Center - Student Union
BOARD OF GOVERNORS is looking for students to fill the following Coordinator positions for the 86/87 school year

Public Relations • Finance • Building Operations • Special Projects • Space/Econ. Development • Key Functions • Governors Program Council • Vending • Asst. Office Coordinator • Food Services • Display

Work Study and Non Work Study

Applications and More Information are available in the BOG Office - 817 CC
Application Deadline - Monday, April 14, 12 Noon

The BOG is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

TIME BY CUSTOM AUDIO

We are not "too busy" to talk to you about a stereo you will live with, on the average, for the next 9 years.
We are not "too busy" to let you listen to all different components.
We are not "too busy" to carefully explain any or all aspects of home music playback.
People shouldn't rush into purchasing a stereo system because a salesperson is just "too busy" to spend enough time.

AT CUSTOM AUDIO, TIME IS ON YOUR SIDE.

Dealers of:
Adcom, Ariston, Conrad-Johnson, Creek Audio Systems, Denon, Pres Speakers, Stax, and more.
Systems for all budgets.

Open 9 am to 7 pm, Monday thru Saturday
183 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON 586-6277

Dyslexia: Challenges-Success

Guest Speaker:
Dr. Mary Groda Lewis
Her life inspired the 1985 CBS docudrama "Love Mary" with Kristy Mc Nichol

Time: 1:00 p.m.
Date: April 10, 1986
Place: Memorial Hall, U.Mass.

For more information:
Call The Dyslexic Student Organization
Telephone 545-0018

Plumbley's is the Place to be all week
Specials good til April 20

Sundays
3:00 - 9:30
Chicken, Steak and Chocolate Cake!
Sliced London Broil, Roast Chicken, Chocolate Cake and all the fixins $8.95

Monday
All You Can Eat
4:00 - 9:30 Fried Shrimp and Fried Chicken
Served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
$9.95

Tuesday
All You Can Eat
4:00 - 9:30 Roast Sirloin and Fried Chicken
Also served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
$9.95

Wednesday
UMass & Smith College
Student, Staff & Faculty Special
4:00 - 6:00
• Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
• Sliced London Broil
• Tempura Fried Filet of Sole
All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter. Just show your I.D. and enjoy.
$5.95

Thursday
Amherst College, Hampshire College and Mount Holyoke
Student, Staff & Faculty Special
4:00 - 6:00
• Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
• Sliced London Broil
• Tempura Fried Filet of Sole
All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter.
Just show your I.D. and enjoy
$5.95

Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

Blues singer Koko Taylor will perform two shows at 7 and 10 p.m. tonight at the Iron Horse in Northampton. Her live shows have been described as "All-out, damn-the-torpedoes performances performances," and this show should be no exception.

ARTS

Film footage is a jazz fans' dream

By GLENN SIEGEL
Collegian Correspondent

A tired looking, but unbroken Billie Holiday was in a recording studio in 1967 with an all-star group featuring Coleman Hawkins, Ben Webster, Roy Eldridge and her favorite, Lester Young. The two, who had been close even before they were members of Count Basie's 1937 band, were estranged and had not seen each other in several years. In one especially poignant moment during their performance of "Fine and Mellow," we watch Holiday's look of contentment spread as she listens to the restrained passion of Young's saxophone solo.

How had I come to see and know all this?

I was one of 50 (very fortunate) individuals who attended Sunday's screening of rare jazz films from the vaults of David Chertok. The event kicked-off the 15th Annual Black Musician's Conference at the University.

From his vast collection (400-500 hours of film), Chertok selected 80 minutes of music, highlighted by the Miles Davis Quintet (with John Coltrane), in a 1959 performance of "So What?"

Stirring in a different way was a Newport Jazz Festival appearance by the late alto saxophonist, Julian "Cannonball" Adderley. The Campus Center audience was vocal in its approval of his lightening solo in "Delsasser."

A dance member from the 1941 movie, "Hellzapoppin'" was a true revelation. In it we saw why the Lindy Hop has been called "the most frenzied, exciting and controversial social dance that the United States has ever seen." Albert Minns and the other dancers whip, spin, lift and throw each other in ways that give new meaning to the term "breakneck tempo."

For jazz fans, who must usually content themselves with disembodied recordings and photographs of past greats, the opportunity to see people like Lucky Thompson, Rex Stewart and Thelonious Monk get up and play is a dream and an education.

Much of that education was provided by Chertok's associate, Burril Crohn, who ably substituted for the ailing film archivist.

100 minutes prove the Doctor is in

Dr. John has gone through a lot of changes in his career from the night tripper when he played in costume with a full band and headdress to now when he plays unaccompanied piano. But throughout he has remained true to the New Orleans music where his roots lie.

Friday night at the Iron Horse in Northampton, the Doctor ran through about a hundred minutes of New Orleans piano tunes including "Aiko-Aiko," "Stagger Lee" and "Tipitina." A student of Professor Longhair, Dr. John played the left hand rolls under the right hand boogie on the piano and in the true spirit of the Professor through in a little whistling.

Among the other songs he played, Dr. John included his hits "Right Place, Wrong Time" and "Such a Night," which he sings in the Band's film: The Last Waltz. Not a talkative type on stage, the Doctor invited the audience to send requests up on paper napkins, and they did. The show ended with a sing along of "Rockin' Pheumonia," and "Don't You Just Know It."

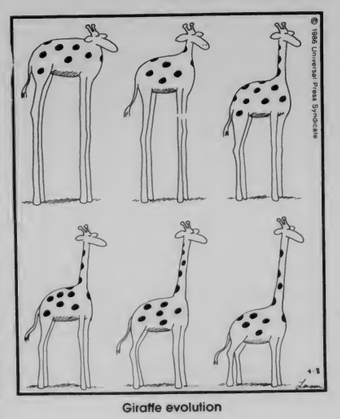
In sum the show was a lot of fun; the Doctor is clearly in.

– PETER WISSOKER

Writing a Paper?
Need Help?
THE WRITING CENTER
Pierpont in Southwest,
Mon and Thurs 7 - 9
B24 Baker in Central,
Tues and Thurs 7 - 9, Wed 1 - 3, 7 - 9
04 Cashin in Sylvan,
Mon and Wed 7 - 9
* Bartlett 103 Wed, 7 - 9
* New Location

let us do your wash-dry-fold and hand pressing
SPEEDWASH
10 5 PM MON-SAT
SELF SERVICE
7 DAYS 7AM 10 PM
549-1665
Quality Laundry
11 Pray St
Amherst, MA

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!
TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX HAS BEGUN TO RETURN UNSOLD SPRING COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS
DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK – YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!
TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS
MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.
the UNIVERSITY STORE's TEXTBOOK ANNEX
@ physical plant bldg



The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash only 6 ticket limit
Tickets on sale at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

Giraffe evolution

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

HOUSEMATES
BY R. MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Peru's capital
5 Rely with 'on'
9 Strong point
14 Maspicker et al
15 Remove the wrinkles
16 "From the Terrace" author
17 Fade away
18 Position of ease
20 Fuddy-duddy
22 Did the crawl
23 Favorite
24 Go it alone
26 Ginger treat
28 Sure thing!
32 In a fluent way
36 TV science program
37 Rain covers, for short
39 Pennsylvania port
40 Angers
41 One side in a debate
42 Town in Galilee
43 Goldfish, for one
44 Twelfth Night role
46 For — and a day
47 Lure
49 Garbage-can bandits
51 Clapton or Carmen
53 Certain fiddler's place
54 GIA's forerunner
57 Dear me!
59 Find
63 Thing easily done
66 In — (with problems)
67 Shirley Booth TV role
68 Entranced
69 Hindu goddess
70 Native of Stockholm
71 Novelist and film critic James
72 Way out

DOWN
1 Weatherman's word
2 Mideast country
3 Cafe carte
4 Not at all difficult
5 Trinket
6 "How — you?
7 Dozes
8 Is sure of
9 Dress-up dress
10 Exclamation of surprise
11 Grate
12 Aspen or alamo
13 Orient
19 Snake's weapons
21 Hot or curtain follower
25 Giraffe's relative
27 Breeze
28 In abeyance
29 Moslem sacred book
30 Turn inside out
31 Fielding flub
33 "Rio —" John Wayne hit
34 Tablecloths
35 Time periods
36 Kind of bear
44 Conceals
45 Attendant
48 Baby's bed
50 Bill's partner
52 Director Frank
54 Name in publishing annals
55 Heartbreak House playwright
58 Bigness
59 Some lava
60 Warrior of Greek myth
61 Ankles
62 Issue
64 Was ahead
65 Copy

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	A	M	P		B	L	A	N	C		B	L	A	S
A	B	E	R		S	E	L	A	H		R	A	T	E
S	O	T	O		M	A	I	N	E		A	K	E	R
P	U	R	P	L	E	H	E	A	R	T	S
		S	E	E	A				R	A	S	S	L	E
		L	I	G		E	M	Y	S		H	A	L
S	E	L	L	E	R		M	U	C	K	S	A	C	K
C	L	I	O		E	R	A	T	O		E	P	E	E
R	E	O	R	D	E	R	S		A	B	N	E	R	S
I	N	N		I	N	R	I		A	D
P	A	S	S	E	S				T	S	A	R
		O	U	T	O	F	T	H	E	B	L	U	E
A	M	A	N		O	L	L	I	E		A	L	L	A
T	O	W	N		A	D	A	M		C	E	S
A	B	L	Y		E	N	G	E	L		K	E	R	T

4/8/86

MENU

Lunch
Cheeseburger
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

Basics Lunch
Bean Burgers
Spinach and Mushroom Quiche

Dinner
Spanish Rice and Beef
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce

Basics Dinner
Brazilian Rice Casserole
Roast Turkey/Bread Dressing, Gravy, Cranberry Sauce

Weather

TODAY: Partly cloudy with a chance of showers, high in the upper 50s to mid 60s.

TONIGHT: Partial clearing and cooler, low 35 to 40.

TOMORROW: Mostly sunny in the morning, partly cloudy in the afternoon, with highs in the 50s.

Staff Notice

ALL COLLEGIAN STAFF MEMBERS
MANDATORY
STAFF MEETING
Wednesday, 8:15 p.m., newsroom Topics:
ELECTIONS, PARTIES

Brought to you by

Night Editor Andrew Wolff
Copy Editor Sheryl Jean
Layout Technician Conor Plunkett
Photo Technician Brian Guarnotta
Production Supervisor Conor Plunkett
Production: Matt Laurence, Nancy Klingener, William Wenzel, Leslie Nakajima, Adam Lavine, Mike Congo the Mad Driver!!!!

DUAL ENTERTAINMENT - Tonight, Tuesday 4/8

9:00 to 11:30 — ROCK Top 40 UMass Band TOCK with Michael Aderson, Steve Albee, Julie White, Andy Pazmany, Bobby DiBacco, Phil Markella

11:30 to 1:00 — Frank Santos

AT CHANGES dance club

Free Sodas After Midnight and All Night for Designated Drivers
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284

We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!

Styles by Deborah

Coupon Specials

★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00

please call for an appointment

• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

Anyone Interested in joining the

UMASS MINUTES

UMass' Kickline - Dance Team
Info Session (mandatory)
Thursday, April 10, 6:30 pm, 12th floor Coolidge
Practice for Tryouts
Mon April 14, Wed April 16 and Thurs April 17 at 7 pm
Tryouts
Wednesday April 23 at 7 pm
NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY
For More Info Call 546-8015

COLLEGE PIZZA

TEL 549-6073 — LOW PRICE — TEL 549-6098

Ask For The SPECIAL

LARGE ONE ITEM PIZZA + 4 CANS OF COKE $8.50

SMALL ONE ITEM PIZZA + 2 CANS OF COKE $4.75

We make the BEST pizza in town at the LOWEST prices! BAKED with dough made fresh daily NOT frozen. Served with CANS of soda NOT cups.

FAST, FREE DELIVERY

EVERY WEDNESDAY SPECIAL
Large Pizza $4.90 Medium Pizza $2.50
Pick up or to stay only

LOCATED AT PATTERSON CORNER OF SOUTHWEST
Expires May 22, 1986 no coupons with special

NEWLY RENOVATED

WORCESTER SNACK BAR

OPEN
7 AM to 4 PM

Full Breakfasts, Sandwiches, Fresh Baked Pastries, Hot & Cold Beverages Hot Lunches, Salads, Ice Cream, Lunch Box Express

and

Play the Midway Game & win a 16 oz. COKE
Daily Specials
Play the Video Games

CALL US - 545-0706

ORDER YOUR 1986 YEARBOOK NOW!

To receive your copy of the 1986 INDEX please fill out the coupon below and send it, with a check or money order for $18.00, to:

INDEX, 103 Campus Center

Due to a contractual agreement, students who do not order an INDEX will not receive a copy when the books are sent to campus in the fall.
Books will be mailed to SENIORS ONLY, who include a permanent address on the coupon.

Send to: INDEX, 103 Campus Center
Name _____ Year
Local Address _____
Permanent Address (seniors only) _____
_____
I.D.# _____ Date _____

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN 6 AM - 3 AM SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

BLUNA'S
• TONIGHT Battle of the Bands with Fall Out, Art in Motion, Barb Wyre, & Project Adventure. Come cheer on your favorite band!
• WEDNESDAY: Aerobics High Energy, Top 40 sounds!
• THURSDAY: Take 3 Top 40 Band
• THURSDAY and FRIDAY: Oui Bands begin at 9:00 pm
Open Daily 5:00 pm - 1:00 am
18-20 YEAR OLDS:
come enjoy juice bar & entertainment
Rte. 9 Hadley 586-4463

UMass weekend wrap-up

It was a busy weekend for UMass sports with a variety of events taking place.

The men's golf team took second in a quad-match at Oak Ridge, to Connecticut. Joe Petrin was low for UM with a 78, for third.

The men's track team lost to Dartmouth, 105-55, but beat New Hampshire 55-39 in a tri-meet. Rawle Crichlow won the 100 in 10.8, Mark Themea took the 800 in 1:53.9, Ferdie Adobow won the triple jump with a 47-2, the 200 went to Crichlow in 22.5 while Rod Malcom took the high jump with a 6-2 leap.

Finally, senior John Panaccione took the 5,00 with a 14:34.2.

In women's track, the Minutewomen were at the Yale Invites. The 4 x 100 relay team set a school record with a 48.31 for Cari Fleischmann, Wendy Marshall, Pam Hughes and Kayla Morrison. Hughes won the 200 in 25.46 with Morrison second. Carla DeSantis won the javelin with a 147 foot toss. The 4 x 440 relay team was third.

In men's volleyball, the Minutemen beat Amherst on Friday to take the Western Division of the New England League. Sunday, they won a B tournament in Springfield.

The UMass crew teams, at Wesleyan, had some good efforts. The varsity women were second to Wesleyan, the novice women won with a 6:20 over 2,00 meters, the varsity men were second to Wesleyan and the junior varsity men took first, edging Rhode Island.

"The jayvee's had a great race," said UMass coach Dave Kumlin.

In the varsity fours, UMass was second in a tight race while the novice men A's were third.

WHERE HILLS TURN TO MOUNTAINS

Why conquer hills when you can challenge a mountain. Just over the border is Mount Snow with 12 lifts (1 gondola, 5 triple chairs, 6 double chairs), 57 trails, 1700 feet of vertical and 80% snowmaking.

THE SHORTEST DRIVE TO BIG MOUNTAIN SKIING LOCATED IN EASY TO REACH SOUTHERN VERMONT ON VT. 100

LODGING (802)464-8501
SKI REPORT (802)464-2151

Why does Mount Snow always have the most spring skiing in southern Vermont? Because we make the most snow. 32 trails are still open. Challenge some of the steepest in the east or enjoy a 2½ mile novice run from the summit. Base depths still up to 8 feet deep. 2 day/1 night package for only $58. 802-464-8501. We've got the snow, let yourself go!

Mount Snow VERMONT

KENYA SAFARI
Tailored to fit your budget.
Visit our stand at International Students Fair
April 12th
Sat. CCA
PEGASUS
International Tours & Travel
228 Triangle Street
Amherst, Mass 01002
549-5664 549-7116

IBM-PC* COMPATIBLE

$1500
10 MEGABYTE
(w/single Floppy)
• 150 watt power supply
• 256 K memory (upgrade to 640K available)
• Hi-res green or amber monitor
• Parallel printer port
• Keyboard: AT or XT style
• Hi-resolution Hercules emulation board
Dual Floppy System only $1050
* Trademark of International Business Machines
promptWorks
Northfield, MA (413) 498-2724

Great Daily Specials!
All Day! Every Day!

TACO VILLA
...Offering Quality Mexican Foods
NORTHAMPTON 21 CENTER ST. 586-9611 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST 41 BOLTWOOD WALK 256-0220 Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD 761 SUMNER AVE 736-0113 Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8 45 3 45 Mon Thurs, 8 45 2 30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACTIVITIES

West Lecture: Dr. Hartmut Lang "Current West German Domestic Problems" Tuesday April 8, 1986 11:00 AM 168C Campus Center

Free Student Publicity Manual for all who attend seminar on audiovisual broadcasting publicity April 8, 7:00 PM Campus Center 811 refreshments served

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

1977 Datsun Truck well maintained solid bed, full cap, runs great, $900 or best offer call eves, Mike 256-8788

74 BMW 2002, red. California car. Restored. 6,350 obo 538-4127 or 538-2696

1983 Toyota Tercel four door hatchback automatic AM/FM cassette, good condition, 37,000 mi. Asking $4000 call Sue or Steve, eves 323-4855

1975 Chevy Vega GT good condition needs some work 500 or BO call 549-7578 after 9

77 VW Rabbit, brown, A/T runs well, great stereo, $1300. 584-8736

1976 Maverick runs $350 or BO call John 584-5173

1972 VW Karmann Ghia good condition many new parts $2700 or BO call Bill 584-5173

1967 Volvo 122 VGC beautiful classic 23-27 mpg, $1700 o BO 3-7-2174 or 545-2750 Renee

70 Cutlass Conv, new top, duel exhaust, shocks, springs, radials all around, needs timing chain & motor body work $500 256-0072 eves

BANDS WANTED

Central Area's Spring Fling '86! Bands wanted for benefit concert for Massasoit. All interested groups call anytime by April 9th. Concert will be April 25th. Call 546-6402 or 546-6406

BICYCLES

Univega Gran Premino 23.5 in, blue, racing/high pref touring, great cond, extras, $650 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DANCE WITH JERY LEWIS!!

April 12th and 13th in the Cage. Hear Modern Plaidz. Circle, and Good Speed rhythi, & blues. See a video light show from Rack A-Video. All this plus T-shirts, food, prizes and fun.. Fight MDA. midnight to noon in the Cage! Ten dollar minimum sponsorship

DODGE VAN

1975 Dodge Van 77,000 mi, runs well $600 or BO call 549-2739

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jock, Kool party tunes at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste. Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6945

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc Jockeys Light Shows; Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. - 2 a.m. Everyday, anywhere on campus. Play it safe, call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach. call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st, bus stop in front Tracey 256-1807

Need temporary housing? Apts in Brittany Manor open now Rent low 400 rent from leaseholder. Lease on apts run through June call 549-4714

Must See large 2 bedroom 2 bath recently redone apt, air conditioning & extras. Available June 1st call after 6 pm. 665-8766

Sublet summer and it's yours in the fall renovated Brit Manor apt - new carpet and bathroom 256-1232

2 bedroom starting June. Cliffside $410/month inclusive. Fall option nice apt. on woods edge! 665-3262

Rent or sublet, Southwood, 1 bedroom, very cheap, room for 3 people, 256-6679

A stones throw from campus 4 bedroom house summer sublet fall option call 549-4368

Sunny, spacious apt in Rolling Green for summer sublet, four rms available at $100, w/peas fall option, call 256-6837

2 bedrooms available in Riverglade for summer with fall option 253-5140

Need an apartment? Great place in Crestview Close to campus. Take lease over June 1. Call 549-3815

3 bedroom in 5 bedroom house for rent, 5 minute walk to SOM. June 1st onwards. Call 549-4575. Keep trying

Want to live at Hampton Beach, NH this summer? Cheap, close to beach, Call 546-7693

FOR SALE

Mistral Maui sailboard for sale 350 or BO call 256-6978

Pentas Spotmatic Camera 2 lenses $65.00 256-8484

Camera - Olympus OM-1 SLR with 50 mm F1.8, leather case, skylight and close up filters, 2X converter, tripod, all in great condition. $225. or best offer 665-8275

Stereo - Nikko NR-1000 receiver, 70 wpc Vector Research VT-150 turntable, QL-DD, FA, Celestion CS-5 3-way speakers. Cost over $1100 new, asking $695 or best offer. Great condition. 665-8275

For Sale sleep-sofa and chair $80 or BO other items too call 665-7156

Apple Computer great deal! 700 or BO Tim at 546-9592

Guitars: Gibson classical, $350. Epiphone acoustic, $150. Both excellent. 367-2174 or 545-2750. Renee

HELP WANTED

COUNSELORS - Private co-ed camp in Berkshires has openings for head and assistant instructors in: softball, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, archery, video/film making, photography, horseback riding assistant, hiking/backpacking, waterskiing, computers, waterfront (WSI), bunk counselors, and bunk unit heads. Good salaries - friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Krouner Camp Schodack 54 Sheffield Road, Newtonville, MA 02160 (617) 964-1912, days 9-6

Bring your brains and enthusiasm to... The BOG for job jobs job!!! Eleven motivated people are wanted for the 86/87 school year apply now in 817 Campus Center deadline Monday April 14 at high noon The Board of Governors it an AA/EOE and are we proud of it!

Jewish Community of Amherst looking for Sunday School and Hebrew teachers for September 1986. Also Music teacher needed. Experience with children preferred. Call 549-0223 for application

College Pro Painters
we hire early
• for good summer painters $5-7/hr
• The Organized Students
• 800-424-2468

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semester. Ad attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary, training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

LOST

Black tweed wool gloves lost Thurs night, march 13 in the Fub call Karen 546-1027

Vicinity Amherst Woods 3½ year minature collie male named Fraser last seen Shays and Wentworth call 253-2963

MOTORCYCLES

1976 Yamaha SX650 under 12,000 miles. New battery! Best offer. Call Gary 256-1557 keep trying

1982 Kawasaki KZ550 new battery, 8,00 miles, black & red, very fast, runs great, $1,000 or BO Dan 546-4773

82 Honda 650 Nighthawk exc cond low miles with helmets call Dave 549-7882

81 Honda Custom 400 12k mi very clean condition, ready to drive, asking $600, call Rafael 256-8709

1975 Honda CB360T good condition, runs well needs battery Bob 546-1447

PERSONALS

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11. Call 545-2874 for an appointment

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 pm and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amh-rst, and Main St. Records in Northampton.

The egotistical mouthings of certain impressive people leave lower life forms wondering why they bother to do their work at all. It can't be for the money.

Nomination Papers now available for Southwest Area Government President, Vice-President, and Treasurer in the SWAG Office in Hampden. Completed nomination papers are due Monday, April 14, 1986 at 5:00 pm in the SWAG Office

Paula Connor: Happy 22nd Birthday! Get psyched to RAGE with the J-Girls! Last crusaay B-day at the Zoo! We'll make it a week long celebration! Less than 7 weeks left! Love, Mary & Amy

Congratulations to Matt, Matt, Sean, Paul, Andy, and John. Get set to become Brothers! From the Brothers of Kappa Kappa Psi

Concert Security volunteers needed to work security for the Southwest Concert. Sign up in the Southwest Area Government Office in Hampden, or call 5-0960.
Mandatory 1st Meeting:
Thursday, April 10th, 5:00 pm
Hampden Southside Room, Southwest

Nerfbum (MJ), Someone loves you, me

Homely boy desperately seeking female companionship. Don't get discouraged, it's not the size of the ship, it's the motion of the ocean. Please call Dave at 6-5071

Rebakah Congratulations on your performance at the show love Bill

Dear Ruth, may every day grow brighter as you grow prettier with every minute Happy Birthday! Love Henry T.

Bob and Jeana - Wh- is gon? FISH! But RUSH is number one Marla

Debbie at Worcester D.C. We met at dinner on Thurs. and I've been thinking about you since. Call me Steve 6-6932

Stevie and Freeahbuhn, Who loves ya baby? Yeah just a thought to perk you up to my level leis menage lets not. Don't be caught short. Love (?) Annie Tex Oakley

John I touch you once, I touch you twice, I won't let go at any price. Love, Cath

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 546-1262 after 9 pm

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

One female needed for fall 1986 only Brandywine evening 549-7717 Sharyn

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lisa 549-1428

Brandywine - seeking young couple to cabre apt, nonsmokers only. call eves 549-1813 or 546-7076

Jewish roommate wanted to share 2 bedroom apt in Colonial Vlg. Will have own furnished bedroom. Lease starts June 1. Will sublet over summer. $172/mo. call David 253-2965

2 roommates wanted to share bedroom in Brittany Manor apts. Heat and hot water included. Lease begins in Sept 86. Call 256-8438

Female roommate(s) needed for sumemr on Cape Cod call karen 542-3077

Female non-smoking roommate needed to share two bedroom Brandywine apt for fall & spring call Michelle 546-9664 or Richie 549-1548 after 7 pm

To share Brittany Manor Apt. Available now. ONE MONTH FREE. Call Ken, Reth, Steve 253-7312, Dave 665-4131

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHANN's at Mall, 584-9362

Perfectionist Typing on computer - letter-quality. 25% off first job. call 549-6178

SUMMER SUBLET

Two bedroom apt in Colonial Vlg is available for summer. Fully furnished, on bus route, $245/mo. Call David 253-2965

On Amity Place luxury condo 2 bedroom back patio AC 450 inclusive per month call Lisa 549-0947

Summer sublet Puffton apts price negotiable call Susan 549-5088 Heather 546-4010

June-August $400 inclusive. One bdrm in 4 bdrm apt. Clean & pleasant. On bus route, close to campus. Fall option. Call Mary 256-0045 7:30-10:30 am

BRANDYWINE APT for summer sublet Call 546-8968 or 546-8970

Two bedroom apt in Colonial June first, possible fall/sp. furnished bus route pool call Jay 8-11 pm 256-0943

TO SUBLET

Sublet/rs needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-0675

To sublet with fall option sunny spacious 2 bedroom apt Downtown Amherst keep trying 253-7816

Summer sublet; spacious, sunny, cool apt ideally located between campus and town call 256-8402

Sumemr sublet two bdrm apt in Rolling Green call Mark at 256-0952 evenings

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86. $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5010

Responsible men seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house next fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

Apartment in North Amherst call 665-2176

Single room needed for fall in a house or apartment, will sign lease 256-1662

Reward for lease of 3 or 4 bedroom apt in Noho or Amherst (walking distance to campus) for fall '86, will consider summer as well. Call even 546-6928

We will pay cash for an apartment in Brandywine call 256-0661

$100 reward for empty lease in Brandywine or Puffton Call 546-5324

Looking for lease in Colonial Village take over forfall 86 or sooner call Scott 546-6324 or Chris 546-8595

SPORTS

Collegian photo by Michelle Segail

Bunny Forbes, UM's second-leading scorer, and the Gazelles host Boston College at NOPE today at 3 p.m.

Women's lax hosting BC

Gazelles on an offensive roll

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

If the first three games are any indication as to how well a team will perform for the remainder of the season, then Pam Hixon can count on a national championship and a case of champagne to celebrate the NCAA title with right now.

Fresh from a 20-3 humiliation of Division II Springfield College, Hixon's tenth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team hosts unranked Boston College, today at 3 p.m. at NOPE Field, hoping to continue its offensive asault on opposing goaltenders.

"If we can keep scoring in double figures then I would say we would have a good chance of winning it all," said Hixon, who cautioned that because the season is still young its difficult to predict how well any team will perform.

However, no one cany deny the explosive offensive attack the unbeaten Gazelles have unleashed in its three victories (Boston University, 11-5, Yale, 14-10, and Springfield, 20-3). Averaging 15 goals-per-game, the Gazelles outshot the Chiefs by an astonishing 47-10 count with senior attackman Bunny Forbes leading the way with six goals and junior attackman Lisa Griswold netting five.

Outscoring its opponents 45-18, UMass has gotten scoring from seven different players but has relied on the production of both Griswold and Forbes for the majority of its scoring.

If Hixon's troops are going to make a legitimate run at the national championship, the Gazelles are going to have to work additional players into the offensive scheme.

"I would like to see younger players get more action," Hixon said.

"That's something you have to think about because should Bunny (Forbes), Lisa (Griswold) or someone else get hurt, some of the younger players are going to have to do the job," noted the coach.

Gazelle Grapevine: This season's scoring race is as follows: Griswold (15 goals, 5 assists, 20 points), Forbes (12-7-19), sophomore attackman Ginny Armstrong (8-0-8), senior faceoff and attackman Mary Scott (5-3-8), freshman attackman Cathy Fuhrman (4-2-6), junior attackman Becky Bekampis (1-1-2) and freshman Adrienne Recla (0-1-1).

The youthful UMass defense shutout Springfield in the second half while the offense ran wild scoring 11 goals. . . goalkeepers Pam Stone, a sophomore transfer from the University of Vermont, and Ann Scileppi, a freshman, have combined to hold opponents to 6.0 gpg.

Scileppi, seeing her first action of the season against Springfield, held the visitors scoreless in the second half. . . Hixon knows not to celebrate the team's early-season success, saying that the team's three unranked opponents haven't provided the Gazelles with national caliber competition.

Scott, with help from sophomore attackman Amy Robertson, has been unbeatable in the faceoff department. Against Springfield, Scott and Robertson combined to win 20 of 24 faceoffs. . . Hixon indicated that there may be a few changes in the defensive lineup for today's game but said that such changes, should they occur, would be contingent on how well certain players performed in practice.

Upcoming games: The Gazelles play at Harvard on Thursday and at Northeastern on Saturday.

High-flying UM softball at URI...

Six-game win streak on line

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

If the name of the game is pitching, the University of Massachusetts softball team's pitching staff has matters well in hand.

The Minutewomen (17-3 on the season and ranked 20th in the nation) take their six game winning streak on the road to face the University of Rhode Island in a doubleheader, today, at Kingston.

UMass will be without the services of senior catcher Beth Talbott, who will miss today's game and Thursday's doubleheader against the University of Hartford due to a hyper-extended elbow suffered at Adelphi. Talbott will be missed, as she leads the team in slugging percentage (.603) and extra base hits (10).

But with the way the Minutewomen are pitching this season, coach Elaine Sortino's four aces will more than likely find a way to cover for Talbott's absence.

In the last six games, the UMass staff consisting of senior Lynn Stockley, sophomore Lisa Rever, senior Cathy Reed, and freshman Chris Wanner has compiled some very impressive numbers. In consecutive doubleheader victories over Providence, Holy Cross, and most recently, highly touted Adelphi, the Minutewomen tossed six shutouts and lowered their season earned run average to 0.46.

In addition, UM pitching has claimed 122 batters to strikeouts compared to 39 walks, and has given up only four extra-base hits. The UMass lumber crew has croaked opposing pitching for 35 extra-base hits, 24 of those by way of triples.

The pleasant surprise thus far has been the pitching of Wanner. The freshman righthander has come in and slammed the door on several occasions for the Minutewomen this season with near flawless late inning releif. Wanner has an ERA of 0.84 with opposing hitters batting a stiff .065 against her. Wanner combined with Rever to throw a no-hitter against Holy Cross last week.

Stockley (8-1) leads the staff with an ERA of 0.25 with 57 strikeouts. She has six complete games to her credit ,five of which have been shutouts, and has allowed a mere two runs over 55 innings. Rever (7-2) is next with a 0.56 ERA with 59 K's over 62.7 innings and five blankings as well. Reed, who hasn't taken the mound since her 5-1 over Wisconsin-Green Bay in Florida, is 2-0 with a 0.58 ERA.

...while baseball tries again

By BRYAN QUENZEL
Collegian Staff

If at first you don't succeed. . .

This should be the motto for the University of Massachusetts baseball team as the Minutemen try for their second victory of the season in 15 games, hosting Holy Cross this afternoon at 3 p.m. on Earl Lorden Field.

Massachusetts (1-14, 0-5 in A-10) has lost eight games in a row and realistically can forget about its pre-season goals. The Minutemen must now find other reasons to play.

"We have to play for pride in ourselves and try to win each game," said UMass manager Dick Bergquist. "We have to come together and still have pride. Try to look like a team."

In his 20 years has head coach at UMass, this has been the hardest for Bergquist to figure.

"It's the strangest and most confusing experience I've had in my years of coaching," said Bergquist. "We have more talent than we've shown on the field. It really is a mystery why they have performed this way."

The Minutemen have been plagued with a porous defense that has commited 45 errors in 14 games. Unfortunately, Bergquist does not have a lot to work with when considering changes.

"There are not a lot of changes I can make," said the coach. "I've tried most everything already, a variety of combinations. I have to go with what we have."

Co-captain Bob Kostro (0-2, 5.09 ERA) will be on the mound for the Minutemen this afternoon. The senior has been a disappointment for most of the season, but had a good outing in Saturday's 8-4 loss to St. Joseph's giving up two unearned runs in three innings of work.

Gorillas now 11th in poll

As expected, the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team lost some ground in the weekly national poll, slumping from ninth to 11th after a 1-1 week.

UMass' 11-6 loss at Cornell last Wednesday did the Gorillas damage in the poll. A 15-7 victory against New Hampshire on Saturday at Boyden helped some, but not enough to keep UM in the top 10.

"It doesn't bother me, as long as we're in range," said UM coach Dick Garber. "I'm happy with the way things have gone."

Syracuse unseated Maryland for the top spot in the poll, gathering five first-place votes. The Terps lost their first game of the season Sunday, 8-7 in overtime to Virginia. That game isn't supposed to count for the weekly poll, but several voters knew and took that into account.

Harvard, UMass' opponent on April 23 at Boyden, climbed into 10th place, 11 points ahead of Umass.

Garber wasn't able to get his vote in, along with Brown's Dom Starsia, and only 10 votes were counted.

The poll: 1. Syracuse (7-1), 2. Maryland (6-0), 3. Johns Hopkins (5-1), 4. Navy (8-0), 5. Rutgers (5-1), 6. North Carolina (5-2), 7. Virginia (3-2), 8. C.W. Post (5-2), 9. Duke (10-1), 10. Harvard (3-1), 11. UMass (3-1), 12. Maryland-Baltimore County (3-4), 12. Loyola (3-2) (tied with UMBC), 14. Army (3-3) 15. Adelphi (3-2).

—PETER ABRAHAM

Sports at a Glance

Today:

Baseball: Holy Cross, Lorden Field, 3 p.m.

Women's Lacrosse: Boston College, NOPE Field, 3 p.m.

Men's Tennis: Holy Cross, Boyden Courts, 3 p.m.

Softball: at Rhode Island, 2 p.m.

Regents: No tuition hike next year

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

WESTFIELD – The Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education yesterday voted not to raise state undergraduate tuitions for fiscal year 1987.

"You're off the hook for another year," said Regent Mary Lou Anderson.

Tuition at the University of Massachusetts–Amherst has risen steadily for the past decade. From 1984–85 to 1985–86 it was hiked $88, or 7.2 percent, for undergraduates from Massachusetts and $288 for those from out of state.

In 1986–87, tuition will remain at $1,296 for residents and $4,320 for non–residents.

However, costs will still increase an average of $226 for on–campus students and $69 for those off campus, following a UMass Board of Trustees decision last Wednesday to raise fees for health services, athletics, room and board and the Fine Arts Center.

Joseph Finnegan, interim chancellor of the Board of Regents, said community college, state college and university tuition increases were discussed in committee for three months before yesterday's vote.

Peter Mitchell, vice chancellor for planning and resource development, said tuitions were not raised "because of uncertainties over [the] Gramm–Rudman [deficit–reduction law] and particulary the perception that access to public education will be lessened in the future."

The regents did vote to raise the in–state graduate tuition at Southeastern Massachusetts University $60 to $1,260.

Finnegan also said Gov. Michael S. Dukakis will appoint the first student member to the Board of Regents this month from three community college student candidates.

The names of the candidates, from Bristol, North Shore and Roxbury community colleges, were submitted to Dukakis April 1 by the Student Advisory Committee to the regents, according to Dani Burgess, UMass student trustee.

Burgess is vice–chairman of the advisory commitee.

The student regent will sit on the regents' Affirmative Action, Personnel and Labor Relations Committee, a spokeswoman for the board said.

"A student regent will have the legitimacy to be involved in the collective bargaining process statewide," Burgess said. "Currently, student communication to the regents has inherent limitations."

The affirmative action committee chairman, Gerard Doherty, agreed: "It's high time we had a student on the board. We have 205,000 students in the state system. The appointment will provide a new perspective to the board."

The student regent's one–year term will begin May 1.

State legislation passed last December mandates that student regent appointments, recommended by the advisory committee, will alternate from community colleges, state colleges and state universities in a three–year cycle.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 46

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1986

INSIDE

•Car bomb kills 10 in Lebanon. Page 2.
•Gay, Lesbian Week continues. Pages 3 and 4.
•A personal comment on investigative reporting. Page 7.

Collegain photo by Paul Desmarais

SOME DO, SOME DOZE – Junior finance major Tracy Janne works on her tan and catches up on her studies, while Jay Johnstone, a senior psychology major, uses the afternoon warmth for "other" purposes at their home on Main St. in Amherst.

Legal office review starts, is questioned

By ANDREW WOLFF
Collegian Staff

A private legal consultant began his review of the Legal Services Office yesterday amid charges the review may be slanted toward administrators in their alleged effort to revoke the office's right to sue the University on behalf of students.

However, the consultant, George Shur, general counsel to the University of Northern Illinois, said his conclusion after two and a half days of meetings with officials and students will be fair.

Meanwhile, Charles J. DiMare, LSO director, said the meeting agenda Shur is following lacks sufficient time set aside for talks with student leaders and with his staff. DiMare has also said the administrators with whom Shur will be meeting have been named as defendants in lawsuits filed by students represented by LSO, but are not key to Shur's investigation.

"We have systematically built in a good deal of input," Dennis L. Madson, vice chancellor for student affairs, said yesterday. "We have tried to design an honest, comprehensive review."

The purpose of the review, according to officials involved in the case, is to examine the mission of the LSO and whether the chain of command DiMare must follow is effective.

Currently, DiMare must report to the director of student activities, who is under Madson's direct supervision. DiMare has said this inhibits the LSO's ability to represent students adequately in cases against the University and its officials, because administrators often named as defendants, such as the director of public safety and dean of students, also report to Madson.

DiMare said 20 percent of approximately 200,000 cases the office handles annually involve the University as a defendant.

"It is much more preferable for me to report with staff officials in [Chancellor Joseph D.] Duffey's office or with the provost," DiMare said. "That's one way to resolve it. The other way is to take the power to sue away. I say students are not willing to concede the power to sue."

Madson and Duffey selected Shur after a lengthy search, Madson said. DiMare and David Valade, chairman of the LSO Governing Board, Monday said they are concerned whether Shur, who has been an administrator at Northern Illinois for three and a half years, will give students and the LSO a fair shake.

Yesterday, Valade, after meeting with Shur, said he is less concerned but still worried.

Shur said Northern Illinois has approximately 24,000 full-time students and has a student legal services office with two independently hired attorneys.

Unlike LSO lawyers, the Northern Illinois attorneys are barred by contract from suing administrators or faculty members, Shur said.

continued on page 5

It's income tax madness time

By PEDRO M. PEREIRA
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts first-year student Donna Finlayson, who has been working for several years, does not know how to file taxes. The forms, she said, are "not clear and they're too long." She relies on her father to do her forms; "he understands more than I do. He keeps all my records."

Sarah Hernon, a junior hotel, restaurant and traval administration student, also has her father file her taxes: "I'm too busy at school. I didn't know where to get the tax forms."

Lucy Bean, a sophomore animal science major, is filing for the first time this year. She finds the tax system confusing, especially for students, who do not have fixed incomes. "It's incredibly complex. I don't really know what the laws are," she said.

Whether our parents do it, we do it, or we pay an accountant to do it, many of us have to get it done by six days from now -- or else.

College students, just like everyone else, must file income taxes by Tuesday, April 15, if they made $3,430 or more in 1985.

"The biggest thing with students is they think they're exempt from taxes, but they're only exempt from withholdings," said Maureen Gaumond, an income tax preparer at H & R Block in Hadley.

Gaumond said students are not educated on the tax system and therefore, ask many questions about deductions. For example, the Massachusetts income tax form provides for a deduction for rent, but the instruction booklet reveals that college students living away from their permanent address are not eligible.

She said high schools should provide accounting courses for a better understanding of tax rules.

This year, help for students who are bewildered by the tax system but do not want to pay a tax preparer is more limited than in past years, because a UMass School of Management program using trained volunteers to help with forms is not offered this spring.

This year, "there was a foul-up with the Internal Revenue Service," said a member of the SOM's accounting department, who declined to be named but said the "foul-up" was the IRS' fault.

Helen Herzer of the IRS public affairs office in Boston

continued on page 12

Libyan suspect in bombing

BERLIN (AP) — A libyan diplomat based in this divided city's communist zone is suspected of directing the weekend bomb attack that wrecked a crowded nightclub popular with American solidiers, a West Berlin official said yesterday.

He confirmed a report in the Hamburg newspaper Bild that Elamin Abdullah Elamin, 47, was "urgently suspected" of directing the attack on the La Belle discotheque early Saturday. Two people were killed, including an American serviceman, and 230 were wounded.

"This report is correct," said the official of the West Berlin Interior Ministry, who is close to the investigation. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The official would not elaborate and referred further queries to the 100-member police commission investigating the bombing.

A man who answered the telephone at the Libyan Embassy in East Berlin, capital of communist East Germany, hung up when asked for comment on the newspaper report.

Bild said a meeting of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Cabinet today would consider expelling two Libyan Embassy staff members it said were suspected of involvement in the disco bombing. It gave no further details, and a government spokesman said he could not confirm the report.

Dieter Piete, deputy chairman of the investigating commission, said police did not believe Elamin planted the bomb himself, "but as to whether he is suspected as an organizer or had any other link, I will not say no."

Car bomb explodes in Lebanese shopping district; at least 10 dead

JOUNIEH, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in the main square of this Christian port while it was packed with lunch—hour crowds yesterday, killing at least 10 people and wounding 110.

The blue BMW sedan blew up only 50 yards from offices of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party, set 25 cars ablaze and damaged buildings 500 yards away. It was the latest in a series of bombings in Christian areas since mid—January.

In south Lebanon, a suicide bomber drove an explosive—laden car into a checkpoint manned by Israeli—backed militiamen, killing himself and wounding six people, Lebanon's state radio reported. It was the first suicide bombing reported this year in what Israel calls its security zone.

Radios reported 16 people were killed in the Chouf Mountain village of Bsaba, southeast of Beirut, in a clan feud between Sunni Moslems and Druse warriors from rival villages.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunnit Moslem opposed to the Maronite Catholic president, called the Jounieh bombing "treacherous" and declared: "It's always the innocent people who are the victims."

Youssef Bitar, the top police explosives expert, said about 165 pounds of explosives were packed inside the sedan. It blew up at 1:05 p.m., the height of the lunch break.

Police said 10 charred bodies were pulled from the rubble of two high—rise office buildings that took the brunt of the blast. They house banks, beauty parlors, clinics and shopping precincts.

Water pipes were ripped open, flooding the glass—strewn square where rescuers dug through the rubble looking for survivors.

Jumpy Christian militiamen, fearing more bombs, fired bursts from automatic rifles and several rocket—propelled grenades into the air to clear paths for ambulances.

Christian radio stations broadcast lists of the casualties. Police say about 1,190 people have been killed and more than 2,500 wounded this year in Lebanon's political and sectarian warfare.

Liability questioned

BOSTON (AP) - Attorneys asked the Massachusetts Supreme Court yesterday to decide whether party hosts should be held liable if guests become involved in driving accidents after they leave the premises.

The five-member panel heard arguments in two "host liability" cases and then took them under advisement for later rulings.

In one case, a woman severely hurt in a 1983 automobile accident sought $100,000 damages from the mother of a teen-ager who hosted a party.

Ruth Langemann, of Dennis, said the mother, who wasn't at home during the party, should have known her daughter's guests might consume alcohol and was legally liable because one of the guests, a minor, later drove a car head-on into her vehicle.

Langemann's attorney, Ronald M. Davids, argued that such liability should be extended to private party-givers in Massachusetts.

"It's up to the court to decide which right is more important," Davids said. "The right of a host to permit a guest to consume alcohol in his home, or the right of each one of us to be safe from being killed by an intoxicatd minor on the highway."

Even though the mother, Margaret Davis of Harwich, didn't leave alcohol in the house before she departed, she created a circumstance that allowed the youngsters "to drink to their hearts content with no supervision," he said.

AP photo

CLINT VOTES — Actor Clint Eastwood, 55, emerges from voting booth after casting his ballot yesterday in Carmel-By-The-Sea, Calif. Eastwood is running for mayor in the small seaside community.

Correction

Due to an editing error, a statement in yesterday's story on the Legal Services Office review was attributed to the wrong person. It was David Valade, not George Shur, who said: "I'd like to see someone who is at least unbiased, where the report would be based on the review, not the review based on the report."

TAKE A BREAK.
ENJOY A HAPPY SMILE.

KAMIKAZE COCKTAIL 60 PROOF
VODKA · TRIPLE SEC · NATURAL LIME FLAVORS

JUST CHILL AND SERVE

HAPPY SMILE KAMIKAZE T-SHIRT
100% cotton with abe design on front side
• 1 shirt $6" postage paid
• 2 shirts Happy Smile frisbee 15 PPD
Circle Size XL L M S
(Allow 2 weeks for delivery)
Please Print
Name
Address
City State Zip

YOUR BSN IS WORTH MORE IN ARMY NURSING.

First, there are the respect and dignity accorded an Army officer. Then there's the opportunity to travel, changing hospitals without losing seniority, as so often happens in civilian hospitals.

And there's the opportunity to add new and different nursing disciplines. To study, continue your education, attending professional conferences, working in a variety of nursing specialties.

If you're working on your BSN or if you already have a BSN and are registered to practice in the United States or Puerto Rico, talk to our Army Nurse Corps Recruiter.

CALL COLLECT: 301 - 677 - 5355 / 4076

ARMY NURSE CORPS. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

TONIGHT
Kiwi Surf
Beachwear Night
CRAZY LEGS CONTEST
UMASS
$25.00 First Prize for the Best Male and Female Legs
* Free Shorts to the Winner *
Shorts Available At Discount Prices
* Catch the NHL playoffs beginning tonight on our Giant Screen TV *
PEARL HARBORS $1.75
MELON BALLS $1.75
AT CHANGES dance club
Free Sodas For Designated DRivers
Free Sodas After Midnight
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8284
WEDNESDAY

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

FREESTYLE DUDE — William Bakewell, a senior Japanese major, shows his stuff outside the Student Union Building.

Benefit dances set for weekend

Two benefit dance marathons are scheduled for this weekend and students can still sponsor dancers who will burn up the dance floor to raise money for Multiple Sclerosis and Muscular Dystrophy.

From noon until midnight Saturday, Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will hold its seventh annual dance at Changes, a dance club on Route 9 in Amherst. Also, the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association will hold a 12-hour dance from midnight until noon Sunday in the Curry Hicks Cage at UMass.

Pi Kappa Alpha has raised about $80,000 for MS in the last six years, said Donna Kulha, spokeswoman for the western Massachusetts branch of Multiple Sclerosis.

"It is important to us that Pi Kappa Alpha is involved in this because MS most frequently affects people between the ages of 20 and 40," Kulha said. "It is prevalent on college campuses."

Pi Kappa Alpha house members said they hope to raise $25,000 for MS this year, said Marc Luxer, dance co-chairman. He said there is a $10 registration fee per couple and a mininum sponsorship of $100.

The SGA's dance will feature three bands: Circle, Modern Pladz and Goodspeed Rhythm and Blues as well as a rock video light show by Rack-a-Disc.

Dance co-chairman Greg Rothman said there is a mininum sponsorship of $10 and he hopes $4,000 will be raised for the MDA.

"This event presents an opportunity for the University of Massachusetts to show the rest of the country that we can be devoted to service as well as education," Rothman said.

Students wishing to sponsor dancers may contact Pi Kappa Alpha or Rothman in the Undergraduate Student Senate office.

—KATHLEEN DUNICAN

Police seek suspect in assault

By ANNE TAUGER
Collegian Staff

A 12-year-old boy suffered bruises after he was allegedly kicked in the head by a man at a Pufton Village bus stop Monday at 6:41 p.m. The boy said he had been humming and the man told him to "shut up," police said.

The boy moved away from the man, who then approached him and kicked him, he told his mother. She called the police. The boy identified the man and police have a warrant out for a 33-year-old South Hadley man for armed assault, using a shoe, police said.

In other police reports:

•Two cars each received over $1,000 in damage in an accident on Lincoln Avenue at Fearing Street Monday at 2:29 p.m., Amherst Police said.

A 66-year-old Pelham man was driving north on Lincoln Avenue when a 34-year-old Amherst woman, driving east on Fearing Street, failed to stop at a stop sign, police said. The man's car struck the woman's car, which then struck another car traveling in the opposite direction on Fearing Street, police said.

The third car, driven by a 41-year-old Hadley woman, received more than $500 in damage. The Amherst woman was cited for failing to stop at a stop sign, police said.

•A 22-year-old University of Massachusetts student suffered a minor knee injury from a bicycle accident at North Pleasant Street and Infirmary Way Monday at 4:07 p.m. His bicycle struck the left rear end of a 1979 BMW after the vehicle stopped in front of the bicycle, police said.

Onlookers obtained the registration number of the car and police are trying to locate the driver, who had left the scene without giving his name and address to the cyclist, police said.

•A 49-year-old Easthampton man was arrested yesterday at 1:53 a.m. on Northampton Road for driving while intoxicated and failure to stop in his lane, police said.

Speakers criticize AIDS prejudices

By DAVE BOARDMAN
and JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

To prevent AIDS-related discrimination, gay men should not take an antibody screening test for the disease, even under anonymity, a Boston gay-rights legal advocate said Monday at the University of Massachusetts.

Also on campus as part of Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week, David Summers, a gay activist and AIDS victim, yesterday spoke and debuted a documentary film about his struggle with the disease.

Kevin Cathcart, executive director of Gay and Lesbian Advocates and Defenders, said he is against taking the antibody test because it often results in false positive readings.

The test detects antibodies to the HTLV-III virus, which is believed to be the cause of AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome. But the presence of antibodies in the bloodstream, while it indicates exposure at some time to the virus, does not necessarily mean a person has AIDS.

"It is quite common for people to be barred from their jobs if they are diagnosed as having AIDS," Cathcart said. "It is also quite common for people to be fired from their jobs if co-workers or their employers find out they tested HTLV-III positive."

Collegain photo by Paul Desmarais

David Summers.

AIDS-related discrimination takes place in the workplace, schools, military, housing and health care, he said, despite the fact that the disease cannot be spread by casual contact.

"People think that not only do they have the right to discriminate against people on the basis of AIDS-related issues, but that somehow they have a moral obligation to do so," he said.

AIDS victims are, in theory, protected from discrimination by state civil rights laws, but "one of the problems of the important mechanism of state law is that it moves very, very slowly," he said.

"You have to wait a long time for justice to prevail. This is obviously more of a problem for a person who has AIDS and perhaps a short life expectancy."

Summers' film, Hero of My Own Life, describes his experiences while suffering from AIDS and how other people treat him. Summers said he hopes to add finishing touches and show it widely this June.

"I am living with AIDS, not dying with dignity," he said, speaking in the Campus Center.

Summers said his mother initially had problems accepting his illness but she later became very supportive.

"Some of my friends quit calling and some of them call all the time," he added.

Summers was first diagnosed as having AIDS in 1984. He now speaks about AIDS to two or three groups a week. He is currently writing a book about his life.

"I should have been dead about eight months ago," he said. "But the fact is that I'm beating the odds."

FYI

A rally supporting free speech and tolerance of differing viewpoints is scheduled for noon today on the steps of the Student Union Building.

Speakers will include members of various student groups, the faculty and the Newman Center who will discuss the importance of allowing varying opinions to be heard.

Overseas Development Network, a new student group, will hold an organizational meeting at 6:30 p.m. today in room 801 of the Campus Center. All students and faculty who are interested are urged to attend.

WMUA elects new board

The University of Massachusetts' student-run radio station, WMUA held its managing board elections Monday night.

In the top two positions, Patrick Mahoney retained his job as General Manager and Meredith Gottesman became the new program director.

The other eight winners were: Jeff Brown, station news director; Kevin O'Connor, technical training director; Lorenzo Boyd, third-world affairs director; Amanda DuBoff, music director; Harry Chevar, sports director; Michael Mitrook, public affairs director; and David Chupka, promotions director.

The position of woman's affairs director will be filled by the Everywoman's Center.

—PATRICK JOHNSON

Collegain photo by Brian Guarnatta

CLOUD NINE — Senior coins major Robert Coley appears to be walking toward the sky as he meanders across the steps outside the Campus Center Monday.

Gays portrayed negatively in film

By NANCY KLINGENER
Collegian Staff

Throughout the history of film, gays and lesbians have been portrayed with a lack of "normal behavior," rather than showing characters as gay, a gay activist and author said last night.

Vito Russo, author of The Celluloid Closet, said that when he started working on his book, "what I found was a history of feminine or masculine behavior."

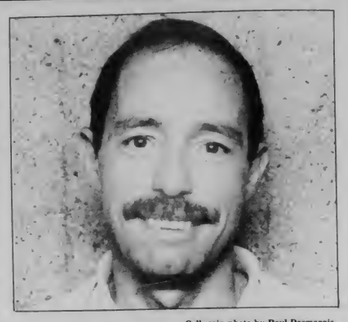
In movies, "the logical conclusion of the lack of masculinity is homosexuality," he said.

Speaking to about 150 people in the Campus Center, Russo said older films presented "an illusion of an America that perhaps never really existed," without overtly gay characters and without a gay perspective.

"I discovered not so much gay people as the fear of gay people," he said.

The earliest gay characters on film were the proverbial "sissies," he said, before the motion picture production code of 1933 outlawed all references to homosexuality.

Lesbians and gays on screen "became almost explicit and scared the censors," but they were not targets of homophobia, he said.



The code was enacted by the film studios when they were threatened with censoring legislation in 23 states, and was effective until 1961. Under the code, films went through a period of "denial of history and literature," Russo said.

References to gays from 1933 to 1961 were subtextual, like the "lesbian vampire" in the film Dracula's Daughter and characters from women's prison films, he said.

The taboo was broken in 1961 with Walk on the Wild Side, in which Barbara Stanwyck played a lesbian madam.

After 1961, "the villain could be gay but not the hero," as American movies went into a period of violence and sensationalism when portraying gays, he said.

"Constantly, I see bouncing back from film to film the idea that we live in a violent community," he said. "The misplaced violence is turned against the community in the same way that AIDS is turned against the community."

Collegain photo by Paul Desmarais

Activist Vito Russo speaks on the portrayal of gays and lesbians in film.

Special to Collegian Readers

the SLEEP CENTER
OF NORTHAMPTON

- SPECIAL -
Queen size
Mattress and Foundation
$189 with this ad
regular price $499

GET YOUR HANDS ON SOME GOOD WORK THIS SUMMER

Looking for a summer job? We have openings for about 300 college-age people in a variety of production jobs!

Start anywhere from May 22 to June 22 and work to the end of August.

There are two shifts available. Earn $4.00-$10.00 per hour. We'll be recruiting on campus at the following times and places:

DATE: Friday April 25th
TIME: 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
PLACE: Room 902 (Ninth Floor) Campus Center

Or contact the Plant Manager
OXFORD PICKLE CO., INC.
South Deerfield, Massachusetts 01373 / (413) 665-7011

10% 10%
PANTS PLACE PLUS
Trendy Jr Sportswear Store
at Ingleside Mall, Holyoke

SPECIAL STUDENT OFFER
with this coupon
on regular priced merchandise
3rd Floor, Holyoke Mall at Ingleside
10% 536-2668 10%

Every Wednesday at DELANO'S is TROPICAL WEDNESDAY
starts at 9 pm
Tropical Island Blend Juice
Pina Colada Schnapps
Raspberry Schnapps
FREE HAWAIIAN Hors d'oeuvres
Wear your Hawaiian Shirt
BE THERE, ALOHA!
57 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
Proper ID Required

Lodestone
THE SALE HAS BEEN EXTENDED
POLOS SWEATS ALL JEANS STIRRUPS CARDIGANS ALL JEWELRY WOOL SWEATERS IN-WEAR MATINIQUE SPRING JACKETS LEATHERS
Spring Sale!
AND MORE!
BIGGEST SALE IN ALL THE HAPPY VALLEY!
13 N. Pleasant St. Amherst
48 Main St. Brattleboro

Collegain photo by Paul Desmarais

FEELING FIT – Robert Sweetgall helps kick off Health Week in western Massachusetts by walking around a one-mile track with children from the Fort River School in Amherst and teaching them the importance of fitness. Sweetgall traversed the US last year as a part of a study on cardiovascular health, conducted by the UMass Medical Center in Worcester, and to promote walking as a form of exercise.

★ LSO

continued from page 1

Before arriving at Northern Illinois, Shur said he was in a private practice in Maine, where he represented plaintiffs and defendants in a variety of cases involving higher education.

He rejected the notion that because he and UMass general counsel William Searson are members of the same national legal administrators' association and know eachother, his review will be biased.

"The fact that I may have known anyone in any situation is another matter," Shur said last night. "In this business of higher education, you get to know many people."

DiMare said he trusts Shur.

"I do not in any way question his integrity," DiMare said. "I do question the itinerary, and Shur did not put it together, Madson did."

A free Puerto Rico sought

By KATHLEEN MOYNIHAN
Collegian Correspondent

The General Secretary of the Puerto Rican Socialist Party called for independence from United States control last night before an audience of more than 90 people in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Carlos Gallisa spoke on the subject of "Crisis in the Puerto Rican Society," a lecture sponsored by the student group AHORA, as part of Latin American Week.

Gallisa called Puerto Rico a "launching pad for the military aggressions of the US," citing the 1961 Bay of Pigs attempted overthrow of President Fidel Castro in Cuba, and the 1962 invasion of the Dominican Republic as examples. The 1983 invasion of Granada was "rehearsed a year before in Puerto Rico," he said.

"There is no doubt that the primary responsibility of the Puerto Ricans is independence," Gallisa said, adding that the two million Puerto Ricans living on the mainland of the US were forced to migrate from the island because of insufferable economic and social conditions.

Gallisa said that US citizenship was "imposed" upon Puerto Ricans during World War I so that their men would be eligible for duty in the armed forces. Most Puerto Ricans favor self-determination and have preserved their language and culture, he said.

Gallisa said that currently "the sovereign powers in Washington make all major decisions without consulting the people of Puerto Rico and without their consent."

Puerto Rico, he said, wants independence while maintaining good relations with the US. He called for a peaceful transition to independence, and existence on an equal basis with the US.

State
Contract Pricing available to all students and faculty
on MICROCOMPUTERS
and
PERIPHERALS

Immediate local delivery with a staff of professionals to support your purchase.

Name brands -- EPSON, COMPUPRO, KAYPRO, SHARP, PANASONIC, CORDATA(CORONA), TOSHIBA, ROYAL, IOMEGA, RACAL VADIC, QUME, WYSE, LOTUS, ASHTON-TATE, MULTIMATE.

Visit the friendly professionals at. . .
Computer Works
228 Triangle Street Amherst
549-7133
Store Hours: M-F 10-5:30 Sat 10-5

Plumbley's is the Place to be all week
Specials good til April 20

Sundays
3:00 - 9:30
Chicken, Steak and Chocolate Cake!
Sliced London Broil, Roast Chicken, Chocolate Cake and all the fixins $8.95

Monday
All You Can Eat
4:00 - 9:30 Fried Shrimp and Fried Chicken
Served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
$9.95

Tuesday
All You Can Eat
4:00 - 9:30 Roast Sirloin and Fried Chicken
Also served with bottomless cup of our chef's hearty soup, salad, fresh vegetables, potato, hot bread and butter
$9.95

Wednesday
UMass & Smith College
Student, Staff & Faculty Special
4:00 - 6:00
• Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
• Sliced London Broil
• Tempura Fried Filet of Sole
All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter. Just show your I.D. and enjoy.
$5.95

Thursday
Amherst College, Hampshire College and Mount Holyoke
Student, Staff & Faculty Special
4:00 - 6:00
• Broiled Orange Whiskey Chicken
• Sliced London Broil
• Tempura Fried Filet of Sole
All entrees complete with salad, potato, hot bread and butter.
Just show your I.D. and enjoy
$5.95

Plumbley's
off the common
30 Boltwood Walk • Downtown Amherst • 253-9586
All Major Credit Cards • Full Service Catering

ROOM CHOOSING PROCESS
For Fall 1986

Please read carefully

RESERVING YOUR CURRENT ROOM ASSIGNMENT

If you intend to keep your present residence hall assignment, personally sign up with your Residence Director/Residence Hall Manager on Monday, April 14.

DEADLINE FOR CURRENT ROOM RESERVATION IS MONDAY APRIL 14.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR CURRENT RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT WHILE ALSO SUBMITTING A PREFERENCE FORM YOU MUST DO THE FOLLOWING:

1. Sign up for the same room on Monday, April 14 or a different room on Tuesday, April 15.
2. Fill out a Preference Form. On the Preference Form in the lower right hand corner is a box you must "check" if you wish to be returned to your current residence hall if your requested residence hall or area choices cannot be met.

YOUR OLD RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT IS GUARANTEED ONLY IF YOU DO BOTH STEPS.

CHANGING YOUR ROOM OR HALL ASSIGNMENT

If you wish to move to another room in the same residence hall, you must sign up with your Residence Director/Residence Hall Manager. SIGN UP FOR A NEW ROOM WITHIN YOUR CURRENT RESIDENCE HALL ON TUESDAY, APRIL 15.

If you wish to move to another residence hall, you must complete a Housing Preference Form. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING COMPLETED HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS FRIDAY, April 25.

ROOMMATE REQUESTS

If you wish to move to another residence hall to room with a student already assigned to that residence hall, you must together complete a ROOMMATE REQUEST FORM. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING ROOMMATE REQUEST FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS THURSDAY, APRIL 17.

If you wish to become roommates with a student in a residence hall to which neither of you is currently assigned, you must each complete a Housing Preference Form. These forms should be identical (with the exception of the "check" box) and stapled together. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS IS FRIDAY, APRIL 25.

IN-HOUSE ROOM REQUEST FORMS

If, during the regular In-House Room Choosing period, you were unable to secure a particular type of accommodation (a particular single or double room), please contact the Housing Assignment Office to fill out an In-House Room Request Form. Rooms that become available during the Summer will be assigned, according to seniority, to those students who have filled out this form and returned it to the Housing Assignment Office.

RESIDENCE HALL CONTRACT

The 1986 - 1987 Residence Hall Contract and Contract Card will be mailed to you in your current Residence Hall on or about April 14 as part of the Room Choosing process. These cards must be returned to the Housing Assignment Office by the last day of the semester, Thursday, May 22, 1986. Failure to return your Residence Hall Contract Card by this deadline will automatically cancel your assignment for the Fall 1986 semester.

PAY FEE BILL BY DUE DATE

Your Fall 1986 fee bill will be mailed to you at your home in early July. If complete payment of your semester fee bill is not received by the Bursar's initial due date (usually in early August), your assignment for the fall semester will be cancelled. Be aware of this important obligation.

Juniors and Seniors will be required to conform their Room Choosing arrangements by completing the Junior/Senior Room Confirmation Card which will be mailed to their home in early June. This card will be due on the last Friday in June.

In addition to properly completing room choosing all students are required to remain in good standing with the University at all times. Being withdrawn for any reason after the end of the semester automatically cancels your assignment. Check to make sure you do not owe any charges to the Bursar BEFORE you leave for the summer.

QUESTIONS? If you still have questions about the Room-Choosing process, please contact the Housing Assignment Office (515-2100), 235 Whitmore. Thank you.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief; Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor; Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor; Peter Soderberg, Production Manager; Conor Plunkett, Production Manager; Elizabeth Young, Business Manager; Sherry Shartman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief; Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor; Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor; Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor; John Yonce, Women's Editor; Peter Abraham, Sports Editor; Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor; Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor; Michelle Segall, Photo Editor; Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor; Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Let the listeners judge

William Spain

As an American, I have always prided myself on our tradition of maintaining a climate conducive to peaceful dissent. Most of us do not look at our ideological foes as monsters to be hated and feared but as other living and breathing humans who, confronted with the same set of circumstances, here come to mistaken conclusions.

There are definite exceptions to this and they usually make themselves painfully evident when a particularly controversial topic or speaker is presented in a public forum. Be it Jorge Rosales, Bill Baird, Jerry Falwell or any other figure who can produce an acute negative reaction, many people find it necessary to harass, heckle, or otherwise disrupt their attempts at being heard.

Although hecklers must be protected by the First Amendment (it plays no favorites), using that right in such a manner subverts the whole idea of free exchange. Disagreement, counter-demonstration and public condemnation are legitimate methods for insuring a balanced presentation of information. Heckling only contributes to polarization. Strident hecklers also tend to hurt their own viewpoint by turning off undecided people. If they represent a valid position, they can frequently invalidate it by not playing by the rules.

Even though I cringe at using a word so beloved by our image-conscious administration, "civility" of political discourse is crucial to maintaining freedom of expression. Intimidation of speakers accomplishes what the law forbids; the freezing out of unpopular viewpoints. It also shows an unwillingness to concede that most people are capable of making up their own minds on an issue when presented with two sides.

Before I go any further with this, I must note my hesitation at aligning myself with the UMass Republican Club. Several of their spokesmen have been making this same point. But, regardless of what motivates them to do so, it is a good point.

When I speak of "civility," I do not mean that everyone should mask their views in pussyfooting language dripping with feigned politness. You always have to call them as you see them. Strong language, in and of itself, is not a bad thing. However, when it is used to stifle opposing positions, it becomes counter-productive. Muzzling, or attempting to muzzle, ideological opposition will inevitably backfire. Those subjected to it car. decry the tactic itself and, thus, obscure the actual issue.

I have always believed that the best approach for fighting people with whom I differ is to let them make themselves look bad. For this reason, I was disturbed at the manner in which anti-contra demonstrators received our two recent guests — Jorge Rosales and Michael Waller.

I am virulently opposed to American military involvement in Nicaragua but when I went to the Student Union Ballroom to hear these two men speak, I went to sit and keep my mouth shut. I wish others (on both sides) had done the same because Waller, at least, would have made a major ass out of himself on his own. Face it, the man comes across as a blatantly partisan contra-booster utterly devoid of even a pretense of objectivity.

Folks like him cannot be fought with theatrics. Cries of "murderer" and "liar" only make him look like an injured party. It would have been far better to allow him the privilege of an undisturbed presentation so that his flimsy arguments could have foundered independently of any abuse.

William Spain is a Collegian columnist.

Making sense of it all

Chris Poon

"If Francine bought two bushels of apples at 94 cents a pound and Meggie sold five pecks at 47 cents a piece, how many miles per hour was Colleen travelling when she passed Francine?"

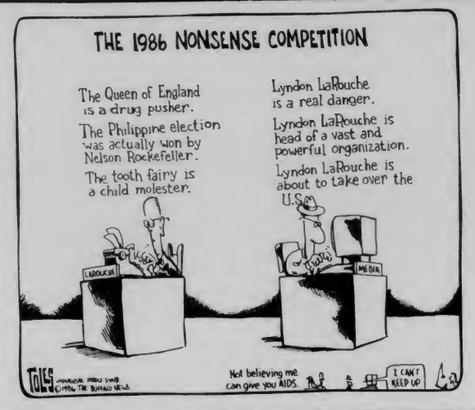
Word problems. I used to sweat bullets and chew off the ends of my number two pencils every time I came across them on my grammar school math tests. Surely the fictionalized characters were added to soften the blow of such number anomalies, but I for one could only regard them as the neighborhood terrors.

It's been six months since I first began to research the subject of faculty merit pay. It began with the tattle-tales of some gypped professors and ended with a folder jam-packed with numbers, more interviews and supposedly secret information. Only now do I realize that the series that smeared the front pages was only one massives, and indeed tiresome, word problem. .

However, I must confess that I thoroughly enjoyed the glamour and mystery of attaining that once elusive status of "investigative reporter"and its vague job description. With no deadline and a quest for an equally vague sense of justice, I set out to tame the neighborhood terrors and explain the anomalies of a seldom mentioned merit system.

Hours were spent interviewing professors who spewed out such invectives as "grand theft" and "murder"to describe the allocation of merit pay. More time was spent pouring through records of faculty salaries recorded on sheaves of unruly computer paper up in the Tower Library archives.

As one might expect, the giant obstacle that time and time again made me want to bag the whole expedition was the University administration. Poor Paula. She answered my almost daily phone calls to Whitmore and dutifully told me that several members of the UMass hierarchy still could not determine if faculty merit reports and specific merit allocations were public information.



By law, UMass administrators should have answered my request for faculty reports and accompanying merit pay distributions in 10 days. It took two months. Finally, I was given permission to review the faculty reports but was denied access to find out how much merit money was doled out.

Somewhere in the public records office in Boston is my letter of appeal stating that I believe merit pay allocations, like faculty salaries, are public records and should be released on request to prying college journalists such as myself. Meanwhile, I went ahead and got the information from the Massachusetts Society of Professors/Staff Union office.

Heaps of blessings should be poured upon the head of my number juggling friend Sharyn, who helped me turn the word problems into some form of common understanding.

I'm not sure if the series of stories will make an impact on the future of merit pay or not. I'm not even sure if I've exposed anything new. All I know is that I wish investigative reporting were as simple as figuring out how many bushels of apples Francine and Meggie could sell to Colleen who, according to my calculations, was travelling past them at the speed of light. I think.

Chris Poon is a Collegian columnist.

Unfair, untrue, unusual

Recently, SCERA was accused of orchestrating the anti-contra protest last week. This is an outright lie. The contra event was never mentioned at any of SCERA's weekly staff meetings, nor was there even discussion around the office of getting together as a group and protesting. Only five SCERA staff members attended the event, a few not evening arriving until three minutes before it was cut short by the UMass Republican Club. Surely there were at least five ski club members, outing club members, or sorority sisters there, yet their groups were not accused of organizing the disruption of the event. To accuse SCERA alone is ridiculous. The facts clearly do not support this accusation.

It's also odd to me that conservative columnists such as Peter Dow and Stephen Erickson, after years of berating SCERA, are now embracing SCERA's long history of successful and effective anti-oppression work. Dow expects SCERA workers to "adhere to the SCERA principles of non-oppression during both work and leisure hours." Obviously SCERA does too. Since there hasn't been any evidence presented by either Erickson or Dow that indicates SCERA employees did in fact violate SCERA principles, what's their problem? Why are they and others harassing SCERA?

Both Dow and Erikson demanded that SCERA "create a political tolerance task force." We already did...last year. SCERA was one of the organizations involved in establishing the Kaleidoscope project here at UMass. The Kaleidoscope project is designed to bring together opposing view points in a constructive forum to discuss complex issues. Maybe SCERA should ask the Kaleidoscope people to hold a forum on communication between politically diverse groups, so that in the future, maybe reactionary conservatives such as Dow and Erikson won't harass students groups such as SCERA.

I'd also like to take the opportunity here to ask some very serious questions. If the UMass Police, the Chancellor's office, and the Republican Club were so concerned about a potentially riotous atmosphere at the contra event, then why were untrained students used as security personnel? Having untrained students as security creates a more dangerous and volatile situation for all present.

Another perplexing question is if the Republican Club is so committed to tolerance of political differences, why didn't they plan a debate on Nicaragua? A debate would have allowed both sides' views to be expressed, as opposed to just the conservative one heard at the event. I propose that the Republican Club hold to its commitment to promoting political tolerance by sponsoring a presentation by a representative of the Sandinista government.

SCERA is a wonderful organization dedicated to positive change. I suggest that Dow and Erikson have their facts straight before making accusations about groups such as SCERA that work for all students, regardless of their political affiliations.

Chris Alibrandi,
student coordinator SCERA

Learning about ourselves

I would like to add a few more thoughts to Corinna Moebius' column on the root of oppression. Oppression's major component may be fear, but in this case fear walks hand in hand with ignorance. Heterosexism and homophobia are stereotypical vehicles which are cultivated by our own curiosity and are nutured in ignorance or misinformation.

Perhaps this issue doesn't concern you because it does not touch your life directly. Perhaps you would be more open to learning about, understanding and yes, maybe even accepting the reality of a gay person and community if your brother, sister, or best friend were gay or lesbian or bisexual. Perhaps only then would you be directly confronted with these issues in your life. You don't have to deal with something if it doesn't touch your life or cause you to question your values, many of which may be acquired through a form of blind acceptance. Perhaps it is easier to compartmentalize (and censor) thoughts in this way. Choosing the path of ignorance concerning people in general also allows you and others the opportunity to perpetuate the inaccuracy of a gay stereotype. You cannot reject another person's sexual orientation. In a sense, you are telling someone what to do with their own body and no one has that right.

You also cannot eliminate your reality by choosing not to think about it. Even by censoring your immediate surroundings, and who you interact with (establishing a peer group to support your ignorance and responsive fear), you cannot always suppress self-questioning. Gay, lesbian and bisexual people do not represent a cancerous outgrowth of the human race or society. However, the fear and ignorance that walk hand in hand with heterosexism/homophobia are representative of our society's true cancerous outgrowths--when they serve no purpose but to threaten and destroy other's lives and happiness.

Deborah Gromack
Amherst

ARTS

The Bangles and the Hoodoo Gurus

Liven up Smith College

CONCERT REVIEW

Bangles Review

By MEREDITH G. GOTTESMAN
Collegian Correspondent

The Bangles emerged from the paisley underground scene in Los Angeles several years ago. Their Beatles- and Byrds-influenced pop, flavored with distinct and colorful harmonies, set them apart from other California all-women bands and won them some critical notoriety.

One EP and two albums later, the Bangles have changed their sound a little but not their style. Their new album Different Light seems to be geared towards FM radio airplay, but the Bangles are anything but trendy.

Last Thursday night, at John M. Greene Hall in Northampton, the Bangles managed to put on a great show despite a distorted, overblown sound system and bumbling attempts by security to keep the audience from dancing in the aisles.

They open with the title track from Different Light. After the first listen to this record, I was disappointed with the Bangles. The material was notably weaker than their first two releases, and they were obviously fishing for a hit in "Manic Monday," a song penned by Prince that was entirely uncharacteristic of their Bangles' usual rock and roll music. But live, the Bangles put the raw edge back into their new material that got lost somewhere in the production of the album. Even the songs I winced through on the first spin of the record sounded good live.

Other cuts off Different Light that the band performed included "Walking Down Your Street," Alex Chilton's beautiful "September Girls," and "If She Knew What She Wants,"a song written and recorded by Boston pop-cult hero Jules Shear, formerly with the Polar Bears.

The Bangles also performed material from their 1984 album All Over the Place, a much stronger effort and more interesting musically. Outstanding numbers were "James," the Merry-go-round's classic '60s nugget "Live," "Going Down To Liverpool," written by Kimberly Rew of Katrina and the Waves and former guitarist for the Soft Boys, and an extended version of a minor hit of the Bangles a few years back, "Hero Takes A Fall," during which guitarist Susanna Hoffs and Vicki Peterson jumped off the stage and danced through the audience.

"This 'aint no Helen Reddy concert," Vicki shouted, "Get off your butts!" They did one encore featuring "Dover Beach," a ballad from their first record, and finishing with a fast-paced, ripping version of Love's "Seven and Seven Is."

Musically, the Bangles are tighter than ever. Vicki Peterson's gutsy leads complement Susanna Hoffs' jangly Rickenbacker, Debbi Peterson on drums provides a powerful if not simple beat, and along with beautiful bass player Michael Steel forms the backbone of the Bangles music.

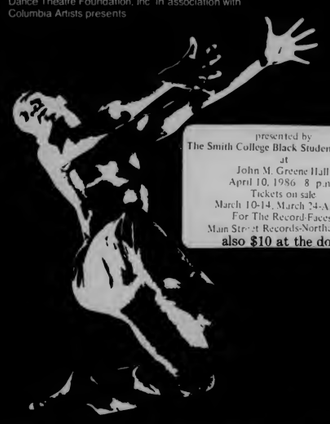
INTERVIEW

By NATALIE HEWITT
Collegian Correspondent

The Sixties revival invaded the Smith College Campus last Thursday night, when The Hoodoo Gurus, along with the Bangles, played at John M. Green Hall.

Their stop here in the valley is part of a 40 date tour of the US and Canada, but they did a 27 date headlining club tour before Christmas. And by the time they finish this tour in mid-May, The Hoodoo Gurus will have traveled 150,000 miles and played in 204 different places in the last 365 days. "I feel tired already!" Clyde Bramley (bass, vocals) laughs on the phone from New York City.

Six years ago, David Faulkner (lead vocals, guitar) formed the Australian band, and since that time, the line-up has changed considerably so that he is the only remaining original member. "Originally," Clyde explains, "there were three guitar players and a drummer-no bass player-and that line-up played for about a year. This is in 1982, I'd say, 1981 maybe," Clyde continues. "And then one of the guys left to become a video director, who he's doing quite well, and they decided 'Might as well get a bass player then.' So I got the job, and then another guy left and I got (guitarist) Brad (Shepard) in because I'd known Brad for quite a while." Their last personnel change came in 1984, just before their first American tour, when drummer Mark Kingsmill replaced James Bramley's only comment on so many changes is that "It's not as many as it sounds.It was basically one change after a year, and another change a few years later kind of thing."



It takes only one listening of a Hoodoo Gurus song to know immediately that this is a band who's influences are rooted in the music of the Sixties. Clyde names The Rolling Stones, The Who, The Beatles, Alice Cooper, Gary Glitter, and The Monkeys as some of the bands that influenced him as a teenager in Sidney. When discussing the Monkeys revival now happening in the US, with the help of MTV, the Gurus' bass player declares, with a true fan's loyalty, "Ah, they never went away for me!"

Listening, in the late '60s and early '70s, to those bands on the radio, at the age of about 14, Clyde explains, "That's what got me involved in it. I wanted to be a rock 'n roll star ever since." He played in his first "garage" band when he was 15 years old. "It was awful!" He laughs. "I think I've gotten a little better since then!" And what did his parents think of their son playing in a rock band? "My father's a Methodist minister-he loves it. True, he does. For years he told me never to go out and, you know, the stupid thing to do is get a real job. Now that we're reasonably successful, he's our biggest fan."

Many of The Hoodoo Gurus' songs have a humorous twist in their lyrics. A song like "(Let's All) Turn On" makes clever use of the lyrics "we wear short shorts" which the Nair Hair Remover commercials made famous. "We don't like to take life too seriously," Clyde explains. "I think enough people take life seriously enough so that we don't have to." He laughs mischieviously. "I mean, we take what we play seriously, but we don't take ourselves too seriously. We like to have fun-that's basically," Clyde sighs, "what we do. And we can't help laughing at a

continued on page 9

Dance Theatre Foundation, Inc. in association with Columbia Artists presents presented by The Smith College Black Students' Alliance

at
John M. Greene Hall
April 10, 1986 8 p.m.
Tickets on sale
March 10-14, March 24-April 4
For The Record-Faces
Main Street Records-Northampton
also $10 at the door

ALVIN AILEY REPERTORY ENSEMBLE

Photo: Donald Moss

Asian - American Students Association — AASA 86 — University of Massachusetts at Amherst

A Contemporary & Cultural Exhibition

AASA NITE LIVE

The 3rd Annual Asian-American Spring Show

TALENT SHOWCASE

Music, song, dance, and more! Performed by 5-college students Martial Arts Demonstrations by Kimo and the UMass Karate Club Wah Lum Kung Fu Association of Boston including traditional Lion Dance performance!

FASHION SHOW

A display of the Hottest Fashions from Lodestone, Casual Male, Matahari, The Lodge, Petite Sophisticate, and August Max! Hairstyles by Lord's & Lady's

DANCE! Dance the night away to the beats of DJ Mark Stoneham of Pearl Street!

Friday April 11, 1986
CCA 7 PM - 3 AM
FREE!!
Free Admission, Free Refreshments
Proper Attire Requested.

AASA SPRING WEEKEND continues with Saturday & Sunday
Boyden Gym
The 1st Annual AASA Big East Athletic Tournament
Basketball and Volleyball Competition with teams from: Amherst, Baruch College, Boston College, Brown, Columbia, Cornell, MIT, NY Tech, NYU, Polytech Institute of NY, Queens College, St. Johns, Stony Brook, UMass!
For further info, contact: Bobby K 256-1659, Conrad 546-7532, Emmi 546-7355

Lucas: Portrayal of teen romance

★ interview continued from page 8

MOVIE REVIEW

Lucas (★★★★)
Starring Corey Haim and Kerri Green
Directed by David Seltzer

By THOMAS HARRINGTON
Collegian Staff

Corey Haim, Charlie Sheen, and Kerry Green star in new teen film, Lucas, about growing up.

Remember when teen movies in the spring used to be rowdy sex comedies? That was before "Sixteen Candles" and "The Breakfast Club" brought the "growing up" theme into vogue. Now to these films we can add "Lucas", a nice little movie about an adolescent who is hopelessly in love.

Corey Haim plays the title character, a shy young boy who compensates for his loneliness by being a bug fanatic. He's delighted then, when he manages to become friends with an older girl (Kerri Green) who's new in town. When school starts though, Kerri not only realizes how put upon Lucas is by other students, but has to cope with his fanatic crush on her.

I couldn't help feeling both sympathetic and a little bit exasperated at Lucas' desperate attempts to attract this girl, which I suspect was just what writer/director David Seltzer wanted. Lucas is exasperating because his crush is downright unrealistic and unfair to his new friend, but he's also admirable because he has the courage to keep this first love even when it puts him in humiliating positions with his other classmates.

Seltzer is wise to avoid portraying Lucas' friend and the football captain she falls for as jerks. Instead they're both nice, unprejudiced people who are among the few people to treat Lucas with any sort of respect.

Unfortunately, Seltzer still falls back on a lot of cliches that hurt the movie. For instance, Courtney-Thorne Smith plays a nice "plain" girl who's known Lucas for a long time and likes him a lot, but is ignored by him. Not only is this an overused gimmick, but it's a stupid one, because it makes the hero look like a jerk.

On the bright side, there are a lot of good performances here by all the cast members, especially by the actor who plays Lucas' video freak friend. There's also some fun looks at the different sub-cultures of high school, and how social pressures can make it difficult for everybody to date who they really want to .

I would have like the movie better if it hadn't resorted to an obligatory sports finale, but even that is well handled. "Lucas" is a movie that can be enjoyed by anyone who has ever come down with a case of unrequitted love. I would have given it three and a half stars, but I suspect that my social life in high school might have made me overly sympathetic to his situation.

lot of things. We have similar senses of humor, so we find ourselves laughing at similar kinds of things." He hesitates and says, "Maybe we're a bit sick in that way!" Other songs, most of which are written by lead singer David Faulkner, come about through the music the band is listening to at the moment. "Hayride to Hell," from their latest album, Mars Needs Guitars, came about because the band members were listening to bands like "...The Charlie Daniels Band-'The Devils Went Down to Georgia.' I think 'Hayride to Hell' has a little to that, probably. It's not ripped off or anything, but I think (Dave) wanted to write a song that was sort of like that." It has a country sound, "Except we play it like a rock 'n roll band."

continued on page 11

Keaton is Gung Ho

Gung Ho(★★★)
Starring Michael Keaton Directed by Ron Howard

By JIM COLE
Collegian Correspondent

Gung Ho, Ron Howard's new film, does not succeed as well as his last film Cocoon. But despite its problems, Gung Ho is still very entertaining.

Michael Keaton (Mr. Mom) stars as Hunter Stevenson, worker in a now-closed Pennsylvania car factory who is sent to Japan. There, he tries to recruit a Japanese car company to take over the factory and restore the town.

What follows is an obvious clash between American and Japanese cultures and work ethics. The executives believe in teamwork, and the Company is the most important thing to them. This does not sit too well with the American workers, who have trouble adjusting to a job with almost no breaks during the work day. The film progresses with both sides trying to find a happy medium.

Michael Keaton once again gives a wonderfully funny performance. He is easily one of the most talented actor/comedians around. He overcomes many of the film's problems--worst of which is stereotyping. Director Ron Howard tries to overcome the scripts' narrow treatment of the Japanese and he doesn't always succeed. There were parts in the film where I was almost offended by the way they were treated. Luckily, there were many talented Japanese actors who often rose above the problems in the script.

I still enjoyed Gung Ho because it worked as a comedy. The film has its share of problems, but it is still well worth seeing.

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

GRAPHICS WILL RULE

OOPS!
Now's the time to call...
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880
Expert Repairs & Reconditioning

Pleasant St. Theater
ACADEMY AWARD WINNER
BEST ACTRESS
"THE YEAR'S MOST WINNING COMEDY-DRAMA ONE OF THE YEAR'S TEN BEST"
Jessica Lange
Tootsie
at 5:45, 8, 10
(also 3:30 Sat & Sun)
The New Film by Academy Award nominee Ken Burns
HUEY LONG
at 6:15, 8:15, 10:15
(also 4 Sat & Sun)

MOTHER COURAGE
AND HER CHILDREN
by Bertolt Brecht
with songs by Paul Dessau
directed by Walter Boughton
KIRBY THEATER
AMHERST COLLEGE
APRIL 3,4,5,6 at 8P.M.
for reservations call 542-2277 1-5 p.m. weekdays

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
TONIGHT!

BERLIN CHAMBER ORCHESTRA
Heinz Schunk, leader
Wednesday, April 9 8pm
Bowker Auditorium
Tickets: $15, 13

AmHerst CINEMA
Wednesday - Saturday
King of Hearts 7:00
Harold & Maude 9:00
30 AMITY ST. AMHERST 253-5426

Anyone Interested in joining the
UMASS MINUTES

UMass' Kickline - Dance Team
Info Session (mandatory)
Thursday, April 10, 6:30 pm, 12th floor Coolidge
Practice for Tryouts
Mon April 14, Wed April 16 and Thurs April 17 at 7 pm
Tryouts
Wednesday April 23 at 7 pm
NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY
For More Info Call 546-8015

NOW HIRING
GO GETTERS
ONLY
25 OPENINGS
Telemarketing Tools and Industrial Supplies to Construction Companys Nationwide. Salary and Commisions and Bonuses. 3 Shifts allow you to work around your schedule. Shifts: 6:30 am - 10:30 am; 3 pm - 6 pm; 6 pm - 9 pm; Saturdays 8-12 and 12-4. Call 7 am - 7 pm Dave 256-4101

One test where only you know the score.

Yes	No
☐	☐	Do you want to be the only one who knows when you use an early pregnancy test?
☐	☐	Would you prefer a test that's totally private to perform and totally private to read?
☐	☐	Would you like a test that's portable, so you can carry it with you and read it in private?
☐	☐	And how about a simple, one-step test with a dramatic color change that's easy to read and is 98% accurate?

e·p·t plus

If you checked "Yes" to the above, EPT PLUS is for you. Use it, and only you will know your test score.

ARTS

Dewey Redman jazzes up Hampden

By GLENN SIEGEL
Collegian Staff

Before a house brimming with appreciative listeners, the Dewey Redman Quartet filled all the remaining space in Hampden Theater Monday with a joie de vivre that was as profound as it was direct.

Against the theater's unbroken black background, the Quartet: drummer Ed Blackwell, bassist Mark Helias, alto saxophonist David Bond, and Redman (tenor, alto, French musette) stood in bold relief and commanded the rapt attention of close to 200 people.

The concert was presented as part of the 15th Annual Black Musicians Conference.

The setting was intimate, the group felt like playing, and the audience was ready for what Conference participant Val Wilmer called "musicianly music."

With Bond in the wings, the threesome dove into Redman's "Gotta Get Some Sleep." With Helias up, down and around the bass punching out quarter notes, the Buddha-like Blackwell effortlessly filling in time and Redman's spiraled tenor logic, the music was brought to a rolling boil in no time.

Many of us were familiar with Blackwell and Redman, who have been important Jazz figures for a quarter of a century. But the 35-year-old bassist Mark Helias was nothing less than a revelation. This physically articulate musician was all over his bass. His solo on Parker's "Cheryl," which opened the second set, had such rhythmic immediacy that the audience began to help keep time. His arco work opposite Redman's musette on "Unknown Tongue" produced a drone effect that was downright visceral. Helias has enormous control of his instrument and the ideas to put that technique to good use.

One characteristic of many New Orleans drummers is their way of playing from the elbows down. Blackwell, with his unwavering smile, played as if he were dealing a hand of poker. His solos, like songs really, seemed always on the verge of breaking into full-fledged marches.

David Bond joined the group for the last piece of each set. His playing was technically dazzling, especially on Redman's "Wall Bridge" which concluded the first half. One might have wished however that Bond had been given a chance to blow at a more reflective tempo.

The triangulated conversation that went on for most of the evening showed an outpouring of personal expression woven into a group sound that fit like a glove.

BALLYS

• TONIGHT ASAPS

High Energy, Top 40 sounds!

• THURSDAY: Take 3 Top 40 Band

• THURSDAY and FRIDAY: Oui
Bands begin at 9:00 pm
Open Daily 5:00 pm - 1:00 am
18-20 YEAR OLDS:
come enjoy juice bar & entertainment
Rte. 9 Hadley 586-4463

POEMS WANTED

Major anthology now seeks poems: love, nature, haiku, song lyrics, reflective, free verse, religious — all types! Beginners are welcome! Our editors will reply within 7 days.
Send ONE POEM ONLY, 21 lines or less, to:
WORLD OF POETRY PRESS
Dept. AP • 2431 Stockton • Sacto., CA 95817

Going Formal?
TUXEDO RENTALS
Lodestone
13 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
256-0591

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRE SALE
P155/80R13
$29.95
Includes Mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wahroba's Store
549-4704
Most Major Credit Cards Accepted

Residence Hall Contract Signing Information

Important, Please Read Carefully

The University requires all students living in the residence halls for the fall 1986 semester to sign a 1986-1987 Residence Hall Contract Card. Any student wishing to live in the residence halls again for next fall should be aware of the following:

★ Contracts and Contract Cards will be mailed to you in your residence hall on or about April 14.

★ Contract Cards must be completed, signed and returned to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore, no later than the last day of the semester (May 22, 1986).

★ Assignments will be cancelled for any student failing to return a signed Contract card by May 22, 1986.

★ Students returning Contract Cards will receive a "Contract Receipt". Keep this receipt for your records. It is strongly recommended that students NOT return Contract Cards by mail.

If you still have questions about Contract Signing procedures, call or stop by the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore (545-2100). Thank you.

WOMEN IN PRINT

By ILANA LEVENSON
Collegian Staff

Part of My Soul Went With Him by Winnie Mandela N.Y.: W.W. Norton & Co. 164pp. $14.95.

As the title of her book suggests, Winnie Mandela's emotionally touching story revolves around a part of her soul that lies with a man who symbolizes the black's fight against their apartheid world of South Africa, Nelson Mandela.

The editors note at the beginning of this book introduces the reader to one of the countless restrictions placed on Mandela by the Government. With constant surveillance of her activities, she never had the option of composing a book at home in front of a typewriter.

It was compiled by an editor through tape-recorded interviews conducted mostly at the town line of Brandfort, South Africa, a place where she came to live, not by choice -- but by decree.

She sees her "home", (her quotes) in the book, as much more of a cell than a home. In fact, Mandela was not even allowed to see the detailed manuscript before it went to print.

Mandela describes what it means to be detained, after one of her countless arrests in 1969 as the Security Branch utilizes their right to ransack every inch of her home, in the middle of the night if they pleased. This includes lifting sleeping children from mattresses and looking under the sheets, unpacking all clothing and going through each pocket and even tasting all sugar and spices on her shelves.

"Ultimately it means your seizure at dawn, dragged away from the children screaming and clinging to your skirt, imploring the white man dragging Mummy away to leave her alone," Mandela writes.

The reader glimpses at the life of this mother and political fighter whose marriage for the past 22 years has consisted of censored letters and glances through a glass partition.

Permission to visit her life-imprisoned husband is difficult to obtain. Their conversations have no privacy as the warden listens in to make sure that they only speak about "family matters." If they speak outside these bounderies, the visit is terminated.

Despite the constant restrictions laced into their daily lives for decades by the government as a result of their never-ending battle, the fight for their cause never weakens.

With finals still more than a month away, there is no excuse not to pick up this enlightening book which teaches things that are impossible to obtain from any classroom.

★ interview

continued from page 9

The Hoodoo Gurus, who's name came into being because "Basically, it's just two good sounding words!", have released two albums since 1984. Stoneage Romeos, on A&M Records, and Mars Needs Guitars, on the independent label Bigtime, are quite different, and Clyde attributes the change in producers to the difference in sound. "Basically, we just take what songs we have and treat the songs individually, rather than try to do a whole album that sounds all the same. So do, whatever song, what we think needs to be done with it. And I think just having the different producers, their two different approaches, and different engineers get different sounds." Clyde feels that the second and latest Hoodoo Gurus album sounds more like a live band because they recorded more of the music live in the studio. "We went for a much simpler approach on the second album than we did on the first...It's basically a guitar album, this second one."

Although he's the bassist for such a guitar-based band, Bramley doesn't have a problem with keyboards, in themselves. "There's nothing initially wrong with them. It's not the keyboards that are the problem-it's the people who are playing them. I mean, you can't blame an inanimate object for putting out lousy music." After a bout of laughter, Clyde continues, "Keyboards are fine, used in the right way. I don't think we ever use synthsizers or anything like that on stage. We occasionally use them in the studio for a few pieces, but not a lot."

With the success The Hoodoo Gurus have had in their native Australia, they hope to become more than a cult band with a college following in the US. "We basically want to get to play to as many people as we can, everybody to see us. I think we need a lot of luck, that's all," Clyde adds optimistically.

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN/SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The BEST Chinese Food"

Boneless Bar-B-Q Spare Ribs
Small $2.80 Large or $4.60

Luncheon Specials
From $2.25 served 11 a.m. -3 p.m.

New Buffet & Sunday Brunch
1) Beef with Fresh Mushrooms
2) Chicken Fingers
3) Chicken Wings
4) Chinese BBQ Pork
5) Broccoli in Oyster Sauce
6) Sweet & Sour Chicken
7) Pan Fried Rice
8) Pan Fried Noodles with Chicken
9) Pan Fried Ravioli
10) Hot + Sour Soup
Buffet Served 5-8 Mon.-Thurs.
Brunch Served Sunday 11:30-3
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25

Luncheon Specials & Take-out Service
Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m.
10 Belchertown Road at Rte. 9, Amherst
256-0252

UMass Arts Council
CALL FOR BLOCK GRANT PROPOSALS
Deadline for submission of block grant proposals FRI. APRIL 18
AND: Deadline for submission of grant proposals for senate projects events for FY 1987 Summer (early fall events) FRI. APRIL 25
Grant guidelines available at the Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, 545-0202

Dyslexia: Challenges-Success
Guest Speaker: Dr. Mary Groda Lewis
Her life inspired the 1985 CBS docudrama "Love Mary" with Kristy Mc Nichol

Time: 1:00 p.m.
Date: April 10, 1986
Place: Memorial Hall, U.Mass.
For more information:
Call The Dyslexic Student Organization
Telephone 545-0018

A Wearable Feast
The all-cotton Camp Shirt from Robert Stock
Your choice of fruit & cheese or bread & wine
Bon Appetit!
J·RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
22 Masonic St., Northampton 586-6336
Mon.-Sat. 10-6, Thurs. til 9, Sun. 12-5

IT'S MORE THAN A JOB. . .
IT'S THE PULSE OF THE CAMPUS CENTER
The Campus Center - Student Union
BOARD OF GOVERNORS is looking for students to fill the following Coordinator positions for the 86/87 school year
Public Relations • Finance • Building Operations • Special Projects • Space/Econ. Development • Key Functions • Governors Program Council • Vending • Asst. Office Coordinator • Food Services • Display
Work Study and Non Work Study
Applications and More Information are available in the BOG Office - 817 CC
Application Deadline - Monday, April 14, 12 Noon
The BOG is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

★ taxes

continued from page 1

said the head of the program at UMass contacted the IRS late in February, too late for the necessary training.

"Certainly no training class was ever established," she said. Herzer added that most schools have a faculty advisor who runs the program every year and she thinks UMass' program is run only by student volunteers.

A taxpayers assistance van from the IRS was parked outside the Student Union Building last week; volunteers and IRS employees were inside the vehicle to help students with their tax forms. The vans serve not only colleges, but other organizations that request their help, said James Donahur of the Springfield IRS office.

University Bursar Robert R. Mishol agreed there are not enough courses on taxes, and that "the forms look very imposing."

Ted Los, payroll administrator, said he does not find tax forms complicated, but that "the system is ready for a change and [President] Reagan has a lot of good ideas on [reforming] it."

Gaumond said most students who have finished their tax forms are those who "think they're getting a refund. Now, we're getting the tough ones [those who owe money]."

H & R Block charges students a minimum of $21 for tax preparation. The price is higher if students have additional paperwork, such as stock dividends or many deductions.

Chris Brown, a first-year economics major, files his own forms because "I do it for free," he said. "I'm waiting to the last minute. I just don't feel like doing them now, and I owe them money, anyway."

Shultz to arrange next summit with Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State George Shultz said yesterday he will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze next month to lay the groundwork for a second summit meeting between President Reagan and Soveit leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Arrangements for the Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting were made during a 75-minute session between Reagan and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Shevardnadze will visit Washington in mid-May, but Shultz did not say whether that would allow the two sides enough time to prepare for a summit within the pre-August timetable set by Reagan.

Shultz said Dobryinin made it clear the Soviet side would not establish any preconditions for the meeting, but he said both sides expressed an interest in "substantive" results.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily

COLLEGIAN

founded 1870

Circulation 19,000

Serving the Five College Area

Executive Board

Editor in Chief
Dode B. Levenson

Managing Editor Ian Polumbaum
Editorial Editor Larry Bouchie
Production Managers Peter Soderberg, Conor Plunkett
Business Managers Sherry Sharfman, Elizabeth Young

Business Board

Asst. Business Manager
Steve Robin

Advertising Manager Paul Lesser
Finance Manager Vanessa Roth
Asst. Advertising Mgr. Melissa Forman
Asst. Finance Mgr. Kim Jackson
Circulation Manager Craig Naugle
Subscription Manager Karen Holland

Associate News Editors Jeanette DeForge, Patrick Johnson, Nancy Klingener Associate Editorial Editor Rob Skelton Associate Sports Editor John Nolan Associate Women's Issues Editor Ilana Levenson

Assistant to the Editors Anita L. Roye

Systems Manager Mathew Atkins Assistant Systems Manager Adam Lavine

Business Coordinator James Ristube Senior Bookkeeper Maureen Majerowski Classified Manager Cathy Chilton Graphics Advisor Faye Whitney Lussier Assistant Subscription Manager Alan Wilcox Advertising Layout Noelle Medina Marketing Ron Maggio, Randi Sclow, Patrice Lassaky Office Assistant Sue Cirelli Maintenance Dan Roth Advertising Representatives Nancy Warhafting, Jon Celli, Michelle Montagne, Maureen Crowly, Robin Engel, Stacy Wasserman, Jeff Hammond, Stephanie Zucker, Robyn Lerfer, John Kennedy, Shawn Stepanitz, Cozy Wolak, Debbie Stein, Dale Spielberg Day Graphics Beth Bazinet, Amy Custance, Sue Lattanzi, Betty Ann Murphy, Jim Podesky, Kathy Wheeler, Sarah Cook, Andrew Myerson, Larissa Potapchuk, Jim Rice, Petra Phillip Librarian Tom Middleton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS permit No.580, a registered student organization at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, is published Monday through Friday excluding holidays, exams and vacation periods. Content is determined solely by the Collegian Board of Editors, without prior approval from University administrators, faculty, staff or student government. Operations are funded solely by advertising and subscription revenue. Subscriptions and advertising rates are available at 113 Campus Center, UMass-Amherst 01003, (413)545-3500.

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst
Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
SPECIALS
Miller and Rolling Rock bottles
Anisette drinks
$.99
Come Down and Relax
Look for Friday's Smorgasboard
4:30 pm on

You are cordially invited to attend
CAREER NIGHT
for
PSYCHOLOGY MAJORS
Thursday, April 10
at 8:00 P.M.
at
Campus Center, Room 163
Several Psych. Dept. alumni/ae will be on hand to discuss graduate school and career opportunities for psychology majors
Sponsored by
UMass Placement Service
Alumni Office
Department of Psychology
For more information contact:
Psychology Advising Office
Tobin 403
545-0377
Wine and Cheese to follow

Something you want to say before you leave?
Submit your proposal for Senior Commencement Speaker to Trey Williams, 545-2334, 319 Whitmore.
(5 minutes: 3 pages, typed, double-spaced)
DEADLINE: APRIL 11, 1986 at 4:00 PM

DOONESBURY — GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE — BY GARY LARSON

"Uh-oh—did anyone remember to feed the giraffe tonight?"

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Football play
5 World religion
10 Exchange
14 Architect Saarinen
15 Novelist Louise de la Ramee
16 Emcee Donahue
17 Delend
19 — avis
20 Michener title
21 Time of day, to 18 Down
22 A Ross
23 Cold fog over the Channel
25 Wight and others
27 Greek letter
30 Attempts
32 Good times
35 Charlatan
37 Thomas More's island
39 Bistro
40 Disencumber
42 Hereditary right
43 Portuguese islands
46 Tourist guide
49 Celtic Neptune
50 Winged steed
52 Romaine
53 Artist El —
55 Megalopolis
57 Thick soup
59 Southern mist school
61 Seeps
65 Arena
66 Follow the fashion
68 Armadillo
69 Asian border range
70 Anderson of TV
71 See 73 Across
72 Llama habitat
*73 Piece of cake

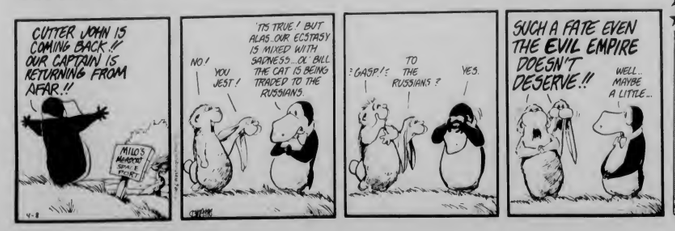
DOWN
1 Hardy heroine
2 Ribbed fabric
3 Sector
4 Prepare eggs
5 Borrower's letters
6 Excellent
7 Biography
8 Handsome man
9 Blemish
10 Binge
11 Streisand movie 1972
12 Put on —
13 Frolic
18 Shelley contemporary
22 Delete, with 'out'
24 Humorist Buchwald
26 R-V connection
27 Thai money
28 Astound
29 Readily available
31 Heather
33 Softly, in music
34 White elephant events
36 Above, to a poet
38 — Man in Havana
41 Follower
44 Foil
45 Wine description
47 — bono
48 Prevent legally
51 Rude
54 Track event
56 Animal sounds
57 Bishop of Rome
58 Eye part
60 Anthropologist Margaret
62 National Park in Utah
63 Sicilian sight
64 Part of 67 Down
66 Bantu tribe
67 Naval abbr

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

L	I	M	A		B	A	N	K		F	O	R	T	E
O	R	E	S		I	R	O	N		O	H	A	R	A
W	A	N	E		B	E	D	O	F	R	O	S	E	S
S	Q	U	A	R	E	S		S	W	A	M	P	E	T
			S	O	L	O		S	N	A	P
O	K	E	Y	D	O	K	E		G	L	I	B	L	Y
N	O	V	A		T	A	R	P	S		E	R	I	L
I	R	E	S		P	R	O		C	A	N	A
C	A	M	P		V	I	O	L	A		E	V	E	R
E	N	T	I	C	E		M	A	C	D	O	N	A	S
		C	R	I	M	E		R	A	D	I	O
O	S	S		A	L	A	S		L	O	C	A	T	E
C	H	I	L	D	S	P	L	A	Y		A	J	A	M
H	A	Z	E	L		M	A	P	I		K	A	L	I
S	W	E	D	E		A	G	E	E		E	X	I	T

4-9-86

FREAKER PATROL — BY DOWE & O'BRIEN



HOUSEMATES — BY R.MILLER

GORDY — BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY — BY BERKE BREATHED

MENU

BASICS DINNER
Mushroom Newburg with Patty Shell
Breaded Chicken Breast Supreme Sauce

BASICS LUNCH
Square Fried Fish
the same casserole

LUNCH
Square Fried Fish
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

DINNER
STEAK AND SALAD NIGHT
INCLUDES ALL THE FIXINGS

Weather

Today: Cloudy early in the day with light showers in the afternoon. Highs in the mid 50s.
Tonight: More wetness as the rain continues. Possible snow flurries, highs in the low 30s.
Tomorrow: Forget it. Clouds and probable showers with highs in the low 40s. Sorry folks.

Staff Notice

TONIGHT

ALL COLLEGIAN STAFF MEMBERS
MANDATORY
STAFF MEETING
Wednesday, 8:15 p.m., newsroom Topics:
ELECTIONS, PARTIES

Brought to you by

Night Editor.....Daniel Sobel
Copy Editor.....Lisa DiMeo
Layout Tech.....Ansel Zinter
Photo Tech.....Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor.....Ansel Zinter
ProductionSod, Rob Skelton, Naomi Davis, Maura Mchugh, Bill Freeman, Kevin Hayden, Focus on FIBER

SNACKSENSE

*Fiber/roughage adds bulk to the diet and speeds up the time it takes for food to leave the digestive tract.
*Foods that are naturally high in fiber often supply other vitamins and minerals as well.
*Meat, fish, poultry, eggs, milk and cheese contain little or no fiber.

WAYS TO INCREASE YOUR INTAKE OF DIETARY FIBER . AND NUTRIENTS, TOO. . INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING:

TRY:	INSTEAD OF
-whole wheat bread or rolls	-white bread
-brown rice	-white rice
-baked potato in the skin	-mashed potatoes
-unpeeled apple or applesauce made with skins	-processed applesauce
-orange	-orange juice
-whole grain cereals	-processed cereals
-popcorn	-potato chips
-bean dip or hummus	-sour cream dip

Division of Health Education and University Vending Services

TIME BY CUSTOM AUDIO

We are not "too busy" to talk to you about a stereo you will live with, on the average, for the next 9 years.

We are not "too busy" to let you listen to all different components.

We are not "too busy" to carefully explain any or all aspects of home music playback.

People shouldn't rush into purchasing a stereo system because a salesperson is just "too busy" to spend enough time.

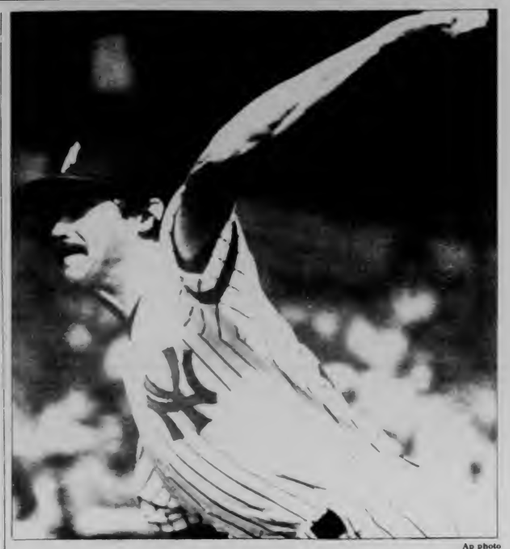
AT CUSTOM AUDIO, TIME IS ON YOUR SIDE.

Dealers of:
Adcom, Ariston, Conrad-Johnson, Creek Audio Systems, Denon, Pres Speakers, Stax, and more. . .
Systems for all budgets.

Open 9 am to 7 pm, Monday thru Saturday

183 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON 586-6277

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!



TIME WHEN THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX HAS BEGUN TO RETURN UNSOLD SPRING COURSE BOOKS TO THE PUBLISHERS

DON'T WAIT TO GET A NECESSARY BOOK — YOU MAY BE DISAPPOINTED!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX HOURS

MON-FRI 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

the UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX @ physical plant bldg

Ap photo

LOUISIANA LIGHTNING — The New York Yankees opened the 1986 baseball season yesterday with their ace, veteran lefthander Ron Guidry, on the mound. Facing the defending champion Kansas City Royals as Yankee Stadium, Guidry worked six innings before being pulled after injuring his right calf muscle.

The Yankees, under new manager Lou Pinella, shook off Guidry's injury and defeated the Royals, 4-2. For now, at least, all is well with the Bronx Bombers.

Room Choosing Notice

Special Interest Housing

The Following Special Interest Corridors will have vacancies during the upcoming room choosing process:

Social Awareness Corridor -
Brett House in Central
Butterfield Kitchen Coop -
Butterfield House in Central Area
Music Corridor -
Gorman House in Central Area
Older Students Corridor -
Wheeler House in Central Area
Honors Corridor -
Field House in Orchard Hill
NEWAppreciation of Diversity Corridor -
Webster House in Orchard Hill
Hearing Impaired Corridor -
Thoreau House in Southwest

To request housing in any of these special living areas, please come to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore during room choosing (April 14 -April 25) and fill out a specially stamped housing preference form. Thank you.

Share the health GIVE BLOOD

La Cazuela
THE MEXICAN RESTAURANT
Distinctive food and drink from Mexico and the American Southwest

★ injuries

— continued from page 16

Projected defensive line starter Steve Robar, with a shoulder injury, is also out and may need corrective surgery Add wide receiver Mike Trifari, out until summer with a dislocated finger, and starting defensive tackle Mike Kowalski (out with shoulder woes that require surgery) and the UMass medical staff has been busy.

In the coaching department, Reid said yesterday that a search is being conducted to replace departed offensive coordinator Frank Novak, who left for a USFL position the day practices began.

"The question is whether we'll choose a young, aggressive coach or an older, experienced guy," explained Reid. "I'm very confident, as are the players, in the coaches we have now, we just don't have the proper numbers.

Reid said the required university search processes mean that the new coordinator won't be aboard until the summer.

A new defensive line coach will possibly be with the team by this weekend, providing contract details can be ironed out with the new coach and the administration.

Gary Emmanuel, who joined the staff at the beginning of spring drills, has been splitting time with linebackers and defensive linemen, a tough situation for both the players and coach.

In NFL draft news, several Minutemen are being considered by pro teams.

Mike Dwyer, after an unproductive junior season, became an All-American nose guard this past fall, and caught the attention of several teams.

"Mike had a great year, but with his poor junior year he wasn't on anybody's list," said Reid. "He'll probably be a late-rounder or a free agent."

The Patriots, Cardinals and Bills are all looking at the 6-2, 275-pounder. George Barnwell, UMass' quick tailback, is also being considered as a receiver by some teams and has attended several try-out camps at their request. Eddie Sullivan, a 6-4, 255 pound defensive lineman, has an outside shot to be a free agent.

Next season, Kowalski and safety Bob Shelmire will be scouted heavily along with junior center Peter Montini.

"If my dad could see me here today, he'd say, 'Emo, how'd you get out of the attic?' I once heard my parents arguing about me, saying, 'Oh, I told you he'd live.' My dad raised me by the Good Book, although I've yet to find that verse about the electrical clamps. My mom loves me very much. You aren't going to let a few iron marks fool you. She loves me as if i were her own. She's a kidder, though. I said, 'Mom, there's nothing to eat.' She said, 'There's some cheese somewhere.' She'd love for me to get my nose caught in that trap again."

— EMO PHILIPS

SWAG presents EMO PHILIPS tomorrow night for two shows, 8:00 and 10:00 pm in the Student Union Ballroom. Tickets are $5.00 advance/$6.00 door and available at TIX in the Student Union Building, For the Record (FACES) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton.
another SOUTHWEST AREA GOVERNMENT production

★ Gorillas at Brown

— continued from page 16

against UNH) have also played well.

"Our attack is one of the best we've had here in a while," noted Garber. "It has to be tough on another team to devise a defense against us. If you key on Tom or Greg, a guy like Kelley or Ed Boardman will capitalize. I wouldn't want to face us."

On defense, UMass has been anchored by freshman goalie Sal LoCascio (four games, 6.8 goals-against, .712 save Gorilla Grumblings: T-shirts sold at the UNH game proved to be a big hit. Both models have the UMass logo on the front and either "Catch a Thrill on Boyden Hill or the always-popular "Kick Ass UMass" on the back. Look for them at the St. John's game on April 16. . .the game is being covered by NESN. . .Stevenson Field was the sight of last year's NCAA Division 1 finals.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs, 8:45 - 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

ACT NOW! DISKETTES!

Bulk 5-¼" DS/DD, 49 cents each. Lots of 50. These are not 2nds. MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. No questions asked. Call MEI, 1-800-634-3478, 9-9 EST M-F, 10-6 Sat. Offer expires 5/15/86.

ACTIVITIES

The Film "What About the Russians" gives a realistic look at the superpowers. Show at Dwight Lounge, Thursday, at 8:00

The deadline for this year's Video Arts Festival has been extended to April 15. Call Union Video Center at 545-1356

Reunion de Concepto Latino a las 5:00 pm el Miercoles 4/9/86 Para mas informacion llama a la organizacion AHORA 545-2479

DVP - Distinguished Visitors Program meeting tonight Wed April 9, 7 pm, in the office, 415 Student Union Building. Programming for next fall - mandatory!

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new exhaust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

74 BMW 2002, red, California car. Restored, 6,350 obo 538 4127 or 538-2806

1983 Toyota Tercel four door hatchback automatic A/M/FM cassette, good condition, 37,000 mi. Asking $4000 call Sue or Steve, eves 323-4855

77 VW Rabbit, brown, A/T runs well, great stereo, $1300. 584 8736

1972 VW Karmann Ghia good condition many new parts $2700 or BO call Bill 584-5173

1967 Volvo 122 VGC beautiful classic 23-27 mpg. $1700 o BO 367-2174 or 545-2750 Renee

70 Cutlass Conv. new top, duel exhaust, shocks, springs, radials all around, needs timing chain & minor body work $500 256-0072 eves

78 Monarch best offer call Don after 5 PM at 253-9330

74 VW Superbeetle - good condition semi-automatic $850 546-8115 / 546-8241

BANDS WANTED

Central Area's Spring Fling '86! Bands wanted for benefit concert for Massaid. All interested groups call anytime by April 9th. Concert will be April 25th. Call 546-6402 or 546-6406

BICYCLES

Univegs Gran Premino 23.5 in, blue, racing/high pref touring, great cond, extras $650 new, $275 call Burt 253-2131

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

CAPE COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks rsvd in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DANCE WITH JERRY LEWIS!!

April 12th and 13th in the Cage. Hear Modern Plaids, Circle, and Good Speed Rhythm & Blues. See a video light show from Rack-A-Video. All this plus T-shirts, food, prizes and fun. Fight MDA mid-night to noon in the Cage! Ten dollar minimum sponsorship

DODGE VAN

1975 Dodge Van 77,000 mi., runs well $600 or BO call 549-2739

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jerk. Kool party tunes at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc Jockeys Light Shows Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

"Spies Like Us"
Fri, April 11
Marcus Hall 131
(Eng East) 131
5, 7, 9, 11 at $2.00

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2 a.m. Everyday, anywhere on campus. Play it safe call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME.

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer?? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach. call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

4 bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option. Main st., bus stop in front Tracey 256-1807

Need temporary housing? Apts in Brittany Manor open now. Rent low - 400 rent from leaseholder. Lease on apts run through June call 549-4714

Must See large 2 bedroom 2 bath recently redone apt, air conditioning & extras Available June 1st call after 6 pm. 665-8766

Sublet summer and it's yours in the fall renovated Brit Manor apt. new carpet and bathroom 256-1232

2 bedroom starting June. Cliffside $410/month inclusive. Fall option nice apt. on woods edge 665-3282

Rent or sublet, Southwood, 1 bedroom, very cheap, room for 3 people, 256-6679

A stones throw from campus 4 bedroom house summer sublet fall option call 549-4368

Sunny, spacious apt in Rolling Green for summer sublet, four rms available at $1/0, w/pos fall option, call 256-0837

2 bedrooms available in Riverglade for summer with fall option 253-5140

Need an apartment? Great place in Crestview Close to campus. Take lease over June 1. Call 549-3815

3 bedroom in 3 bedroom house for rent. 5 minute walk to SUM. June 1st onwards. Call 549-4575. Keep trying

Want to live at Hampton Beach, NH this summer! Check close to beach. Call 546-7693

Rustic House - just over Amherst line, ½ mile from bus. 4 bedrooms, deck, huge backyard, garage. Very private. Summer/fall option. 256-0072 anytime.

Looking to sublet an apartment or room. From middle of July to beginning of Sept. Preferably close to campus Call Joe 546-4342

One bdr available in 3 bdr Puffton Village apt for summer sublet with possible fall option 549-3667

3 bedroom apt in house on Main St. newly renovated. On bus route. Great location Available June 1st call 253-5375

Roomy 1 bedroom apt avail June 1 fall option pool tennis laundry & storage Aug rent FREE 665-8459

Room for rent summer sublet with fall option available May 31 $142 a month negotiable 1¼ miles from UMass quaint house mature person preferred call Ruthi 549-4914

Summer sublet with fall option. Two bedroom Southwood apartment Available June first or earlier 256-8861

Large efficiency. Brand new Amherst Center. $520 month 253-7867 Julie

Townehouse Apt. 2 bedrooms, lease starts May 1, no waiting in! Call 549-1760

To sublet 6/1 - 8/31 2 bdrm apt, Sund. $340/beg call 665-4233, aft 5

FOR SALE

Mistral Musi sailboard for sale 350 or BO call 256-6978

Pentax Spotmatic Camera 2 lenses $65.00 256-8484

Camera - Olympus OM-1 SLR with 50 mm F1.8, leather case, skylight and close up filters. 2X converter, tripod, all in great condition. $225 or best offer. 665-8275

Stereo - Nikko NR-1000 receiver; 70 wpc Vector Research VT-150 turntable, QL-DII, FA, Celestion CS-5 3 way speakers Cost over $1100 new, asking $695 or best offer. Great condition. 665-8275

Apple Computer great deal! 700 or BO Tim at 546-9592

Guitars: Gibson classical, $350; Epiphone acoustic, $150. Both excellent. 367-2174 or 545-2750 Renee

Guitar Acoustic nice, full sound Sunburst $100 Gregg 549-3249

Receiver - Pioneer: 30 watts digital, handles stereo video 1½ yrs old $100; Fisher double cassette deck $75; Mura Mini-modern 300 baud direct line hookup $30 all prices negotiable call Dave 549-6284

12 channel Sun PA 2 24" speakers 2 monitors Bass compressor Rackmodel MUST SELL 586-8314

Alpine digital car stereo/cassette Maxima equalizer/amplifier peaks at 50 watts/channel, 4 speakers, must hear, $200 546-5769

Atomic 205cm Skis, Rachle size 11 rear entry boots, Salomon 737 bindings, used twice, $200 546-5769

FOUND

Pair of glasses found in Tobin 204 on 4/7 Claim in Tobin 402, ask for Mrs. Thayer

FREE $100!

For lease of house near UMass or Amherst Center call Keith or Jim 549-7367

HELP WANTED

COUNSELORS - Private co-ed camp in Berkshires has openings for head and assistant instructors in: softball, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, archery, video/film-making, photography, horseback riding assistant, hiking/backpacking, waterskiing, computers, waterfront (WSI), bunk counselors, and bunk unit heads. Good salaries - friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Kramer Camp Schodack 54 Sheffield Road, Newtonville, MA 02160 (617) 964-1912, days 9-6

Bring your brains and enthusiasm to. The BOG for jobs jobs jobs!! Eleven motivated people are wanted for the 86/87 school year apply now in 417 Campus Center deadline Monday April 14 at high noon The Board of Governors is an AA/EOE, and are we proud of it!

Jewish Community of Amherst looking for Sunday School and Hebrew teachers for September 1986. Also Music teacher needed. Experience with children preferred. Call 549-0223 for application

College Pro Painters
we hire early
for good summer painters $5-7/hr
The Organized Students
800-424-2468

We're looking for a fraternity, sorority, or large student organization that would like to make $2000 + this spring for one week long on-campus marketing project. No sales involved. Group must be organized and hard working. Interested? To apply call Sharon 1-800-592-2121

INTERNSHIPS AVAILABLE

Apply now for a full-time internship at the Legal Services Office for the Fall, 1986 semester. Aid attorneys in client interviews, preparation of court forms, maintenance of continuing caseload, giving advice and referrals, court hearings, and investigations and research. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. No previous experience necessary; training provided. Deadline to begin your application is April 9. For further information, come to the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center.

LOST

Vicinity Amherst Woods 3½ year miniature collie male named Fraser last seen Shays and Wentworth call 253-2963

Lost gold Belair watch on Fri 4/4 btwn Health Services and Phi Sig please call Jill 256-1363 no questions asked

If anyone finds a silver Seiko watch, please call 256-8856 reward for the honest person!!

MOTORCYCLES

82 Honda 650 Nighthawk exc cond low miles with helmets call Dave 549-2982

81 Honda Custom 400 12k mi very clean condition, ready to drive, asking $600, call Rafeel 256-8709

1975 Honda CB360T good condition, runs well needs battery Bob 546-1447

Yamaha 1982 IT175 excellent condition street legal $775 546-9355 evenings

1978 Suzuki GS400 New Dunlop Sport Elite tires, new battery, new fairing and sport mirrors. Elec start. Looks and runs exec. $650 or BO 1-568-5088

ONE MONTH RENT FREE

Housemate wanted to share 3 bedroom apt in house in Squire Village Fall semester only. Own bedroom, nonsmoker Call 6-6112 or 6-8115

PERSONALS

Seniors - senior portraits are back by popular demand, March 31 through April 11 Call 545-2874 for an appointment

SWAG presents
Emo Philips
America's hottest stand-up comic
Thursday, April 10, 1986
two shows 8:00 pm and 10:00 pm
in the Student Union Ballroom
tickets are $5.00 in advance
available at Tix in the Student Union Building, For the Record (Faces) in Amherst, and Main St. Records in Northampton

Nomination Papers now available for Southwest Area Government, President, Vice-President, and Treasurer in the SWAG Office in Hampden. Completed nomination papers are due Monday, April 14, 1986 at 5:00 pm in the SWAG Office

Concert Security volunteers needed to work security for the Southwest Concert. Sign up in the Southwest Area Government Office in Hampden, or call 5-0960.
Mandatory 1st Meeting
Thursday, April 10th, 5:00 pm
Hampden Southside Room, Southwest

Nerfbum (MJ), Someone loves you, me loves you

Debbie at Worcester D.C. We met at dinner on Thurs. and I've been thinking about you since. Call me Steve 6-6002

Know any good electric socket jokes?

PC Chris wears eggplant in her right ear. Ok Honey?

HEIDY, Happy 2 years! The times have been great! Hope they continue forever Love P.S.

Think positive! Vote yes to a positive check-off.

Quiche: No Smoking Area, Always love Woody P.S. Think Newport

Ivan Happy Birthday love always Alba

Ragida (BooBoo) get those rose petals out of your mouth! What a weekend! Love you (Yogi) Maddog

David Panagore wants to be Sylvan Area Gov't Vice President

Missy W. Many miles will not separate my feelings. I miss you and love you. Rirk

Life is like a bowl of cole slaw. The cabbage pieces are the people you meet, and the mayonnaise is the love that holds us together. And I am the mouse's head at the bottom of the bowl. Emo

Think positive!

Ross - I still think the D.P. was watered down. How about something a little stronger. Pumpkin

Brian, What happened to that phone call?? Love, Cindy

Beeg - Happy Birthday Honey a day late hope it was a great one love ya me. Hint: meet you at the corner in NJ

Vote Panagore for Sylvan Vice President

To Karen who stayed in Hawaiian 225: Please let me know if you're dead or alive. In 016 Wren Hall do I stay. You know what school, please don't delay. If you'd rather call and talk to me, 625-8337 is where I'll be. Love, Mark (512)

The Matator - Happy Birthday to my crazy roommate! Let's celebrate til we take the logs out of the wood basket. I love ya buddie - Kuzer

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 546-1282 after 9 pm

To Pittsburgh PA from 18-21 help! call Liz 6-8663

Ride wanted to NYC Friday 11 April returning Sunday 13 expenses shared Brigitta 546-9990

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lisa 549-1428

Brandywine - seeking young couple to share apt. nonsmokers only call eves 549-1813 or 546-7076

Jewish roommate wanted to share 2 bedroom apt. in Colonial Vlg. Will have own furnished bedroom. Lease starts June 1. Will sublet over summer $172/mo. call David 253-2965

2 roommates wanted to share bedroom in Brittany Manor apts. Heat and hot water included. Lease begins in Sept 86. Call 256-8458

To share Brittany Manor Apt Available now ONE MONTH FREE Call Ken, Rich, Steve 253-7312, Dave 665-4131

W Yarmouth 2 male or female 700-summer call Lisa 549-0947

Available one large bedroom in Rolling Green June 1st call mites 253-2475

Looking to take over lease for multi bedroom house near campus $$ reward $$ 546-8657 leave message on machine

Sublets/Rooms needed June 22 Aug 2 call 256-8615 8 am - 9 pm

Will Pay $585 for your 3-bdrm Puffton Village lease call now! Keep trying 546-6082 546-6185

We need an apt or house in or around Downtown Amherst. Please call Wendy 549-5933 or Amy 6-8231

Couple looking to take over lease of one bdrm appt. Please call 546-4187

SUMMER SUBLET

On Amity Place luxury condo 2 bedroom bach patio AC 459 inclusive per month call Lisa 549-0947

Summer sublet Puffton apts price negotiable call Susan 549-5958 Heather 546-4010

June-August $400 inclusive. One bdrm in 4 bdrm apt. Clean & pleasant. On bushne, close to campus. Fall option. Call Mary 256-0048 7:30-10:30 am

BRANDYWINE APT for summer sublet Call 546-8968 or 546-8970

Two bedroom apt in Colonial June first, possible fall/pos furnished bus route pool call Jay 8-11 pm 256-0943

Puffton Vlg. Summmr sublet one bdrm, pool, AC, furnished. 549-0680

Sunderland - 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt on bus route. Furnished, laundry facilities, pool available 6/1-8/31 665-7945

One room in four room apartment Rent reasonable and negotiable Swiss Village call Holly 256-1091 evenings

One room in two bedroom, Northwood Apt on bus route, rent negotiable call 665-3757 after 4 pm

Furnished 2-bedroom apartment on bus route, pool, cable great price call Sue 253-5089/Nicky 546-8152

Amherst Center 1 bedroom, living room, kitchen, bath May-August 31 Fall option $390 plus utilities 256-4289 Kathy

Brandywine Apartment for summmr sublet call 546-8898 or 546-6699

TO SUBLET

Sublet/rs needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-0675

Summer sublet spacious, sunny, cool apt ideally located between campus and town call 256-8402

Summer sublet two bdrm apt in Rolling Green call Mark at 256-0952 evenings

Sommer sublet/rs needed for Brandywine Apt. Call Dave 546-5015 or Bryan 546-9107

FREE one month rent male housemate wanted for Northwood apt. Sublet June 1st w/fall option 665-4882

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

WANTED

Second keyboardist needed to complete new working band Call John at 546-8061 or Scott at 546-5144

WANTED TO RENT

Looking to take over lease in Brandywine for fall 86. $$$ reward $$$ 546-5323 or 546-5610

Apartment in North Amherst call 665-2176

Single room needed for fall in a house or apartment, will sign lease 256-1662

We will pay cash for an apartment in Brandywine call 256-0661

$100 reward for empty lease in Brandywine or Puffton. Call 546-5324

Looking for lease in Colonial Village take over forfall 86 or summer call Scott 546-6524 or Chris 546-8595

Single room in house or apartment for fall semester 256-0642

Looking to take over lease for multi bedroom house near campus $$ reward $$ 546-8657 leave message on machine

Sublets/Rooms needed June 22 Aug 2 call 256-8615 8 am - 9 pm

Will Pay $585 for your 3-bdrm Puffton Village lease call now! Keep trying 546-6082 546-6185

We need an apt or house in or around Downtown Amherst. Please call Wendy 549-5933 or Amy 6-8231

Couple looking to take over lease of one bdrm appt. Please call 546-4187

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alteration. SHAANN's at Mall, 584-9362

Perfectionist Typing on computer - letter quality - 25% off first job 549-6178

SPORTS

Gorillas hunt NE title at Brown

Game key to playoff chance

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The record books don't lie, and although Harvard will probably have something to say about it, the fact remains that the winner of the Massachusetts-Brown lacrosse game the last nine years has gone on to win the New England title.

That, plus knowing that a win will probably boost them into the Top 10 nationally, should provide plenty of motivation for Dick Garber's 11-ranked Gorillas this afternoon as they face the Bruins in Providence.

The latest Brine New England coaches poll puts UMass, Brown and Harvard in a three-way tie for first with 89 points. New Hampshire is fourth with 72 followed by Yale with 62.

With little doubt, the NE champ will come from that group. A victory at Brown would put the Gorillas in control as they face both Harvard and Yale at home later this season.

The game this afternoon (Stevenson Field, 3 p.m.) is a pivotal one for both teams. A win would confirm the fact that the Gorillas are among the nation's elite. . .a loss puts UMass in the back of the pack nationally. The Bruins, at 4-3 and coming off a 17-4 loss at Syracuse on Saturday, also must win to entertain any hopes of making their second straight NCAA tournament appearance.

"We beat them, and they're probably out of it," said Garber. "I'm, sure they're pointing at this one as a big one. The Brown-UMass game has become of of New England's biggest rivalries."

Last season, the Bruins blew UMass out, 13-6. Opening up a close game with a great second half, Brown handed UMass their third loss in-a-row, effectively killing their 1985 hopes.

A win today would greatly bolster UMass' playoff dreams, a fact that senior co-captain Tom Aldrich isn't going to let his teamates forget.

"Beating New Hampshire (15-7 at Boyden on Saturday) was nice, but the big one for us is Brown," said Aldrich, who hasn't beaten the Bruins in his career. "If we beat them, it will send a message to everyone that we are legit."

The Gorillas figure to have a stiff challenge in what is sure to be a pumped-up Bruin squad.

With losses only to Syracuse, Virginia and the Army (all of which are nationally ranked), coach Dom Starsia's team will be looking to down their first rank team. With wins over patsies like Holy Cross and Boston College the Bruins must prove to themselves that they can beat one of the best.

Led by sophomore attackman Bernie Buonanno (14 goals and 11 assists for 25 points), senior attackman Tom Gagnon (14-9-23) and senior attackman John Keough (13-9-22), the Bruins have the most balanced attack UMass has faced so far this season.

Add senior middie Tony Stedman (8-3-11) and talented middies like Chris Abbott (twin brother of UMass middie Rich) and Brian Hefferman and Brown has variety of weapons.

"They're a talented team," said Garber. "Our defense will have its hands full."

As will Brown's defense stopping UMass.

The Gorillas have been explosive, scoring 12.5 goals-per-game. Led by junior All-American Tom Carmean with 14 goals and seven assists from his attackman position, UMass has shown the ability to score in bunches.

Junior Greg Canella, a juco transfer at attack, is second with 8 goals and eight assists. Senior middie Greg Fisk (seven-and-four) and sophomore attackman Kelley Carr (seven and three, five goals

continued on page 15

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

University of Massachusetts attackman Lisa Griswold works her way upfield yesterday at NOPE Field. The Gazelles rolled, 14-5, over Boston College.

Gazelles take 4th straight crushing Eagles, 14-5

Griswold gets six goals

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

The unbeaten tenth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team won its fourth consecutive game in convincing fashion yesterday, dismantling Boston College, 14-5, at NOPE field.

Junior All-American attackman Lisa Griswold led the UMass attack scoring a season-high six goals and dishing out a pair of assists despite constant defensive attention. Sophomore attackman Ginny Armstrong scored five goals and added an assist to go along with Griswold's efforts.

The Gazelles also got a goal and an assist from senior attack man Bunny Forbes, a goal and an assist from senior attackman and faceoff specialist Mary Scott, a single goal from junior attackman Becky Bekampis with freshman attackman Cathy Fuhrman adding an assist.

"I really thought the game would be a little closer," UMass head coach Pam Hixon said. "The game was sloppy at times, but that's because it was out-of-hand. Overall, I'm pleased."

Both teams opened the game with scoring chances, UMass getting on the board first just 16 seconds into the game as Griswold took a pass from Armstrong and fired the ball past BC goalkeeper Nichole Gervais. BC responded 1:03 later as attackman Kathy Delaney scored the first of her team-high three goals.

At the 22:34 mark, Bekampis scored her second goal of the season off a free position shot to give UMass the lead. Once again the Eagles responded as Joan Daly took a pass from Kim Hourihan and beat the left side of the Gazelle defense to knot the score at 2-2 with 21:12 remaining in the first half.

The Gazelles responded quickly, perhaps too quick for the Eagles to cope with as UMass scored just 10 seconds later as Furhman fed Armstrong for a 3-2 lead. The goal seemed to spark the UMass defensive corps as it held on the Eagles' next series. The Gazelles took advantage of the situation, ripping off five more uncontested goals before BC's Delaney managed to net her second of the game with 5:54 to go in the half.

"The defense seemed tighter after giving up the initial two goals," Hixon said.

Griswold first fed Forbes in front to increase the lead to 4-2 with 20:04 remaining. She then fed Armstrong in front for another UMass score before she tallied herself with 14:12 left. Scott then took the ball downfield off of a BC turnover and assisted on Armstrong's third goal of the half with 11:07 remaining. Three minutes later, Griswold closed out the UMass first-half scoring taking a 50-foot pass from Bekampis and beating Gervais.

BC appeared to regain its composure at the outset of the second half, scoring 37 seconds into the period while rifling a half-dozen shots at UMass goaltender Ann Scileppi, who was making her first collegiate start, for usual starter Pam Stone, who started on defense.

"Ann (Scileppi) did very well in goal today even though the footing was tough," Hixon said.

The Gazelles stopped the BC rally however, scoring the next four goals. Scott scored with 19:33 to go before Griswold hit for two more and Forbes notched her only goal. Delaney scored her third of the game with 10:12 to go in the game before Armstrong and Griswold netted to close the scoring.

For the game, the Gazelles outshot BC 26-14 while Scott held a 13-7 faceoff advantage. UMass also forced 23 turnovers and capitalized on five of nine shooting from a free position. Scileppi had eight saves in goal.

Rain washed out baseball, softball

The bats were silent for the University of Massachusetts baseball and softball teams, as games scheduled for yesterday were rained out.

The Minutewomen's doubleheader at the University of Rhode Island will be rescheduled at a later date due to it being a conference match-up. Baseball has rescheduled Holy Cross today at 3 p.m. in a doubeheader.

In softball news, pitcher Lynn Stockley was selected as Atlantic 10 co-pitcher of the week. The senior southpaw was 3-0 last week, tossing three shutouts. Stockley threw two three-hitters and a two-hitter with an earned run average of 0.00.

Another Minutewoman, sophomore shortstop Paige Kopcza, was named A-10 player-of-the-week. Kopcza is batting .365 with 14 runs batted in.

—ROGER CHAPMAN

Football notebook

Injuries hampering spring workouts

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

149 days before they open the 1986 season against James Madison University, the University of Massachusetts football team is in the news.

Six players, five on defense, are on the injured list while new head coach Jim Reid and the athletic administration scramble to fill two assistant coaching positions.

"We've had players going down everyday, it's tough, but they're mostly established players so it doesn't hurt that much," said Reid.

Starting linebackers Todd Rundle (ankle injury that requires surgery) and Vito Perrone (broken hand) will miss all of spring practice.

All-American punter Dimitri Yavis, who was being worked at defensive tackle, broke a small bone in his arm and will miss the rest of the workouts and the Spring Game, scheduled for May 3 in Alumni Stadium.

continued on page 15

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:
Today:
Baseball: Hartford (2), Lorden Field, 1 p.m.
Softball: Hartford (2), NOPE Field, 2 p.m.
Women's Lacrosse: at Harvard, 3 p.m.
Men's Tennis: at MIT, 3 p.m.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 47

THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1986

INSIDE

- Hillel wins a national award for the second time. Page 3.
- Tim Harris on the "red threat." Page 11.
- Gorillas emerge victorious – 13-8. Page 20.

Anti-gay speech set

Paul Cameron called bigot

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student said yesterday he has invited an anti-gay activist to speak here tomorrow, two days before Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week on campus ends.

Paul Cameron, a psychologist, is scheduled to speak at 10:30 a.m. on the steps of the Student Union Building. A counter-rally has been planned for noon.

Dan Perrin, the student, said he had worked for conservative causes in Washington, D.C., and was asked by Cameron's assistants to arrange a speech.

Gay and lesbian rights activists and other student groups said they will begin protesting Cameron's appearance following his speech.

A UMass physical education professor claimed that Cameron has said gay men should be quarantined to prevent the spread of AIDS, are 20 times more likely to commit mass murder, and are more likely to shoplift, cheat on their income taxes and molest children than heterosexuals.

"He has not actually said he supports the death penalty for gays, but he has said, 'Gays are worse than murderers and we should execute murderers,'" said the professor, Pat Griffin.

She claimed Cameron was expelled from the American Psychologist Association in December 1983 for violating its ethics code. She has also been censured by the American Sociologists Association, the Nebraska Psychological Association, and by a federal judge in Texas for giving false information in court.

Perrin said, "I've never heard him speak, but I've seen some of his literature.

continued on page 8

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

SPRING HAS YET TO BE SPRUNG — Amherst College sophomore, Daniel Ritter bundles up to face the nippy weather.

Black lesbian issues addressed

Conference is 'a victory'

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

The International women's conference in Nairobi was a victory for black lesbians around the world, according to a black lesbian organizer and college professor who spoke to about 50 people in the Campus Center last night.

"We have a mandate to continue to organize under the weight of our oppression, with our legacy of struggle and the tradition in which we are born," said Gwendolyn Rogers, a pyschologist and political activist, who teaches at Medgar Evers college in New York City.

Her talk, titled, "Lessons From Nairobi: Black Lesbians Organizing Solidarity," was part of Lesbian and Gay awareness week.

Rogers, who is also chair of the Political Action and Education Comiteee of the National Coalition of Black Lesbians and Gays, said lesbians went to Nairobi, the Kenyan capitol, acutely aware of the rumors that the Kenyan government would not let any lesbians in the country.

She said the concerns were legitimate because Kenya is an oppressive neo-colonial nation, but the lesbian presence was so powerful there was nothing the government could do in opposition.

Black lesbians were also confronting homophobia in the black community and racism in the lesbian community, she said.

"We were going into the motherland and we were going to talk lesbian and our black comunity is saying there are no lesbians in Africa because it's a white phenomenon," she said.

She said it was a struggle before she even left for Nairobi, the organization that was sponsoring a contingent of black women was pressured into ignoring lesbianism or lesbian issues. The Heritage Foundation (a right-wing think tank) had published a report that the conference was going to be a nest of radical feminists and lesbians who were going to be doing anything but talking about equality, she said.

"We had to insist we were going to Nairobi regardless of anything, whether or not the Kenyan government locks us up or if our sisters denounced us," Rogers said.

She said the black lesbians decided ahead of time that "whatever political struggle went down, that's where we would be.

"We felt that we could not isolate ourselves, we needed to reach our African sisters who needed to know about

continued on page 8

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

Gwendolyn Rogers

UMass hopes to regain repair money

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and Amherst's state representative this week said they hope to restore $5.7 million in repair funds for the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which was excluded from a $115 million maintenance package in the 1987 state budget.

The budget, which includes recommendations for UMass-Amherst as part of a $551 million higher education package, was submitted Monday after revisions by the House Ways and Means Committee for an anticipated two- to six-week debate on the House floor.

Rep. James Collins, a Democrat, said he would try to add the repair money through one of three amendments he plans to offer. Both he and Duffey said they believed the exclusion of UMass-Amherst was an "oversight" by the Ways and Means panel.

In a telephone interview, Collins said he would also urge the Legislature to:

- Explicitly allocate $613,000 for the University to implement the general education plan, which will replace the current "core" requirement system starting next fall if adequately funded.

Duffey had requested $1.3 million for new instructors and laboratory equipment, since as the plan is phased in many more students will be required to take courses with laboratory sessions. In his budget recommendation to the Legislature, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis reduced the figure to $25,000.

- Approve funds for "equal opportunity-Upward Bound-type programs" to recruit minority students for UMass engineering and other programs.

The maintenance money would fall under Section 100 of the budget, a catch-all "emergency repairs" fund -- encompassing municipal and state offices, parks, prisons, colleges and other facilities -- recommended by the Ways and Means Committee as an alternative to the much slower bond process normally used.

Collins, a Ways and Means member, said, "I am assuming it was just an oversight" that UMass-Amherst, by far the largest state campus and with many facilities in poor condition, was not included in the section while 22 smaller campuses were.

Among the Section 100 recommendations are $4 million for renovating the administration building at Salem State College, $3 million for University of Lowell repairs and $6 million for steel bulkhead work at Massachusetts Maritime College.

Duffey also blamed the omission on "an oversight in reproducing a long list" of items from the governors' recommendation into the new section, and added, "I think it [the $5.7 million] will be restored."

He said UMass' repair needs are "massive beyond any of the other campuses."

But a spokesman for Ways and Means chairman Richard Voke yesterday said the committee decided not to include UMass because it felt UMass repairs would be "more aptly dealt with in a regular bonding capital outlay" separate from the budget process.

The spokesman, Norm Lombardi, said he was not aware Collins would seek to add UMass to Section 100. "If he's going to do that, it's something we'll have to deal with at the time," Lombardi said.

The House will undertake three readings of the $9.7 billion budget; Collins said he will probably introduce his amendments during the final reading. After passage by the House, the budget will go to the Senate Ways and Means Committee for further revisions and then to the Senate floor. The document must be returned to Dukakis, who can sign or veto it, by July 1.

Register today for 'Class Act'

Beginning today, registration forms for seniors seeking to participate in "Mass Transformation: A Class Act," the Tower Library renovation project, will be available at the circulation desks in Goodell and the tower, where they can also be submitted.

A Class Act will take place May 1-4 and aims to refurbish one floor of the tower with everything from fresh paint to new lightbulbs, according to student coordinators of the project.

Volunteers, who are asked to work at least one four-hour shift over the four-day period, will be divided into work teams and given a task to complete during that time.

Organizers said pre-registration is required to plan the project and order supplies, and that all volunteers will get a free meal and be invited to an awards ceremony and party to be held May 5.

AP photo

BAAA! — Vermont Gov. Madeleine Kunin receives a visitor in her State House office yesterday to celebrate Lamb Month.

NRA wins 2 test votes in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proponents of a bill backed by the National Rifle Association won two crucial test votes in the House yesterday when they crushed moves by gun control advocates to maintain federal controls on handguns.

The victories suggested the NRA had the votes it needs to win passage of a bill to ease many restrictions of the 1968 Gun Control Act, passed after the assassinations of Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert F. Kennedy.

After the two votes, the House adjourned until this morning, when debate will resume on two competing firearms bills.

The gun lobby's measure is sponsored by Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo. A measure backed by police and handgun control organizations was offered by Rep. William J. Hughes, D-N.J.

Hughes created the test votes when he tried to saddle the gun lobby's bill with key provisions of his own legislation - including maintaining the current law's ban on interstate handgun sales and maintaining state and local controls over transportation of handguns across state lines.

President presses for aid to Nicaraguan rebels

WASHINGTON(AP) - President Reagan, pressing anew for his $100 million aid plan for Nicaraguan rebels, said last night that the Soviet Union and Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista rulers must be stopped from making "Central America a communist enclave."

In a nationally televised news conference, Reagan urged the Democratic-controlled House next week to reconsider its earlier rejection of the aid package to show the Sandinistas they cannot "crush their opponents" and must accept negotiations with the US-backed Contra rebels.

"The Soviet Union, Cuba's Fidel Castro and the Sandinistas are determined to make Central America a communist enclave," Reagan said at last night's press conference. "We must not and will not allow that to happen."

Earlier, Reagan said he hopes that the Sandinista refusal to sign a peace agreement Monday will demonstrate to other Latin American nations the need to aid the rebels so that pressure can be created.

Describing the Sandinista government as "a totalitarian, communist state," Reagan said, "When have we ever seen a communist government that has achieved that totalitarian statehood...voluntarily and without some pressure or force give up their power."

The Democratic-controlled House is scheduled next week to reconsider Reagan's request to send $100 million to Contra rebels resisting the Sandinista government. The House defeated the package last month, but it narrowly cleared the Republican-dominated Senate on March 27.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said yesterday that after talks with Latin American leaders he is convinced there is "absolutely no support" in the region for Reagan's Contra aid plan.

Reagan says US won't 'hold still' for terrorism

WASHINGTON(AP) —President Reagan, calling Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy a suspect in European terrorist bombings, said yesterday the United States is "not going to just sit here and hold still" amid mounting threats of new attacks against Americans.

As he prepared to face questions at a nationally broadcast news conference last night, the president told newspaper editors he is seeking support from US allies for appropriate action "in view of the greater threats that are being uttered."

Reagan said, "I can't get specific with you" about what action might be taken against Libya.

Government officials, however, said the Defense Department is holding two aircraft carriers on station in the Mediterranean to keep open the option of a retaliatory strike against Libya.

The officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the scheduled departure of one carrier for home has been canceled and the Navy has been told to drop plans for the other to head into port for a liberty call.

"It has become clear over the past 24 hours that we're going to keep our options open for the moment by keeping two carriers over there," one source said. Three carriers and a host of support ships were on station last month when the United States and Libya exchanged fire after US Navy ships and planes entered the disputed Gulf of Sidra.

Vice President George Bush, visiting with sailors yesterday aboard the USS Enterprise in the Gulf of Oman, called Khadafy "a mad dog" and said the United States had cut him down to size by striking at Libyan targets last month.

In Tripoli, Libya, Khadafy said he and his top commanders have completed military plans to challenge the United States, saying through an interpreter, "It is axiomatic that America will be defeated militarily."

During a brief question-and-answer session at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Reagan said, "We are investigating and trying to gather all the informaton we can so that we can actually, with solid evidence, point a finger at who is responsible" for last week's explosion aboard a TWA jetliner and the bombing of a West Berlin disco.

Bush blunders in Middle East visit

MUSCAT, Oman (AP) - Vice President George Bush, finding the road to Oman an unexpectedly bumpy one, has left a trail of confusion over US oil price policy and created a firestorm of political ridicule back in the United States.

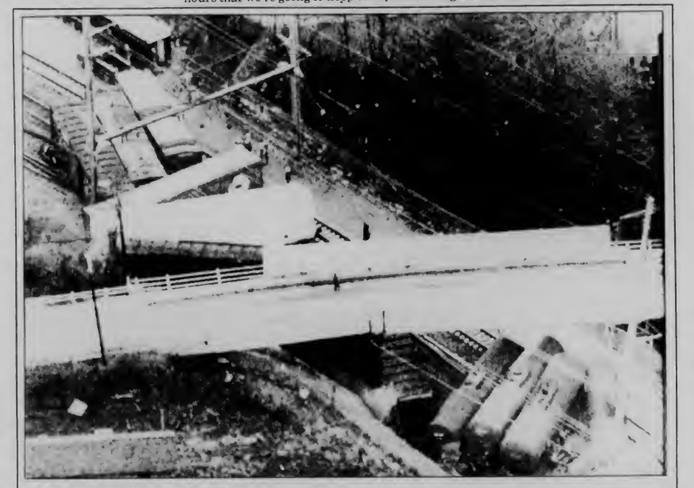
Referring to Bush's anxiety over falling oil prices, Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., suggested wryly that perhaps Bush was "trying to make his place in history by saving OPEC."

A conservative Republican strategist, opposed to Bush's push for the 1988 Republican nomination, pointed out the political sensitivity of the vice president's remarks on oil prices. Speaking on condition that his name not be used, the Republican strategist observed: "It's not lost on anyone that you have to go through oil-consuming Michigan, Iowa and New Hampshire before you get to the Texas primary."

Bush has stumbled through a 10-day trip of four Persian Gulf and the Arabian Peninsula states. Perhaps symbolically, when Bush took off on a ride across the Saudi Arabian desert several days ago, his vehicle got stuck in the sand.

The miscues haven't been limited to oil issues.

When Bush was asked about an Iranian attack on a Persian Gulf Tanker, he said, "Maybe I slept too late because I didn't realize a tanker had been sunk." At about the same time, Bush's staff was in the back of the room discussing the incident with reporters.



Even the State Department put a cloud over Bush's trip, contradicting the vice president's contention that Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy was pursuing "a new initiative" for peace in the Middle East.

Bush said yesterday he had not heard any complaints from the State Department, but he backtracked from his earlier statement.

But on no subject has Bush raised more questions than on oil, a subject dear to the heart of the one-time entrepreneur who made a fortune in the Texas petroleum fields.

Sometimes Bush seems to advocate higher prices. Sometimes he seems to favor low prices.

Over and over, he says he does not know how much oil should cost. "I'm not speculating on what level the price ought to be. I wish I knew and I don't know."

AP photo

DERAILED — Workers access the damage of a Conrail Freight train derailment, yesterday in Bowie, Maryland. Officials said two of the cars were carrying ferric chloride, a corrosive material. More than 100 people were evacuated from the area.

Correction

Due to an editing error in yesterday's story on the Legal Services Office the number of cases handled by the office was incorrectly reported. Staff members say the LSO takes about 2,000 cases a year.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

WHEN THE WALLS COME TUMBLING DOWN — Norman Deshaies of Sturner contruction company in Granby, inspects the progress on a wall being removed at Alumni stadium to install ramps for the handicapped.

Truck will gather aid for El Salvador

By JEROME STERN
Collegian Correspondent

A material aid truck will stop at the University of Massachusetts campus tomorrow as part of a campaign to help the University of El Salvador.

The truck, driven by Doug Calvin, student coordinator of the New England Central America Network, is collecting educational aids such as books, paper and office supplies. It will arrive at the Student Union Building at 9:30 a.m. A rally sponsored by the UMass Central America Solidarity Association will take place there at noon.

The truck, which will stop at 10 New England area colleges before arriving in Washington, D.C., on April 16, will be at Hampshire College later in the day. All materials collected will be shipped to El Salvador from Washington.

In 1980, the government of El Salvador seized and closed the university. It was recently reopened but given very little funding, according to a report by the Sixth National Faculty Delegation to Central America.

The report states that during occupation by the army, the university's library was burned, windows were broken and desks and office supplies destroyed. "Funding for the rebuilding [of the university] comes mainly from students themselves," it says.

CASA staff member Sheila Callahan said the truck has had success at the other campuses -- which include the University of New Hampshire, Boston University, Brown University and Holy Cross College -- and she is optimistic about its visit to UMass.

"By sending aid to the university, American students are demonstrating support and solidarity for the people and the University of El Salvador," she said.

Man arrested in kicking

Amherst police arrested a 33-year-old South Hadley man Tuesday, charging him with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon in connection with an incident in Puffton Village.

Police said the man allegedly kicked a 12-year-old boy in the head with a shod foot at the bus stop there Monday. Officers patrolling Montague Road at 6 p.m. Tuesday observed the man and arrested him.

In other police reports:

- University of Massachusetts police took a woman to the Northampton State Hospital after she was seen lying on the ground in the rain and "found to be unstable" at 2:31 p.m. Tuesday on the west side of the Campus Center.
- A 29-year-old man was arrested and charged with possession of hashish at 7:39 p.m. Tuesday on North Pleasant Street. His car was stopped and searched when he was spotted with an expired sticker and found without registration, police said.
- The rear window of a 1975 Ford was smashed with a cement block by two men at 1 a.m. yesterday in lot 50 near Crampton House, police said.

— JEFFRY BARTASH
and ANNE TAUGER

Senate approves referendum ballot

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night approved the questions for the referendum election to be held April 14 and 15.

The senate approved four of the six questions by voice votes, after the wording of each was open for debate and restructuring.

The remaining two questions -- each dealing with the Massachusetts Public Interest and Research Group -- did not need senate approval to be on the ballot. The first question put on the ballot by a petition, asks students to support "a fee of $3 per semester" for MassPIRG.

The second question, put on the ballot by SGA President Bill Bennett, asks students whether they wish to change the way MassPIRG currently receives its funding, from a negative check-off to a positive check-off.

The senate approved the wording of two questions which ask students if they support fee increases of $1.50 and $3 to the Distinguished Visitors Program and Union Program Council, respectively.

The wording of the DVP question came under contention before being approved. The original question proposed by Senator Mark DeNyse said DVP provides the University with lectures "with a degree of excellence," and was changed to "a degree of diverse programs" to eliminate influencing the voters.

Another ballot also asks whether students wish to support the funding of a multi-purpose arena by "paying $97 per year from 1990 through 2017 to cover 50 percent of the construction costs."

The two remaining questions ask whether students support an increase in the athletic trust fund, and whether the Fine Arts Center Trust Fund should be used for summer programming or for productions during the school year.

Hillel Foundation wins award

The Hillel Foundation at the University of Massachusetts, a Jewish student organization, and the University itself will receive the William Haber award from the national Hillel foundation on Sunday.

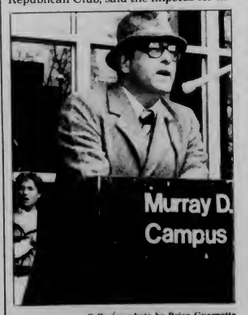
UMass Hillel is winning the award for the second time, the only Hillel in the country to do so. The award is given for programs of quality for Jewish campus communities.

The award is being given "for a whole series of long-term commitments that Hillel and the University have made," said Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, director of UMass Hillel.

Fighting anti-semitism and "positive education about what is the Jewish experience" have been twin goals of the Jewish awareness education, he said.

Larry Moses, international director of B'Nai B'Rith Hillel, will present a plaque to Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey and representatives of Hillel, at noon Sunday in Memorial Hall.

— NANCY KLINGENER



Rally for free speech draws 50

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

A rally to promote free speech on campus, in the aftermath of last week's controversial visit to the University by a Nicaraguan "contra" leader, drew about 50 people to the steps of the Student Union Building yesterday.

"Free speech is a blanket," said Paul Wingle, speaker of the student senate. "It is not something that can be selectively employed."

Stephen Erickson, organizer of the event and former president of the Republican Club, said the impetus for the demonstration was "the interruption by self-appointed truth monitors" of the speech by Jorge Rosales, the contra spokesman.

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

Louis Greenbaum, history professor, addresses yesterday's rally for free speech.

"If free speech cannot survive here it cannot survive anywhere," Erickson said.

The rally was sponsored by a coalition of students, including members of the Republican Club and the Student Government Association.

Jeffery Sedgwick, a political science professor, said the issue went beyond allowing free speech.

"We have to aim higher than free speech," he said. "We want to live together as friends."

Rev. Jon Touey from the Newman Center used a biblical parable of a man sowing wheat to illustrate tolerance.

"If you pull up the weeds [growing within the wheat], the wheat will come up too," he said. "While I disagree with the contras, we need to learn to live with people and situations we think are weeds. In each of us there is a little wheat and a little weed."

"Free speech is the quintessential foundation of life at the University," said Louis Greenbaum, a history professor. "Errors cease to be dangerous when freedom of expression is maintained."

During the rally, student senator Bill Collins pointed to a sign on the campus parking garage which read, "Stop Rusty Denthead," referring to Collegian columnist Rusty Denton.

"Now, there is freedom of speech denied," Collins said.

A staff member in the parking garage said the sign was hung without permission. He said signs must be registered through the garage office.

Support the UMass Budget

We've collected over 800 student and faculty petition signatures asking the Legislature to allocate the funds we need for next year. Show your support by completing the form below and campus mailing it to the SGA Public Policy Office, Room 420 in the SUB. (Let your Senator know how you feel!)

I support the UMass/Amherst Budget Request for FY '87.

Name _____

Campus Address _____

_____

Home Address _____

_____

Senator _____

GRAPHICS WILL RULE

Beer with us!

Choose from our bounty of more than 80 varieties of imported beer!

We won the Valley Advocate's "Best Beer Selection" award - 1982!

Our selection now is EVEN BETTER

We now feature our own brand of low priced LIQUORS as well as our super selection of WINES at very affordable prices.

Plus BULMER'S CIDER

BILLY'S BEVERAGES Beer—Wine—Liquor SUNDERLAND • 665-2727 We welcome your empties!

Plans reviewed to repair CC deck

By PEDRO M. PEREIRA
Collegian Correspondent

The engineering department of the University of Massachusetts Physical Plant is currently reviewing a plan to repair the Campus Center deck, the building's director said.

Bill Harris, Campus Center director, said details about the construction are not known, but he estimates it will cost $4 million. The repair will consist of changing the deck's blue-stone with concrete pellets which are larger and serve as a roof.

Another facet of the plan is to replace the air exhaust system under the blue-stone which prevents the accumulation of snow on the 7,000 square-foot deck. Edmund Ryan, a mechanical engineer at the physical plant said the existing system will be replaced by a more efficient one.

The plan to repair the deck emerged because of "the persistent leaking all over the area," Ryan said. He added that the leaking has worsened each year.

Harris said since 1970, shortly after the construction of the Campus Center was completed, leaking into the Blue Wall Coffee Shop occurred. "We have lived with those leaks for about 15 years now," he said.

The deck serves as a rooftop for the concourse, Blue Wall, Hatch and auditorium, which is located on the bottom level of the center. It also is the pavement of the Flagstone Cafe outside the hotel's main entrance above the concourse.

Harris said the deck is an important space because of all the functions it serves, including an informal hang-out for students.

Bidding will be held in May for the project.

FYI

Massachusetts AFL/CIO President Arthur Osborn will speak at noon today in the Student Union Ballroom. He is here at the invitation of Local 1863 of the Office and Professional Employees International Union.

A forum on world peace and nuclear disarmament will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in Bartlett 65. Speakers will be: Zukka Huapaniemi of the United Nations department of disarmament affairs, William Caldicott of Physicians for Social Responsibility and Women's Action for Nuclear Disarmament and Mark Soloman of the US Peace Council. Admission is free.

Juniors, Seniors & Grads...

GIVE YOURSELF SOME CREDIT!

• Just bring a copy of your school I.D.
• No cosigner required

APPLY NOW ON CAMPUS!

Date: Thursday, April 10
Time: 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Place: C C Concourse

CITIBANK

WMUA PRESENTS...

CLINT EASTWOOD

Dirty Harry

Clint Eastwood, Andy Robinson, Reni Santoni
Warner Brothers; Directed by Don Siegel
Color; Rated R. C. 103 minutes

THE THREE STOOGES

TONIGHT!

Thursday April 10TH

1.50 - 4:45
2.-7,9:15,11:30

MAHAR

New professor joins HRTA faculty

By KEVIN LINDER
Collegian Correspondent

Robert Bosselman, new assistant professor of hotel, restaurant and travel administration, makes no secret of his feelings about his position at the University of Massachusetts.

"I love UMass," Bosselman said. "I can't say enough how much I enjoy being here.

"People with my particular academic background are scarce commodities, so I had the opportunity of going anywhere in the country," Bosselman said. "I met [HRTA Department Head] Steve Fletcher two years ago, and after my first interview I knew I wanted to come here."

Bosselman's main interest lies in government feeding programs, such as the school lunch program and the elderly nutrition program. Although the current administration "does not pursue research in these areas," he said he is excited about the eventual research opportunities available to him as a professor.

"In both my master's and my doctoral research, I ran up against some stone walls – I was not able to obtain all the data that I wanted," Bosselman said. "The school lunch program is important to me because I think all children should have food in their stomachs; it's ridiculous to have hunger in this country."

Bosselman said he finds the UMass campus atmosphere refreshing, especially after others he has encountered.

"Open communication is fostered here," he said. "At Oklahoma State, one philosophy many times dictated policy. It was very hard being from the east there; there was a definite bias against easterners."

Aside from being back east again, Bosselman is particularly pleased to be a member of the UMass HRTA department, which is "recognized around the world," he said. "I was honored to be asked to join this faculty."

Bosselman, who served as a visiting professor at Oklahoma State University immediately after completing his doctorate there in July 1985, joined the food service management and food production area of HRTA last semester.

After graduating from the State University of New York–Buffalo with a bachelor's in biology in 1976, Bosselman gained food service industry experience, which included a three-year term as Director of Food Services for RSVP Food Service in Schenectady, NY.

He earned his master's degree in hotel and food service administration from Florida International University in 1982.

Collegian photo by Rob Skelton

Robert Bosselman, new assistant professor of hotel, restaurant and travel administration, is happy to be here.

TIME BY CUSTOM AUDIO

We are not "too busy" to talk to you about a stereo you will live with, on the average, for the next 9 years.
We are not "too busy" to let you listen to all different components.
We are not "too busy" to carefully explain any or all aspects of home music playback.
People shouldn't rush into purchasing a stereo system because a salesperson is just "too busy" to spend enough time.

AT CUSTOM AUDIO, TIME IS ON YOUR SIDE.

Dealers of:
Adcom, Ariston, Conrad-Johnson, Creek Audio Systems, Denon, Pres Speakers, Stax, and more. . .
Systems for all budgets.

Open 9 am to 7 pm, Monday thru Saturday

183 MAIN STREET, NORTHAMPTON 586-6277

A Wearable Feast

The all-cotton Camp Shirt from Robert Stock

Your choice of fruit & cheese or bread & wine

Bon Appetit!

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN

22 Masonic St., Northampton 586-6336
Mon.-Sat. 10-6, Thurs. til 9, Sun. 12-5

Asian - American Students Association — AASA '86 — University of Massachusetts at Amherst

A Contemporary & Cultural Exhibition

AASA NITE LIVE

The 3rd Annual Asian-American Spring Show

TALENT SHOWCASE

Music, song, dance, and more! Performed by 5-college students. Martial Arts Demonstrations by Kimo and the UMass Karate Club; Wah Lum Kung Fu Association of Boston, including traditional Lion Dance performance!

FASHION SHOW

A display of the Hottest Fashions from Lodestone, Casual Male, Matahari, The Lodge, Petite Sophisticate, and August Max! Hairstyles by Lord's & Lady's

DANCE! Dance the night away to the beats of DJ Mark Stoneham of Pearl Street!

Friday April 11, 1986
CCA 7 PM - 3 AM
FREE!!
Free Admission, Free Refreshments
Proper Attire Requested.

AASA SPRING WEEKEND continues with Saturday & Sunday Boyden Gym
The 1st Annual AASA Big East Athletic Tournament
Basketball and Volleyball Competition with teams from: Amherst, Baruch College, Boston College, Brown, Columbia, Cornell, MIT, NY Tech, NYU, Polytech Institute of NY, Queens College, St. Johns, Stony Brook, UMass!

For further info, contact: Bobby K 256-1659, Conrad 546-7532, Emmi 546-7355

TRADER FRED'S

Labels For Less
The Basement Store of Amherst
Spring Into Trader Fred's

Mens' and Ladies' "Patagonia Style" Jackets and other Waisted Coats value to $42.00 $9.99

Ladies' Outback Red Floral Tee Shirts
reg. $18.00 Our Price $9.99

Gitano Floral Printed Short and Top Set reg. $18 SPECIAL $9.99

Ladies' Famolare Leather Hirachis reg. $28 OUR PRICE $19.99

LADIES	LADIES	MEN'S
100% Cotton Stripe Shorts reg $18 OUR PRICE $11.99	Forenza Tank Tops reg $12. Our Price $6.99	Long John Long Sleeve Shirts reg. $18. OUR PRICE $10. 99
Clipper Bay Walking Shorts reg $18 OUR PRICE $9.99	E-Tee Cotton Short Sleeve Blouses reg $22 OUR PRICE $9.99	100% Cotton Oxford Dress Shirts reg $18 OUR PRICE $9.99
Alesso Denim Skirts reg $28. OUR PRICE $14.99	Union Bay Printed Blouses reg $14 OUR PRICE $7.99	Zeppelin 100% Cotton Slacks reg $28. OUR PRICE $14.99

If You Didn't Buy It At Trader Fred's You Paid Too Much!!

VISA/MC 253-7155
M-Sat 9:30-6 Sun 12-5 Lower Level Below Steve's Ice Cream

THE SOUND COMPANY 7 DAY SALE

AMHERST OPEN SUNDAYS 12-5 PM

ALL STORES OPEN THURS. & FRIDAY NIGHTS

SAVE $100

Panasonic HQ (HIGH QUALITY) WIRELESS REMOTE VIDEO RECORDER

CABLE READY, WIRELESS REMOTE CONTROL, SPECIAL EFFECTS INCLUDE SLOW, STILL, 2X ALL IN 6 HOUR MODE - SPECIAL HQ REVOLUTIONIZES PICTURE QUALITY

$348

SAVE $150

FISHER® HQ (HIGH QUALITY) VIDEO CASSETTE RECORDER

HQ - HIGH QUALITY PICTURE ENHANCEMENT, CABLE READY, PROGRAM UP TO 62 CHANNELS, WIRELESS REMOTE 4 PROGRAMS - 14 DAYS

$398

FISHER® PORTABLE DOUBLE CASSETTE AM/FM STEREO

3 BAND GRAPHIC EQUALIZER, HIGH SPEED DUBBING - DOUBLE CASSETTE, BATTERY OR AC POWER, DETACHABLE SPEAKERS

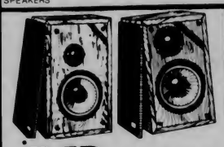
$98

SAVE $80

SCOTT DOLBY B CASSETTE TAPE RECORDER

DOLBY B NOISE REDUCTION, SOFT TOUCH CONTROLS, METAL TAPE, 2 COLOR LED METERS

$69



SAVE $70

FISHER® SEMI AUTOMATIC TURNTABLE & MAGNETIC CARTRIDGE

STUDIO STANDARD, LOW MASS STRAIGHT TUNE ARM, COMPLETE WITH MAGNETIC STEREO CARTRIDGES

$79

SAVE $70

AVID 102 - 10 INCH 2 WAY SPEAKER SYSTEM

$79.00

SAVE $160

TOP RATED

SCOTT 45 WATT RECEIVER BUILT IN GRAPHIC EQUALIZER

TOP RATED, DIGITAL AM/FM RECEIVER WITH SCAN TUNING - FM PRESETS, 5 BAND GRAPHIC EQUALIZER AND 45 WATTS/CHANNEL

$159

SAVE $60

harman/kardon 385 HIGH CURRENT AM/FM RECEIVER

HIGH CURRENT OF 15 AMPS AND DISCRETE COMPONENTS DELIVERS UP TO DOUBLE THE 30 WATTS PER CHANNEL OF POWER

$219

SAVE $120

Technics AUTO REVERSE DOLBY B&C CASSETTE RECORDER

FANTASTIC VALUE - AUTO REVERSE WITH DOLBY B&C, SOFT TOUCH CONTROLS, LED FLOW METERS - MIKE JACKS

$169

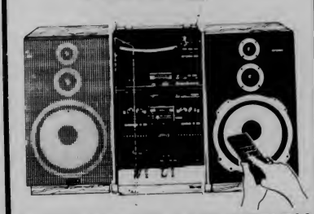
FISHER®

FISHER 30 WATT DOUBLE CASSETTE MUSIC SYSTEM WITH DIGITAL DISC PLAYER

SAVE $200

$598

FISHER®



FISHER® 70 WATT DOUBLE CASSETTE MUSIC SYSTEM WITH DIGITAL DISC PLAYER

SAVE $200

$698

FISHER®

FISHER® 100 WATT WIRELESS REMOTE CONTROL SYSTEM WITH DOUBLE CASSETTE DISC PLAYER

SAVE $300

$998

SINCE 1951

The Sound Company

SPRINGFIELD, Boston Rd. Marshall's Plaza, 785-7069, Mon.-Tues.-Wed. 11-6 P.M. Thur.-Fri. 11-9 P.M. Sun. 12-5 P.M.

SPRINGFIELD, 447 Sumner Ave. (at the X), 736-3626, Thurs., Fri., Til 9 P.M. Sun. 12-5 P.M.

CHICOPEE, Fairfield Mall near Caldor, 593-5390, Mon.-Sat. til 9:30, Sun. 12-5 P.M.

AMHERST, 201 N. Pleasant Street, 256-0744, Mon.-Wed. til 5:30; Thurs. & Fri. til 8 P.M.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS *QUANTITIES LIMITED * NO RAIN CHECKS * WITH-IN METROPOLITAN SPFLD. AREA — NOT TO EXCEED 30 MILES

Concert company holds elections

The University of Massachusetts' student-run concert production company, Union Program Council, held its top elections Tuesday.

Richard McCafferty won the talent coordinator position, replacing Lance Foley who has held the position for more than two years.

The new business manager is Catherine Turner, a junior political science major who is also the coordinator of the Board of Governor's Program Council.

Damon Riley is the new production manager, having formerly served as co-security coordinator; Jo Ellen Saunders and Eric Nakajima will assume his duties.

— ROB SKELTON

Group seeks members at UMass

By ANN BRITTON
Collegian Correspondent

Students Against Multiple Sclerosis, an organization to raise funds to pay for research of the neurological disorder, is looking for campus chairpeople and others to organize fundraising events.

"MS most commonly strikes people who are between the ages of 18 and 34," said Tracy White, a member of the organization in New York City. "We are trying to involve students in helping people who are from their own age group."

Multiple sclerosis involves the breakdown of nerve cells. Its long-term effects range from blurred vision to paralysis.

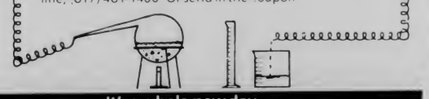
According to John Macero, campaign recruiter for this area, the position of campus chairperson is very time-consuming.

"The best chairpeople have been individuals who are not involved with other causes," Macero said.

He said students interested in business, marketing majors and law students have been successful chairpeople.

"Leaders should have good organizational skills and enjoy being in charge," he said.

At other campuses, "because of the time involved, some students have received internship credit for the position," she said.



Macero said, "We have worked it out with some school administrators. Students have earned as many as nine credits, but it varies from school to school. Once the chairpeople have been selected, they must meet with the internship office to work out the details."

Macero said anyone interested in becoming a chairperson should call Students Against Multiple Sclerosis: 1-800-BUST MS.

CHEM AND GO THIS SUMMER.

PART-TIME UNDERGRADUATE LAB COURSES

When it comes to taking lab courses in the summer, more and more people are going to Northeastern University. For Chemistry, Biology, Physics. In four-, five-, and 10-week sessions. On nearby campuses in Boston and Burlington. For more information, call (617) 437-2400 or our 24-hour line, (617) 461-1400. Or send in the coupon.

It's a whole new day...

Northeastern at night

Northeastern University, University College/School of Engineering Technology
P.O. Box 154, 360 Huntington Avenue, Boston, MA 02117

Please send me information on:
Sciences | Engineering Technology | Business Administration
Liberal Arts | Health Professions | Law Enforcement

Registration is week of June 2

NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE ZIP

Northeastern University
An equal opportunity/affirmative action university

cp

Serve In Appalachia

Come for one week to serve the needs of the poor in Appalachia. Single, Catholic men are invited to be involved in home construction, visiting the elderly, and sharing one's gifts with the mentally, emotionally and physically handicapped. There will also be opportunities to learn about the culture, people, and music of the Appalachian area.

The week-long sessions available are:
May 17 - 23
June 7 - 13
July 12 - 18
July 26 - August 1
August 24 - 30

For more information about the Summer Volunteer Program, please send this coupon to: Brother Jack Henn, Glenmary Home Missioners, P.O. Box 465618, Cincinnati, OH 45246-5618

Name _____ Age _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Telephone ( ) _____ College _____ S74-3/86

Bring a couple friends and your appetites and enjoy some of the best Mexican food anywhere. . .

...Offering Quality Mexican Foods

TACO VILLA

NORTHAMPTON, 21 CENTER ST, 584-0673, Bring Your Own Beer or Wine
AMHERST, 41 BOLTWOOD WALK, 256-8217, Beer & Wine Served
SPRINGFIELD, 749 SUMNER AVE, 788-0916, Bring Your Own Beer or Wine

ROYAL CRANE ORIENTAL FOOD MARKET

Sauces & Spices • Hard to Find Fresh Oriental Produce & Noodles
Cooking Implements & Supplies, such as Rice Cookers, Woks, etc.
Homemade Take-Out Food • New Items in Every Week • Indian Spices
Pastries • Oriental Gifts; Carved Soapstone, Laquerware, Chinese & Japanese Serving Dishes & Place Settings, Tea Sets, Bake Sets, Korean Mink Blankets & Embroidered Bed Spreads.

360 College St., Rte. 9, Amherst
253-5658
Sun-Fri. 10-8; Sat. 9-8

KARATE
$19.95
for 4 weeks
Fred Villari's Studio
253-7349

NOW HIRING
GO GETTERS
ONLY
25 OPENINGS

Telemarketing Tools and Industrial Supplies to Construction Companys Nationwide. Salary and Commisions and Bonuses. 3 Shifts allow you to work around your schedule. Shifts: 6:30 am - 10:30 am; 3 pm - 6 pm; 6 pm - 9 pm; Saturdays 8-12 and 12-4. Call 7 am - 7 pm Dave 256-4101

Try to relate by not seeing straight! Make your appointment! Don't be late!

Perms

$28.00 includes conditioning and blow dry or set.
(does not include cut)

MARJON HAIR DESIGN
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551

★ Cameron

continued from page 1

'It's a coincidence it happened during Gay Awareness week," he said. "Students should be able to hear another viewpoint, especially after the gay and lesbian events occurring this week.

"By not letting him speak they [would be] basically saying to individuals, 'You don't have the intelligence to figure out what is myth or right,'" Perrin said.

"Disrupt his speech; don't let him come on this campus. I know him; I met him," said David Summers, a gay activist and AIDS victim who spoke at UMass Tuesday. "Everyone who is not male, white, Christian and preferably from the South is under his attack."

"He has essentially come out in the last year or so and focused on the gay and lesbian movement," said Reed Ide, a co-director of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns at UMass. "As the AIDS crisis has escalated his material has focused on that."

In order to accomodate Cameron in case of bad weather, room 168 of the Campus Center has been reserved by the "Silent Majority," the right-wing group that publishes The Minuteman.

Co-editor of The Minuteman, Tony Rudy, said the group has nothing to do with the event.

An individual must pay to reserve a room in the Campus Center but it is free for a registered student organization, he said. "If the Radical Student Union wanted me to reserve a room for a speaker I would do it," he added.

"I do want to hear him; every organization needs to be critiqued," said Mike Cerrato, a student senator and member of the Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Association.

★ Rogers

continued from page 1

the struggle in the US."

The owners of the hotel where Roger's group was staying threatened to drag the women out to make room for participants in the official UN conference. The confrontation was negotiated successfully after the women held their ground in the face of "all kinds of intimidation," she said.

The women dealt with many international issues such as the International Monetary fund, the US Immigration and Naturalization Service and alternative development, "which would help women rather than multinational corporations," she said.

She said many women at the conference were ardent political activists who were on the cutting edge of social change in their own countries.

Thursday, April 10 at 7:15

Alliance Christian Fellowship

welcome!

Campus Center UMass

RENT A WRECK
New & Used Cars
Trucks & Vans Also Available
North Amherst Rent-A-Wreck
Rt. 63 No. Amherst
549-2880

James H. McManus eating place
CAMPUS PLAZA
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
Rte. 9 • Hadley/Amherst
256-6889
• OPEN
6 AM - 3 AM
SUN-THURS
• OPEN 24 HOURS

JBS
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
11 am - 2 am 7 days
253-7018
50 Main St. Amherst, MA

I Can't wait to bite into some good beef at J.B.'s.

Ha, that's just what I was thinkin'!!

Well your dreams have come true both of you can come down today 4/10 or tomorrow 4/11 and you'll receive a regular beef, large fry and a Coke

If you want a friend in an ad bring it down to J.B.

free catalog★
Europe
round trip from LONDON 438
PARIS 438
AMSTERDAM 428
BRUSSELS 438
Eurail Passes, Int'l Student ID, AYH Memberships all issued on the spot!!
★ call our campus hotline!
253-7529 or drop by 256-1261
79 So. Pleasant St, 2nd floor, Amherst
Council Travel Services

IBM-PC* COMPATIBLE
$1500
10 MEGABYTE (w/single Floppy)
• 150 watt power supply
• 256 K memory (upgrade to 640K available)
• Hi-res green or amber monitor
• Parallel printer port
• Keyboard: AT or XT style
• Hi-resolution Hercules emulation board
Dual Floppy System only $1050
* Trademark of International Business Machines
promptWorks
Northfield, MA (413) 498-2724

CHINESE KITCHEN
FAST FOOD RESTAURANT
興旺樓
Eat In or Take Out Hours
Sunday Noon to 10 PM
Mon-Sat 11:30 AM to 10 PM
Pu-Pu Platter $12.00
Try Our Luncheon-Dinner Specials
Only $1.49 before 3 PM, $1.90 after 3 PM
2 LOCATIONS:
430 Russell St (Rt 9) Hadley 253-2571
150 King St, Northampton 586-8220

Anyone Interested in joining the
UMASS MINUTES

UMass' Kickline - Dance Team
Info Session (mandatory)
Thursday, April 10, 6:30 pm, 12th floor Coolidge
Practice for Tryouts
Mon April 14, Wed April 16 and Thurs April 17 at 7 pm
Tryouts
Wednesday April 23 at 7 pm
NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY
For More Info Call 546-8015

MASSPirg seeks reaffirmation

In 1972, as a means of addressing their concerns on important public interest issues, students at UMass/Amherst voted, by a majority, to form a MASSPIRG chapter to be funded through a $2 waivable fee on the University tuition bill. Every couple of years since the establishment of UMass PIRG, students have voted for the continuance of the Chapter. In 1982, students voted 89 percent in favor of MASSPIRG.

UMass PIRG's 14 years of success was exemplified by the campaigns of last semester. Students here at UMass collected 13,000 signatures toward an unprecendented campaign that qualified four initiative questions for the 1986 state ballot: the clean-up of acid rain and hazardous waste, the establishment of a Citizens' Utility Board (CUB), and the reform of voter registration laws. Further, UMass PIRG, through a number of creative events, raised money toward local and world hunger relief.

This semester MASSPIRG is running a campus wide referenda next Monday and Tuesday. Students will be asked to reaffirm their support for the MASSPIRG Chapter at UMass to be funded by a $3 waivable fee on the tuition bill.

We, the undersigned UMass Senators, wish to join the coalition of "Senators in Support of UMass PIRG" as a means of demonstrating our support for the continuation of the MASSPIRG Chapter at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst to be funded by a $3 per semester waivable fee on the University bill. Any student who wishes not to support MASSPIRG may waive the fee.

Ellen Breslin - Academic Affairs, Robert Griffin, John Crowley, Stacy Roth, Dani Burgess - Student Trustee, Paul Wingle - Senate Speaker, W. Greg Rothman, Joseph Demeo, Seth Kaplan, Laura Gottschalk, Caroline Murray, Marc Pierrat, Jennifer Johnston, Karen Cyr, Chuck Parsek, Terese Rothenberger, David Martin - Pres. Commuter Area, Ursala Tafe, Joseph Sparks - Chair Rents and Fees.

As a leader on the campus and as one who works for the best interests of the students here at UMass/Amherst, I the undersigned support the continuation of the MASSPIRG Chapter at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst to be funded by a $3 per semester waivable fee on the University tuition bill. Any student who wishes not to support MASSPIRG may choose not to pay the fee by waiving it.

Mary Gannon - Co Pres. OHAG, Laura Tyler - Co Pres. OHAG, Jan Worthington - Pres. Central, Mimi Jacob - Pres. Dwight House, Leslie Casper - Co-Pres. JQA, Lori Zetlin - Pres. Gorman, Michael Collins - Pres. Cance, Lisa Magnarelli - Pres. Johnson, Tom Dellaire - Pres. McNamara, John Manning - Alpha Delta Phi Pres., David Connor, Jr. - Zeta Psi Pres., R. Sean Saganeu - Lamdi Chi Pres., John Healy - Theta Chi, VP, Tara Bhavnani - Chi Omega Pres., Donnetta Wilson - Nummo News Managing Ed., Regina Kregen - LBGA, Roger Morez - RSU, Lee Inbar - Valley Women's Rugby, Barbara Hebel - Woman's Basketball.

WHY KEG BEER TASTES BETTER THAN COOKED BEER.

Ask most beer drinkers, and they'll likely agree: nothing tastes better than beer from a keg.

Ever since the days of Frederic Miller's original Plank Road Brewery, keg beer has always been fresher. That's because it isn't cooked to preserve it like most bottled and canned beers.

Well, now there's a beer that delivers that same fresh draft taste in a bottle. A beer specially cold-filtered instead of cooked, so it tastes like it was drawn straight from the keg.

Plank Road Original Draught.
Keg beer in a bottle.

PLANK ROAD
Original Draught ™

©1985 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

You are cordially invited to attend
CAREER NIGHT
for
PSYCHOLOGY MAJORS
Thursday, April 10
at 8:00 P.M.
at
Campus Center, Room 163
Several Psych. Dept. alumni/ae will be on hand to discuss graduate school and career opportunities for psychology majors
Sponsored by
UMass Placement Service
Alumni Association
Department of Psychology
For more information contact:
Psychology Advising Office
Tobin 403
545-0377
Wine and Cheese to follow

Mortar Board

Mortar Board is a national honor society of college seniors. The society recognizes the qualities of superior ability, outstanding and continued leadership and dedicated service to the college , university or community.

Founded by The Ohio State University, Swathmore College, The University of Michigan, and Cornell University in 1918, the Mortar Board now has 183 active chapters across the country.

The Isogan Chapter of the Mortar Board was installed at the University of Massachusetts in 1955. Those students who have shown qualities of academic excellence, leadership, and service are honored with membership. This year the selection committee reviewed approximately 250 information sheets from those students who merited eligibility.

The Mortar Board pleased to announce the newly tapped members for 1986 - 1987'

Rebecca Bekampis	Kathy Johnson	Celeste Rice
Paul Collins	Brian Kettler	Janet Risman
John Crowley	Steven Kohl	Gwen Roos
Dina DiFlumeri	Carla Kszaszcz	Frederick Slavin
Kim Ethier	Kelly Lynch	Kevin Sweeney
Andrea Griswold	Sharon Marrero	Michael Torla
Dana Grossblat	Susan Phillips	Marissa Tortola

We thank all who expressed interest in the Mortar Board Honor Society. This year, a great number of qualified Juniors made the competition most keen, and the decision quite difficult. To each applicant; you have every reason to be proud of your accomplishments during your college career. Certainly you are a credit to yourself and to the University. We know you will continue to strive for excellence. The Mortar Board extends its best wishes for a successful future.

Patricia Hunt — Selections Chairperson
Keith Sherman — President

Victoria Vought — Vice President
Mary Santry — Treasurer
Linda Greces — Secretary

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted.

Founded in 1870

BOARD OF EDITORS

Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief
Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor
Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor
Joel P. Coffidis, News Editor
John Yonce, Women's Editor
Michelle Segall, Photo Editor
Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor
Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Friends of freedom?

The UMass Republican Club deserves credit for hosting a free speech rally yesterday, and many of the points made by the speakers should have been heard by a wider audience. One person who could have learned a lot from the advocates of the First Amendment is the Republican Club's hero, President Reagan.

During antiwar protests at the University of California at Berkeley, Reagan, then governor of California, said, "If there has to be a bloodbath, let's get it over with." Since then, Reagan has been no friend of free speech or a free press.

During his presidential term, government attacks on freedom of speech and freedom of information have been widespread and repeated.

By gutting the Freedom of Information Act, by imposing lifetime censorship agreements and lie detector tests on government employees, by refusing to let the press cover the Grenada invasion, by denying visas to critics of US foreign policy and by drastically increasing postal rates for non-profit publications, the Reagan administration has attacked the free exchange of ideas necessary in a democracy.

At the rally, professor Louis Greenbaum noted that Thomas Jefferson believed in giving the people "full information of their affairs through the channel of the public papers and to contrive that those papers should penetrate the mass of the people."

Republican Club members may genuinely believe in this wisdom from a Founding Father, in which case they should ask themselves why they, and others, support a president so hostile to it.

Time to pay up!

Next Tuesday is the fateful day for all of us who earned, begged, borrowed or stole more than $3,430 last year. That's right, it's April 15, due date for tax returns.

Now, crunch time, is not the opportune moment to examine what our checks to Uncle Sam and the Duke of Massachusetts pay for -- or where that money went that won't be refunded, for those of us who went the withholding route.

Never mind that the University is struggling for funds while there is a state surplus. Disregard the right-wing tyrants, mercenary guerrilla armies and cynical State Department "white papers" we bankroll when we feed the federal government. Dismiss the fact that so many dollars we cede on Form 1040 (or 1040A, or 1040EZ) go to the Pentagon for wasteful equipment, corrupt corporate contracts and terrifying weapons systems.

No, this is no time for reflection. Just slog through the nightmare of paperwork, the double- and triple-checking, searching for deductions and loopholes (the richer you are, the more you can find). It's better to part with the bucks now than to get screwed by the IRS later. Good luck! -- we all need it.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

'NO, THAT'S NOT THE GANG I'M LOOKING FOR, MA'AM — I'M AFTER COMMUNISTS!'

Monetary abandonment

Peter Dow

A disturbing trend has become evident in American foreign policy in the past few years, despite the laudable efforts of the Reagan administraton to alter it. This trend concerns the lack of confidence (emanating from the Congress, not the executive office) our allies have in America's ability to back up our rhetorical commitment to the defense of democracy and freedom.

A foreign policy based on pragmatism and realism should not entail an abandonment of our commitment to democracy. In Afganistan, for example, Congressional posturing in support of Afgan rebels is contradicted by the utter lack of financial support America has committed to their cause. Thus, while the mujahideen are being cut down by Soviet Hind helicopter gunships, Congress continues to provide pitiful amounts of military aid for fear of getting America "too involved," while it provides just enough aid that can be used as an election tool providing that they are committed to "fighting communism." In Angola, Jonas Savimbi and his UNITA forces have been fighting for independence since the 1970s, first against Portuguese rule, and, since 1975, against the Marxist-Leninist MPLA, closely allied with the Soviets. The genuine democratic and nationalist UNITA movement was denied funds by Congress in 1976, when the Clark Amendment was passed. Last year, the amendment was repealed, so left-wing Congressional representatives tried to stem the tide favoring the funding of Savimbi by claiming UNITA had "violated human rights." The effort to discredit UNITA and Savimbi failed miserably, primarily because the allegations were not true. Yet still UNITA and the Afgan rebels do not receive substantial U.S. support, which should lead all Americans to question the foreign policy logic employed by our Congress.

But perhaps the most troubling example of lack of resolve involves our policies in Central America. While the Sandinistas, in both their rhetoric and actions, confirm their strong Soviet bloc ties and their expansionist goals, our Congress closes its eyes to this reality and has left our allies in this area (Costa Rica, Honduras, El Salvador) to fend for themselves. While the governments of Honduras and Costa Rica realize the threat posed by the Sandinistas, they are very reluctant to provide open support and sanctuary for the Nicaraguan democratic resistance, fearing that the United States will abandon our support for them. Thus Costa Rica and Honduras have repeatedly been forced to overload and ignore hundreds of Sandinista forays into their territories, and follow a course of appeasement with a totalitarian government it profoundly mistrusts.

A Congressional foreign policy based upon a fear of getting America involved in "another Vietnam quagmire" makes a mockery of our commitment to freedom. First, ignoring the problems in Central America and hoping they will go away is dangerous not only for America, but also for our Central American allies. The Sandinistas have openly claimed that they are a part of a "revolution without frontiers." And the late Salvadoran communist leader Cayetano Carpio stated that "The revolutionary process in Central America is a single process. The triumphs of one are the triumps of the other. Guatemala will have its hour. Honduras its. Costa Rica, too, will have its hour of glory. The first note was heard in Nicaragua."

Lastly, Congress is preoccupied with the mistaken notion that ending U.S. support for democratic movements will lead to an end of bloodshed. This is clearly not the case. Consolidated totalitarian regimes do not stop murdering their people, they simply end all western media access to such repression. Indeed, while Congress is so dedicated to stopping the killing, they should not be allowed to hand away other people's freedom rather than help them fight.

Peter Dow is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

A most dangerous anti-gay voice

Tomorrow, Dr. Paul Cameron will be speaking on the Student Union steps from 9 a.m. to noon. This talk has been sponsored by UMass student Dan Perrin. Cameron has been called the "most dangerous antigay voice in America" by the Advocate, a national gay newsmagazine. This talk, scheduled during Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week, is a direct slap in the face of gay (and straight) students, faculty, and staff here on campus. Nevertheless, hearing Cameron speak will answer a question that I have heard asked; "Why do you need to hold a gay and lesbian awareness week?"

Cameron and his followers have been censured by the New York Times and the Los Angeles Times. The American Psychological Association, citing violations of the Preamble to the Ethical Principles of Psychologists, dropped Cameron from its membership in 1983. This was done after psychologists began complaining that Cameron was distorting their research. In 1984, the Nebraska Psychological Association stated that it "formally disassociates itself from the representations and interpretations of scientific literature offered by Dr. Paul Cameron in his writings and public statements on sexuality." His sworn statement that 'homosexuals abuse children at a proportionately greater incident than do heterosexuals' is based on distorted data.

In his talk tomorrow, Cameron will be orating these same distortions to the UMass community. Cameron's style also makes it very difficult to debate what he is saying. According to Dr. Bill Paul, a San Francisco psychologist who has debated Cameron, "the arguments keep jumping around. It's like a pinball machine. You try to build up a case, and the argument changes." (This is the same technique employed by the infamous "Man with the Cross" who spoke on campus last semester, who frustrated anyone trying to discuss religion with him, Christian and non-Christian alike.) Combined with his distortion of the truth, this makes his arguments sound convincing, though they are little more than his own twisted viewpoints.

I urge everyone to listen to Cameron, but take what he says with a grain of salt, knowing that he is famous for his warping of the truth. Ask questions about statements that do not seem right to you. Then, at noon, join with us in a rally to show solidarity with the gay and lesbian community. Everyone has gay or lesbian friends and acquaintances, even thought they might be afraid to let you know their sexual orientation, or be open about it. But they exist. Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week is an attempt to educate the UMass populace to the fact that gays are not monstrous sexual deviants...that we are just people. Come support our right and yours to be yourself.

Ronald Lussier
Fidelis Orozco
Amherst

Letters

Respecting our diversity

Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week has provided an opportunity for members of the campus community to learn more about issues and concerns of importance to gay men and lesbians on campus and in our society as a whole. The varied events of this week have been intellectually stimulating, informative, and entertaining. This forum for the exchange of ideas and information presents a unique opportunity for the campus community to put into action the values which underlie many University policies and procedures, including our policy against discriminaiton on the basis of sexual orientation.

As a community we learn from our differences as well as our similarities. We must respect our diversity. We emphatically support the free expression of all viewpoints. We cannot and will not tolerate harassment or acts of violence against any members of our community.

D.L. Madson
Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

A vote for continued quality

In 1977 the Union Program Council was created as an RSO by the student body and SGA to be the official concert organization on campus. Our mission statement is to provide UMass with diversified musical programming throughout the year and put on the annual Spring Concert with the leftover revenue and monies provided by the SGA. Since 1977 they have been line funded to the amount of $3 per undergraduate per year. Over these past nine years we have seen yearly tuition hikes, increased athletic, health, and dorm fees but no increase in student program funding for UPC or the Distinguised Visitors Program. The cost of producing a concert has increased over 300 percent since 1977. RSOs have also seen the full costing policy enacted by the administration.

This policy charges all RSOs the "full cost" for all physical plant services, hence doubling all University related concert costs. Over the last nine years UPC has brought the Grateful Dead, Talking Heads, J. Geils, U2, Santana, UB40, The English Beat, Phil Collins, The B-32's, Elvis Costello, R.E.M., Paul Young, and Al Jarreau as well as free Spring Concerts. All this has been accomplished without a single increase in funding since UPC's inception. We here at UMass should realize that the increase would help cover the cost of rising inflation in the music industry and insure our ability to bring major acts to our campus.

UPC would like to keep Spring Concert free and UMass Number 1 in college concert programming, but we need your help with a yes vote on the April 14 and 15 referendum question. The issue is now in our hands to decide and send the administration a clear message of what we want in fee increases on our tuition bill.

Lance Foley
UPC

Typical short sightedness

Question of the day; can reactionaries read full paragraphs, or only quotes out of context? My answer would be the latter, based on Brian Darling's glaringly misleading interpretaion of Timothy Harriss' editorial. If our pundit from Southwest had ventured to complete reading the column he would have found the very next sentence to say "But we are more humane than that." Yet with typical short sightedness, Darling has again failed to complete a viable critique, leaving the reader to wonder yet again just what he stand for; if anything but functional illiteracy.

Matthew Shakespeare
Northampton

Fostering an awareness

Jeffrey Bartash

My first awareness of sexual orientation came when I was a 10-year-old boy. My mother asked me if I liked girls. I said yes; but I was puzzled. I asked my mother if I could like anything besides girls and she told me that some boys like other boys and some girls like other girls. That was the beginning of a homophobia I developed through adolescence as I grew up in a conservative, blue collar and religious family.

Today, I have discarded many unfounded and prejudiced fears and beliefs that accompanied me through my youth, including homophobia. Education is a wonderful thing and has allowed me to accept and reject ideas and beliefs on my own terms. Recently, I have become interested in why homophobia exists in our country.

As I see it, the core of resistance to lesbians, gays and bisexuals traces back to the origins of religion and morality hundreds of years ago. Debate whether the Bible condemns these people still rages, but it's apparent that early Christians believed the Bible condemned them because many Christian societies outlawed and ostracized gays and lesbians.

Many religions in our country still oppose gays and lesbians and play a powerful role in controlling the views of their members, but the grip of religion is not as strong as it once was.

As I see it, the power most responsible for subduing the acceptance of gay peopley in recent times is the power wielded by the predominant ruling sex of our country--men.

Throughout the long existence of humans, men have been perceived as the dominant sex. For hundreds, even thousands of years, women were subservient to men. Thus, males developed a conscious trait of masculinity in which physical strength was considered a great power.

In the past 100 years, the women's movement has made great strides toward equality with men. Even though the movement is seen by some to be a threat to masculinity, men did not strenuously oppose the movement because they considered the threat minor.

Yet being gay, specifically being a gay man, does pose a threat to some men's masculinity, and that is why many males have a strong homophobia. Males are frightened of the serious sexual acts between gay men. Anal sex is considered a physical violation of masculinity and any man who allows himself to be penetrated in such fashion is considered weak and feminine by "normal males." Oral sex is considered the final proof that males are the masculine and dominant sex (when receiving it from females) and any man who gives oral sex to another man is also considered weak and ignominious.

The latest trend in pornographic films emphasizes the protection of masculinity; lesbian scenes are being allowed with more frequency in over-the-counter pornographic films and males seem to be starting to accept lesbianism. But males will not accept scenes of gay men.

My point is not to criticize religious or moralistic persons, nor condemn masculine-conscious males (every male posesses masculinity); but to prompt others to ask themselves why they fear lesbians and gay men.

We are all allowed freedom of personal choice in our country. People have the right to select their own partners. I do not approve of homosexuality, but I accept it. You all have a choice whether to approve or disapprove of gays and lesbians, but you all have to accept them.

Jeffrey Bartash is a Collegian staff member.

The Collegian welcomes letters, columns, and cartoon submissions. Submissions should be mailed to the Editorial Editor at the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01003, or they can be dropped off at the Collegian classified ad counter in the basement of the Campus Center. Due to the volume of mail received, individual replies cannot be made.

'SORRY, COLONEL BUT YOUR INSURANCE HAS BEEN CANCELED.'

Republicans et al: beware

Timothy Harris

Brain Darling has got my number. I suppose I should have known I couldn't hide my left-wing totalitarian proclivities forever. Now is the time to come clean. A Joseph Stalin is rumored to have once said, "Why stop when you're on a roll?"

When I'm in power, boy, things are going to be different. People who run and listen to their Walkmans at the same time will be shot on sight. They are dangerous. Those who insist upon listening to Madonna, REO Speedwagon, Duran Duran and other vile, counter-revolutionary noise shall be reeducated. Social theorists and other armchair revolutionaries will be sent to CISPES workcamps where they will organize house parties 80 hours a week. And that's just the beginning.

Peter Dow will be brainwashed so that he is incapable of telling a lie. This will have the pleasant side-effect of considerably shortening his lumbering columns. Anyone who is now, or ever has been, a member of the UMass Republican Club will be automatically blacklisted. From that moment on they will be unable to get served in Barts, have pizza delivered to their homes, or open an IRA account.

Joe Duffey's speech and correspondence will be censored to only allow communication in clear, unambiguous sentences. He, and all the other "revisionist" marxists at Whitmore, will be forced to recite the Communist Manifesto before breakfast until they can remember what it says.

Whitmore itself will be converted into a training center for Cubans, Libyans and other people like that. They will spread terror throughout the Pioneer Valley. Immediately thereafter the football field will be converted into a landing strip for Soviet MIGs.

The Undergraduate Student Senate will be purged of all counter-revolutionary and revisionist influences. Only motions that redistribute wealth and support revolutionary struggles abroad will then be heard. Those who do not respect the speaker will be brutally slaughtered.

The Collegian, The Minuteman, Critical Times, and all other unauthorized publications will be expropriated and forced to spew Marxist dogma. Any misspellings of the words bureaucracy, bourgeoisie or proletariat will be followed by multiple thumps on the head with all three volumes of Das Kapital. Running dog liberals such as Howard Ziff and William Spain will be deported to UMass/Boston.

The University bureaucracy shall be renamed "The People's Bureaucracy", and anyone attempting to process financial aid forms or obtain a copy of their transcripts will be sent away for psychiatric treatment. Students will wear regulation grey uniforms only, and be forced to maintain dour facial expressions for extended periods of time. Day old bread will be served in the Dining Commons. Long lines will proliferate.

In my utopian society only the purest and most correct dogma will be heard. The last shall be first and the first shall be last, and all others will be carefully monitored for correct revolutionary zeal. Beware: the sun rising over Orchard Hill is red.

Timothy Harris is a contributing columnist.

A column on outreach

Dani Burgess

A column on outreach. That's what this is all about -- really. Outreach is what has been criticized in the past about the SGA, or rather, the lack thereof.

This column is the commitment Stacy and I (and now Bill and I) have made towards increasing outreach.

It would be redundant to introduce myself, the SGA, the Board of Regents, or the Board of Trustees, as this has already been done. Likewise it would be redundant to discuss the proposed sports arena, the LSO conflict, the COOL project or effects of Graham-Rudman. So given all of the above, what would I really like to share with you?

I could tell you more about myself (white male, non-smoking, vegetarian, spiritually inclined..) or I could share the exitement of finally being within two months of having a student on the Board of Regents. Perhaps you would like to know who my presidential hopefuls are, (Shirley McClaine? Barbara Streisand?), or perhaps you're wonderng how Bill and I are getting along, (fine, thank you), or maybe you would be interested in knowing that the Board of Regents is giving UMass/Boston a hard time with its Women's Studies Proposal...or maybe you don't really care.

At any rate there is certainly a lot going on within UMass and higher education politics right now: three new UMass Trustees, a review commission of the SGA/SATF, a review of the LSO with powerful long term implications, a new student regent, springtime, transitions, Amherst elections and town meeting, a search for a new Board of Regents' Chancellor, Mass Transformaton, a likely merger of Massosoit Community College and Uuincy Junior College and Blue Hills Technical School--potentially transforming into a new "South Shore Community College," a personnel controversy within the Poly-Sci Department etc. etc.

But, back to the point (which has yet to be made) I feel that it is essential that within our primary focus at UMass, as students, faculty and staff, we take the time to step back from our concentration and see the structure as a whole. And then really think about what we want and what we can affect and go for it!

Becoming a little more conscious of why we're here and what we're doing is generally a healthy step. Besides, through the process of value clarification we probably will be more excited with whatever it is we choose -- be that the study of the history of the struggle in South Africa, the inquiry into the dynamics of women and men and power, the effective running of a DC or the implementation of the General Education program.

This is especially true of those of us moving on (graduating, traveling, career changing etc.) who are on a simultaneously scary and exciting threshold, creating new definitions of themselves and seeing the world from a new perspective.

The world is always ready for a little reevaluation and new direction. And "The test of first rate intelligence" as F. Scott Fitzgerald once said, "is the ability to hold two opposed ideas in mind at the same time and still retain the ability to function."

Dani Burgess is the student member of the UMass Board of Trustees.

ARTS

Record Review

The Rolling Stones
Dirty Work
Columbia Record Label
By ADAM A. TIMRUD
Collegian Correspondent

It's no secret that Keith Richards has been the major artistic drive behind the new Rolling Stones LP; Dirty Work has been nicknamed "Keith's Album." The most crucial decision he makes is undoubtedly to bring his and Ronnie Wood's guitars into the forefront of the mix where they belong. The obvious antecedents for this move are in Exile on Main Street and indeed, Dirty Work sounds like the Stone's first honest-to-God guitar album since Exile. When Richard's acoustic rhythm track on Work's opening cut, "One Hit (To The Body) is suddenly joined and played off of by Wood's salacious, biting electric chords, it's magic, the kind of musical statement that if made by any other group would be labeled something like "a powerful Stones-type riff." It's loud and dirty; the music actually rides over enough of Mick Jagger's vocals to make them unintelligible and to actively merit the lyric sheet the Dirty Work package offers.

But it's here on the album sleeve that the lyrics fall apart. As lyricists, the Stones burned out their pithiness more than a decade ago, and they don't regain any of this lost footing on Dirty Work.

So it's no surprise that the lighter numbers come off best. The group's version of the traditional "Harlem Shuffle" is one of the best things here, as is the cover of a more recent reggae tune, "Too Rude." On the former the Stones do a fine job of rediscovering their roots in R & B -- how long have they been away from this stuff? -- and the latter neatly encapsulates the group's later Jamaican experiments.

Jagger's solo projects of last year seem to have given him a much-needed shot in the arm; his vocals on DIRTY WORK are more inspired than they've been in years. He still doesn't resist all his impulses to shout instead of sing, but he seems to draw energy from his struggle to be heard over the guitar tracks. For "Had It With You" (the most EXILE-styled song here), he even drags his harmonica out of the closet to create a mesmerizing three and a half minutes of genuine down-and-dirty road music.

The Stones have an unrepentent pop sensibility throughout Dirty Work. Here the Stones may not be saying much, but at least it sounds good and you can dance to it. (You could dance to their last LP, UNDERCOVER, too, but it's difficult to imagine why anyone would have wanted to.)

For every hit there is a miss; Dirty Work may have made a masterful EP with the hits retained and the dross removed, but as is, it's only a decent late-period Stones album. Dirty Work aims to make the celebratory overtones of "Salt of the Earth" into revolutionary overtones, but the song is done in by uninspired, flat melody.

It's never unlistenable, but with a group that was once the reigning force in rock and roll, you can't help but hope for more.

adirondack music
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET • AMHERST 253-3100
239 MAIN STREET • GREENFIELD 772-6803

SALE STARTS APRIL 8th IN AMHERST
SALE STARTS APRIL 11th IN GREENFIELD

GENESIS

Truckload sale
GENESIS 7
•two way loudspeaker
•lifetime warranty
Only $169.95

GENESIS II
•two way loudspeaker
•lifetime warranty
•15-100 watts
Only $199.95 per pair

GENESIS 22
•two way
•passive radiator
•lifetime warranty
Only $249.95 pair

GENESIS 33
•two way •passive radiator
•hard/soft dome tweeter
•lifetime warranty
•15-200 watts
Only $379.95 pair

GENESIS 44
•two way loudspeaker
•passive radiator
•double inverted dome tweeter
•lifetime warranty
Only $499.95 per pair

ADVENT
SPEAKER SALE

BABY
•two way
•real walnut cabinets
•3 year warranty
$79.95 each

PRODIGY
•two way
•real walnut cabinets
•5 year warranty
$279.95 pair

LEGACY
•top of the line
•real walnut cabinets
•5 year warranty
$399.95 pair

PANASONIC
CQE280 AUTO CASSETTE RECEIVER
•presets fader-auto replay
•a $179.95 value
yours for $99.95 below dealers' cost

EPI LS81 AUTO SPEAKERS
•two way
•comparable to the A.D.S.
•a $200 value
ONLY $69.95 each

100 WATT 6x9 TRIAXIALS
•auto speakers
•value $89.95/pair
only $39.95

PIONEER PK5AW
ALL WEATHER PERSONAL STEREO
A $199.95 value
$99.95

AKG K2 HEADPHONES
open ear design
a $49.95 value $29.95

AUDIO TECHNICA
CARTRIDGE AT98/U
an $89.95 value $39.95

OPEN 10 A.M.-6 P.M. MONDAY-SATURDAY all items limited quantity • subject to prior sale • not responsible for typographical errors

Cinema Profile

By THOMAS HARRINGTON
Collegian Staff

Okay, so you're in the mood to see a movie, but you don't feel like going to any of the ten that happen to be playing in the Malls. That's where the alternative cinema comes in.

The "alternative cinema" isn't as exotic as it sounds (though it can be), it's just a convenient name I use to cover any move that isn't one of Hollywood's 10-20 major releases at a given time. It can be a Fellini film, a Three stooges festival, a work by a local independeant filmmaker, or ever a chance to see "Ghostbusters" in a theater instead of a videocassete. It can also a lot of fun.

The alternative cinema didn't exist until just a few decades ago. Before that, the American film industry was ruled with an iron fist by the studio system, where one company would make a film in its own lot, with its own cast and crew, and have it shown in its own theaters. It was in many ways, a golden age, producing star-studded flicks like "Dinner At Eight" that would cost more than the national debt to produce today.

The big change came when the Supreme Court split the theater chains from the studios ownership and control, virtually busting a monopoly business. Costs on all ends rose, creating the five buck admission prices we have today, and drastically reducing the output of new product.

Perhaps no theater in the five college area presents more of an alternative to regular theaters than the Pleasant St. Theater in Northampton. Located just off Main St., it has presented some of the most varied and original foreign and independant feature available for over eight years.

The theater has long been known for its fine line up of first run foreign films, such as the recent "Makioka Sisters", The German romance "Sugar Baby", and the upcoming Yugoslavian film, "When Father Was Away on Business". In more recent years though, it has expanded to showing American independant features, and has hosted the Valley premiers of films like the Talking Head's "Stop Making Sense", Pennybaker's "Don't Look Back," a retrospective of Bob Dylan's career highlight, and currently "The Trip To Bountiful" for which Margeret Avery won a Best Actress Oscar.

Any success the theater has had is clearly due to its owners, Richard Pini and John Morrison, who are involved in nearly every level of the operation of their theater.

The owners' concern for their theater can easily be seen just by entering it. It is remarkably well kept, and either Pini or Morrison is easily available for discussion when they're not taking tickets or cleaning the theater between shows. The 140 seat main theater is lined with beautiful glazed brick and has perhaps the most comfortable seats of any theater in the area. For those who don't care for armrests, there are couches in the back. The film is preceded by slides and music that corresponds to its themes.

Pini and Morrison were not the original owners. The theater was founded in 1969 as "The Talkie" by Dale Atkins, a film buff who showcased independant films. "Atkins did a wonderful job," said Morrison, "But the format was just ahead of its time in the area." It closed after one year.

After a short vacancy, the theater was bought and renamed the Globe Theater, which showed a repetory format. In 1975, it closed as well.

At that time, both Pini and Morrison were both teaching in the area -- Pini at Amherst and Morrison in UMass. "We had both been film junkies for some time" according to Morrison, "and there wasn't anyone showing first-run foreign films in the area. We decided to try running our own theater."

Pini and Morrison bought the theater, and soon put their mark on it. "We tried playing more of a repretory format, but we soon realized that people really wanted to see first run foreign features, what we wanted to do all along."

"It's not all foreign films now, though. The independant cinema has flourished in the past few years. A lot of new directors have learned how to distribute their own material."

Pini and Morrison select and book the theater's schedule, "We read up on films," says Morrison, "we bounce around ideas, and we often go to New York or Boston to screen material. It's a long process, but what shows is a personal selection."

Pini and Morrison are the only owners in the area to handle their own booking, and they try to distinguish the theater as many ways as possible. "We're the only theater in the valley that previews films to critics. We can also show films in any aperture (aperture is the dimensions of the frame of the screen) We can show everything from European prints to cinemascope, while most theaters can show only one or two type frames." The theater also offers detailed guides to upcoming pictures in its schedule programs.

Another thing that sets the Pleasant St. from other theaters is what is perhaps its most unusual aspect, the "Little Theater".

A tiny theater located under the main house, it was built as part of the Talkie and was restored by Pini and Morrison in 1980. With only 45 seats and one 16 mm camera it is used mostly for small or experimental films, but often with spectacular results. Recently, the documentary "28" had both critical and commercial success there, and Ken Barn's documentary, "Huey" on the life of the late Governer Huey Long has also received much attention.

The small size of the two theaters often lead people to wonder how it can keep running. "There are times in which I wished we had 160 more seats in the house" admits Morrison, "but generally we show a product that has a limited audience. A smaller theater is easier to heat and run, and it really impresses the distributer when we do have a big hit."

Morrison concedes that business has been "frankly, rough", over the past few months, but adds that it has improved recently.

Morrison has also been encouraged by what he sees as a change in the theater's audience. "Our audience used to be almost all over 25 years old, but that is changing," he said. "The colleges have responded better in the past few years than they ever have, which is good, because a lot of the people who used to go to the theater are now busy with children."

Book Review

Selected Works of Joseph Conrad By Qiguang Zhao,
UMass Graduate Student ppg. 709, Shanghai Yiwen Press, 1985
By LIWEN FENG
Collegian Correspondent

The Chinese are traditionally enthusiastic readers of literature, eager to find inspiration and enjoyment from their readings. Joseph Conrad, the Polish-born English novelist, may meet both of their standards by his compelling, vivid, and deep creations. Unfortunately, few of Conrads' works have been translated into Chinese.

The situation has recently dramatically changed by the publication of Selected Works of Joseph Conrad by Qiguang Zhao, former research worker of the Institute of Foreign Literature at Peking, and present doctoral candidate and T.A. at Comparative Literature Department here at UMass.

The book embraces most of Conrad's important short novels such as "Hart of Darkness," "The Secret Sharer," "The Shadow-line," "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "An Outpost of Progress," "Youth," "Prince Roman," "The End of the Tether," "Amy Foster," etc.

In his long preface to the book, Qiguang Zhao expounds Conrad's life and career with an emphasis on his intercultural backgrounds, and analyzes Conrad's dramatic and descriptive power and his linking of scene and event into one philosophical and psychological whole. Zhao argues that although the ocean and the mysterious lands that border it are the settings for Conrad's books, the truth of human experience and mind are his subject of artistic presentation, depicted with vigor, rhythm and passionate comtemplation of reality. Zhao concludes in his preface that Conrad's novels have three antithetical themes: the land and the sea, the primitiveness and the civilization and the East and the West.

IN THE LAND OF ISRAEL
A One Woman Show
Saturday, April 12, 8 pm
Hampden Theatre
Southside Room UMass

Tickets
Available at Tix, the Hillel Office, and at the door
$3 General
$2 Students
Limited Seating.
Advance Purchase Recommended

Sponsored by UMas B'nai B'rith Hillel and Student Alliance for Israel and made possible by a grant from the UMass Arts Council

TONIGHT
America's Hottest Stand-up Comic
EMO PHILIPS
in the
Student Union Ballroom
for TWO SHOWS
8:00 pm and 10:00 pm
Tickets are $6.00 at the door
another
Southwest Area Government Production
OPENING FOR EMO WILL BE BOSTON COMIC DANA GOULD

The Union Program Council presents:
A special one night engagement with
AL JARREAU

Saturday April 19th
8 pm F.A.C. UMass
Tickets $17.00 cash onlu 6 ticket limit
Tickets on sale at F.A.C. Box Office, Springfield Civic Center and Stop & Shop locations in Northampton, Greenfield, Holyoke and Pittsfield. No cans, bottles or recording devices.

Artful Info

There are two worthwhile art events being planned that are in need of participants. Now's the Time, organized by local artist Larry Berger and others is an event planned for May 9 which will encompass many different artistic styles, rain or shine. Musicians, jugglers, actors, poets, painters and the like are all needed; the call is out! Contact Larry at 256-1602 and watch for his posters. The event promises to be a biggie, with lots of color and enthusiastic participants.

Kinetic Environments is an artistic production coordinated by Aria Edry, scheduled for next September, which is in need of helpers who need some university credit. The experimental outdoor performance is a visual/dance/theater collage which has openings for cast and crew positions. Among those needed are a crew of skateboarders, and a slew of technical and production assistants. Rehearsals will be in April, early May, and in September. Aria Edry can be contacted at 545-2803/4.

There is something to be said for the energy that goes into organizing these productions. Both Aria and Larry need responsible and committed people--a commodity only too lacking these days, especially in busy students. If you find these proposals interesting and challenging, get in touch with these people today. They, and you, will be glad you did.

— ROB SKELTON

Collegian photo by Brian Guarnotta

LUTHER "GUITAR" JOHNSON dealt the audience of over 150 people some folksy blues Tuesday night in the Cape Cod Lounge.

UPC presents

Tickets Still Available

Wednesday April 16th Fine Arts Center

Tickets on sale March 12th
$11.50 UMass students
$12.50 general public

at the FAC box office, Springfield Civic Center box office, and all Datatix locations in Northampton, Holyoke, Greenfield and Pittsfield.

Stevie Ray Vaughan And Double Trouble

KENYA SAFARI
Tailored to fit your budget.
Visit our stand at International Students Fair
April 12th
Sat. CCA
PEGASUS
International Tours & Travel
228 Triangle Street
Amherst, Mass 01002
549-5664 549-7116

STOP THE LIES STOP THE KILLING

Faculty and Staff of Peace in Central America, in solidarity with the undersigned individuals, opposes funds for the contra mercenaries fighting the government of Nicaragua. The Reagan administration's policy on Central America is promoting war throughout the region. With 3,400 U.S. National Guardsmen scheduled to undergo "training exercises" near the border between Honduras and Nicaragua (NBC Evening News, 4/3/86), we are on the brink of another Vietnam. The weeks and months ahead are critical times.

Consider the following: the present Nicaraguan government was elected by a popular majority in an election that international observers judged to be free and fair; the contras were created by the CIA and by international law are terrorists not "freedom fighters;" Honduras is nicknamed "the USS Honduras" because of our government's huge military buildup there; the Contadora regional peace treaty would remove all outside military forces from Central America; compared to regimes our administration supports in the region (El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras), Nicaragua's record on human rights is remarkably good; the International Court of Justice has declared the United States in violation of international law for the mining of Nicaragua's harbors.

What can you do? There are several concrete and important steps you can take. Write to your Congressional representatives and to House Speaker Tip O'Neill before the April 15 vote in the House. Ask them to vote against all aid to the contra forces. Invite someone to talk in your dorm, sorority or fraternity, student or church organization. Listen to individuals who have first-hand experience in the region. Attend the upcoming regional conference, STOP THE LIES: COMBATING DISINFORMATION ON CENTRAL AMERICA April 25 and 26 on campus.

Do what you can in the days ahead to save live[illegible] support the cause of self-determination for the people of Central America.

"There is a revolt all over the world against colonialism, reactionary dictatorship, and systems of exploitation. Unless we as a nation join the revolution and go back to the revolutionary spirit that characterized the birth of our nation, I am afraid that we will be relegated to a second-class power in the world with no moral voice to speak to the conscience of humanity."

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.
April, 1961

Charles Adams, Inquiry
Mark Aldrich, Spanish
Jeff Ammons, Management
Douglas Amy, Mt. Holyoke
David Anderson, UCC
Eugene Angus, Western N.E.
Carol Angus, Five College, Inc.
Robert Archer, Engineering
Aacunsion Arenedo, Spanish
Margo Atkinson, Anthropology
Enid Arvidson, Economics
Emmon Bach, Linguistics
Darryl Bachman, Political Science
Brenda Baker, Anthropology
Eugenio Bellau, Spanish
Mary Ann Bates
Eric N. Berkowitz, Marketing
Stephen Berman, Linguistics
Michael Best, Economics
Andrew Blais, Philosophy
Margaret Bodnar, Slavic
Joseph Bolend, UCC
Mark Bond-Webster, History
Jorge Bonilla, Spanish
Marco Boscardin, Economics
John Boyd, Linguistics
James Boylan, Journalism
William Brandt, Five College, Inc.
Gerard Braunthal, Political Science
John Brentlinger, Philosophy
Gregory Briggs, Anthropology
John Brigham, Political Science
Alison Brown, Philosophy
Bob Buchele, Economics
Cherie Bushey, UWW
Lynn Cadwallader, Education
Elisa K. Campbell, UCC
Johnstone Campbell, Inquiry
Randall Campbell, Philosophy
Elliott Carlisle, Management
Lenore Carlisle, Education
George Carnada, Public Health
Javier Cavallos, Spanish
Jules Chametzky, English
Mark Chapman, Finance
Vere Chappell, Philosophy
Gordon Chen, Management
Jens Christiansen, Economics
Meg Cline, Education
John Cole, Anthropology
John Collura, Economics
Wilfred Corral, Spanish
Rocio Costa, Spanish
Cynthia M. Cotton, Public Health
Ann Courtney, Education
David Cowles, Philosophy
James Crotty, Economics
Lirio Cruz, Spanish
Daniel Czitrom, Mt. Holyoke
Nora Davila, Spanish
Carmen Diana Deere, Economics
James Der Derian, Political Science
Arlyn Diamond, English
Dena Dincauze, Anthropology
Jan Dizard, Amherst College
Ann Dodge, Education
Jeffrey W. Eiseman, Education
Portia Elliott, Education
Rocio Elu, Spanish
Linda Erving, Economics
Kenyon Fairey, UCC
Phyllis Farley-Rippey, Political Science
Ralph Faulkingham, Anthropology
Ann Ferguson, Philosophy
Ana Teresa Fiallo, Spanish
Greg Field, History
Dennis Fischman, Political Science
Diane Flaherty, Economics
Jerry Fonseca, Accounting
Sylvia Forman, Anthropology
Lyn Frazier, Linguistics
Lon Freeman, Education
Gerald Friedman, Economics
Howard Gadlin, Psychology
Robert Gege, Public Health
Grahac[illegible] Accounting
Mitchell Gaslin, Reg. Planning
Bill Gibson, Economics
Herbert Gintis, Economics
Laura Godfrey, Anthropology
James Gold, Spanish
Ilene Grabel, Economics
Julie Graham, Geography
Georganne Greene, Education
George Greenstein, Amherst
Linda Guthrie, Education
James Hafner, Geography
ishiYaque Hajl, Philosophy
Gail Hall, UWW
Cathy Hammond, Sociology
Edward T. Harris, UWW
Tom Harris, Clark University
David Hart, UCC
Colleen Hayward, Mt. Holyoke
Cassandra Hill, Anthropology
Thomas O. Hodgson, UWW
Laura Holland, Education
Patricia Holland, Stanton Papers
Ed Hood, Anthropology
Ruth Hooke, UWW
Louis Howe, Political Science
Alfred Hudson, Anthropology
Merritt Hughes, Agri. Economics
Sheryl Jablonski, Education
Victoria Jacoby, UWW
Byrd Jones, Education
Jeannie Jones, Mt. Holyoke
Emily Kawano, Economics
Art Keene, Anthropology
John Kendall, Library
Beth King, Anthropology
Jerome King, Political Science
M. Christine King, Public Health
David Kinsey, Education
Suzanne Keller, Political Science
Ann Kingsolver, Anthropology
Marc Kitchel, Economics
Richard Konicek, Education
David Kotz, Economics
Hyuk-Bum Kwon, Political Science
Chris Lach, Spanish
Michael Landis, UWW
Joan Larcom, Mt. Holyoke
Reyes Lazara, Spanish
George Levinger, Psychology
Joseph Litterer, Management
Angel Loureiro, Spanish
Ronald C. Mannino, Accounting
Lisa Markowitz, Anthropology
Madeleine Marquez, UWW
Lloyde Martinez, Spanish
Steve Matchak, Geography
Ellen McCracken, Comparative Lit.
Joyce McCullough, Linguistics
Robert McGarrah, Management
Carl McNeely, Education
Joan Meads, UWW
Diane Mazariegos, Inquiry
Mary Meyer, Political Science
Richard Minear, History
Kathleen Moore, Political Science
Pauline Mountainbird, Education
E. Jefferson Murphy, 5 College, Inc.
Scott Myers, Linguistics
Tom Neilson, Education
Sonia Nieto, Education
Carolyn O'Grady, Engineering
Roberto Otero, Spanish
Sabrina H.B.H. Paine, Anthropology
Mary-Ann Palmieri, Psychology
Peter Park, Sociology
Harris Pastides, Public Health
Stephen Pelletier, Political Science
Lorna Peterson, 5 College, Inc.
Shane Phelen, Political Science
Alex Pienknagura, Philosophy
Maria Pieropan, Spanish
Oriel Pi-Sunyer, Anthropology
Jackie Pritzen, 5 College, Inc.
Ed Rayer, Philosophy
Bozena Razwadowski, Linguistics
David Reckhow, Engineering
Horace Reed, Education
Steven Resnick, Economics
Judith K. Robinson, Economics
Tom Roeper, Linguistics
Edna Roman, Spanish
Charles Rose, Mathematics
Robert Rothstein, Slavic
Edward Royce, Mt. Holyoke
Josephine Ryan, Nursing
John Sanbonmatsu, Hampshire
Kacaie St. Clair, Mt. Holyoke
Kevin St. Martin, Geography
Ken Sassenan, Anthropology
Jay Sevaveid, Communications
Patricia Scarbrough, Philosophy
Maxina Schmidt, Geology
Sam School, Education
Dillon Scott, Geology
Nina Scott, Spanish
T. Daniel Seely, Linguistics
Earl Seidman, Education
Lisa Selkirk, Linguistics
Paul Shepard, Political Science
Joe Silva, Engineering
Norman Sims, Journalism
Rudine Sims, Education
Robert Shanley, Political Science
David Smailes, Political Science
Rebecca Smith, Geography
Judith Solsken, Education
Rosalie Soons, Spanish
Elaine Sorenson, Economics
Greg Speeter, Education
Mary Ann Stanitia, Nursing
Ervin Staub, Psychology
Sidney Sufrin, Finance
Patrick Sullivan, Education
Bob Sutcliffe, Economics
Paul Swaim, Economics
R. Brooke Thomas, Anthropology
Delsey Thomas, Spanish
James Thompson, Education
Elizabeth Turner, Spanish
Anne Vainikka, Linguistics
Barney Wagman, Economics
Gert Webelhuth, Linguistics
Meyer Weinberg, Education
Claire White, Spanish
Richard Wilkie, Geography
Karina Wilkinson, Linguistics
Lynn Wilson, Anthropology
Al Winder, Public Health
Richard Wolff, Economics
Al Woodhull, Hampshire
Nicholas Xenos, Political Science
Frances Zucco, Spanish

Faculty and Staff for Peace in Central America
P.O. Box 215,
Amherst, MA 01004

ALLAN HOLDSWORTH, 1984 Grammy nominee for hiss innovations on the electric guitar, will appear at 7 and 10 p.m. on April 15 at the Iron Horse Cafe.

LIVEWIRE
BY TOM MIDDLETON

Things are really getting slow around here. A couple of good acts during the week but basically there's not a great weekend lineup.

Tonight, The Stompers will play at Pearl Street in Northampton. If you have to miss this one you'll have plenty of chances to see these guys again. They play basic pop rock 'n roll. No heavy lyrics here. The show will cost you $7 in advance and $8 at the door.

Take 3 will play at Katina's on Route 9. You know, where Funny Bones used to be. Hopefully, this place will be able to provide a good spot to see bands.

Tomorrow night, Jazz looks like your best bet. The Mitchell-Ruff Duo will play at Bowker Auditorium as part of the Black Musician's Conference here at UMass.

Beaver Harris' 360 Degree Jazz Experience will play at the Iron Horse Cafe in Northampton tommorow night. This sounds like something special but that's only a guess. The show will cost $5 at the door.

Other shows include, Liquid Lesson at the Prescott Tavern at Hampshire College, The Cods at Sheehan's and Fred Live at the Hatch from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Sunday at 2 p.m., Sweet Honey in the Rock will play at Greene Hall at Smith College. This is an all-female, all-vocal group that does all kinds of music. This show, although on the mellow side is definitely one of this weeks' bright spots. Tix are $9.50 in advance and $11 at the door.

Tuesday night, guitar great, Allan Holdsworth will play two shows, 7 and 10 p.m. at the Iron Horse. If you're into guitar at all you'll be into this show. This guy is among the best today. Tix are $11 but there aren't too many left.

Stevie Ray Vaughan and Double Trouble will Play at the Fine Arts Center Wednesday night. Stevie Ray is always hot on guitar with his electric blues style and Hendrix cover tunes. Tix are $11.50 and up.

Modern English and Rapture of the Deep will be at Pearl Street Wednesday night. I guess you'd call the Modern English pop new wave. Anyway, tix are $7 in advance and $8 at the door.

Tickets are available for Al Jarreau at the FAC on the 19th. Jarreau is a jazz singer who really uses his voice to the maximum. The cost is $17.

Also The Volcano Suns from Boston, Don't Ask and High Speed Vomit will be at Hampshire College's Red Barn for $3 on the 18th.

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
One Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE

ARE YOU
PREGNANT
& IN NEED OF HELP?
Birthright Can Help
• FREE PREGNANCY TESTING
• Same Day Results
Services that are
Free, Confidential, Caring & Helpful
549-1906
Amherst Carriage Shops
an alternative to abortion

MASS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95
6 Cyl $39.95
8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter
$17.99
Includes up to 5 quarts of 10-30 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Wattoba's Store
549-4704

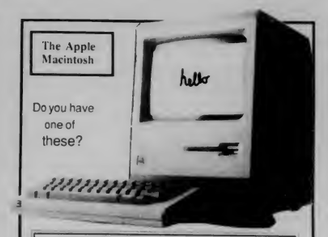
We Create Styles as Individual As You Are!
Styles by Deborah
Coupon Specials
★ COMPLIMENTARY CONSULTATIONS
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Perms
★ FREE HAIRCUT with Highlighting
★ HAIRCUTS only $10.00
please call for an appointment
• STYLES BY DEBORAH •
65 University Drive, Amherst
549-5610 expires 4/30/86

UMass Arts Council
CALL FOR
BLOCK GRANT PROPOSALS
Deadline for submission of block grant proposals: FRI. APRIL 18
AND: Deadline for submission of grant proposals for single projects/events for FY 1987 funding (early fall events) FRI. APRIL 25
Grant guidelines available at the Arts Council, 125 Herter Hall, 545-0202

Dyslexia: Challenges-Success
Guest Speaker:
Dr. Mary Groda Lewis
Her life inspired the 1985 CBS docudrama "Love Mary" with Kristy Mc Nichol

Time: 1:00 p.m.
Date: April 10, 1986
Place: Memorial Hall, U.Mass.

For more information:
Call The Dyslexic Student Organization
Telephone 545-0018



IT'S MORE THAN A JOB. . .
IT'S THE PULSE OF THE CAMPUS CENTER
The Campus Center - Student Union
BOARD OF GOVERNORS is looking for students to fill the following Coordinator positions for the 86/87 school year
Public Relations • Finance • Building Operations • Special Projects • Space/Econ. Development • Key—Functions • Governors Program Council • Display • Vending • Asst. Office Coordinator • Food Services
Work Study and Non Work Study
Applications and More Information are available in the BOG Office - 817 CC
Application Deadline - Monday, April 14, 12 Noon
The BOG is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

A 60's Dance
Saturday April 12, 9pm-1am
Campus Center Room 1009
Admission:$2.00

Sponsored by

Music by D.J. Jim McDee from WMUA
No one under 21 admitted. everyone over 21 welcome

WE HAVE AN APPLE LASERWRITER FOR YOU !
(THE APPLE LASERWRITER)

PRINT OUT YOUR DISK ON OUR LASER PRINTER

THE PAPER HOUSE, INC.
65 UNIVERSITY DRIVE
AMHERST
(NEXT TO BELL'S PIZZA)
549-5656

The Newsroom should stick to Bowling & leave Hoops to the Gang!!

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

founded 1870
Circulation 19,000
Serving the Five College Area

Executive Board

Editor in Chief
Dode B. Levenson

Managing Editor
Ian Polumbaum

Editorial Editor
Larry Bouchie

Production Managers
Peter Soderberg
Conor Plunkett

Business Managers
Sherry Sharfman
Elizabeth Young

Business Board

Asst. Business Manager
Steve Rubin

Advertising Manager
Paul Lesser

Finance Manager
Vanessa Roth

Asst. Advertising Mgr.
Melissa Forman

Asst. Finance Mgr.
Kim Jackson

Circulation Manager
Craig Naugle

Subscription Manager
Karen Holland

Associate News Editors Jeanette DeForge, Patrick Johnson, Nancy Klingener Associate Editorial Editor Rob Skelton Associate Sports Editor John Nolan Associate Women's Issues Editor Iliana Levenson

Assistant to the Editors Anita L. Roye

Systems Manager Mathew Atkins Assistant Systems Manager Adam Lavine

Business Coordinator James Ristuben Senior Bookkeeper Maureen Majerowski Classified Manager Cathy Chilson Graphics Advisor Faye Whitney Lussier Assistant Subscription Manager Alan Wilcox Advertising Layout Noelle Merlino Marketing Ron Maggio, Randi Schey, Patrice Lawsky Office Assistant Sue Cirella Maintenance Dan Roth Advertising Representatives Nancy Warhaftig, Jon Cohen, Michelle Montagne, Maureen Crowly, Robin Engel, Stacy Wiederlight, Jeff Hammond, Stephanie Zucker, Robyn Leifer, John Kennedy, Shawn Stepanate, Cozy Wolan, Debbie, Stein, Ivan Spellberg Day Graphics Beth Bazinet, Amy Custance, Sue Lattanzi, Betty Ann Murphy, Jim Podesky, Kathy Wheeler, Sarah Cook, Andrew Myerson, Larissa Potapchuk, Jim Rice, Petra Phillip Librarian Tom Middleton

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS permit No.58), a registered student organization at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, is published Monday through Friday excluding holidays, exams and vacation periods. Content is determined solely by the Collegian Board of Editors, without prior approval from University administrators, faculty, staff or student government. Operations are funded solely by advertising and subscription revenue. Subscriptions and advertising rates are available at 113 Campus Center, UMass-Amherst 01003, (413)545-3500.

How to get money out of someone besides your parents.

$150 rebate. $75 rebate.

$200 rebate. $175 rebate.

All you have to do is visit your authorized Apple dealer by June 30th and take advantage of "Apple's Student Break" rebate program.

Buy an Apple® IIe, the most popular computer in education, and we'll send you a check for $150.

Buy an Apple IIc, a compact version of the Apple IIe, and you'll get back $75.

Buy a Macintosh™ 512K, the computer you don't have to study to learn, and you'll get a $175 check.

Or buy a Macintosh Plus, the computer that gives more power to students, and get a whopping $200 rebate.

But first, you do have to do one thing that you're probably pretty good at by now.

Ask your parents for the money to buy the computer.

© 1986 Apple Computer Inc. Apple and the Apple logo are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Macintosh is a trademark of McIntosh Laboratory, Inc. and is being used with its express permission. For an authorized Apple dealer near you, call (800) 538-9696, ext. 455. Offer good only in the United States.

DOONESBURY
GARRY TRUDEAU

THE FAR SIDE
BY GARY LARSON

"Margaret! He's doing it! He's doing it!"

FREAKER PATROL
BY DOWE & O'BRIEN

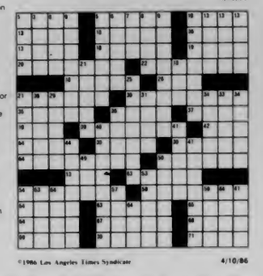
HOUSEMATES
BY R. MILLER

GORDY
BY GORDE

BLOOM COUNTY
BY BERKE BREATHED

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Leather shoe strip
5 Galley words
10 Blaze of glory
14 River to the Baltic
15 General principle
16 Branch angle
17 Actress — May Oliver
18 Participant at a feast
19 Patch
20 Lampooner's products
22 Facial features
24 Bulrushes
26 Tool set
27 Robards et al
30 Impractical
35 Stair Prefix
36 Sunbather's risk
37 Nanny's negatives
38 Nos. person
39 One kind of policy
42 Young seal
43 Show affection
45 Nectar collectors
46 Pal Joey author
48 Overly sentimental corn
50 Flower bract
Var
51 Before cycle or form
52 Ahead of time
54 Traveler's check?
58 Adherents of Islam
62 Enthusiastic
63 Of the subcommnent
65 Ess molding
66 Inactivity
67 Hubbub
68 Warning from Watson
69 Burden
70 Mirror
71 Very, at Versailles

DOWN
1 Troubles
2 Icelandic literature
3 Period of penitence
4 Turncoat
5 Strengthens
6 Haze
7 Tolkien tree
8 — off: Started
9 Conspicuous
10 Lionel, the bandleader
11 Skating feat
12 Transportation system
13 Automobile pioneer
21 — the-mill
23 Combine
25 Bear hug
27 Child's game
28 Party mold
29 Hiding place
31 Author Leon — Uris
32 Novel by 31 Down
33 Habituate
34 Tree resin
36 Writer Harte
40 Helpful
41 Holiday songs
44 Violate customs rules
47 Barn area
49 Miscellany
50 Cooling-off periods
53 Wrongly
54 Formal dance
55 Water below the border
56 Wealth
57 Organic compound
59 Stravinsky
60 Simple
61 Visualizes
64 Through: Prefix

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

T	R	A	P		I	S	L	A	M		S	W	A	P
E	E	R	O		O	U	I	D	A		C	H	I	L
S	P	E	A	K	U	P	F	O	R		R	A	R	A
S	P	A	C	E		E	E	N		B	E	T	S	Y
			H	A	A	R		R	I	S	E	S
T	A	U		T	R	I	E	S	T	O		U	P	S
I	M	P	O	S	T	O	R		U	T	O	P	I	A
C	A	F	E			R	I	D			U	D	A	L
A	Z	O	A	S		S	I	C	E	D	O	N	E
L	E	M		P	E	G	A	S	U	S		C	O	S
		G	R	E	C	O		C	I	T	Y
P	U	R	E	E		V	M	I		O	O	Z	E	S
O	V	A	L		K	E	E	P	U	P	W	I	T	H
P	E	B	A		U	R	A	L	S		L	O	N	I
E	A	S	T		A	N	D	E	S		S	N	A	P

4/10/86

©1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 4/10/86

Lunch
Cavatelli Supreme
Grilled Turkey Swiss Sandwich

Basics Lunch
Boursin and Sprout Sandwich
Soybean, Corn, Tomato Casserole

Dinner
Baked Ham with Fruit Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special

Basics Dinner
Golden Carrot Bake with White Sauce
Cod Florentine

MENU

Weather

Today: 45 percent chance of rain, high of 45, cloudy and cool

Tonight: Chilly, lows in the 30s

Tomorrow: Cloudy, quite cool, highs in the 40s

The Wednesday Night crew making the Collegian safe for humanity!

Brought to you by

Night Editor	Lesley Clark
Copy Editor	Liz Hettinger
Layout Technician	Conor Plunkett
Photo Technician	Michelle Segall
Production Supervisor	Conor Plunkett

Production: Leslie Nakajima, Mia Rowan, Kelly Sieger, Matkins, Sod, Karlin and Norm.

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

—The Massachusetts Daily—
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 14

1985 WINNER OF FIVE GOLD CIRCLE AWARDS

★NEWSWRITING
★OVERALL DESIGN [TABLOID]
★PAGE ONE DESIGN [NEWS]
★OPINION PAGE DESIGN
★FEATURE PAGE DESIGN

ADVERTISE IN AN AWARD-WINNING NEWSPAPER

CONTACT ADVERTISING DEPT.

(413) 545 – 3500

COLLEGIAN
113 CAMPUS CENTER
AMHERST, MA 01003

★ baseball

continued from page 20

and walks, but we didn't have those problems today so hopefully they're gone."

Steve Allen (3-for-4 on the day) roped a triple to drive in Jeff Cimini in the first and UMass added another run in the second when Sean Flint walked, stole second, moved to third and scored on a wild pitch to make it 2-0.

"The bats looked good today," said Bergquist. "Steve had a big hit early to get us started and then they just continued to hit."

John Mahoney blooped a single to right to score Sean McCarthy, who had doubled and get Holy Cross, 4-4 overall and 4-2 in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, on the board in the third, but the UMass bats retaliated with a vengeance in the bottom of the inning.

The Minutemen took advantage of two errors by losing pitcher Mark Zapata (0-1) and a big three-run homer by designated hitter Steve Kern to give Kostro an 8-1 cushion.

UMass pushed across another run in the fourth and tallied four more times in the seventh while the Crusaders scratched out another run in the eighth.

"We know what we're capable of," Bergquist said. " I just hope it continues."

★ Gorillas win

continued from page 20

help, dodging to the cage and scoring with 8:20 left in the period.

The Bruins rebounded, scoring the next two goals to tie the score at two at the end of the first quarter.

Chris Abbott, scored with 7:11 to go with Tom Gagnon getting the assist. Buonanno, the Bruins' leading scorer, then took a feed from Greg Rogers and tied it with 45 seconds left in the quarter.

The second quarter belonged to the Gorillas.

Scoring the first four goals, UMass took a 6-2 lead. The Gorillas allowed the Bruins only four trips into their end as stingy midfield defense and hard checking on the crease kept Brown from gaining any momentum.

Goals by Fisk, Carmean, Carmean again with an assist to Canella and finally Carr put the Bruins in a deep hole.

Carr's goal was the prettiest of the streak. Senior midfielder Perry Seale snagged a groundball at midfield, made a cross-field pass to Neal Cunningham who spotted Carmean at the crease. Carmean drew Lohan, and fed the ball to Carr who had the open net, with 6:27 left.

McGovern won every face-off to help spark the roll. Rogers, however, broke up the streak, scoring with 2:27 left, but Carmean's third goal (assisted by Fisk) and Carr's fourth gave UMass a commanding 8-3 halftime lead.

Gorilla Grumblings: The win was especially sweet for UMass senior midfielder Rich Abbott, who won his first collegiate game against his twin brother Chris, a Brown middie. . . The game was televised by NESN. . . The Bruins were 13-6 winners last year at UMass.

FREE T-Shirts & Hat

Joe's Paradise
GOURMET FRIED CHICKEN
TRY SOME!
FRIED CHICKEN PALACE
TRY SOMETHING NEW & COMPARE THE VALUE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON BETWEEN $5 & $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE HAT FREE

ANY ORDER WITH COUPON OVER $8
GET JOE'S PARADISE T-SHIRT FREE

Downtown Amherst, 31 Boltwood Walk
(through the alley, next to Taco Villa)
253-7494

FAST FREE DELIVERY

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs, 8:45, 2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Fisher 80 wich receiver amplifier need cash! $125. ask for Todd 256-5248

AUTO FOR SALE

1976 VW Bus great body/interior, new ex haust/brakes, runs great $2150 256-8484

74 BMW 2002, red. California car Restored. 6,350 obo 538-4127 or 538-2896

1983 Toyota Tercel four door hatchback automatic AM/FM cassette, good condition, 37,000 mi. Asking $4000 call Sue or Steve, eves 323-4858

77 VW Rabbit, brown, A/T runs well, great stereo. $1300. 584-8736

1972 VW Karmann Ghia good condition many new parts $2700 or BO call Bill 584-5173

1967 Volvo 122 VGC beautiful classic 23-27 mpg. $1700 o BO 367-2174 or 545-2750 Renee

70 Cutlass Cony. new top, duel exhaust, shocks, springs, radials all around, needs timing chain & minor body work $500 256-6072 eves

78 Monarch best offer call Don after 8 PM at 253-9330

74 VW Superbeetle – good condition semi-automatic $850 546-8115 / 546-8241

BIRTHDAY BOY

Happy B-day! Now you're a real man your teen days are over. Enter the 3rd decade YAY! Thank you for 3 amazing semesters I love you - Sichi

CAN YOU WRITE?

Interested in Journalism? It's never to late to start! Come down to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, the largest college daily in New England. You can write about Sports, News, Editorial, Black Affairs, Womens Issues, or Gay or Lesbian issues. Whatever your interests, write about it today in the Collegian. We build careers.

CAPE COD

Seagull Beach West Yarmouth 2 bedrooms 4 rooms sleeps 4 253-7436

CAPE COD SUMMER ROOM RENTALS

Hyannis - $80 weekly per person, double occupancy. Includes everything. First 3 weeks paid in advance. Call (617) 778-0324

"CASH"

Paying cash for your baseball cards Please call Mike 546-6105

DANCE WITH JERRY LEWIS!!

April 12th and 13th in the Cage. Hear Modern Fluds, Circle, and Good Speed Rhythm & Blues. See a video light show from Rack-A Video. All this plus T-shirts, food, prizes and fun. . .Fight MDA. . .midnight to noon in the Cage! Ten dollar minimum sponsorship

DODGE VAN

1975 Dodge Van 77,000 mi, runs well $800 or BO call 549-2739

ENTERTAINMENT

The Cheap Jork. Kool party toonz at a reasonable price. Call Kevin at 546-9061

MOBILE MUSIC INC Disks spun to your taste Quality from 7 years of experience Call Chris 256-6845

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT Professional Disc Jockeys Light-Show's, Large Screen Video 24 hr operator 549-7144

"Spies Like Us"
Fri, April 11
Marcus Hall 131
(Eng East) 131
5, 7, 9, 11 at $2.00

ESCORT SERVICE

Escort Service Available 8 p.m. 2 a.m. Everyday, anywhere on campus. Play it safe, call 5-2123 for an escort ANYTIME

FOR RENT

Want to live on N.J. shore this summer? Cheap, 2 blocks from beach, call Heather 546-1106 or Mark 546-9261

Sublet summer and it's yours in the fall renovated Birt Manor apt - new carpet and bathroom 256-1232

Rent or sublet, Southwood, 1 bedroom, very cheap, room for 3 people, 256-6679

A stones throw from campus 4 bedroom house summer sublet fall option call 549-4568

Sunny, spacious apt in Rolling Green for summer sublet, four rms, available at $100, w/poss fall option, call 256-6837

2 bedrooms available in Riverglade for summer with fall option 253-5146

3 bedroom in 5 bedroom house for rent. 5 minute walk to SOM. June 1st onwards. Call 549-4575. Keep trying

Rustic House - just over Amherst line ½ mile from bus. 4 bedrooms, deck, huge backyard, garage. Summer/fall option. 256-6072 anytime

Looking to sublet an apartment or room. From middle of July to beginning of Sept. Preferably close to campus. Call Joe 546-4342

One bdr available in 3 bdr Puffton Village apt for summer sublet with possible fall option 549-3667

2 bedroom apt in house on Main St. newly renovated. On bus route. Great location. Available June 1st. call 253-5375

Roomy 1 bedroom apt avail June 1 fall option pool tennis laundry & storage Aug rent FREE 665-8459

Room for rent summer sublet with fall option available May 31. $142 a month negotiable 1½ miles from UMass quaint house mature person preferred call Ruth 549-4914

Summer sublet with fall option. Two bedroom Southwood apartment. Available June first or earlier 256-8861

Large efficiency. Brand new Amherst Center $320 month 253-7867 Julie

Townehouse Apt. 2 bedrooms, lease starts May 1, no waiting list! Call 549-1760

To sublet 6/1 - 8/31 2 bdrm apt, Sund., $340/neg call 665-4233, aft 5

Do you want to take over our lease? Two bedroom apartment -- Southwood Apts 256-1663

Two-bedroom Sonthwood apartment available June 1st with fall option $130 per mo. heat included call 256-0044

FOR SALE

Mistral Maui sailboard for sale 350 or BO call 256-6978

Pentax Spotmatic Camera 2 lenses $65.00 256-8484

Camera - Olympus OM-1 SLR, with 50 mm F1.8, leather case, skylight and close up filters, 2X converter, tripod, all in great condition. $225. or best offer. 665-8275

Stereo - Nikko NR-1000 receiver; 70 w/pc Vector Research VT-150 turntable; JBL DD, FA, Celestion CS-5 3-way speakers. Cost over $1100 new, asking $695 or best offer. Great condition. 665-8275

Guitars: Gibson classical, $350. Epiphone acoustic, $150. Both excellent. 367-2174 or 545-2750. Renee

Gnitar Acoustic nice, full sound Sunburst $100 Gregg 546-3249

Receiver - Pioneer: 30 watts digital, handles stereo video 1½ yrs old $100; Fisher double cassette deck $75, Mura Mini-modem 300 baud direct line hookup $30 all prices negotiable call Dave 549-6284

12 channel Sun PA 2 24' speakers 2 monitors Bose compressor Rackmodel MUST SELL! 586-8114

TAMMY AND BRUCE
You guys are better than General Hospital! Thanks, Conor

Alpine digital car stereo/cassette Maxima equalizer/amplifier peaks at 50 watts/channel, 4 speakers, must hear. $200 546-5769

Atomic 203cm Skis, Raichle size 11 rear entry boots, Salomon 737 bindings, used twice, $200 546-5769

Soft Contact Lenses. Most daily wear lenses, $18.00 to $25.00. Most extended wear lenses, $35.00 to $48.00. Most soft tinted lenses, $35.00 to $45.00. Lowest prices on cl solutions, anywhere. Fleicare $1.98, heat unit $12.95. Amherst Optical Shoppe, Inc., 195 No. Pleasant St., (413) 253-5412 or (413) 256-6403

Furniture – Excellent condition – marching sofa and loveseat, chair, wall unit, end table, lamp, kitchen table with five chairs, white wicker bedroom furniture and accessories. Prices negotiable. Call Amy 549-4085.

Clarion Mini Chassis AM/FM/Cass with auto rev. and song search. Also Panasonic eq. (25x2 boost) both work fine 75$ for both. Bob 6-7579

Bicycle Ross 10-speed blue munt cond. $80 call Paul 546-7086

FOUND

Watch found 3-29 at Brittany call and identify 256-1231

Gold chain in the concourse of Amherst Music Library on Monday April 7th (eve) call to identify and claim. Anna 6-6364

FREE $100!

For lease of house near UMass or Amherst Center call Keith or Jim 549-7367

HELP WANTED

COUNSELORS - Private co-ed camp in Berkshires has openings for head and assistant instructors in: softball, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, archery, video/filmmaking, photography, horseback riding asssistant, hiking/backpacking, waterskiing, computers, waterfront (WSI), bunk counselors, and bunk unit heads Good salaries - friendly atmosphere. Contact Dr. Paul Krouner Camp Schodack 54 Sheffield Road, Newtonville, MA 02160 (617) 964-1912, days 9-6

Bring your brains and enthusiasm to. . The BOG for jobs jobs jobs!!! Eleven motivated people are wanted for the 86-87 school year apply now in 817 Campus Center deadline Monday April 14 at high noon The Board of Governors is an AA/EOE and are we proud of it!

Jewish Community of Amherst looking for Sunday School and Hebrew teachers for September 1986. Also Music teacher needed. Experience with children preferred. Call 549-0223 for application

College Pro Painters
we hire early
for good summer painters $5-7/hr
The Organized Students
800-424-2456

We're looking for a fraternity, sorority, or large student orgnanization that would like to make $2000 + this spring for one week long on-campus marketing project. No sales involved. Group must be organized and hard-working. Interested? To apply call Sharon 1-800-592-2121

Camp Loyaltown, AHRC, 189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545-A residential, recreational camp for mentally retarded in Hunter, NY is accepting applications for summer employment. Write or call (516) 626-1000

HOOP-A-THON

The Western Massachusetts Huntington's Disease Foundation Thanks the shooters, sponsors, volunteers, Dyalexic Student Organization, McDonald's, Titelles, The Collegian, and the University of Mass for such a successful conclusion to our first Hoop-A-Thon. Without your help the possibiity of finding a cure would not exist. Thanks again from all of us

LOST

Vicinity Amherst Woods 3½ year miniature collie male named Fraser last seen Shays and Wentworth call 253-2963

Lost gold Belair watch on Fri 4/4 btwn Health Services and Phi Sig please call Jill 256-1363 no questions asked

If anyone finds a silver Seiko watch, please call 256-8856 reward for the honest person!!

Toshiba Radio and Tape Player in Downtown Amherst/PVTA bus on Fri 4/4 please call Julie 549-7587

Lost Levi's grey dungaree jacket reward cal lKevin 253-7126

MOTORCYCLES

82 Honda 650 Nighthawk exc cond low miles with helmets call Dave 549-7802

81 Honda Custom 400 12k mi very clean condition, ready to drive, asking $600, call Rafael 256-8709

Yamaha 1982 IT175 excellent condition street legal $775 546-9355 evenings

1978 Suzuki GS400 New Dunlop Sport Elite tires, new battery, new faring and sport mirrors. Elec start. Looks and runs exec. $650 or BO 1-568-5088

ONE MONTH RENT FREE

Housemate wanted to share 3 bedroom apt in house in Squire Village Fall semester only. Own bedroom, nonsmoker Call 6-6112 or 6-6115

PERSONALS

Nomination Papers now available for Southwest Area Government President, Vice-President, and Treasurer in the SWAG Office in Hampden. Completed nomination papers are due Monday, April 14, 1986 at 5:00 pm in the SWAG Office

- Concert Security - volunteers needed to work security for the Southwest Concert. Sign up in the Southwest Area Government Office in Hampden, or call 5-0960.
- Mandatory 1st Meeting
- Thursday, April 10th, 6:00 pm
- Hampden Southside Room, Southwest

Think positive! Vote yes to a positive check-off.

David Panagore wants to be Sylvan Area Gov't. Vice President

Think positive!

Vote Panagore for Sylvan Vice President

Friendly Stranger - Is there more! You have my attention - Rob

Marcella, Congratulations on being accepted to Oxford Uni, in England hope you have a good time your friend!!

This space brought to yon by the censorship committee. Hi Queen

Stacey S., Happy B-day! Love Adam and Erica

Tonight!
Emo Philips
America's Hottest Stand-up Comic with Boston comic Dana Gould
Two shows 8:00 pm and 10:00 pm
Tickets are $6.00 at the door
another
Southwest Area Government Production

As in 1808 JA, I've been watching you just wanted to say Hi! Blue Eyes

Attention New Mortar Board Members: Congratulations! First meeting Thurs Ap 10 6:30 pm CC check schedule everyone must attend

Allison Ford & Nancy Zeidman - Your fun is over, ours has just begun watch out!

Carole do you just want to stab him with a knife? Sandy and Kim

All HRTA majors buy your HRTA t-shirts in Flint Coffee Shop and wear them to the convention Cornell will be wearing theirs!

Graphics - Give it up. Your feeble excuse for a team doesn't stand a chance against us in the game on Saturday. We've got the sportswriters on our side. Stay home where its safe. - News

FIG - LAX
I like your style !!!

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Papers, cases, dissertations, theses, on-campus, dependable, low rates, experienced. Nancy 584-7924

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Lowell area on April 11. Will share expenses. Call 546-1282 after 9 pm

To Pittsburgh PA from 18-21 help! call Liz 6-8663

Need ride to NY/Brooklyn area. Leave Friday the 11th. Janet 545-1977, 549-1421 leave message

ROOMMATES WANTED

Two roommates needed to share a three bedroom Townehouse apt for fall & spring 86. If interested call Nadine 549-7478

Female nonsmoker for June 86 thru June 87 lease in Brandywine apts contact Susan 665-4187 or Lisa 549-1428

Brandywine - seeking young couple to share apt. nonsmokers only. call eves 549-1813 or 546-7076

2 roommates wanted to share bedroom in Brittany Manor apts. Heat and hot water included. Lease begins in Sept. 86. Call 256-8438

To share Brittany Manor Apt. Available now. ONE MONTH FREE. Call Ken, Rich, Steve 253-7312, Dave 665-4131

W Yarmouth 2 male or female 700-summer call Lisa 549-0947

Available one large bedroom in Rolling Green. June 1st, call mike 253-2475

3 females looking for fourth to share a large 2 bedroom 2 story apartment. Cheap. Call anytime. Sharon 546-1472 or Marci 546-9890

SERVICES

COINS 121/123 Tutoring $5.00 per hour former grader, consultant Alex 256-1239

Typing. Tape Transcription. Fast, accurate. Available almost anytime. 665-7652

Tailor for alterations. SHAANN's at Mail, 584-9362

Perfectionist Typing on computer - letter quality - 25% off first job 549-8178

SUMMER SUBLET

On Amity Place luxury condo 2 bedroom back patio AC 450 inclusive per month call Lisa 549-0947

Summer sublet Puffton apts price negotiable call Susan 549-5938 Heather 546-4010

June-August $400 inclusive. One bdrm in 4 bdrm apt. Clean & pleasant. On busline, close to campus Fall option. Call Mary 256-0048 7:30-10:30 am

BRANDYWINE APT for summer sublet. Call 546-8968 or 546-8970

Two bedroom apt in Colonial June first, possible fall/sp furnished bus route pool call Jay 8-11 pm 256-0943

Puffton Vig. Sumemr sublet one bdrm, pool, AC, furnished 549-0080

Sunderland - 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt on bus route, furnished, laundry facilities, pool available 6/1-8/31 665-7945

One room in four room apartment Rent reasonable and negotiable. Swiss Village. call Holly 256-1091 evenings

One room in two bedroom, Northwood Apt. on bus route, rent negotiable call 665-3757 after 4 pm

Furnished 2-bedroom apartment on bus route, pool, cable great price call Sue 253-5089/Nicky 546-8152

Amherst Center 1 bedroom, livingroom, kitchen, bath May-August 31 Fall option $390 plus utilities 256-4289 Kathy

Brandywine Apartment for sumemr sublet call 546-6696 or 546-6699

Brandywine 2 bedroom June 1 - August 31 furnished call between 5-7 pm 549-0136

Fully furnished house, up to five people, close to campus, big yard, extremely negotiable, cheaper than 1 apartment call 546-7122

Do you want to live in the center of Amherst? 1 room available call 256-6749, Melanie

Summer sublet w/fall option. Southwood half furnished, new carpet 256-1764 $400

THE BOXER'S REBELLION

Is back. Come check us out Fri April 11 100% cotton, handpainted/tie-dyed boxer shorts

TO SUBLET

Sublet ters needed - Brandywine 3rd floor June 1 - August 31 call 549-9675

Summer sublet, spacious, sunny, cool apt ideally located between campus and town call 256-8402

Summer sublet two bdrm apt in Rolling Green call Mark at 256-0952 evenings

Summer sublet ters needed for Brandywine Apt. Call Dave 546-5015 or Bryan 546-9107

FREE one month rent male housemate wanted for Northwood apt. Sublet June 1st w/fall option 665-4882

Great Place to Live! Spacious one bedroom Townview Apt., excellent condition, large backyard, on bus route, walking distance to UMass, across Puffton, summer sublet with fall option. Call Beth, Robyn 549-0491

TYPING SERVICE

QUALITY TYPING. Long or short projects. Meticulous proofreading. Editing available. New IBM Typewriter. 549-0367

WANTED

Second keyboardist needed to complete near-working band Call John at 546-8081 or Scott at 546-5144

Want to buy lightweight 10 speed bik. Pref. women's frame. Price around $100 Janet 549-1421, 545-1977 leave message

Let's have some fun. Tandem bicyeling partners wanted. 1-467-7877

WANTED TO RENT

Apartment in North Amherst call 665-2176

We will pay cash for an apartment in Brandywine call 256-0661

$100 reward for empty lease in Brandywine or Puffton. Call 546-5324

Looking for lease in Colonial Village take over forfall 86 or sooner call Scott 546-6524 or Chris 546-8595

Single room in house or apartment for fall semester 256-0642

Looking to take over lease for multi bedroom house near campus $$ reward $$ 546-9657 leave message on machine

Sublets/Rooms needed June 22 Aug 2 call 256-8615 8 am - 9 pm

Will Pay $$$$ for your 3-bdrm Puffton Village lease call now! Keep trying 546-6052 546-6185

We need an apt or house in or around Downtown Amherst. Please call Wendy 549-5933 or Amy 6-8231

Couple looking to take over lease of one bdrm appt. Please call 546-4137

Responsible man seeking 3 or 4 bedroom house rent fall and spring, call Vic or Al 256-0866

SPORTS

Gorillas rule at Brown, 13-8

Strong first half helps get UMass key victory

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — The 11-th ranked University of Massachusetts lacrosse team solidified its claim as one of the nation's elite, using a strong first half to defeat Brown University, 13-8, here yesterday.

"This was a sweet win. This means we have some control over what happens now," said senior defensemen Gerry Byrne, who along with his fellow seniors beat the Bruins for the first time in their career.

Junior attackman Tom Carmean scored five goals and had two assists to lead the Gorillas. Sophomore attackman Kelley Carr had his second big game in a row, scoring four goals and contributing an assist. Senior midfielder Greg Fisk, with two goals and three assists, notched his 100th career point.

Junior attackman Greg Canella had one goal and two assists with junior midfielder Doug Musco adding a goal.

The Gorillas are now 4-1 and face Boston College on the road Saturday night. They return home next Wednesday against St. John's.

The Bruins slumped to 4-4 with their second straight loss and are probably out of any NCAA playoff consideration.

Sophomore attackman Bernie Buonanno had three goals and one assist to lead Brown.

Freshman goalie Sal LoCascio continued his stellar play for the Gorillas. Making 23 saves, LoCascio consistently put the breaks on Brown's offense.

"Sal played a great game, the offense was sharp and the one-on-one defense was excellent, we played one hell of a game," said UMass coach Dick Garber.

Statistically, both teams took 43 shots and UMass owned a huge 67-43 groundball advantage. The Gorillas were successful on 30-of-33 clears. Senior midfielder Seamus McGovern won 19-of-26 face-offs.

After leading 8-3 at halftime, the Gorillas charged out to a 10-3 advantage early in the second half as first Canella, then Fisk beat Brown goalie Scott Lohan (12 saves).

But the Bruins ran off four straight goals and with 14:23 left in the game, UMass held a shaky 10-7 lead.

"I was starting to get worried," admitted Garber. "We had been playing so well, then a few bad passes led to goals and they came back."

With 11:43 left in the game, Canella and Carmean hooked up and Carmean had his 18th goal of the season and UMass led 11-7. That breathing room increased about seven minutes later when, on an unsettled situation, Carr fed Carmean for an easy goal and for all intents, it was over, 12-7.

The play came after senior defenseman Tom Aldrich came out a pile in front of the UMass net and cleared the ball himself, running upfield. The break worked to Carr at Lohan's left, he shuffled the ball to Carmean on the right and UMass had its big win wrapped up.

UMass opened the game on fire, scoring quicklky as Carr went in (assisted by Carmean) and beat Lohan with 12:17 to go. Carr then scored his second goal without any

continued on page 19

Hartford next up for red-hot Minutewomen

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The 20th-ranked University of Massachusetts softball team will put their six-shutout winning streak on the line today, as they open a three-doubleheader home stand with a pair of games against the University of Hartford. Game time is slated for 2 p.m. at Totman (NOPE) Field.

The Minutewomen, 17-3 on the season, had their Atlantic 10 conference opener at the University of Rhode Island rained out on Tuesday. Because of that, UMass will open its A-10 schedule at home in the second of its three doubleheaders, Saturday, against Rutgers University. UM will face Temple University in a twinbill on Sunday.

The Minutewomen will be facing a Lady Hawks club that hasn't had a winning season since 1980. Hartford finished 5-17 last season and are currently 4-7 on the year. The Lady Hawks are coming off a split with Eastern Connecticut State University, dropping the first game 2-1, and taking the nightcap with a 15-hit barrage, 13-2.

Before the doubleheader with ECSU, Hartford had won three games in a row, capturing the tail end of a doubleheader with Pace University and sweeping Yale University in a twinbill at New Haven, CT.

The Lady Hawks are led by junior third baseman Mickey Clinton, junior second baseman Debbie Spell, and freshman shortstop JoElle Le Pardo, all of which are hitting over .300 for first year head coach Dave Johnson. Hartford has been going with a two-pitcher rotation for the entire season and will start sophomore lefthander Patti Mazzei in the first game. Sophomore righthander Sheila Fagen will start the nightcap for the Lady Hawks.

Hartford will probably not see a repeat performance of its 15-hit shellacking of ECSU against UMass. The Minutewomen will start senior lefthander Lynn Stockley (8-1, 0.25 earned run average and named A-10 Co-Pitcher of the Week) in the first game and sophomore righthander Lisa Rever (7-2, 0.56 ERA) in the nightcap.

Senior righthander Cathy Reed (2-0, 0.58 ERA) and stopper Chris Wanner (0-0, 0.84 ERA, 1 save) will also see action against the Lady Hawks.

Wild Pitches: Senior catcher Beth Talbott will miss today's doubleheader with a hyper-extended left elbow. She is still experiencing pain when swinging the bat, but is expected to be ready for this weekend's crucial doubleheaders. . .The Minutewomen failed to move up in the NCAA Division I softball poll, despite a six game winning streak and a weekend sweep of Adelphi. Adelphi, a traditional Eastern powerhouse, has been in the Division I finals the last two years. . .18 of 19 teams ranked ahead of the Minutewomen have more losses. Utah St. also has three losses at 12-3.

UM has outscored its opponents by a whopping 107-16 margin. The big inning seems to be the first, where the Minutewomen hold a 26-0 advantage. . .UMass is fielding at a .963 clip, committing just 23 errors in 602 chances. Seven Minutewomen are perfect in fielding opportunities. . .As a team, UM is batting .313 with a .427 slugging percentage. Nine UM players are batting over the .300 mark, with 10 Minutewomen slugging over .400. . .Opposing pitchers have been racked for a 4.60 ERA and 172 hits while UM pitching as a staff boasts a miniscule 0.46 ERA and have allowed 69 hits. . .UM has accumulated 92 runs batted in thus far, while opponents have managed only nine RBI's. . .The Minutewomen are stealing bases at a .806 mark. UM has been successful on 29-of-36 theft attempts.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Senior lefthander Lynn Stockley and the University of Massachusetts softball team host Hartford in a doubleheader today at NOPE.

Women's lax gets first test

By JOHN NOLAN
Collegian Staff

The unbeaten ninth-ranked University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team faces its toughest opponent to date, travelling to Harvard University this afternoon at 3 p.m.

The Crimson, ranked tenth in this week's national poll, is currently 4-1 coming off of an 18-11 victory over Northeastern University and has won three straight games including victories over Princeton University and the University of Vermont.

"I'm expecting a high-scoring game," UMass head coach Pam Hixon said. "They are very similar to us. Offensively, they're powerful, but their defense is suspect."

Junior attackman Kelly McBride leads coach Carole Kleinfelder's team scoring 14 goals with 5 assists in five games. Sophomore attackman Kate Felsen (9g, 4a) and sophomore Liz Faecher (4 goals against Northeastern) add to the Harvard attack. Freshman Kelly Dermody, with close to a 10-goals-per-game average, will be in the net for the Crimson.

The game, the Gazelles'(4-0) first against a nationally-ranked opponent, will be important in determining how both teams stand in relation to the other nationally-ranked opponents.

"We want to beat them because neither of us has played anyone of high caliber," said Hixon, who made exception of Temple University whom Harvard lost to (14-9) two weeks ago. "The game will be especially good for us because we're sitting in a position in which nobody really knows whether we're really good or our opponents have been really bad."

In related news, senior attackman Bunny Forbes, who suffered a slight neck injury before Tuesday's game is expected to play.

UMass snaps losing streak

Baseball dumps Cross, 13-2

By MATT GERKE
Collegian Correspondent

When the University of Massachusetts baseball team puts it's mind to it, it's capable of playing better than its record indicates.

The Minutemen, 2-14 overall and 0-5 in the Atlantic 10, proved that yesterday as they exploded for six runs in the third inning and went on to post an impressive 13-2 victory over Holy Cross at Lorden Field.

"We played the way we can," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist. "We have the ability and I think we showed that today."

One of the major bright spots for the Minutemen was the performance of co-captain and starting pitcher, Bob Kostro. The senior righthander, now 1-2, threw eight complete innings, giving up two runs on six hits. He struck out three and walked none before being relieved in the ninth by Jeff Richardson.

"I'm pretty psyched," Kostro said. "We're finally playing well. A lot of our problems lately have been mental ones like errors

continued on page 19

Sports at a Glance

UMass Schedule:
Today:
Baseball: Hartford (2), Lorden Field, 1 p.m.
Softball: Hartford (2), NOPE Field, 2 p.m.
Women's Lacrosse: at Harvard, 3 p.m.
Men's Tennis: at MIT, 3 p.m.

UMass softball is pitcher-perfect, twice

Stockley, Rever beat Hawks

By ROGER CHAPMAN
Collegian Staff

The statistics tell it all. 42 batters. 42 outs. No hits, no runs, and no errors. Period.

Senior lefthander Lynn Stockley and sophomore righthander Lisa Rever combined to throw an unheard of back-to-back perfect games yesterday, as the 20th-ranked University of Massachusetts softball team swept a doubleheader from the University of Hartford, 4-0 in the first game, and 5-0 in the nightcap.

The wins were the eighth-straight shutout victories for a pitching staff that continues to prove they are not from this planet. The Minutewomen improved their record to 19-3 on the season.

"I've had pitchers throw no-hitters before, but I've never had pitchers throwing back-to-back perfect games," said a pleased UM head coach Elaine Sortino. "I had two pitchers (Stockley and senior Cathy Reed) throw consecutive no-hitters, but I've never seen anything like this."

Neither have the Lady Hawks. Stockley, 9-1 on the season, with a 0.23 earned run average, tossed her sixth shutout and seventh complete game of the year as she constantly baffled Hartford batters from start to finish.

Stockley struck out 10 Hawks with the deadly combination of off-speed pitches and her blazing fastball. She didn't allow a single ball to leave the infield.

UMass supplied Stockley with all the runs she would need in the second inning, thanks to an RBI double by senior co-captain Sally Maher. Sophomore shortstop Paige Kopcza, who singled before Mahar, scored on the play.

UMass scored another run in the fourth inning, and two more in the fifth to close out the scoring. The Minutewomen pounded out seven hits in the game.

In the nightcap, Rever provided a little high heat for her eighth victory of the season. The Union, New Jersey, native struck out four batters in her perfect game performance and continually kept Hartford, 4-9, off balance with a supreme pitch selection.

Rever did need a little assistance, however, as the Minutewoman defense pulled off two spectacular plays to preserve her perfect game bid.

In Hartford's half of the third inning, Lady Hawk

continued on page 15

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

RSO-UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS-AMHERST 113 CAMPUS CENTER 545-3500 VOLUME CXVI ISSUE 48

FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1986

INSIDE

•The United States and Libya edge toward another meeting. Page 2.
•Bill Spain reviews Koko Taylor's Iron Horse show. Page 8.
•UMass baseball's back, sweeping a doubleheader from Hartford. Page 16.

Collegian photo by Michelle Segall

DEDICATED FANS—Denise Houle, left, and Kari Kastango, a freshman engineering major, bundle up while watching the UMass softball team sweep a doubleheader from Hartford yesterday at NOPE Field. See story above.

Professor's dismissal attacked

Decision based on delay

By LESLEY CLARK
Collegian Staff

A petition protesting the dismissal of a political science professor has garnered more than 300 signatures in two days, but the chairman of the department yesterday said the decision not to renew the instructor's contract is final.

According to Tim Kress, a sponsor of the petition drive, Debra Gross, the political science professor, did not have her contract renewed because she failed to complete her doctoral thesis.

Gross said she has finished the dissertation but must revise two chapters.

"The department won't give her the time to revise," Kress said. "Part of the reason she didn't finish is her incredible workload. The number of students she's worked with is staggering."

The petition asks that the decision be reviewed by the department and the chancellor's office.

"If there was a legitimate basis for letting her go, then there shouldn't be a problem with a review," said Karen-Karina Gray, also a sponsor of the petition. "It shouldn't be a threat to anyone."

Lewis Mainzer, department chairman, said, "We have acted, so I can't think of any affect it [the petition] will have." He would not comment further except to say, "We do not discuss personnel situations."

Gross said she made some "miscaiculations" about completing the work. "I got involved in a lot of other things and I guess I miscalculated ... I guess I expected people to be more willing to see the efforts I made," she said.

Kress said Gross was "a victim of dirty politics being played in the department. The fact that she's one of two women in an all-male department makes it questionable."

But Gross said there was "no malice, no conspiracy" in the decision.

"I don't agree with the decision," she said, "but people did what they had to. I don't feel like I was given a raw deal."

A rally and sit-in protesting the decision are being planned, according to Howie Breslau, a senior political science major.

"Losing her [Gross] will be a big blow to the department," he said. "She's a very effective, well-liked professor."

"At times it's very frustrating when you can't find someone you can talk to," Gray said, "she always has her door open."

The petition states that Gross has "consistently been nominated for the Distinguished Teacher Award and has been the faculty sponsor for numerous student internships."

Mainzer said Gross "is a fine teacher in every way. The bottom line is the dissertation was not completed."

FYI

Several hundred parents of undergraduates who were named to the Dean's List in 1985 are expected to celebrate Parents Weekend tomorrow.

Parents will spend the day participating in workshops, tours and lectures to see what University life is all about. Most of the workshops involve "hands-on" activity including newspaper production and pottery, producing a television show and preparing a gourmet, international meal.

Parents will taken on tours of the campus (weather permitting). The weekend includes a series of social events and performances beginning today and ending Sunday.

MassPIRG fee vote set for Monday

Other student fees addressed

By PATRICK JOHNSON
Collegian Staff

Students at the University of Massachusetts will decide Monday and Tuesday in a referendum election whether they support the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group on campus, and whether they agree with the group's funding methods.

Two of the six questions on the ballot deal with the Massachusetts Public Interest and Research Group. The others ask students' views on fee increases for athletics and the Fine Arts Center and whether to raise fees for the Union Program Council and the Distinguished Visitors Program by $3 and $1.50 respectively.

The first MassPIRG question, proposed by the group as part of its biennial reaffirmation drive, asks, "Do you support a chapter of MassPIRG at UMass-Amherst to be funded by a waivable fee of $3 per student per semester, as of the fall of 1986?" It also notes that students who do not want to pay the fee may waive it.

The MassPIRG fee is currently $2; group members defend the request for a 50 percent increase by noting the fee has been $2 since MassPIRG started in 1970.

The second question, proposed by Student Government Association campus president Bill Bennett and the presidents of the five area governments, seeks to change MassPIRG's funding method from a "negative checkoff," or optional fee, to a positive checkoff, or donation system.

Under the current negative checkoff, the MassPIRG fee is automatically levied on all students who do not fill out a waiver on the back of their tuition bill. The second question seeks to reverse the procedure so that supporters of MassPIRG add the amount to their tuition.

If approved, the second referendum would also apply to the State Student Association of Massachusetts, which receives funds from a $1 waivable fee.

Rayna Sargent of MassPIRG said she opposes a positive checkoff because if it passes, "We can lose the entire chapter on the UMass campus."

A positive checkoff would cause a significant loss of revenue to MassPIRG, and would result in "UMass pimping off the 25 other colleges [with MassPIRG chapters]," Sargent said.

Diedre Cummings of MassPIRG added, "We've talked to 3,000 students about this. I don't see them [positive checkoff supporters] making a lot of effort to talk to the campus to avoid the confusion."

Greg Rothman, a student senator from Baker House and member of a group calling itself "Students for a Positive Checkoff," said he supports what MassPIRG stands for but opposes the MassPIRG reaffirmation question because "It doesn't say anything about the fee increase" to $3.

"MassPIRG should cooperate with the SGA because we represent the students. They do not associate with the SGA. They've put themselves on a pedestal," Rothman said.

Bennett, who proposed the positive checkoff question, said, "The students will decide if they don't want a positive checkoff. I'll stand by whatever they decide.

"Seventy-five percent of the students pay [the MassPIRG fee] but most don't know what it is ... MassPIRG shouldn't be supported out of ignorance," Bennett said.

Sargent said, "Voting on the same issue twice is redundant. Why two questions on the same issue?"

2nd carrier positioned close to Libya

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Navy dispatched a second aircraft carrier to sea in the Mediterranean yesterday, but sources said the Pentagon had yet to order a military strike against Libya in retaliation for recent terrorist attacks.

Should such orders be issued, however, the Navy is in position to form a two-carrier battle group that would include 16 combat ships and more than 160 airplanes, the sources said. It would take about two days to move such a battle group to the Libyan coast, said the sources who discussed the situation only on the basis that they not be identified publicly.

The Pentagon officially declined comment on the position of the Navy ships. But officials who requested anonymity said the carrier Coral Sea - its orders to return to return home canceled - had departed port in Malaga, Spain, early in the day Thursday.

The Coral Sea is steaming eastward toward the central Mediterranean, but is still far to the west of Libya, the sources said.

The Coral Sea had been scheduled to depart Malaga for the Atlantic Ocean and home, having completed a standard six-month deployment that began Oct. 2. But the Pentagon confirmed Wednesday night that those orders had been scuttled for "an indefinite period."

Military commanders say they must have at least two carriers in the Mediterranean to support any military operation against Libya, the sources said.

By getting under way, the Coral Sea joined the carrier America in operating within the Mediterranean. The America ended a liberty call at Livorno, Italy, on Wednesday.

The America had been scheduled to make another port call at Cannes, France, but those orders were also canceled. The vessel is currently in the Tyrrhenian Sea, to the north of the island of Sicily, sources said.

AP photo

May Elias Mansur leaves police headquarters in Tripoli, Lebanon Thursday after being questioned by officials. Greek police have called the Lebanese woman a prime suspect in the bombing of a TWA jetliner.

Studds proposes war to bring decision

WASHINGTON (AP)— Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., introduced a resolution Thursday to declare war on Nicaragua, saying while he opposed the step it was time for Congress to make a firm decision on U.S. policy in Central America.

"I do not believe the United States should declare war against that country. But, if we are to debate the president's plan to train and arm the Nicaraguan rebels, we must logically debate, as well, the question of war," said Studds, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

"For this reason," he said, "I am today introducing a joint resolution that would, if enacted, declare a state of war between the United States of America and Nicaragua."

Studds, an opponent of Reagan's plan to provide military aid to Contra rebels seeking to overthrow Nicaragua's Marxist Sandanista government, said he make the proposal because Reagan "has asked Congress and the American people to support the commission of acts of war against that country."

"I believe that before we commit acts of war, we have an obligation to delcare war, for if we are unwilling to declare war, we should be seeking our objective through other means," he said.

Studds said the questions raised by a potential declaration of war should be answered before the United States provides further aid to rebels.

The central question, he said, is whether violence in Central America will in the long run help the people of Nicaragua.

Anti-gay activist at Student Union today

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

A nationally known anti-gay activist and psychologist said last night all people should be tested for AIDS and those who test positive should be quarantined to prevent the spreading of disease.

"I'm philosophically opposed to the death penalty, that's why I am suggesting this (quarantine) so this horrible solution (the death penalty) does not present itself as a solution," said Paul Cameron, who is speaking today at 10 a.m. on the steps of the Student Union Building at the University of Massachusetts.

Dan Perrin, a UMass student, is sponsoring the lecture.

"I had never heard him speak, but I have read some of his literature," said Perrin who said he was contacted by Cameron's assistants and was asked to sponser his speech. A rally sponsored by the gay and lesbian community and third world and progressive groups will he held at 12 p.m., directly after Cameron speaks.

The rally plans have not been finalized, but Heidi Holland, an organizer of Gay and Lesbian Awarness Week said members of the gay and lesbian community, faculty, adminstration, members of the clergy and students will be speaking.

"We will not allow somebody like Paul Cameron to disrupt our movement," said Mark Clukey, an organizer of the rally.

Cameron has been expelled by the American Psychologist Association, and was censored by the American Sociologists Association and the Nebraska Psychological Association. He said he had been speaking against gay rights in Nebraska and "they said you can't be against gay rights and be a member of the APA so they charged me with violating ethics."

"I would delight in having them (gays and lesbians) debate and expose me, but they can't," said Cameron. Cameron is a licensed psychologist in Lincoln, Nebraska. He is the chairman of the Institute for the Scientific Investigation of Sexuality Inc., which he began four years ago.

AFL/CIO affiliate vies with MTA

By DANIEL SOBEL
Collegian Staff

The endorsement of an affiliate of the AFL/CIO as their representative would give 850 University professionals the broad-based collective bargaining power of one of the largest unions in the country, the Massachusetts AFL/CIO president said yesterday.

Arthur Osborn, whose organization encompasses more than 400,000 AFL/CIO members statewide, told about 35 listeners in the Student Union Ballroom, "If you join the AFL/CIO and you have a problem you'll have sheet-metal workers, garment workers, electricians, longshoremen and others supporting you."

In his speech, sponsored by Local 1863 of the Office and Professional Employees International Union, Osborn warned that state universities will be hit hardest by the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law. He said University professionals, like those in the physical plant, financial aid and admissions offices, nurses, child care workers and others will fare much better if represented with the political clout of the AFL/CIO.

OPEIU, part of the AFL/CIO, is vying with the Massachusetts Teachers Association to represent about 1,200 professionals at the Amherst and Boston campuses and seven other communities. On May 1, the employees will vote on whether to join the MTA, OPEIU or no union at all.

In 1982, campus professionals voted against unionizing, leaving them the only non-union group on the Amherst campus.

As AFL/CIO members, UMass professionals would have a stronger bargaining position because "we have a group of individuals who are more representative of the labor force. Our negotiators come from all over the University and we'll be able to win more economic benefits," said Gerry Scoppettuolo, staff assistant at the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy, who is campaigning for OPEIU.

But Myra Hindus, MTA campaign organizer and employee of the Everywoman's Center, disagreed, saying, "The MTA represents 7,000 employees in higher education in Massachusetts and [is] a very strong lobbying presence on Beacon Hill."

MTA "already represents faculty and clerical/technical employees equaling over 2,000 on this campus," she said, reached by telephone yesterday.

Lobbyist Martin Foley, a legislative and political director for the AFL/CIO, spoke after Osborn.

"The advantage as a teacher of being a member of the AFL/CIO is we're a broad-based coalition to aid you in your issues," Foley said. He cited some teachers who were AFL/CIO members having problems negotiating their contracts; several construction workers called the governor's office on their behalf.

Osborn was elected president of the state AFL/CIO in 1979. He is also president of the New England Council, which represents unions in nine states.

Collegian photo by Nick Sokoloff

Arthur Osborn, an affiliate of the AFL/CIO, wooed UMass professionals yesterday.

Amherst celebrating co-education

By KATHRYN POHNER
Collegian Correspondent

Amherst College students and alumni are celebrating the college's 10th anniversary of co-education with "Woman's Weekend" this weekend.

Members of the Amherst College administration and a student committee have worked together to host a weekend of events that commemorate the 1976 decision to change from an all-male campus to one of co-education.

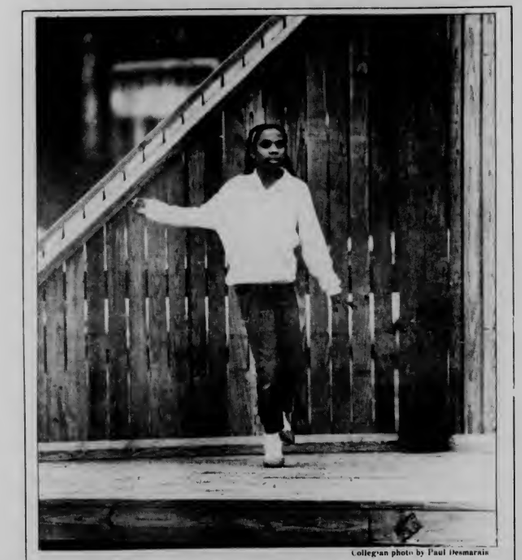
The committee, informally called "Woman Speak," solicited funds from the College's President's Office in order to send invitations and questionnaires to 1,000 women alumnae for the coming weekend.

The weekend calendar opens today at noon with registration for the returning alumnae. Although only a 10 percent return is expected, Dean Karen Thilbor explained, "We're anticipating many recent alumni to return without registering with us. Most will have friends still attending the college that will have rooms for them."

A large student turn-out is also expected, and all who wish to attend are welcome, she said.

An alumnae career panel will speak at 4 p.m. today, on "Amherst Yesterday and My Career Today." The speakers include alumnae from 1977 through 1985.

Tomorrow's agenda includes "Women at Amherst Today," at 10 a.m. This features a student-faculty panel discussion of academic and extracurricular college life. A buffet luncheon is scheduled for noon.



Events are scheduled throughout the day, wrapping up at 5 p.m. tomorrow with a multi-cultural reception.

A Woman's Talent Show will feature student and alumnae talent at 9:30 p.m. The weekend wraps up at noon Sunday in the Woman's Center in Grosvenor House.

WSYL returns

The University of Massachusetts will get one of its former radio stations back this weekend as WSYL-FM 105.1, located in the Sylvan Residential Area, will return after more than a four-month absence.

The station has an alternative music format which will start-up at about 9 p.m. Sunday, said Kevin Taylor, a station disc-jockey. WSYL was last on the air in late November, but was taken off because "it was getting close to finals and everything was going wrong, especially with the transmitter," Taylor said.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

ALL THE WORLD IS A STAGE—Kimberly Jackson, 11, of Amherst, practices a dance routine on an outdoor stage at the Fort River School yesterday.

Physician with dyslexia describes her experiences

By SHERYL JEAN
Collegian Staff

"Having a learning problem doesn't mean you're retarded or stupid, it just means you have a different view of life--a different view of challenges," said a dyslexic family physician yesterday afternoon at the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Mary Groda Lewis spoke to a crowd of about 60 people in Memorial Hall about her experiences in a lecture called "Dyslexia: Challenges--Success" which was sponsored by the Dyslexic Student Organization.

Lewis is a family practice physician who also has the learning disability dyslexia.

She said "being a physician is the greatest privilege I've ever had and the greatest gift education has given me."

Her life story was portrayed last fall in a CBS film titled "Love, Mary" starring Kristy McNichol.

After developing a hatred for book work at an early age, she was labeled a juvenile delinquent for drinking, stealing and running away and found herself in a catholic reformatory. For five years of her life she said she was treated as an object—an outcast—and was subject to various abuses, including rape.

At 16 years old she was first exposed to education on a college campus and participated in an Outward Bound program, which is also on the UMass campus, she said. This was when she found out she had dyslexia and that other people didn't see what she saw.

Collegian photo by Nick Sokoloff

Dr. Mary Groda, a dyslexic physician, spoke at Memorial Hall yesterday

She said she never saw her dyslexia as a handicap, but as a challenge. At the age of 26, she received her bachelors degree from a community college with a 3.99 GPA.

"I couldn't believe that I had learned," she said. In 1980, she attended Albany Medical School and is now a practicing physician in Youngstown, Ohio.

Anthony biographer talks of her dedication

By DANIEL MILLER
Collegian Staff

The author of a new biography on 19th-century women's rights advocate Susan B. Anthony spoke yesterday in Memorial Hall of the tireless energy and dedication with which Anthony worked for women, and the love and occasional indignation she had for them.

Kathleen Barry, author of "Susan B. Anthony: Life and Love of Woman" said that in six years of work on the biography, Anthony "has become the closest person in my life."

Barry said that while researching her book she was forced to ask: "How does this woman, from a rural background and a pietisitic [pious] view of what it was to be a woman—which in her upbringing she embraced with a passion—become the leading figure in the struggle for women's rights?"

Barry described Anthony, who died in 1906 at 86, as "a woman who stood very erect and looked you straight in the eye when she spoke to you ... her [young], angular face with its ready-set jaw revealed a personal autonomy that would not easily slip."

Anthony "fell into grief" when two of her sisters anticipated marriages that would threaten "the woman's world" in which she, her three sisters and mother lived, according to Barry.

Barry highlighted Anthony's 1872 arrest for voting in the presidential election. Anthony canvassed her district to make it impossible to be tried by an unbiased jury. When a judge moved her case to another district, Anthony canvassed that district as well. Still the trial was held, but the jury was not sent out for deliberation and instead, the judge unilaterally found Anthony guilty.

Anthony called the judge's action a "high-handed violation of citizens' rights. Not one of these men was my peer. Each and everyone was my political superior."

Barry said Anthony called the due process of law "one designed by men, favoring men," and said "I ask not for the leniencey of your courts, but the full rigor of the law."

Barry said she was also forced to ask, "Where does this clear-sighted vision come from?" and added that Anthony "knew what she was about and what her work was about, and nothing got her off the track."

Anthony "did not find many victories falling in her path," Barry said. "But she did begin to see signs of [her concept of] the new true woman. And probably nothing was more joyful at the time."

Collegian photo by Paul Franz

Author Kathleen Barry

"Liberty means responsibility. That's why most men dread it." - George Bernard Shaw

Next year it's all up to you. Only you can decide to start an insurance program now. The longer you wait, the more it costs. Find out how easy it is to begin our college plan, chosen by more seniors than any other.

Call the Fidelity Union Life Field Associate in your area:
RONALD J. NATHAN AGENCY
20 Gatehouse Rd., Amherst, Ma.
Tel: 256-8351

Fidelity Union Life

TIME OUT
Need the Ref say more!
Come and enjoy daily luncheon specials at the T.O.

STADIUM LIQUORS

Shortest Distance between 2 points is a straight line and 1 stop light save time and money

Support U.MASS Sports

Kegs - Beer - Wine Liquors - Soda - Ice

Miller Lite.....12 oz. cans.....$10.99 + $1.20 case
Meister Brau...12 pk. cans...$4.20 + $.60 12 pk.
Carling.....12 pk. cans.....$4.00 + $.60 12 pk.
Piels.....12 pk. cans.....$3.75 + $.60 12 pk.
Ballantine Beer.12 pk. cans.$3.60 + $.60 12 pk
Bartles & James and California Coolers.....4 pk.....$2.99

Just Past U.Mass Stadium - 253-5595

KATINA'S
Multi-Entertainment Complex
• FRIDAY and SATURDAY OUI
• SUNDAY Wailin' Dave and the Blue Dogs
322 Russell St., Hadley
18-20 YEAR OLDS: come and enjoy live entertainment and juice bar
Proper Attire Required
Club Open 5 PM - 1 AM Daily
Bands Start at 9:00 PM
586-4463

JBs HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES
11 am - 2 am 7 days
253-7018
50 Main St. Amherst, MA
Please, you horrid looking creature, come down to J.B.'s for a Super One and Mozzarella Sticks. You'll feel like a new being.
I am called "Vein-Head"!!

Material Aid Drive and Rally
Needed supplies for the University of El Salvador:
Bring school, building and medical supplies.
Rally at 12 noon Today SU steps
Support the people of El Salvador and all oppressed people.
Drive sponsored by CASA

GET YOUR HANDS ON SOME GOOD WORK THIS SUMMER
Looking for a summer job? We have openings for about 300 college-age people in a variety of production jobs!
Start anywhere from May 22 to June 22 and work to the end of August.
There are two shifts available. Earn $4.00-$10.00 per hour. We'll be recruiting on campus at the following times and places:
DATE: Friday April 25th
TIME: 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
PLACE: Room 902 (Ninth Floor) Campus Center
Or contact the Plant Manager
Oxford
OXFORD PICKLE CO., INC.
South Deerfield, Massachusetts 01373 / (413) 665-7011

Mortar Board

Mortar Board is a national honor society of college seniors. The society recognizes the qualities of superior ability, outstanding and continued leadership and dedicated service to the college , university or community.

Founded by The Ohio State University, Swathmore College, The University of Michigan, and Cornell University in 1918, the Mortar Board now has 183 active chapters across the country.

The Isogan Chapter of the Mortar Board was installed at the University of Massachusetts in 1955. Those students who have shown qualities of academic excellence, leadership, and service are honored with membership. This year the selection committee reviewed approximately 250 information sheets from those students who merited eligibility.

The Mortar Board is pleased to announce the newly tapped members for 1986 - 1987

Rebecca Bekampis	Kathy Johnson	Celeste Rice
Paul Collins	Brian Kettler	Janet Risman
John Crowley	Steven Kohl	Gwen Roos
Dina DiFlumeri	Carla Kszaszcz	Frederick Slavin
Kim Ethier	Kelly Lynch	Kevin Sweeney
Andrea Griswold	Sharon Marrero	Michael Torla
Dana Grossblat	Susan Phillips	Marissa Tortola

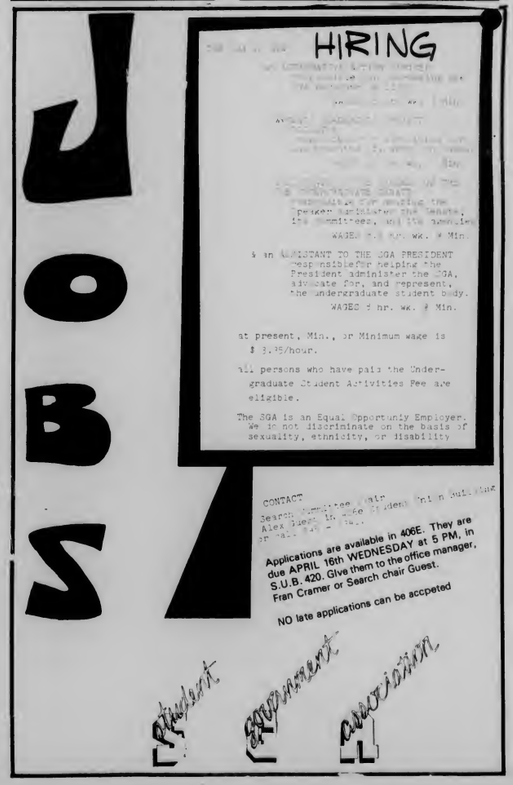
We thank all who expressed interest in the Mortar Board Honor Society. This year, a great number of qualified Juniors made the competition most keen, and the decision quite difficult. To each applicant; you have every reason to be proud of your accomplishments during your college career. Certainly you are a credit to yourself and to the University. We know you will continue to strive for excellence. The Mortar Board extends its best wishes for a successful future.



Patricia Hunt
Selections Chairperson

Keith Sherman
President

Victoria Vought
Vice President

Mary Santry
Treasurer

Linda Greces
Secretary

Letters

Rally for dignity

This week, continuing through Sunday, is Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week at the University. Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week has been happening for the past three years. It's a time set aside for lesbians, gay men, and bisexuals to gather at events and celebrate our culture, our history, and our lives. It's a week when out heterosexual supporters come out to celebrate with us. It's also an opportunity for everyone to open their minds to the truths about our community.

This year's celebration, it appears, has an additional event, one that I assure you was not planned by the committee running Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week. It seems that certain ignorant and homophobic individuals are attempting to detract from the education and celebration that has been happening this week.

Dan Perrin, an undergraduate at UMass, has helped to bring Paul Cameron, one of the most homophobic men in this country, to speak here. According to Dan, "it's only coincidental with the week," that Cameron will be speaking at UMass today.

Cameron, in case you didn't know, has been expelled by the American Psychological Association, and censored by the Nebraska Psychological Association, the American Sociological Association and by a federal court judge in Texas.

Paul Cameron has advocated that all people in high risk groups for AIDS be quarantined. How he would go about accomplishing this ludicrous task I'm not sure. I do know that his gay hating, his AIDS paranoia, and the inaccurate information he espouses is dangerous.

It was less than 50 years ago that gay people were forced to wear pink triangles as they were led into concentration camps. Is that what Cameron wants to happen again? By the way he whips up AIDS hysteria, and hatred for gays, one must think he does.

Cameron and his insidious ideals can be stopped. Once again, the University lesbian and gay community has mobilized, in short time, to let people know that we will not sit in silence when we are being attacked. Once again, as we were a year and a half ago, we'll be out in numbers to refute the lies.

Please join us today at noon on the Student Union steps to rally with our strength, our dignity and our self love. With these, and your presence, we can send a strong message to the Camerons of the world; and at the same time continue celebrating our week.

Mark Clukey
Orchard Hill

DANCE

A 60's Dance
Saturday April 12, 9pm-1am
Campus Center Room 1009
Admission:$2.00

Sponsored by

Music by D.J. Jim McDee from WMUA
No one under 21 admitted. everyone over 21 welcome

Christian Science Heals

Subject - "HOW THE SPIRITUAL MEANING OF THE BIBLE HEALS"
Lecturer - CHARLES W. FERRIS of Minneapolis, Minnesota
Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts
Time - Tuesday, April 15, 1986 at 8:00 p.m.
Place - First Church of Christ Scientist Corner of Center & Masonic Streets Northampton, Massachusetts

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND THIS FREE LECTURE

Child Care Will Be Provided

Summer Fall Spring
WASHINGTON OR LONDON INTERNSHIPS
OXFORD SUMMER 1986
Full Academic Years In • Oxford University
• L.S.E.
• St. Andrews, Scotland
U.S. credits will be transferred through Hampden-Sydney College, founded in Virginia by James Madison in 1776.
Graduate work is an option.
The Director of Studies for the Center for Quality Education Abroad (in Britain) is the Rt. Hon. The Lord Beloff, D.Litt. (Oxon.), Fellow of the British Academy, Professor Emeritus of Government and Fellow of All Souls, Oxford.
INQUIRIES TO:
JANET KOLLEK, J.D., Admissions Director CQEA/WISC, Rm 53, 158 W. 81 St., NY, NY, 10024
(212-724-0804/724-0136). (EO/AA)

TOC
LOUNGE
LIVE MUSIC
FEATURING
FRIDAY 4·11·86
& PAUL MENEGHINI
SATURDAY 4·12·86
STUART CUNNINGHAM
9:00 P.M.- CLOSE
"CHECK OUR WEEKLY DRINK SPECIALS"

Juniors, Seniors & Grads...
GIVE YOURSELF SOME CREDIT!

• Just bring a copy of your school I.D.
• No cosigner required
APPLY NOW ON CAMPUS!
Date: Friday, April 11
Time: 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Place: C C Concourse
CITIBANK

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

ED/OP

The opinions on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian or the University unless otherwise noted

Founded in 1870

EXECUTIVE BOARD-SPRING 1986
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor — Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor
Peter Soderberg, Production Manager — Conor Plunkett, Production Manager — Elizabeth Young, Business Manager — Sherry Sharfman, Business Manager

BOARD OF EDITORS
Dode B. Levenson, Editor in Chief — Ian Polumbaum, Managing Editor
Larry Bouchie, Editorial Editor — Joel P. Coffids, News Editor — John Yonce, Women's Editor — Peter Abraham, Sports Editor
Jennifer Ackerman, Arts Editor — Kelly Sieger, Arts Editor — Michelle Segall, Photo Editor — Paul Desmarais, Photo Editor — Chris Allen, Black Affairs Editor

Money for something...

Monday and Tuesday students will answer six referendum questions affecting campus life and our pocketbooks. Turnout in such votes at UMass is usually much lower than the number of people who later gripe if the results don't appeal to them. We urge that everyone vote, and we endorse the following positions:

•Students should vote "yes" on whether to contribute $3 and $1.50 more respectively to the Union Program Council and the Distinguished Visitors Program. Costs have risen substantially for both groups. UPC is responsible for bringing performers such as Carlos Santana, Stevie Ray Vaughan and UB40 to UMass, as well as for the massive spring concert that has become a hallmark of the campus. DVP enriches intellectual life at the University by sponsoring such speakers as Dith Pran, Richard Leakey and Berke Breathed.

•More important, students should vote "yes" to grant the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group a $3 waivable fee. MassPIRG lobbies on behalf of students and consumers in numerous areas, including the environment, voter registration, protection against high utility rates, and hunger relief.

MassPIRG has repeatedly been supported overwhelmingly at UMass in referenda, despite constant efforts by right-wing groups to abolish it here. The campus chapter's request that the optional fee supporting it be raised by $1 is reasonable, since the fee has been $2 since it began in 1970.

•A twist in the reactionary attack on MassPIRG and the State Student Association of Massachusetts -- which is also funded by a "negative checkoff" on students' tuition bills -- is the question which seeks to replace the optional fee with a positive checkoff, or donation, system.

"Students for Participatory Democracy," or whatever the Minuteman coalition is calling itself this time around, claims it is fighting a deceptive fee. But the vast majority of Umass students understand that SSAM and MassPIRG work in their interest. Only a few fringe-dwellers have consistently questioned this. Vote "no" on the checkoff question.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Faulty frame of reference

Reed Ide

"In Germany, they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was Protestant. Then they came for me - and by that time no one was left to speak up."

—Pastor Martin Niemoller

Today, at the University of Massachusetts, Paul Cameron is coming for the lesbians and gay men. But make no mistake. He is also coming for the people of color, for the feminists, for all those who do not fit into his unfortunate vision of America. Those folks are just a little farther down on his list than the lesbians and gays. Just what is his agenda for the gay community? In his own words, "Gays are worse than murderers, and we should execute murderers."

In the middle of the University's Lesbian/Gay Awareness Week, our community is brought face to face with one of its most vocal oppressors.

By the standards of most, Cameron should be a man without honor in his own country. Stripped of his University of Nebraska teaching position in 1981, expelled from the American Psychological Association in 1983, censured by the Nebraska Psychological Association in 1984, and censured by a Texas federal judge in 1984, Cameron nevertheless manages to find audiences for his amalgam of distortion, innuendo, falsehoods, and hate. That he and the people who brought him here should feel such an audience exists in an academic setting such as ours is an insult to the University community. A university must always be committed to the free exchange of ideas, but that exchange must always be based on a standard of intellectual integrity which is completely absent from Cameron's frame of reference.

Far more important than Cameron's visit and "rally" is our response to the fact of his visit and the larger issue it represents—namely the oppression of all minority people.

Today at noon, following Cameron's appearance, a rally has been scheduled in support of lesbians and gays, and in recognition of the fact that an attack on one oppressed group is an attack on all. The Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Alliance, the Lesbian Union, and the Lesbian, Bisexual and Gay Counselling Collective will be joined by WHEEL, a multi-racial coalition of progressive campus organizations.

The Program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns has worked during the past year to bring to the University community a better understanding of lesbians, gays, and bisexuals. Programs serving people of color, women, people with disabilities, Jewish people, and older people, have also sought to increase campus-wide awareness around these people and issues. We have set our own agendas, and will continue to carry them out. Cameron and others like him strive to steal the agenda and disrupt the progress we have all made. They cannot and will not succeed. United, we will not let them.

It is important that all concerned people at this University make every effort to attend this important rally in support of the lesbian and gay community, to demonstrate that we, as people of conscience, stand together in our affirmation of the principles of justice and equality for all people.

In America, when they came for one, we knew that they had come for us all, and we all spoke up.

Reed Ide is the codirector of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

Fine art of observation

Herb Ramy

It's springtime once again, and two very important groups are making their way back to campus. The first is the birds that had flown south for the winter. Soon, we'll be serenaded by their beautiful music at 6 a.m. every morning. The only exception to this rule will be Saturdays when they will begin at 5:30.

The second group returning to UMass is the beautiful people, who seem to fly south every winter also. Already they are lying outside, working on those all important tans.

Two very important skills are required by the rest of us during this time of year. First there is the skill of watching these beautiful people, and the second is learning to identify them. Some may feel that staring at people is beneath them, but I know that no matter how cynical or sarcastic I become I will always appreciate beauty. Whether this beauty is a painting, a sunset, or a human body makes little difference.

As I have already mentioned, the first skill to acquire is that of watching. You may be saying, "I've been able to see my entire life, what are you talking about?" What most people don't realize is that seeing and watching are two entirely different things. Seeing is what we do every day when driving or reading a blackboard. Would you look at a blackboard in the same manner that you look at a beautiful person? I should hope not, watching requires a great deal of style and finesse. One must be able to watch without the watched person knowing.

Unfortunately, a byproduct of watching for the novice is oftentimes staring. This is where a watcher's most indispensable tool comes into play, a pair of sunglasses. Sunglasses will help hide those embarassing moments when you've stared at a particular part of the anatomy for too long a period of time.

Now that you're ready to start watching, one must know who to watch. Sometimes identifying an objective is the most difficult part of your job. If you just keep these few simple facts in mind though, you should be OK.

